'Heavy' Oil Freed

WASHINGTON (AP)-Removal of federal price controls from tar-like "heavy oil" is expected to double the price and triple the supply.

But because of the relatively small supply of that type of oil and its naturally low price, the additional cost to consumers should be no more than one-quarter cent per gallon, Energy Department officials said.

In one of his last actions before leaving for a seven-day vacation on the Mississippi River, President Carter ordered the price controls removed Friday.

Death Under Probe

ROLLING HILLS, Calif. (AP)-Family members and a housemaid of Wrigley chewing gum heiress Carlisle Higholt were being interviewed as investigators tried to learn if her stabbing death was a homicide or suicide.

Mrs. Higholt, 40, wife of a diagnostic X-ray specialist, was found dead Friday in their home in one of the Los Angeles area's most exclusive suburbs, overlooking the Pacific Ocean.

Oil Withdrawing

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP)-As the tourist trade along one popular beach fell by 50 percent, scientists said slicks from the world's largest oil spill may be withdrawing from an assault on the sludge-streaked sands along Texas' Gulf coast.

Currents may be slowing the crude from a runaway Mexican well, experts said Friday. However, oil continued to wash up along the Texas coastline, with the area around the Port Mansfield channel, about 40 miles north of the Mexican border, receiving the heaviest concentrations.

The good old days always happened long ago. For some today, they may have been the fifties, the forties or the thirties. And for some, they may have been as far back as the twenties, which certainly would make them "old" in the eyes of today's youngsters.

But what about the twenties? When were the good old days of people who were growing up, or had already grown up, then?

Here's a clue we found in an old clipping from some unidentified newspaper in which the writer commented on the subject. The year was 1925.

"Thirty years ago we remember when eggs were five cents a dozen, butter was 10 cents a pound, milk was 10 cents a gallon, the butcher gave away liver and treated kids with bologna.

"The hired girl received $2 a week and did the washing. And women did not powder and paint (in public), did not smoke, vote, play poker, or shake the shimmie.

"Men wore whiskers, and boots, chewed tobacco, spit on the sidewalks and cussed. Beer was five cents a glass and lunch was free. Laborers worked 10 hours a day and never went on strike. No tips were given to the waiters and the hat check grafter was unknown. A kerosene hanging lamp and a stereoscope in the parlor were luxuries.

"No one was ever operated on for appendicitis, or bought goat glands. Microbes were unheard of, folks lived to a good old age, and every year walked miles to wish their friends a Merry Christmas.

"Today, (1925), you know, everybody rides in automobiles, or flies, plays golf, shoots craps, plays the piano with their feet, goes to the movies nightly, smokes cigarettes, drinks corn juice, blames the high cost of living on their neighbors, never goes to bed on the same day they get up, and they think they are having a hell of a time.

"These are the days of suffragettes, profiteering, rent hogs, excess taxes and prohibition."

Do you get a feeling that we have come full circle on some of these observations?

Strauss In Egypt After Israelis Reject Strategy

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)-U.S. envoy Robert Strauss, unable to sell Israel on the idea of a new diplomatic strategy in the Mideast, conferred today with Egyptian leaders, who were expected to press for stepped-up U.S. pressure on the Israelis.

Strauss said he "met with negative results" in Israel Friday when he tried to persuade Prime Minister Menachem Begin and other Israeli officials to accept a new U.N. Security Council resolution restating the principles of a Mideast peace. It is believed such a resolution would be aimed at drawing the Palestinians into the peace process.

The American diplomat flew to Cairo Friday evening and met today with Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, who is chief Egyptian negotiator at the Israeli - Egyptian - U.S. talks on Palestinian autonomy.

The Cairo newspaper Al Abram quoted Khalil as saying it was up to the United States to convince Israel that a Palestinian state on the West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip was in the best interests of the Jewish state.

"In my opinion, the Camp David accords include self-determination if you interpret it correctly ...in good faith," Khalil was quoted as saying in an interview originally given to the Washington Star.

Israel Supports the idea of only limited self-rule for the Palestinians.

Strauss was to meet with President Anwar Sadat at Ismailia, on the Suez Canal, later today.

In another development today, the military command in Tel Aviv announced that an Israeli naval patrol intercepted a Palestinian guerrilla craft off Israel's northern coast during the night, capturing three guerrillas. It said a fourth guerrilla was wounded in the clash and evidently was lost at sea. There were no Israeli casualties, it said.

Strauss told reporters he raised the possibility of a new U.S. resolution in talks in Jerusalem Friday with Begin and other officials.

The American diplomat read a prepared statement to reporters at Tel Aviv's Ben-Gurion Airport before he flew to Cairo. Strauss gave no details of the proposed resolution and would not answer questions.

NEW DOCTOR---A pediatrician, a children's doctor, has come to Snyder to set up her practice. The doors to her office open Wednesday, Aug. 22, in the Cogdell Center. The pediatrician, Dr. Maria Granados, above, comes to Snyder from Peru. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

First Here In More Than A Decade...

Pediatrician To Open Office Aug. 22

By JOHN LONG

Snyder's first pediatrician (children's doctor) in more than a decade is scheduled to begin private practice Wednesday, Aug. 22, in Cogdell Center, south of the Doctors' Clinic.

The new pediatrician, Dr. Maria Teresa Granados, comes to Snyder by way of Washington, D.C., New York City, and Lima, Peru.

A native of Peru, Dr. Granados came to the United States in 1972 to serve an internship of one year in Washington, and moved then to New York to complete her education and training.

Both her parents were medical doctors, and Dr. Granados said she always wanted to be a doctor, too.

Once, while serving an internship, Dr. Granados was assigned to the pediatric ward. She liked the work so well she decided to stay with it.

"I thought if I enjoy being on call today with these little ones, that means I would enjoy it for the rest of my life," she said of her discovery of pediatrics.

She also likes the challenge of "making a diagnosis in time" that pediatrics affords.

"First of all, there are quite a few congenital defects. If you don't make a decision when the child is very young he will become a retarded or handicapped child," she said. An early and correct diagnosis, she added, will permit an otherwise sick child to become "as normal as any other human being."

In this, her first private practice, Dr. Granados said she will be working with children up to the age of 18.

Children up to the age of 14 will be dealt with in general pediatrics, and children up to the age of 18 will be treated in general endorcrinology.

Having lived in New York City, the 30-year-old doctor said she was ready to try life in a small town for a change. She was interviewing in another city in Texas when she met a member of the Texas Medical Association who suggested Snyder to her.

She interviewed here and found the town to her liking. She also met Dr. and Mrs. Nelson Brice, a couple from the South American country of Chile, who now reside in Snyder.

"They (the Brices) tell me people here are very warm, that they go out of their way to help you," she said. That was the deter-

Ask Us

Q--Why doesn't SCAT (Snyder Community Antenna Television) put the Atlanta, Ga., Channel 17 on regular SCAT instead of on the Home Box Office channel? It is possible because it was on Channel 4 a while back.

A--Mel Gilbert, executive vice president of SCAT, says that since the cable company must pay a premium to get Channel 17, it must put it on the premium (extra-charge) channel. It has run on 4 occasionally when the regular Channel 4 station was having transmission problems. Also it was felt that it was a good opportunity to acquaint local viewers with Channel 17. HBO and the Atlanta station involve a satellite fee and other extra charges for SCAT.

New Students To Register

High school students new to the Snyder district will register tomorrow between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. in the counselors' offices.

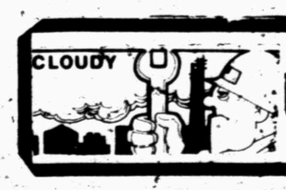

All new students must bring health records when they register and if possible they should bring transcripts.

On Wednesday, all 9th grade students, along with those in all high school grades new to Snyder, will have an orientation program at 10 a.m. at the high school. The orientation is for all students coming into SHS for the first time from the local junior high as well as from other districts.

Junior high registration for 7th and 8th graders new to Snyder is set for Monday at the junior high office from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

A FINE ART — A fine arts foundry has been set up here in Snyder to serve a small but apparently growing group of local artists. The foundry, known as Hidetown Bronze, is located behind Dr. Robert Taylor's veterinary clinic in East Snyder. Above, Taylor, left, looks on as Terry Gilbreth, front, checks a 2500-degree kiln used to melt bronze. Jeff Matsler, in the background at right, checks the process over. Matsler will become the foundry manager when he graduates from college. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Snyder May Emerge As Site Of Artists' Colony

By JOHN LONG

What may be the start of an artists' colony is emerging in Snyder.

"There's been some talk about it, seriously," said Dr. Robert Taylor, a local veterinarian who freelances with bronze artwork on the side. "We basically have four or five artists here on a semi-professional basis."

Joining with Taylor to constitute a colony of three legitimate artists are Terry Gilbreth, the director of the Diamond M Museum, and Dubb Tubb, a rancher. Dabbling in art work with them are Chris Lynch, a Snyder High School student, and Jeff Matsler, a former Western Texas College student who is now going to school at Texas Tech University in Lubbock. Matsler is going to become the manager of a foundry Taylor and Gilbreth have started.

The foundry is located behind Taylor's veterinary clinic in East Snyder and goes by the name Hidetown Bronze, a name derived from an early-day name of Snyder.

Hidetown Bronze is a fine arts foundry geared for the investment shell process of reproduction, said Taylor. After the artist has made his model in wax, a rubber mold is made and a second wax model prepared.

An investment shell, a kind of ceramic mold, is formed and placed in an 1800-degree shell for hardening and to burn away the wax. The bronze is melted in a 2500-degree kiln and poured into the mold.

Allowed to cool, the rough product is sandblasted, ground welded, colored, reheated, and a wax is poured on to preserve the luster. The finished product may contain $30 worth of bronze, but it can sell for more than a $1,000.

Taylor said the value of bronze artwork is based on "man-hours and the expertise of the artist."

Although the process sounds simple, it is involved and time consuming. Taylor said he once counted the hours he spent working on one wax figurine model, the model from which the bronzes were cast, and found he put 120 hours into the carving of it. The process of preparing the molds must be repeated almost in its entirety to make each bronze, and the bronzes are generally made in series of 15.

All of Taylor's work is done in his spare time, the time he steals away from his veterinary practice.

Taylor said he has tried his hand in other forms of art, but prefers bronze as his medium.

"Before I ever started sculpturing, these (bronzes) were the things that struck my eye," he said. He tried his hand at it, thought he saw potential in his work, and stayed with it. He's been doing bronzes for three years now.

Artistry, and the concept of it, embraces him almost like a faith.

"I just almost have a need to do it, in a way," he said. "After I got started it became a release for me. I like good art and I like to be able to Quarantine In 3 Counties...

Illegal Mexican Cattle Responsible For Ticks

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

HARLINGEN (AP)-Border livestock officials say smuggled Mexican cattle are responsible for fever ticks that have caused a massive and expensive quarantine of cattle in three South Texas counties.

"The cattle is stolen in Mexico and then processed up here. They swim them across the river. There's a tendency to try to sell them here when the market is higher," said Raymond Smith, McAllen district supervisor for the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Some 3,000 head of cattle are now under a nine-month quarantine. The restrictions were ordered after tests confirmed the presence of fever ticks in 18 head illegally brought across the border and sold in Edinburg, Smith said Friday.

The ticks cause piroplasmosis - or cattle fever - a disease that usually leads to death in adult cattle. Smith said that if uncontrolled the disease can kill up to half of a herd.

About 6,800 acres of land in Willacy, Hidalgo and Kenedy counties are under varying forms of quarantine. Smith said some 1,200 head - directly exposed to the tick carrying cattle - are under quarantine. Owners of the stock will have to have it inspected every 14 days throughout the nine-month quarantine.

The inspection will be costly to owners who have to transport the cattle for inspection, Smith added.

Another 1,500 to 2,000 cattle are under a less stringent quarantine. Smith said those animals will have to be inspected and treated if they are moved during the nine-month period.

No cattle deaths have been reported because of the fever in recent months, Smith said. The 18 Mexican animals have been traced. Most were slaughtered after the sale. Smith said the meat poses no threat to humans.

The ticks were first discovered near Donna in July. A cattle owner in that area has been charged with illegal movement of cattle.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture maintains inspection posts along the border to prevent movement of infested cattle. The threatened outbreak is the first in the Rio Grande Valley since 1972.

Smith said the quarantine should not cause increased beef prices for consumers.

Brady Murder Suspect Jailed Without Bond

BRADY (AP)-Peace Justice Joe Barekman ordered capital murder suspect Donald E. Smith jailed without bond Friday after he waived extradition and was returned to Texas from Florida, where he had been arrested.

Texas officers had interrogated the 18-year-old Smith in Tampa, Fla. before transporting him to Texas on Friday.

He is accused of capital murder in the Aug. 2 slayings of three persons at a mobile home park.

Brady police identified the three shooting victims as Molly Farr, 55; her daughter, Tandy Bennett, 25; and 40-year-old Robert Gandy.

The two women were killed by a shotgun and Gandy died of a single shot from a high-powered rifle, police said.

Both weapons involved were taken from a gun rack at the mobile home, authorities said.

Cotton Harvest Moving Ahead

COLLEGE STATION, (AP)-The cotton harvest is moving ahead in Texas this week, says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, with 218,000 bales harvested in the Rio Grande Valley.

The Coastal Bend's cotton crop is about 30 percent harvested, and irrigation wells are going at peak capacity in the South Plains to keep up with a cotton crop that is growing well in spite of its late start.

Irrigated sorghum and corn also are progressing well in the South Plains. Cabbage and cucumber harvests are moving ahead rapidly and some potatoes are being sent to market.

Throughout the state, producers continue to be hampered by generally tight diesel and gasoline supplies. Supplies of LP and natural gas continue to be generally adequate.

Drying ranges and pastures concern livestock owners, but most cattle remain in good condition. Markets are down on many classes, with prices on fat cattle weak and below the "break-even" point.

County Fields Record Some Bollworm Damage

BILL JANY
MITCHELL-SCURRY
ENTOMOLOGIST

Most cotton fields in Scurry County have experienced bollworm damage; however, the amount of damage has not been high enough to warrant insecticide treatment. Apparently the high beneficial population (in some fields greater than 20 per 100 terminals) and the high temperatures after the heavy rains have combined to keep the bollworm population in check.

Most bollworm damage results from worms which hatched from eggs laid during the peak egg lay period near the end of July. Most of the damage which occurred during this time is made evident by shed squares lying by cotton plants. The next peak egg lay is predicted to occur after August 18. The larvae which hatch from this egg lay may cause severe damage and producers in Scurry County should be checking their fields frequently, at least once a week, to keep on top of their field infestation.

Because of the possibility of producers having to treat for bollworm infestation, I have provided the table below of insecticides registered for bollworm control in cotton this year. The prices used in this table may not be too accurate but they can be used as a comparison between insecticides.

As you review this table you will notice that several of the insecticides are formulations of biological organisms or biocides. The insecticides Dipel, Thuricide, and El Car have been used in other areas of the state and have been quite effective. I am mentioning these insecticides because the situation developing in Scurry County's cotton fields is one in which biocide may provide very excellent control.

Biological insecticides are most effective when low to moderate bollworm infestations are present. In other areas of the state producers have had good success with the Dipel and ElCar applications for control of small worms in plant terminals. Rate of applications of Dipel when 4-5 small worms and damaged squares per 100 plant terminals are present is one-fourth pound of active material per acre. Where 6-8 small worms and damaged squares are found the initial application of Dipel should be one-half pound of active ingredient per acre.

References to commerical products or trade names is made with the understanding that no discrimination is intended and no endorsement by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is implied.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service serves people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

Conservationists To Meet At Post

Directors of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District will be in Post on Thursday attending the South Plains Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts meeting.

W.L. Wilson Jr., president of the organization, said that the meeting will begin at 10:30 a.m. at the Community Center in Post. Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m.

Guest speaker will be Congressman Charles Stenholm of Stamford.

Representatives of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board will be present at the meeting.

Frank Gray, member of the State Board and Charles Wood, vice president of the Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts will present reports on the activities of each organization.

Twenty-two soil and water conservation districts are members of the South Plains Associations. They include: Upper Colorado, Floyd County, Rio Blanco, Lubbock County, Blackwater Valley, Lynn County, King-Stonewall, Dawson County, Hockley County, Lamb County, Hale County, Cochran County, Yoakum, Terry, Duck Creek, Garza, Foard County, Lower Pease River, Cottle, Upper Pease River, Upper Clear Fork and Gaines County.

Current officers of the organization are W.L. Wilson Jr., president, Big Spring, C.L. Gayle, vice president, Bronco, and Sam Ellis, secretary-treasurer, Southland.

Directors of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District are Carl Williams, chairman, Hermleigh; Walter Stirl, vice chairman, Loraine; W.L. Wilson, Jr., secretary-treasurer, Big Spring; Leon Sterling, Snyder; and Burl Belew, Fluvanna.

Black Bantam Wins Crowing Competition

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)-George doesn't do much, but what he does, he does well.

The 22-ounce, black Old English Bantam crowed his way to a championship title Tuesday at the Illinois State Fair, where he sounded off 63 times in a half-hour to beat seven other finalists.

"He just loves to crow. He doesn't do anything special. He just runs around the farm and crows," said Alvin Bender, George's owner. "From night to morning he crows, even during the night."

Marion Nash, the fair's superintendent of poultry, said roosters crow to attract hens and "to establish their masculinity and all that garbage. They want to tell the gang: 'I'm the boss or want to be the boss,' or something."

"He's got a few hens at home," said Bender, 53, of Humphrey. Neb. "When he gets home to see them, he'll get his reward."

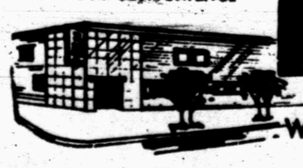

Owners of the contestants urged their entrants on with bribes of corn, by blowing on their feathers and by clucking in sensual barnyard tones.

Appraisal Plan Decisions Due Soon

The scope and beginning schedule of the unified appraisal system in Scurry County should be determined within the next 10 days.

That was the word this weekend as plans were being made for a meeting of representatives from all taxing entities in the county.

The meeting is being planned tentatively for Tuesday, Aug. 28, said Dr. Robert Clinton, president of Western Texas College, who was elected to head a steering committee at a preliminary meeting two weeks ago.

Tax relief legislation adopted by the legislature last spring mandates a single appraisal system to determine the value of property for all taxing agencies in the county.

All taxing agencies, except the county, are required to become a part of the unified system, and a constitutional amendment to be submitted in 1980 will require counties to join the single appraisal authority. However, county governments may join at the outset if they desire.

The position of the local county government is one of two major decisions which must be made at the upcoming meeting, said Dr. Clinton. Scurry County Commissioners Court must decide by Sept. 15 if they want the county in from the beginning. Commissioners have been studying the situation and noted earlier that they saw some advantages to being in on the unified appraisal system from the beginning. However, they indicated that they would seek more information before making a decision.

The other question which must be answered promptly is whether to put the system into operation in 1980 or 1981. The legislation gives the appraisal districts an option.

"If we are going to begin in 1980, we must move quickly," said Dr. Clinton.

The system calls for a district appraisal board (the county comprises a district), which would employ a staff to appraise all property in the county for taxation. All taxing entities, including school districts, the city, etc., will be required to use the appraisals for assessing their taxes. Each taxing entity may continue to assess and collect its own taxes, or it may contract with the district's staff for that service also.

When the new system begins, there will be no more assessments based on percentages of appraised value. All assessments will be on 100 percent of appraised value, with each taxing entity adjusing its rates to provide needed revenues.

Traffic Mishaps Keep Police Busy

Police were kept busy Friday investigating traffic accidents, criminal mischief and a theft complaint.

At 10:30 a.m. a Mack Truck and trailer rig overturned about two miles southeast of Snyder on Highway 208 at the college cut off. Arthur Jordan, 32, and his 7-year-old cousin, Eddie, of Colorado City were taken to Cogdell Hospital where they remained Saturday morning with injuries not believed to be serious.

At 1:40 p.m. a 1975 Oldsmobile driven by Mark Guynes of Monahans was in collision with a 1976 Pontiac driven by Bobby Escobedo of 304 35th St. Guynes was taken by private vehicle to Cogdell Hospital but was not admitted.

Two minor mishaps were also investigated. At 10:01 a.m. a 1972 Chevrolet driven by Virginia Huddleston of 2311 41st St. was in collision with a 1974 AMC driven by Alesia Eaton of 2203 43rd St. The mishap occurred at 2200 41st St. and resulted in minor damages.

At 2:51 p.m. a 1979 Dodge driven by Evelyn Homes of San Angelo was involved in an accident with a 1974 White Truck driven by Rene Garza of 2599 Ave. C. No wrecker or ambulance was needed.

A case of criminal mischief is being probed at 1907 21st St. Leo Anderson told officers that sometime Thursday night vandals broke out the front windshield of a van at that address. Damage is estimated at $200.

Police are also investigating a theft complaint reported at 7 a.m. Friday. A man allegedly entered a women's house and threatened to harm her unless she turned over to him a box containing dishes, clothes and several eight-track tapes. Total value was given as $1,085.

Senators Have Diverse Opinions On Profits Tax

Letters to U.S. Senators opposing the "windfall profits" tax on oil have resulted in responses by some 21 members of the Senate, and they hold varying views on the energy situation, decontrol of oil prices, and the profits tax.

The letters went out to the senators over the signature of Dalton Walton, chamber president, following the adoption of a resolution by the chamber board.

Senators from two neighboring states are on opposite sides, and several others are in between.

Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana states flatly that "Not only must price controls be lifted, but the other major impediments to oil production must also be removed. The plethora of regulations imposed upon the oil industry is costing our country dearly. By adding years to the production process, these regulations only prolong our dependence on foreign oil." Sen. Long is chairman of the Senate Committee on Finance, which is currently considering the Hosue version of the administration's proposed windfall profits tax.

Sen. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas says, "I am opposed to decontrol because it will not materially increase domestic production, as even the oil companies agree. It will not decrease consumption appreciably, because the demand for gasoline is not very elastic ... the continuation of controls does not unfairly discriminate against the oil companies or the royalty owners. Their profits are good. Decontrol would increase profits enormously."

Sen. Bumpers says comparatively low prices permitted by controls allow American manufacturers to compete more readily on the international market.

Sen. S.I. Hayakawa of California says, "I strongly support President Carter's move to decontrol as the only way we are going to get more domestic oil out of the ground. I am concerned, however, with a windfall profits tax that would destroy incentive to search for new oil."

Another in opposition is Sen. Tom Eagleton of Missouri: "The giant oil companies recorded absolutely incredible profit increases in the first quarter of this year ... the oil companies are awash in a sea of dollars and do not need to be further enriched by having price controls on American oil removed. A group of senators, including myself, is attempting to set aside President Carter's decontrol order."

"Deregulation will provide the necessary economic incentive to energy producers to supply more oil to the market," declares Sen. Orrin G. Hatch of Utah. "It would also do away with other negative restrictions relating to transportation and distribution which artificially raise the price and hold down the supply."

Then there are the middle-roaders.

Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina says, "I feel that it would be fair to support the concept of an excess profits tax, unless the oil companies re-invest these earnings into increased domestic production and the research and development of alternative energy sources. Furthermore, I feel that funds generated by the tax should be earmarked for specific government programs which promote increased energy supplies."

"I sympathize with your concern that oil companies be permitted a reasonable return on their investment to insure the necessary funding for exploration, research and development," says Sen. Howard Baker Jr. of Tennessee. "As a practical matter, however, I believe that public opinion will demand the enactment of a windfall profits tax as a necessary precondition for deregulation of the oil industry -- a measure which I favor."

Although he says he believes the president had to make the decontrol decision, Sen. Charles Mathias Jr. of Maryland says, "I think a majority of the Congress believes that legislation should be passed providing for what is in effect a windfall profits tax. Such a law should provide an exemption from the tax for any money which is reinvested by the oil companies in further research and development of oil production and alternative sources of energy."

Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina says he questions whether the administration fully understands the fundamental principles of deregulation and why it is so essential.

"The president's energy message appeared to have the purpose of persuading the American people that decontrol is meant to cause them new hardships, that it will fuel inflation, and that it will mainly benefit the oil industry. To the contrary, the whole point of decontrol is to provide both the incentive and the capital to encourage production, thus creating competition. A competitive and relatively abundant supply of energy is the only way we can hope to bring prices down."

Deregulation and no additional taxes found favor in the offices of Sen. John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas. But the local chamber was anxious to get its message to lawmakers from other states and in return to receive their comments.

Trucks With Overloads To Face Stiff Penalties

AUSTIN (AP)-Sand and gravel pit operators who overload trucks in violation of weight limits could be in for severe fines, state officials have warned.

Texas Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent said Friday a crackdown on sand and gravel haulers has helped reduce the number of overloaded vehicles.

However, he said truckers not under commission authority and pit operators also are part of the problem and must be penalized.

Texas sets an 80,000-pound maximum on all vehicles. Nugent said overweight trucks tear up highways and increase road maintenance costs.

The Department of Public Safety issues 40,000 to 50,000 tickets a year for load limit violations, he said.

"All indications are that many firms consistently overload, take their chances of getting caught, and consider the fines they pay to be a part of the cost of doing business," he said.

The minimum fine of $20 to $30 often is imposed, he said, and does not deter overloads.

Seven major sand and gravel companies already have been cited for overloaded trucks and have agreed to a probation period.

A March audit conducted by the railroad commission, which regulates the trucking industry, and the DPS showed some companies routinely overload by 20,000 to 40,000 pounds.

"The problem that remains is that carriers outside the commission's jurisdiction continue to overload, thus gaining a competitive advantage over those carriers obeying the law," Nugent said.

The railroad commission has no control over sand and gravel companies with their own trucks, he explained.

He said the commission, the DPS and the attorney general's office will coordinate a crackdown and will hold meetings around the state with companies to warn them illegal loads must stop.

Nugent said "substantial sums of money" could be extracted from load limit violators but refused to list a figure.

Problem spots exist across the state but appear concentrated in Amarillo, San Antonio, Dallas and Houston.

Trailways Inc. Sale Complete

DALLAS (AP)-The Holiday Inn hotel chain has completed negotiations to sell its Trailways, Inc., bus subsidiary for about $100 million to an investment group that includes a former official of the rival Greyhound bus line.

The former Greyhound executive, James L. Kerrigan, will become chairman and chief executive officer of Trailways, according to Friday's announcement.

Associated with him in the new ownership will be affiliates of a privately held Pittsburgh firm, Hillman Co.; and New York investment banking firm, Gibbons, Green, van Amerongen Ltd.

Shortly after Holiday Inn's announcement, J. Kevin Murphy, president and chief operating officer of Trailways, announced he was resigning because the new Trailways owners had named their own president and chairman.

Frederick G. Currey, chairman and chief executive officer of Trailways, also resigned.

Murphy will remain an employee of Holiday Inn for up to a year while he looks for another job. Currey will remain a director of Holiday Inn and president of the hotel firm's transportation group.

Currey said he will remain with the hotel firm's unit until the Memphis-based hotel chain can find a buyer for Delta Steamship Lines, Inc., its other transportation subsidiary.

In 1978, tourism was estimated to be worth $11 billion to the Canadian economy.

PROJECT CHAIRMAN--Steve Gault is in charge of the Jaycee project to renovate the Humble-Smith School for Exceptional Children. He estimated that the project will cost $18,000 and plans are to have it completed by Sept. 4. A new sign will be painted, said Gault, who is production engineer for Union Oil Co. of California.

MIXING PAINT--Snyder Jaycees President Mike Richards and Nancy LaRoux, local Jaycee-ette, mix paint for the Humble-Smith main classroom. Richards is area supervisor for I&R Compression Services.

THE EASY WAY--Mike Overton, local Jaycee, who is a sales and service representative for IMCO Services, paints the easy way in a classroom at the Humble-Smith School. Sam Alexander of Diamond International, left background, and Tommy LaRoux of A1 Electronics, put finishing touches on observation window at the facility on West 37th St.

Major Improvement Project...

Local Jaycees Busy At Humble-Smith School

Snyder Jaycees are in the midst of a major improvement project at the Humble-Smith School for Exceptional Children, Steve Gault, project chairman, has announced.

The Jaycees have been working on the project for about three weeks, and they expect to have it completed by Sept. 4, the day pupils report for the beginning of the fall term.

The project, which has the approval of school officials and the city, which owns the property, will involve refinishing the inside with paint, carpet, ceiling tile and paneling. A refrigerated air conditioning system will be installed, and the existing heating system will be remodeled.

In addition, the outside of the building will be refinished with paint and brick, and a wheel chair ramp will be built. The Humble-Smith sign also will be repainted, Gault said.

Cost of the project has been estimated at $18,000, and Jaycees are seeking contributions to help on the expenses. Donations may be made by calling 573-1253, 573-8941, or 573-8341.

One of the primary goals of the Jaycees is to make the community a better place to live, said Gault. The Snyder chapter has been active as a civic organization here for the past 31 years. Major projects in the past have included the construction of Kiddie Land in Towle Memorial Park, blood drives, sponsorship of softball tournaments to benefit a medical scholarship, Muscular Dystrophy telethon, and a holiday rest stop for travelers on the Labor Day holiday.

Snyder Jaycees have a current membership of 138 and the local club has been recognized as one of the top chapters in the state and nation.

CEILING REVAMPED--Gail Titus, Jaycee director and manager of Diamond International, prepares the Humble-Smith School ceiling for new tile. Jaycees are accepting donations for the project, and those wishing to contribute should call 573-0253, 573-8941, or 573-8341.

NEW CABINETS COMING UP--Brent Hinshaw, local Jaycee director and assistant manager of Hinshaw's House of Flowers, prepares the Humble-Smith School's kitchen for new cabinets.

Volkswagen Hiking Price

DETROIT (AP)-Volkswagen of America has become the first U.S. automaker to announce a price increase on 1980 model cars.

The newest American auto manufacturer raised prices Friday on its Pennsylvania-built Volkswagen Rabbits by an average of 4.8 percent over final 1979 models.

That was more than the 3.5 percent other domestic producers have promised to absorb on orders from fleet users, who typically send in orders before final prices are known.

As Conference Teams Improve... Texas Longhorns Are Ever Stronger

DALLAS (AP) - Most coaches hate to be picked to win a conference championship, but not the University of Texas' Fred Akers.

"That's what you work for - the recognition," says Akers.

And the Texas Longhorns have worked themselves right on the hot seat in preseason forecasts in the Southwest Conference.

The loaded Longhorns, who return most of the firepower from a 9-3 season including a 42-0 rout of Maryland in the Sun Bowl, face a perilous road and Akers knows it.

"From the top to the bottom this may be the strongest the conference has ever been," says Akers. "There is great balance ... you can get beat just about any Saturday."

Lowly Rice and Texas Christian are moving ahead with vigorous programs while SMU, Houston, Baylor, Texas A&M and Texas Tech should be vastly improved, says Akers.

On paper, Arkansas appears the only league team not as strong or stronger this year.

Houston is the defending SWC champion and Coach Bill Yeoman's crew will again be salty if the Cougars can get over the shock of blowing a three-touchdown lead in the secnd half to Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl.

It's no secret that the key to the Texas offense hangs on the Horn quarterbacking. Sophomore Donnie Little is one of the finest runners in the country but has shown inconsistent passing at best.

Akers says of Little: "He has shown significant improvement. His arm is much stronger."

Texas needs to develop running backs other than the slippery Jones. Senior LeRoy King showed signs in spring practice of coming on along with Brad Beck, and Kermit Goode.

Houston lost two 1,000-yard rushers in Emmett King and Randy Love plus starting quarterback Danny Davis. However, John Newhouse, the brother of the Dallas Cowboys' Robert Newhouse, will give the Cougars punch overland and Delrick Brown is a most capable quarterback.

SMU made one of the best recruiting hauls in the country to go with quarterback Mike Ford, the nation's total offense leader, and All-America wide receiver Emanuel Tolbert. Bluechip freshmen running backs Eric Dickerson and Craig James give Coach Ron Meyer a ground game for the first time.

Texas Tech is bouncing back off a 7-4 year in which rookie Coach Rex Dockery's Red Raiders produced surprise after surprise. James Hadnot, who gained 1,300 yards after he was moved from tight end, and Newcomer-of-the-Year quarterback Ron Reeves headline the Tech offense.

Baylor also had a surprise in young Walter Abercrombie, who may be the best back Coach Grant Teaff has unleased on the SWC. The Bears need to solve their quarterback problems to make a legitimate run for the championship.

The Texas Aggies have one of the top tailbacks in the country in Curtis Dickey and Coach Tom Wilson recruited another, Johnny Hector of New Iberia, La.

TCU under Coach F.A. Dry and Rice under Ray Alborn are closing fast but are still several years away from SWC first-division status.

Parsons Sticks Big Fish, Wins Tourney

Don Parsons stuck a six pound, 8½ ounce bass to grab big bass and heavy stringer prizes at Snyder Bass Club's monthly tournament at San Angelo lakes recently.

Called "a tough tournament", only 11 fish were of minimum specifications (12 inches in length), caught and entered by club members. Twinn Buttes Reservoir produced nine fish Saturday and one Sunday. The other four-pound, 12½ ouncer, was brought in from Lake Nasworthy by Gay Hickman on Saturday.

The club did note a number of fish caught under the 12" minimum.

Parsons was the lone fisherman weighing in more than a single fish. His string of catches weighed in a 12-15½, while Tony Solis took second with a single catch of 5-1½. Third was Hickman's fish of 4-12½; followed by Larry House, 3-14½; James Liner, 3-3; Roger Howard, 1-5; Max Hildebrand, 13½ ounces; and Wendell Wilbourn, 13 ounces.

Another tournament will be held at Lake Champion on Sept. 22-23, and will include a barbecue for members.

Rose Loses Bat To Stubborn Fan; Astros Lose, Too

HOUSTON (AP) - It was a frustrating night for Pete Rose even though Philadelphia beat Houston to move within 8½ games of the leader of their division, the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Lefthander Randy Lerch scattered seven hits to dominate the Astros batters and take a 5-2 win Friday, raising his season record to 7-11.

Rose, who needed two hits to raise his number of career hits to 3,311 and tie Eddie Collins as the sixth most prolific batter in baseball history, went 0-4 and lost his favorite bat to what he said was a selfish fan.

The bat flew out of Rose's hands in the seventh inning while he was swinging at a third strike and into the seats behind the Astros dugout. No one was injured, but the woman almost hit by the errant lumber decided to keep it.

She rejected attempts by Astros officials to trade first an autographed ball and later an unused bat for Rose's pride and joy. Whenever officials or police moved toward the woman, they were roundly booed by the more than 30,000 Astros fans.

When she left shortly before the end of the game, officials and police trailed after her, but it was unknown whether they retrieved the bat.

In the locker room after the game, Rose hadn't gotten his bat back and was perturbed by the turn of events. He was even more indignant, however, at suggestions that he may have let the bat go on purpose.

"The bat just slipped out

Teamwork And Two Individuals

By BILL McCLELLAN

Singling out athletes - especially high school aged - is not something we attempt to dwell on, though it is naturally important to credit an individual for making "the big play."

The public also deserves to know about injuries to so-called "key" players, such as a pitcher, catchers, quarterback, runningback, punter, or any other athlete whose presence might be vital to the overall team performance.

Unfortunately, all athletes can't be the best. Thirty player can't all be starters on a 10-man team.

Team...now that's a key word. If any group of individuals ever showed teamwork, none portrayed it better than at Snyder High School last year. Teams - not individuals - won five district championships for the Tigers during the 1978-79 seasons.

True, it took some great individual effort at times. By players, and coaches. Some parents worked pretty hard, too.

But each individual act performed on the football,

Tomjanovich Awarded Millions In Damages

HOUSTON (AP) - A federal court jury, going more than $600,000 over what attorneys for the plaintiffs requested, has awarded Rudy Tomjanovich of the Houston Rocket basketball team $3.3 million in damages for a punch in the face from a former Los Angeles Laker player.

The jury, after listening to two weeks of testimony and deliberating for five hours, Friday said the 30-year-old Rocket forward deserved $1.8 million in actual damages and $1.5 million in punitive damages.

Tomjanovich's lawyers had asked for $2.65 million.

The Rocket captain and once the team's top scorer was injured Dec. 9, 1977 at the Los Angeles Forum when he was struck by Laker forward Kermit Washington.

The lawsuit was filed against California Sport Inc., owners of the National Basketball Association Lakers. The corporation will be libel for the damages.

Washington, now a member of the San Diego Clippers, was not a defendant in the case.

A smiling Tomjanovich hugged his wife, shook hands with his attorneys and said, "I am very happy. I am still in shock, stunned. I don't know what to say."

Jerry Buss, a California real estate millionaire who purchased California Sports from Jack Kent Cooke after the Tomjanovich incident, said, "I don't know enought about the suit to make a statement at this time."

Buss' lawyers were not at the trial since the team' insurance carrier attorneys were there.

The Lakers, in a prepared statement, said, "The case is not concluded. The jury in Houston still is to hear evidence on the Rocket suit. Until this decision is handed down, it is inappropriate for us to comment on the case."

The Rocket organization has sued the Lakers for $1.4 million for the loss of Tomjanovich during most of the 1977-78 season. Testimony in this phase of the trial will begin Aug. 27.

Joseph Jamail of Houston, one of the nation's most prominent injury trial lawyers, said an award higher than that requested "is not common, but it has happened. When it does happen it means the jury is completely turned off by what occurred. They believe it was an act with malice and with disregard for a person's safety. It was a brutal act, an act outside the human element."

Tomjanovich was injured early in the third quarter of a Rocket-Laker game the night of Dec. 9, 1977.

He was hit once by Washington and suffered a fractured skull, fractured jaw, broken nose, multiple facial injuries and leakage of spinal fluid.

Dr. Daniel G. Walker, a Houston oral and face surgeon, testified during the trail that Tomjanovich's face had to be rebuilt like "a jigsaw puzzle."

Texas Defeated Again; Boosts Brewers A Bit

MILWAUKEE (AP) - The Milwaukee Brewers, whose season supposedly had all but ended when they lost seven of eight games to American League East powers Baltimore and Boston early this month, suddenly are talking pennant.

Not boldly, of course. They know that because they play only AL West teams the rest of the season, they cannot control their own fate. They know they need help, but they acknowledge the possibilities.

"I'd rather have it in our hands. We can only slide in there now. But we've got a pretty healthy pitching staff now. It's definitely possible," first baseman Cecil Cooper said.

Cooper knocked in two runs, as did Sixto Lezcano, and Moose Haas scattered seven hits for his first victory since July 21 Friday night as the Brewers beat the fading Texas Rangers 5-1.

It was the Brewers' sixth victory in a row and eighth in 10 starts since their seemingly disastrous early August home stand. They picked up another game on Baltimore and Boston, the two teams ahead of them in the East, and on the fourth place New York Yankees.

They have gained three games on the Orioles in five days and now trail by 7½ games.

"We had four bonuses tonight - one for us winning and three for them losing," Brewer Manager George Bamberger said. "If we can continue to put the pressure on them (the Orioles) that's the only way we can catch them. The Orioles got to be looking over their shoulders a little bit.

"In fact, I'm sure they are," he said. "When we won in Boston last week, I came into the clubhouse and the first thing the phone is ringing. It's Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, thanking us for beating Boston.

"I was with the Orioles when they won five pennants and I know what they got to be thinking," he said. "I know and they know they can get one of those streaks where they lose five games in one week. I'm sure they're thinking, because they've baseball field or volleyball and basketball court, was combined with a lot of others to make each team what it was. Runningbacks can't get very far without blockers, and blockers get frustrated when they make holes for a runner who never finds them. Works hand in hand.

Teamwork

Backups - for not all player can be starters - are extremely vital to any team. Fortunately, most of them become starters when the more experienced graduates. Then, the next year, or the next, they themselves make room for their own "backup".

The term second-string is actually a misnomer, because first and second is associated with the outcome of an event. If you've never thought a backup position was important, take a look at the Dallas Cowboys, the Houston Oilers or any other team, which staffs as many dual-purpose athletes as it can get.

If that starter is injured, who will take his place? The, eh..."second-stringer," of course. Important? Just ask Tom Landry.

BUT...every once in a while an athlete does something which deserves special recognition. Two local athletes, competing on the track field, have, by their efforts, placed Snyder once again on the national map.

DEBORAH HOLMES

Thomas Selmon and Deborah Holmes are gifted individuals who earned national honors recently; Thomas by placing eighth (among 25) in the AAU National Junior Olympic Games, and Deborah by winning third in bowling at the International Special Olympics.

Thomas had already been on three district championship teams at Snyder High School (track, basketball and football), and was a participant in the UIL state track meet in Austin. At the AAU regional meet this summer, Thomas placed first. A senior, he will lend his talents to Snyder High for another year.

Deborah is also familiar with winning. She has garnered a number of Special Olymics awards at the regional and state level. Local supporters may get a chance to see Deborah in action, as portions of the International Meet will be telecast today on Wide World of Sports.

Congratulations to Thomas, Deborah, their families and coaches. And to their teammates, which urged them on.

You see, it really is-TEAMWORK.

Thanks.

Steelers Connect

By The Associated Press

Everybody should have left Giants Stadium happy. The Pittsburgh Steelers found their offense and the New York Jets identified their first-string quarterbacks.

But only the Super Bowl champion Steelers were able to enjoy their evening in the New Jersey Meadowlands, defeating the Jets 27-14. In the only other National Football League preseason contest Friday, Philadelphia overwhelmed Baltimore 31-17.

A slate of 11 games Saturday had Cincinnati at Chicago; Washington at Atlanta; New Orleans at Tampa Bay; San Diego at the New York Giants; Buffalo at Green Bay; Cleveland at Detroit; St. Louis at Kansas City; Houston at Dallas; Miami at Minnesota; Seattle at Los Angeles, and Denver at San Francisco. Oakland plays at New England on Sunday.

"We hadn't scored any touchdowns," noted Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who led the Steelers to two TDs in the 17-point second quarter that clinched the victory. Bradshaw hit wide receiver John Stallworth who made a spectacular one-handed grab to turn the pass into a 30-yard scoring play.

"We were in the pits. It was frustrating but we worked hard this week and it paid off," Bradshaw added.

The Steelers first two preseason efforts had produced a 15-7 victory over Buffalo and a 10-7 win over the Giants. The offense didn't manage a touchdown in either contest.

"The offense was much better," said Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll. "It was a very physical game. It looked like a championship game."

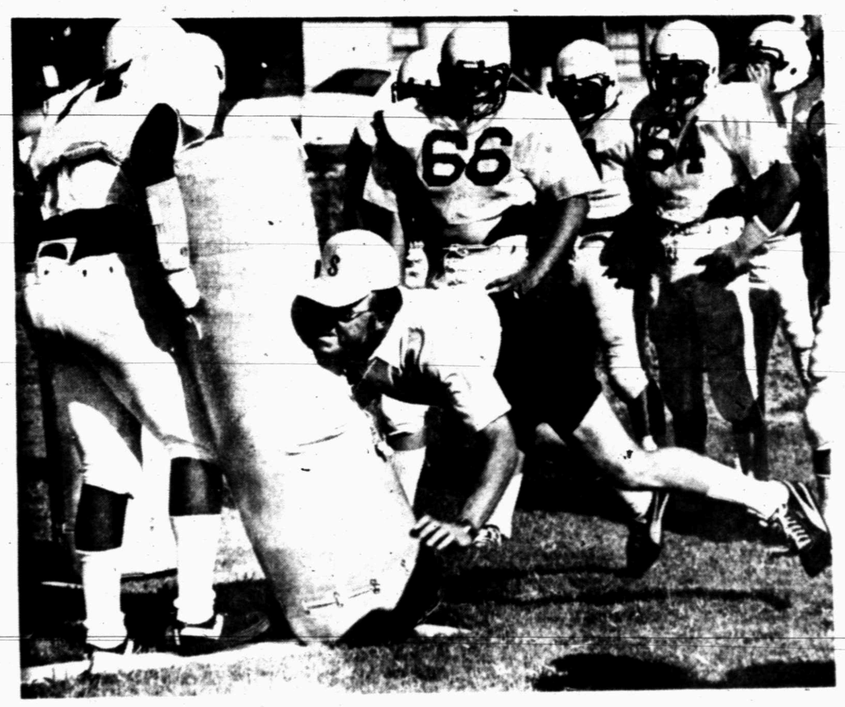

The Jets hardly looked like a championship club, however, and Matt Robinson won the No. 1 signal-caller's job almost by default.

Robinson was 7 of 15 for 140 yards in the second half and threw a 10-yard touchdown toss to Mickey Shuler. Richard Todd went 6-15 for 64 yards and appeared tentative throughout the first half.

"Robinson is the No. 1 quarterback" said Coach Walt Michaels. "Many things led to the decision. My 28 years in pro football tell me he is the best man for the job."

"I feel I've earned the chance to start," said Robinson, who played much of last season while Todd, then the first-stringer, was injured. "It's what I've been working for and what I wanted."

Ron Jaworski has the Eagles' quarterbacking job clinched and he showed why Friday with three touchdown passes against Baltimore. Jaworski hit Harold Carmichael for a 38-yard touchdown, Wilbert Montgomery with a 2-yard scoring pass and Jerrold McRae for 13 yards and a TD. Willie Taylor caught a 23-yard TD throw from substitute John Walton.

had that lead so darn long, 'Let's not blow it now.'"

Whatever problems the Orioles might have paled before those of the Rangers, on paper one of the stronger teams in the league but two games under .500 after their sixth successive defeat and 23rd in 31 games since the All-Star break.

Rose Loses Bat

of my hands," he said. "I've batted 11,000 times and its the first time that ever happened.

"I broke Honus Wagner's all-time singles record with that bat last week and I was going to send it to the Hall of Fame," he continued. "Now all of the fans who might have seen it will suffer because one selfish fan wouldn't give it back."

Despite Rose's slow night at the plate, the Phillies capitalized on early wildness by loser Frank LaCorte, 1-1, to get all the runs they needed to win in the first inning.

La Corte walked Bake McBride and Rose to open the game, and both scored when a Mike Schmidt blooper down the right field line became a triple as outfielder Jeff Leonard ran all the way to the foul line, then watched the ball bounce over his head. Schmidt later scored on a sacrifice fly by Greg Luzinski.

The Phils picked up their next run in the second inning as Manny Trillo doubled, moved to third on a bunt by Lerch and scored on a single from McBride.

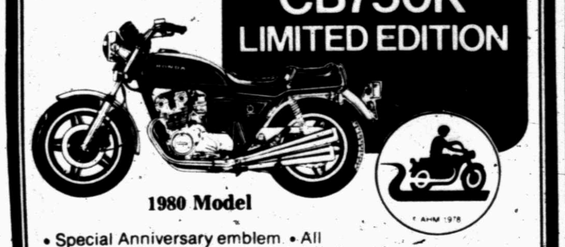

Their last run came in the eighth as Larry Bowa reached first with a bunt single, stole second, moved to third on a fielder's choice and scored on an Astros double play attempt that was only half succesful.

Houston's only tallies came on an RBI grounder by Terry Puhl in the first inning and Enos Cabell's fourth-inning homerun, his first of the season in the Astrodome.

The loss decreased to 3½ games Houston's lead over second-place Cincinnati in the National League West.

Poison Stolen

FORT WORTH (AP)- Eight small cans, each containing a half-ounce of a bluish-gray powder so lethal that touching it can bring about sudden convulsions and death, were inside a safe carted away Thursday night by burglars at an exterminating company.

By Friday night, police had recovered the safe, seven of the cannisters and many of the other items stolen, officers said.

But one cannister of sodium fluoroacetate, also known as Compound 1080, was still missing. Officers said they believe whoever committed the burglary probably was unaware of the danger the canisters posed.

The poison is so lethal a tiny fraction of an ounce would kill a 160-pound man, said Kit Carson, Fort Worth civil defense plans and operations officer.

"I talked to the national poison center and they said it's one of the most deadly poisons they know of," Carson said.

"It causes almost instant death. You don't last but a few seconds."

Carson said the poison is ingested instantly by touch, inhalation or taste and immediately affects the heart and central nervous system, causing violent death from seizures or convulsions.

Police Sgt. M.M. Gresham said police were worried the poison might be scattered to the wind or might find its way into the city's water supply.

"Three ounces of it is enough to kill 39,000 people," Carson said.

To Ruidoso Fire Chief...

Memory Slowly Returning

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP)- Slowly, by bits and pieces, the memory is drifting back. But William Seelbach's disjointed images of water, a building and a Catholic statue cannot explain four missing days.

Alone, sunburned and delirious, the Ruidoso, N.M., fire chief was found wandering barefoot outside a church here Wednesday, 700-miles from his home in the mountains of North Central New Mexico.

"I really don't know how I got here," Seelbach said from his bed at Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi.

Police said Friday they also have been at a loss so far to explain the odyssey, or retrace its steps.

"Remember, this game is finding people who are missing, not going backwards like this," said police investigator J.W. Jones.

Critical care ward supervisor Maria Sanchez said Friday night that Seelbach, suffering from severe sunburn, was in stable condition and seemed to be progressing well.

Seelbach's son, Michael, said the 41-year-old fire chief had been missing since Sunday night when he walked out after a minor family squabble.

"I just can't see him going off like that," Michael Seelbach said. "At first we thought he had gone to one of our vacation spots, but then to find him in Corpus Christi...I can't see it. I never even heard him mention the town."

When found, Seelbach had two sets of keys, about $50 and a fireman's badge. He did not have shoes or an inkling of where he left his car.

Police contacted one of Seelbach's friends, Ruidoso Municipal Judge Sam Nunally, who flew Wednesday to Corpus Christi with Seelbach's son.

"He knew us right away when we went in. That is a good sign," said Nunally. "Now he can remember everything but what happened after he left the house. As far as putting the puzzle together, only he can do that."

Nunally and Michael Seelbach returned to New Mexico on Friday where Seelbach said the family would have no further comment until after an investigation was complete.

At first, Seelbach said all he could remember from Sunday to Wednesday was "walking and walking." But Jones said Friday that the fire chief is beginning to remember more.

"He's beginning to recall water and buildings and seeing a Catholic statue somewhere," said Jones.

Police are still looking for the missing station wagon and checking airports and beaches for clues.

"We all believe there is something to find," said Nunally, who described a down-to-earth man. "He is not the sort of man to run away."

On Race For President...

Clements Says He Will Avoid 1980 Tug-Of-War

DALLAS (AP)-Gov. William P. Clements, whose election last year broke a century of Democratic monopoly on Texas' top political job, says he'll stay out of next year's presidential tug-and-war.

With two Texans in the race - former Texas Gov. John Connally and former national GOP chairman George Bush - "there is no place in this for me as a favorite son," Clements said in interviews with editors and reporters of the Dallas Times Herald.

Connally - who served Texas as a Democratic governor for six years and became a Republican in 1973, will win the Texas Republican presidential primary over Ronald Reagan because he "projects leadership," Clements said.

The Texas governor again insisted his neutrality in the race, however. His son, Gil, has contributed financially to Connally's campaign, but Clements said he was unaware of it.

Clements said he thinks U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., will choose not to challenge President Carter for the 1980 Democratic nomination because of fears he, like his two brothers, would be assassinated.

"I think he is scared. He feels he'll be shot. I have to agree with him," Clements said.

"We have a sufficient number of nuts in this country that somebody bably will shoot him."

The longtime drilling contractor, who gave up management of his own international firm after he was elected, said he feels Carter will emerge as a surprisingly hard-to-beat Democratic nominee, despite popularity polls touching a near-record low.

"He will be terribly hard to unseat," Clements said.

The Texas governor said that realization, as well as the assassination threat, will prompt Kennedy to stay out of the race.

"Mr. Kennedy is not going to undertake that kind of choice. I don't think he's going to run," Clements said.

He said Carter's only likely Democratic rival will be California Gov. Edmund G. "Jerry" Brown.

"I cannot believe the American public will accept him as a candidate," said Clements. He called Brown a vulnerable candidate because of "a somewhat unstable and flaky" image.

"If you get better on every piece," he quipped, "you ought to get pretty good."

He is also a stickler for accuracy.

"The pieces we do here now have the potential, if reasonably cared for, to be here three or four thousand years from now," he said.

Anything that is going to last that long, he noted, ought to be historically accurate.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

The family medicine chest can be a booby trap for children and adults alike.

1. Keep all drugs (except toilet articles) in a separate locked place - cool, dark, and dry.
2. Get rid of old and partially used medicines - especially if labels are lost or obscure.
3. Use safety closures (child-proof) and keep tightly secured. This also prolongs shelf life of the medicines.

Wedding Vows Repeated During Summer Ceremony

MRS. BILLY JAMES KEITH

Nuptial vows were pledged by Catherine Jean Clement of Abilene and Billy James Keith of Arlington in the chapel of First Baptist Church, Abilene, Aug. 17 at 6 p.m.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. James H.S. Cooper of Abilene and Bill Clement of Snyder and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Keith of Abilene.

Rev. Bob Weisinger, pastor of the church, officiated the double ring ceremony. Vows were read at an altar decorated with spiral candelabra trimmed in greenery and accented with rust ribbons and peach in ivory lillies. Complimenting the altar area was a peach and rose flower arrangement. A matching arrangement was placed on the piano.

Father of the bride presented the bride in marriage as she was attired in a gown of candlelight satin. Her Chantilly lace bodice had a mandarin collar and came to a princess point at the front and the back waist closed with tiny satin buttons. Her circular skirt was drawn high in the back to a satin bow over cascades of Chantilly lace ruffles flowing into a train. To complete her wedding ensemble, she wore full length candlelight gloves.

The bride carried her mother's wedding Bible with an arrangement of cascading rust, peach and ivory miniature carnations.

Mrs. Tommy Mebane of Snyder was matron of honor. She wore a dusty rose blouson dress falling in gathers from neck and waist. She also wore full length candlelight gloves. Gayle Meyer of Abilene and Mrs. Robert Schneider of Dallas were bridesmaids. They were dressed like the matron of honor.

Flower girl Keri Taylor of Duncanville, cousin of the groom, wore a peach dress and carried silk rust asters. Candlelighter Darin Taylor, also cousin of the groom was dressed in an ecru tuxedo.

Uncle of the groom, Jack Taylor of Duncanville served as best man. Groomsmen were Jeff Clement of Snyder, brother of the bride, and Mike Lanier of Abilene. Ushers were George Clark of Austin, uncle of the bride and Don Clement, brother of the bride.

"The Wedding Song" was sung by Dan Cooper. He was accompanied at the organ by Lt. Col. Charles De Monte, Ret.

A reception was held in the parlor of the church following the ceremony. Peach, dusty rose and burgundy flower arrangement centered the table. Peach candles and pink crystal belonging to the Cooper family and silver appointments from the bride's grandmother Clark were used.

At the bride's table, Valery Cooper, sister of the bride, served the cake. Serving punch was Kelly Harmon. The groom's table held a chocolate cake decorated with peach flowers and was served by Sara Hawkins.

Following a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark., the couple will be at home at 2808 S. Collins, Arlington.

The bride chose a baby blue quiana circle skirt with a camisole and jacket trimmed in ecru lace for her going away attire.

The bride attended Snyder High School and is a graduate of Cooper High School, Abilene. She attended Hardin Simmons University and is presently a junior student at University of Texas at Arlington. The bride is employed by Sears. The bridegroom is a graduate of Abilene High School and Hardin Simmons University with a B.S. in biology. He is employed by Geary Jones Construction Co., Arlington.

Nuptial Vows Pledged

Double ring wedding vows were solemnized between Gayle Woody and Phillip von Roeder in a garden ceremony Sunday morning, Aug. 12 at the home of the bride's parents.

John S. von Roeder of Fort Worth, a minister of the Disciples of Christ Church and brother of the bridegroom, officiated at the marriage service. Vows were exchanged before an archway of greenery and flowers flanked by wicker baskets of pink and orchid carnations. Pew bows in the bride's chosen colors completed the decorations.

Music was provided by Tommie Woody of Luling, brother of the bride, who played selections on the trumpet. Billie Lon Woody of Houston, brother of the bride, ushered.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Woody of Dumas. She is a a 1976 graduate of Dumas High School and a senior early childhood education major at West Texas State University in Canyon.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Boren Jr. of Snyder. He was graduated from Snyder High School in 1976 and is now a senior nursing student at West Texas State University. He is employed at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Madrene Talley of Amarillo who wore a pink street length dress and carried two pink roses. Hugh Boren Jr., father of the bridegroom, was best man.

MRS. PHILLIP VON ROEDER

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional white silk organza gown selected in London, England. The gown was designed with a Victorian neckline and empire waist. The A-line skirt flowed into a chapel length train which was bordered with lace appliques. A ruffle outlined the sheer, fitted bodice which was trimmed with lace appliques. Long sheer organza sleeves ending in ruffles at the wrists were accented with the same lace motif. Tatting edged the hem of the gown, ruffles and sleeves. The bride's headpiece was an elbow length veil of English net edged with tatting which fell from an organza and lace covered head band. A diamond drop necklace, a gift from the bridegroom, completed the ensemble. She carried a cascade arrangement of pink rosebuds, miniature orchid carnations and baby's breath.

A reception was held following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with an ecru lace cloth over orchid taffeta. An arrangement of pink and orchid carnations centered the table. Silver and crystal appointments completed the table. A four-tiered wedding cake trimmed with pink and orchid flowers was served to guests by Mrs. Donna Woody of Luling, sister-in-law of the bride.

Following a wedding trip, the couple will be at home at 1106 8th. St. in Canyon.

Denver expert Dan Mordecai was unhappy when his partner barged into Blackwood, but he did show his two aces and his king. He was delighted when his partner stopped at six, but unhappy again when he saw the dummy. Unless fortune really smiled upon him, he could see two sure diamond losers. Still there was a chance.

Dan noted East's play of the seven of hearts at trick one. He ruffed his 10 of hearts with a high trump at trick two. When East played the five to complete an echo, it was apparent that West had held eight hearts for his preempt.

Both opponents followed to a trump and to three rounds of clubs. Now Dan had counted eight hearts, one trump and three clubs in the West hand. His other card was either the ten of clubs or a diamond. If it happened to be one of the diamond honors, Dan was going to make the slam. If it wasn't then East held all three high diamonds and Dan was doomed. He led a low diamond from dummy. East rose with the king and was end-played. If East had played low, West would score his queen, but would have to give Dan a ruff and discard.

Stuff A Tasty Squash

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Stuffed squash is high on the list of fall-winter vegetable favorites.

A deliciously different version of the dish features a stuffing of pork sausage, rutabaga, stuffing mix, chopped pecans and cream of celery soup.

Another vegetable variation is cauliflowerets cooked tempura style in a wok. Cream of onion soup is used as the batter liquid.

STUFFED SQUASH

- 3 medium acorn squash (about 4 pounds)
- ½ pound pork sausage
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 1 (10-ounce) can condensed cream of celery soup
- 2 cans diced cooked rutabaga (1 pound)
- 1 cup cube stuffing mix
- ½ cup chopped pecans

Cut squash in half. Scoop out seeds and fiber. Cook squash in boiling water 15 minutes. Remove and drain. Place upright in 3-quart shallow (13-by-9-by-2-inch) baking dish.

Meanwhile, brown sausage in saucepan. Stir to separate meat. Pour off fat, reserving 1 tablespoon drippings.

Cook onion with sausage in drippings until tender. Blend in remaining ingredients. Spoon into squash. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour or until done. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.

WOK CAULIFLOWER

- Salad oil
- 1 medium head cauliflower (about 2 pounds)
- 1 (10 ounce) can condensed cream of onion soup
- 1 cup cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon celery salt
- 1 tablespoon salad oil
- 2 egg whites

Half fill wok or large saucepan with oil. Heat to 400 degrees.

Separate cauliflower into flowerets. Cook in boiling water 3 minutes. Drain.

To make batter, combine remaining ingredients except egg whites in bowl. Beat egg whites until stiff but shiny. Fold in batter.

Coat cauliflowerets with batter. Fry, a few at a time, in hot oil until lightly browned. Drain. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 6½ cups.

Car And Camera Go Together In Summer

You can add a lot of once-in-a-lifetime scenes to your vacation movies simply by keeping your camera out of its case and by your side as the scenery passes by.

Otherwise, you'll never capture that first glimpse of the mountain you're heading for, or that odd-shaped building, or that magnificent cloud formation.

Shots like these add interest, excitement and "real" motion to your movies, but shooting movies from a moving car calls for some special shooting techniques. These are easy "tips for on the road."

- Set the lens at wide angle, rather than telephoto. The depth of focus will be greater, and movements will be minimized.
- If a scene demands a closeup, have the driver stop—even if you still shoot from the window. Find a way to hold camera rigidly if using the telephoto.
- To set your exposure for quick shooting from the car, plan ahead. Before starting out, take a reading of the ground scenery and switch the exposure control to manual at the indicated lens setting.

Then, as you shoot during the ride, your foliage, farm or stand of trees will be exposed correctly with good shadow detail, even though the sky may be a little light.

- Another tip is to set your shutter speed at 24—or even 36—frames per second instead of the normal 18, if you have these settings. This smooths out car motion and gives a gentle rolling effect when viewing, instead of a jerky annoying image.
- If a scene if worth 10 or 15 seconds on the screen, shoot it for only 6 or 10 seconds at the faster speeds, since it will last longer when showing.
- Do add a little footage of interesting road signs to act as title shots. They help identify locations or upcoming sequences.

Patterns For Tennis Buffs

By Joanne Schreiber

Americans are getting more active.

According to a recent survey, more than 90 million adults, representing 59 percent of all Americans over 18, participate regularly in some form of athletic activity. A 1961 survey put the figure at 24 percent, so the new statistic reflects a significant increase.

One of the fastest growing sports is tennis, with year-round participation made possible by indoor courts in most parts of the country. And many who take winter vacations to sunny climes include tennis in their plans.

Since dedicated tennis players need several good-looking, comfortable, easy-to-care-for tennis outfits, many talented women who are as capable with a sewing machine as a tennis racket take pride in sewing their own sportswear.

Two attractive ensembles were made by the creative department of Viking Sewing Machines from Young Originals patterns available exclusively to readers of this newspaper.

A DOUBLE set of tennis fashion in patterns available exclusively to readers of this newspaper. At left, tunic and shorts of white terry trimmed in green; at right, shorts and blouson top of bright blue knit trimmed in red. Machine embroidery by Viking Sewing Machines.

A white outfit features a versatile tunic top with a bright green T-for-Tennis ribbon appliqued down the front and pockets machine-embroidered with tennis balls. This pattern is an all-season special and includes skirt and slacks, shorts plus tunic in short- and long-sleeved versions as well as a sleeveless design.

The other high-score outfit is of a bright blue textured knit trimmed in red and white. Freehand sewing-machine embroidery is used for the tennis racket; a decorative rickrack stitch dresses up the shorts. When doing machine embroidery on stretchy fabrics, stabilize the stitching area with fusible interfacing.

Fabrics for both tennis costumes are by Fair-Tex. The second pattern includes slacks and a long-sleeved blouson top.

The pattern for the white outfit is Young Originals B173 in sizes 8 to 18.

The pattern for the blue outfit is Young Originals B139 in sizes 7 to 15.

Both patterns have the special Coordinator feature, which gives you guidance on choice of fabric and accessories. Both have the exclusive time-saving Photo Guide that shows exactly how to fit the pattern pieces together.

Each pattern is $2 including postage and handling. To get your versatile, all-season pattern, write to Stitchin' Time, c/o this newspaper, Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Enclose $2 for each pattern plus your name, address and ZIP code. Start now to sew and save on your sportswear.

Dutch-Treat Wedding No Treat to Mad Mom

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our son never had much success with girls, [illegible] fell for the first one who paid any attention to him and [illegible] getting married next month. We tried to get him to [illegible], but he wouldn't listen.

I called the bride's mother to find out how many guests we [illegible] allowed to have, and I offered to pay for any extra peo[illegible] we wanted to invite over and above that number. She said, "We never had any trouble with our other daughter's [illegible] because the groom's parents realized it was also their son's wedding and they paid for half of it."

Abby, every etiquette book I've ever seen plainly states that the bride's family is supposed to put on the wedding. I realize that weddings cost a lot, but if people can't afford it they shouldn't expect the other family to pay half.

Am I out of line to ignore their brazen suggestion even though we're better off than they?

GROOM'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You are correct about what the etiquette books say. But in MY book, consideration and common sense outrank etiquette. In some cases, the groom's parents have not only shared expenses, they've put on the wedding. But that happens only if they're delighted with the match.

DEAR ABBY: I have been courting a gorgeous woman for eight months. She is 20 years younger than I. (I am 82.)

We love each other dearly. My dilemma is whether it would be fair of me to ask her to marry me when I know she could find a younger man who could do more of the things she loves to do – dance, swim, garden and travel.

I'm afraid she would be giving up so much, but she says that time we would have together would be well worth the sacrifice on her part.

We live in different states. I've visted her once, and she has come to visit me three times. We have a wonderful time together. Abby, I think about her constantly, but I don't want to deprive her of the chance to find a younger man while she's still able to.

She would have to quit her job and move here, but I am financially able to take care of her.

I'm still mentally alert and in fairly good health for my age, but I'm lacking in strength because, living alone, I don't eat properly. (She's a wonderful cook so I'm sure I'd get stronger if she married me.)

Please help me decide what to do.

YES OR NO?

DEAR YES: Yes! You say you "love each other dearly," so what are you waiting for? All is fair in love and war. If the [illegible] a younger man, you wouldn't be in her life. Until [illegible] count your blessings, and go ahead and marry her.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my mother. She's too lenient! After she gets angry and punishes me, she often will apologize. Why should she apologize when I know I had the punishment coming?

Often the punishment will be depriving me of my dessert. Later, she will bring the dessert to my room.

I could give hundreds of other examples, Abby, but I think you know what I mean. Please tell me why my mother acts this way? I can't figure her out.

MIXED UP IN CLEVELAND

DEAR MIXED: Your mother (like many others) fears you'll love her less because she has punished you. (She's wrong.) No child ever resented punishment he knew he had coming.

Discipline is PROOF of love. When a parent punishes a child, he is saying, "You are loved, and I am trying to teach you to behave in a socially acceptable manner because I am not going to be around forever to protect and forgive you. If you misbehave, society will not forgive you and let you go unpunished."

Children KNOW this. I wish more parents did.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BIG ED": Better start looking around for another job. From too much YES-SIR AND NO-SIR a man can get an UL-SIR.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Move Over Kojak, Baretta...

TV Heroes In Brazil Challenge Those Imported From United States

By PETER MUELLO
Associated Press Writer

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)-"Kojak" and "Baretta" are challenged here by some unlikely foes: a sociologist named Malu, a reporter named Waldomiro and a couple of truck drivers called Pedro and Bino.

They're the heroes of three new, made-in-Brazil TV series that producers hope will compete successfully with popular imported shows - most of them from the United States.

Now, three nights a week at 10 p.m., Brazilians can tune in the new, hour-long programs:

-"Police Beat." Action and suspense with Rio police reporter Waldomiro Pena and his female sidekick, Bebel.

-"Malu, Woman." The story of sociologist Maria Lucia Ferrada, 32, separated from her husband, and her struggle to make a new life for herself and younger daughter.

-"Heavy Load." The adventures of independent truckers Pedro and Bino on the back roads of Brazil.

All three series are produced by TV Globo, Brazil's biggest commercial network. The series, so far, have cost more than $2 million - a huge investment by Brazilian standards.

Globo hopes the series will take away some of the market from American imports, which have dominated this area of programming.

TV reaches an estimated 60 million of Brazil's 115 million people and the audience is growing.

To fill this market, Brazil already produces a variety of programs. The most popular is the "novella," a kind of primetime soap opera. These high-budget dramas usually run six nights a week for several months, often attracting large and loyal audiences. The local industry also makes educational shows, documentaries and variety specials.

But so far, it hasn't turned out a successful weekly series. Trial-balloon efforts in the early 1960s - a children's show called "Shazam," a Brazilian-style "Highway Patrol," and a few others - got lukewarm receptions from viewers and soon went off the air. Brazilians preferred shows like "Combat" and "Gunsmoke" to the local products.

Today, competition from American shows is still active. All Brazilian networks, including TV Globe, carry U.S.-made programs. These include movies, children's shows and weekly series - from "Sesame Street" to "Charlie's Angels," all dubbed in Portuguese, Brazil's language. For smaller networks, the American series offer advantages the local shows can't match: They're slick productions, fairly cheap and abundant, and have proved popular with viewers.

But Globo producers say they're confident the new series will score with viewers. They point to one big difference between the new shows and anything else on Brazilian television today. The new series they say, show "the Brazilian reality."

One episode of "Heavy Load" showed company truck drivers striking for higher pay against corrupt bosses. Another dealt with roadside prostitutes in backwoods Brazil, whose clients are mainly truck drivers. "Malu, Woman" has treated, sympathetically, the problems of abortion and separation.

All these scenes probably would have been banned by federal censors even a few months ago. Labor strikes do occur today, but they are illegal under the country's military-run government.

Bus Drivers Want Pay Hike

DALLAS (AP)-Dallas bus drivers say they are seriously considering a public referendum to force higher salaries if the city council does not grant them more than a 7 percent wage increase.

Amalgamated Transit Union president B.J. Simmons said Thursday the drivers will vote on the issue after the council approves the final municipal operating budget in mid-September.

The council has recommended the 7 percent raise for all city employes.

Fish Used To Control Mosquitoes

EDITOR'S NOTE-If you're having a slap-happy summer swatting at pesky moquitoes, this might ease your discomfort: a tiny fish - the mosquitofish - thrives on eating the bothersome biters, and states across the nation are using it for mosquito control.

By LARRY ELKIN
Associated Press Writer

ALHAMBRA HOT SPRINGS, Mont. (AP)- There's a little fish hereabouts that's been taking a big bite out of mosquito populations.

It's been doing a job on mosquitoes elsewhere in the country, too - in some 20 states from New Jersey to Alaska - and as far abroad as Guadalcanal, Cyprus, Italy and even Russia.

But it's a surprise to find it here in wintry Montana. Yet here it is, teeming schools of Gambusia affinis, commonly called the mosquitofish.

Native to the Gulf and the Southeast, it was introduced to California at Sutter's Fort at the turn of the century, and also to Texas and Arizona.

"It's outstanding so far as a mosquito-eating fish goes," says Dr. Ernest Bay, superintendent of the Western Washington Research and Extension Center of Washington State University. "There's never been anything that equals it."

The tiny fish - females grow up to three inches long and males only half that size - can gobble up as many as 100 mosquito larvae a day.

So prolific are these finny minnows that 6,000 to 9,000 of them, dumped into a warm pond in Montana, had two million progeny within two-and-a-half months.

Oddly, the mosquito-eater's success is an argument against its use in mosquito control. "It usurps a lot of habitats and out-competes a lot of other species, and sometimes eats the young fry of other fish, or at the very least eats their food supply," Dr. Bay explains.

So environmentalists are against its use in some places.

Gambusia affinis is limited to certain habitats. It has a good cold tolerance, but not enough to survive northern winters, say in upstate New York.

The mosquito, on the other hand, can breed in a fantastic variety of environments from the mountains of the Sierras to the Alaskan tundra to the casual water of a golf course. Gambusia are of no value there.

The live-bearing mosquitofish were first discovered in Montana in 1959, thriving in a hot spring about 40 miles east of Missouls. Scientists speculate the fish were dumped into the spring by a tropical fish enthusiast tired of his pets.

In fact, state Health Department biologist Ken Quickenden says the hot springs of western Montana are full of exotic tropical fish, although introducing them is "illegal as hell."

The hot springs near Missoula provided the initial mosquito-killing stock when the state began its campaign in 1976 by starting a Gambusia hatchery in a pond at Alhambra Hot Springs.

About 900 mosquitofish were stocked in April 1978 in one area of Broadwater County, which has swampy irrigated fields and marshy areas along the Missouri River.

Four months later, there were an estimated 200,000 mosquitofish and very few mosquitoes.

The Broadwater County Mosquito Control District reported "there was not one complaint uttered to the county commissioners, city council, mosquito board or the mayor. The board even received a complimentary letter."

Mosquitofish have been stocked in 23 of Montana's 56 counties, and state Health Department biologist Van Jamison predicts they will be only the first step in a series of efforts to fight mosquitoes with natural enemies.

Risked Lives To Flee Cuba

MIAMI (AP)-Cuban exiles say they decided to risk their lives to flee their homeland after learning that Fidel Castro's propaganda about "the devil ... in the United States" is false.

"The Cuban people there believed that Cubans here were living in disgrace, that children have been killed," Mauricio Quevedo, a 33-year-old electronics engineer, said Wednesday.

Quevedo, his wife and 4-year-old daughter were among 11 Cubans who faked a picnic on a beach near Havana on Saturday, then swam to a boat at nightfall and braved a trip through the rough Florida Straits.

They landed at Miami Tuesday.

Since April, 102 Cuban exiles have arrived in Florida in boats, officials at the Cuban Refugee Program report. In 1978, just 19 refugees landed. There were 33 refugees in 1977, 12 in 1976 and none in 1975.

Houston Okays School Budget

HOUSTON (AP)-Houston school trustees have approved a record $321.8 million budget that will require an 11 percent tax hike.

After adopting the budget Thursday night, the board indicated September action will be taken to boost the current 90 cents per $100 valuation tax rate to about $1. It would be the school district's first tax hike in 17 years.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

August 19, 1979

You could bring to completion this coming year the last phase of an important change in your lifestyle you've been hoping to accomplish. What you do may affect others as well as yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A peaceful, quiet day is in the offing for you. If you use this serene mood to your advantage you might get something accomplished that normally bugs you. Learn more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Make certain you spend the day among friends with whom you feel comfortable. You won't want to knock yourself out trying to please strangers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unless you are running the show you won't be happy today. Plan only those activities for which you think others need your leadership.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have the ability to view things with great understanding for others today. Someone could sense this quality, and pour his or her heart out to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be alert for the opportunity to become involved in a project someone else is masterminding. Participation could be profitable to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec.22-Jan. 19) The spotlight is on your mate or partner today because you place it there. This person will appreciate your making him or her feel important.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You work well today with the family or those who you consider to be close. Plan a project that will involve the whole clan.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're a good manager of those under your charge or care today. If you make a point with a young person, the lesson will be long remembered.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A relaxing day at home with the family will do you a world of good today. You won't have to go any further than your own backyard to find enjoyment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A sympathetic ear and keen mental faculties make you a good friend to be around today. Don't be surprised if you get a lot of attention.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can take big load off your wallet by puttering around the house doing little odd jobs. You know how to restore or preserve many things others feel are beyond repair.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The outcome of this day depends solely upon you. Be enterprising and resourceful, and something of personal value can be gained.

Your Birthday

August 20, 1979

Your leadership qualities will become more pronounced in the coming year and you may find yourself in the forefront of an important cause or enterprise. You won't have any problems handling the reigns.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your words carry considerable weight today, especially among your admirers. Should you find an opportunity to compliment one who is fond of you, by all means do so. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter which begins with your birth date. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Hunches, flashes of insight or intuitive perceptions that you get today should not be ignored. This is particularly true if they're of a positive nature.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is a good day to lay foundations for a new project or enterprise. Seeds planted now will produce a bountiful harvest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The more competitive the situation is today, the more efficiently you are likely to function. Your best thoughts come when under pressure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Learning experiences will come from the contacts you have with others today. Mundane happenings serve as the textbook.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're far better at sorting out the affairs of others today than you are at handling things for yourself. Use your talents where they'll do the most good.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're not likely to make poor decisions today because you are able to size up all the angles. Weigh your alternatives judiciously.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) People are willing to do things for you today because they recognize that you would be willing to do the same for them if the roles were reversed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Because you know how to appreciate life for what it has to offer, it will make your burden much lighter as well as lift the spirits of those around you today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have the tenacity to get what you go after today, and you do it in an appealing manner. In fact, they'll even be supportive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Mental tasks, more so than the physical, are your cup of tea today. You're especially adept at things which beg for a touch of creativity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Put your imagination to work today. If you size up situations now available, you may think of a good way to add to your resources.

tin-eared dictator

Can you imagine a world without the great symphonies, without the clarinet of Benny Goodman, without the ballad and the songs of Elvis Presley?

Imagine a society where it is illegal to hum a few bars from "San Antonio Rose" or "on the Street Where You Live."

That's the kind of sterile culture Ayatollah Khoemeini wants. Music, the strong man of Iran says, in so many words, is an opiate that man would be better off without, that it fills a socially undesirable function.

The sonata and the concerto, the rondeau and the pastoral, the ayatollah insists, has a druglike effect in that it 'stupifies persons listening to it and makes their brains inactive and frivolous.' Iran's holy man felt so strongly about the intrusion of the dulcet sound, he had it banned from Iranian radio and television.

Thus music joins alcohol, mixed swimming and Western movies as officially certified and proscribed paths straight to Hades in reborn Iran.

Down through the ages, the great men have praised music as an extension of man himself, as something that delays his departure for a world of utter madness.

It was the Bard on Avon, William Shakespeare, who once was moved to write:

The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not mov'd with concord of sweet sounds,
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus:
Let no such man be trusted.

Come to think of it, it may be only a matter of time before Khoemeini bans Shakespeare himself, if he hasn't already so decreed.

It was Karl Marx who once said that "religion is the opiate of the masses." Khoemeini appears to have gone him one better.

Religion, as he would have it practiced in his brave new Islamic republic, is more than an opiate. It is a total anesthetic.

Granted that some modern music is more motion than tone, more visual than acoustical, it is still a very necessary part of man's life - be it a narcotic, sustenance or soul food.

Revolutions have been fought over less.

"Hey, you in the dress! Come back here and say that again!"

generous limitation

Despite President Carter's tough talk about imposing stringent limits on future petroleum imports, he actually has established very generous ceilings.

Carter says he will not allow "one drop more" than 8.2 million barrels of oil per day to be imported this year. But net imports during the first half of the year amounted to only slightly more than 7.7 million barrels per day.

That means that during the last half of 1979 the country could import almost 8.7 million barrels of oil daily - the highest rate in history - and still meet the president's goal.

The ceiling for future years will be pegged to 1977 net imports, which totaled almost 8.6 million barrels per day - the greatest amount of oil ever purchased from foreign sources.

While Carter logically might have selected 1978 imports as a standard for the future that goal would have been difficult to attain because they amounted to fewer than 8 million barrels per day.

breeding permits?

We have been teasing this young married couple of our acquaintance with variations on the question, "When are you going to have a family?"

However innocently intended, such an inquiry can be impertinent and, under some circumstances, cruel.

It came up again last Father's Day.

"Maybe next year, Warren, you will be eligible."

He said, "not next year."

And I am going to be more careful with that subject henceforth.

Linda and Warren have been married five years. They have no children.

Warren has a better than average income -- before deductions. Linda works as a secretary for a professional association until they can save enough money to repay his educational loan and to pay for the house they are buying.

How long it will be before Linda can quit work and have a baby -- she wants her baby to have a full-time mother -- depends on things like obligations, interest rates and inflation.

Then there crosses my news desk some reference to a welfare family buying a newly renovated house for negligible monthly payments, ignoring any obligation to repay an educational grant, eating off somebody else's table through food stamps and receiving extra money every time they have another baby.

And Linda and Warren cannot afford to have a baby because they have to help pay for all these other peoples' babies.

Obviously, somehow our value judgment got turned upside down.

Who's to speak for these "poor people?"

"We are supporting a welfare family," says Warren, "we cannot afford one of our own."

From time to time somebody suggests controlled breeding of the human population. When that somebody is merely a sensationalist author seeking to sell books or a racist seeking to equate intellect with color, or somebody trying to found a new school of psychological theory the suggestion gets little or no serious consideration.

Thus we go on breeding our race horses, our livestock, even our pet dogs with utmost care, while allowing the human race to re-beget itself utterly indiscriminately.

Today an educational psychologist at Bowling Green State University -- Dr. Jerry Bergman, a father of two -- says he is not promoting it, but he is overhearing with increasing frequency among teachers and psychologists and school administrators the idea that eventually the government is going to have to assume responsibility for the human breeding process.

As we now need a birth certificate at birth, a death certificate at death, a license for driving and a permit for building, eventually we will need a license from the government to have children.

Parents will have to have an IQ of 80 or above. And earn more than $8,000 a year. And have no serious emotional problems. And they will have to know how to care for a baby.

As is, Dr. Bergman says, there is nothing the government can do to prevent the mentally retarded from having as many children as they want. Or those with high intelligence and high incomes but with severe behavior problems.

He believes that unless an overcrowded world is to starve it will have to produce only those babies most likely to become productive.

WASHINGTON (NEA)— Boys - and maybe girls - born after Jan. 1, 1963, take note. Uncle Sam may want you.

The military draft might soon start again if Pentagon officials and their friends in Congress have their way.

A ray of hope still remains, however, for young people, who have not faced draft calls since December 1972. President Carter opposes any change in current law and he will win some support from lawmakers.

The Senate and House will tackle the issue this fall when they consider a proposal to resume draft registration effective Jan. 1, 1981, for males who become 18 years old on that date or later.

Although the proposal does not specifically require the drafting of new soldiers, it would expedite such a decision.

The Selective Service System, which administers draft registration, has dropped from a bureaucracy of 3,000 to fewer than 100 employees since the all-volunteer force began in 1973. It stopped conducting physical examinations of potential draftees in 1974 and, a year later, President Ford ordered the termination of registration procedures for all young men.

According to the House Armed Services Committee, however, the Selective Service still is required to assure a ready supply of military manpower should the need arise. But it cannot meet that test.

The Defense Department estimates that 110 days would lapse before it would receive its first inductee under the current system; it wants the capacity to have the first candidate within 30 days after mobilization and 100,000 recruits within 60 days.

The House committee concluded that the best way to assure this supply is to require registration of all young men so that they would be available for immediate examination and induction if the need arose.

The panel added that registration could attract more volunteers into the reserves by making youth more aware of military service. The Army Ready Reserve now has a pool of about 140,000 men, well below the minimum of 340,000 trained soldiers it feels it needs to supplement active units.

Not all the committee members support the plan. Reps. Bob Carr, D-Mich., and Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., said the panel had not found problems with the volunteer system. And they wondered why the committee found it necessary to beef up the reserves, which were not called upon in either the Korean or the Vietnam wars.

The Carter administration's response has been difficult to determine. Members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Army Secretary Clifford Alexander favor registration, but Defense Secretary Harold Brown says he opposes it.

The major source of opposition is the White House, where officials undoubtedly are concerned about political opposition from 18-year-olds who could be voting in the 1980 election. Carter aides have been called for more study of the proposal.

One area of concern is whether recent Supreme Court decisions barring sex discrimination would require the registration of young women and, if so, whether they could be drafted. Women already comprise 14 percent of Army personnel and attend the military academies. But the Pentagon and the public may not be ready for a wave of female "boot-camp" trainees.

There are larger questions involved, too. For example, the next war could quickly escalate into a nuclear disaster, which would make a draft system impractical. Or it could become what draft-registration opponents call a "slow boil" war with a year or more between the first storm clouds and full-scale conflict; in that case, the current system would fill the need.

In short, teen-agers don't have to sit at home waiting for their draft notices. But the prospect of draft lines may be enough to ruin a few summer vacations.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Childhood is that wonderful time when all you need to do to lose weight is to take a bath."

About this time every year, we're ready for school to start. School means a change in the weather, football and a change of pace. But this year we have another reason to anticipate cooler weather.

It seemed like a good idea back last May when our son was asked if he would like to mow lawns. The amount offered even impressed us since we can remember working all week and not making that kind of dough.

We were real proud of our 9-year-old. After talking it over with the big folks at home, he called the man and accepted the job---working out all the details.

Naturally the job required hauling the lawn mower, and that turned out to be a bigger chore than mowing the lawn. Thinking it was too early to allow him to stay alone, we stood around for a few minutes and decided it would be quicker if we pitched in and helped.

Now his job has become our job and it does roll around regularly. The purpose, of course, was to give him a lesson in responsibility and economics.

It seems that we may have been somewhat successful on the former, but we have failed miserably on the latter.

Little League, swimming, movies nor even watermelon has prevented him from doing the job, but the economic lesson just isn't there.

We tried to explain about lawnmower depreciation, about fuel to power it and other minor repairs, but all he knows is that he's got another paycheck to sock away. I suppose learning to save 100 per cent of one's earnings is some accomplishment while still having money for miniature golf.

We got absolutely no sympathy from the coffee shop crowd. One fellow said there's a lot more to come. He said he always assumed that the credit cards would be turned back in to dad upon graduation from college.

We just hope he doesn't get the idea to shovel snow and ice for extra money this winter.

Memory loss

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — For the past 2½ years my wife has been bothered by an increasing loss of memory. She's now 65 and the problem seems to be getting worse.

Her memory loss is principally for the last 15 to 20 years. It's disconcerting to everyone when she opens as a totally new subject a topic that we have thoroughly discussed a half hour earlier. It's not because she didn't pay attention because she's often been an interested and active participant in the discussion.

We've looked into hyperbaric oxygen treatments but found that it was expensive and it wasn't certain whether there would be any useful results.

There are no headaches or other symptoms and it has been suggested that maybe a brain tumor could be at the basis of the problem.

My question is to what field of medicine do we look for a possible answer? With this exception, we've enjoyed good health all our lives.

DEAR READER — I wish your problem was unusual, but it's not. There are all kinds of labels attached to these conditions and some of them are particularly upsetting to the patient and family.

The simple truth is that almost all of these problems are related to some form of change in the brain. We often associate them with increasing years but it's important to remember that a lot of relatively old people still have very clear minds to the days they die, so it's not simply an age-related matter.

In some instances, there are distinct changes in the brain cells that can be seen under a microscope. The cause of these changes is not clearly understood. They may occur even if the person has had excellent nutrition and even if the circulation to the brain is normal.

Anything that injures the brain can produce such symptoms. A good example is multiple small strokes caused by disease in the arteries to the brain. Or if you have disease in enough of the main large arteries that supply the brain, there may be changes in brain function.

The symptoms of brain damage caused by poor circulation are almost clinically indistinguishable from changes that occur in the cell with no disturbance in circulation. A good example of the latter problem is called Alzheimer's disease.

Sometimes a severe vitamin deficiency (particularly of vitamin B-12), toxins and various diseases can affect the brain and produce the same symptoms.

There is a good likelihood that no specific, treatable cause will be found in your wife's case. That's what happens in most instances. The condition may progress with increasing difficulty of remembering even more remote events.

To give you more information on the problem I am sending you The Health Letter number 14-2, Age and Mental Function. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Because diseases can cause such a problem, I believe you should look to a specialist in neurology for an evaluation of your wife's condition and advice on what would be best in her situation.

Police Using Hypnosis As Investigative Tool

WASHINGTON (AP)— Police are wrestling with the difficulties of a new investigative tool - hypnosis, and this story is a case in point:

A young woman came to police with a familiar but still terrifying account of abduction and attempted rape. In the course of the investigation, the woman studied dozens of police mug shots, identified one attacker, and picked out another man who "looked like" the other.

A detective, hoping for a more complete description, hypnotized the woman and questioned her further. She positively identified both men in the photographs as the attackers, and police arrested them.

The defense lawyer, preparing for trial, arranged for a psychiatrist to testify about the hazards of using hypnosis in criminal cases. Prosecutors took another look at the evidence and found their case unraveling. The woman finally confessed she "had invented the whole story as an effort to keep her husband from divorcing her."

Dr. Martin T. Orne, the psychiatrist who would have testified in that Plainfield, N.J., case last year, relates the story as an example of the dangers of allowing police and prosecutors to go to court with evidence obtained through hypnosis.

Orne, an authority on hypnosis and a professor of psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania, cites case after case in which evidence gained through hypnosis turned out to be unreliable.

But proponents of hypnosis in criminal cases relate other stories of amazing success in solving difficult crimes because hypnosis enabled witnesses to retrieve valuable clues buried deep in their memories.

The Chowchilla, Calif., kidnapping case may be the best-known example. Under hypnosis, a school bus driver recalled a license number which led police to the kidnappers who abducted a busload of schoolchildren.

Dr. Martin Reiser, a pioneer in the field, tells of a small boy who saw his father murdered and hastily scribbled the license number of the fleeing killer's car. "But he had transposed two digits and when he was hypnotized, he was able to report the number correctly and an arrest was made," says Reiser, a clinical psychologist and director of behavioral science services for the Los Angeles police department.

Reiser brought hypnosis into police work with experiments in Los Angeles in the early 1970s. Since then, he has trained other department officers in the techniques and has founded a private corporation to offer similar training to law enforcement officers from around the country. The basic four-day session costs $395.

Reiser estimates that at least 200 police departments use hypnosis. It is used by police in New York, Boston, Honolulu, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Dallas and San Antonio, in addition to Los Angeles.

Orne agrees "hypnosis can be used quite effectively as an investigative tool provided that you check what you have and don't accept it as fact."

He contends only professional psychiatrists or psychologists with special hypnosis training should be permitted to hypnotize and question victims and witnesses. A police officer with a few days' training may be able to induce hypnosis but will "lack an appreciation of its limitations" and subtle effects, Orne says.

Scientists define hypnosis as "an altered state of consciousness" allowing an individual to focus thoughts in intense concentration. Most people have experienced hypnotic states without realizing it.

"For example, when you're driving down a highway at night and staring at the yellow lines, that's a hypnotic state," says Richard Ault, an FBI official who helped set up the bureau's hypnosis program. Ault teaches at the FBI Academy and is studying for a doctorate in psychology.

Ault said that to avoid serious mistakes in criminal cases, the FBI had chosen a "conservative approach" using only outside psychiatric professionals as hypnotists. About 60 agents from field offices across the country have been trained as coordinators, and Orne was among those who conducted the training.

New York City was incorporated in 1665.

Says Refinery Requirements Being Overlooked

HOUSTON (AP)-Urvan R. Sternfels says national energy policy planners have failed to give sufficient attention to future requirements for a strong domestic oil refining and petrochemical industry.

Sternfels is general counsel for the National Petroleum Refiners Association, a Washington-based trade group that represents most of the nation's refiners.

"We have been critical of the petroleum policies of the Carter administration, not because of their ineffectiveness, for surely there is plenty of responsibility for failure elsewhere in our political system, but for the central reason no positive consideration has been given to the future requirement of our country for a strong domestic refining and petrochemical industry," Sternfels said in a bulletin mailed to members of the trade group.

"It is this segment of the oil business that has produced the essential fuels and building blocks which contribute so greatly to the high standard of living we have historically enjoyed."

And, he added, the nation's dependence on these petroleum products for future growth and benefits seems likely to increase.

"It is for this reason we have suggested our national planning include provisions to ensure adequate capacity and necessary refinery improvements are made to supply quality products for domestic facilities, rather than follow the perilous precedent that has been set by our dependence on foreign sources for crude oil," Sternfels said.

He said, however, Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., introduced on Aug. 3 a bill refiners view as a serious, comprehensive domestic refining legislative proposal and as a salutary step in the right direction.

Sternfels said the bill, now before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, foreshadows a difficult, but necessary addition to the substance of the energy debate.

"This bill is a pragmatic attempt to accommodate existing constituencies, while at the same time, 'correcting the deficiencies which have been fostered by our nonpolicy of past years'," Sternfels said.

"Some of the approaches do not represent the views of important segments of the industry but, together, they will provide the basis for what could become a positive dialogue."

Sternfels said the Johnson bill would impose a fee, subject to adjustment for inflation in future years, of 3 cents a galllon on imported refined products.

The fee, he said, would provide protection for domestic refineries from foreign refineries which operate in a situation characterized by lower taxes, lower wage scales, and more relaxed environmental standards.

Among the bill's objectives, he said, would be encouraging "import-dependent regions" to use domestic refined petroleum products and encouraging construction of new refineries and modernization of existing refineries "by independent firms to meet the national need for environmentally acceptable fuels."

Sternfels said the search for a meaningful national energy policy has escalated to one of the most consuming debates of topical interest "with a great deal of rhetoric but very little action of substance."

"A central exception to this gloomy observation is the commitment by the administration to phase out price controls on domestic crude oil," he said.

"However, even this promising prospect is entwined with uncertainty resulting in a struggle to determine the amount of, and to whom, the increased revenues will be permitted to flow."

This struggle, he said, will undoubtedly continue, with the possibility no effective consensus will be reached.

"Such a result could prejudice the underlying basis for the debate, namely the return of the petroleum industry to some form of a free market system," Sternfels said.

Wildcat Venture Set South Of Hermleigh

Argee Oil Co. and Euratex Corp. of Midland No. 1 Foster is to be dug as a 7,600-foot wildcat in Scurry County, two miles south of Hermleigh.

The drillsite is 467 feet from north and 2,500 feet from west lines of section 155, block 3, H&TC survey and 1.5 miles east of production in the Earnest field.

Ike Lovelady, Inc., of Midland No. 1 Prothro has been spotted as an 8,000-foot wildcat in Howard County, 16 miles northeast of Big Spring.

It is 2,173 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of section 20, block 25, H&TC survey and ½ mile west of an 8,293-foot failure. It also is one and three-eighths miles northwest of the discovery well of the Stolham (Wolfcamp) field which produces at 6,646 feet.

Wes--Tex Drilling Co. of Abilene No. 1 Blagrave, scheduled as a 9,200-foot wildcat, has been completed and assigned to the Ackerly (Dean Sand) field of Borden County.

It completed for a 24-hour pumping potential of 80 barrels of 38-gravity oil and five barrels of water, through perforations opposite the Dean Sand from 8,080 to 8,262 feet.

The gas-oil ratio is 1,050-1.

The pay was treated with 2,000 gallons of acid and fractured with 100,000 gallons.

Hole is bottomed at 9,061 feet and 4.5-inch pipe is set at 8,458 feet.

Location is 2,510 feet from south and 510 feet from west lines of section 8, block 33, T-3-N, T&P survey and four miles northwest of Vealmoore.

Birdwell Oil Co. of Abilene No. 1 Elizabeth Connell has been finaled in the Polar, East (Canyon; pool of Kent County, 2.5 miles southeast of Polar.

On 24-hour potential test it pumped 83 barrels of 42-gravity oil and 154 barrels of water, through perforations from 6,970 to 6,080 feet. Gravity of oil is 42 degrees and the gas-oil radio is 810-1.

Total depth is 7,332 feet and 4.5-inch casing is cemented at 7,303 feet. The pay was treated with 2,500 gallon of acid.

The location is 990 feet from north and 1,900 feet from west lines of secion 3, block 5. H&GN survey, abstract A-88.

Agar & Agar Inc. of Midland No. 1 Linda is a new well in the Lynkay (6150-foot) field of Kent County, 20 miles northwest of Clairemont.

The operator reported a 24-hour pumping potential of 111.5 barrels of oil and 2.5 barrels of water per day, through perforations from 6,198 to 6,202 feet.

The Gravity of the oil is 37 degrees and the gas-oil ratio is 724-1. The pay was acidized with 250 gallons.

Total depth is 6,230 feet and 4.5-inch casing is set on bottom.

Wellsite is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 4, block B, PSL survey.

Cola Petroleum, Inc., of Midland No. 1 DeVaney, a re-entry project in Howard County, has been completed in the Coahoma (Mississippian) field, three miles northeast of Coahoma.

It finaled for a daily flowing potential of 158 barrels of 40-gravity oil and no water, through a 20-64-inch choke and perforations from 8,739 to 8,748 feet. The pay was acidized with 2,000 gallons, and the gas oil ratio is 1,278-1.

Total depth is 8,970 feet and 4.5-inch casing is set on bottom. Hole is plugged back to 8,800 feet.

The well is one-half mile northwest of the pool's Mississippian discovery.

Location is 467 feet from south and east lines of section 29, block 30, T-1-N, T&P survey.

No. 1 Devaney was formerly a Fusselman producer.

A.K. Guthrie Operating ko. of Big Spring No. 1 Bill Winters has been completed as the ninth well in the Sara-Mag (Canyon) field of Howard Country, one milewest of Vincent.

The operator reported a daily flowing potential of 136 barrels of 42-gravity oil and no water, through a 12-64-inch choke and perforations from 7,444 to 7,451 feet after a 500-gallon acid treatment. The gas-oil ratio is 1,115-1.

Total depth is 7,452 feet and 5.5-inch casing is cemented on botton.

Location is 467 feet from north and 2,144 feet from east lines of section 10, block 25, H&TC survey.

Carter Optimistic About SALT II

WASHINGTON (AP)—The SALT II treaty has made it through Senate hearings so far in relatively good shape, says President Carter.

And that, the president told a group of community leaders at the White House Thursday, makes him optimistic about the course of debate over ratification of the arms limitation pact with the Soviet Union. He said Senate debate seems to be focusing on military spending levels, "whether or not we are protecting our country adequately," Carter also said, as he has in the past, the treaty can be verified and will add to the nation's security.

Fears Ease Over TI'S New Plant

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)-Planning officials here say Texas Instruments, the Dallas-based electronics and computer firm, has eased local fears about its proposal to build a major plant on the northeast fringe of Colorado Springs.

The plant would get under construction in 1981.

Until a series of meetings last week, city and regional planning officials had criticized Texas Instruments for seeking rezoning of a 713-acre track on the metropolitan fringe rather than considering available sites closer to downtown. Members of the city planning staff said the plan would cost millions of dollars to extend utilities, roads and other city services.

However, City Planning Director Bub Owsley said the exchange of views last week "changes the whole

Farm Prices Baffle Buyers

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Agriculture Department says consumers "may be confused about differences between prices farmers get for their products and what consumers pay for them at the retail store."

They may be especially confused after President Carter's meeting Monday with food-industry executives.

He said "farm prices" declined "in the last three months" at an annual rate of 17 percent and said the spread between raw and retail prices was too high to be justified.

That spread includes both costs and profits for processing and marketing food. Industries have quarreled with USDA for years on the calculations, and more discussions of that were promised at the White House session.

But just two weeks aego, USDA reported the official monthly farm-price figures for July.

They averaged 0.75 percent higher than in June, back up to the record level set in March and repeated in May. Wheat, corn and soybean prices were at their highest levels in years.

That meant overall farm prices had increased, not decreased, by 18.3 percent since April - an annual rate of almost 55 percent - and stood at a level 14 percent higher than a year before.

Grocery prices in June, the latest month for which date is available, were up 9.4 percent from June 1978.

The next day, top USDA officials were excitedly talking about gains in farm income this year.

On Tuesday, USDA issued a "briefing paper" for "confused consumers" on the subject of food prices spreads, the difference between what farmers get and shoppers pay.

The paper used the same 17 percent Carter used the day before - with two key differences.
