Record Vote Looms For Texas Today

Two Dead, Several Missing In Southwest Texas Floods

Hundreds Flee As Stream Rises To Inundate Homes

(By The Associated Press)

SAN SABA, July 22—The usually peaceful San Saba river, normally 2 to 3 feet deep, soared past record heights today drowning at least two persons as it inundated a tremendous area of the West Texas sheep country and drove hundreds of lowland dwellers from their homes.

While the stream shot two feet beyond the previous record mark of 42 feet, frantic appeals went out for aid over a single telephone line to the outside.

The north side residential area was flooded and the river lapped within a few feet of the first business block.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Hensley were reported drowned near Menard when they tried to wade from a sudden swirl of water which enveloped them. Their son, Charlie, was leading them through when the water suddenly cut them from his grasp.

As he watched their bodies go down the river, he caught on a limb and finally made his way out. The bodies were not recovered.

Fears were felt for Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hunt and their grandson, but the trio was found perched in a treetop, and brought to safety in a boat.

Drops Three Feet

As Red Cross representatives from San Angelo and Abilene planned to rush aid, citizens felt somewhat relieved when the torrent dropped three feet. However, another rise was reported coming from Voca, where the stage was 45 feet.

Several homes were washed away and several persons, whose names were unavailable, were missing.

R. B. Bagley, wool and pecan buyer, and Warren Linn capsized a boat while going to anchor at the Bagley home. The men swam to a pecan tree and A. B. Puckett and J. W. Hewgley, Bagley's partner, rescued them in a boat.

Boats Sent To Rescue

Boats were dispatched to rescue persons marooned in tree tops and on houses. Fourteen persons were taken off one residence west of town.

Already between 400 and 500 persons were estimated to have been driven from their homes as the San Saba and its tributaries were fed by a rainfall measuring up to 10 inches the past few days.

All telegraph facilities were disrupted and several power lines were reported to have gone down. Electric service, however, continued to

Youth Relates Kidnap Story

(By The Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, July 22 — Earl Ginn, 16-year-old Dallas messenger boy, told police and sheriff's deputies here today he had been kidnaped in Dallas, robbed of between $400 and $600 and released in Fort Worth at noon.

The lad's identification of Floyd Hamilton as one of the three men he said abducted him was being checked by detectives.

He Delivers Cash

Ginn said he was employed by the Merchants Delivery Service, Inc. A part of his duties is to deliver cash collected on C. O. D. deliveries to merchants.

He said he left the delivery service's office at 10 a. m. today. At an intersection he continued, his bicycle had a flat tire.

As he was pushing the bicycle to a service station a block away, three men in a late model sedan stopped and ordered him into the automobile.

Forced To Lie On Seat

The lad said he was forced to lie on the rear seat.

Ginn said he was forced to hand over seven packages of money and he said they took $1 from the billfold and returned it to him empty.

Ginn told investigators the men shoved him out and told him, "get going."

Great Nations Plan Service Over Atlantic

By DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y., July 22—The ocean-going airplanes of three world powers lazed at anchor on the north shore of Long Island today, mute testimony to a polite but spirited international squabble over supremacy on the Atlantic air lanes.

A British seaplane arrived from Foynes, Ireland, yesterday. Britain started the tests last year.

German Plane Arrives

A German seaplane drifted in today, ending the first of several proposed round trips this year in a continuation of survey work between New York and the Azores in 1936 and 1937.

Two hours later an American flying boat, cabin crowded with passengers, ploughed the waters of Manhasset bay on a takeoff for Bermuda, a future stopping point for inter-continental transports.

America plans no more Transatlantic flights until the new 72-passenger Boeing planes, now being built, are ready for scheduled service.

What's Back Of Them?

What is back of these ocean flights and when will the common citizen be able to buy a ticket to Southampton, Le Havre or Hamburg?

A statement by Capt. Rudolph Jahn, American representative of the German Transport company, Lufthansa, supplied an answer to the second part of the question.

"Lufthansa," he said, "is ready to fly across the Atlantic whenever the American government says we may."

Permission Withheld

The American government is not likely to grant permission until American planes are ready to fly. American planes cannot fly until

Curiosity About Weather Is Fatal For New Mexico Fish

SANTA FE, N. M., July 22. (AP)—Curiosity about the weather proved fatal to a whole school of New Mexico trout.

The poor fish, reported State Game Warden Elliott Barker today, stuck out their noses to investigate a hailstorm on the Gallinas river.

"Several thousand" were killed by the marble-sized stones.

WASHINGTON, July 22. (AP)—The Commodity Credit corporation reported today it had loaned $238,699,195 on 5,464,137 bales of cotton through July 21. The number of bales on which loans were made, by states, included: New Mexico 49,296; Texas 1,645,105.

Hamilton Says Relief Clients Used By FDR

Claims American People Will Repudiate Shameless Conduct This Fall And In 1940

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 22. — John Hamilton, Republican national chairman, charged today the Roosevelt administration was increasing relief rolls and failing to stimulate private industry in an effort to obtain a third term for the president with relief clients' votes.

At the same time the Republican leader expressed conviction the American people would repudiate "this shameless conduct" at the polls this fall and in 1940.

Doubtful Of Support

"Indeed, it is very doubtful whether even those on the federal relief rolls would vote for Mr. Roosevelt again," Hamilton added.

"What these people want are self-respecting jobs in private industry. They are growing tired of being made wards of the Roosevelt administration."

Hamilton's statement was occasioned by declaration of Harry L. Hopkins, the WPA administrator, that he believed 90 per cent of the 3,000,000 persons on work relief rolls favored the Roosevelt administration.

Movement Launched

The G.O.P. chairman said that Hopkins' remark, made at a press conference yesterday, "looks like the launching of the Roosevelt third term movement by the man who might be termed the largest employer in the nation."

Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) of the senate campaign funds committee, commented that the committee would study Hopkins' remark.

Weather Man Puts Damper On Prospects For Election Day

DALLAS, July 22. (AP)—The weather man put a damper tonight on prospects for a record turnout of voters in the Democratic primary election tomorrow.

Cloudy weather and scattered showers were forecast for most of the state.

Flood conditions in West Texas were certain to cut the vote considerably in that area.

Blunt Warning Given Mexico

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 22.—A blunt warning that Mexico would be subject to economic penalties if she refused to arbitrate the issue arising from her seizure of American-owned farm land was issued today by Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee.

A refusal, Pittman said, would "destroy the good neighbor policy as fas as the United States and Mexico are concerned."

Forfeit All Aid

He said Mexico "would forfeit all the financial and other voluntary aid we have given her through our spirit of friendship and desire for peace, prosperity and upbuilding of that country."

This recalled that the United States is the most important purchaser of Mexican silver.

Pittman's statement attracted attention, especially since he often reflects administration views on foreign affairs.

Follow-Up To Note

His statement was a follow-up to Secretary of State Hull's note to Mexico yesterday, protesting Mexico's failure to pay for American-owned farm land seized over a period of years and asking that the

Holiday On Sordid Politics Being Promised By McCraw

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, July 22.—Forty thousand campaign miles behind him, William McCraw told the homefolk tonight he would be elected their governor and hoped Texas would "declare a holiday on petty quarreling and sordid politics."

The day's intermittent rains stopped shortly before the outdoor rally but overcast skies threatened to wet his 5,000 listeners on the state fair grounds.

Jokes With Crowd

The attorney general joked with a hometown crowd which three times had elected him district attorney of Dallas county and only briefly mentioned W. Lee O'Daniel, his flour man opponent, with:

"That balloon went up all right, but it's back down now. I'm going to let that boy alone tonight. If some of the people stray away from me tomorrow, I'll get 'em back. The biscuits will get soggy in the next three or four weeks and they'll all be back."

Will Take Holiday

"On January 12 we will take a holiday from this fumbling around with personal politics and fussing with people. As your governor I want no petty quarreling. There will be a holiday on the sordid kind of politics."

Again he stressed his plan to humanize the social security program, stressing the need for "an administration that will bring certainty to the aged people."

State education, McCraw said, was necessary to the development of "well informed people necessary to democracy."

Citizenship Is Sacred

"We in Texas recognize citizenship as an important and sacred thing. As your attorney general, I had a leading part in assisting to make it possible for the children of Texas to enjoy the benefits of the highest per capita apportionment in the state's history—$22. I shall oppose any effort to retreat. We must not relax efforts until every child in Texas has the benefits of a full school term."

McCraw reiterated the need for industrial peace in Texas, pledged to aid in the writing of a fair trades act that will give the independent merchant an opportunity "to go into business and stay in business," and promised to "join hands with the farmers to perfect a soil conservation program, rural electrification program, good marketing, and adequate farm-to-market roads."

He planned a brief election day radio address at 6:45 a. m.

Thompson Closes His Drive In City Bringing Good Luck

(By The Associated Press)

GREENVILLE, July 22.—Ernest O. Thompson jubilantly finished his campaign for governor in this North Texas blackland city which he believes holds for him a good-luck charm in politics.

In two previous campaigns for state office—both of them successful—he closed his public appeals for votes in Greenville, and came again tonight proclaiming victory at the polls and appealing for "common sense, practical thinking, and sound devotion."

Many Friends Present

Thompson's North Texas friends and supporters from all parts of Texas joined in a reception for the candidate and Mrs. Thompson, after which the Greenville municipal band led a "victory march" to the Hunt county courthouse, where his final rally was held. Earlier in the day, Thompson spoke at Mt. Pleasant, Pittsburg, and Mt. Vernon, and his last word to the voters was a radio broadcast from here following the rally. He planned to drive to Bowie tonight, and catch a train from there for Amarillo, where he will vote in his home precinct.

The candidate opened his address with a prediction of victory.

Great Victory Predicted

"I now stand on the threshold of the governorship of Texas — the leadership of six million people," he said. "My cup of happiness is complete. Tomorrow will signal a great victory.

"Mine is a supreme confidence that practical Texans will vote practically—that they will vote to sustain and preserve the aged, that they will inaugurate a program of industrial development, mine is a belief that common-sense Texans will cast their ballots for adequate utility regulation, for the conservation and preservation of Texas soil, for the maintenance of Texas free democratic institutions."

Problems Are Emphasized

Thompson again urged "humanized" pension laws, his program for development of Texas resources. He emphasized the seriousness of problems facing Texas.

"Hunger and hopelessness can not be satisfied by symphonies and song. Men without work can find jobs only if Texas seriously and practically promotes an industrial program that will provide places of employment and a market for raw materials. Jobs and opportunities can not be provided by jokes and orations."

"Utility rates must be lowered, old age assistance must be humanized," he said. "Governmental spending must be curtailed and economized. Taxes must be lowered and never increased. Unemployment must fall under the impact of new industries. Organized labor must be promoted and advanced. Free public education must be liberally supported. Farm products must find home markets and higher prices. Public school lands must be safeguarded and protected.

Must Preserve Soil

"Soil must be preserved in all its productiveness. Hostile and unwarranted monopolies must be curbed and controlled. Texas independent merchants must be shielded. Texas insurance investments must be carefully guarded. Hospitals and humane treatment must be provided for the sick and insane. Criminals and racketeers must find no rest within our boundaries. The open saloon must never become a blot on Texas soil. Socialized medicine must be avoided. The public health and general welfare must be efficiently advanced and Texas must be maintained as a free, progressive and mighty state. These are the principles of Ernest Thompson."

Hunter Says He Will Receive Over A Third Of Total Vote

FORT WORTH, July 22 (AP)—From the flag-draped bandstand of Sylvania park, Tom Hunter, Wichita Falls candidate for Texas' Democratic gubernatorial nomination, thundered out a paen of victory here tonight.

Before a crowd of some 3,500 he forecast a vote of one million in tomorrow's gubernatorial race with himself receiving over a third of them for first place in a runoff. He did not name his opponent.

Platform Is Stressed

His voice unimpaired by weeks of campaigning, the Wichita Falls attorney and oil man drove home the platform which he has been advocating throughout his race. Improved methods of tax collecting and consolidation of governmental agencies, vitalizing of old age pensions, revision of trucking laws were among the major points which he stressed.

Although speaking in the home town of three of his opponents—Karl Crowley, Clarence Parmer and W. Lee O'Daniel—Hunter burst into political "fireworks" on only two occasions.

"I don't strike below the belt," he said. "There is not a statement that I shall make tonight concerning my platform or any other candidate's which has not already appeared in print.

"However, I want to remind you people that while for many years I

Search Launched For Three Tourists In New Mexico

(By The Associated Press)

GRANTS, N. M., July 22 — State police and sheriff's deputies organized a search here tonight for three women tourists, missing since Tuesday on a visit to the strange caves of perpetual ice 30 miles southwest of Grants.

Planning to start their hunt at daybreak, the officers armed themselves with ropes by which they might descend into the frozen crevices of the ice caverns.

Missing were Miss Irene Tiedalue, 22, Winchester, Ky., an employe of the University of Kentucky; Mrs. M. A. De La Forrest, 35, Lexington, Ky., a member of the University of Kentucky music faculty, and Mrs. Phillip Gibbons of Billings, Mont.

Fear for their safety was aroused today when their automobile was seen parked on the rough country road near the caves, unmoved from the place where the women stopped it

Local Balloting Expected To Be Near 10,000

Polls Open At 8 O'Clock And Close At 7; Final Rally Is Staged Friday Night

THE big inning—when the electorate grabs up its lead-filled bat and starts swinging with effect at the political offerings of candidates in the primary election of the Democratic party—falls today.

From 8,000 to 10,000 Lubbock county voters will march to 18 polling places and register expressions with horizontal swipes of black pencils, leaving untouched the names of favorites.

Polls Open At 8 O'clock

Voting will begin at 8 o'clock this morning and be concluded at 7 o'clock tonight. Facilities for a quick count and report have been made by L. C. Ellis, chairman of the county Democratic executive committee, who will have a desk in the editorial offices of Avalanche-Journal publications to assist in getting returns for a regular election party to begin a few minutes after the polls close.

Candidates Friday night concluded their campaigns when they addressed several hundred persons in the park west of city hall. Into the "mike" they promised everything from "dead level best" to "keeping the old man from whipping the old family milk cow."

Temporary Excitement

The rally was not without temporary excitement. When Tom Abel, incumbent in the sheriff's department, was speaking he asked a rhetorical question referring to whether his experience in law enforcement should not make him more qualified to continue in that office.

A few "noes" were heard, followed by cries of "yes." Chairman of the rally, G. V. Pardue, was given applause when he asked that heckling not be indulged, that candidates had only two minutes in which to "say their say and they need every bit of that time."

The sheriff's political opponents, T. E. May, Charles S. Middleton, Sid Caraway and O. B. Conley had completed their remarks before the sheriff made his address.

Ellis, speaking briefly, asked that voters go to the polls early so as to

Major Interest Is Centered In Race For Governorship

By HARRELL E. LEE
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, July 22—Head-wagging Texans will pick their favorites tomorrow in a Democratic primary election distinguished by side-splitting platform antics and the introduction of bucolic melody as a political issue.

An estimated more than 1,000,000 citizens will say whether W. Lee O'Daniel, who stole the spotlight in the governor's race, has tremendous voting support or his huge crowds simply thirsted for mountain music and prefer some one else as their chief executive.

With all except two of the dozen would-be governors certain to pass out of the picture, there was a sharp difference of opinion on which pair would qualify for the run-off primary August 27. Nearly all of the speculation revolved about Attorney General William McCraw, Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the interstate oil compact commission, Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls, who never has received less than 220,000 votes in a state-wide race and O'Daniel.

Despite muddy roads in many sections and forecasts of showers in others, most state officials stuck to predictions the vote would be either the heaviest or second heaviest in history.

Nothing Like It Since 1914

Texas had not seen anything like O'Daniel's meteoric political ascent since James E. Ferguson, a country banker, swept to the governor's chair in 1914.

O'Daniel, unknown two months ago except as sponsor of a hillbilly music program to increase sales of his flour, did not bother to outline his views on several highly controversial issues. The Fort Worth man was contest with promising everyone over 65 years old the maximum state pension of $15 a month, waging war without quarter on "professional politicians" and giving his crowds mountain music in large doses.

Ten Other Contests

The electorate will make choices in ten statewide contests besides that for governor. There is no United States senate race. Candidates receiving clear majorities will be the Democratic nominees and therefore will be virtually assured of election. In the races in which no one gets a majority, the two high men will run it off August 27.

Some of O'Daniel's more enthusiastic supporters voiced the opinion he would get a majority. Opponents ridiculed the claim,

More Than 450 Seek Offices In This Area

These figures do not include candidates for justice of the peace, constable, county chairmen, precinct chairmen, etc.

Besides these county candidates there are a number of candidates for district offices, state representative, district judge and district attorney.

Mahon Is Unopposed

George Mahon of Colorado, member of congress from the 19th district, does not have an opponent.

State Senator G. H. Nelson of Lubbock, who is a candidate for lieutenant governor, does not have to run this year.

Truett Smith of Tahoka, 106th district attorney, is the only one of the district candidates who is unopposed.

There are six candidates for state representative from the 119th district, comprised of Crosby, Lubbock, Hockley, Cochran, Lynn, Terry, Yoakum, Dawson and Gaines. The post is now held by J. Doyle Settle of Lubbock, who is not a candidate after serving two terms. They are: Alvin R. Allison of Levelland; T. W. Montgomery of Wilson; W. P. Florence of Slaton, Ralph Brock, R. H. Martin and John Vickers, Lubbock.

In the 119th district, north of Lubbock, A. B. Tarwater of Runningwater is opposed by L. D. Rochelle of Lamb county. Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Castro, Swisher and Parmer counties are in this district.

Harris Has Opponent

C. L. Harris of Spur, representative of the 118th district has an opponent, Joe A. Merritt of Snyder, who opposed him two years ago. Garza, Scurry, Dickens and Borden counties are among those in the district.

All Candidates Are Confident

(By The Associated Press)

Candidates in the governor's race forecast victory Friday night in what they believed would be a huge outpouring of voters toward the polls in Saturday's Democratic primary election.

Tom Hunter said "there's only one candidate in the race that I feel certain will be in the runoff. That's me, Tom Hunter. I've been too busy with reliable reports of my own gains to give much thought to which of my opponents will be in the runoff with me. Since I have the only sound platform, it really doesn't matter much."

Sums Up Solid Support

Karl Crowley said "the old and young will support me . . .; the teachers will support me . . .; the thoughtful citizens will support me . . . I therefore, accordingly sum up this solid support, representing a sufficient number of votes to put me at the head of the ticket and assure my election in the runoff."

William McCraw predicted he would lead the field, with W. Lee O'Daniel second. He said he expected a majority in Dallas and Tarrant, and to lead in Harris and Bexar, the four counties with 25

FOR SPORTSWOMEN

ALICIA Hart, who believes every woman can glorify herself if she devotes a few hours a day to it, has written an article on what every sportsgirl should know. She says every active sportswoman should remember:

To dry her hair as quickly as possible after each swim. If she does her swimming in salt water, she ought to rub tonic into her scalp while hair still is wet, then, when it is dry, use a hairbrush energetically. Tonic and brushing will remove every trace of salt and keep the hair shiny and bright.

That rather abbreviated, skirtless swim suits and shorts are for the slim-hipped and slender-legged only.

To wear a lightweight pantygirdle when golfing or riding.

That if she plays golf and rides regularly and drives a car a good deal but never bothers to wear gloves, she'll have callouses on her hands.

That black is a color which doesn't look well with suntanned skin.

The importance of looking as clean and perfectly groomed when playing her favorite game as she does in street clothes.

The fact that one is really good at a sport is no excuse for having hair which obviously ought to be shampooed, dirty fingernails covered with chipped polish, a grimy neck or a slightly soiled, unpressed costume.

That, regardless of the informality of the slacks or dresses she wears about the vacation cottage or farm, it isn't a good idea to shuffle around in broken down shoes with run-over heels and shattered arches. In sports shoes, just as in any other type of shoes, comfortable isn't synonymous with "practically worn out." And the shoe which offers no support at all is as bad for one's foot as a too-tight shoe.

The importance of anti-perspirants and deodorants. (It's a good idea for any active woman to use an anti-perspirant two or three times a week during summer months.)

The utter joy of a coiffure which can be re-arranged easily after a swim or a tennis match.

THINKING OF DIVORCE

EVERETTA Love, who spent several months last year in Hollywood, was discussing the Tone-Crawford separation, announced in this week's papers. She said she believed the couple might have got along all right if their "public" hadn't opened their mind to the fact that divorce is a thing that might happen to them.

"All of the movie columnists were continually harping on the possibility of a divorce for Mr. Tone and Miss Crawford," she said, "and immediately after such a statement appeared in the papers the couple would make the round of night clubs and appear together at other public places to squelch the rumors. I suppose the time came when they decided a separation wouldn't be so awful at that."

In most of the marriages that go bankrupt, whether the parties are movie stars or the family next door, divorce isn't a sudden decision. One or the other plays around with the idea long before the final plunge.

We like the sentiment of the young man who said the other day that he and his wife had never even kidded about divorce. They realize that what is never regarded as a possibility seldom comes about.

MEETS TO PRACTICE

The Wednesday club of the Junior Musicians of America met recently for practice. Selections were played by Betty Lou Armstrong, Cleta Tackett and Robert Kelly. The following committees were appointed:

Entertainment, Gib DeBusk and Larry Holley; refreshments, Alice Ann Steele, Mona Ray, Betty Armstrong, Dean McGuire, Jean Kuykendall and Kenneth Hill; publicity, Billy and Bobby Slagle. Officers named were: Violin concert master, Dana Lee Woodward; guitar concert master, George Lowery, and secretary, Cleta Tackett.

Parties Are Given Earlier In Week

Interest in today's election has overshadowed entirely social life in Lubbock. Entertainment of visitors even is at a standstill because Texas visitors have gone home to vote.

Events of the past several days include a shower for a bride, installation of officers in the Rebekah lodge and a party in the Acuff community.

Mrs. Foster Pressley entertained with a linen shower Thursday in the home of Mrs. J. G. Oslin, 1820 Avenue O, in honor of Mrs. D. L. King who was Miss Fay Thornton before her marriage. Miss Hallie Wall read.

Guests were Mesdames L. Northcut, Ralph Moore, Eddie Harvey, W. A. Johnson of Slaton, G. K. Taylor, Dora Patterson, Alfred Rushing, H. B. Whisler, J. T. Ross, E. L. Harkey, Misses Lurlene Rogers, Joy Nichols, Kathleen Harvey, Margie Taylor and Billie Young.

At I. O. O. F. Hall

Officers were installed in the Rebekah lodge at a ceremony conducted Thursday night in the I. O. O. F. hall. Mrs. W. R. Saverance, lodge deputy, was assisted by A. L. Bettes, Mrs. Walter Cross of Hobbs, N. M., Mrs. A. M. Cowdrey and Mrs. N. M. Gosdin as installing officers.

Past Officers Honored

Honoring Mrs. Douglas Pounds, immediate past president, and other retiring officers of the Acuff 4 S club, five members entertained Thursday afternoon with a seated tea at the shoe of Mrs. E. R. Davis. Hostesses were Mesdames R. E. Parchman, M. T. Darden, J. N. Haralson, Robert Elbert and E. R. Davis.

Gifts were presented to the honorees who were Mesdames Pounds, Hughey Rush, A. L. Ater and R. C. Pace.

A program included accordion music by Alva Joe Ater; reading, Frances Pace, song, Monda Ruth Davis; reading, E. R. Davis, jr.

Mrs. Haralson gave the history of the club, including the term of office of the honorees, as a story in four chapters.

Tea was poured by Mesdames Parchman and Elbert from a lace covered refreshment table centered with flowers.

Guests were Mesdames Ray Monk, J. T. Germany, V. E. Railsback, John Montgomery, Joe McAllister, Edd Griffin, Weldon Boyd, Everett Griffin, L. H. Baker, S. A. Wood, A. J. Ater, L. S. Evitt, W. H. Millican, Tom Hunt, Misses Hazel Millican, Margie Marie Pace, Helen Weaver and Frances Pace.

BATH UNIT DISCUSSED

That an inexpensive bathing center for the bedroom, made of orange crates with space for towels, wash cloths, soap and wash pan, adds convenience to bathing and dressing was pointed out at a meeting of the Posey Home Demonstration club recently in the home of Mrs. W. S. Grinstead.

A curtain of unbleached muslin with a row of tufting at the hem or with colored bias folds was suggested as a means of making the unit an attractive piece of furniture.

The hostess served refreshments to seven members and a guest.

Landlord Delays Any Action After He Thinks It Over

After thinking it over, a landlord apparently decided on another course of action, but:

Things were brisk, to say the least, in a residence Thursday in the 1500-block Avenue F, police said.

Pending settlement by persons involved in an argument, police were inclined Thursday to take no immediate action on a complaint of simple assault and of disturbance, officials said.

One man attempted to collect his rent, was struck on the arm with a walking cane and went home, took down his rifle, and sat on his lawn to think things over, police said.

That was the last report.

Freshen Your Wilted Summer Wardrobe With New Accessories

The ensemble of accessories at the left would add new interest to a summer dress that is smart but of which you are pretty tired and, of course, be lovely with the first dark dress you'll be buying in August. The leather bag is lined with suede to match the gloves, and the shoes are leather to match the bag. It's called "Mascara and Eyeshadow," because the leather is dark brown and the suede is soft violet. The little hat and pert bolero in the center—both to be worn with a dark sheer frock—are of pure white suede. The shoe right, is black calf with red suede trim. Next to it, is an interesting white clip. And directly above are a bag and hat of Persian design on a white background.

Traffic Violation Goes Disregarded And Cop Sees Young Grandson Of President

PHILADELPHIA, July 22. —A traffic violation, minor matter between two proud fathers, went disregarded today—and City Policeman Elmer Steward got to see President Roosevelt's three-day-old grandson.

Steward halted an automobile driven by Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., for a minor traffic infraction and, when the driver introduced himself, asked:

"How about seeing the baby, papa?"

"Why not," Roosevelt replied, grinning, and took Steward to the Pennsylvania hospital.

While a secret service guard looked on, a nurse wheeled the baby from the nursery.

"A fine lad, Mr. Roosevelt," beamed Steward, himself a father.

"That," Roosevelt agreed, "is what I keep saying."

P. S. Steward said he did not give Roosevelt a ticket for the traffic violation.

Appeal To Radio Owners Near Vote Boxes To Tune Down Speeches Made Last Night

AUSTIN, July 22. (AP)—An appeal to radio owners near voting places to "tune down" candidates' speeches so they cannot be heard within 100 feet of the polls tomorrow went out from Democratic executive committee headquarters here tonight.

Reports that some candidates planned last-minute radio talks soliciting votes brought this comment from Vann Kennedy, committee secretary:

"It would be the gracious and fair thing for people having radios within earshot of the voting places either to cut off or tune down candidates' speeches to comply with the spirit of the law prohibiting electioneering within 100 feet of the entrance of the places."

Statute Pointed Out

Kennedy, saying he was "no great shakes as a lawyer," pointed out a penal code statute providing a fine not exceeding $500 for anyone electioneering, loitering or creating a disturbance near the voting booths.

He said it was his opinion "wilful intent to electioneer" by radio would have to be proven in prosecuting an offender in such an instance for the originator of the electioneering might be hundreds of miles away in a broadcasting station.

The penal statute prohibiting electioneering near the polls was passed in 1905, long before the advent of radio.

Secretary Hull Now Serving As Government Ranking Head

WASHINGTON, July 22. (AP) — When is a federal official the ranking head of the United States government and is not the president? When he's Secretary Hull on a day like this.

The constitution says that if the president and vice president should die, the secretary of state succeeds them. But it doesn't say anything about vacations.

President Roosevelt is out in the Pacific, and Vice President Garner is fishing in Texas.

Secretary Hull is in the capital—and is the ranking government official, but he is not the acting president. There isn't any such job.

Plains Soil Is Said Favorable

The soil type, and the rainfall on the South Plains are favorable to the conservation of soil, Dr. Claude L. Fly, of Amarillo, associate soil scientist of region six of the Soil Conservation service, told a class enrolled for a soil erosion and conservation short course at Texas Technological college Friday afternoon.

The rainfall on the South Plains is more regular from year to year than in some parts of West Texas.

Data Is Presented

Dr. Fly presented data to show that yearly variations in rainfall range from slightly more than 11 inches to more than 25 inches on much of the cultivated area in region six. The years of low rainfall leave too little moisture to produce good cover crop on cultivated soils. These facts are leading to the recommendation on the part of the Soil Conservation service that much of the area be revegetated in permanent grasses to guard against serious wind erosion during the years of low rainfall, he said. The South Plains does not come within the area recommended for revegetation in permanent grasses, however.

The soil conservationist has many social and economic problems to solve as well as technical problems, since the persons living on the soil must continue to make a living while conserving the soil, Dr. Fly said.

Divided Into 10 Areas

This region has been divided into 10 areas, on basis of soil differences. Those soil differences and the rainfall characteristics and economic factors affecting crop production have resulted in a division of the region into problem areas.

The rainfall characterisitcs of much of the region are such that there is great difficulty in achieving complete control of certain areas. In many cases, the seasonal intensity is so great as to increase the cost of building effective moisture conserving structures.

Dr. Fly presented data showing that the greatest wind erosion areas fall between the rainfall belts of 18 to 21 inches annual precipitation. When there is precipitation below 18 inches, moisture is too slight for cultivation, and when it is above, the moisture is sufficient to allow adequate control of soil blowing.

Fred Sykes, regional agronomist, and T. A. Neubauer, assistant agricultural economist, both of region six, accompanied Dr. Fly to Lubbock and spoke to the class.

Reports Of Slaton Troops Discussed By Committee

SLATON, July 22. (Special) — Reports of troops 28 and 29 of Slaton were discussed here this afternoon in office of J. H. Brewer by the Boy Scout committee, with Webber Williams, chairman, in charge.

The committee voted to sponsor a tri-district camporal here in mid-August and decided to sponsor a colored encampment for troop 30 of Slaton at Camp Post August 15-17. Troop 30 is the only negro troop in the South Plains council. V. S. Gregg is scoutmaster.

Transportation will be furnished entries in the tri-district swimming meet at Lamesa August 8, the committee decided.

Few Texas Editors Have Placed Stamp Of Approval Upon State Candidates

Editorial Help To Come Later

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, July 22.—Few Texas editors have endorsed candidates in the hurly burly of the twelve-man governor's fight which goes to the voters for decision tomorrow.

Charles A. Guy, editor of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, in a statement today, appeared to voice the consensus of editorial sanctums: "The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal for the first time in 14 years has not endorsed a gubernatorial candidate in the present campaign," said Guy. "We will wait for the voters to narrow down the large field and decide between the overlapping platforms, and then endorse the candidate whose platform to us offers the best possibilities to all of Texas."

Some Endorse Candidates

Other important newspapers, however, have endorsed Ernest O. Thompson, William McCraw and W. Lee O'Daniel.

On the basis of Rio Grande Valley interests, Carl C. McGee, editor-in-chief of the Harlingen Valley Morning Star, the Brownsville Herald and the McAllen Monitor, has come out for the Fort Worth flour broker political flash.

"It looks as though W. Lee O'Daniel will be the high man in the runoff, some are even claiming no runoff will be necessary," said McGee. "The valley will need help from the governor. Let's give O'Daniel a vote which will gain his cooperation and good will in the solving of our valley problems."

O'Daniel said yesterday he didn't know how many newspapers had endorsed him but he thought there were many.

Times-Herald For McCraw

The important Dallas Times-Herald has championed William McCraw throughout the campaign. Three Texas newspapers of the Scripps-Howard chain, the Houston Press, the Fort Worth Press and the El Paso Herald-Post also have formally endorsed the attorney general for the governorship.

"McCraw has a progressive, liberal program," declared the Houston Press. "He has the brain to conceive and the experience to guide, and, most important, the courage to fight, the warmth of personality to persuade, the ability to get things done that will put his ideas into effect."

The Paris News, edited by A. G. (Pat) Mayse, yesterday re-affirmed the endorsement of McCraw as an experienced public servant. "As district attorney of Dallas county, as attorney general of the state of Texas, he has been able and efficient. The News believes he would be equally able and efficient as governor."

Challenges Governor

Staunchest of McCraw's editorial supporters has been fiery Longview Publisher Carl Estes, who yesterday challenged Governor Allred to a radio duel.

Ernest Thompson's candidacy has received the stamp of formal approval from the influential Fort Worth Star-Telegram, also from the Amarillo Globe-News, edited in Thompson's home city.

"Thompson has an excellent public and private record," declared the Globe-News, published by Gene Howe and edited by John McCarty.

"Every step in his climb upward has been one which he could be proud of from the time he sold newspapers on the streets of Amarillo until today. He is recognized as the most able and conservative candidate in the governor's race. His program and platform have drawn unstinted praise all over Texas."

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times, published in the rapidly developing Gulf coast city, supporting Thompson, said: "His platform is too well known to need further elaboration. It is simple, clear, direct and sensible. But it would mean nothing—as any platform means nothing—if its genuineness were not guaranteed by the well known and proved character of the man who stands upon it."

Neither the Houston Chronicle nor the Houston Post has endorsed candidates. Like the Dallas Morning News these newspapers have discussed the issues of the campaign and urged voters to make their choice at the polls.

Mother's In Jail; Father Dead

The six children of Mrs. Norah Boyce are shown standing outside the door of the jail in New Brunswick, N. The prosecution charged Mrs. Boyce decided to kill her husband after he mistreated her and the children.

Royal Visitors Returning Home

PARIS, July 22. (AP) — Now that royal company has gone home, realistic French diplomats tonight counted two prime results of the four-day exchange of amenities with Britain—both nurturing hopes for lasting peace in Europe.

1—France and Britain took advantage of the favorable occasion to encourage agreement with Germany to erase central European tension.

2—Anglo-French military plans for quick, effective cooperation just in case the German settlement doesn't pan out were further coordinated.

Sail From Calais

The state visit of King George VI and his Scottish queen ended at 5:35 p. m. when the royal party sailed from Calais. Thousands of spectators on nearby docks shouted "come back to see us again!"

The international situation as it shapes up after the visit will be reviewed by President Albert Lebrun and the cabinet tomorrow morning.

The feeling in governmental circles was that the visit was a decided success, particularly as a demonstration of Anglo-French unity and as a conteraction to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's visit to Premier Mussolini in May.

Dedicating a monument at Villers-Brettoneux to Australia's World war dead, the king today briefly reemphasized the Anglo-French bond —"ties that the passing years can never weaken."

Annual Convention Of Lions International Is Closed

OAKLAND, Calif., July 22. (AP)—Lions International closed its annual convention today by electing five directors and naming George R. Jordan of Dallas, Tex., third vice president. The Lions will meet next year in Pittsburgh, Pa.

The delegates previously nominated Walter F. Dexter, California state superintendent of public instruction, as international president, making his election today a mere formality. Similarly, Alexander T. Wells of New York City, and Karl M. Sorrick of Springport, Mich., were unopposed for the offices of first vice president and second vice president, respectively. Directors named today were W. H. Baxter, Seattle, Wash.; Millard B. Conlin, Daytona Beach, Fla.; Bert W. Kelley, Denver, Colo.; Dale Carroll, Keokuk, Iowa, and Henry T. Bowers, Toledo, Ohio.

Squeal Of Guinea Pig Is Gone From City Health Office; Dried Blood Used In Tests

Squeal of the guinea pig is heard no longer in the Lubbock city hall.

Medical science has revolutionized, so far as Lubbock is concerned, the methods of making Wasserman (syphilis) tests of food handlers, which is one of the major responsibilities of city laboratories.

Instead of using blood taken from the heart of a living guinea pig to make the test, the city buys dried blood which has been reduced to a powder, compressed and which is kept frozen until used.

Method Far Superior

The method, according to Miss Dora Snyder, city bacteriologist, is far superior to that previously used.

The Wasserman test is required of food handlers — waiters, cooks, and the like, by state law. The blood of a guinea pig is required in the making of such tests. So for years, the city bought guinea pigs as they were needed. Then, after long experiment, efforts were successful to raise the city's own guinea pigs. It thus became an almost daily task of technicians to remove from the hearts of the pig small quantities of blood. It was done without harm to the pigs — they even were said to live longer with the care they received than are those kept as pets. But their squeals as the operation was performed could be heard all over the city hall, where the laboratory is situated.

Only within the last year, Miss Snyder was advised, has the dried blood method been developed. The powder is grayish blue in color but when liquified returns to its original red. It is guaranteed for a year, she added, and makes possible a speedier and more satisfactory test.

Sale Of Lottery Tickets In New Mexico Being Halted

SANTA FE, N. M., July 22. (AP)—Governor Clyde Tingley halted today the sale of lottery tickets issued under the sponsorship of Mrs. Oliver Harriman as part of a plan to endow the Carrie Tingley crippled children's hospital at Hot Springs, N. M.

In a letter to the wealthy New York sweepstakes advocate, the governor asked that ticket sales be held up until "the program is thoroughly investigated as to its legality."

Three Building Permits Are Issued In City On Friday

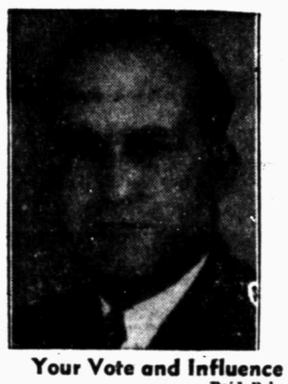

Three building permits, only one for an expenditure of more than $1,000, were issued Friday by the city building inspector, to boost totals by $1,482.

Largest of the permits was for a duplex at 2429 Twenty-fifth street to cost $1,200. W. E. White was named owner and contractor.

The week's figure, one of the smallest recently, stood at $32,712.60; the month's climbed to $203,347.85; and the year's amounted to $1,451,191.68.

Two small permits were for reroofing of residences at 1402 Avenue G and 2410 Twenty-second street.

In timbered regions where there are bob-whites, density of the birds is closely related to timber-cutting, game experts say.

Chicago Open Halted By Electrical Storm

CHICAGO, July 22. (AP)—After a severe electrical storm had raked the course and prevented many players from finishing play, the tournament committee threw out all scores of today's $5,000 Chicago Open golf championship round and voted to make the event a 54-hole test through tomorrow and Sunday.

Eighteen holes of qualifying play will be held tomorrow for all contestants, with the 48 low professionals and 24 low amateurs, plus ties, battling for the $1,500 top prize Sunday over the 36-hole route.

The rules committee was reluctant to take action which nullified the many fine scores turned in today, notably the 67 scored by E. J. Harrison of Chicago and the 69's turned in by Willie Goggin of San Bruno, Calif., and Bill Heinlein of Indianapolis.

The storm, however, flooded many greens and made play impossible for contestants still out.

Shooting 70 were such stars as Ralph Guldahl, National Open champion; Johnny Revolta, Horton Smith, John Bulla, all professionals, and Harry Todd, smooth swinging amateur from Dallas, whose par for the difficult No. 4 course was the best showing of the day by a simonpure entry.

Among the scores were 35-40—75 by Henry B. Ransom of Bryan, Tex., and 39-35—74 by Alen Spitzer of the University of Texas.

Walter Hagen, golf's colorful veteran campaigner, returned to major competition after a two year layoff by shooting a 77. Harry Cooper, the Chicopee Falls, Mass., consistent money winner, shot a two over par 74.

(Special To The Avalanche)

HOBBS, N. M., July 22.—Ralph Marshall put on a beautiful pitching exhibition here this afternoon, setting the Boosters down with no runs and no hits, Lubbock winning, 5-0. Tommy Fleming did another careful job tonight to give the Hubbers a clean sweep of the twin bill, 9 to 2.

Marshall was in rare form as he mowed the Hobbs batters down in mechanical fashion throughout the afternoon game. Al Carr stabbed the most likely looking ball hit off his delivery on a dead run in the ninth inning. Mal Stevens clouted his twenty-third home run of the season in the fourth.

Fleming Is Wild

It was the second hurling victory for the big Hubber righthander since joining the club Sunday.

Fleming was a bit wild in the aftermath, walking six batters, but he limited the Boosters to a quartet of blows, one a home run by Pitcher Russell in the third frame.

Most of the Lubbock show at bat in the night game was donated by Watty Watkins. The fleet centergardener poled a home run in the third with two men aboard, singled in the fifth to count two more, and drove in his sixth run in the sixth with a single.

Score Two In First

A walk and two errors gave Lubbock a head start in the opening inning tonight. Two runs were scored that frame.

Hitless until the third, the Hubbers counted three in the third on Watkins' roundtripper. In the fifth Johnny Taylor walked and Stevens rifled a single to left, Bonk letting the ball go through his legs as Taylor took third and Stevens second. Watkins scored them both with a hit.

Four hits in the sixth gave the Hubbers their final tallies.

Rain Slows Up City Net Tournament

Only eight matches had been unreeled Friday night in the city tennis championship tournament, rain having forced inactivity almost throughout the week.

Dub Rushing and J. Beene advanced to the semi-finals with victories Friday afternoon. Finals are slated Sunday.

Rushing disposed of Newt Walton in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2, and Beene eliminated Bill Pearce, 6-2, 6-4. Charles Roberts lost to Rushing in the opening round. Walton defeated C. A. Begey to enter the quarterfinals. Beene had beaten Maurice Powell and Pearce beat Craig Davidson.

One doubles match has been played, with Wilson Chapman and Rushing beating Bob Maxwell and Paul Love, 6-2, 6-2.

Seeded Netters Lose In Brookline Tilts

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 22. (AP)—Wide holes were shot in the seeded list of the Longwood Bowl tennis tournament today when rain, for the fifth consecutive day, forced the men's field to shuttle between two widely separated covered courts to reduce itself to the quarterfinals.

Top-seeded Wilmer Alison, of Austin, Texas, last year's winner, never at his best indoors, had trouble defeating a light-regarded opponent, Henry Kulick of Salem, 6-4, 7-5, in the second round, and then defaulted his third-round match to Chester Murphy of Chicago when he learned he would have to play another indoors match.

Charles Hare, the former British Davis Cup player, eliminated sixth-seeded Gardner Mulloy of Miami, Elwood Cooke, Portland, Ore., registered a surprising victory over eighth-seeded Bobby Martin, of Oakland, Cal.

The outstanding favorite, Bobby Riggs, the nation's No. 2 player, now residing in Chicago, defeated Archie Henderson, rangy Chapel Hill, N. C., collegian.

Hubbers Move To Wink For Games Tonight And Sunday

WINK, July 22. (Special)—Kept off Spudder field two successive days by rain, Wink prepared tonight to entertain the league pacing Lubbock Hubbers in two games Saturday night and Sunday.

Regularly scheduled games with Big Spring Thursday night and tonight were postponed.

The Spudders are in fourth place, eight and a half games removed from the lead. Jodie Tate, Wink pilot, indicated that the two-day respite was welcomed by his hurling corps. Manager Hack Miller is expected to use either Marvin Gramly or Charlie Bryan in the first contest here Saturday night.

The Russian language is spoken by about 110,000,000 in other countries.

Texas Leaguers Set For Dream Game Tonight

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 22. — North clashes with South in the Texas league's own civil war here tomorrow night when baseball teams chosen from clubs on opposite sides of the loop collide in the third annual all-star contest.

League fans picked the teams. Stars from the Northern clubs of Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Fort Worth and Dallas will be directed on the field by Manager Bruce Connatser of Tulsa's league-leading Oilers. Skipper Al Vincent of Beaumont will manage the Southern team, selected from San Antonio, Beaumont, Houston and Shreveport.

The rival managers have announced that Lefty Max Thomas, Tulsa's southpaw ace, and Bill Trotter, San Antonio right-hander, will be the opposing hurlers when the "dream game" opens.

Thomas leads the league in the number of games won, with 18, and has lost 7. Trotter has pitched his way to 15 victories and has only four defeats.

Probable batting orders:

NORTH

Jim Levey, Dallas, shortstop.
Ivan Crawford, Tulsa, second base.
Hubert Shelley, Oklahoma City, center field.
Stan Schino, Tulsa, right field.
Lee Stebbins, Fort Worth, first base.
Grey Clarke, Dallas, third base.
Vern Mackie, Fort Worth, catcher.
Max Thomas, Tulsa, pitcher.

SOUTH

Joe Valenti, Shreveport, third base.
Joe Vitter, Shreveport, second base.
Harold Epps, Houston, center field.
Pete Fleming, Shreveport, right field.
Les Fleming, Beaumont, first base.
Sig Gryska, San Antonio, shortstop.
Walter Stephenson, Shreveport, catcher.
Bill Trotter, San Antonio, pitcher.

Galento Felled By Pneumonia

ORANGE, N. J., July 22. (AP)—Tony Galento, No. 1 heavyweight challenger, was rushed to Orange Memorial hospital tonight seriously ill with pneumonia, forcing indefinite postponement of his scheduled 15-round boxing bout in Philadelphia Tuesday night with John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight champion.

Joe Mendel, a press representative for Manager Joe Jacobs, said Galento's temperature was 104 2-5. Mendel said Herman Taylor, promoter of the fight who came here with Pennsylvania athletic officials when notified of Galento's condition, announced the postponement.

Orange Memorial hospital said Galento entered there shortly before 6 p. m. (CST).

Galento completed heavy workouts yesterday, and planned to take it easy over the weekend for what he regarded the biggest fight of his career.

He left his training camp at Summit late yesterday for his home here, and felt the first sign of illness about 7 o'clock last night.

Big Spring, Angelo Youths Advance In Junior Event

Son Has Learned His 'Fade-Away', Says Old-Time Major League Hurling Star

By PAUL SIMMONS
AP Feature Service Writer

ATLANTA, July 22.—"They called me 'Fade-Away Jim,'" he said, the expression on his weather-beaten face softening. "Some called me 'Old Sarge,' but I liked the other better."

Baseball had lost track of the old twirling ace—Jim Bagby's 48 now—until the opening day when his son, Jim, jr., pitched for Boston.

Jim, jr., had never seen a major league game. Then on opening day he was tossed in by the Red Sox against the Yankees—and he won!

Old Jim is in the laundry business here. He rarely finds time for baseball now, this strong-armed ace who won 31 games in 1920, pitched Cleveland into the World Series and knocked a home run to help the Indians win their only series.

Had Pitching Magic

Jim's eyes twinkle as he recalls those years from 1915 to 1921 when his pitching magic all but drove batsmen wild:

"Babe Ruth has cussed me until he was blue in the face. He'd swing at my pitches just like the rest—swing like a wild man. He'd whiff out, and his bat would wind up between his knees."

That fade-away was Jim's own. "I showed a hundred pitchers how to throw it, but none of them ever got it, unless it was Herb Pennock, or maybe Sam Jones, or—"

Old Jim's eyes grew dreamy.

"—Or," he continued, "my son, Jim, jr.—he got a good start as a rookie with the Boston Red Sox.

"I told him how to throw it, how to turn it loose and how to swing his arm. He's working on it but he hasn't got it perfect yet. If he ever does, it will help make him one of the game's greatest."

Fade-Away Not A Screwball

Jim paused. He had a word for the records. His fade-away is not the same thing as the modern screwball—it is five times more effective, he asserts.

"It's a slow ball gradually fading to the side," he says. "You swing at something and it's not there.

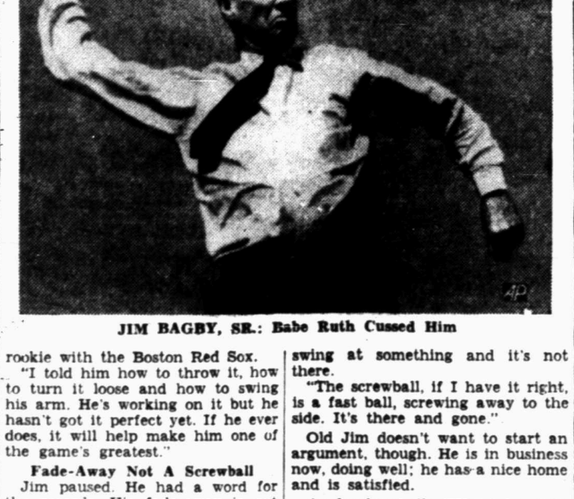

"The screwball, if I have it right, is a fast ball, screwing away to the side. It's there and gone."

Old Jim doesn't want to start an argument, though. He is in business now, doing well; he has a nice home and is satisfied.

As for baseball: "Well," he says, "I'm leaving it to Jim, jr. The boy is going somewhere.

"And," he adds thoughtfully, "I never tried to teach him much about baseball. I just told him about the fade-away and gave him some points on such things as control . . . body and shoulder movement . . . turning the ball loose . . . fielding his position . . . watching the man on first . . . and I told him not to let anybody change his pitching style.

"I couldn't make a baseball player out of him. He had to have it in him—and it's coming out. I'm proud of him."

Katherine Rawls Thompson Betters Pair Of Records In Defense Of National Swim Title

(By The Associated Press)

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. July 22.—Bettering two world's records in successful defense of the title, Katherine Rawls Thompson of Florida dominated today's program of opening events in the women's national outdoor swimming and diving meet here.

Youthful Marjorie Gesting of Los Angeles thrilled the 1200 spectators by retaining her national three-meter springboard diving crown, and Virginia Hopkins, also of Los Angeles, upset champion Elizabeth Ryan of New York in the 100-meter swim.

But it was newly-married Katy, swimming for the Miami Beach Bath club, who stole the show. She ran away with the 300-meter medley, outdistancing Helen Rains of New York by 25 feet in the record time of 4:33.1.

She later won the mile free style in 23 minutes, 47.4 seconds. The old world record, set in 1936, in New York by Lenore Kight Wingard, was 24 mins., 7.2 seconds.

Stagehand And Menow Meet In Featured Race Today

CHICAGO, July 22. (AP) — The conquerors of Seabiscuit and War Admiral—Stagehand and Menow—meet tomorrow in the tenth renewal of the $30,000 added classic at Arlington park in what may develop into nothing more than a two-horse race.

No more than eight, probably six, will accept the issue in the mile and a quarter test. With Stagehand and his stable mate, The Chief, the prospective field includes Hal Price Headley's Menow; Bull Lea, entry of Warren Wright of Chicago; Townsend B. Martin's Cravat; Nedayr, owned by William Sharpe Kilmer; Frank Seremba's Fairfax, and Blind Eagle, from the stables of Mrs. Emil Denemark of Chicago. It is one of the smallest classic fields in history.

The letter A has always stood at the head of the alphabet.

M. Aura Enters Golf's Hall Of Fame—Almost—But Ball Enters The Wrong Hole

M. Aura of "cotton row" entered the hall of fame in the golfing world Friday . . . almost.

Playing with plenty of witnesses—just a sixsome composed of Jack Humphreys, A. Farris, D. Prince, Bob Stephenson and Francis Finberg — Aura drove from No. 18 tee at Lubbock Country club, and after almost hitting George Benson and Messrs. Duffy, sr. and jr., on No. 16 green, saw his ball hole out in one on No. 16.

The scourging sixsome insisted that Aura play the ball from the hole, but the greens committee overruled them.

It was just another snappy seven for Aura on the hole.

Bakers, Ward Win By Big Margins

Good Eats bakery and Montgomery Ward softball teams entered wins on the books Friday afternoon, each by top-heavy scores.

The Bakers overwhelmed McIlhaney, 15 to 7, in an American loop game at 23rd St. and Ave. K. Wright hurled for the winners and L. Deering tossed for the creamery ten.

Varsity bookstore dropped a 17-4 contest to Ward in the National league at the Avenue H diamond. Norvel Stapp cracked three homers for the victors.

Good Eats was declared winner by forfeit of a game Monday for which Lubbock Poultry and Egg failed to appear.

More Than 450 Seek Offices

by Vaughn Wilson, former county attorney.

In the 106th district, Louis B. Reed, Lamesa, judge by appointment after the death of Judge Gordon B. McGuire of Lamesa, is opposed by W. W. Price of Brownfield, who was Judge McGuire's opponent in his last race. Garza, Lynn, Terry, Yoakum, Gaines and Dawson counties comprise this district.

In the 110th district, Judge A. B. Chapman of Spur, also a judge by appointment, is opposed by former Judge Kenneth Bain of Floydada. For district attorney, John Hamilton of Matador is opposed by Winifred F. Newsome of Floydada. Dickens, Floyd, Briscoe and Motley counties are in this district.

Three Are In Race

The 42nd district, south of the 106th, including Borden, Scurry, Nolan and Mitchell among others, sees G. W. Outlaw of Sweetwater, district attorney, opposed by Zollie C. Steakley of Colorado and Truett Barber of Sweetwater.

In the county races are some interesting figures.

Bailey county, for example, has 15 candidates for 9 offices, with only two contests, both for commissioner places.

Borden county has 10 candidates for 7 places, with three contests, one for sheriff, tax collector and assessor and two for commissioner.

Castro county has 17 candidates for nine posts; four candidates are unopposed.

Only One Unopposed

In Cochran county there are 27 candidates for 9 posts, with but one candidate unopposed.

Crosby has 18 candidates for 12 places, eight of them unopposed.

Dawson's 12 posts have 30 candidates, only two candidates being without opposition.

Dickens has 11 places to be filled, with 32 seeking jobs. Five men do not have an opponent.

Twenty three seek 12 Floyd county places, with five unopposed. The county chairman is likewise unopposed.

The nine Gaines county posts have 21 aspirants. Only three, including two commissioners, are unopposed. The county chairman is unopposed.

Twenty one also seek 10 Garza places. Two candidates do not have an opponent.

Thirty In Hale County

Thirty seek 12 Hale county places; three of them unopposed. The county chairman also is without opposition.

Two out of the 11 places in Hockley county have but one candidate each. There are 29 seeking places.

Lamb county has three unopposed candidates among 12 places. There are 28 who seek election.

Lubbock leads in number of candidates. Only one of the 12 places is without a race. There are 42 in all seeking election.

Four Lynn candidates out of 26 are unopposed, including two commissioners.

In Motley county three commissioners and the district-county clerk have opponents. Sixteen in all seek places.

Scurry Has 28

Scurry county has 28 candidates for 12 places; three of them are without opposition.

Terry county has 26 seeking 11 places, with five unopposed.

Yoakum has only two candidates unopposed out of 11, with 19 seeking places.

Terry county has the only race for county chairman. There are 46 persons seeking election as justice of the peace in 13 counties, with two of them without opposition. Thirty seven in 12 counties would be constables, two without opposition.

Summary Is Shown

Summary shows 203 are candidates for 76 places as commissioners; 24 for county attorney; 35 for county treasurer; 24 for county judge; 14 for judge and ex-officio county superintendent; 24 for county superintendent; 19 for district court clerk; 20 for county clerk and 17 for the combined offices; 26 would be sheriff; as many more sheriff and tax assessor and collector and 11 would be assessor-collector.

In seven counties the offices of judge and county superintendent are combined; in 11 counties the jobs of county and district clerks are separate and in eight others they are combined; in 8 counties the sheriff's post is one office and in 11 the posts of sheriff and collector are combined. Likewise eight counties have a separate man for assessor and collector.

All Candidates

per cent of the voting strength.

Ernest O. Thompson asserted he was "supremely confident of victory." He said he was "being deluged with reports from almost every county assuring me that I will most certainly lead the ticket. . . . Ours has been a clean campaign devoid of mud slinging and personalities."

W. Lee O'Daniel said "throughout the entire campaign I have consistently refused to assume that I will be governor. The other candidates boldly state they will be governor, saying 'it's in the bag.' They are professional politicians and deal in theory. I am a business man and deal in facts; therefore, I make no predictions. However, many seasoned political observers tell me that we will get from 60 to 70 per cent of the vote and the hundreds of straw votes wired us from all over the state tally with their prediction."

Fourteen Persons Dead As Polish Air Liner Crashes

BUCHAREST, July 22. (AP)—Fourteen persons were killed today when a Polish air liner crashed near the Polish-Rumanian border.

The victims included Jonez Fernik, Rumanian pilot who had spent several years in the United States, and an unidentified Japanese captain.

The plane was carrying ten passengers and a crew of four.

First Trailer Family Enjoys Life Along Nation's Dusty Highways; Wouldn't Trade With Anybody

For an endorsement of gypsy life in a trailer take a look at the happy faces of the Vale kids, pictured above as they peer from the shower in the home-on-wheels. At the top are 5-year-old Richard, left, and 6-year-old Dixie Jean, born at hospitals along the route. The lower two are 18-month-old Bill, left, and 2-year-old Betty Lou, both born in the trailer.

(By NEA Service)

Somewhere in the United States today—perhaps along a dusty rural trail in the corn belt, perhaps by a shaded mountain brook—the Richard F. Vale family is camping.

They've pulled off the highway and set up a temporary home in their 40-foot trailer unit. The view out the living room window is a different one, probably, than it was yesterday.

Off In A Week

And, wherever the site, the Vales, won't be there long. If they follow their custom, they'll be off in a week.

You can lay the great mass of trailer traffic which now clogs our concrete road, right on the Vale doorstep—if you can catch up with it. For the Vales are America's first trailer family. Two of the children were born in the trailer, the other two during brief stops at hospitals.

In 1929, the family, struck by "nomaditis," tired of waiting for the world to come to them. Equipping themselves with a modern prototype of the covered wagon, they hitched it to their car, bid the home town of Springfield, Mo., a farewell, and went out to have a look at the world.

Their Constant Home

Since that day they have lived in the trailer constantly, traveling 120,000 miles. They have been in every state except Connecticut. And, who knows, maybe they're Connecticut-bound now.

It's a comfortable life. A regular income precludes the necessity of having to work their way across the country. Modern conveniences, including a radio and electric lighting generated by domestic motors, take away any "tent life" stigma.

"Why, we wouldn't trade places with anybody," says Vale.

The entire car-and-trailer unit in which the Vale family has traveled since 1929 is shown in the top photo. The trailer itself is 29 feet long and 7 1-2 feet wide. In the lower photo, Mr. and Mrs. Vale demonstrate that the compact kitchen, furnished with a gasoline stove and a washing machine, makes just as good a laundry as it does a cookery.

Local Balloting

facilitate quick returns, and outlined voting places.

So, today it's up to the voters. The candidates had done all the talking thus far, but the balance of power rests with the people and estimates place the response as high.

About 10,000 Eligible

H. B. Bryan, county tax assessor-collector, had said earlier Friday enough poll taxes had been paid that, coupled with new and permanent exemptions, approximately 10,000 persons could vote.

Because of lively issues in the gubernatorial contest it was believed there would be a heavier balloting this year than earlier had been expected. Interest had been whetted by infusion of hillbilly music, juggling acts and other off-brand political chicanery in that race.

To Canvass Returns

By statute, the executive committee will meet next Saturday for purpose of canvassing returns from the primary election and making plans for the runoff. Final statements on first primary campaign expenses must be made Monday to Ed D. Allen, county clerk.

Where to vote.

The southwest corner of the court house for those in precinct 1; the southeast corner of the court house for those in precinct 2; the northeast corner of the court house for those in precinct 3; the northwest corner of the court house for those in precinct 4; Dupre school for those of precinct 5; Junior High school for those in precinct 6; K. Carter school for those in precinct 7; Slaton City hall for those in precincts 8, 9, and 10; Roosevelt school for those in precinct 11; Idalou for those in precinct 12; Becton for those in precinct 13; New Deal for those in precinct 14; Shallowater for those in precinct 15; Frenship school for those in precinct 16; Cooper school for those in precinct 17, and Posey for those in precinct 18.

have been working for the very things I advocate tonight, improvements in government which the people of Texas have demonstrated they want, not one of the other candidates left his private enterprise or his giving mountain music to those in distress to lend their leadership when it was so badly needed."

A little later he dealt a solo thrust at O'Daniel.

Takes Crack At Foe

"All of you have participated at some time or other in a home talent play or similar affair that required a great deal of work," he suggested. "The people of Texas are now faced with the proposition of seeing someone who has never attended a rehearsal come in and want to play the leading part on the night of the performance."

One of the greatest bursts of applause received by the speaker occurred when he resumed discussion of his platform and said, "I am one of those who believe in restoration of old age pension and liquor control to the individual cities and counties."

Abolish Liquor Board

He proposed to abolish the state liquor board and use the money it required as an addition to the "old folks' fund." In like manner he advocated abolition of the old age pension set-up as it now exists in Texas. "If we did that and allowed the county judges and commissioners to administer the funds, we could add an entire million dollars to the pension fund itself."

"There are more than a hundred duplicated departments and agencies in the state government," he declared, and added, "many of them are not audited and checked as they should be."

Don't Aid Industry

State trucking laws, he said, discriminate against one industry in favor of another and yet don't aid the industry they're designed to help.

As a prelude to Hunter's campaign valedictory, his wife was presented to the crowd by Mrs. Franklin Smith, Fort Worth P.-T. A. worker.

Cheating Death In The Mountains

Painfully threading their way downward through jagged rock chimneys like the one seen above, rescuers are shown as they brought Roger Carney to safety from the 10,000-foot top of Mt. Olympus near Salt Lake City, Utah. Carney had fallen into a 15-foot ravine and lay 18 hours with a compound fracture of the lower leg before rescuers found him. Then they rigged the cradle-like stretcher shown above and laboriously carried Carney downward, sharing in shifts the back-breaking and nerve-trying race against time and imminent danger of infection.

Boys Go On Spending Spree But With Another's Money

RICHMOND, Va. July 22. (AP)—Scattering coins like seeds over a vacant field must be a lot of fun—with somebody else's money.

At any rate, it was the climaxing feature of a spending spree by three small boys who found $90 in cash and $100 in checks. They started out, police said, riding street cars, but soon abandoned that for taxi-cab riding and ten-cent store shopping.

After Detective Sergeants W. J. Anthony and James Inman, jr. finally caught up with the boys the officers spent some two hours recovering the scattered coins. They retrieved all of the checks and $70 of the $90 cash which the Rev. William A. O'Hara said he had absent-mindedly left in a satchel on the sidewalk in driving off in his car.

Member Of CIO Union Given Jail Term Of Three Days

NEWTON, Ia., July 22. (AP)—A military commission tonight sentenced Kenneth Lane, member of the Maytag CIO union, to three days in jail after finding him guilty of calling a member of the back-to-work movement "scab" and "rat" on the public square this afternoon.

Fifteen witnesses testified before the commission today as it continued its inquiry into street fighting between union strikers and back-to-workers at the strikelocked washing machine plant Wednesday morning.

Man Held For Investigation Of Assault On Small Girl

A 26-year-old man who said he was a teacher was arrested Friday by police for investigation into complaints he committed an aggravated assault on a small girl at Seventh street park.

The man was arrested by Ralph Goldwater and Aubrey Fawver of the police department at noon and later was transferred to the county jail pending further investigation. He probably will be charged with aggravated assault today, it was indicated officially.

Authorities here had received several previous reports the suspect had been molesting small girls at the park. He told officers he was here going to school, but officers said they were unable to find where he was enrolled in a college.

The girl was not seriously injured.

Suspicion, Hatred And Distrust Is Charged To Dr. Morgan

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 22 (AP)—TVA Director David E. Lilienthal testified today "unreasoning suspicion, hatred and distrust" motivated Dr. Arthur E. Morgan's attack on administration of the Tennessee valley authority.

Before a congressional investigation committee, Lilienthal assailed the ousted TVA chairman for a "reckless campaign of defamation," and denied trying to suppress records by deleting statements from board minutes.

Tuesday when they got out to pursue their exploration on foot.

Officers said they were working on an open theory but were inclined to the belief the women either had met with foul play, had fallen into one of the deep crevices of the ice caves, or had been lost in the jagged, all but inaccessible lava formations nearby.

The disappearance in some aspects recalled the mystery slayings last March of Mrs. W. G. Frome and her daughter Nancy, near Balmorhea, Tex., and the case of Mr. and Mrs. George Lorius and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer, missing in New Mexico since May, 1935.

The bullet-ridden and tortured bodies of Mrs. Frome and her daughter, of Berkeley, Calif., were found three days after their abandoned automobile was discovered. The Lorius-Heberer party, of Illinois, was not seen after leaving Vaughn, N. M. Their charred personal effects were found later near Albuquerque and their automobile, abandoned in Dallas, Tex.

Hundreds Flee Texas Floods

the business section and several residential areas.

Water System Out

The water system was out of commission, the pumping plant being under water.

Local arrangements were made to house refugees temporarily in the courthouse and in churches.

Some homes on the north side were almost completely submerged. The fair grounds also were inundated.

An early estimate of damage already done ranged from $200,000 to $300,000.

No estimate, however, could be made immediately of damage to the countryside, many sections of which could be reached only by boat.

Other Towns Threatened

Three other towns in the picturesque sheep country; Brady, Menard and Llano, also were threatened with disaster from the heavy rains which brought smiles to ranchers the first part of the week.

Brady, where a small creek threatened to inundate the business section yesterday, early today went on a fresh rampage and climbed to within nine inches of yesterday's high mark, less than a foot and half from the top of a protection levee, then receded.

Merchants had prepared to lift their goods to top shelves for the second time.

Apprehension Caused

At Llano, about 100 miles southeast of Brady and 50 miles south of San Saba, the Llano river caused some apprehension as the stream went on a 20-foot rise a few miles upstream from that place. The river was rising slowly at Llano.

The San Saba also inundated a part of Menard. The dispatcher for the West Texas Utilities company reported the main street was a running stream and low residential areas were evacuated. The substation of the utilities company was waist deep in water, the dispatcher reported.

The river at Menard was steady at about 15 feet. Late in the evening the rain slackened some, but skies were heavy.

Houses Washed Away

The stage of the stream at one time reached 21 feet, within 4 inches of the high mark of the past 41 years. A few houses were washed away, and main street was under water. Merchants barricaded the entrances of their stores.

Grocers were rushed as citizens bought several days' supplies.

Democratic county chairmen were having trouble delivering election supplies to eight rural polling places.

The state public safety department dispatched 10 additional patrolmen to San Saba and planned to send a truck-mounted emergency short wave broadcasting station to establish outside communication if necessary.

Llano At Standstill

At Llano late today the Llano river was at a 12-foot stage. It was at a standstill after reaching a 20-foot crest at Castell.

San Saba, a town of 2,700, in 1922 suffered flood disaster when the San Saba reached its record high of 42 feet.

Many highways in the stricken area were impassable. Only one highway remained open out of San Saba, that to Llano.

The bridge spanning the San Saba between Brady and Voca, erected a quarter of century ago, went out this afternoon. A bridge approach on highway 9 between Brady and Melvin also was out, and all traffic between Brady and San Angelo was routed through Coleman.

Travel was stopped between Brady and Mason on highway 9 due to water at Camp Air, midway between the towns.

to the state.

He did not go into detail but declared the reports were "so alarming and so true" they would rock the foundations of society if revealed.

Stuff To Be Stopped

"After the election if I am going to be governor," he said, "this stuff shall be stopped."

O'Daniel delivered his final outdoor speech before the election in Kilgore. Earlier in the day he made an address at Mineola, following with a speech in Gilmer.

"It looks like a landslide," he said.

At the same time, he reiterated an appeal that persons who were considering giving "courtesy votes for candidates they knew had no chance of election, intending to vote for O'Daniel in runoff consider further that there might not be a second primary.

Nation's Eyes On Texas

"The eyes of the nation were turned on Texas," he said. In fact, he said the nation was laughing at the discomfiture of the "professional politicians."

He said the situation was comparable with one where a tiny sideshow had drawn all the attention and the crowd from a three-ring circus.

He said if elected his "burning desire would be to set a record for management of the state's affairs that all citizens will be proud of."

He said he had been talking about bringing factories to Texas for 10 years and finally other candidates had adopted the idea.

"Some of them," he said, "adopted nearly everything in my platform except the ten commandments."

O'Daniel planned a radio address tomorrow.

Back Of Today's Election

FEW of those who go to the polls in today's Democratic primary will do so with any conscious feeling that they are exercising a privilege of which they should be proud and for which they should feel grateful.

They accept matter of factly as the right of free men that they should go to the polls; that they should cast their ballot for whomever they please without dictation from any source; that, if he desires it, the secret shall be the voter's as to how his ballot was marked; that he shall not be penalized in slightest degree, regardless how he may vote; and that candidates receiving majorities shall be winners. The American citizen never has known anything save those rights. He can imagine nothing else.

Yet he knows that the United States is one of the very few lands where secrecy and sanctity of the ballot continue realities. He knows that in many of the dictator-ridden nations, the "citizen" who actually is a slave has to go to the polls and has to mark his ballot as he is told, or suffer very serious consequences. Our citizens know from common-sense reasoning that those compulsions are the only possible explanations for the immense outpourings of voters and for the incredible majorities which dictators are pleased to offer as evidence of vindications of their policies.

It, of course, will be exercising without question a great American right if the qualified citizen chooses to remain at home today. But in that attitude he will be unwise because the very fact of exercising his right of ballot tends to guarantee it forever to him and those who are to come. But even without that consideration and without consideration of the fact that by voting he is attempting to do his part for the cause of his own good government, it would seem that the pride of citizenship and the consciousness of obligation and responsibility as a citizen would compel him to exercise the right of ballot.

Discourtesy At Columbia U.

THE hissing of a speaker by some of the members of an audience of teachers at Columbia university a few nights ago was somewhat surprising. But it was not surprising that the first to criticize the discourtesy should be the teachers themselves.

Speaker on the occasion was Daniel J. Doherty who, as national commander of the American Legion, was entitled to courteous hearing, regardless what he might say. The hisses were provoked when he lambasted what he termed "red professors" and seemingly included too many teachers within that category.

Teachers, of course, have to listen to a lot of criticism, much of it petty and unjust. But they are the first to decry the activities of "reds" among them, because in overwhelming proportion they represent the very highest standard of American patriotism.

Thus it goes without saying that their overwhelming sentiment was correctly expressed by their leader who voiced his contempt of those who had the discourtesy to hiss.

With Our Contemporaries

"We note where people in some of the other 47 states are grumbling about shortage of food," Mrs.-Oran McClure notes in the Texas Spur. We suppose this is simply an optimistic bunch in our territory: we aren't grumbling—and we don't have anything to eat but hot biscuits, fried chicken, butter, eggs, only 25 or 30 varieties of vegetables, a few kinds of preserves and jellies, a little syrup, ham only two or three times a day and we're limited on milk to only six or seven glasses a day."

"I read a little ditty the other day like this: 'Don't ever put anything in hour house that isn't either useful or beautiful," Jeane Suits chatters in the Lockney Beacon.

"The other day we got to see something we've always hoped some day we'd see—that is, a farm house that rivals any town house on any score, from architecture to decoration," Jamie McNeill Hyatt says in the Ralls Banner. "The Con Parrishes just moved into it the other day."

The One-Minute Sermon

The tongue of the just is as choice silver: the heart of the wicked is little worth.

The lips of the righteous feed many: but fools die for want of wisdom.

The Story So Far

Under the name of Abe Streeter, "Blur" Ankrom accepts a job at the Trone's Rafter T after rescuing Lee Trone from a band of thugs. She has concealed the adventure from her father, and tells him that Ankrom knows friends of theirs, the Strutherses. Then she hears the Strutherses are coming for a visit.

Chapter 5

'Lies Are Dangerous'

Ankrom looked up and found Lee Trone's glance upon him. The laughter now had left her eyes and in its stead he saw a tiny cloud. As plainly as though she had spoken aloud, he realized that she was now recalling the lie in which she had involved him. Malicious satisfaction stirred him as he saw the possibilities of the situation were coming home to her.

He said goodnight to her father and with a nod to her passed down the hall. She caught up with him among the shadows of the veranda and placed a hand upon his arm.

"Abe! What will I do? Those people are coming here tomorrow."

"Didn't you think they might when you told your Dad I was a friend of theirs?"

"Of course not! I had no idea they were coming." She bit her lip in vexation. "This is not going to be exactly comfortable for any of us."

"I expect not. I shouldn't wonder but we'll manage to live through it, though." The mockery in his voice was plain. "Why didn't you tell your Dad about that affair in Peso Pinto? Lies are dangerous things—especially when they come home to roost.

"But I never dreamed . . . I couldn't have told Dad about that business in town. You don't understand. He has troubles enough of his own without my bringing him any of mine."

"Well," he said roughly, "I might be able to understand better if you gave me a hint as what this is all about. You can't expect me to be much help while I'm goin' it blind."

He could see the vague outline of her face among the shadows and knew that she was trying to read his expression; knew, too, that she could not. Had it been daylight now she still would have been unable to come to any conclusion by the sight of his features, for his face was inscrutable.

'A Volcano'

"You—you don't understand," she began when he cut in.

"You said that before. We're wastin' good time. I'll say goodnight to you, ma'am."

Her grip tightened on his arm and stopped him. "I'll trust you, Abe," her voice came huskily. "Let's get in the car. You can drive it into the stable. We can talk there without anyone seeing us."

He helped her into the machine, climbed in behind the wheel and drove the car into the stable. He shut off the motor and the lights. "Well?" he said, a perverse mood upon him. "Let's hear the yarn."

Her breath was indrawn sharply. He felt a twinge of conscience. "I'm sorry—"

But she cut him off: "I know—you think I'm a little liar! Go on and say it!"

He could not see her face in this darkness, but he knew that she was mad—mad at herself for the position into which she had lied them both, and mad at him for taunting her. He changed the subject:

"Are these troubles of your Dad's connected with the ranch?"

"I think so."

"Don't you know?"

"I'm not sure. He never confides in me. These last few months he's become very reticent. He's grown moody. It's—it's so difficult to explain; it's nothing you can put your finger on, but there's a feeling about this place that never used to be here. It's like sitting on a volcano and waiting for it to erupt."

A silence fell between them. "Perhaps," Ankrom suggested, "it's money matters that's botherin' him. This has been a tough year, water holes dryin' up, springs peterin' out, and grass burned to a crisp. You're got better water here than your neighbors, I expect. They might let their resentment spur 'em into somethin' that would end in powder smoke. No tellin' what a fella'll do when he sees his cow-brutes droppin' like flies. Maybe your Dad's sort of anticipatin' what might start to pop round here if we don't get some rain dang soon."

'It's Uncanny!'

"I don't think that is it," she said slowly. "It might aggravate the trouble, like this rustling that's been going on—we seem to be losing more than anyone else. But Dad's been acting odd for months. This rustling is osmething new around here. One night the boys notice a little tad of critters in a certain spot—say twenty or thirty prime beeves. Next morning those critters have disappeared—vanished. The range boss says there's not a sign to show where they went or how. It's uncanny!"

"And you think maybe this Hackett gent might be sort of . . . on the make?"

"I—I don't know what to think, Abe. It seems so fantastic to connect him with this rustling or with this other thing that's been bothering Dad. Hackett's been with us over two years. Dad swears by him—and at him, sometimes. He has been trying all sorts of things in an effort to trap these cattle thieves. Don't you think perhaps you're letting your personal feelings toward Hackett warp your judgment of the man? After all, you don't really know him. You two seem to have taken a dislike to each other on sight. I was watching that scene before the bunkhouse this evening. I couldn't catch much of the conversation. What was it about? What started it?"

"Well, I expect maybe there wasn't any start to it, ma'am. We just sort of fell out before we'd time to get acquainted. Hackett sort of made it plain he wasn't aimin' to hire any help. He was mad mainly I reckon because I didn't pay much attention to him. He's the sort of gent that has to have attention, if you get what I mean. He wasn't built for the background."

"Well," Lee decided, "he certainly wasn't cut out to be a cow thief, either. He's much too smart—"

Ankrom chuckled. "Smart, ma'am? Shucks, I'd say he was not so much smart as foxy. Cunning. I'd say he even had a heavy leanin' toward the coyote side."

Treads Are Being Laid On Stairways Of New Library

Treads are being laid on stairways of the new library building at Texas Technological college and the structure will be completed about the middle of the first week in August, said F. D. McGlinchey, who has charge of the office at the construction scene.

Delay in shipment of the stairway treads had postponed completion of the structure.

Approximately one and one-half months will intervene between completion of the building and opening of the fall semester at the college. Books and equipment in the library now in use are to be moved between close of the summer session and opening of the fall session. Many books stored in the basement of the administration building may be moved earlier.

SEVERAL ARE KILLED

JERUSALEM, July 22. (AP)—Three Jews and eight Arabs were killed and five Jewish workers were wounded during a series of clashes in widely separated districts today.

A Jew was killed in ambush on the Jerusalem-Jaffa main highway. The eight Arabs were killed by police and troops pursuing a band which attacked a colony near Haifa yesterday.

CAN'T EARN ENOUGH

LOS ANGELES, July 22. (AP)—The first of the movie Tarzans, Elmo Lincoln, declared today he could not earn enough in WPA work to support his wife and 2-year-old daughter, since their estrangement.

Lincoln, whose real name is Otto E. Linkenhelt, denied charges of cruelty in his wife's divorce suit.

Of the 167,935,000 acres comprising the land area of Texas, about one-fifth is covered with forest growth.

During a June storm, hailstones three inches in circumference fell near Hobbs, N. M., and killed young cattle and sheep.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

THE national health program that will further endear President Roosevelt to the underdoggers was quietly advanced at the Roche-Parran conference recently held at the capital. Fundamental scheme is to enlist all government agencies in supplying cut rate costs for doctors, hospital care, medicine.

Most acute problem involves low income people living in rural areas and impoverished sections of the cities, where disease takes a terrific toll in economic and physical health. But the Roosevelt-Roche-Parran school hope to extend low cost medical care to millions of middle class folk who can afford high fees only at great sacrifice. Outright federal subsidies are needed to finance the "forgotten men and women", but for the middle income groups it is planned to establish a more practical and permanent system.

The pertinent question now is the method: Shall it be a system of group health insurance under which beneficiaries pay so much per month or year, or shall it be a comprehensive nationally operated establishment underwritten by new health taxes resembling the social security levies? Official opinion privately favors the former idea.

SEPARATION: Another original Roosevelt rooter appears to have soured on the New Deal. He is Timothy Ansberry, the distinguished Ohioan who placed F. D. R. in nomination for the vice-presidency at San Francisco in 1920. As an intimate friend of Presidential Nominee James M. Cox, the Ansberry acclaim for the young New Yorker was a decisive factor in landing him on the ticket.

Mr. Ansberry is now running for the Democratic Congressional nomination of the Fifth Ohio district. The headline plank in his oratorical platform calls for purging the Democratic party of "subversive forces." From his speeches he is hitting at some of F. D. R.'s close friends and advisers, including Tommie Corcoran and Ben Cohen, Labor Leaders Hillman and Dubinsky.

Whether from old friendship or smart politics, Mr. Ansberry makes no direct indictment of the President—only his so-called "kitchen cabinet." It's a device which the majority of candidates for Congress are employing, in view of recent demonstrations of F. D. R.'s popularity with the townsfolk. They love the President, but they detest the men who frame his policies.

UPSET: Rep. Bruce Barton's eulogy of the President's humanitarian aims and impulses lowered his stock on the political board at Republican National committee headquarters here. He intensified the warfare among inside strategists on the tactics of the 1938 and 1940 campaigns.

One school believes with Mr. Barton that the G. O. P. should praise numerous Rooseveltian reforms—social security, collective bargaining, stock market regulation—but indict him for alleged impractical and improvident administration. They would denounce him with faint damns, promising to handle the job more efficiently and economically. The more aggressive group urges a savage frontal attack on New Deal policies and personalities, throwing the blame for every trivial failure and blundering figurehead on F. D. R. himself.

The hard-boiled fellows learned during the Landon campaign that, although millions of voters found fault with the Tugwells, Johnsons and Perkins, they never held Mr. Roosevelt personally or politically responsible for his agents' actions. He stood aloof and immune from these attacks. Certain G. O. P.-ers attribute that sentiment to their earlier fear of pinning responsibility on the White House. Now along comes Mr. Barton, a shrewd advertising man and student of public nature, to upset—or at least confuse—their plans.

PADDING: If you accept the Green-Lewis figures, the organized labor movement in the United States has reached a membership peak in the midst of a severe depression and a vicious warfare between their respective organizations. Such a total—5,000,000 for the A. F. of L., 3,000,000 for the C. I. O.—at such a time doesn't make good sense or mathematics to official experts.

The claimants themselves—Mr. Green and Mr. Lewis—supply very personal and private explanations for the strange membership boom. The C. I. O.-er growls that employers prefer the more conservative federation as a collective bargaining agency, and offer special inducements for signing up with the older body. He holds the Wagner Labor act responsible for enlisting these recruits under his rival's banner.

Mr. Green counters with the charge that the mine chieftain pads his figures. Mr. Lewis, according to this view, includes in his membership all the employes of an industry which shows a C. I. O. majority, even though the minority voters may sympathize with the federation. Since both men seek to impress the President—and the politicos—with their superior influence, a little padding at this time may be understandable. Best private estimate of bona fide dues-paying members in all unions lies between four and five million.

TAXATION: President Roosevelt fingered the manipulating levers very gingerly in naming the executive spokesmen on the O'Mahoney monopoly committee. But those with sharp eyesight caught him as he pulled the strings in one extremely significant shift.

Secretary Morgenthau originally planned to name Rear Admiral Christian Joy Peoples as the Treasury's representative on the investigating committee. As head of the procurement division, the admiral was supposed to supply evidence on collusive bidding and high prices among contractors seeking public building awards. He would simply have corroborated charges already submitted by the Interior department and the Federal Trade commission.

On quiet orders from the White House, Mr. Morgenthau appointed Internal Revenue Counsel Herman Oliphant as his proxy, with Admiral Peoples as an alternate. As a breaker-up of big business, the lawyer will now renew his demand for punitive taxes designed to take the profits out of bigness. His theme is—if you can't smash 'em, tax 'em!

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

PRESIDENT-ROOSEVELT'S recent appointment of Governor James V. Allred of Texas to the federal bench is interpreted by shrewd New York observers as a sly slap at John N. Garner. The Vice-president and the governor have never been fast friends, either personal or political.

Allred is an enthusiastic Roosevelt rooter and has advocated a third term for F. D. R. Moreover, he took Elliott Roosevelt under his wing when the latter moved to Texas as a radio executive and not long ago named him a regent of Texas A. & M. college. So the governor's selection was to a large degree an expression of personal good-will. Neither of the Texas Senators backed him for the job. However, Allred is an ardent prohibitionist, which pleases Senator Morris Sheppard—and Sheppard has been much more of a rubber stamp to the White House than his colleague Tom Connally.

Allred was a leader in Texas politics only by virtue of his office. The race to succeed him as governor is a wide-open scramble. Candidate W. Lee O'Daniel, a "hill-billy" flour salesman with more than a touch of Huey Long about him, has supporters of the more able candidates scared stiff.

GIFT: Grover A. Whalen worked two years to get globe-circler Howard Hughes to ballyhoo his New York World's fair, but the debonair New York impressario had never met the young Texan personally until the day before Hughes was ready to take off on his epoch-making flight. (Whalen referred to Howard Hughes as "Ed" more than once during the welcoming festivities.)

America's attitude toward Asia is one of strict neutrality, modified by the hope that China will lick 'em.

Postoffice "Ain't Doin' Right" By The Ladies, Feminist Writer Declares

BY SIGRID ARNE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Postoffice bigwigs have done us ladies dirt again. And all with that sanctimonious air of doing us a favor.

They're putting Martha Washington in the new presidential series of stamps. She's the only lady elected.

The first stamp of the series is cut: that new, bright green, one-center carrying the profile of Martha's husband. Only 17 Presidents so far have appeared on stamps. This series is to take them all in from Washington to Coolidge.

But how come Martha? Oh, said the postoffice, we wanted to include the ladies.

So the one lady is going to represent us all. She'll appear on the cent-and-a-halfers. That's the catch. The P-O didn't want to put any of the gentlemen on a cent-and-a-halfer.

Bill Bullitt, who does our ambassadoring to France, stands the ladies on tiptoe when he comes to town. He's got that "chien" Elsa Maxwell's talking about. But he does an excellent job of not recognizing the fact. Stories say he's picked his pick, but the lady doesn't seem to get around to saying "Yes." Her job's in the way.

WHEN it comes to lady-patriots, the bubbling Louise Ward Watkins, of Pasadena, who gave Washington a whirl in April, ranks close to the top. April is the month when the ladies with Colonial ancestors get together here to talk things over.

Brown-eyed Mrs. Watkins took in seven conventions: Founders and Patriots, Daughters of the Barons of Runnymede, D. A. R., Daughters of American Colonists, Daughters of 1812, and the National League of American Pen Women.

Mrs. Watkins, the mother of four daughters and three sons, belongs to 62 organizations. Until recently she was president of six of them. Now she's president of only four. Thinks the Cinderella story is the world's most important yarn right now because it teaches a lesson: the lady went home before the party was over. She's interested in the constitution, Braille, zoos, cleaning up the movies, PTA's, a balanced budget and straight thinking.

Oh, yes. She's filed on the Republican ticket for the seat of Sen. William Gibbs McAdoo of California.

Gen. Hugh S. (Iron Pants) Johnson says he's never really been surprised since he was ten years old.

Then he had a baptism by fire—a middle-aged rattlesnake officiated.

It happened one day when Hugh was scuffling through the sagebrush looking for arrowheads. Suddenly he found himself practically shaking hands with the rattler. But he had a resilient willow wand in his hand and took a mighty swipe at the snake. Then he discovered the snake was paying him no mind at all. She calmly opened her mouth and out trooped ten new, little rattlers.

Several Highways Over West Texas Closed By Waters

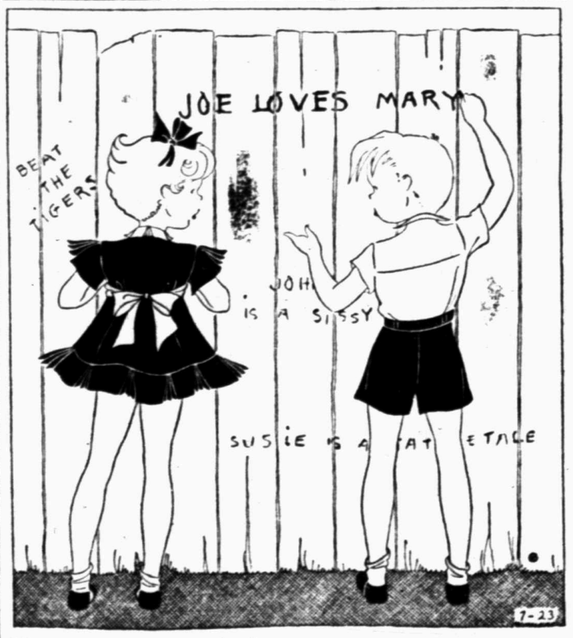

Several U. S. or state highways in West Texas are closed because of high water, said the office of George M. Garrett, engineer of division 5 of the maintenance division of the state highway department, in Lubbock.

Opening of the roads immediately was not expected Friday because rains continued, said officials.

Closed were: U. S. 83, north and south of Menard; U. S. 277, north and south of Sonora; U. S. 290, from Junction to Sonora; U. S. 87, from Brady to Eden (over the shortest route from the South Plains to Austin and to San Antonio); U. S. 190, from Lometa to Brady; state 29 from Junction to Rock Springs and from Junction to London; state 41, from Del Rio to Rock Springs; state 151, from Menard to Mason.

There is enough coal in Colorado to fire the stoves and furnaces of the entire nation for 1,000 years, it has been estimated.

RAPS HEADLINE

Editor, The Avalanche: The following headlines appeared in your paper this morning, Friday, July 22: "Spotted Rains Fall In Area"; followed by the opening sentence in your article, "Spotted rains fell here and at other places on the South Plains Thursday."

I am visiting in Slaton from Baltimore, Maryland, and was wondering if you made a picture of the rains. I'd like to have one, if you did. I have never had the privilege, or opportunity of seeing a spotted rain. Maybe it was just coated with a little West Texas sand. I've seen rains fall here that looked as though they might be coated with sand, so much sand was in the air at the time the rain fell.

No harm meant. The headlines just appealed to me as being rather humorous and worded slightly wrong.

Hope the election results Saturday are satisfactory to you, and hope to be able to attend your election party.

Sincerely,
J. Emmette Miller,
Slaton, Texas.

(Dear Mr. Miller: Now look here, young man, don't be knocking our climate, or our rains, or our headlines—particularly since you are from Baltimore. I know that Baltimore weather like a book. And I know Baltimore and its white steps, its Druid Hill park, its Gay street and its Riverview park. You see, young man, I was born in Baltimore. So were my parents. So were their parents and I have more kinfolks there now than you can shake a stick at—one of whom is one of the heads of that big outfit at Light, Water and Barrie streets! Furthermore, my grandfather's people at one time owned Sparrow's point and the first horses I ever saw were pulling big beer wagons upon which was painted "Gottlieb, Baurenschmidt and Schloss—Fred Baurenschmidt's Beer!" In fact, one of the feminine Baurenschmidts married into my mother's family a couple of generations ago. So don't be pernickety about Baltimore—fine as she is and as swell as are the Sunpapers. And come in and see me while you're in this country. I was raised in the Southwest but have visited many, many times along the Chesapeake. Very truly yours, The Editor).

ABOUT THE OLD FOLKS

Editor, The Avalanche: What do you think of the many promises made by the office seekers of Texas to the old folks?

Old folks will get to hunt and fish free, perhaps.

Texas thinks more of fish, deer and ducks than it does of its old folks, as I see it.

One of your subscribers.
J. M. Harder.
Ralls.

(Dear Mr. Harder: I think the promises being made by office seekers to the old folks are largely what the old Bull Moose party was: "one-third moose and two-thirds bull." The old age assistance issue is one of the most twisted issues I have ever seen. Too many candidates from constable to governor are promising things that they know—or should know—are impossible to deliver on but they keep promising, just the same, in an effort to attract votes. Much of the campaigning on the old age assistance issue is downright dishonest. Very truly yours, The Editor).

TARZAN UNDER FIRE No. 66 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

When Doc started the big boulder thumping down the steep side of the ravine, his enemies tried to scramble from its path. Though they were agile men, the rock had gained such momentum and was rolling so rapidly that it was upon them before they could eludé it.

It struck one of them full in the breast, topping him backward. Then it bounded on to the bottom of the canyon while the body of its victim, rolling and tumbling, leaped grotesquely in its wake. "Attaboy, Doc!" shouted Dick; "give them another one!"

Now, taking advantage of the surprise and confusion of the gorilla-men, Doc began to pepper them with smaller stones, which they tried to ward off with their cudgels and forearms. Slowly they gave way under Doc's furious barrage, and began to flee down the hill.

Then the voice of Gulm, the high priest, rose in a mighty, infuriated bellow: "Go on! Go on! If you come back without him, you shall be the first to be sacrificed to the Flaming God. Obey your high priest, or you die!" That was spur enough to Doc's pursuers.

19—Livestock For Sale

Lubbock Auction And Commission Co.
AUCTION SALE EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY

Market looks like 25c to 50c lower for first of this week, but during the latter part of the week we gained back about 25c. We sold about 2000 cattle last week, and had lots of buyers and orders for this week. We can use more stocker steers and fat cattle.

Remember we have plenty of good buyers on hand at each sale so bring in your cattle and don't be afraid you will overstock us.

If you have no way to get your cattle in for the sale, phone or wire us for trucking service.

We are bonded for your protection!

Murray Going Back To Farm

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 22. (AP)—William H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray—the fiery former governor beaten in an attempted comeback—is going back to the banks of the Yashau and may never seek office again.

This much of his plans for the future Murray made known today in an article in the Blue Valley Farmer, published by his cousin Cicero Murray, in which he asserted "I am free now to discuss the evil tendency of the New Deal."

May Never Run Again

"I may never run for another office," wrote the man who in 1932 aspired to the presidency and opposed Franklin D. Roosevelt at the national Democratic convention.

Murray was beaten for the Democratic nomination for governor in the July 12 primary. Three days before the vote, President Roosevelt in a speech here referred to Murray by inference as "nationally known as a Republican."

The eyes of the former governor turned toward his small farm on the banks of Yashau creek, in mountainous southeast Oklahoma. He retired there in 1935 after stepping down as governor.

His opposition to the New Deal, Murray said, was not based upon "the appropriation for relief of the people . . . for that always has been a function under our constitution."

He said his criticism was of the "departure that enables the horde of federal office-holders to browbeat all persons beneficiary of the relief into voting as the bureaus in Washington would have them vote . . ."

Two-Day Credit Meeting Is Closed In City Friday

A two-day session here for officers and directors of production credit associations of this area was closed Friday afternoon with round-table discussions. Approximately 50 officers and directors attended.

The sessions were under direction of Dr. Virgil P. Lee of Houston, president of the Production Credit corporation; John H. Seale, jr., of Houston, secretary of the corporation; and L. S. R. Clarke of San Angelo, corporation field representative.

T. P. Priddle, jr., vice-president of the Federal Intermediate Credit bank of Houston, also was a guest.

MARKET EDGES HIGHER

NEW YORK, July 22. (AP)—The stock market edged higher on the average today despite appearance of a few more skeptics on the speculative ranks.

Specialties gave the best performance in relatively slow proceedings, several up 1 to 2 points. A handful of aircrafts, rubbers, motors, rails and rubbers generally were able to show only fractional gains at the close.

The Associated Press composite of 60 issues was up .2 of a point at 50.1, or just 1 below the year's top.

Utilities were unable to get going on the upside as the S. E. C. took another pot shot at holding companies. Associated Gas and Electric which was charged by the government agency in a complaint filed in the U. S. district court at New York, of violating both the securities and holding company acts in connection with the company's extension of its 5½ per cent convertible investment certificates maturing in November. Stocks of this concern shifted over a narrow range.

Steels did well for a time—they fell back at the finish—as mill operations were expected to step up briskly next week. A more than seasonal increase in freight loadings last week kept carrier stocks and bonds on balance. Coppers were aided by a lift in the domestic price of the metal of ⅛ of a cent a pound to 9¾ cents.

McKeesport Tin Plate was up 2¾ at 22¾, as canning prospects were reported much brighter. Phillips Petroleum yielded 1¼ at 42¾ as the company announced plans to issue $25,000,000 in debentures as a means of retiring part of privately held loans and expanding working capital.

Prominent on the upside were Union Carbide, Westinghouse, Eastman, Kodak, J. C. Penney, American Tobacco B, Homestake Mining, Dome, McIntyre Porcupine, American Smelting, Kennecott, Patino Mines, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, J. I. Case and Chesapeake and Ohio.

Loews was off 1⅝ at 48¼, and lesser declines were posted for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Warner Bros, North American, Electric Power and Light, Public Service of N. J., American Water Works, Great Northern and Santa Fe.

Colorado coal companies produced 7,215,916 tons of coal in 1937 and employed an average of 9,449 miners.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, July 22. (AP)—Reports indicating lessened danger of Russo-Japanese armed clashes did much late today to cause reactions that virtually wiped out 1¾ cents wheat price gains.

Month-end liquidating sales of July delivery of wheat served also at the last as a weight on values.

Stimulating influences that led to transient upturns of values included not only Russo-Japanese war threats but also export purchases of 1,000,000 bushels of United States wheat, together with adverse crop reports from Canada.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅝ of a cent lower to ⅝ higher compared with yesterday's finish, Sept. 70¼@70⅝, Dec. 72⅛@72¼, corn ¾ off to ¼ up, Sept. 59@59⅛, Dec. 58@58⅛, oats varying from 1 cent decline to ⅛ advance, rye showing ¼ to ¾ setback, and provisions 10 cents drop to a gain of 2 cents.

HOUSTON, July 22. (AP)—David Johnson, 32, negro chauffeur employed by Ralph M. Henderson, vice president of an insurance company, was in federal custody today, after admitting department of justice agents said, he wrote two extortion notes to Mrs. Henderson Monday and Wednesday.

The letters, warning Mrs. Henderson "not to double cross me," demanded $150 under threat of death to her son, William, a summer student in the University of Texas.

There was an increase of 40 per cent this year in airplane passenger traffic from Latin America through Brownsville, Tex.

Park Programs Well Attended

Between 1,200 and 1,500 persons Friday night attended the regular weekly programs presented at Lubbock's four City parks as a part of the city-sponsored Works Progress administration summer supervised-play program.

One-act plays were presented at Mackenzie State park, Twenty-seventh street park, and Seventh street park. A miscellaneous program of songs, readings and other entertainment was presented at Booker T. Washington park for negroes, said John W. Wilson, supervisor of the project.

Softball Game Held

In a softball game Friday afternoon Seventh street park boys under 15 defeated the team from Twenty-seventh street park, 20 to 11.

Wilson reported 49 boys and girls are participating in soap carving classes and among the articles carved are bookcases, pianos, bathtubs, a hen and other animals, and a living room suite.

The City of Lubbock has completed three concrete sand boxes for modeling and entertainment for children. Sand will be placed in the boxes Tuesday, Wilson said.

To Entertain Clubs

At Mackenzie State park next Friday night 4-H clubs of this district will be entertained. Joseph R. Griggs, county school superintendent, will show moving pictures.

The one-act play presented at Mackenzie state park Friday night will be presented at Seventh street park next Friday night, and the Seventh street park play will be taken to Twenty-seventh street park.

Musical numbers, in addition to the dramas, were presented Friday night.

Congress Races Draw Interest

AUSTIN, July 22. (AP)—Congressional contests in 11 of Texas' 21 districts give a national flavor tomorrow to the first Democratic primary despite absence of a United States senate race.

Texans years ago fell into the habit of keeping their representatives at Washington a long time but at least four incumbents had opposition which many persons considered formidable.

Attracts Most Attention

The race attracting the most attention was in Bexar county (San Antonio) between Maury Maverick, ardent New Dealer, and Paul J. Kilday, who had the backing of the potent San Antonio city political organization.

Friends hailed Maverick as a liberal while foes called him a radical. One charge was that he has been too friendly with the C. I. O. Maverick's drive for votes was featured by spirited attacks on the city political organization headed by Mayor C. K. Quin.

Strong Opposition

Another New Deal supporter with possibly strong opposition was W. D. McFarlane of Graham, now completing his third term in the house. Ed L. Gossett of Wichita Falls, who lacked only about 2,500 votes of beating McFarlane two years ago, was running again. Other candidates were Laverne Somerville and K. C. Spell of Wichita Falls.

McFarlane and Maverick were two of three congressmen who received Roosevelt "pats on the back" when the president passed through Texas last week. The other was Marvin Jones of Amarillo, who voiced confidence of an easy victory over his fellow townsman, James O. Cade.

Face Possible Trouble

Representatives Morgan G. Sanders of Canton and Hatton W. Sumners of Dallas, the latter chairman of the house judiciary committee, were in for possible trouble. Each has opposed President Roosevelt on certain issues.

Opposing Sanders were State Representative Lindley Beckworth of Gilmer, A. V. Grant of Longview, District Judge Walter G. Russell of Tyler and County Judge Brady P. Gentry of Tyler.

Thomas B. Love, strong admirer of President Roosevelt although a staunch liquor prohibitionist, and Leslie Jackson, young attorney, were competing against Sumners.

Electric Loans To Be Speeded

WASHINGTON, July 22. (AP)—The Rural Electrification administration joined President Roosevelt's lending-spending parade today with expressed hopes of assigning its entire $140,000,000 to projects during the present fiscal year.

Administrator John M. Carmody, who informed the vacationing president by wireless of his hopes, announced he would send field men into 13 states between July 28 and August 29 to hasten organization of rural electric service cooperatives.

Long-Time Loans

These would be granted long-time 2-3-4 per cent loans to finance installation of electric distribution systems, he said.

Carmody said his decision to put pressure behind rural electrification stemmed from the president's desire to get the congressional appropriation to work as soon as possible.

He estimated the annual revenue to power companies supplying the cooperatives would amount to $5,280,000. He said he expected the appropriation to finance from 300 to 400 projects, which would take 90 per cent of their electric energy from existing public utilities.

He announced the itinerary for his field men included: Greenville, Tex., August 15; Austin, Tex., August 17.

Man Given Seven Years For Fantastic Kidnaping Plot

BIRMINGHAM, England, July 22. John Bruce Thornton was sentenced today to seven years of penal servitude for a fantastic plot to kidnap Viscount Nuffield, Britain's "Henry Ford," and hold him at sea for ransom of $500,000.

The gray-haired Thornton was found guilty on all four counts of the indictment.

FORTY ARE RESCUED

ROSCOE, N. Y., July 22. (AP)—Nearly 40 persons were rescued from marooned automobiles by state police last night and today as streams in Sullivan and Ulster counties overflowed their banks, flooded a large area and menaced the $5,000,000 New York City waterworks dam project at Lackawack.

(By The Associated Press)

The candidates had their last say Friday night. Saturday the voters would have theirs.

The twelve men running for governer led the chorus of last-minute appeals, many of them in the larger cities or thickly populated areas. W. Lee O'Daniel was at Mineola, Gilmer and Kilgore, where he made his last speech of his surprising drive for votes. Ernest Thompson traveled through Pittsburg and Mount Vernon in northeast Texas to Greenville where he was met with a band before his closing rally. William McCraw made a radio speech at Corsicana, had three others scheduled, and finished up at a hometown rally in Dallas.

Hunter In Fort Worth

Tom Hunter campaigned all day in Fort Worth, had a final mass-meeting, and planned to go on the air afterwards. Karl Crowley traveled to El Paso for his final words. P. D. Renfro spoke at Orange and completed his campaign at a meeting in Lufkin. Clarence Farmer went on the air with his last-minute bid for ballots from San Antonio. Thomas Self returned to Crockett, his home town, for his last day of campaigning.

In the race for lieutenant governor, G. H. Nelson finished at Greenville. Pierce Brooks made two radio speeches from Dallas, and announced he planned to go on a picnic Saturday to relax. George A. Davisson jr. returned to his home city, Eastland, for a final raly.

Honte For Final Rally

Ralph Yarborough, in the race for attorney general, was another candidate to return home for a final rally. He went to Austin, predicting victory. Gerald C. Mann, at Dallas, also issued a statement predicting success. Robert W. Calvert's final speech, at Waxahachie, expressed confidence he would win.

At San Antonio, Land Commissioner William H. McDonald, candidate for re-election, said "most of the candidates who are worrying aloud about the land vacancy situation are indicting themselves." Bascom Giles closed his campaign in this race with a speech at Manor saying "the people know a change in land commissioners is needed."

"We are about to separate the sheep from goats," said Jerry Sadler at Dallas, closing his race for railroad commissioner. Robert A Stuart of Fort Worth returned home after a strenuous last day of 13 speeches. John Wood closed in Austin after a radio address from San Antonio. O. C. Christie campaigned in Central and North Central Texas, closing at Midlothian.

New Deal School Building To Be Ready At September Term

A new seven-room grade school building on which work was started Friday at New Deal will be ready for occupancy when the September term starts, according to plans announced by Joseph R. Griggs, county superintendent. W. G. McMillan is contractor.

Cost of the building, which replaces a structure destroyed by fire in April, will be approximately $18,000 and an additional $1,400 will be spent for equipment, Griggs said. It will accommodate 220 to 250 pupils.

The building is directly south of the high school and the same type of brick is being used in its construction. It will have a front of 124 feet, and additional to seven classrooms will contain offices, a bookroom and rest rooms. Gas steam radiators will be used in heating. Locker space for pupils will be included in each classroom, the county superintendent said.

Miss Agnes True Will Speak At Conference In El Paso

Problems Of City Of Lubbock Are Talked By Bradley At Business Club Luncheon

Problems of the city of Lubbock to care for its fast growing business and population, were discussed Friday by the city attorney, Durwood H. Bradley, before the American Business club luncheon in the Hilton hotel.

City Commissioner J. A. Fortenberry was chairman of the program, introducing the speaker. J. E. Maisen, vice president, presided in the absence of President William Collins.

Picnic On Tuesday

Harold Humphries of the entertainment committee announced a picnic Tuesday night at Buffalo Springs, with the losers in a recent attendance contest as hosts.

Bradley presented building permit figures for 1937 and so far in 1938, showing permits to July 15 of this year were $1,247,843 as compared with $2,046,238 for all of last year. Six months totals were approximately 61 per cent of last years' totals.

A WPA street program is being completed for 93 blocks of caliche and curb and gutter and 101 blocks of surfacing for $140,000. Plans are for 114 more blocks of paving to cost $154,000.

No Bond Issue Here

"Since 1929 there has been no bond issue for Lubbock," he said. "Our improvements have been capital outlay from income from utilities. Our last bond issue was for the underpasses and the purchase of the municipal airport."

A proposed bond issue of $350,000 for constructing a storm sewer from the west city limits, east on Twenty-third street, connecting with Avenue H sewers and to Yellowhouse canyon, was explained. Application for WPA funds has been made and the city, if the grant is approved, would match funds. Lateral lines would be built to serve a large area.

The city also has asked for funds to build a fire station and to overhaul the city hall. Bradley also outlined paving needs and water line construction. The paving program to end next year will cost $125,000.

Need of a sewage disposal plant to adequately care for city needs was cited. Present plant was built to serve a population of 15,000, he said, and it has been added to, to meet needs. A section of land in the canyon was bought and a plant to adequately serve the town would cost $125,000 more he, explained.

Austin Traffic Toll Is Lower

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of traffic safety measures.

AUSTIN, July 21. (AP) — Death's stride had slowed to a creep on Austin streets this year.

Last year's traffic mishaps claimed 16 lives but a police-citizen campaign against recklessness and for removal of hazards has held the toll to four persons for the first six months this year.

Investigations Made

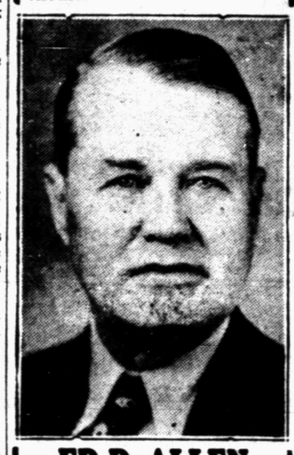

The double barreled offensive centers on a program of enforcement, education and engineering all of which have had good effect, however, Chief of Police R. D. Thorpe lays a big portion of success to a recent innovation—an accident investigation unit.

Officers assigned to it study each and every accident with a view of finding out what made it happen. When you find out what causes them and then remove the cause accidents drop off, Chief Thorpe reasons.

Next in importance he ranks selective enforcement which means assigning extra officers to streets or portions of thoroughfares which consistently show bad records instead of blanketing men over the city without regard for the worst traffic sores.

The traffic problem is one that needs unending study, Chief Thorpe believes. To that end all members of the traffic division meet for a one hour daily conference to discuss their objectives and methods of approach. New traffic officers are trained three months before any is assigned to street duty. Capt. Roy Smith, head of the traffic division, was sent to the national safety council's school at Evanston, Ill., to learn newest methods of handling the problem. Safe driving is instilled into operators of all city trucks and vehicles who receive special instructions twice monthly from police.

May I take this means of thanking you, the citizens of Lubbock county, for the splendid support you have always given me. I want you to know that I sincerely appreciate it, and have earnestly tried to repay you through courteous and efficient service. I now solicit your vote and influence in my race for re-election.
