IN CLASH

Arab Sniper Flees Patrol

United Press International

An Israeli border police patrol exchanged light arms fire with an Arab guerrilla sniper near the village of Zarit on the Lebanese border today, in the first clash on the frontier in four days, military sources said.

Military officers at a command post on the frontier said a lone sniper opened fire on the border police at 8 a.m. as the patrol passed the northern edge of the village. They said the guerrilla was about 600 yards inside Lebanon when he began shooting.

In the exchange, the officers said, the guerrilla got away and there were no reports of injuries.

About four hours after the shootout, a patrol of Lebanese soldiers riding in an armored personnel carrier and a Land Rover drove up to the frontier and watched an Israeli army patrol stationed on the south side of the security fence.

Earlier Israeli national radio claimed the gunbattle was between an Army patrol and a band of guerrillas. Radio reports said Israeli gunners hit two vehicles used by the guerrillas.

The frontier region echoed with Israeli mortar and artillery fire throughout the morning, with most barrages coming at 15-minute intervals. The sound of the firing was especially loud at Zarit and the nearby frontier village of Hanita.

Israel's armed forces radio has said Israeli gunners have been firing into southern Lebanon on a routine basis as part of their campaign to stop guerrilla infiltration.

The shelling came amid increased Middle East tensions sparked by new Israeli war maneuvers in occupied Syrian territory and renewed Egyptian threats of war.

Israel announced Tuesday what military sources described as the biggest tank, artillery and support unit maneuvers on the occupied Golan Heights of Syria since last October's Middle East war.

A military spokesman in Tel Aviv said Israel notified U.N. forces in advance and asked the peacekeeping force to advise Syria that the mass troop movement was a maneuver and not an offensive.

All other major maneuvers since the 1973 war have been confined to the wide open Sinai Desert.

The Israeli national radio said the maneuvers, which began Monday night and continued today, are designed to check new fighting procedures on the rocky heights' difficult terrain.

In Port Said, Egypt, President Anwar Sadat threatened Tuesday to "go back to war" if Israel fails to withdraw from all occupied Arab territories.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, on his first official visit to Washington, planned to spend much of today meeting with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

President Ford welcomed Rabin Tuesday and said the United States is "committed to Israel's survival and security."

Ford To Review Requests On Watergate Defendants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said today he will review individual requests for clemency from Watergate defendants, but is not considering the possibility of blanket pardon which his aides announced just 24 hours earlier.

Ford's statement was read to reporters by Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott following a one hour, 45 minute meeting between the President and congressional leaders.

It directly contridicted a highly controversial announcement by Deputy Press Secretary Jack W. Hushen Tuesday that Ford had the idea of a mass pardon "under study."

There is "no study going on," Scott said, apparently paraphrasing the President's own words.

Ford's brief statement said Hushen's announcement was prompted by questions about a plea for clemency from the wife of John W. Dean III, the former White House counsel who was jailed last week for his part in the Watergate cover-up.

The President did not dispute Hushen's claim that he had been authorized to announce the possibility of a blanket pardon. But the statement said that any study of clemency will be made only on individual requests from Watergate defendants.

"However," Ford added, "no inference should be drawn as to the outcome of such studies in any case. Nor is my pardon of the former president under the unique circumstances stated by me in granting it, related to any other case which is or may be under study."

Scott said no actual requests for clemency have reached Ford's desk. But when they come, he said, "they will not be thrown in the wastebasket; they will be considered."

Hushen's statement compounded the public outrage which followed Ford's decision Sunday to pardon former President Nixon from all crimes he may have committed in office. Scott conceded that his mail was critical of the Nixon pardon, but he quipped: "Even justice is sometimes unjust."

Scott was accompanied by GOP leader John J. Rhodes when he briefed reporters after their meeting with Ford.

Scott said Ford called several congressional leaders including himself Sunday morning in advance of the Nixon pardon announcement but the decision was Ford's alone.

In response to questions, Rhodes said nothing came up in the morning meeting concerning Nixon's health —"Nothing was said."

There have been reports that Nixon was depressed and that Ford was influenced by friends, and perhaps members of the Nixon family, to move compassionately to relieve Nixon of the anxiety of facing possible Watergate charges.

White House spokesmen have denied that Nixon's health entered into the discussion of pardon.

Hushen said Tuesday Ford knew the Nixon pardon "was a controversial decision. He still thinks this was the right decision and he will be proven right in the long run."

Asked if the President was aware of the extent of the dissenting reaction he has aroused, White House counselor Robert Hartmann, one of Ford's closest advisers, said, "I think so."

The criticism came from both Democrats and Republicans. Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., said further pardons would be "a mockery of equal justice under the law."

House Republican leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona said that while he supported Ford's pardon of Nixon, "It does not necessarily follow that a similar pardon should be issued to those individuals under the former President who participated in criminal activity."

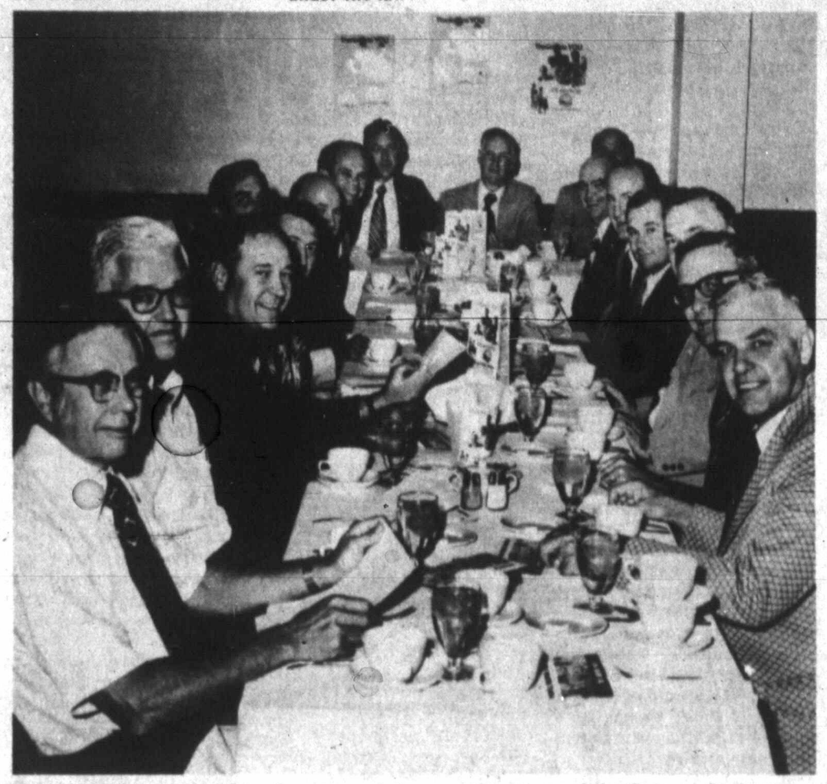

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, asked: "Are they going to empty out the prisons now?"

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, DMass., urged Ford to declare at least a 30-day moratorium on any further Watergate pardons.

And Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Mont., proposed a constitutional amendment giving Congress the power to overrule presidential pardons by a two thirds vote.

Hushen made the surprise announcement that Ford was studying clemency for all persons involved in Watergaterelated scandals only two days after Ford startled the nation with his unconditional pardon of Nixon.

The study would cover 48 defendants, including those who have pleaded guilty or have been convicted by juries.

Constitution Week Activities Planned

A proclamation urging Pampa citizens to pay special attention during the week of Sept. 17 - 23 to the U.S. Constitution and the advantages of American citizenship was issued today by Mayor R. D. Wilkerson.

Observance of Constitution Week is spearheaded each year by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Locally, it is marked by the Las Pampa Chapter of the D.A.R., of which Mrs. J.B. White is regent.

Chairman of this year's local observance is Mrs. James A. Hopkins.

Special attention to the Constitution is expected to be given by history classes in local schools during the week.

In his proclamation, Mayor Wilkerson said in part:

"Sept. 17, 1974, marks the 187th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States of America by the Constitutional Convention; and

"Whereas the constitution gives us the foundation for a free, propsperous, and independent life for every citizen, but each generation, in time, must work for and claim it; otherwise, through carelessness or indifference, the rights and liberties we have enjoyed may vanish; and

"Whereas, the independence granted to the American people to enjoy such freeedom and liberty, unknown to any other country, should be celebrated by appropriate ceremonies andd activites during Constitution Week, Sept. 17 - 23, as designated by the President of the United States in accordance with Public Law No. 915.

"Now, therefore, I, R. D. Wilkerson, Mayor of Pampa, do hereby proclaim Constitution Week in the City of Pampa, and urge all our citizens to pay special attention to our Federal Constitution and the advantages of American Citizenship."

Mrs. Hopkins said a playlet on the Constitution signing was presented last Saturday at the monthly meeting of the local D.A.R. chapter by pupils from Pampa Junior High School.

During Constitution Week there will be window displays and posters in store windows calling attention to the Constitution.

Mrs. Hopkins said radio programs also will be presented.

C-C Members To Get Ballots

Ballots went into the mail today carrying 14 names from which seven new Chamber of Commerce directors will be elected to serve 3 - year terms on the board.

Rex McAnelly, chamber president said, ballots will be counted in the chamber office at 10 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 19.

About a week later according to McAnelly, the entire chamber board membership will meet to elect officers for the coming year.

The new officers will take over at the annual chamber banquet scheduled for Thursday night, Oct. 17, in the Heritage Room of the M.K. Brown auditorium.

The 14 names on the ballot mailed out today include:

Gary Baker, Harold Comer, Bob Carmichael, Dean Copeland, Marjorie Grant, Rufe Jordan, Bill Kindle.

Ken Plotner, Dr. Kenneth Royse, Jewett Scarbrough, J. D. Skaggs, C.E. (Gene) Steel, Boyd Taylor and Delmar Watkins.

Chamber members are asked to vote for seven, scratching out the others.

School Board Sets Meeting Thursday

Thursday's meeting of the board of trustees of Pmapa Independent School District will be held in a new location.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Industrial Co - Op Training Room of Pampa Area Vocational School.

Several previous meetings had been held in the High School library, but with the opening of the school year, the library facilities are in use by faculty and students, necessitating the change of location.

The 13 - item agenda contains some routine business matters, plus several items of more general interest.

Among the latter are a report by Gray County Judge Don Cain on the County Available Fund, an issue which has aroused considerable interest among school officials concerned about budgets.

Another item is consideration of a proposal by school board president Paul Simmons that community meetings be held from time to time at the elementary schools "to facilitate sharing of information about the school and to receive input from the public."

The informal sessions, without an agenda and with no provision for official action, would be a "grassroots" get - together featuring question and answer periods, Simmons has said.

The subject of tape recordings of regular open meetings is also to be introduced for discussion at tomorrow night's meeting.

Other agenda items include these:

— Budget report.

— Report by Warren Fatheree on property insurance coverage.

— Supplementary salary schedules (to remain the same as last year).

— Workmen's Compensation and accident leave policy.

— Authorization for interim building loan.

— Authorization for purchase of school buses.

Personnel matters such as resignations, employment, re - assignment, evaluation and duties may be taken up in executive session, after which final or official action is to be announced.

TO FIGHT UNEMPLOYMENT

Ford Announces Funds To Provide More Jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Stating "we certainly can't be complacent about any American lacking work," President Ford today announced that communities hard hit by unemployment will be granted federal funds to finance 85,000 public service jobs.

"I recognize the concern of many that unemployment might rise because of the policies we must follow to fight inflation," he said. "The present situation calls for full use of available tools and dollars.

"We will not permit the burden of necessary economic restraint to fall on those members of society least able to bear the cost."

Ford's announcement came as he opened the second in a series of 12 conferences on various sectors of the economy leading up to the "inflation summit" Sept. 27-28 in Washington. Today's session was with organized labor and participants included AFL-CIO President George Meany and 27 other union leaders.

Ford said that he had instructed the Labor Department to accelerate the obligation of currently available funds under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

"The secretary of labor will disperse $65 million to those communities in which unemployment is highest," he said. "By the end of the month he will make available another $350 million under the CETA title two. This $415 million will finance some 85,000 public sector jobs in state and local governments."

Ford urged the labor leaders to exercise restraint in their wage demands to fight inflation.

"To the leaders of our labor unions, and to the captains of industry, I make a sincere appeal for restraint," he said. "And it must be a self-imposed retraint. As I have said before, there will be no controls imposed on wages and prices. Settlements at the bargaining table are the responsiblity of the participants as long as they respect the public interest."

He noted that the unemployment rate last month was 5.4 per cent but added "we certainly can't be complacent about any American lacking work."

He said that added to the almost $550 million obligated to public service in June from the 1974 fiscal year appropriation and about $50 million in prime sponsorship under the employment act the current available resources will provide 170,000 public service jobs this winter.

The effect of these actions, he said, will be to double the number of federally funded public service jobs. In addition, $1.3 billion will be available to state and local governments for manpower programs, he said.

"Labor builds America. Labor is America," Ford said at the beginning of the talks. "Together, we must now preserve and enhance the economic base of our existence from everybody's enemy —the scourge of inflation ... I want your ideas on steps we can take to help the individual as well as the nation."

The labor leaders are likely to be more united and less polite than the two dozen economists who met with Ford last week in the kickoff presummit session. During that meeting, also chaired by Ford, the economists tossed out a variety of proposals for beating down inflation —everything from strict new wage-price controls to tougher enforcement of agricultural marketing orders on Arizona oranges.

Police Arrest 124 Suspects In Drug Raids

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United States, Mexican and Canadian police today arrested more than 120 suspects, including several "drug millionaires," in a series of raids that one official said broke the back of illegal pep pill trafficking in this country.

The arrests followed an eight-month investigation in the three countries and Europe into the smuggling into the United States annually from Mexico of more than 3 billion "mini-bennies" — small Benzedrine tablets — worth about $1.6 billion.

"There is no question about it. We have broken the back of the illegal amphetamine operation in this country," said Doug Chandler of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

"We got a couple of people in Mexico who are described as drug millionaires —they are drug rich," said Chandler. "they have also gotten rich from traffic in other drugs."

Most of the 124 persons in custody at mid-morning were in the United States. They included 98 in this country, 25 in Canada and one Mexican national in Canada.

The DEA spokesman said he expected the arrests would total about 140.

"The operation has gone smoothly and there have been no injuries reported so far in the arrests," said Chandler, who coordinated the raids.

Stuart Stromfield of the DEA said raiding parties were armed with sealed indictments, opened just before they struck.

Arrests were made in Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, Phoenix, Tucson, Dallas, New York, Pittsburgh, and Charleston, W.Va., as well as in Mexico City, Tijuana and Guadalajara.

The raids were to have begun at midnight, EDT, but Stromfeld said premature publication of the story by the New York Times and the Washington Post caused the arrests to start two hours earlier than planned.

In recent days, agents in Los Angeles, San Diego, Minneapolis and Dallas seized at least 500,000 "mini-bennies," Stromfeld said.

Also this week, four Mexican factories believed to have been the source of all the smuggled pills were raided. Six others were targeted for raids today.

Jetliner Crashes, Burns In Fog, 69 Persons Die

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (UPI) — An Eastern Air Lines DC-9 jet crashed and burned today while attempting a landing in fog at Charlotte's Douglas Municipal Airport, killing 69 of the 82 persons aboard.

"We have received 13 victims from the crash and we have been notified that this is the total number of survivors," Harold Green, administrator at Charlotte Memorial Hospital, told UPI.

The flight was Eastern 212, bound from Charleston, S.C., to Chicago's O'Hare Airport, via Charlotte.

The plane crashed at 7:33 a. m. EDT in an open field two and one half miles south of the airport, near Charlotte's York Street Exit of interstate highway 77.

Residents near the airport said the plane's engines seemed to be functioning properly when it passed overhead, but that the craft apparently was too low. They said after the plane went over, they heard an explosion and saw smoke billowing into the sky.

Witnesses said those who survived the crash were thrown free from the plane into a clump of trees.

Dozens of ambulances and police threaded their way through the morning rush hour traffic to reach the scene and transport survivors to Charlotte Memorial Hospital. A hospital spokesman said most of the survivors were burned and all were reported in critical condition.

The DC-9 is designed to carry a total of 88 passengers, so the flight was filled almost to capacity.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Washington said the plane was approaching Runway 36 from the south when it disappeared from the radar screen.

Another FAA spokesman, Jack Barker in Atlanta, said radio communications with the aircraft were routine up to the moment of the mishap. He said there had been nothing to indicate the plane was in trouble.

Barker said the plane was on a radar approach because the fog was too thick for a visual landing.

One eyewitness reported hearing what he said sounded like several explosions before the plane crashed and burst into flames.

Dense smoke billowed up from the crash scene and ambulances and police had difficulty reaching the site because of the early morning traffic.

Jim Stanley, 19, who was driving near the airport said: "I heard the jet and then I heard the explosion. I ran down into the woods and saw a tremendous funnel of smoke. I had seen what looked like the tail section going into the fog. The roar of the fire was tremendous."

Stanley said two of the survivors included two stewardesses, and the co-pilot.

Singles Group Being Formed

A "get - acquainted" meeting will be held here Friday to determine whether or not there is enough local interest to organize a social club for single persons.

Dr. Gerald York, a chiropractor who moved to Pampa in April, says he would be willing to help sponsor an informal group whose aim would be to promote friendship and combat loneliness among unmarried persons.

Dr. York says he would welcome such persons Friday at 6:30 p.m. at the location of his home and office at 1121 S. Hobart.

"It would be an organizational meeting," he said, "and people would do whatever they liked. Some of us might go to the football game, others might want to go to a movie, or go bowling or dancing."

He also said there might be enough interest to organize a group to go the Tri - State Fair in Austin.

"I have a 100 by 300 - foot lot," Dr. York said, "and we might have cook - outs or whatever. And I've also got a 10 - speed bike, maybe there'd be others interested in biking."

Dr. York says "age is no factor; after all, you hear every day of people 97 or 98 years old getting married."

Well, there you have it, Pampa area singles. Dr. York's phone number is 665-1627.

Sen. Hightower Visits Pampa And Canadian

Politicians generally would agree that one of the worst things that can happen while campaigning is to run out of candidate cards.

That's what happened Tuesday to Jack Hightower as he campaigned in Pampa, but if that bothered him, it didn't show.

As a Democrat and State Senator from the 30th District, he's making the big leap, attempting to unseat incumbent Republican Congressman Bob Price in the November elections.

Accompanied by State Rep. Phil Cates, Hightower campaigned on the streets of Pampa Tuesday morning, then went to Canadian for more of the same in the afternoon.

"This is a hand - shaking, grass - roots campaign," Hightower said as he toured the Pampa News plant and office.

In answer to a question from a reporter, Hightower said:

"No, I don't have what would be called a campaign slogan, but for the past ten years in the State Senate, my symbol has been the windmill. It's a tradition here in West Texas because it has to do with such things as agriculture, water and related rural matters."

Hightower is from Vernon, where he has been active in Baptist Church and Masonic affairs.

City To Sell Ag Building

McLEAN — The board of trustees of McLean Independent School District have moved to advertise for sale the school's old agriculture building and some of the agricultural tools no longer used.

The action came during Monday's regular board meeting, at which the board also took the following actions:

— Hired a new teacher for mathematics and counselor. He is Jason Smith of White Deer.

— Discussed repairs to the old auditorium.

— And discussed the new Right - to - Read program, McLean being one of four area schools selected for participation in the program. The other schools are Wildorado, Dumas and Pampa.

Superintendent Homer Jefferson reported that the board also approved a list of 10 substitute teachers.

Chileans Hold Celebrations On 1st Anniversary

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Chileans rejoiced in public and mourned in private today on the first anniversary of the bloody military coup that toppled the Marxist government of the late President Salvador Allende.

Howitzers fired thunderous 21-gun salutes this morning to usher in ceremonies marking the "Day of Liberation" — the Sept. 11, 1973, coup ending Allende's three-year-old government.

Tens of thousands of Chileans were expected to attend a giant, pro-junta rally in a Santiago park near the headquarters of the military government.

Thousands of others mourned secretly for friends and relatives killed in the coup, executed by junta firing squads and jailed in a purge of Allende backers.

(In London, Amnesty International accused the junta Tuesday of the "unprecedented" executions of up to 30,000 persons since the coup. The lawyers group reported up to 10,000 persons imprisoned without trials.

("Though official executions are no longer announced, disappearances continue," a 79page report said. "Repeated assurances from the government that human rights would be respected have proven to be totally unfounded.")

In a surprise move, the junta freed Orlando Letelier, Allende's foreign minister, on the eve of the anniversary. The regime flew the diplomat to Venezuela and barred him from setting foot in Chile again.

Chilean flags hung from public buildings, apartment houses and bleak shanties in Santiago to commemorate the "Second Independence of Chile." Photos of junta members decorated store windows. Schools closed for the day.

Thousands of persons in the predominately Roman Catholic nation of 10 million attended morning mass, but the church rejected special services for the "political" celebration.

Pro-junta labor, civic, student, business and women's groups sponsored the Santiago rally, the first large public gathering since the coup.

The armed forces have said Allende committed suicide in his office during the coup, but the late president's supporters insist he was gunned down by troops storming the presidential palace.

INCUMBENTS WIN OTHERS

Clark, Carey Win New York Nominations

International

Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark and Rep. Hugh Carey defeated party regulars to capture New York's Democratic nominations for senator and governor Tuesday, when primary ballots were cast in 13 states and the nation's capital.

Incumbents and favorites generally won most of the other races across the nation. It was the biggest round of balloting so far in anticipation of the Nov. 5 general elections.

National issues appeared to figure in two races. Rep. Larry Hogan, who was accused by some party leaders of "grandstanding" when he became to first GOP member of the House Judiciary Committee to support impeachment of Richard Nixon, lost a bid for the Maryland gubernatorial nomination to Louise Gore.

And in Wisconsin, Rep. Glenn Davis, who touted his friendship with President Ford in a campaign for re-election, also lost — an apparent casualty of Ford's decision to pardon Nixon.

Neither Clark, a transplanted Texan, nor Carey, a Brooklyn congressman, was supported by the party regulars in New York but both won easily. Both will have a tougher time in November when Clark takes on popular Sen. Jacob Javits and Carey tries to take the state house which Republicans have held since 1959.

Mrs. Gore and New York State Sen. Mary Ann Krupsak became the first women ever nominated to a state-wide office in their states. Ms. Krupsak won the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor. Baltimore city councilwoman Barbara Mikulski won the Democratic nomination for the Senate from Maryland.

Despite a messy marital breakup and a rash of investigations into his administration, Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel easily won the Democratic nomination to seek a second full term.

So did Democratic governors Reubin Askew in Florida, Pat Lucey in Wisconsin and Wendell Anderson in Minnesota and Republican Gov. Francis W. Sargent in Massachusetts.

In the District of Columbia, Mayor Walter E. Washington claimed victory over challenger Clifford Alexander as the nation's capital held its first municipal elections in 103 years.

In Colorado, a new face emerged — Gary Hart, Sen. George S. McGovern's 1972 campaign manager, won the Democratic nomination for senator.

Davis was one of three incumbent House members who lost. The others were Democrats Robert Tiernan of Rhode Island and Betram L. Podell of New York. These losses brought to nine the number of defeated congressional incumbents in the primaries so far this year.

Bertram L. Podell lost to State Assemblyman Stephen J. Solarz. Podell was indicted last year for bribery and campaigned on the claim he had been framed by the Nixon administration.

Two New England Republican congressmen — Richard Mallary in Vermont and Louis Wyman in New Hampshire — won nomination to seek the seats of two GOP fixtures in the Senate, George Aiken and Norris Cotton. Both are retiring.

In New York, the Democratic endorsements had gone to Syracuse Mayor Lee Alexander for the Senate; and for governor, to industrialist Howard Samuels, who became known as "Howie the Horse" when he set up New York City's Off-Track Betting system.

Waters Recede From Louisiana After Hurricane

GRAND ISLE, La. (UPI) — Floodwaters produced by the weekend winds of Hurricaner Carmen receded from South Louisiana today, but slime, sand and flotsam still aggravated those trying to return home.

"Everybody's being allowed to return home," said a spokesman for the LaFourche Parish sheriff's office in Gallaino, La. "There's very little water left, the water's receding all the time.

"All that's left is the cleaning up all these homes with the mud and debris in them."

Louisiana Agriculture Commissioner Dave Pearce said Tuesday not only the state's extensive sugar cane crop, but cotton and pepper had been damaged by Carmen.

Officials estimated 20 to 25 per cent of the sugar cane crop had been lost because of the 155 mile-per-hour winds, while the main casualty of the destroyed peppers would be tabasco sauce, he said.

"I think we're talking about well over $100 million damage to crops," Pearce said.

The Internal Revenue Service said families suffering personal or business property losses could deduct them from their federal income taxes for 1974.

Those trying to return home found many highways loaded with as much as three feet of sand. Gas and water service was still out on Grand Isle.

Carmen, which caused two deaths in Louisiana, veered west early Sunday after stalling for hours on the Gulf of Mexico coast.

Officials said it was still too early to tell how much sugar prices would go up because of the damage to the cane crop, although there was no question they would rise.

Red Frogmen Destroy Bridge At Rui River

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist frogmen swimming under the cover of darkness blew up a strategic highway bridge early today to isolate the former imperial capital of Hue.

The raid came hours after a Communist patrol ambushed a government convoy northwest of Saigon, temporarily blocking a key road to the threatened provincial capital of Tay Ninh.

The Saigon command said Communist frogmen blew up the Highway 1 bridge over the Rui River this morning to cut off Hue, South Vietnam's third largest city, from its chief source of supplies.

The blast severed Hue's ground link with Da Nang, 50 miles to the south. The estimated 500,000 soldiers and civilians in the Hue Area get virtually all their supplies from Da Nang, the nation's second largest city, largest city.

Military officers said commanders hope to erect a temporary span later today, reopening the supply road to Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon. Communists troops have fought near the bridge, 20 miles southeast of Hue, for two weeks.

Far to the south, Communist forces ambushed a government military convoy Tuesday afternoon on a key road 35 miles northwest of Saigon.

Military sources said the ensuing fighting closed the highway between Saigon and Tay Ninh, 50 miles northwest of the capital.

Government commanders ordered South Vietnamese reinforcements into the area, however, and lifted the blockade by mid-morning.

Military sources said three of the six trucks in the convoy were destroyed in the ambush. There were no reports of casualties.

The command reported a sharp increase in the number of Communist attacks across the nation. A spokesman reported 147 raids during the past 24 hours, an increase of 26 from the previous day.

In Cambodia, government forces reported killing 20 rebels Tuesday in two sweeps southwest of Phnom Penh. There were no government losses reported in the fighting near the towns of Takhmau and Tuol Leap.

Tools Stolen

Maurice Cross, 1821 N. Dwight, reported to police the theft of tools valued at $200 from a pickup truck parked at the residence. A lock reportedly had been removed from a tool box.

CHEMIST WARNS

Radiation Screen Faces Danger From Aerosols

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — The earth's radiation screen may be damaged within a few decades by millions of pounds of gases, escaping into the environment each year from aerosol cans and refrigeration units, a chemist warned Tuesday.

There may be an eventual effect on human health, said Dr. F.S. Rowland, professor of chemistry at the University of California at Irvine, who addressed a meeting of the American Chemical Society.

He said the problem involves gases known as fluorocarbons, which are used as propellants in aerosol products such as hair sprays and deodorants and as refrigerants. The gases are manufactured under various trade names.

The flurocarbons themselves are harmless to man.

But Rowland said so much is escaping into the atmosphere that soon the gas molecules will rise to the stratosphere, where sunlight will break them down into fragments. One of the products will be chlorine atoms.

Rowland said the chlorine atoms will react with the ozone; one chlorine atom being able to destroy hundreds or thousands of ozone molecules.

"The amount of fluorocarbon that is now being used is sufficiently large if continued that the steady amount will have an appreciable effect on the ozone layer," he said in an interview.

District Court Jurors Report

In District Court Tuesday several criminal cases originally scheduled for jury trial were tried before District Judge Grainger W. McIlhany as non - jury trials.

Disposition was available on only one case this morning, that of Susie Elois Beck, charged with burglary — entering with intent to commit theft.

She was sentenced to seven years of probation.

Jurors were to report today to resume trials in several other cases.

A court spokesman reported this morning that District Attorney Guy Hardin, because of illness, would not be able to proceed with the prosecution today.

Attempts reportedly were being made to contact County Attorney John Warner as replacement for prosecutor.

Scheduled to appear first today was the trial of Larry Abshier, charged with one count of theft and one count of forgery by passing.

His case had been passed, or continued as of today.

SPS Planning Construction Of Generating Unit

Roy Tolk, chairman and president of the Southwestern Public Service Co., announced today that the completion date for the second 350,000 kilowatt coal - fired generating unit at the company's Harrington Station, near Amarillo, has been moved up from 1979 to 1978.

"The area we serve continues to grow and this means more industry and more people. In order to continue to provide our customers with the electric service they need, we found it necessary to have the second unit at Harrington Station ready a year sooner than we had first planned," Tolk said.

The first coal - fired unit at Harrington Station is now under construction and is scheduled for completion in mid - 1976. It is also a 350,000 kilowatt machine and construction is on schedule.

When both units are completed and on the line, the SWPS system generating capability will be increased to almost 3 - million kilowatts, with the coal - fired units representing 22 percent of the total.

The turbine - generator for the 1978 unit will be made by Westinghouse and the boiler by Combustion Engineering, Inc. and these manufacturers have assured SWPS that the equipment will be available.

Local Officials Give Okay For Burn Seminar

A group of representatives from Pampa businesses, schools and government departments met yesterday and made plans for conducting a burn seminar here under the direction of the Southern Burn Institute and Rehabilitation Center.

At least 25 persons were indicated as being interested in the course, according to Lee Fraser, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Fire Prevention and Safety Committee.

An additional 15 or 20 people could still enroll for the seminar. Persons interested in the course should contact the Chamber office or Fraser.

The two - day seminar will be conducted sometime during November or December.

Dr. R.L. Laycock, local physician, briefed the group on the burn institute he had attended earlier this year at Atlanta, Ga.

A meeting of the Fire Prevention and Safety Committee will be held Sept. 25 in the Chamber office to finalize plans for the observance of Fire Prevention Week in the first week of October.

IN CASE OF AMNESTY

Camp Atterbury Prepared As Center For Deserters

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Though President Ford has not yet announced any amnesty program, army officers have arrived at Camp Atterbury to set up a center for the processing of returning Vietnam era military deserters.

The Army was going ahead with the work in the event the base is designated officially as a processing center.

A White House spokesman said Tuesday President Ford will announce his amnesty policy by the end of the month. Ford last month said he intended to devise a policy of limited amnesty but that he opposes unconditional amnesty.

Camp Atterbury, located near Edinburg some 35 miles south of Indianapolis, has been designated as a receiving station for deserters. It was announced last week that draft dodgers would not be housed at Atterbury.

A contingent of 100 Army officers arrived at Atterbury Tuesday to begin setting up a processing center.

The processing routine would take about four days, but the length of time a deserter would spend at the facility would probably depend on the type of amnesty policy the President announces.

Meanwhile, the Indiana National Guard said it may suspend its training program at Atterbury while the deserters are there.

"We just don't know if it would be in the best interest of the guard to mix our men with the deserters," said Maj. John T. Kallunki, information officer at nearby Fort Benjamin Harrison.

The Army has requested the use of 50 barracks at the camp. They probably could house 3,500 persons.

The camp is on loan to Indiana National Guard units, but is subject to recall by the regular army.

Military personnel would provide security inside the camp grounds, but Indiana state police would be responsible for security outside the facility.

STORES AFLAME

Rioting Erupts In Mozambique

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — Portuguese army commandos and police tried today to put down racial rioting sparked by an abortive white supremist uprising amied at heading off black rule in the African colony.

Rioters looted shops and set stores aflame in Lourenco Marques Tuesday night, touching off an exodus of white settlers from their homes in the capital. Vehicles were stoned and gunfights erupted throughout the city.

Authorities refused to report casualty figures, but government sources said the death toll in street clashes between blacks and whites could run into the dozens.

White rebels seized key installations, including a radio station and the airport, Saturday in a bid to stop Portugal from setting up a black-run, transitional government to rule until independence next year.

The Portuguese government responded by flying in a special commando team from the north to bolster the strength of security forces in the capital.

The white militants, who had declared the colony independent, gave up without a fight when commando-led troops and police moved in Tuesday to break up the four-day rebellion.

Hours later, however, rioting erupted in the capital.

"Don't blame us for the disturbances," a white spokesman said. "It was not our fault. We don't want any violence."

Scores of black-white clashes rocked the city. A white settler, his wife and infant child were killed in one attack. A black was stoned to death and set on fire in another.

Police charged into riot areas several times, firing into the air to scatter looters. Military police in jeeps and armored trucks roamed the streets. A military aircraft droned overhead.

Columns of black smoke rose into the air and individual gunfights erupted in several places, inluding a plush residential area near the seafront.

White shopkeepers fled their homes in crammed vehicles. A trickle of refugees began entering neighboring South Africa.

The New Hampshire State House, completed in 1819, is the oldest capitol in the nation in which a legislature still meets in its original chambers.

FOR CANDIDATE SLATE

Socialists To Go To Court To Gain Listing On Ballots

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Texas Socialist Workers Party Tuesday said it would go to court next week to fight efforts by the secretary of state to keep a slate of socialist candidates off the November ballot.

Secretary of State Mark White said last week that two random samples of 500 names from the party's 55,000 signatures petitioning the party onto the ballot indicated that 73 to 74 per cent were invalid. He said if the sample was legal, the party candidates would be excluded.

Attorney General John Hill Tuesday ruled that the secretary of state in determining which names go on the ballot "may adopt such reasonable means as he feels will be right and proper. In some circumstances the use of statistical sampling may be permissible."

"They didn't fulfill the statutory requirements," Bob Lemons, elections division chief, said in Austin. "We know that the number of valid signatures is substantially less than 27 per cent (of the total names). That's leaning over backwards."

Sherry Smith, socialist candidate for governor, said in a news conference that random samples were haphazard and unconstitutional.

"The principle that every single person's vote counts has been won through the courageous and historic battles of the propertyless, the poor, by blacks and women," Ms. Smith said. "Mark White has placed administrative convenience above fulfillment of due process by disqualifying our petitions after looking at a mere one per cent of the over 55,000 signatures, claiming that he doesn't have enough money or personnel to check them all.

"The first amendment has no price tag. It can't be a sacrificial lamb for the secretary of state's economy drive."

Michael Maness, attorney for the party, said he will file a petition next week with the Texas Supreme Court challenging Hill's opinion.

Ms. Smith said a Washington D. C. appeals court has ruled the use of random samples to determine the validity of voter petitions is unconstitutional because of the "one-man, one-vote" principle.

Indians Claim Treaty Rights Need Assertion

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Two Indians on trial for leading a 71-day takeover last year of Wounded Knee say they were within their rights because of the Great Sioux Treaty of 1868.

"Like our constitutional rights, treaty rights have to be asserted or they will disappear," defense attorney Larry Leventhal said Tuesday in final arguments.

Prosecutors argued in rebuttal that the treaty may have provided a motive, but said the defendants nevertheless violated federal laws hen they took over the small hamlet on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation.

Prosecutor R.D. Hurd said, "Believe it or not, this case is a criminal case, not a philosophical dispute."

The trial of Dennis Banks, 41, a Chippewa from Leech Lake, Minn., and Russell Means, 34, an Oglala Sioux from Porcupine, S.D., has been in progress for eight months. It has included 114 days of testimony from 94 witnesses.

Banks and Means each face five felony charges in connection with the takeover.

Leventhal told the jury "not to believe that Dennis Banks and Russel Means committed a criminally inspired act. They were acting under treaty rights."

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Predictor says its experience has been that market fortunes have been made in buying stocks when they were depressed and no one wanted them. It adds that since there is "no certain way" to catch the "absolute bottom" of the market, the "soundest approach to take after a long decline is to buy stocks representing good value—and then stay with them."

A potential market bottom "of substance" may not be far off, according to Harris, Upham & Co. It adds that possibly following a near-term upward trend, prices again will dip and establish new lows— and such a reaction could be climactic. "But we are becoming more confident that a significant bottom is very near in time," Harris, Upham says.

A small but growing number of issues seem to be tracing out "minor reversal patterns," E.F. Hutton & Co. says. Such a condition, the firm adds, gives these issues the potential for higher prices over the near term though they are "still in the confines of longer term downtrends."

The Lighter Side

By Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first thing to do when the Presidency changes hands is learn the "ins" and "outs" of the new administration.

These things don't really crystalize until the transition, or honeymoon, period is over, but thus far he Ford administration has been fairly easy to catalog.

As a rule of thumb, whatever was "in" in the Nixon administration is now "out."

However, there are a few exceptions and refinements that can be tabulated.

Swimming is "in." Or it would be "in" if there were a place to go in swimming. During the Nixon administration the White House swimming pool was converted to a press room. From whence comes the term "press pool."

The Ford administration denies it is preparing to reclaim the press room for aquatic sports. But some reporters complain it is difficult to work with a lifeguard looking over their shoulders.

Skiing also is "in." But there isn't any place to ski at the White House either. Reports that the Ford Administration might tilt the lanes of the White House bowling alley and use them for ski slopes remain unconfirmed.

Making your own breakfast is "in," as long as it isn't cottage cheese and ketchup, which is "out."

Mel Laird, who was in and out of the Nixon administration, apparently is "in" again. But nobody is quite sure what he is in. Least of all Laird.

Grand Raids is "in." Whittier is "out." cats are "in." Dogs are "out." Episcopalians are "in." Quakers are "out." It's too early to tell about Billy Graham.

Congress definitely is "in." But it was "out" so long it doesn't know how to act.

Republicans in Congress are especially "in," but there are so few of them nobody can tell the difference.

Tape recorders are way "out." Expletives are so far "out" they are being deleted in advance. Plumbers are "out."

Second husband wills everything to ingrates

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for nearly two years. This is the second marriage for both of us. I was a widow with very little money, and he was a widower with quite a lot. We both have married children.

He just told me that he is leaving everything he has to his children. I get nothing. His children practically ignore him. They are just waiting for him to die. On those few occasions when he sees them, they show him no respect or consideration at all. My children treat him much nicer that his own do.

I am not a rich woman, but I made out my will to leave three-fourths of everything I have to my children and one-fourth to him. Should I change my will and leave my children everything?

He is 70, overweight and has high blood pressure. If he dies first and leaves me nothing, I will have to eat up my capital, and I am afraid I won't have enough to bury him. What should I do? REMAINING ANONYMOUS

DEAR REMAINING: Leave everything to your children. If he dies first, his children will be only too happy to bury him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I and our infant daughter recently moved into a new home. A friendly neighbor told me that if I needed a sitter, her 16-year-old daughter, Mary, was available. Last evening I hired Mary from 8 p.m. until 10:30 p.m.

When I left, the baby was asleep, so that all Mary had to do was sit. I instructed her NOT to accept any collect calls because my husband was out of town and the call would be wasted. I told her to help herself to a soft drink and some cookies if she wanted a snack. She said, "No thanks, I'm on a diet." (I believed her because she is terribly overweight.)

When I returned, Mary said, "Oh, your husband called. I forgot and accepted the call."

After she left, I noticed that my drawers had been rummaged through and that a whole month's supply of birth control pills was missing! Later, I found two empty spaghetti cans and the carton from a half gallon of ice cream in the trash.

My question: Should I tell Mary's mother? That little sneak needs to be punished. My husband says to skip it. UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Tell her mother. But not so she'll punish her daughter. (The last thing Mary needs is more punishment; she's already brutally punishing herself!) The girl obviously has some serious emotional problems which desperately require professional treatment. It would be kind of you to urge that mother to get her daughter into therapy. My question: If she were YOUR daughter, wouldn't you want to know?

DEAR ABBY: Is there anything really improper about a single female walking into a top-notch restaurant to lunch or dine alone, aside from the fact that it takes a certain amount of nerve to do so?

I am a lover of good food, and I don't always have an escort to take me where I'd like to dine. However, I wouldn't want to look like I'm trying to pick up someone because I came in alone.

What say you? WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Quit wondering and treat yourself to a lunch or dinner wherever you can afford to go. As long as you mind your own business, you need not worry about giving anyone the wrong impression.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

As a writer, one of the first things I look for in a book is the dedication.

Probably because when I write a book I never know who to blame for the whole mess.

There seems to be a pattern in dedications. Serious authors thank their publishers ("Thanks, Al, Nelson, Little, etc.") Those with especially large books thank their typists. Novelists usually list all of their immediate survivors, while the newest breed in the case of Jeb Stuart Magruder publicly thanked his attorney.

With my last book, "I Lost Everything In The Post - Natal Depression," the printers were breathing down my neck and I still didn't have a dedication page.

"It's simple," said my editor. "Just stop and ask yourself why you wrote the book."

"For the money," I said quickly. "With two kids in college and one at home with an overbite it was either that or raise chinchillas in my home for profit."

In the final clutch, I always end up dedicating my books to my husband, who stubbornly refuses me permission to use his right name.

Recently, he was faced with the problem of a dedication page for his doctorate dissertation. "Try not to be too sloppy with sentiment," I warned. "I mean, just because I am a devoted, indispensable inspiration to your work..."

He handed me a dedication that had been written by Robert K. Roney. It had been reprinted in the April, 1973 issue of Phi Delta Kappan.

Mr. Roney wrote, "This study is entirely a product of the writer's own effort. From its conception to its conclusion he was the only one who really understood the value of his research. To the chairman of the committee must go this researcher's gratitude for his assistance without which the project could have been completed six months earlier. The other members of the committee distinguished themselves only by picking at minute details and harassing this researcher to the very end.

"Special note should be made here that this writer has succeeded despite a nagging wife, three quarrelsome, spoiled children, and parents who quit supporting him many years ago when he reached age 18.

"This study, therefore, is dedicated to the pretty, nameless librarian who helped the writer locate many books and articles including the library's only copy of Volume XII of Research in Education which the chairman of the history department has had checked out since Feb. 18, 1963."

"If you're going to name names," I said, "call me, Ethel."

More patents have been issued to residents of Connecticut in proportion to total population than to those of any other state.

Pletcher-Coonrod Pledge Nuptial Vows In Tulsa

Miss Janet Carol Pletcher and Robert Lee Coonrod, both of Tulsa, Okla., pledged nuptial vows at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 2 at Rose Chapel, Boston Avenue Methodist Church in Tulsa.

Parents of the bride are the Rev. and Mrs. Henry F. Pletcher of Magnolia, Ark. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh S. Coonrod of Downers Grove, Ill.

THE CEREMONY

Rev. Pletcher, father of the bride, pastor of Bethel Community Church, Magnolia, officiated for the double - ring ceremony. Guitarist, David Paton, Tulsa, accompanied Sara Heilbroner, Tulsa, as she sang, "Morning Is Broken," "Wedding Song," and "Follow Me."

The chapel was decorated with three, 15 - branched candelabra entwined with greenery and flanked by two basket arrangements of red roses and fugi mums.

THE BRIDE

The bride wore a formal gown of ivory crepe styled with an empire waistline, high - necked yoke of heavy lace and leg - o - mutton sleeves with insets of lace from shoulder to wrists. She wore a garland of flowers and baby's breath in her hair and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and fugi mums.

ATTENDANTS

Jane Mitchell, matron of honor, was attired in an empire gown of burgandy floral print on ivory back ground styled with a smocked bodice and long full sleeves. She carried a long - stemmed red rose.

Candle lighters were Kevin Pletcher, brother of the bride, Magnolia, and Hugh Coonrod, brother of the bridegroom, Downers Grove.

Dale Allen Coonrod, brother of the bridegroom, Downers Grove, was best man. Mark Keith Pletcher, brother of the bride, Magnolia, and Robert Butcher, Coldwater, Kan., seated wedding guests.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in Williamsburg Apartments Club Room. A blue cloth, overlaid with lace, covered the serving table and which was decorated with an arrangement of red rosebuds and white mums.

The four - tiered ivory colored wedding cake was topped with red roses and white fugi mums. Carol Arensman, Tulsa, served cake and Myrna Sumner, Tulsa, poured punch. Registering guests was Sarah Coonrod, sister of the bridegroom, Downers Grove. Other members of the houseparty were Karla Gibson and Donna Farrar, both of Magnolia, and Donna Thomas, Tulsa.

For the wedding trip, the bride wore a yellow pant suit.

The couple will reside in Tulsa.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride is a graduate of Oral Roberts University, Tulsa, with a BA degree in social work.

The bridegroom, a graduate of ORU, with a BS degree in business administration, is presently employed by Rasum Communications, Tulsa.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, Sept. 12

Your birthday today: Initiate a quest this year for deeper understanding and find a broader base for business and career enterprises. Relationships are no problem except for everyone's tendency to demand more of your time than you can give. Today's natives have a flair for telling long stories and including something for everyone.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Romantic episodes are featured. Engagements made now promise a long and happy experience. See what you can do to improve family situation.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Maintenance includes more than just the expense of repairs. Upgrade the value of what you have by taking care of it. Relax and listen to good music in later hours.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Go ahead with an artistic project; let some of your recently acknowledged inspiration surface. The time you put in on planning now is soon well rewarded.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: You more readily spend money. Collect anything outstanding, be willing to do something to fulfill current obligations. Invite friends to your home for a light evening.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Keep your eyes and mind open to learn; revise ideas and achieve new skills. Compare notes with your workmates, but realize that they cannot duplicate your style.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Guide a program already in progress toward more constructive results. Projected enterprises require further planning, do not yet attract full support.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Be casual in today's activities. It will profit you in the long run to build better relationships rather than complete business deals.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Advance your personal enterprises, but don't use halfway measures; make full use of public facilities and institutions wherever you need them.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Study your situation. Get a second opinion on technical advice recently received. Clear up confusion. New studies and fresh starts come naturally—get busy!

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Confer with all concerned on group resources and how they are applied. Make corrections, tidy up and discard possessions that are no longer useful.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Renew contacts with long-time friends who live far away. Fulfill neglected responsibility where possible. Reinvest all of today's ready cash for later returns.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Get busy early to bring pending transactions to a prompt and reasonable conclusion. Review costs and terms before renewing any arrangements. Press on with what's most important to you.

Consumer Market Report

COLLEGE STATION — More "veal, baby beef and heavy calf" is being offered in the markets because of the high cost of animal feed — and this trend is likely to continue, Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt reported this week.

In addition, most meat prices are trending upwards, according to the consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

"Chuck roasts are frequently featured at thrifty prices, and it's a good time to buy extra roasts for the freezer," she added.

Pork prices are seasonally high, Mrs. Clyatt noted.

"Pork values, generally, are found on hams, picnics, Boston butt roasts, shoulder steaks and liver."

The specialist cited vegetables as other economical "buys" of the week.

Most economical are squash, cabbage, carrots, dry yellow onions and cooking greens.

"Potato prices are down with good selections from the new crop.

"Fruits in good supply include prunes, seedless grapes, nectarines, plums, cantaloupes and watermelons."

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS: These are okra days.

In choosing okra, pick pods that snap easily or puncture on slight pressure. Store okra in the refrigerator, but don't plan on keeping it more than a week.

SNAZZY JOCK

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — Soccer player Franz Beckenbauer and conductor Herbert von Karajan are among the best dressed men in West Germany, according to the Institute for Men"s Fashion.

The list included a prominent TV personality, a disc jockey and politicians. Beckenbauer, 27, considered one of the best players in the world, skippered West Germany to the 1974 World Championship in July.

Economy And Defense

The dictionary defines "dilemma" as a choice between two alternatives which are or appear equally unfavorable.

The ancients pictured this unhappy set of circumstances as the horns of a bull; the unfortunate victim could take his pick upon which to be tossed.

President Ford and his thin line of inflation fighters in Congress are confronted with just this sort of problem. They advoacte a cut in expendituers as a means of valving off the flow of deficit Federal Reserve banknotes. But most of them happen also to be champions of a strong military service. So when they are asked about the defense budget, they appear to reverse themselves. They seem to want economy across the board except for that program (national defense) that they particularly favor.

Their predicament is like that of the proverbial witness who is required to answer "yes" or "no" as to whether he has stopped beating his wife. The literally exonerating answer is "no" because if a person never has started, he cannot be said to have stopped. Yet the answer conveys by loose interpretation the exact opposite.

Neither the President nor the Congressmen have time to reform the existing thought pattern of the American people. They have to take it like it is. Just as a witness can hardly afford to answer "no" because he wouldn't have time to explain, so the would - be budget cutters don't have an extensive oportunity to show that cutting expenditures, including defense expenditures to some extent, is the pathway to both a reliable economy and a supportable military.

What counts so far as the military is concerned is not how many dollars are spent, but the capability of those dollars to buy; that is, the purchasing power of each dollar. In fact, it can be said that the stable dollar is the first line of American defense. The dollar is the representative of the economy. No defense system can be strong unless it is based on a strong economy.

The significance of that fact is tremendous, provided it is understood. It means that the interests of the pensioner, the retired Social Security recipient, the businessman, the working man, together with that of the military service, are one and the same — so far as the dollar is concerned. Specifically, this interest is that federal expenditures be reduced so that the dollar will represent a fixed amount of buying power.

Of course, practical methods are rquired to accomplish the desired reduction. No sound person would suggest that military expenditures be completely stopped until the economy catches up. On the other hand, no advocate of defense readiness would rationally insist that the private sector should halt while military development goes forward. The two are like a team of horses. If they are to proceed, they must move together. In the context of our times, national defense is a necessity. Without that, nothing would be left to argue about. Equally, true however, no productivity, no defense.

Signs are abundant that the Ford administration knows what must be done to stabilize the purchasing power of the dollar. There is more than a hint in Congress that the lawmakers themselves have the picture. Some of the liberal economists say they have the picture. The bureaucrats — local, state, and national — who expect to retire shortly on comfortable pensions have every cause of self - interst to desire a stable dollar. At the present, the greatest benefit that any individual can bestow upon himself and his fellow countrymen is to increase his understanding of the economic facts that pertain to his own future.

Which comes first the "defense - budget egg" or the "private production chicken"? The delemma is only in appearances. They come together. No chicken, no egg; no egg, no chicken. Spelled out, that means paring, postponing, stretching out of federal spending - including some of the military expenses. If a constant dollar is the first line of defense, public awareness is the sentinel at the top of the tree.

"I assure you, sir, I coudn't be more sympathetic as to the condition of your portfolio."

INSIDE WHITE HOUSE

The Anti-Inflation Summits

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — Trying to cover the White House anti - inflation super - summit an all the little summits is like trying to referee an octopus wrestling match. And then there are my beloved shadowy sources, the eminence grise economists who talk happily of a "grab bag of micro - issues."

But basically, after talking with the oraganization men, the input team and those in charge of getting all those sensitive national leaders of labor, industry and agriculture in to the proper front row seats so no one's feelings are hurt, it all boils down to this:

President Ford hopes to make the whole process one of national common fact - finding - and not fault - finding.

Thus when the super - summit anti - inflation conference of some 800 of the land's leading minds adjourns the late afternoon of Sept. 28, the world will know that it literally will take several years to slow the rocketing inflation. Repeat — several years.

There will be no solutions.

The best which can be wrought will be some mechanism, some methodology, some commission to seek a series of solutions, a way of selective and strategic interventions in critical areas, a common effort to reduce prices, interest rates and wage demands.

Among the "macro - options" — the big choices — will be a drive to increase energy supplies, by increasing utlitiy rates to the consumer so the power companies can pay more for fuel so there will be an incentive to bring the coal, gas and oil out of the ground. And then a parallel effort to try to get a cut in oil prices, which are basic.

There's much talk of increasing the money supply, 4 per cent to 7½ per cent range — on which, in view of my own checking account balance, I'm no authority.

Yet the point being made in White House circle — and indeed it's true — is that Operation Summit already is a success.

The isolation of presidential decision - making has been smashed.

For the first time in years Congress and the executive branch are working together. And the labor leaders are in on the act. The joint Congressioanl - White House summit steering committee has been meeting regularly. Sen. Hubert Humphrey and the Ford administration are breakfasting like Richard Burton and his latest. The national AFL-CIO has been dispatching its young Secretary Treasurer Lane Kirkland to confer with economic counselor Ken Rush and summit executive director Bill Seidman in the White House. Thus the political climate is right — and right for action.

President Ford decided to chair two mini - meetings — one with the econmists and one with labor — for good reasons. The economists will give him his micro - and macro - options, and he will be able to face the nation's top 15 or 20 most powerful labor leaders on the morning of Sept. 11 in the Cabinet Room and tell them like it is in his very own fashion. After that it will be up to them to go out and tell their people to cool it.

They'll be told the truth — and it is hoped that when all the mini - summit conferees gather in the big open mass meeting under President Ford's chairmanship on Sept. 27, while the TV cameras grind and the print newsmen scribble, the hurting truth will be observed and absorbed by the American public.

There are no panaceas. Dollar - dribbling inflation is worsening daily.

There is need for personal restraint, money restraint and ever - increasing supplies of necessities — which means speeded productivity, or a fullday's work for a full day's pay.

Ford and company will tell everyone they'll try voluntary action. But no one expects this to work.

If it doesn't, regardless of what Jerry Ford is saying, there will eventually be the toughest wage and price controls any nation has yet had.

Obviously the new Council on Wage and Price Stability will fail. First, the Congress unwittingly and in haste wrote a bad bill. It will be a silly operation. It should be redrawn. It will have no prestige. How can it jawbone? How can it admonish big labor and capital?

The bill as passed and signed was fouled up. The new Wage - Price Council is staffed at too low a level. So it will be sitting in the White House with a small band of monitors directed by a secondary echelon chief and will be as futile as my trying to outpunch Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier in one ring.

So no labor or industrialist force will heed. It will be much the same in other fields. And the best the White House will be able to do will be to go into the immediate crisis areas such as food, housing, construction, fuel, etc.

Thus the mini - summits become vital. Every force and power block in every national phase and area will be faced right on by the Preisdent or his surrogates. Business and labor alike will be told they'll have to come up with their own answers.

They will be told that actually the budget can't be cut effectively until the 1976 - 77 fiscal year. It takes time to slow down and hush the hollering for federal spending.

How can all this be done? By getting the super - summit to agree to let a powerful tri - partite government - labor - management commision take over, take the stick out of the closet and clobber whenever necessary. And this is just the beginning.

WEATHER FORECASTERS:

If It Isn't Fair, It'll Be Cloudy Or Something

By WILLIAM RUSHER

It is notoriously difficult to do anything about the weather, but I have a concrete proposal concerning the Weather Bureau: abolish it, or at least forbid it to make any forecast more than twelve hours in advance.

When satellite photogaraphy began producing all those dramtic pictures of cloud masses over various parts of the United States, and those self - assured gentlemen on television started explaining how this cold air mass was moving in here, but would shortly collide with that low pressure ridge of warm air over there, thus infallibly producing rain or whatever, I was duly impressed. It all seemed so simple. But we have had several years' experience with the New Meteorology now, and I cannot find that it has advanced the science of weather forecasting at all. As a matter of fact, it may be ruining it.

Take Labor Day, for example. I had planned a round - trip drive of 180 miles for that particular day and was naturally interested in what the weather would be like. The New York Weather Bureau was nothing if not cooperative: it began forecasting for Labor Day four days in advance. And in those four days it predicted at one time or another, for September 2, everything but snow. On the preceding Thursday it warned us that it would rain steadily all day on Monday. On Friday it depressed and (and impressed) me by sticking grimly to that forecast. On Saturday, in a dramtic change of heart, it relented and declared that Labor Day would be fair.

On further reconsideration it announced on Sunday that it would be partly cloudy Monday morning but partly sunny Monday afternoon (if you see the distinction; I don't). As it tunred out, Labor Day in my area was solidly overcast from sunrise to sunset, but with scarcely any rainfall whatever.

Perhaps our meteorolgists would be better off sticking to the British system. Britain lies in a region where the weather is chancy at best; hence the old saying, "If you don't like the British weather, wait just a minute." Its prognosticators have risen to the challenge by inventing an all - purpose weather forecast, as follows: "Cloudy and rainy, with fair intervals." This is rountinely alternated with another which amounts to the same thing: "Fair, but with some clouds, and rain in patches." As you can see, either of these two forecasts covers almost every conceivable contingency save Hurricane Carmen or a new Ice Age.

Or there is the Mexican system, as reported to me by a longtime resident. There the weather bureau, instead of sticking out its neck and venturing a prediction, confines itself to reporting existing conditions: "It's raining." "It's fair," etc. To be sure, this technique is open to the criticism that it doesn't tell the visitors anything they can't see for themselves by just looking out a window, but at least it avoids misleading anyone.

Actually, weather forecasting for many areas of the United States isn't, or at least ought not to be, all that big a problem. The prevailing winds are westerly, and over much of the continent 75 per cent of the weather is exactly what it was yesterday 500 miles to the west. In such areas, a forecaster could rack up an enviable score for the price of one long - distance phone call per day.

Elsewhere the problem is trickier. New York, for example, is situated right where the continental westerlies (usually composed of cool, dry air with high barometric pressures) frequently encounter warm, moisture - packed lows moving up the coast from the subtropics. This can produce some interesting but highly unpredictable combinations. Under such circumstances meteorologists would be well advised to forego long - range forecasts and stick to the next twelve hours - which, heaven knows, are likely to produce suprises enough.

Beyond such short ranges, weather forecasting in many areas is right in there with astrology, investment letters, tarot cards, public opinion polls, tea leaves, and Jeanne Dixon. They all purport to tell us what will happen in the future — but the truth is they just don't know.

Let me tell you something that we Israelis have against Moses. He took us 40 years through the desert in order to bring us to the one spot in the Middle East that has no oil.
—Premier Golda Meir.

OUTRIDER

Conditions For Amnesty

By GARRY WILLS

The idea of public service as a reduced sentence for war resisters is very like the "workfare" proviso that George Shultz put in the Moynihan plan for a guaranteed annual income. That was a sop to right wingers, who hate the idea of anybody's "getting something for nothing." Welfare recipients were to be forced to work or to take work training.

The thing was impractical from the start. Unemployment was already high, not for lack of the will to work but for lack of jobs. The training centers would have to be set up, and employers begged to find room for the products of those centers. The decision apparatus would have been created for choosing who should work and at what, who should stay home with children, or who would man day care centers. It was a good example of the opponents of "big government" trying to set up government snoops and slave - herders and bureaucrats because they dislike the poor more than they dislike government interference.

The same problems arise for putting expatriates to work as the price of their re - entry. Where would we find the jobs? Are we to put people out of work creating special kinds of jobs for these men? It is suggested that they do social work. Who will support them while they do? The government, which is trying to cut its budget? Public works are already being suggested for the work force laid off by the current high unemployment rate — are we to preempt those jobs with young men able to find work or schooling elsewhere? The desire to punish others just leads us to self punishment.

Or take the matter of oaths of loyalty, declarations of penitence, admissions of guilt. The attempts to extract these from men who return would have only one effect — it would keep the most principled war resisters, who feel no guilt, out of the country. Only they have the conscience and discipline to refuse such an offer. In other words, we would screen out the best and accept back those of slack conscience, who had a merely selfish desire to run away.

But short of such a self - defeating test, how does one probe the motives of those who absented themselves from the Vietnam War? Are we to have tribunals of Solomons, going over the work of detectives, case by case? Using what norms?

The odd thing is that the American people themselves are divided on the proper tests for repatriation. Some would approve of a test that kept the ideological opponents of the war in Canada or in the underground, considering them the hard and principled anti - patriots. But this makes the test for repatriation a man's opinion, which goes against the First Amendment to the Constitution. And it leads to the absurdity of accepting a merely lazy draft dodger back and refusing readmittance to men who said in the middle of the war what many of the war's first advocates were saying by the end of the Sixties.

All right, should we admit back the hardest war critics? Aside from the difficulty of deciding who these are, we again seem to be rewarding an opinion rather than punishing an objective act of crime — and that, too, goes against the First Amendment.

The truth is that no good moral sense can be made out of the Vietnam War, which never had any moral sense — and it is for just such situations that amnesty (forgetfulness) was devised. It wipes the incident out, so far as legal guilt or innocence goes; pretends, for the courts, that it never happened. That is the solution we must eventually reach.

DUNAGIN'S PEOPLE

"HELLO, I'M TAKING A POLL ON HOW PEOPLE FEEL ABOUT INVASION OF THEIR PRIVACY..."

The Right Answer

Q. The experts have just released an incredible report on solving the problems of crime. How much did these soft-headed recommendations cost us? —B.L., Egan, La.

A. You are undoubtedly referring to the account prepared by the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals, a lengthy report which was released last month suggesting that prison sentences should only be imposed as a last resort for the most vicious of criminals. And of course the prisons should be made coed, with the inmates given all sorts of rights and privileges, including high pay and freedom of assembly. Most convicted offenders should go free, with perhaps a fine or probation at most, said this blue-ribbon panel, which was funded by a $1.75 million federal grant given through the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (L.E.A.A.).

Everyone knows how difficult it is for your average hoodlum today, what with the rack and thumbscrews. Here, for example, is a case of heartless criminal justice reported in the New York Daily News for October 10, 1973:

"Three teenage gang members who set fire to a Brooklyn apartment house to 'get even' with another youth, but instead killed six persons, were turned loose by a Family Court judge with the simple instructions: Get out of town." On May 8, 1973, at 2:39 A.M., the three budding gangsters had set fire to each end of the apartment house, trapping the residents on the second and third floors. Flames proved too intense for either policemen or firemen to make a rescue. Among those burned to death were two children aged five and three. One police source said: "They knew they were going to kill everybody in the building . . .but they just did not care."

Members of the federal blue-ribbon panel, who know there is no such thing as a bad boy, would apparently make release of such criminals a matter of course.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

TV In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — At its best, CBS's "Sons and Daughters" Wednesday night has all the elements of "American Graffiti," only without the music. At its worst, it dips into schlock nostagia.

But the overall impression of this 60-minute look at growing up in the 1950's was that is was a well written and acted television show.

"Son and Daughters," which is not a spin off from D.H. Lawrence's "Sons and Lovers," focuses on a pair of Eisenhower era teen-agers, Jeff Reed (Gary Frank) and Anita Cramer (Glynnis O'Connor).

The premier episode at 8 p.m. EDT, entitled "The Locket," centers around the effects this piece of jewelry has on the characters.

What takes "Sons and Daughters" out of the realm of ABC's "Happy Days" is that this program focus on the human element, rather that on the props of the 1950s —the songs, the cars, and the outlandish dress and dialogue. The film, "American Graffiti" had all the props of nostalgia, but it also had flesh and blood characters.

"Sons and Daughters" also looks at some interesting aspects of teen-age life:

—Going steady and what it means to a sensitive person.

—Divorce and its effects on the child and parents.

—And peer approval.

There are, of course, some elements of schlock theater in the show. One scene, where Jeff's buddies buy a "stag" film to cheer Jeff up after Anita refuses the locket, is taken from the film, "Summer of 42." Instead of a "blue movie," the teen-agers in "Summer of 42" wanted to buy contraceptives.

Then there are some brushes of the all-wise parent of "Father Knows Best."

But these blemishes are not overwhelming.

"Sons and Daughters" is so good at points that escapes the '50s and could have taken place in any era.

CBS's "Manhunter," which premiers Wednesday at 10 p.m. EDT, is a Depression era version of "Wanted Dead or Alive" or "Have Gun Will Travel."

Ken Howard stars as an exMarine, Dave Barrett, who because of the death of a friend in a bank robbery, becomes a bounty hunter who criss crosses the country after the gunmen of the 1930s.

In the first episode, Barrett takes on the "Ma Gantry" gang, a tommygun toting band of train robbers. (This is a thinly disguised version of Ma Barker and her clan —only they robbed banks.)

Ida Lupino guest stars in this episode and her performance falls terribly below her role as the gun moll in "High Sierra," with Humphrey Bogart. But she looks splendid and utters the best comment about Howard's performance:

"Clumsy Lummox."

The best performance of the show easily goes to Tim O'Connor, who plays a hustling reporter, Ben Marks, who records Barrett's successes against crime. He has the best trench coat and slouch hat routine since Boggie said goodbye to Ingrid Bergman in "Casablanca."

The entire show, which was filmed near Denver, is a standard Quinn Martin (The FBI) production that concentrates on action rather that motive.

A decent film on the subject of crime in the 1930s, such as "Bonnie and Clyde" would give you a look into the souls of the real victims of crime, the criminals.

"Manhunter" doesn't even squint at it.

Hofheinz Says Sick Firemen Require Proof

HOUSTON (UPI) — Mayor Fred Hofheinz said Tuesday he would not tolerate a wildcat sickout by firefighters in the South's largest city.

Hofheinz, in a news conference during the second day of the sickout, said 224 firemen who called in sick must produce a doctor's certificate within 24 hours. If not, the firemen will have their pay docked along with the threat of additional disciplinary action.

The firemen are asking for a reduction of the work week from 56 to 52 hours, a 20 per cent pay hike and a separate division for emergency medical technicians who operate fire department ambulances.

"The city of Houston has never had a pattern of public service strikes in its history and this administration does not intend to tolerate the development of that pattern now," Hofheinz said. "There may be legitimate grievances, but no grievance justifies a strike. I am most concered that this city not be put in a position of danger."

Roland J. Lawrence, a leader of the protesting firemen, said participating men would help fight fires if necessary.

"We won't leave the city unprotected," Lawrence said. "We'll show citizens how to hook up the equipment and we'll supply the dangerous part where they might get hurt. But it will be up to the citizens to provide the manpower."

Fire Chief Johnny Little said 75 Civil Defense auxiliary volunteer firemen and 50 cadets and staff from the Fire Department Academy would work during sickout. He also said he would ask for help from fire departments manned by employes of the industries along the Houston ship channel.

Hill Wants Postponement In Juvenile Home Order

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Attorney General John Hill has asked U. S. District Judge William Wayne Justice for an indefinite stay of his order calling for sweeping reforms in the Texas Youth Council's juvenile detention centers until an appeal is completed.

Hill's petition filed Tuesday said to require the order to be complied with before the appeal is decided "is to put the legal cart before the horse."

Justice on Aug. 30 gave the Texas Youth Council 30 days to present a plan for changes in the system of juvenile detention. The order called for the eventual closing of the two largest detention centers in Gatesville.

Hill has said he will appeal the court's order to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, questioning Justice's authority to force the Texas Youth Council to adopt policies even if it may agree with them.

"It makes no sense to require defendants (the youth council) to participate in the development of a plan to effectuate this district court's order, all of which efforts would then there-after be made moot by an appellate court's ruling that the case must be heard by a three - judge court of that other basic legal issues has been erroeneously decided," Hill said Tuesday.

However, Rep. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, the chairman of House Human Resources Committee, asked the Texas Youth Council to implement most of the court's order wpile the appeal is being considered.

"Even though you have decided to appeal, it is my hope that this will not be allowed to stand in the way of making changes which the court found necessary," he said.

Truan said he disagreed with the decision to appeal Justice's ruling.

GOVERNORS WARN

Organized Crime A Big Threat

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The nation's Southern governors, warned of a mounting threat to their states by organized crime, apparently are ready to adopt a resolution calling for statewide grand juries and legalized wiretaps in each state to fight criminal activities.

Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, chairman of the resolutions committee of the 10th annual Southern Governor's Conference, said he expected little opposition to the resolution dealing with organized crime during the conference's closing session today.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley appeared before the governors to discuss organized crime before Carter called for a vote on the crime resolution.

The governors also drafted resolutions calling for adoption of a national energy policy, and urging the federal government to draft legislation providing for reimbursement of states for past and future expenses involved in developing and administering energy conservation and allocation programs.

The energy resolution also called for deregulation of oil and gas prices, noting that deregulation would stimulate supply and bring demand closer into bounds.

Today's session ended three days of discussions of politics and state policies for the southern governors, who reacted sharply Tuesday to reports that President Ford was considering a blanket pardon for Watergate defendants.

"I would hate to see a blanket pardon of all those who have committed a political crime," said Gov. John C. West of South Carolina.

Carter said such action by Ford would be a serious intrusion into the criminal justice system.

"It would destroy the confidence people have built up in the fairness of the administration of the law, and carve out a special spot for a group of highly placed republican functionaries within the previous White House family as those who were absolved of any crime no matter how serious an offense they may have committed, when the rest of the 200 million people of this nation would have been susceptible to penalties for the same violations of the law," Carter said.

Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana also opposed a blanket pardon of Watergate defendants.

"I don't think a convicted felon should get a pardon just because Nixon got one," he said.

Rangers Hunt For Alien

INGRAM, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Rangers on horseback and using bloodhounds tracked the rugged Texas hill country today for a Mexican alien who allegedly shot a sheriff's deputy.

Deputies Scott Henderson and Dale Black received a disturbance call at the ranch of Justice of the Peace E. C. Puryear.

"When Dale went into the barn, he shot him with a 22 rifle at short range," said deputy Eleen Brown. "He has a rifle and a pistol."

Black was listed in good condition at a Santa Rose hospital with a bullet wound in the head.

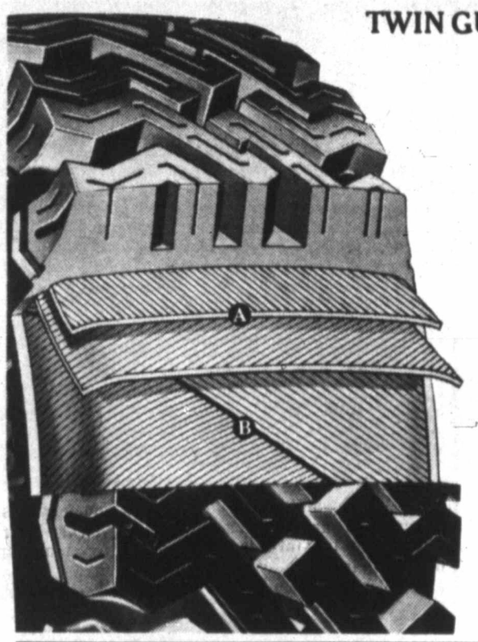

Mrs. Brown said in addition the Rangers, Department of Public Safety officers, and deputies from surrounding counties joined in the search. She said Interstate 10 was blocked off by DPS roadblocks.

"It's so hilly and rocky you can hide in any crack you can find," Mrs. Brown said.

Bronchiectasis Common Problem

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please write on bronchiectasis. My doctor says I have it.

At times, mostly at night when I lie down, I cough up some foamy, salty - tasting fluid. I also have a tightness in my chest in the late evening and at night.

This all started after I had a very bad cold about three years ago. Could muscles or nerves be the problem? I am 39. — Mrs. L.M.

Guess I haven't discussed bronchiectasis lately — and it is a pretty common problem. It's a disorder of the bronchial tubes. They become dilated in a cylindrical or sac - like form. The walls are damaged and the normal mechanism for drainage of secretions is destroyed.

Your bad cold may well have been at least part of the cause. The condition occurs mostly in persons who have had repeated lung infections or who smoke heavily.

The result of the condition is a puddling and accumulation of secretions, a cough with usually copious foul sputum — the puddled material is a convenient place for germs to multiply, recurrent fevers are common. Bronchiectasis also is the commonest cause of lung hemorrhages.

Infections can be subdued with antibiotics but are likely to reappear. A maneuver called "postural drainage" will give temporary relief by getting rid of some of the secretions and pus.

This is done by means of a board ("slant board" or an ironing board, or similar) set at an angle of about 25 degrees. The patient lies on it, with his head at the lower end, for a few minues four or five times a day to let the matter in the bronchial tubes drain toward the mouth so it can be coughed out.

As a patient gets used to this simple technique he can increase the time and drain out more material.

In severe cases, especially if infection or hemorrhage is quite disturbing, the affected portion of the lung may be removed surgically.

Diagnosis: routine X-ray may not show much, but a special X - ray procedure called bronchography will give a definite diagnosis and also define the extent of the trouble. A special substance that will show up in X - rays is introduced into the bronchial tubes and the lung is "mapped."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the difference between a cyst and a tumor? — H.G.

A cyst is a sac which contains fluid or some semi - solid substance. A tumor is an unwarranted growth of cells that serves no useful purpose.

The cyst is usually moveable, and the tumor, since it is usually embedded in the surrounding tissue, is not. Thus, the cyst is much easier to remove surgically than is the tumor, which must be cut away from surrounding tissue.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read about a person that had glaucoma and was told that coffee and tea were stimulants and could raise the eye pressure. I am blind in one eye (since birth) and drink six to ten cups of coffee a day and am concerned about it. — Mrs. J.A.

But do you have glaucoma? If you do, don't overdo the coffee and have whatever other treatment your doctor prescribes. If you don't have glaucoma, then there is no problem except that generally 10 cups of coffee is excessive.

If you don't know whether you have glaucoma, then I suggest, particularly since you have only one eye, that you be tested for glaucoma to be safe.

Dear Doctor: If a woman had a series of rabies shots when she was young, does that mean she can never become pregnant? — Ms. G.A.

No.

Arthritis suffers can be helped. Dr. Thosteson's booklet discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medication. For a copy of "How You Can Control Arthritis," write to Dr. George C. Thosteson at Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120 enclosing a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Don't Trust Dame With Diary

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — You can never trust a dame who keeps a diary, as Nelson Rockefeller will here discover.

Candy Jones, the famous model and radio chatterer, keeps one. She has entries back to the days when President Ford was a Conover model and partner of her late husband Harry Conover.

The other day she showed her husband Long John Nebel an entry for July 21, 1959. She and the new governor, Nelson Rockefeller, were co - christeners with Mamie Eisenhower of the world's first atomic merchant marine ship. Candy's Conover Model offices were across the street from Rockefeller's campaign headquarters. Her models carried posters saying "Rocky's Our Man."

In appreciation, the new Governor invited Candy to lunch. Woman - like, she asked many questions.

"You've got everything," she said. "What is your big ambition?"

"I'd like another house," he said.

"But you've houses galore" — and she thought of all the estates and private homes.

"This is a special house," he said. "It's the shade."

"The shade?"

"The house I would like to have would be all white."

"Would that house be in Washington?" asked Candy who certainly did catch on quick.

"That's the house I would like to have," admitted Nelson Rockefeller, 15 years ago.

Thanks, thanks, Liza Minnelli, dear, for confirming our item a whole month ago that you and Jack Haley Jr., the doll, would get married Sept. 15. We're always happy to be able to brag we had it right and had it firstest.

Richard Nixon is "very annoyed" at talk of selling his memoirs for $2 million. I'm told by one of the Nixon circle who's burning at literary agent Scott Meredith who says that while he has no authorization from Nixon, he got inquiries from "somebody very close to Nixon who had acted for him before in a matter related to a literary project."

Nixon friends say Nixon will do the book "eventually" but insist that "nobody representing Nixon ever sent out feelers for offers."

Cyril Ritchard, after an attack that put him in a Hollywood hospital, wanted something to eat. "Sorry, you're on a liquid diet," a nurse said. "In that case," he said, "bring me a double scotch - and - soda."

Omaha beauty Julie Wilson got such ovations at the intimate Brothers & Sisters Club that they should make it "the Club Julie Wilson" as they once honored Helen Morgan. Such bravos for "Most Gentlemen Don't Like Love" and her boy accompanist Wm. Roy ... Julie's ex, Mike McAloney, is romancing Ann Blyth ... Joel Grey took his family to see "Candide" for the third time: "Frankly, I really came for the free peanuts."

Show Biz Quiz: In what two films did James Cagney portray George M. Cohen?

A famed entertainer's fuming — says his best dramatic scenes were trimmed from his new film ... Producer Ray Stark claims his toughest job in filming the Fanny Brice bio, "Funny Lady," was picking the girl to play Fanny's dtr. — who is now Stark's wife. (He chose Samantha Huffaker) ... "Good Evening," the Peter Cook - Dudley Moore hit moves to a bigger B'way theater next month.

Rodney Dangerfield will finally get some "Respect" — the word'll be spelled out by a marching band when he appears at half - time at the Alabama - LSU game Nov. 9 ... Adolph Marinai, reopening his Asti's restaurant, advised his waiters, "Get rid of your vacation suntans — nobody tips a rested, wealthy - looking waiter!" ... Charlotte Rampling's salary soared to 250 Gs a film since "Night Porter," high for an actress by European standards.

Under Twenty

DEAR ASTRID
By ASTRID CARSON

Dear Astrid:

I've got a problem with my parents. Every time I use the telephone I go upstairs to talk. When they notice I am not downstairs, they run upstairs and start yelling, saying if I can't talk downstairs then I am talking about something bad and shouldn't be talking at all. They say if I can't talk in front of them then I can't use the phone.

Well, the trouble is I did once and the next thing I knew my mother was talking to a neighbor about it. It happened twice before. I have tried to talk to them but it is no use. Do you think they are right? What can I do?

Tired

Dear Tired:

The fact that you want some privacy certainly isn't proof that what you are talking about is "bad." It isn't so much a question of whether or not they are right as it is a problem you have to solve.

If they cut you off from the phone, there really isn't much you can do, is there? Your mother's gossiping is, of course, an infringement on your privacy. You should try to talk to her and make her understand that there are some things you'd just as soon not have spread around the neighborhood. Do it easily and gently to let her know that is why you use the upstairs phone.

Another excellent approach is to be completely open with parents. Volunteer information, tell them who you are going to call. The more they know (and it is usually harmless) the less they'll be concerned and want to know.

It is a shame they immediately assume the worst. All you can do is hope to convince them by your actions and your openness that you have nothing to hide.

Dear Astrid:

I have a very embarrasing problem. I have ugly hands. I am continually biting my nails. I'm so ashamed for anyone to see them. It's especially embarrassing when I'm holding hands with my boyfriend. Ive tried everything to have long pretty nails, but nothing works. Please help.

Nail-Biter

Dear Biter: The usual reason for nail-biting is nervousness and insecurity. Try to figure out why you bite yours and realize that all you are doing is increasing your problem. The only person who can stop it is you.

Try the alcoholics anonymous approach by stopping one day at a time. Determine you won't bite them today and then reinforce yourself tomorrow. Begin soaking your cuticles, manicuring your nails, pampering your fingers and hands. Visualize how beautiful they will look a week or two from now.

When the compulsion strikes, you say, "I don't choose to bite my nails." Stop one chew at a time and one day at a time and you'll lick the problem. That is, if you really want to.

Dear Astrid:

I feel that I'm being treated unfairly by my parents. I'm 15 and the oldest of six children and I wish I were dead. I hate my mother and my father. I've hardly got any friends because of them. So, why should I go on living?

Dead Cause

Dear Cause:

The oldest child often bears a big burden in a big family. Being the frontrunners, they have to work harder for freedom. In addition they often are loaded with responsibilities for younger members of the family and household chores.

If the situation is as bad as you feel it is, there is one consolation; you'll be the first to get out on your own! There will be times, such as now, when you are depressed by your life, but giving it up isn't any answer. There are certainly times when something you do or something that happens makes you feel life is worth living.

You should try to turn yourself outward and not spend so much time bemoaning your situation. You can make friends and share with them. You must stop feeling sorry for yourself and do everything you can to make your situation tolerable until you are free and on your own.

YOU CAN GROW YOUR FAMILY'S GROCERIES FOR $100 A YEAR

By J. SHUTTLEWORTH

As I'm sure you know, a terrible drought has ravaged north - central Africa for the past six years. This season's life - giving monsoons have been unusually light throughout most of India (while, paradoxically, one eastern section of that country has experienced catastrophic floods.).

Even here in the United States — breadbasket of the world — a late spring and dry summer have critically reduced the projected 1974 harvest. The expected corn crop alone is now down nearly a third from early spring forecasts.

To compound matters, climatologists tell us that this is only the beginning. That the 1930 - 1960 period witnessed the best weather this planet will enjoy for the next ten decades.

Add in the fact that tens of millions of the earth's people are already malnourished and that the planet's human population is growing at a nearly explosive rate.

Or that almost all the world's best farmland is now in use. Or that urban sprawl is gobbling up great chunks of acreage every year. Or that most of the planet's population expects to eat more and better food in the future than it currently eats.

We are, in other words, in trouble. If you think the prices of meat and produce are high now ... just wait a couple of years. You haven't seen anything yet.

Grow Produce

On the other hand, there's a fellow out in Boulder, Utah - who claims that any average family (mother, father and two or three children) can grow nearly all the produce they need for only $100 a year. The man's name is Clifford Ridley and he's already proven that he knows what he's talking about.

Cliff is one of this country's most famous commercial vegetable growers. He grew up on a farm in the Southwest and, at the age of 18, earned the Arizona Star Farmer Award.

He later served three consecutive years as Chapter President of the Future Farmers of America and — while still in his early 20s — was made manager of thousands of acres for the John Norton Farms.

Ridley soon went out on his own and, for 12 years, enjoyed great success as a commercial producer of vegetables in the Chino, Ariz. area. During that period, he became interested in growing produce in giant greenhouses under controlled conditions.

Eventually Cliff pioneered a superior method of cultivating vegetables in this manner.

A year or two ago — while still a young man — Clifford Ridley retired. Not to a life if idle amusements ... but to researching a way of adapting his commercial greenhouse gardening methods to the needs of an average family.

Ideas Work

"I knew that if I could make my ideas work in this remote area of southern Utah, they'd work anywhere," says Ridlye. "The summers are hot here and the winters are really cold. And if you take a look at the ground in this region, you'll know why they named our local town 'Boulder'."

Well, Cliff has made his idea work. For about $400, he constructed a fiberglass greenhouse on the side of his home.

"A family of four can get along nicely with a growing area that measures 12 by 24 feet," he says, "and a greenhouse that's 12 - feet wide and 30 - feet long will feed five to eight people. We've done it.

"We've also shown that — even at 1974 prices — an average family can produce nearly all the produce they care to eat and give away at a seed, fertilizer, heating and cooling cost of $100 a year."

Incidentally, I have a leaflet containing information on gardening under glass, not the Ridley method, but conventional in nature which should help you get plants started in cold frames, hot beds and greenhouses.

To obtain it send 10 cents and a stamped, self - addressed long envelope to The Mother Earth News, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for Reprint No. 6.

Tactile Terms

Think, for a minute, what that means in emotional and tactile terms. Ridley says, "Our first year's greenhouse garden was nothing short of fantastic! All through the cold winter mooonths and into the spring and early summer — when everyone else was relying on canned or frozen foods — we were eating delicious fresh produce from our indoor vegetable patch.

"In fact, we were swamped with food! We had more than we could eat of many things, so we began giving our produce away. You can imagine our neighbors' delight to receive fresh green beans and peas, carrots and radishes, tomatoes and lettuce and many other vegetables in the middle of the winter. Another nice fringe benefit is fresh strawberries when the snow flies."

Although there's not enough space here to completely outline the Ridley method of greenhouse agriculure, Cliff has thoroughly explained his garden - at - home plan in a concise little handbook titled "How to Grow Your Own Groceries for $100 a Year."

The guide sells for $2.95 and, if your local bookstore doesn't have it, tell the owner that it's distributed by Hawkes Publishing in Salt Lake City.

Ornithosis Outbreak Stimulating Research

A recent outbreak of ornithosis anomg turkeys in Central Texas has stimulated a thorough investigation into the source of the disease which can affect humans.

The disease — also known as psittacosis and parrot fever — is worldwide in occurrence and is an occupational hazard of persons associated with pet ships, aviaries, pigeon lofts, poultry farms, and poultry processing and rendering plants, according to the Bureau of Veterinary Public Health of the State Health Department.

In humans it produces a pneumonia - like illness which may include fever, headache and cough. Human infections may be fatal but most often are mild in character if diagnosed and treated promptly. Those at high risk should be aware of the possibility of infection.

The visible signs of ornithosis are similar to other poultry diseases, and a positive diagnosis can be made only by laboratory tests. Apparently - healthy birds can transmit the disease.

Human infection is acquired usually by inhalation of the organism. It may be from dust of dried droppings of infected birds in an enclosed space. Dust lingering in feathers also can be a source.

The greatest incidence of infection among workers in past outbreaks occurred in the killing, picking and eviscerating operations, where the organisms are concentrated in the air. Exposure apparently has occurred also through direct contact with infected birds.

Transmission from man to man is rare, say health authorities.

The incubation time following exposure may range from four to 15 days, says the American Public Health Association's booklet. "Control of Communicable Diseases in Man". It says that diseased birds may shed the agent intermittently throughout the infection period and sometimes continuously for weeks or months.

As far as is known, ornithosis has not occurred through household use of poultry product which had been inspected for wholesomeness.

Texas housewives and restaurant operators can take heart in this. State Health Department officals say there is little possibility of a consumer contracting ornithosis while preparing a turkey or other fowl. Cooking temperatures destroy the organism.

Every effort is being made to protect plant workers and the public from contact with infected birds. This is accomplished primarily by flock inspections and quarantine and treatment of flocks of birds in which ornithosis is found.

A task force was set up following the illness of federal employees who were inspectors in processing plants. The US Department of Agriculture initiated the task force at Texas A&M University, and it came up with recommendations which became effective July 29.

Under the guidelines, poultry flocks must be certified as free from disease before they are shipped to slaughter.

Within 10 days of the proposed shipment of a flock for slaughter, a veterinarian inspector makes a visual inspection of the flock and also takes 10 selected blood samples. The blood samples are sent to the laboratory at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine for evaluation.

If blood samples are negative, the flock is certified for shipment. If a blood sample proves to be positive, the flock is quarantined and put on an antibiotic — administered in feed — for 21 days. At termination of the treatment period, the birds can be moved to slaughter immediately.

The task force established by the USDA and Texas A&M University continues to work in close co - operation with the Texas Animal Health Commission, the US Public Health Service, and of course, your State Health Department. Theei efforts are aimed at learning and applying the best methods for controlling ornithosis.

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

HAYDEN FRY will have something to prove Saturday night in Irving when his North Texas State Eagles take on Southern Methodist Universtiy in both teams' season opener. SMU, now coached by DAVE SMITH, was the home of Fry from 1962 to 1972.

Fry says, "This is a big game for North Texas State without me in it. It's against another college in the Metroplex and one with the prestige of the Southwest Conference.

NTSU offensive guard COLLIN WILLIAMS, who followed Fry from SMU to Denton, would like nothing more than to win the game against his former teammates. "There is more of a positive attitude towards football here at North Texas than last year at SMU. There is definitely a little extra incentive for me because I still have a lot of friends at SMU."

Defensive end ROBERT HAWKINS, in a press release, was said to have taken 45 hours at a junior college so he would be eligible to play at North Texas State this fall. Hawkins is another former Mustang who followed Fry.

BOBBY OWEN, ex - Pampa Harvester, will be starting at right cornerback against SMU Saturday. Owen is one of three former Harvesters playing in the Missouri Valley Conference this season.

The others are GARVIN McCARRELL and TIBBY ROGERS, both West Texas State Buffaloes.

The Buffs open their season at 1:30 p.m. Saturday against the Drake Bulldogs at Des Moines, Iowa. Both McCarrell, a 185 - pound sophomore fullback, and Rogers, a 202 - pound junior offensive left guard, are both expected to play in the game.

Rogers was moved from defensive end. "I'm a lot happier since I've been moved to offense. I played offensive guard in high school," said Rogers, who will play behind JACKIE WHITE, a junior guard from Lamesa.

"I think WT's chances are pretty good. The players' attitudes look better than last fall. I think we're going to be an aggressive ball team," added Rogers.

McCarrell has been switched from halfback to fullback and WTSU coach GENE MAYFIELD is now looking some at the ex - Harvester at halfback again. McCarrell is likely to be alternating with fullback CLOIS BURGESS, a junior from Amarillo Caprock, against the Bulldogs.

"It (the starting position) changes on a week - to - week basis. Clois is experienced so he's going to play a lot. This year's fullback is going to catch a lot of passes; I guess I'm a fair pass catcher," said McCarrell.

"I played halfback all my life, and then fullback in the spring. I need to get adjusted more to fullback, to get experience."

Other Missouri Valley teams will be in action Saturday. New Mexico State hosts Southern Illinois, Wichita State travels to Oklahoma State, Louisville is at Auburn and Tulsa goes to Kansas State.

In the Southwest Conference, Boston College hosts Texas, Southern Cal opens at Arkansas, SMU plays NTSU at Irving, Clemson visits Texas A&M, UT Arlington comes to Texas Christian, Iowa State plays at Texas Tech and Houston meets Rice.

The eyes of Pampa will be on Texas A&M, which will start 1972 Harvester graduate BILLY LEMONS, 6 - 5, 270, at right guard.

According to an A&M news release, opinions vary on where the Aggies will finish in the SWC this year. SOUTHERN LIVING magazine picks them to finish fifth in the SWC while NEWPORT, VA., NEWS ranks the team number one in the nation.

DAVE CAMPBELL, editor of TEXAS FOOTBALL, now says A&M and Texas will be co - champions in the SWC. He also says EMORY BELLARD will be Coach of the Year, linebacker ED SIMONINI will be Defensive Player of the Year and quarterback DAVID WALKER will be Offensive Player of the Year.

The Texas Longhorns have four sets of brothers and one set of cousins. The brothers are Rick, Kenny and Donnie THURMAN of White Deer, Ronnie and Randy MIKSCH of Needville, Will and Charles WILCOX of Houston, Bill and Mark HAMILTON of Las Cruces, N.M., and Robert and Allen RICKMAN of San Antonio. The cousins are Walter and Bobby ROWAN of Arkansas and Tennesse, respectively.

ROOSEVELT LEAKS will not play against Boston College.

In District 3 - AAAA action Thursday, Hereford is at Palo Duro. Friday, Odessa Permian is at Amarillo High, Dumas is at Pampa, Tascosa is at Plainview and Borger is at Canyon.

Favorites in those games are Palo Duro, Permian, Pampa, Plainview and Borger.

Pampa might not have been picked if it hadn't been for last week's 35 - 8 win over Hereford.

A full house is expected Friday to see Pampa open its home schedule against the Demons, who defeated Pampa, 10 - 7, a year ago. Dumas has always been an upset - oriented team. Just ask the Palo Duro Dons, who had to hang on for a 20 - 14 win last week in Dumas.

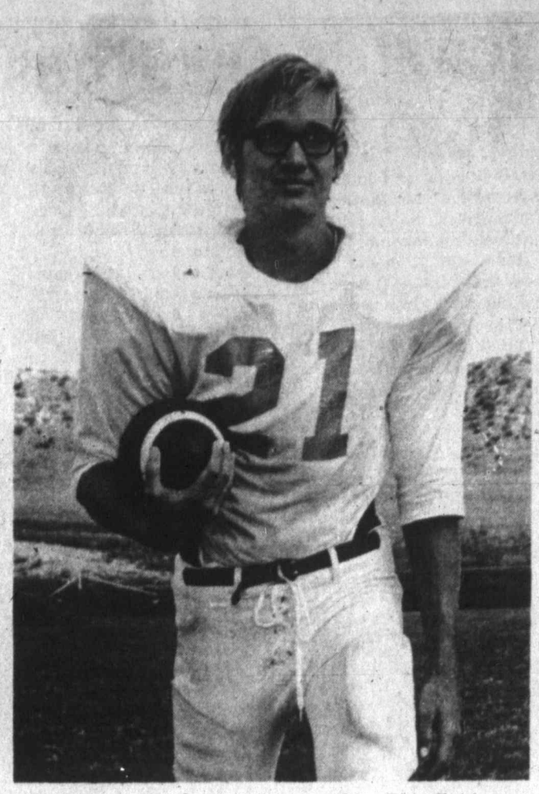

"Dumas is not real impressive," said Pampa coach JOHN WELBORN, "but you turn on the lights and they snap the ball. They know what to do. Dumas played real well the second half (against Palo Duro). They run a lot of offense, and they force the turnover and capitalize on it. Their backs run pretty well and they throw the ball well."

Senior EDDIE TROUTMAN will do the throwing for Dumas. Troutman (163) has 4.7 speed in the 40. The Demons' backs include another 4.7 speedster, RANDY STRADER, fullback RACE COPELAND (175) and tailback GREG TANNER (175).

Concerning the Hereford game, Welborn said, "The whole defense played real well. On offense, our backs ran well and blocked well. We made a few typical first game mistakes, like backs going in the wrong place. Hereford was pretty tough inside."

In junior varsity action this week, the Pampa Shockers travel to Clovis, N.M., for a 2 p.m. (M.T.) game Saturday. It was originally scheduled to be a sophomore game.

MIAMI BACKS — Two of Miami's several running backs are sophomore Kirk Flowers (left) and Ken Jenkins, a junior. The Warriors of District 2-B, 8-man are deep in backs. But their depth was little help last Friday in Miami when the Warriors opened their 1974 season with a 38-16 loss to powerful Forgan, Okla. This Friday Miami will host another tough Oklahoma team — Balko, which edged 2-B favorite Follett, 34-30, last week.

Brock Breaks Stolen Base Mark

UPI Sports Writer

Lou Brock is the major leagues' new single-season stolen base record holder still regards the man whose mark he surpassed as "The Godfather" of the art of baseball thievery.

The 35-year old St. Louis Cardinal outfielder set the major league record Tuesday night when he stole bases No. 104 and 105 in an 8-2 loss to the Philadelphia Phillies. The 104th steal was the 739th of his cajeer, surpassing the National League career mark of 738 held by Max Carey.

Brock also has a chance to top Ty Cobb's major league career total of 892 steals but he wasn't thinking of Cobb Tuesday night. He was thinking of Maury Wills, who set the previous single-season mark of 104 in 1962. Cobb's top season effort was 96 in 1915.

"I'm a good friend of Maury and often call him for advice," Brock said after the game. "What Maury did is history and what I did is news. Someday in the future what I did will be history and someone else might make the news.

"Maury is still the Godfather and one of the greatest baserunners I've ever seen."

Brock's steals were overcome by the power of Mike Schmidt, who drove in four runs with a homer and two doubles, and the Cardinal star conceded "it would have been 100 per cent better if he had won." The loss dropped the Cardinals 3 ½ games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates in the NL's Eastern race.

The Pirates walloped Chicago 12-4, Los Angeles shaded Atlanta 1-0, Cincinnati defeated San Diego 5-2, Montreal beat New York 6-4 and San Francisco nipped Houston 6-5 in other NL games.

American League results were New York 2 Boston 1, Cleveland 12 Detroit 6, Milwaukee 6 Baltimore 5, Minnesota 8 Chicago 7 and California 8 Kansas City 2.

Pirates 12 Cubs 4

Richie Hebner had four straight hits for the second straight day and drove in three runs to lead a 20-hit Pittsburgh attack which included 18 hits in the first four innings. Ken Brett went the first six innings to win his 13th game for the Pirates. Rick Reuschel was the loser.

Dodgers 1 Braves 0

Don Sutton pitched a four-hitter for his fifth shutout and 15th win for the Dodgers, who maintained their 3 ½ game lead over the Reds in the West. Consecutive singles by Steve Garvey, Willie Crawford and Ron Cey off Carl Morton drove in the game's only run in the second inning.

Reds 5 Padres 2

Pete Rose's two doubles and a single led a 12-hit Cincinnati attack which enabled Don Gullett to breeze to his 16th win. Gullett struck out 11 and didn't walk a batter. He was tagged for a homer by rookie Randy Elliott in the fifth and surrendered the Padres' other run in the ninth.

Expos 6 Mets 4

Willie Davis' two-run homer and Larry Lintz' three RBIs led the Expos over Tug McGraw and the Mets.

8-Year Veteran Mac Percival Rejoins Dallas

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys acquired Chicago Bears placekicker Mac Percival, an eight-year veteran who hasn't missed a conversion attempt since he was a rookie, Cowboys coach Tom Landry announced Tuesday.

Landry said Percival was acquired in trade for future considerations with the Bears.

Percival originally signed with Dallas in 1967 and was traded to the Bears, where he lead team scoring in his first six years as a pro, Landry said.

IN QUALIFYING

PWGA Honors Go To Holmes

Mrs. Jack Holmes of Amarillo fired an eight - over - par 79 Tuesday to capture medalist honors in the qualifying round of the Panhandle Women's Golf Association Tournament, being played at Pampa Country Club for the first time in six years. It will conclude Friday.

Mrs. Holmes played Mrs. J.R. Brown of Amarillo, wife of Tri - State Seniors Golf Association secretary, today in the first round of match play, which started at 9 a.m.

In another big championship flight match defending champion Mrs. Nick Nichols of Huber Country Club in Borger played Mrs. Fran Wilson of Pampa.

Other contenders for the title include Mrs. Sonny Lamberson and Mrs. Fred Elston from Pampa, Mrs. Adrian Johnson from Amarillo and Mrs. Nelson Combest from Panhandle.

Yesterday was also the monthly Panhandle Women's Golf Association play, which Tascosa Country Club is leading. TCC shot 267 yesterday, followed by Pampa, 286; Huber, 294; Ross Rogers, 295; Phillips, 296; and Clarendon, 325.

The standings now are:

Tascosa, 1392; Pampa, 1432; Phillips, 1436; Ross Rogers, 1440; Huber, 1442, and Clarendon, 1535. The sixth and final round will be played next month at Ross Rogers.

Courageous Bids For America Cup

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — With one victory salted away, the defending yacht Courageous of the United States went out to seek another today over Australia's Southern Cross in the second race of the best-of-seven series for the America's Cup.

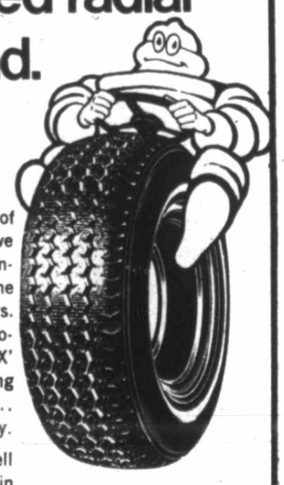

Weather experts predicted much stronger winds—up to 20 knots—for the second encounter between the two new aluminum-hulled 12-meter boats and this might favor the Australian challenger in this 23rd attempt by a foreign nation to take the Cup from the United States.

The longest field goal ever kicked in a National Football League game was 63 yards, booted by Tom Dempsey of New Orleans against Detroit in 1970.

Landry Expecting Battle Again For East Crown

DALLAS (UPI) — None of the clubs in the National Football Conference's Eastern Division performed with amazing expertise during the exhibition season, but Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry expects the typical rat race between his club and the Washington Redskins.

"The East has had trouble in pre-season," Landry said. "I saw the standings the other day and I think the Cowboys had the best record in the division (3-3). All the rest were below .500.

"But I don't put much emphasis on that. Washington is still a very tough football team and I think Philadelphia and St. Louis will be improved clubs too."

Landry, whose club opens the regular season Sunday at Atlanta, attributed some of his team's weak showing—and that of other NFL teams—to poor conditioning.

"A major problem for everybody is the late reporting," Landry said. "The injuries to Greg Landry and Steve Spurrier could be caused by late conditioning. It is hurting the entire league right now."

The Cowboys embark on the regular season on a note of low enthusiasm, brought on by a 41-15 loss to Pittsburgy last week.

"That game would have shook my confidence more," Landry said, "if we had gone out and played real hard and then gotten beat. But the way we played, the loss doesn't bother me. We just stood around."

The Falcon contest will mark the return of Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach to the starting lineup. Staubach suffered two cracked ribs against New Orleans in the fourth game of pre-season and has not seen any action since.

Landry, even before the NFL decided to go with a 47-man roster, had indicated he would suit up three quarterbacks for the Atlanta game because of the unstable condition of Staubach's ribs. The coach said, however, he was confident Staubach would be safe from further injury to his ribs.

"The injury is set in behind his shoulder blade," said Landry. "I think if we pad him up real well his chance of reinjuring the ribs are very slim."

Roosevelt Gets Physical Today

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Doctors will examine the right knee of Roosevelt Leaks today to determine if the Texas Longhorn fullback can take part in contact drills. If he passes the examination Leaks could play for Texas this season.

Leaks, third in last season's Heisman trophy balloting and holder of the single season Southwest Conference rushing record, suffered a serious injury to his knee during spring workouts. At the time doctors said Leaks would be lost for the entire season.

During the summer, however, Texas coach Darrell Royal said Leaks' rehabilitation was coming along faster than had been expected and that there was a chance he could play this year.

Even if Leaks does get the doctors' permission to participate in contact work, he will not play in the season opener next Saturday at Boston College. In his place will be freshman Earl Campbell, the prize Texas recruit who has starred in pre-season drills.

"We will start Earl Campbell Saturday and we have no question of that," Royal said. "If Roosevelt is given the go-ahead, we still don't know how he will react to contact."

Royal said he would not think of playing Leaks in a game until his knee had been tested in a scrimmage. In an obvious reference to Campbell, Royal said that "fortunately, we have not had to worry about getting Leaks ready."

Ewbank-Less Jets May Have 'Winner'

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — For the first time since they shed their dubious image as the Titans in 1963, the New York Jets will not have Weeb Ewbank on the sidelines as coach.

Ewbank has retired to concentrate on his duties as general manager and his son-in-law, Charley Winner, will attempt to bind together a team that won only four games last season despite some of the top talent in the league.

Winner's main problem is that he is Ewbank's son-in-law and cries of nepotism already have been levelled. He's in a situation where he must produce now or face the consequences.

The Jets' major problem last season is beyond his control. That came in the second game when Baltimore linebacker Stan White levelled Joe Namath and the Jet quarterback walked away with a separated shoulder.

A healthy Namath is one of the keys for the Jets to make a run at a wild card slot in the American Conference. Even the most optimistic Jets don't think they can challenge Miami outright for the Eastern crown.

With Namath, the Jets can score from anywhere on the field. Without him, they are just a mediocre club, reaching peaks and valleys.

But there were other problems. The running attack faltered, the defensive line was manhandled and the linebacking was subpar. Only the defensive secondary managed to play well.

Winner can't do anything about keeping Namath healthy but he moved quickly to remedy most of the deficiencies and John Riggins took care of another problem by himself.

Riggins, who gained 944 yards in 1972, never really got started last season. He was late reporting to camp in a contract dispute and never decided if he really wanted to play. He appeared in only 10 games and gained 482 yards.

This year he seems to be the Riggins of old and his running complementing Namath's passing should make Winner's offensive planning that much easier.

Defensively, Winner decided that the Jets traditional small, quick lineman was obsolete and he used his No. 1 draft pick to select mammoth Carl Barzilauskas, a 6-foot-6, 285-pound tackle from Indiana. Barzilauskas has lived up to all his advance notices and right now is the club's best defensive lineman.

Winner also injected youth into the offensive line, once the Jets' pride. Guard Dave Herman and tackle Bob Svihus retired and center John Schmitt was traded to Green Bay, giving way to younger replacements.

The Jets also gained a top-notch rookie linebacker in Godwin Turk, a No. 3 pick out of Southern University. But Turk, who was listed to start, suffered a shoulder injury in pre-season and is expected to miss half the season.

"This is better than a 4-10 team," Winner says. "I know we can win seven or eight games and maybe more. The big thing is to develop our running game, to get it back to where it was two years ago. John Riggins is the key to that. If he and Emerson Boozer play up to their potential, we'll have a solid running attack.

"Joe has picked up our new system very quickly and he's still the best passer in the game. If we can keep him healthy all year, we'll be contenders.

"Defensively, Barzo is going to help a lot. He's going to choke off that middle where we had so many problems last season. You need that big guy in there to keep them honest."

The starting unit offensively should include Namath at quarterback, Riggins and Boozer in the backfield, Jerome Barkum and Eddie Bell at wide receiver and Rich Caster at tight end. Wayne Mulligan, obtained from St. Louis via Chicago, will be the new center while Garry Puetz and Randy Rasmussen will be at guard and Winston Hill and Robert Woods at tackle.

On defense, Richard Neal moves from end to join Barzilauskas at tackle and Ed Galigher and Mark Lomas are the ends. The linebacking situation is muddled, with only Ralph Baker set on the left side. Jamie Rivers and Al Atkinson are vying for the middle while John Ebersole, Bill Ferguson and Rob Spicer are a in three-way fight for the right side.

Delles Howell and Earlie Thomas man the corners and Burgess Owens and Phil Wise are the safeties, with Steve Tannen the top reserve. Chris Farasopoulos, a starter at safety last year, may miss the season after failing to recover from leg surgery last year.

Bobby Howfield will handle the placekicking and rookie Greg Gantt (Alabama) and veteran Julian Fagan are battling for the punting job.

The top rookies besides the ominous "Barzo" are running backs Bob Burns (Georgia) and Clarence Jackson (Western Kentucky), receiver Lou Piccone (West Liberty State), tight end Willie Brister (Southern), offensive tackle Gordon Browne (Boston College), linebacker Steve Reese (Louisville) and defensive back Roscoe Word (Jackson State).

LOW ROUND — Rosemary Thompson of Amarillo, playing for the Tascosa Country Club team, led the Amarillo course to a 267 Tuesday in the monthly Panhandle Women's Golf Association competition at Pampa Country Club Tuesday. Mrs. Thompson shot a 74 and Tascosa turned in the low team score of the day. Mrs. Thompson will play in the Women's State Amateur next week at Austin. She will not play in the PWGA tourney this week in Pampa.

ICE RINKS

CARACAS (UPI) — Venezuela has two artificial ice skating rinks, the only ones in South America.

One is in Caracas and the other is atop 7,000-foot Avila mountain, reachable only by cable car from the Venezuelan capital.

GROWING YOUNGER

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The average population of Virginia is younger than that of the nation, with a higher proportion between the ages of 18 and 44. The growth resulted from a heavy immigration of young people that began in 1940.

Southmen Seek Revenge With Americans Tonight

United Press International

Willie "Big Boy" Spencer plans to make his presence felt when the revenge-hungry Memphis Southmen take on the unbeaten Birmingham Americans tonight.

Not only does the Memphis running back want to help his World Football League teammates repay the 58-33 drubbing they got at Birmingham earlier this year, he also wants to show Birmingham Coach Jack Gotta a 20-year-old who didn't go to college can be good.

"I want to get back at him," said the 6-foot-4, 225-pound rookie, who has rushed for 374 yards and seven touchdowns. "I've got something to settle with him."

Spencer was 18 years old and just out of high school in Massillon, Ohio, when he tried out with the Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League. He was cut—and cut again last year when he tried a second time.

The Ottawa coach was Jack Gotta.

"I've got to show that anybody can play this game if they put their mind to it," Spencer said.

Spencer isn't alone in feeling he has something to prove. The Southmen are 8-2 and their only losses were to Birmingham and Philadelphia. Since they do not meet the Bell again this season, tonight is their only chance for revenge.

In other games tonight, Southern California is at Chicago, Detroit at Florida, The Hawaiians at Houston, Jacksonville at Philadelphia and New York at Portland.

Southern California is looking to build a solid lead in the Western Division against a Chicago team battling Memphis for second in the Central Division. Chicago is 8-3, a game behind Memphis.

Speedster Slowing But Getting Better

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — When Lou Brock started his patented pop-up slide into second base Tuesday night with his recordbreaking 105th stolen base of the season, something unusual happened.

"Just before I got to the base," the 35-year-old speedster from El Dorado, Ark., said, "my legs gave way. I made a pop-up slide but I didn't have the strength to pop up."

The steal was the end of a long and pressure-packed experience — "an ordeal," he called it after the game—as he broke Maury Wills' singleseason stolen base record set in 1962.

Brock says that at his age, he steals bases as much with finesse and with a psychological edge as with his speed. He said he has slowed down from about 3.5 to maybe 4.0 seconds in making the 90 feet between bases but his larceny rate has increased. Why?

"Last year, toward the end of the season, the stolen base was about the only weapon we had to stay in contention at all," Brock told the throng of reporters crowded around his locker after the record-shattering performance. "This year it just carried over."

Brock's first steal Tuesday night, off Philadelphia's Dick Ruthven, also gave him the National League career stolen base mark of 739, breaking the record set by Max Carey. He said he got special satisfaction by having the same theft break the career record and tie the single-season mark.

The 13-year veteran, who is the sparkplug of the Cardinal offense, was mobbed by his teammates, who swarmed from the dugout and the bullpen after he stole No. 105 in the seventh inning. Firecrackers were thrown from the bleachers and the crowd of 30,812 gave him a loud and long ovation.

DAREDEVIL WANTED

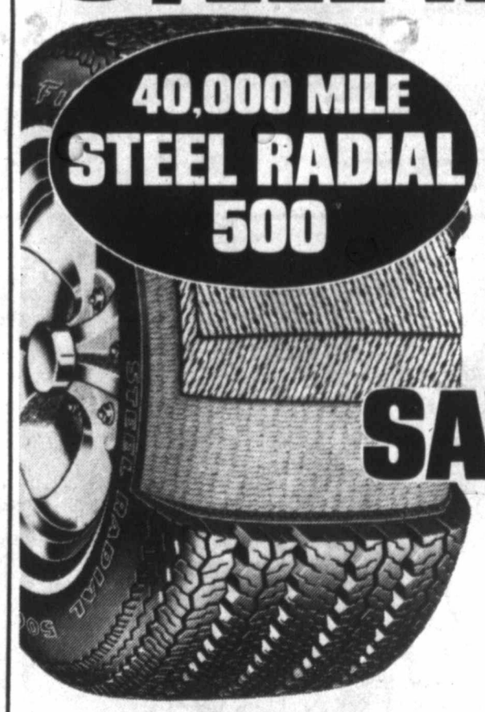

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. (UPI) — Evel Knievel will find Michigan tougher to cross than the Snake River Canyon should the multi-millionaire daredevil ever decide to visit here again.

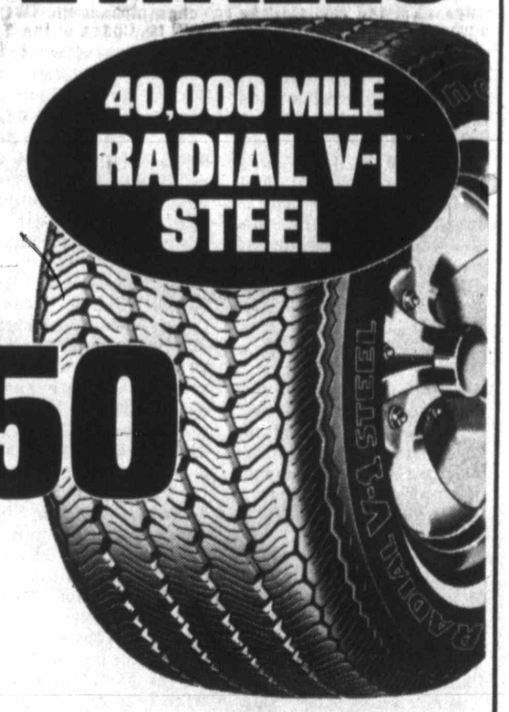

Berrien County District Judge John Hammond issued a warrant Monday for Knievel's arrest, saying he had responded improperly to a 1973 speeding ticket in Michigan.

LONDON (UPI) — The United States has improved its sonar detection to the point where it may be able to find Soviet nuclear missile submarines in any ocean—a development some experts believe will radically change the strategic balance in American favor.

According to papers delivered at the 8th International Acoustics Congress here, and reported in an article in New Scientist, the intensive American research has paid important dividends which significantly curtail Soviet ability to retaliate to a first strike by the United States.

"The sound propagation characteristics of the ocean have always been so unpredictable that it was assumed that nuclear missile submarines could easily hide for months at a time," the article said.

"This was critical to defense policy because so long as a missile submarine remained hidden, it could retaliate even if its mother country was virtually destroyed by a missile attack. This in turn, made a first strike too risky for either the U.S. or the U.S.S.R."

Disarmament experts had been warning, the article said, that if either nation discovered how to find the other's submarines it would create a dramatic imbalance.

No one expected it to come so soon. But the U.S. Navy has been spending $2.5 billion a year, much of it with universities and private research institutes, to study the physical and biological characteristics of the ocean and to develop sound propagation models.

And it was this research which produced some of the papers at the congress. F. D. Tapper of Bell Laboratories, for example, described a computer simulation, combining oceanographic and satellite data, intended to locate a submarine up to 16,000 kilometers (10,000 miles) away and probably pinpoint its location within 16 kilometers (10 miles).

"Within that small an area," wrote Farooq Hussain, a defense expert who analyzed the papers, the sub can then be found by conventional airborne detection devices which in turn improve the pinpointing to within the range of antisubmarine missiles.

"The sub cannot even dive to the bottom to hide because a shipboard computer simulation system can process sonar echoes to provide very accurate depth measurements.

"Just how well these new systems work, and to what extent they can be confused by electronic countermeasures, is hidden under the veil of military secrecy," the article states. "But the quantum jump to working systems has been made and under the normal worst case analysis the opposition must assume they work.

"The U.S.S.R. must assume that its submarines can no longer hide safely and the U.S. must assume that the Soviet Union will have a similar capacity soon.

There were more than 600,000 licensed fishermen in Missouri in 1973, according to the State Conservation Commission.

FOR RUNAWAY CHILDREN

States Studying Operation Peace Of Mind

Operation Peace of Mind, the Houston - based telephone hotline for runaway children, was the topic of intense discussion recently at Tampa, Fla. Representatives of 26 governors were on hand to examine ways their states could be linked with the 24 - hour service.

It was explained that the hotline was begun by Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe a year ago because of the grisly discovery of the bodies of 27 young men in the Houston area. Hundreds of concerned parents from all over the United States were calling Houston to see if one of the corpses was that of their runaway child.

Originally, the operation's costs were defrayed by private contributions with a recent assist by a Criminal Justice Division grant of $21,000.

Briscoe opened the volunteer staffed service with the idea that if runaways called and their message that they were alive and well was relayed to their parents, then they indeed would have that wanted peace of mind. At that time, no one dreamed how the idea would grow and develop to the status it has received throughout the country.

Over 4,000 runaways from 47 states have called Peace of Mind since last September to let someone they care about know that they are safe. Many calls have resulted in the runaways voluntarily returning to their homes and families.

The national impetus of the service began to grow when the Florida legislature, in an unprecedented action, appropriated $20,000 in funds to publicize the Texas hotline number throughout that recreation state, which ranks high in runaways.

Gov. Briscoe observed, "The extraordinary thing about Operation Peace of Mind is that it not only meets a Texas need to help runaway children, but touches every state and every parent's heart whose child is away from home."

Because of the increasing interest on the project from other states, Briscoe and Florida Gov. Reubin Askew jointly initiated the Tampa conference to discuss various methods of publicizing the hotline number in all other states to help as many children as possible.

Grace Surguy, director of POM, said "the reason Peace of Mind works is that all calls are confidential. We only relay the message runaways want relayed, — no more and no less.

"The runaway calls us on a toll - free number that is not traced and asks us to call someone to say they are okay. They generally call back later to see if there was any reply to their message," she added.

"Most runaways are afraid to call their parents directly, fearful that they might be rejected. It's a big decision for them to make that first telephone call," she continued.

"One of the most rewarding aspects of Peace of Mind is that the runaways call to us and the reply from the parents that the child is loved and wanted back home often makes the two contact each other directly and work out a reconciliation based on love and better understanding," Ms. Surguy concluded.

The conference delegates have returned to their governor's with the details of how to best help the runaway children of America. Most have indicated an immediate willingness to begin implementation of publicity throughout their state of the Peace of Mind hotline number.

With the expected increase of publicity on the national hotline number (1-800-231-6946) and of the Texas WATS number (1-800-392-3352), Texas is preparing to add more in - coming WATS lines as the traffic demands. Texas will continue to supply the communications equipment and staff support, with other states advertising the telephone number.

At the close of the conference, Charles Purnell, executive assistant to Briscoe, pledged that Operation Peace of Mind and its results were beginning to affect every community in the country and by Briscoe's direction it would be continued.

He said, "the governor is dedicated to helping these children and he wants every runaway to have access to the Operation Peace of Mind number so that they can call us and we can call their parents."

Boating

By JACK WOLISTON

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Three of the 14-man crew of the America's Cup defender Courageous are Navy men who consider their chance to compete in the yachting classic the "dream of a lifetime."

The trio, all U.S. Naval Academy graduates, are Lt. (j.g.) Tom Ternes of Orinda, Calif.; Lt. (j.g.) Tom O'Brien, Dubuque, Iowa, and Ensign Reggie Pierce, Greenwich, Conn.

Aboard the sleek, aluminum hulled Courageous, Ternes and Pierce work the coffee grinders, the below-deck winches which control adjustment of sail position, and O'Brien operates the main sheet winch.

Their quest to become a part of international yachting's most prestigious event came last fall when they competed successfully against more than 60 other aspirants in sailing races on Chesapeake Bay.

Each of them came to the competition as already skilled sailors.

Pierce began sailing with his father on Long Island Sound at the age of eight, and one of his most recent duties while at the Naval Station at Annapolis, Md., was to help coach the Naval Academy's varsity dinghy team.

As midshipmen at the Academy, Ternes and O'Brien sailed aboard Navy craft in competitive events for three years. Ternes skippered boats in a number of major sailing races, including the Cape May and Bermuda contests.

All three came to the competition at their own expense, after being granted permission by their commanding officers. Pierce came from his Annapolis post, Ternes was detached from the research ship USS Glover, and O'Brien from duty aboard the fleet oiler USS Wichita.

"It's the dream of a lifetime," O'Brien said. "If you get the chance you just don't pass it up."

"It's the premier event in sailing," said Pierce. "A once in a lifetime experience."

"Competitiveness is why we sail," Ternes said, "and this is the best."

Their day begins at 6 a.m. when they jog from Hammersmith Farm, where the crew is staying, to the dock area. After the boat is prepared for sailing, they head for the race course on Narragansett Bay. Even when they return bone-tired from the day's sailing, they still face a few hours of maintenance on the boat before they head for dinner.

"We have no trouble keeping to the 11 p.m. curfew," Pierce said.

Consumption of beef in America has increased 40 per cent in the past 15 years, according to the 4-H Society.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Venus and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

American short story writer O. Henry was born Sept. 11, 1862.

On this day in history:

In 1777, troops of Gen. George Washington were badly defeated by the British in the Battle of Brandywine.

In 1841, all members of President John Tyler's Cabinet resigned except Secretary of State Daniel Webster. They were protesting the veto of a banking bill.

In 1963, all 81 persons aboard an Indian Airlines Viscount died when the plane crashed near New Delhi.

In 1973, the regime of Salvador Allende, first freely elected Marxist president in the Western Hemisphere, was toppled in a military coup in which he died, reportedly at his own hand.

A thought for the day: American poet Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "Life is not so short but that there is always time for courtesy."
