THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A man's horse sense often deserts him when he is feeling his oats."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors: "Man comes into this world without his consent and leaves it against his will."

That was the start of a column by Marshall Day, in the Gatesville Messenger. Marshall must have been listening to the Presidential contenders denounce one another.

Day has some other observations:

--When he is little, the big girls kiss him; and when he is big, the little girls kiss him.

--If he is active in politics, it is for graft; and if he is not interested in politics, he is no good to his country.

--If he is religious, he is a hypocrite; if he doesn't go to church, he's a hardened sinner.

--If he gives to charity, it is for show; if he doesn't, he is a stingy cuss.

--If he is affectionate, he is a soft specimen; if he doesn't care for anyone, he is cold-hearted.

--If he dies young, there was a great future before him; if he lives to a ripe old age, he missed his calling.

--If he saves money, he is a tightwad; if he enjoys it, he's a spendthrift.

Day concluded, "You just can't win!"

Larry Crabtree, in the Vernon Daily Record, noted that researchers at the Rochester Institute of Technology have determined that drivers with a cellular phone in the car stand a 34 percent greater risk of having an accident than other motorists.

Crabtree said the research didn't indicate whether it was from talking on the phone or being startled when it rings.

O.G. Nieman, in the Hereford Brand, says he overheard two golfers discussing the hereafter.

One said, "I'm not afraid of dying. I'm just not too fond of going anyplace I can't take my golf clubs."

DCOS approves bonds & bids for park development

Development Corporation of Snyder board, meeting Thursday, approved a resolution issuing $985,000 in bonds, accepted a bid for utility construction from a local contractor and moved to seek state and federal grants.

Almost all of the action taken in Thursday's meeting deals directly with SnTx Park I and preparations for Lorber Industries to locate a plant and offices there.

The $985,000 in bonds will be used to help fund infrastructure at the industrial park, located just northeast of the intersection of U.S. Highways 180 and 84.

In relation to that, the board both accepted and praised a bid from E.D. Walton Construction Co. for construction of utilities at the park. E.D. Walton bid $446,311.40, some $172,000 below the cost estimate projected by engineers Freese & Nichols.

"This is another example of how our community is behind this," said DCOS board president Roy Baze, who also praised the assistance provided by local banks, the county, city and private businesses.

The only other bid, $526,828 from Rhodes Construction, also came in under the engineering firm's estimate.

Walton projected a timetable of three months for completion, contrasting Freese & Nichols' seven-month estimate.

Baze said Walton's low bid for construction will enable the board to target funds for other projects at the park.

Board members hope that two of those projects will be aided by grants. On Thursday, the board recommended an application for the city to seek a grant of $500,000 from the Texas Capital Fund. If approved, the funds would be used for ground storage, overhead storage and a pumping station.

Board members also approved a DCOS-sought grant from the Farmers Home Administration in the amount of $500,000. Those federal funds — again, if approved — would likely be used for the paving of a portion of the roads and construction of curbs and gutters.

Motions to approve the grants included payment of $5,000 to Freese & Nichols for technical services provided.

In other action, the board granted an easement to TU Electric and TCA Cablevision as well as a payment agreement with TU Electric. The payment contract with the electric company relates to relocating existing overhead lines underground at the park entrance. Maximum cost to the DCOS will be $18,000, due in five years. There are provisions in the contract which may lead to less cost, or no cost.

The board also approved ratification of a work contract to Jack's Roadboring in the amount of $9,250 to bury the TU and TCA lines. It was noted by the board

Clinic groundbreaking ceremonies held

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the soon-to-be-constructed St. Mary Family Healthcare Center were held Thursday with a large crowd in attendance.

The facility will be located at the corner of College Avenue and Parkway Drive.

Among those attending the ceremonies were Susan Neves, assistant vice president of St. Mary Hospital; Joe D. McKay, architect; Matt Malouf, Lasco Development Corporation from Houston; Tom Ferguson, vice president with Lee Lewis Construction, Inc. of Lubbock; and James Burrell, MD, president of the St. Mary Medical Group.

Others attending on behalf of the Lubbock hosital were Jan Campbell, Bill Weldon, Richard Pope, Cecilia Garison, Jessica Wilkes and Sharon Thiel. Several members of the present St. Mary staff in Snyder attended, including Carla Nunley, clinic supervisor.

Drs. Jim Burleson, Gary Nussey and Paul Thompson, who will move their practices to the facility, spoke at the ceremonies Thursday.

When the facility is completed this fall, the $1.4 million project will include 23 examination rooms, four special procedure rooms, an in-house laboratory, an X-ray facility and a conference room.

St. Mary, which has an affiliation agreement with Cogdell Memorial Hospital, is in the process of helping recruit other physicians to Snyder. The partnership between St. Mary and Cogdell began in 1987.

Neves, a former Cogdell Hospital vice president, said the new clinic will give the physicians an opportunity to practice medicine under one roof, while offering easy access and convenience to patients.

"We have 16 employees and meet an annual payroll of more than $500,000," said Neves, who added that the staff would expand to 22 employees over the next 12 months.

House passes sweeping illegal immigration bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moving on an issue that sprang into the Campaign '96 spotlight, the House late Thursday passed sweeping legislation to combat illegal immigration.

In the first major congressional action on immigration in a decade, the House deleted most provisions that would have restricted legal immigration before approving the mammoth bill, 333-87.

"It is fundamentally wrong to take the justifiable anger about our failure to deal with the issue of illegal immigration and piggyback on top of that anger a drastic ... cut in permanent legal immigration, a cause and a force that has been good for this country," said Rep. Howard Berman, D-Calif., who cosponsored the House amendment deleting the legal immigration limits.

The bill would double the U.S. Border Patrol by adding 5,000 new agents over five years; crack down on smugglers of aliens, document forgers and illegal aliens who overstay temporary visas and bar members of foreign terrorist organizations. It also would set up an 800-number in five states — California, Texas, Florida, New York and New Jersey — that employers could call to check whether job hunters were eligible to work in the United States.

"It will help secure our borders, reduce crime and protect jobs for American citizens," said Rep. Lamar Smith, R-Texas, the bill's chief author.

Even without many of the legal immigration provisions he had pushed, Smith said the bill "will encourage legal immigrants to be productive members of our communities and ease the burden on the hard-working taxpayer."

The presidential primary campaign gave a high-profile boost to the drive to shut down illegal immigration. Both California Gov. Pete Wilson, before he dropped out of the GOP race, and candidate Pat Buchanan made it integral parts of their campaigns.

Buchanan has blamed illegal aliens as among the causes of stagnant wages, inflated welfare costs and rising crime and has called for a five-year moratorium on legal immigration to give those now here time to assimilate.

In reaction to Buchanan's position, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole — who clinched the GOP nomination this week — has said he favors a "modest, temporary" reduction in legal immigration.

But Smith said after the vote that it was California's Proposition 187, not Buchanan, that led to lawmakers' overwhelming support for the bill.

Tempers flare as House debates firearms ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tempers flared today as the House debated repeal of the 2-year-old ban on assault-style firearms, and the remarks quickly got personal.

"Families like mine all across this country know all too well what the damage of weapons can do," said Rep. Patrick Kennedy, D-R.I., whose uncles, President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, were gunned down by assassins.

"Play with the devil, die with the devil," he said. "You will never know what it's like because you don't have someone in your family killed. It's not the person who's killed. It's the whole family that's affected."

The remarks enraged Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., a cosponsor of the bill to repeal the 1994 ban on 19 specific assault-style firearms, dozens of similar models and high-capacity magazines.

"My wife lives alone five days a week in rural area in upstate New York," Solomon shouted. "She has a right to defend herself when I'm not there, son. And don't you ever forget it."

Members of the Republican-led House knew in advance there was virtually no chance of repealing the ban, given President Clinton's repeated veto threats.

"It will endanger law enforcement officials if it does pass," Clinton said. "It will cost more citizens their lives if it does pass.

Father charged in death of son

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas man has been charged with capital murder of a child in connection with the death in late February of one of his 16-month-old twin sons.

Jeremy Fritz Williams, 25, is two years into a sentence of five years probation assessed in the beating of another son in 1993.

Williams was the only person caring for his son, Deremy, on Feb. 26, when the child suffered a fractured skull, police said. The boy died the next day in a hospital. He said his son struck his head while he was playing with the boy by throwing him into the air.

Williams was arrested and indicted last week.

Williams' wife, Dorothy, said her son was unconscious when she returned home. She said they placed the child in bed with them and that they took him to the hospital when they checked on him again at 11:40 p.m. and he wasn't breathing.

Deremy and his twin brother were the youngest of Jeremy and Dorothy Williams' five children. The other children were taken into custody by state Child Protective Services officials immediately after Deremy's death, family members said.

At the time of the child's death, Williams was on probation for a March 25, 1993, beating incident involving his 3-year-old son.

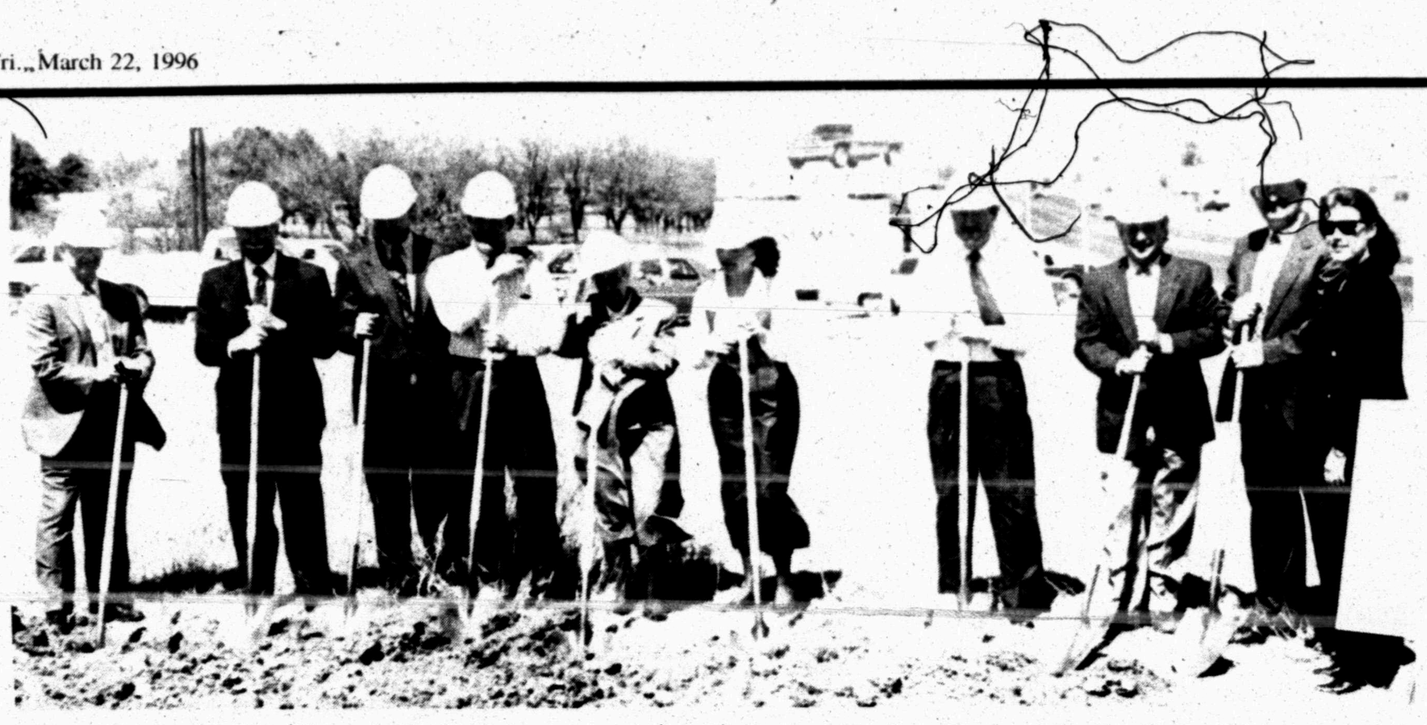

According to a police report, Williams took his son into a room and beat him when the child wouldn't stop crying. Witnesses said they heard the boy yelling for his father to stop.

Later, the child told the witnesses, "Daddy hit me with his hand, and Daddy took off his belt," the police report states.

The boy was taken to the hospital where doctors found severe bruises on his arms, thighs, legs and buttocks, and bloody genitals, the police report said.

Williams was put on probation in January 1994, Dallas County court records show. As part of that order, he was not allowed to care for any of his children.

The mother and children lived with other relatives for months, said Darlene Bivins, the mother's aunt.

Channelview man sentenced

HOUSTON (AP) — A suburban Houston man must serve at least 30 years in prison before he can be considered for parole for fatally stabbing his wife while their young son was nearby listening to his parents screaming.

A Harris County jury Thursday deliberated for about an hour before deciding Rodney Green, 45, of Channelview, should get 99 years in prison for the March 1995 killing of his estranged wife, Darlene, 38.

Green, a long-haul trucker, and his wife, a Continental Airlines executive secretary, had two children and had been married 16 years. Testimony showed after his wife told him to pack his things and move out, he complied but continued to call her and wanted to reconcile. She refused.

The couple's 8-year-old son, Brandon, said that on the day of the slaying, he and his mother arrived home to find his father there. An argument culminated with the hacking of the woman with a pocketknife.

Two countries ban beef from Britain

LONDON (AP) — The only way for humans to avoid any risk of a cattle brain disease is to not eat British beef, Britain's largest consumers' organization warned today. It acknowledged it had no idea how large the risk was.

The Co-op, which has 3,000 supermarkets in Britain, said today it was considering switching to imported beef, but other markets and fast-food chains tried to assure customers that their meat was safe.

Warnings about British beef followed the government's disclosure on Wednesday that 10 human cases of an incurable brain illness are "most likely" due to an epidemic of bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE) or "mad cow disease," which broke out in British herds a decade ago.

Prime Minister John Major and other officials have said they accept scientists' advice that the risk is slight, and that they will continue to eat beef.

"Consumers who want to avoid the risk of BSE have no choice but to cut out beef and beef products from their diet," said the Consumers' Association, a private organization supported by 1.1 million subscribers.

Sheila McKechnie, the association's director, said there was "no scientific information available that can predict the level of the risk with any security."

"Some consumers will decide that the risk is acceptable, and our advice to them is that they can reduce the risk by only eating 'muscle' meat," she said, referring to meat other than organs such as liver, brain and kidney.

Rifleman who terrorized neighborhood kills himself

EASTCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A rifleman who terrorized his suburban neighborhood with gunfire and killed a policeman was found dead today of a self-inflicted gunshot wound, ending a 15-hour siege. His grandmother and dog also were killed.

The body of Richard Sacchi was found about dawn in the attic of his Westchester County home after police slipped into the house and conducted a room-to-room search.

Sacchi, 26, who had agreed to surrender today to face stalking charges, unleashed a barrage of bullets Thursday that sent residents diving for cover. He had held dozens of police officers and sharpshooters at bay.

Police Chief Jim Maher said Sacchi had shot himself in the stomach, correcting his earlier account that Sacchi's body was found with a gunshot wound in the head.

Messages were found scribbled on the bedroom walls in pencil, including one that said, "Jesus, forgive me for my sins," according to Westchester Country District Attorney Jeanine Pirro.

Sacchi also left out a black shirt and gray-black suit, beneath the scrawled words: "Clothes for my funeral." Another message said, "You were the best dad in the world."

Maher said police believed that Sacchi had also killed his grandmother, Catherine Sacchi, in her 80s, who was taken from the home late Thursday night and pronounced dead at a hospital of a gunshot wound. His dog, a terrier, was also found shot to death, apparently by Sacchi.

Beside Sacchi's body was a shotgun and a rifle, and in all, six rifles and shotguns were found in the home along with what Maher called "quite a cache of ammunition."

The siege outside Sacchi's home started Thursday afternoon when Sacchi began firing out a window. Some residents on the block were evacuated overnight. During the siege in the New York City suburb, one woman was pinned down for hours by gunfire.

Killed by the hail of bullets was Officer Michael Frey, 29, of Eastchester who was shot in the chest and in both arms. Frey had arrived on the scene answering a call from a man requesting assistance. A second officer was wounded.

Police believe that Saccho himself made the emergency call for help as a "planned execution" or suicide.

Police had to bring in an armored personnel carrier to evacuate the wounded officers, then called in New York City Police, who are more seasoned in handling such crimes, Maher said.

Hostage negotiators also were brought in when it was feared that Sacchi was holding hostages. Attempts made to negotiate with him through a loudspeaker were answered only by bursts of loud rock music.

Farmers said pleased with 'engineered' corn prospects

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — The scores are in from field tests on genetically seed corn. And farmers are pleased.

"The results were amazing," said Blair Hoerbert, who farms about 600 acres south of Peoria. "Not only was it the healthiest corn I have ever had the privilege to harvest, the corn produced 12 bushels more per acre."

For Hoerbert, whose fields were infested with the borers last year, that means a yield of 127 bushels per acre, rather than 115. It meant additional income of $36 per acre even after Hoerbert paid the nearly $10-per-acre premium for the genetically engineered seed.

Hoerbert and a few hundred other farmers were the first to test the new corn, which will be available commercially this year — but in limited quantities. Companies such as Mycogen Corp., Ciba-Geigy Seed, Monsanto Co. and DeKalb Genetics Corp. have each spent hundreds of millions of dollars over the past decade to develop the new corn, which is called a transgenic hybrid.

Are you resolute or flexible?

Do you like to try new bidding conventions or do you prefer to stick to the recommendations of your parents? Or do you fall somewhere between the two extremes?

Whichever it is, probably if you used to play four-card majors, you have moved to five-card majors. Although this deal isn't being used to justify the change, it was bad news for North-South that they were using four-card majors.

South rebid two no-trump because he was afraid that if he jumped to three of a minor, partner would assume he had at least five hearts.

West led the diamond two, fourth-highest from his stronger minor.

With seven top tricks, declarer realized he would need at least two heart tricks. So, after winning East's diamond queen with his ace, South finessed the heart 10.

Although East won with the king, South wasn't worried. Surely East would return his partner's suit. Yet East had paused to count out the hand. As South had bid three no-trump, not four hearts, surely he had only four hearts. The opening lead marked South with four diamonds. And if South had only three clubs, West would have started with five. Since West would have led from a five-card suit, not a four-carder, it looked as though South must have started with 1-4-4-4 distribution.

Backing his assessment, East cashed the spade ace, dropping South's king. Then came a spade to West's queen and a spade to East's remaining jack-nine tenace, defeating the contract by one trick.

Never play without thinking and always count out the hand.

Red Raiders run out of gas in 8 point loss

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgetown coach John Thompson was out of character, dancing and joking. It was understandable because his Hoyas were one step closer to another NCAA title.

Thompson, whose demeanor is quite different on the court, where he refuses to crack a smile as he prowls the sidelines, showed he has a sense of humor.

When the Hoyas win, that is. And he was in good humor Thursday night after the second-seeded Hoyas (29-7) tripped up No. 3 Texas Tech 98-90 in the NCAA East semifinal. The Red Raiders (30-2) had the longest winning streak in the nation end at 23 in their second appearance in the round of 16.

Top-seeded and No. 1 ranked Massachusetts (34-1) scored the first 13 points and went on to an easy 79-63 win over Arkansas (20-13), the No. 12 seed, in the nightcap before a record Georgia basketball crowd of 34,614 at the Georgia Dome.

Georgetown meets Massachusetts for the right to go to the Final Four next week at East Rutherford, N.J., on Saturday at 6 p.m. EST.

After Allen Iverson scored 32 points and Othella Harrington 23 for Georgetown in a game in which 59 personal fouls were called, it was time to party for Thompson and his players.

"It felt pretty good. I did a little dance. "Uncle John," I call it," Thompson said.

"I get a little crazy, just like the kids when we win. There is no doubt about it, there is a lot of pressure. But this is what we work for all year. When things go good, you can't be afraid to have fun."

Meanwhile, it was fun while it lasted for the virtual unknowns from Lubbock, Texas, who made a run at Georgetown before a 17-0 run gave the Hoyas a 72-61 lead with 9:37 left.

"They did what they had to do to win the game," Texas Tech coach James Dickey said. "We didn't handle the pressure that Georgetown put on us. We didn't make good decisions and we didn't play well in the stretch."

"We just ran out of gas and Georgetown kept sticking it to us," said Jason Sasser, who led Texas Tech with 25 points.

It was John Calipari's Minutemen who stuck it to Arkansas, even though Massachusetts All-American Marcus Camby didn't start because he was late to a shootaround earlier Thursday, getting caught in Atlanta's traffic.

Tyrone Weeks started in place of Camby and led UMass with 16 points. Camby, however, who only sat out the first 1:13, added 15 points. Guard Carmelo Travieso, who avoided serious injury the previous day when he fell off a podium during a news conference, played 35 minutes and scored 14 points.

Calipari said he didn't watch the Georgetown game.

"But I know this, they have an unbelievable team. They have plenty of talented players and Allen Iverson is fabulous," he said.

"We're going to enjoy tonight and worry about Georgetown tomorrow," said Calipari, who has had UMass in the NCAA the last five seasons. His best effort came in 1995 when the Minutemen reached the East final before losing to Oklahoma State 68-54.

Arkansas, which lost to UCLA for the national championship last season and won it all in 1994, lost all of its starters from a year ago.

Nothing much was expected this season from coach Nolan Richardson and his Razorbacks, who came on strong down the stretch, keyed by freshman Kareem Reid, who had 12 points and eight assists against UMass.

"It seemed like we couldn't throw the ball in the ocean. We put ourselves in a big hole. I think at one point in the second half, Pat Bradley was the only one who scored for us," Richardson said.

Bradley led Arkansas in scoring with 15 points.

"Congratulations to UMass," Richardson said. "They had a great game and dominated on both sides of the floor, both on offense and on defense. They had a tremendous game."

Researchers dispute old ideas about infant immune system

WASHINGTON (AP) — New findings about how the very young develop immunity to disease challenges long-held ideas and may lead to starting vaccinations within days of birth.

In today's edition of the journal Science, three teams of researchers dispute fundamental conclusions about the immune system and report on studies that could point the way toward improved vaccines and new treatments for some diseases.

The research challenges the work of F. Macfarlane Burnet of Australia and Peter B. Medawar of Britain, who shared the Nobel Prize in 1960 for concluding that the immune system of newborns is too immature to protect against foreign antigens.

Though the new work creates a fresh understanding of the immune system, scientists said it will take years before such basic laboratory research could be translated into medical treatment for humans.

Marcella Sarzotti-Kelsoe of the Baltimore Veterans Affairs Medical Center led a team that inoculated two-day old mice with low doses of virus and found the animals developed long-term immunity to the disease.

However, she said, newborn mice exposed to large doses of the same virus were not able to mount an immune response and quickly died.

It shows, she said, that "given the correct, dose newborns can respond like adults."

If the new findings lead to an earlier start of immunizations, said Sarzotti-Kelsoe, the period of time that children are vulnerable to infectious diseases could be narrowed.

She noted, for example, that pneumococcal pneumonia vaccine cannot be given now until the age of 2 and vaccinations for measles, mumps and rubella are not given until the age of 15 months, although the diseases can be contracted at an earlier age.

At Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, a team led by Paul V. Lehmann examined the reaction of newborn mice to antigens mixed with two different types of oils — called adjuvants — which are used in laboratory experiments to excite the immune system.

Lehmann said mice injected with an oil that included antigen and dead bacteria developed what he called a Th1 reaction, which causes inflammation and tissue destruction.

However, newborn mice injected with an adjuvant that included only the antigen, Lehmann said, developed a Th2 reaction, which is not inflammatory and is able to protect from disease.

"This shows that neonates are fully immune competent," said Lehmann. He said the findings should force "a reinterpretation" of the Burnet-Medawar studies.

At the National Institutes of Health, a team led by Polly Matzinger of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases injected female newborn mice with an antigen carried only on the surface of male cells. The injections were enriched with dendritic cells, a type of cell that attaches, or presents, antigens to the T-lymphocytes, which are key soldier cells in the immune system.

The NIH team found that the immature immune system of the female mice was able to mount a response to the injected cells.

A similar response did not occur when another antigen-presenting cell, called the B cell, was the most common cell in the injection.

Matzinger said the studies showed that the T cells of the immature immune system will respond with full competence when exposed to antigens that may cause the body harm, an idea that she calls "the danger model."

Other scientists hailed the achievement of the three groups of researchers.

"These experiments clearly show that there is nothing special about the neonatal period," Alfred Singer of the National Cancer Institute said in Science. "That's an important correction."

Researchers find anti-body trigger

WASHINGTON (AP) — A natural cancer-killing cell will start vigorously attacking tumors after injections of an antibody, according to a California study published today.

Researchers at the University of California, Berkeley, said they found that an element of the immune system, called CTLA-4, suppresses the body's attempt to protect itself against cancer and that the new antibody overcomes this problem. The antibody was tested on laboratory mice.

The study is published in the journal Science.

Dr. James P. Allison, a professor of immunology and co-author of the study, said the antibody neutralizes the effect of CTLA-4 and allows immune system cells to mount a vigorous and successful attack on cancer.

Allison said the antibody, in effect, clears up an immune system confusion that can prevent T-lymphocytes from attacking cancer.

Cancer cells normally have antigens on their surface that can tell the immune system that the tissue is abnormal. Special cells in the immune system react with these antigens.

What's the prognosis for lupus?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My wife has been diagnosed with lupus. We would appreciate any information you can provide, as well as information regarding support groups.

DEAR READER: Lupus is an autoimmune (self-allergy) disease, marked by arthritis, rash, fever, malaise, pleurisy, swollen glands, headaches, low white-blood-cell count, and kidney disease. The diagnosis is established by blood tests and biopsy.

Mild forms do not need therapy, except non-prescription analgesics. More severe cases require treatment with cortisone drugs, such as prednisone. The prognosis depends on the severity and extent of the disease, as well as the response to therapy.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Lupus: The Great Imitator." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

You can find the name of a lupus support group in or near your community by contacting the Lupus Foundation of America, 1717 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Suite 203, Washington, DC 20036 or by calling 1-800-558-0121.

DEAR DR. GOTT: About 30 years ago my wife had two bouts with Hodgkin's disease. She had neck surgery, followed by radiation. She's also suffered from heart problems and brachial palsy in her left arm. She has constant pain and increasing numbness in her fingers. We've accepted the irreversible damage that has been done and are grateful for the gift of life; however, we are bothered by her inability to get relief from constant pain. Can you offer an explanation of brachial palsy and suggestions as to how to get relief or more advanced treatment, other than with Motrin?

DEAR READER: The brachial plexus is a collection of nerves leading to the arm. Damage to these nerves results in pain, tingling and weakness of the arms, called a brachial plexus palsy.

Infants can suffer permanent weakness from such a palsy if the nerves are injured during a particularly lengthy and traumatic birth process. In adults, causes of the palsy include diabetes, cancer or serious injury. Radiation to the upper chest (when used in cancer therapy) may cause a brachial plexus palsy because post-radiation scarring can disable the nerves.

I suspect that this is the cause of your wife's symptoms. Hodgkin's disease, a form of lymph-node cancer, is often treated with X-ray therapy.

You're justifiably grateful that your wife is cured, no matter how unpleasant the consequences of treatment. Fortunately, she can be helped.

Ask her doctor to refer her to a neurologist or to a chronic pain clinic in a teaching hospital. By using biofeedback, TENS (electrical stimulation), physical therapy, and prescription analgesics, the specialists should be able to make her more comfortable.

Leaders condemn TV ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bank of TV sets shows "Seinfeld," "Jeopardy!" "20/20" and "60 Minutes." One by one they vanish until there's only gray snow. Viewers are urged to call Congress to prevent this from happening.

That's one of the ads the National Association of Broadcasters is using to attack a proposal to make broadcasters pay billions of dollars for new digital channels — and it had some House members fuming Thursday.

The House Commerce telecommunications subcommittee Chairman Jack Fields, R-Texas, and the ranking Democrat, Edward Markey, D-Mass., said the ads are deliberate efforts to mislead and scare the public.

"I don't know any of the members who have taken a strong, vocal position advocating the auction of the digital spectrum, anyone who is advocating any tax, anyone who wants the consumer to pay for their favorite television shows, or to see those favorite television shows disappear," Fields said.

Legislators rejected the contention in some of the commercials that channel auctions would translate into a tax on broadcasters.

The complex issue involves terms and conditions by which TV stations can provide the next generation of television.

The ad tells viewers: "Some members of Congress want to tax local TV broadcasters billions of dollars in order to balance the budget."

The ad alludes to a proposal by Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., to make broadcasters buy digital channels at government auction. That, it says, amounts to "a tax that could mean you'll end up either paying a lot more to watch your favorite shows or, worse still, see them disappear altogether."

NAB President Edward Fritts said, "We stand behind the ads. The research and the facts are accurate as to what would happen if Congress passes a spectrum auction. It would be a tax on the American people."

Another NAB ad talks about how air is free and that broadcasters use the air to transmit signals. It features a kite against a bright blue sky and tells viewers: "Call toll free and tell Congress not to tax the airwaves. Tell them to go fly a kite instead."

Dangers to Children Lurk In Every Room in a House

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1996 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Never have I felt so compelled to write to you as when I read the letter from "Concerned Mom" regarding guns in the house. She shouldn't feel awkward about her young son's welfare. If safe and proper storage methods have been adhered to, there should be no reason for alarm.

I don't see any mention in that letter that indicates "Concerned Mom" wouldn't let her children play at the Smiths because of kitchen knives in unsecured drawers or in a knife block on the counter, power tools in the garage, drain cleaners and other household products easily accessible stored under the kitchen sink, medication in the bathroom, electrical outlets uncovered, or cooking pots on the stove.

Our homes contain a multitude of potential threats to children. With supervision, knowledge and safeguards, our homes can be happy and protected places for our children — guns in or guns out. You may use my name.

SUSANE A. GREENE, MIDLAND, TEXAS

DEAR SUSANE A. GREENE: All of the potentially dangerous items you cite in your letter have been mentioned in my column many times, as well as the danger of having a loaded gun in the house.

DEAR ABBY: I have been at my job only about nine months, so I'm a little afraid to talk to my supervisor about a problem I'm having with a co-worker. I try very hard to do the best job I can, I'm dependable, and never miss work without a legitimate reason, while she wastes time, takes off for little or no reason, and "brown-noses" the bosses.

Abby, she lies to them about me, blaming me for every error she makes and accusing me of all sorts of things. It has become almost a full-time job defending myself, but if I don't, my supervisors may believe what she says, and I can't afford to be without an income.

I'm about ready to quit, but jobs are hard to find. Help!

FED-UP LINE WORKER

DEAR LINE WORKER: Your supervisors can plainly see that you are doing a good job. They can also evaluate the performance of your co-workers.

If it's any comfort, Abraham Lincoln was also wounded by the arrows of his "enemies." This is what he had to say about it: "If I were to try to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for any other business. I do the very best I know how — the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end.

"If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, 10 angels swearing I was right would make no difference."

DEAR ABBY: My brother and I work for the same company. He has a position in the company that puts him in contact with hundreds of people. Here is my problem: It seems that everyone hates him, and I have to hear it!

What should I say to people when they tell me how they feel about him, and should I talk to my brother about this?

"T'S" BROTHER IN ALBANY, N.Y.

DEAR BROTHER: If your brother is really making enemies right and left and it's not part of his job, he will be hearing about it soon enough from his boss — so it shouldn't be necessary for you to counsel him. Your dilemma reminds me of an old saying: "It takes a friend and an enemy, working in concert, to hurt you to the core. The enemy to slander you, and the friend to tell you about it."

Good advice for everyone — teens to seniors — is in "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

FIERCE SONS OF THE DESERT!

THE AMALEKITES WERE DESCENDANTS OF ESAU, JACOB'S TWIN BROTHER (GEN.36:12) THEY INHABITED THE PENINSULA OF SINAI AND THE WILDERNESS BETWEEN THE SOUTHERN HILL-RANGES OF PALESTINE AND THE BORDER OF EGYPT (NUM.13:29; I SAM.15:7). THEY, LIKE THE ISRAELITES, WERE NOMADS, KEEPING VAST FLOCKS OF SHEEP, GOATS, CAMELS, ETC. WHEN MOSES LED THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL OUT OF EGYPT, RIGHT SMACK INTO THEIR LANDS, THE AMALEKITES BEGAN TO HARASS THE REAR OF THE ISRAELITE COLUMN--AFTER ALL, THERE WASN'T ENOUGH GRAZING FOR THEIR CATTLE LET ALONE THE FLOCKS OF A STRANGER! THE HARASSMENTS DIDN'T STOP THE ISRAELITES, SO...

...THINGS CAME TO A HEAD, FINALLY, AT REPHIDIM, WHERE THE AMALEKITES ENGAGED ISRAEL IN A BIG BATTLE AND WERE DECISIVELY DEFEATED BECAUSE OF THEIR HOSTILITY TO ISRAEL THEIR UTTER DESTRUCTION WAS AUTHORIZED! (EX.17:8-16; DEUT.25:17-19). YEARS LATER, AFTER DAVID SEVERELY CRUSHED THEM AT ZIKLAG, THEY NEVER SEEMED TO RECOVER AND IN HEZEKIAH'S REIGN, THE LAST REMNANT OF THEM DISAPPEARED IN THE WILDERNESS!

THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS

Striking autoworkers approve contract

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Striking autoworkers overwhelmingly voted today to end a crippling 18-day walkout at General Motors Corp., the longest in 26 years at the world's top automaker.

The contract was approved by 99 percent of the vote, the union said.

United Auto Workers Local 696 President Joe Hasenjager announced the results after workers finished voting at the University of Dayton arena. He said 1,739 of the union's 2,700 members voted.

At a meeting before the voting began, union leaders recommended the members ratify the deal, reached Thursday by GM and union negotiators after days of intense, marathon negotiations.

"Everybody seemed to go along with it," worker Oveta Matlock said after the meeting. "I don't see us having another strike in the near future. Maybe this contract will last awhile."

The strike at two Dayton brake plants forced GM to shut down 26 of its 29 assembly plants and 18 parts plants in the United States, Canada and Mexico, idling more than 177,000 workers. The walkout also halted work at many independent suppliers.

With a "yes" vote, the Dayton plants could resume production this afternoon, company officials had said before the vote. The six GM assembly plants in Michigan were expected to resume production Monday, The Detroit News reported today.

A union flier given to members outlined the agreement, but made no direct reference to "outsourcing," GM's practice of buying parts from outside suppliers and the main point of contention.

The union says outsourcing is a job-killer, but GM has said it allows the company to stay competitive, which saves jobs.

The New York Times, citing a source close to the negotiations, reported that the pact would give GM some flexibility in giving work to outside manufacturers.

The flier said the agreement would add 200 production employees and 117 skilled trade jobs, while a committee will be established to pursue an additional 269 new jobs.

The deal also would add 75 production workers to provide "ergonomic relief" in various jobs, the union flier said without explaining. It also resolves 600 safety complaints and commits $6.5 million to correct health and safety violations.

The union also said the agreement secures 122 existing jobs for anti-lock brake systems work through 2004.

A company source told The Detroit News said the jobs would be added over the next five to seven years. But work force attrition during that period likely will reduce the net gain in jobs to fewer than 50.

Overhaul of farm programs moves toward final passage

WASHINGTON (AP) — A historic overhaul of Depression-era farm programs heads for final passage in Congress next week, and Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman is recommending that President Clinton sign it.

"The hour is late and further delay only hurts the people this department is here to serve," Glickman said late Thursday after House and Senate negotiators agreed on a final version of the bill.

Votes on the compromise are expected next week.

With planting season quickly moving into Midwestern farm country, growers have been anxious to know what they can expect from farm programs this year.

Agreement on the seven-year plan came after lawmakers put aside sharp regional differences over dairy issues and opponents launched a final criticism of the "Freedom to Farm" plan.

The bill ends traditional price-based subsidies and the government planting controls that go along with them.

"The important thing about this bill is the unleashing of American agriculture to make more money" by feeding a growing world population in the new era of free trade, said Sen. Dick Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Critics fought to the last, insisting that the bill gives farmers an early cash windfall by guaranteeing them steadily declining "market transition payments" based on past subsidies.

Crop prices have taken a sharp upturn, meaning a bill that was supposed to cut spending will lock in more for farmers than does the traditional system being replaced. But prices could fall at the same time payments fall.

The repeal was considered likely to pass the House. But Bob Walker of Handgun Control Inc. said as many as 184 of the 435 House members would oppose it, leaving supporters short of the 291 required to override a veto.

Bringing the matter to a vote has given Clinton a campaign issue against the Republicans, since polls show 70 percent of Americans support the ban.
