Supreme Court to rule on veto power

■ Legality of line-item veto power given to Clinton last year to be argued before nation's highest court.

By Richard Carelli
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court agreed Friday to decide whether Congress unlawfully delegated too much authority to the president last year by granting him the historic power to veto "line items" in the federal budget.

The highest court's speeded-up review will yield by late June what could be a momentous balance-of-powers ruling. The case will be argued before the justices on April 27.

The Republican-led Congress voted in 1996 to provide President Clinton with the unprecedented power of canceling specific items in spending and tax legislation, considered a key to fighting wasteful "pork-barrel" projects.

The president used the line-item veto 82 times last year, but Congress is expected to restore 38 of those items with two-thirds majority votes in both the House and Senate.

If the Supreme Court agrees with a federal trial judge who invalidated the law earlier this month, no such veto overrides would be necessary.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Hogan said the 1996 law wrongly "crosses the line between acceptable delegations of rule-making authority and unauthorized surrender to the president of an inherently legislative function; namely, the authority to permanently shape laws and package legislation."

"The Constitution ... dictates that once a bill becomes law, the president's sole duty is to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed," Hogan wrote. "His power cannot expand to that of 'co-designer' of the law — that is Congress' domain."

In the appeal acted on Friday, Justice Department lawyers argued that Congress did not let the president unlawfully usurp its power.

They said the law "vests the president with authority to determine ... whether items of spending that Congress has appropriated will in fact be spent. That grant of authority is fully consistent with historical practice."

The line-item veto law is the only major provision of the 1994 Republican "Contract With America" campaign manifesto that Clinton endorsed. Numerous past presidents, beginning with George Washington, had unsuccessfully sought such authority.

The Supreme Court last June cleared the way for Clinton's use of the line-item veto by ruling that six members of Congress lacked the proper legal stand-

Rod Ferrell, of Murray, Ky., listens Friday in Tavares, Fla., as Circuit Judge Jerry Lockett stayed with Monday's jury recommendation of death sentences for the slayings of the central Florida couple in their home. Ferrell pleaded guilty to killing Richard Wendorf and Naoma Ruth Queen of Eustice on Nov. 25, 1996.

Vampire slayings

TAVARES, Fla. — A judge sentenced the teen-age leader of a vampire cult to Florida's electric chair Friday, and he urged the prosecution of the victims' daughter. Rod Ferrell, 17, showed little emotion as state Circuit Judge Jerry Lockett stayed with the jury recommendation of death sentences for the crow-bar slayings of a central Florida couple in their home.

Slimy shores

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Runoff and backed-up sewage from the recent round of El Nino storms have turned the waters off California's famous golden beaches into a stinky brown mess. Torrential downpours from El Nino have caused millions of gallons of raw sewage to overflow from treatment plants before it gets processed, turning near-shore waters into a cauldron of bacteria and forcing county health officials to close down miles of beaches.

Czar's bones

MOSCOW — Overriding last-minute hesitations by the Orthodox Church, the government decided Friday to bury Russia's last czar and put to rest a painful chapter of history. Cabinet voted to bury the remains of Nicholas II and his family in the czars' crypt in St. Petersburg on July 17 — 80 years to the day after they were executed by a Bolshevik firing squad.

Who's that masked man? He's Billy the Kid

Odessa Jackalopes goalie Billy Pye, 29, a one-time sixth-round draft choice of the NHL Buffalo Sabres, is a favorite with the crowd.

ODESSA — With a steely-eyed glance, an Eastwood squint and a John Wayne swagger, the man on the screen tosses a goalie stick over his shoulder like The Duke would a shotgun after offing a band of murdering bandits. It's a dusty, dimly lit scene, and the chaps and duster work together to create the perfect vision of the old West.

Except this ain't the old West. This is a hockey commercial. And the scene is about as far from hockey as imaginable.

But this is Billy Pye. Born in Plymouth, Mich., Pye is in West Texas now. Around these parts, he's Billy the Kid: Outlaw Killer, Rattler Wrestler, Mud Bug Squisher.

West Texas has become the land of opportunity for Pye, a 29-year-old, one-time sixth-round draft choice of the NHL Buffalo Sabres. Now goalie for the WPHL Odessa Jackalopes, Pye is a crowd favorite. For proof, just look at his commercial. Or the "Pye in Your Face" signs that adorn Ector County Coliseum on game nights. Or the applause given him 30-40 times a game after somehow turning back another 85 mph slap shot or lightning quick wrist flick.

"I never thought I'd have to do something like that commercial until I came here," Pye said, a slight chuckle in his voice. "But it was a neat idea, and fun. Something different. I thought I was in Hollywood."

The shoot took around three hours, about the same as a hockey game. Both are grueling tasks.

Billy Pye's career has been circuitous; a bit backward maybe. The climax seems to have arrived before the plot even began to thicken. Admittedly his biggest playing thrill came in college. After his

Jackalopes have cause to celebrate after first season

ODESSA — They're not ready to rename this city Jacksboro yet, but the way hockey has been embraced this season by the locals, hey, anything's possible.

Ticket sales, enthusiastic crowd support and even a faithful radio audience have given the Odessa Jackalopes hockey club reason to celebrate as their first season nears an end.

"Overall, we're very pleased with the whole season," said Monty Hoppel, the club's general manager. "The support of the Permian Basin has been fantastic."

The numbers to backup Hoppel's enthusiasm are definitely there, including:

■ The average attendance at Ector County Coliseum for Jacks' games this year has been 4,000.

■ Before the start of the inaugural season, 1,900 season tickets were sold, which ranks third in the 12-team Western Professional Hockey League.

The season ticket base is 400 more than that of the Midland Angels; the average paid attendance is 1,000 more per game. That the Angels play 70 home dates compared to 35 dates for the Jacks is a variable weighed in to the sales figures of the two clubs. However, single-game ticket prices are generally higher for a Jacks game than for an Angels game, yet the team still enjoys 33 percent more fans per game than the Angels.

Admittedly, a lot of the excitement is because of the newness of the game in the Permian Basin.

"Even prior to us coming here," Hoppel said, "the sport had exploded in the Southwest. It might have started when the Stars moved from Minnesota to Dallas. We had a lot of season ticket holders who were familiar with hockey. We've done a lot of promotional things and I know that's helped attendance, but

Three nations balk at military response plan

■ China, France and Russia say they will not support proposed resolution that would threaten the 'severest consequences' if Iraq violates accord.

By Nicole Winfield
Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — Russia, China and France moved Friday to head off any Security Council resolution that would trigger an automatic military response if Iraq violates an agreement to open all suspected weapon sites to U.N. inspectors.

The U.S.-backed resolution proposed by Britain and Japan would threaten the "severest consequences" if Iraq violates the accord, which Secretary-General Kofi Annan signed in Baghdad on Monday.

Britain's ambassador predicted a resolution would be adopted by early next week, giving the council's endorsement to Annan's accord, which averted U.S.-led strikes on Iraq.

But diplomats from China, Russia and France said they would not support any resolution that opened the door to automatic military action. Their resistance raised doubts that the resolution in its current form would pass. America's U.N. ambassador, Bill Richardson, said he would not accept a weaker document.

Diplomats from Russia and France said they could accept a resolution promising the "severest consequences" only if it clearly spelled out that the council would have to authorize military action. A diplomat from China said any implication of automatic action was unacceptable.

If the resolution gave the Security Council the authority to approve military action against Iraq, any one of the five permanent members could veto such action.

Britain was taking the lead in drafting the resolution to back the accord Annan reached with Iraqi Deputy Prime Minister Tariq Aziz.

The agreement calls for Iraq to give

Commissioners give nod to Argyle architectural firm for jail expansion

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The Commissioners' Court voted 3-1 Friday to ask Corplan Corrections of Argyle to enter into negotiations to be the architectural firm on the proposed expansion of the Midland County jail.

"Like everyone else on the court, I assume, I was very much impressed by all four groups that made presentations," Commissioner Henry Goulet said. The other firms were Vandergriff Group Architects and Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, both of Midland, and Phillips Swager Associates of Dallas.

"I was most impressed by Corplan," said Goulet, who noted that the firm designed the 1990-completed Central Detention Facility, which has 202 bunks in single-occupancy cell and multi-occupancy cell configurations.

The proposed 200-bed expansion, costing "in the neighborhood" of $5 million, would bring the county's jail capacity to 506 men and women, including the 104-bunk, jail built in 1974 on top of the county courthouse.

Goulet said that he had studied the proposals of all four firms before making his motion in favor of the Dallas-area firm.

"The fact that Corplan made the original design on this (the 1990-built jail), it is only natural that they, then, follow up with an expansion.," he said.

Goulet said that Corplan is "extremely well experienced in jail construction," and that he was "really impressed" with Corplan's consultant, Robert O. Viterna, a former executive director of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

"(Viterna) knows that the Jail Standards Commission wants, and there's no way they are going to misguide us," Goulet said. "With him on board, I feel very, very confident that on every step of the project that we will be in compliance with anything that the Jail Standards Commission has to put out."

After County Purchasing Agent Paul Thompson enters into negotiation with Corplan, "if things don't go the way we like, we can fall back on any one of the other three (firms)," Goulet said.

Voting with Goulet were commissioners Louisa Valencia, who seconded Goulet's

POLICE REPORTS

Fire investigation

The origin of a house fire that claimed the life of a Midland woman and her two small children Wednesday is still under investigation according to the Midland County Sheriff's Office.

The cause of the fire was still undetermined as of Friday evening, said Sgt. Terry Lowe of the MCSO Criminal Investigation Division.

The blaze gutted a three-bedroom wooden home at 5512 S. County Road 1112, about three miles south of the intersection of Midkiff Road and Highway 80. Marsha Poole, 24, and her children, Michael Brady Stevens, 2, and Kristin Rae Martin, 18 months, died in the fire.

Lowe said calling the fire an arson is "a little bit premature." He said the Sheriff's Office was in the process of conducting an investigation. "You look at things from a worst-case scenario until you prove otherwise."

Sheriff's investigators brought in a "hydrocarbon detecting dog" from Big Spring to assist in their investigation. The dog is a part of the West Texas Canine Accelerant Team, Lowe said.

Lt. Ed. Krevit said the ongoing investigation is really a "process of elimination." Krevit said the inquiry will continue "until we get all the data we want." He said three MCSO investigators are conducting follow-up and additional interviews in the case.

Preliminary autopsy reports from Lubbock indicates the three victims had smoke in their lungs at the time of their deaths.

VETO: Lawyers contend Giuliani lacks proper legal standing

ing to challenge the law. But the justices said then that the law could be challenged by anyone affected once the president actually used it.

New York City Mayor Rudolph Giuliani and Idaho farmers did just that in separate lawsuits.

Giuliani is seeking to restore a provision of last summer's budget-balancing bill that would have let the city and New York state raise taxes on hospitals and use the money to attract federal Medicaid payments.

The Snake River Potato Growers sued over a Clinton veto of a measure in last August's tax bill that would have let agricultural refiners or processors defer capital-gains taxes when they sell such facilities to farmers' cooperatives.

Government lawyers, in addition to arguing that the line-item veto law is constitutional, contend that Giuliani and the farmers lack the proper legal standing to challenge it.

RESOLUTION: Goal is to send 'unmistakable signal to Iraq'

(From 1A)

U.N. inspectors "immediate, unconditional and unrestricted access" to all suspected weapons sites.

A team of diplomats would accompany inspectors to eight presidential sites that Baghdad had previously declared off-limits, sparking the crisis.

While council approval of Annan's accord is not required legally, a resolution would give it political backing — and if Britain, America and Japan are successful — a codified and automatic response to Iraqi violation.

Richardson said the resolution's goal was "to send an unmistakable signal to Iraq that it must comply with the agreement to open up all the sites or it will face serious, serious consequences."

He said the resolution would be weakened by adding that the council had to give the OK for military strikes if Iraq violated the agreement.

Despite the resistance of Russia, France and China to the current draft, Britain's U.N. ambassador, John Weston, said he expected a vote early next week.

"We shall be in a position to finalize the draft resolution by the end of the day, allow people to just refer it to their capitals over the weekend, and come back and adopt it on Monday," Weston said after the council debated the draft for more than 2 1/2 hours.

After the meeting, French Ambassador Alain Dejammet said he did not have a problem with promising Iraq the "severest consequences."

"What is important is the fact that it should be up to the Security Council to take a decision" on a response, Dejammet said.

Russian Ambassador Sergey Lavrov said it would not be wise to make any threat automatic since a violation could have different interpretations.

"We can consider this language provided it is very clear that it will be upon the determination of the council when and if a violation takes place."

China, too, opposed any automatic trigger of military action, a Chinese diplomat said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Aziz, the Iraqi deputy prime minister, told the British Broadcasting Corp.'s Arabic-language service that the push for a resolution shows a lack of respect for Annan's authority.

Iraq will "respect the memorandum we signed and we'll apply it very seriously," despite having little faith in U.N. inspectors, Aziz said in an interview broadcast Friday on French channel TF1.

The inspectors must certify that Iraq has destroyed its weapons of mass destruction before sanctions imposed after Baghdad's 1990 invasion of Kuwait can be lifted.

Comedian gets a sendoff of sentiment, gags

NEW YORK (AP) — "Dear God, take Henny — please," the rabbi said Friday at a funeral for Henny Youngman that was rich with rimshot humor.

With Alan King, Jerry Stiller, Anne Meara, Larry Storch and Soupy Sales among the mourners, Rabbi Noach Valley followed solemn prayers with vintage gags from the King of One-Liners.

An overflow crowd of more than 200 mourners could pick up a pamphlet of Youngman's insults at the door along with condolence books.

The comedian whose signature line was "Take my wife, please" died Tuesday at 91 of complications of the flu.

The rabbi recalled that Youngman told him from a hospital bed with a broken hip two years ago: "The doctors are a bunch of crooks — they all wore masks.

"One doctor was OK. If you can't afford the operation he touches up the X-ray."

Tenor Robert Merrill sang "God Bless America." In the hush as the last note faded, Irwin Corey piped up: "In the name of Gene Baylos, I pledge $5!"

GOALIE: Waiting behind Hasek not good way to get started in NHL

(From 1A)

Northern Michigan team won the 1991 NCAA Championship in triple overtime, Pye was chosen by the Buffalo Sabres in the sixth round of the NHL draft.

It sometimes seems as though the denouement in Pye's life began way too early. The career thrills were plentiful, but over way too fast.

In sports, as in comedy, timing is often everything. When he was drafted by the Sabres, the team had Grant Fuhr in goal. Waiting in the wings was Dominic Hasek, considered by many to be the best goalie on earth today. Waiting behind Fuhr and Hasek is not a good way to get off to a good start in the NHL. So Pye took a year off and went back to school. Doing so severely hurt his chances at ever making it to hockey's top echelon.

"I guess you could say maybe he put me in this league," Pye says of Hasek, not entirely joking.

Pye marvels at Hasek's feat at the Nagano Olympics. Almost single-handedly Hasek lead his Czech Republic team to hockey's gold medal in beating the USA, Canada and Russia. Pye said Hasek's feat will probably never again be equaled.

Pye kicked around minor league hockey for several seasons before ending up with the Waco Wizards last year. He was the MVP of last year's WPHL All-Star Game and was named the starting goalie for this year's West Division squad, representing the Jackalopes. Last week he recorded the Jacks' first-ever shut out, a 4-0 blanking of the reviled San Angelo Outlaws.

He arrived as the Jacks' goalie in a Nov. 26 trade. Since his arrival, the Jacks have put together an 18-19 record, a pace good enough to land them in the playoffs, had they not started the season with only four wins in their first 19 games.

"Obviously the shut-out was great," Pye said, "but starting in January, this team has been a .500 team. We're not world beaters, but we're good enough to make the playoffs."

Unhappy in Waco, Pye was traded to Odessa after hearing that the team's ownership and front office had experience in the minor league business. Miles Prentice and Bob Richmond, co-owners of the Jacks, general manager Monty Hoppel and his front office staff are also responsible for the Midland Angels every season.

Rarely one to mince words, the only positive thing Pye can find to say about a recent error-filled article by Mike Shropshire in Sports Illustrated ("Lone Star Skate," Feb. 16) is, "at least I got my name in Sports Illustrated."

Otherwise, Pye said the article belittled not only him, but his teammates, West Texas and minor league hockey.

"The writer made it seem like he was here to do something about how well hockey is being received, how great Odessa is and how we average 4,000 fans a game. All it was, was a diary of how bad we did one weekend," Pye said.

Pye's parents, Bill and Ellen Pye, of Plymouth, Mich., don't care much for the portrayal either. The Pyes are in Odessa this week to catch up on their son's career.

"We're a Billy fan," Mrs. Pye said. "We don't care much for hockey anymore, but we follow Billy. I think what's unique about Billy is his love for the game. Of course he wants to make money so he can live, but I think most people his age who aren't playing anymore would love to be playing anywhere."

Mrs. Pye said fate, not bad timing, has placed Billy in the dusty vestiges of West Texas and a new hockey league instead of the glitz and glamour of the NHL, or the IHL.

"He could be a cry baby and say, 'I was an All American, a college guy, a sixth-round draft choice,'" Mrs. Pye said, adding that her son is not the type to sulk about missed opportunities. "Billy likes to shine, and I always told him he would like being a big fish in a small town."

Pye, who is working on a contract to rejoin the Jackalopes for the 1998-99 season, has already said he will stay here in the off-season, working in the front office for both the Jacks and the Angels, picking up some sports management tricks for when his hockey playing days do come to an end.

The Pyes, both Billy and his parents, like West Texas. Particularly impressive, they said, are the windy conditions this week.

"It impressed the whole side of Bill's new car," Mrs. Pye said. "I keep thinking of the old days when cowboys had to steer those cattle and you saw them with the kerchief's over their face."

Sort of like that Billy the Kid commercial.

JACKS: Big downside has been failure to win consistently the sport itself is the biggest attraction. The action is so intense and it's such a fast sport."

The big downside has been the team's failure to win consistently, which is blamed largely on a lack of team chemistry.

"Definitely we're disappointed with the record," Hoppel said. "We thought we would be in the playoffs. In fairness, only eight guys have been here all season and when you have guys coming and going all year, I don't know if you can have the chemistry."

Five of the team's final six games are at home: tonight vs. Fort Worth, Tuesday vs. Austin, Thursday vs. New Mexico, March 12 vs. Shreveport and the season finale, March 14, against El Paso. The Jacks last remaining road trip is at Amarillo, March 6.

Team officials were rendered a bit winded after the publication of "Lone Star Skate," an article in the Feb. 16 Sports Illustrated that unexpectedly painted the team — and to a large extent the area — a bust.

Hoppel said what bothered him most was the number of factual errors in the article (Jessica McClure, the article intimated, was rescued from a well in Odessa, for instance) and the fact that the story didn't give the community a fair shake.

Jackalopes' president Miles Prentice, in a letter to the magazine's editors said, "In this, the Odessa Jackalopes' first season, we have indeed endured our share of busted lips, toes and teeth, as (Mike) Shropshire's vivid prose attests. However, there is no 'bust' in enthusiasm, support and love for the game by either our team or its supporters.

"... Amidst conditions that to the uninitiated might be mistaken for 'bust,' this team, from all over the world, with injuries and all, when they hit the ice, are not so much chasing a dream as, like others with energy and spirit, are actually living one."

When the 1998-99 season rolls around in October, Hoppel and his staff realize the first-year novelty will be largely gone and the demanding sports fan indigenous to the area will be more demanding of a team with a shot at the playoffs.

"The excitement will be there for awhile," he said, "but we have to be competitive. Next year, some way, some how, we have to have a commitment to getting into the playoffs. As long as we're competitive hockey will always be a very popular sport."

The front office is obviously hopeful of the Jacks' continued popularity: The team signed a 10-year working agreement with Ector County and the WPHL. An out clause exists in the agreements after five years if one entity fails to meet its obligations.

Based on this season, though, a sport that once appealed only to Canadians and North easterners can be counted on as a mainstay in the Permian Basin.

JAIL: Construction will be an 18-month project motion, and James Brezina. Guy McCrary was absent.

(From 1A)

County Judge Jeff Norwood, who cast the dissenting vote, said that he was pleased that the Commissioners' Court has "taken another step toward expansion of the county jail" in addressing the "overcrowding problem.

"And we do need to move forward. I was disappointed, however, in that I personally did not feel that the (Corplan) architectural firm was the strongest team that we had to choose from. However, I am hopeful that they will perform in such a way that we continue to move this project forward. I thought that there were other firms that had greater qualifications and experience than Corplan."

Earlier this week, Norwood had predicted that the expansion's design and construction bid preparations would take up to six months and that construction, to begin in late 1998, would be an 18-month project. The Commissioners' Court already has set up an account, now totaling $2 million, toward funding jail expansion.

Estimates among representatives of the four architectural firms placed cost of a single-occupancy jail cell from $30,000 to $50,000. The per-bunk cost of a multi-occupancy cell for eight inmates or fewer would be $16,000 to $18,000. A dormitory-style cell would cost $10,000 to $12,000 per inmate, according to the estimates.

Midland County Jail Detentions Capt. Richard Sexton said that "there's a lot of experience there" among the four firms.

"Everything is to be negotiated," Sexton said of the county's working with Corplan. "We've chosen No. 1, but two, three and four are still there if we need them. Any one of the four (architectural firms) can come back in. Nobody is kicked out for good yet until we start bidding the project."

Flying Wallendas to reprise dangerous stunt

N.Y. Times News Service

SARASOTA, Fla. — Mario Wallenda shook his head as seven loved ones practiced the same high-wire trick that put him in a wheelchair 36 years ago.

"I think they're all crazy," the 57-year-old said Thursday as the group rehearsed in north Sarasota.

Wallenda was a member of the renowned Flying Wallendas, a troupe of circus performers whose unique seven-person pyramid across a tightrope dazzled audiences worldwide until February 1962.

That's when the pyramid collapsed during a performance in Detroit. Two members were killed. Mario, the adopted son of family patriarch Karl Wallenda, was paralyzed.

Next week, a new group of 13 Flying Wallendas, all related by blood, marriage or friendship to the 1962 Wallendas, will return to Detroit with the hope of exorcising a circus demon. They will begin 17 nights of performances starting March 6 in the Moslem Shrine Circus.

They plan to perform the seven-person pyramid.

Since the fatal pyramid performance, the Flying Wallendas have performed the act only twice — but never in Detroit, and not since 1977.

Now, the pyramid will be a regular highlight of the Wallenda performances.

In the pyramid stunt, which takes just a few minutes, four people line up single file at the end of one platform, standing on thin wire 25 feet above the ground. The four hold two bars across their shoulders.

Two people then stand on the bars, and a third person — in a chair — gets on top. Those on the bottom then walk about 30 feet across the wire — without a net.

In 1978, Karl Wallenda fell to his death from 120 feet above a Puerto Rico street. His death was the seventh fatal Wallenda high-wire death of the century.

"I could sit here and talk them out of it until I'm blue in the face," Mario Wallenda said as he watched the rehearsal Thursday. "Anticipation that something might happen? Yes. I'm running out of relatives."

EU nations issue data qualifying them for euro

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Several European nations declared Friday they had met the strict economic criteria for the euro, meeting a deadline for starting the common currency in 1999.

The data showed as many as 11 of the 15 European Union nations may join the single currency — a participation rate that seemed unlikely only a few years ago.

A final decision will be made by the EU leaders at a summit in early May.

Economic figures from national capitals gave proof of how successful the countries have been in aligning their economies, said European Commission President Jacques Santer and Yves-Thibault de Silguy, the EU finance commissioner.

All EU nations — except Britain, Denmark, Greece and Sweden — will likely shed their currencies for the euro if they meet the criteria, which includes a budget deficit of no more than 3 percent of gross domestic product, a public debt not exceeding 60 percent of GDP — or moving in that direction — and low inflation.

Governments had to say by Friday how their economies performed in 1997.

Germany, France and Italy — whose participation in the euro is of key importance and whose economic performance has been widely questioned — said they meet all targets.

Germany and Italy each reported budget gaps of 2.7 percent of GDP. France put its at 3.0 percent. Finland came in at 0.9 percent. Ireland reported a 0.9 percent surplus.

In the past, Germany Italy and France have been accused of deft bookkeeping with critics charging that politics — not economics — drove the single currency project. The Berlin-based German Institute for Economic Research, for instance, has said its calculations put Germany's deficit at 3.3 percent of GDP for 1997.

Portugal, Spain, Belgium, Luxembourg and Austria had already reported data making them candidates for the euro.

By this afternoon, the Netherlands had yet to give figures but it, too, is expected to join the single currency.

Britain, Denmark and Sweden easily make the criteria but remain on the sidelines for political reasons. They see the single currency as a step in European integration they are not now ready to make.

Greece failed the euro test. It reported a budget gap of 4 percent of GDP, down from 7.5 percent in 1996.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl — the driving force behind the single currency — said Friday's news made it appear certain the euro would be launched on schedule. His support comes despite polls that say most Germans don't want to give up the German mark in favor of an untested euro.

Three company presidents commit suicide

■ Three businessmen each hanged himself in separate Toyko hotel rooms.

Associated Press

TOKYO — The three businessmen checked in together at the Le Piano hotel in a Tokyo suburb.

They took separate rooms, meeting later in one of them to share some whiskey and cheap Chinese liquor.

Then they said goodbye. Each went to his own room. Each hanged himself.

Even in a country with a long tradition of suicide as an answer to failure, the three deaths managed to shock the Japanese, and drove home the crippling impact that the country's prolonged economic slump has had on small- to medium-size companies.

Shattered finances have forced Japan's banking sector to abruptly halt lending to medium-size companies, starving them of cash. More and more of them are becoming desperate.

The three businessmen checked into the hotel on Wednesday. The empty liquor bottles in one of their rooms indicate they shared a few last drinks before saying farewell, and hanged themselves from ventilator grates with identical white ropes.

Masaaki Kobayashi's company, Spot, began to decline with the Japanese economy eight years ago and was saddled with $30 million in debts.

Kobayashi failed to honor an $800,000 debt on Wednesday, the deadline for payment, and the company was going to declare bankruptcy Friday, Kyodo News reported.

His friends — Masaru Sudo, 49, and Yoshimi Shoji, 49 — were also presidents of troubled auto parts companies, but neither enterprise was on the brink of collapse, according to Japanese media and company employees.

In fact, the two had been pouring money into Spot to keep it afloat.

"They were bound by an extremely deep friendship," said Nakazawa, a spokesman for Shoji's Toko company who identified himself only by his surname. "Company employees would always laugh at the way they would always get together after work."

"They were known to visit the race track together," Nakazawa said.

Kobayashi had enjoyed a brief moment of fame in 1990 — the peak of Japan's asset-inflated "bubble" economy. A thoroughbred he owned had beat incredible odds to win Japan's biggest horse racing prize, the Japan Derby.

But the million-dollar horses he bought after that failed to win any big prizes, said writer Kotaro Abe of Horse News. As his horses stopped performing, the fortunes of his company Spot began to decline as well.

A salesman for Sudo's company, who only gave his surname, Kono, said the three often visited each others' homes, a rare practice in Japanese business, and were regular drinking partners.

"Sudo didn't seem any different from usual before his death," Kono said. "He was a cheerful, forward-looking person."

Japan's economic downturn has led to the severe cash crunch facing all but the largest companies.

As well, the ethos of the company being ultimately responsible for the welfare of employees and their families remains stronger in Japan's medium-size firms than in its blue-chip corporations.

"This has put a heavy psychological burden on many heads of mid-size firms," said Yuichi Yamada, a management psychologist at Tokyo's prestigious Meiji University.

Suicides by company executives have surged in recent years. The number of corporate suicides in 1996 — the latest figures available — rose by 16 percent from the previous year, according to national police figures.

"Paying off debts has become too hard. I can't go on anymore," Kobayashi's suicide note to his wife and daughter said. "Please use my insurance money to alleviate the company's financial problems."

But personal ties appear to have as much to do with the triple suicide as financial troubles.

"I believe they felt compelled to help each other out," Nakazawa said.

March could be miserable for S. Korean economy

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Bad as Friday looked in South Korea — and it looked bad, with news of a record high in bankruptcies and a record low in factory production — to many jittery South Koreans, the future looked even worse.

"A Looming Second Currency Crisis," one newspaper headline blared. "A March Crisis," trumpeted another.

The worst predictions see South Korea's fragile banking system snapping like an overstretched rubber band next month, forcing thousands more companies into bankruptcy and throwing tens of thousands of workers out of their jobs.

So far, the scenario remains just that — a gloomy prediction — but the signs for South Korea's economy are bad, despite a $57 billion bailout by the International Monetary Fund.

A record 3,320 companies went bankrupt in January alone, according to a dismal government report released Friday.

The report also said the number of unemployed soared 42 percent from December to January, pushing the jobless rate to an 11-year high of 4.5 percent, or 934,000 people. The industrial output shrank by a record 10.3 percent in January.

Other somber indicators:

■ Japanese banks, the biggest lenders to South Korea, may start calling in loans to make their already-battered financial books look better by March, when their fiscal year ends.

■ A massive amount of short-term domestic debt — the money South Korean firms owe to the nation's banks — is coming due at the end of March.

■ Liquidity is drying up: A handful of conglomerates are sucking up an estimated 80 percent of the banking system's available loans while thousands of smaller firms are teetering.

■ The economic crisis in Indonesia is worsening.

"All this could result in ... a second currency crisis," said Lee Jang-young, a research fellow at the Korea Institute of Finance, a think tank funded by South Korean commercial banks.

South Korea obtained an important reprieve in late January when international bankers agreed to repackage $24 billion in short-term foreign debt owed by South Korean banks into government-guaranteed, long-term obligations.

But since then it has become even harder for South Korean companies, many already heavily in debt, to get credit. The average Korean manufacturing company's debt outweighs its equity by 4.5 to 1.

The credit crunch stems from high interest rates imposed by the IMF in return for its bailout, banks tightening credit to clean up their balance sheets to survive an industry shakeout, and an economic slowdown that Lee and other economists say will result in the first contraction in nearly two decades.

Israel apologizes for Mossad's latest bungled operation

JERUSALEM (AP) — Moving to repair the damage from Mossad's latest blunder, Israel made a half-hearted apology to Switzerland on Friday for trying to wiretap a suspected member of an Islamic militant group in the Swiss capital.

In a letter to the Swiss president, Israel said it regretted any trouble the incident caused, but also noted that terrorism continues to threaten Israel's security and the stability of the Middle East.

Israel and Switzerland tried to settle the matter quietly after five Mossad agents were caught red-handed Feb. 19.

But leaks in Israel this week — reportedly by disgruntled Mossad officials trying to push out their boss — forced the Swiss to go public and demand an apology.

Switzerland prides itself on its neutrality and a forgiving attitude toward Israel would have angered some Arab countries. In response to the incident, Iran has already demanded that Switzerland guarantee security for Iranian diplomats.

Initial Israeli news reports said an Iranian mission in Switzerland was the target of the wiretapping operation. However, the Yediot Ahronot newspaper and Israel radio said Friday the Mossad agents were trying to bug the phone of a member of Hezbollah, an Iranian-backed Shiite Muslim guerrilla group seeking to drive Israel out of Lebanon. The man had ties to Iranian intelligence, Israel radio said.

Swiss TV has said the target was a member of Hamas, a Palestinian group that has carried out a series of suicide bombings in Israel to wreck Middle East peacemaking.

The five Mossad agents were caught after they made so much noise trying to install the surveillance equipment in the basement of an apartment building in the Bern suburb of Liebefeld that they awakened a tenant, who alerted the police.

Authorities quickly released four of the agents because they couldn't find any incriminating evidence. But the fifth agent, caught with wiretapping equipment, was held. He faked a heart attack and was taken by an ambulance to a hospital.

An Israeli official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Friday that concern for the agent had held up an Israeli apology.

There was concern the Mossad man could face more serious charges if Israel publicly acknowledged it was behind the operation. However, Israel has been assured the apology would have no bearing on the agent's future, the Israeli official said.

The letter of apology was sent by a relatively low-ranking official — the Foreign Ministry's director general, Eitan Ben-Tsur — to Swiss President Flavio Cotti.

An Israeli official said he believed relations between the two countries would now return to normal. In recent months, ties had been strained over the issue of dormant accounts of Holocaust victims in Swiss banks. Israeli officials have accused the banks of dragging their feet in trying to find the money and its owners.

Many Swiss were offended in recent weeks by Israel's reluctance to accept a Swiss offer of free gas masks to protect against any Iraqi chemical or biological weapons attack.

Before the Israeli apology was made, the influential Neue Zuercher Zeitung newspaper said that Cotti should reconsider a trip to Israel planned for May.

In Israel, meanwhile, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu was looking at candidates for the top job at the Mossad, and will announce his choice within days, said senior adviser, David Bar-Illan.

The outgoing Mossad chief, Danny Yatom, resigned Tuesday over the agency's botched Sept. 25 attempt to poison a Hamas political leader in Jordan.

The six-story house in the Bern suburb of Liebefeld, seen Thursday, where Israeli Mossad agents were allegedly caught tampering with telephone wires on Feb. 19. Mossad agents who bungled the bugging of a suspected Islamic militant in the apartment block in Switzerland made so much noise that they woke another tenant who alerted police, Israeli newspapers said Friday.

Lawyer: U.S. plane's altimeter may have broken

ROME (AP) — The altitude gauge may have malfunctioned on a U.S. Marine jet that swooped low and severed a ski gondola cable in the Italian Alps, the lawyer for the plane's crew said Friday.

Nineteen skiers and the cable car operator were killed when the gondola plunged to the ground Feb. 3.

Hinting for the first time at the crew's explanation for the accident, Italian attorney Bruno Malattia said he has asked for tests on the altimeter.

"We think it wasn't working properly," he said, adding that an alarm is supposed to sound when the plane drops below a certain altitude.

Italian media reported last week that an Italian air force investigation blamed pilot error. Malattia and the U.S. military say the investigation is still under way.

Gen. Vincenzo Camporini, head of flight security for the Italian air force, was quoted as saying that its investigators left no room for doubt that the pilot "flew in substantial deviation from the flight plan and the rules, and this was the fundamental cause of the accident."

The Marine EA-6B Prowler sliced through the cable with its right wing while on a training run from the U.S. air base of Aviano in northeastern Italy.

Malattia, speaking by telephone from Aviano, said the four crew members wrote a report for Marine investigators in which they explained why they were flying so low.

He refused to say what the reasons were.

Italy does not allow aircraft on training flights to dip below 2,000 feet. U.S. regulations permit pilots to fly as low as 1,000 feet.

Capt. Richard Ashby and his three-man crew were flying below the cable's highest point of 400 feet when the plane hit.

The lawyer said both Italian and U.S. investigators want to conduct further tests. One on the plane's altimeter will begin Monday and may take a few days.

Italy has said it will seek U.S. permission to prosecute the crew on possible manslaughter charges. Permission likely will not be granted.

Marines train in Italy under the auspices of NATO, and treaties governing the alliance make U.S. military personnel subject only to American law.

Russia decides to bury last czar 80 years after his execution

MOSCOW (AP) — Overriding last-minute hesitations by the Orthodox Church, the government decided Friday to bury Russia's last czar and put to rest a painful chapter of history.

Cabinet voted to bury the remains of Nicholas II and his family in the czars' crypt in St. Petersburg on July 17 — 80 years to the day after they were executed by a Bolshevik firing squad.

The fate of Russia's last royal family has troubled the country since their bones were exhumed in July 1991 from woods near the Ural Mountains city of Yekaterinburg — raising the sensitive question of whether Russians need to repent for their past.

First Deputy Prime Minister Boris Nemtsov said Yeltsin gave the Cabinet full authority over the burial plans, and Friday's decision was final. "There will be no other decision except this one," Nemtsov said.

Nicholas was executed in Yekaterinburg, 900 miles east of Moscow, on July 17, 1918, along with his wife, five children and four servants.

To prevent the remains from becoming religious or political relics, the Bolsheviks did their best to destroy the bodies, burning them with fire and acid, blasting them with grenades and dumping what remained in a swampy, unmarked pit outside the city.

The bones were exhumed the day after Yeltsin was inaugurated as Russia's first elected president in July 1991 and their burial would complete the symbolic reckoning he set in motion.

In the years since, the nine recovered skeletons have undergone extensive scientific testing in Russia, the United States and Britain, and based on the findings, a government commission concluded last month the bones belong to the royal family.

Two skeletons were never found — those of Nicholas' son and heir, Alexei, and a daughter, either Maria or Anastasia — keeping alive questions over the bones and their identities. Those who disposed of the corpses have said they burned two of them, then scattered the ashes in nearby woods.

Storm runoff stains miles of California's beaches

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Runoff and backed-up sewage from the recent round of El Nino storms have turned the waters off California's famous golden beaches into a stinky brown mess, fouling the state's "Baywatch" image.

"Where are the bikinis?" asked a disappointed Eric Van Sickle, 15, of Columbus, Ohio, as he sat Friday on the Santa Monica Pier that juts out into the Pacific, giving visitors a panoramic view of the usually pristine shoreline used by the cast of the syndicated lifeguard series.

Torrential downpours from El Nino have caused millions of gallons of raw sewage to overflow from treatment plants before it gets processed, turning near-shore waters into a cauldron of bacteria and forcing county health officials to close down miles of beaches.

"Pretty much anything you flush is there. It's not a pretty sight," said Larry Honeybourne, program chief of the Orange County Health Care Agency's water-quality section.

Keith Coleman got an eyeful as he rode his bicycle by a storm drain at the beach.

"You could see debris floating, things like condoms, syringes, Kotex. It was disgusting," said Coleman, 45, of West Los Angeles.

"It's a shame you come to the beach and you can't even go into the water," he said.

The storms have made swimming a difficult chore at San Francisco's Aquatic Park at Fisherman's Wharf.

"It's been horrible. Sometimes all that stuff just hangs off the cove here when we swim — broken piers, big huge logs, whatever," swimmer Lou Marcelli said. "Some even have big spikes sticking out. It can be very harmful."

He said he checks the water carefully before diving in, and when the city water inspectors call to warn of high bacterial levels, he stays out. Until Thursday, they were warned not to swim.

Sewage spills normally occur during any heavy storm activity, but they have been happening more often and are larger than usual in this El Nino season.

"This is the longest I've ever seen it closed," said Los Angeles County Lifeguard Lt. John Moryl, who has worked on the beaches since 1973.

All 35 miles of county beaches, including Malibu, were closed Tuesday when rain-swamped sewers spit 5.5 million gallons of raw sewage into a creek that feeds the Santa Monica Bay. After testing the water, officials reopened two-thirds of the beaches for what was expected to be a sunny weekend.

In Orange County, 8.5 miles of beaches were expected to remain closed into the weekend after two sewer lines broke along the coast earlier in the week, pouring raw sewage into the ocean, Honeybourne said.

The consequences of taking a dip were as uninviting as the water — nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, infection of eyes, ears or throat and gastrointestinal distress.

The messy beaches will affect businesses that rely on the state's image of beautiful beaches, said Jack Kyser, chief economist of the Economic Development Corporation of Los Angeles.

"When people come they want to go see Hollywood, Beverly Hills, they want to see the ocean, it has a lot of allure," Kyser said.

He said coastal cities will have to launch aggressive public relations efforts to let tourists know their beaches are OK.

Near Malibu, lifeguards posted signs every 200 yards warning people to stay away from the dirty beaches.

"We had a visitor yesterday from Nebraska who was very disappointed," Moryl said.

Judge sentences vampire cult leader to death

TAVARES, Fla. (AP) — A judge sentenced the teen-age leader of a vampire cult to Florida's electric chair Friday, and he urged the prosecution of the victims' daughter.

Rod Ferrell, 17, showed little emotion as state Circuit Judge Jerry Lockett stayed with the jury recommendation of death sentences for the crow-bar slayings of a central Florida couple in their home.

"I think you are a disturbed young man," Lockett said.

Ferrell pleaded guilty to killing Richard Wendorf and Naoma Ruth Queen of Eustice, about 30 miles northwest of Orlando, on Nov. 25, 1996, when he and three members of his blood-sucking cult came to Florida from Kentucky to help the couple's daughter run away.

According to investigators, she was then inducted into the cult, whose members took drugs, engaged in group sex and drank one another's blood. Ferrell told a friend that he needed to kill people to open the "gates to hell," according to police.

Charges against the couple's daughter, Heather, were dropped when a grand jury failed to indict. Lockett urged the prosecution to try again.

"It is the strong suggestion of this court that the grand jury be reconvened," Lockett said. "There is genuine evil in the world. There is dark side and light side competing in each of us."

There are still some unanswered questions in Heather Wendorf's role in slaying, the judge said, adding that some witnesses who testified in Ferrell's sentencing hearing did not speak to the grand jury.

Ferrell's mother, Sondra Gibson, said today her son didn't deserve the death penalty and she endorsed the idea of pursuing charges against Miss Wendorf.

"There's one person walking around who's just as guilty as he is," Ms. Gibson said outside the courtroom after the sentencing.

State Attorney Brad King said he doubted he would ask the grand jury to reconsider the case. "You don't indict someone if you can't prove they're guilty," King said. "I'm more inclined to direct my energy to the other co-defendants."

More tall cars leave drivers feeling low

AP Photo

Sport utility vehicles (SUVs) are shown driving through the streets of Washington. The king-of-the-road feeling that appeals to drivers of SUVs feels more like a pain in the neck to some folks stuck behind them in traffic. With an increasing number of taller, wider autos on the road, it's become a frequent inconvenience.

WASHINGTON (AP) — That king-of-the-road feeling that appeals to drivers of sport utility vehicles feels more like a pain in the neck to some folks stuck behind them in traffic.

Janell Zech hates following them when she's tooling around town in her blue Toyota compact. No matter how she cranes her neck, she can't see around them. Ditto for pickups and minivans.

Brake lights flash in front of her. But with no view of the road ahead, "You can't really see what they're stopping for," said Zech, a paralegal from Herndon, Va., near Washington.

"I'm learning to live with it," she says. "I'm keeping my distance so I can see."

Large trucks and vans have always obstructed vision for drivers of traditional-sized passenger vehicles; a simple lane change took care of it. Now, with an increasing number of taller, wider vehicles on the road, it's become a more frequent inconvenience.

Sales of sports utility vehicles jumped 76 percent during the past five years to 2.44 million in 1997, according to Ward's, which tracks automotive statistics.

That means drivers of smaller cars who pass to get around a minivan now may find themselves behind an Explorer or a Land Rover.

"I hate being behind an SUV. I feel like I'm closed in. You want to see why you're stopped or what's in front," says Chris Cedergren, who works for a California auto consulting firm called Nextrend. "To me, it's mostly claustrophobic."

The other side is complaining too.

"People behind me are always trying to go around me," says Ms. Zech's husband, Dave, who drives a minivan. "They can't stand being behind me. If I'm doing 70, they go 75 to pass me. Then they slow down to 65 and I have to pass them."

The Washington-based Center for Auto Safety, a non-profit group, says its gets a couple of calls or letters weekly from drivers complaining they can't see around larger vehicles.

"Any time someone's field of view is obstructed, it's a safety issue," says Clarence Ditlow, the center's executive director. "Whether it's a significant safety issue — that's the next question."

Tim Hurd, a National Highway Traffic Safety Administration spokesman, said he's only heard anecdotal reports that car owners are grousing about large vehicles blocking their vision.

"You don't want to be getting too close to the car or truck in front of you anyway," Hurd says.

That's precisely the problem, in the view of George Peterson, a regular driver of Los Angeles freeways.

"Nobody is following at a safe distance," says Peterson, president of AutoPacific Inc., an automotive marketing and product consulting company in Santa Ana, Calif.

Sitting up high is one of the main attractions for drivers of sport utility vehicles, according to a 1997 marketing survey by AutoPacific. The survey found that among more than 2,600 purchasers of the vehicles, 83 percent had no intention of using them off the road or to go hunting, camping or fishing.

Among the top reasons for buying them was "driver seat visibility," Peterson says.

"The higher position is really a hot commodity," says Michele Tinson, a Chrysler Corp. spokeswoman.

That riding-up-high feeling amounts to 10 to 20 inches.

Chrysler's Sebring, a two-door convertible, measures 54.8 inches from pavement to roof, Ms. Tinson says. In comparison, the Jeep Cherokee stands nearly 65 inches and the Dodge Durango, a four-door sports utility vehicle, measures nearly 73 inches.

Carl Calvert, editor of "Today's Sport Utility Vehicle," a bimonthly magazine based in Huntington Beach, Calif., says large trucks block the vision of passenger-car drivers more than sport utility vehicles, minivans or small pickups. He adds that the soaring popularity of these vehicles likely will drown out complaints from drivers of other cars.

But it's already fodder for the talk shows.

Filling time on "ABC This Week," newswoman Cokie Roberts called sport utility vehicles "great big things driving around the streets that I can't see around."

Her comment drew a playful retort from colleague George Will, who quipped: "Anyone who comes between me and my Ford Explorer is going to die."

Deaf woman fired as lifeguard sues YMCA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Being deaf didn't stop Stacy Bradley from getting certified as a lifeguard. It didn't stop her from working as a lifeguard for a year at a YMCA pool in Long Beach.

So why, she asks in a $12 million lawsuit, did it get her fired?

"I was left speechless. I had worked so hard for that accomplishment. It was really hurtful," says Ms. Bradley, 21.

Ms. Bradley, saying a lifeguard relies on sight more than hearing, is suing in state and federal court, alleging wrongful termination.

The YMCA says it fired Ms. Bradley because of a 1994 policy banning deaf lifeguards. Lifeguards, the YMCA contends, need to be able to hear a swimmer shout for help.

"We believe that hearing is an essential requirement for a lifeguard. It comes down to the safety of the children. We just simply don't compromise that," says David Mercer, YMCA national executive director in Chicago.

Other lifeguards say the issue isn't clear cut.

"There's always going to be someone that can do the job no matter what kind of challenge they have. And if the YMCA hired her, she must have been able to do the job," says Kevin Bialas, 24, who has been a public pool manager and lifeguard in Santa Clarita for 5 1/2 years.

But Bialas adds: "I honestly think it helps to be able to hear. Sometimes, even while you're scanning, it's good to have your ears to hear what's going on."

Ms. Bradley sued last year. No trial date for either case has been set.

The legal action is at least the second involving a deaf lifeguard for the YMCA, and the latest lawsuit alleging violations of the federal Americans With Disabilities Act.

Last year, a federal judge dismissed David Schultz's $20 million lawsuit against the Hockomock Area YMCA in Massachusetts. Schultz's certification was withdrawn by the YMCA after he had worked as a lifeguard, instructor and coach for 16 years. He has appealed, and his lawyer is now working for Ms. Bradley.

Just weeks ago, golfer Casey Martin won a major victory under ADA when a federal judge in Oregon ruled Martin can ride a cart on the professional tour because of a painfully withered leg.

The YMCA is citing the same "bona fide occupational requirement" provision in California law that Aaron Spelling's lawyer unsuccessfully used recently in the case of actress Hunter Tylo, who was fired from her role as a temptress on TV's "Melrose Place" after she got pregnant.

Spelling had argued that a trim figure was necessary for the job. The jury awarded Miss Tylo $4.9 million.

Ms. Bradley, who grew up in Long Beach and swam for her high school team, was hired by the Los Altos YMCA in 1995 and worked as a lifeguard for a year at the center's small pool. She says the YMCA knew of her disability when it hired her, and she was certified both by the YMCA and the Red Cross.

Her deafness, she says, never interfered with her work.

She says that the pool is always so noisy with screaming kids that a lifeguard probably isn't going to hear someone in distress.

"One of the things you're taught as a lifeguard is scanning. You never take your eyes away from the area that you are supposed to be watching. You're always watching the pool," she says.

She worked without complaint until she was fired in 1996. The YMCA's Mercer says he isn't sure why Ms. Bradley was hired after the policy against deaf lifeguards was written, or why the YMCA itself certified her.

"There are 15,000 certifications a year," Mercer says. "This could have been one that slipped through."

Starr calling Clinton before grand jury would present gains, risks for both men

By Mike Feinsilber
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Independent prosecutor Kenneth Starr has been working his way up to asking Monica Lewinsky under oath about her relationship with President Clinton. Sooner or later, Starr must decide whether to try to subpoena the president as well.

For both president and prosecutor, there would be advantages and hazards in submitting Clinton to grand jury questioning.

■ News analysis

Some of Clinton's political advisers say they have urged him to volunteer to go before the grand jury, a request Starr could hardly refuse.

The gesture, the political consultants say, could indicate that Clinton is not afraid of saying under oath what he has told the American people: that he did not have a sexual relationship with Ms. Lewinsky. However, Clinton's legal advisers, who so far have been more cautious and have prevailed over his political advisers, argue against his saying anything further about his relationship with Ms. Lewinsky.

There's uncertainty over whether a president can be subpoenaed to appear before a grand jury. "This would become a test case on the legality of calling a sitting president, particularly when there are so many allegations of political motives on the part of the special counsel," said Ira Robbins, a law professor at American University in Washington.

Agrees Hunter Clark, who teaches law at Des Moines' Drake University: "It is an open question whether a president can be subpoenaed. The courts have always taken into consideration the singular importance of the president's duties and have been inclined to work out some sort of accommodation with the president," such as videotaped testimony.

On the other hand, Bruce Yannett, former associate independent counsel in the Iran-Contra investigation, said he is aware of nothing "that would legally prevent Starr from calling the president before the grand jury."

> 'It would look like Starr is not only harassing Monica Lewinsky's family but interfering with the president's ability to do his job.'
> —Michael Gerhardt, law professor

"His track record thus far of always opting for the most aggressive choice available whenever he has investigatory options would suggest he is likely in fact to subpoena the president," Yannett said.

For Clinton, a show of apparent candor would have obvious virtues, but it would carry risks, too: Starr could be counted upon to seize on any inconsistencies between Clinton's answers and the sworn deposition he gave in the Paula Jones sexual harassment case. False statements to a grand jury are perjury, a criminal offense.

In January 1996, Hillary Rodham Clinton became the first wife of a president to go before a grand jury. She was questioned for four hours about the disappearance and rediscovery of law firm billing records sought in the Whitewater investigation.

She may have attracted some sympathy for having been put through an ordeal. In a poll taken a week before her appearance, 32 percent of participants said they had a favorable impression of her; the day after her appearance, 43 percent said they had a favorable impression.

For Starr, one benefit of subpoenaing the president is the possibility of a stronger case to present to the House of Representatives for an impeachment inquiry.

But hauling the president before the grand jury plays into the very image of Starr that the White House has been promoting, that of a vengeance-seeking, ideologically driven prosecutor pursuing a right-wing agenda.

"It would look like Starr is not only harassing Monica Lewinsky's family but interfering with the president's ability to do his job," said Michael Gerhardt, a law professor at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

The White House declined on Friday to say how Clinton would respond to a Starr subpoena.

Chief executives have given testimony in criminal trials — Clinton is the fourth president to testify on videotape — but none has been compelled to go before a grand jury, let alone one investigating his own actions.

Summoning Clinton, said Clark, "would be something Starr would do only if he wanted to invoke a constitutional crisis or embarrass the president. Legally, he doesn't stand to gain anything from it."

WEIRDOS: Dedication of anti-Barney site admirable

(From 1B)

The homepage, www.sfo.com/~costanos/ProzacPez, extols the virtues of a PEZ-based society (or could that be Prozac-based?) with its motto: "The world would be a happier place if antidepressants were distributed in Pez dispensers." There's a detailed comparison of nutrition and side effects of both types of tablets — lower cholesterol and higher spirits! — while a great Shockwave game invites players to shoot a happy pill into the frowning mouth of a stressed-out smiley face. It's definitely worth a bookmark.

Boredom, or perhaps not enough reading material, is probably at the root of the Great Toilet Paper Debate site, a spirited attempt to answer the unanswerable, namely, which way should toilet paper be dispensed, over the top of the roll, or under the bottom? The case for over is strong (rolls fluidly, visually appealing) but under (accurate detachment of squares, minimal over-dispensing) also has its champions. Weigh in at expert.cc.purdue.edu/mineart/tpaper2.html.

If sliding rocks across ice is an Olympic sport, then why not hand gliding, the practice of manually manipulating the airflow outside the window of a moving car? Hand gliding can be considered more of an art form than a true athletic endeavor (sort of like rhythmic gymnastics) but its fundamentals can be learned at www.wallaby.com/mackey/hg/hand_gliding.html. It could be the most egalitarian of all events, requiring only a reliable car, a working window, and a minivan full of judges in the next lane.

There's a special place on my bookmark list for those sites that endure despite the mercurial faddishness of many humorous Web sites. Everyone, it seems, has their own supposedly clever "X-Files" site, or a page slagging "Party of Five," or Jenny McCarthy, or whoever is the pop icon of the moment. Longevity requires real, visceral emotion, and there are few feelings as powerful as the hatred inflamed by the sing-song gooeyness of Barney, the omnipresent purple dinosaur. One of the best oddball Web sites is run by the semi-secret group Jihad to Destroy Barney, operating an information and recruitment center at www.jihad.com.

The dedication of these "jihaddi" is admirable, as is their versatility. Some have created fictional universes in which they concoct elaborate role-playing adventures that usually end up ridding the galaxy of the saurian scourge they have renamed "B'harnii." This is an exponential expansion of the usual weirdness surrounding the anti-Barney forces, yet the creativity and persistence is likely to amuse all but staunchest Barneyites (most of whom are too young to read anyway). Immediate gratification for Barney-phobes is available in downloadable games that enable players to use Barney as the enemy in Doom and other bloody high-gore romps.

Even with all its detractors, Barney is but one overstuffed children's show character. Pop culture is saturated with dozens of bone-and-flesh irritations, overpaid and overexposed and definitely overdue for a takedown. That's the appeal of Celebrity Slugfest at slugfest.kaizen.net, which puts you and a hated celebrity face-to-face in a bare-knuckled street brawl.

How does it work? The site uses the Macromedia Shockwave plug-in, which creates a multimedia window within a small area of your browser. Simple keyboard commands allow lateral movement and punching, with the damage inflicted displayed on the steadily battered face of your famous opponent. There are three categories of villains: simple bullies (Dennis Rodman, David Letterman, Madonna), the mean-spirited and powerful (Martha Stewart, Bill Clinton, Rush Limbaugh), and ineffectual "wusses" (Hanson, Barney, Tori Spelling).

Writes site producer Jane Buckwalter, "Some of the stars are easier to beat than others, just like in real life. You might want to hone your skills on pacifists like Fabio and Tori before attempting Dave Letterman or Madonna. When you're done, please take the time to suggest additional celebrities. We aim to please."

DOCTOR: Viruses don't seem too bad

(From 1B)

I'm ushered into a room that looks nothing like a clinic. It's just your typical modern office with cheap furniture and lousy artwork. A woman introduces herself as Jan Sutton, product manager for Dr. Solomon's Software Inc.

"Where's Dr. Solomon," I ask.

Turns out there is no Dr. Solomon. Or at least not anymore. He founded the company years ago and was later ousted in a leveraged buyout and retired to England. I'm disappointed. It's like finding out the Mayo Brothers decided to throw in the towel and open a deli.

I explain that I'm not having problems at the moment but that I need information on what to expect. Is it myth or fact, for example, that there are fewer viruses in the Mac world than in the PC world?

"Myth," Sutton says. She explains that Dr. Solomon's is finding new viruses at the rate of 300 to 400 a month. And each time a new one is found, the company's virus detection programs have to be tweaked to deal with the new strain. Free booster shots can be obtained from the company's Web site at www.drsolomon.com. Dr. Solomon's has contracts with NASA and Motorola and other big companies that need to maintain a constant virus watch.

"That's amazing," I say. "What are the symptoms of a computer infected with one of the new macro viruses?"

"Well it depends on which one you get," says Sutton. "One of the latest is called 'the Wazoo Virus,' and it replaces random words in your e-mails with the word 'wazoo.' "

I ponder this for a moment. If this is a virus, it seems more akin to an annoying canker sore, albeit one with a few entertaining side effects, than a deadly disease.

SCHOOL: Debate looms in Congress

grams were designed to help students get access to the Internet. One of them was the centerpiece of the Clinton administration's education efforts: a new federal program that gives schools, libraries and rural health care providers discounted hookups to the Internet. The new subsidies are likely to be disbursed in the spring or summer.

But a fight is looming between the Republican-run Congress and the Democratic-controlled Federal Communications Commission over the structure of the program.

Congress doesn't have direct oversight of the subsidy program because it is administered through two not-for-profit corporations created by the FCC last year: The Schools and Libraries Corp. and the Rural Health Care Corp.

Efforts are afoot in Congress to change the program's structure and increase congressional accountability.

Gore, officials said, is likely to use the report's findings to show the need for the FCC's Internet subsidy program.

The dangers of opening some email

By David Einstein
N.Y. Times News Service

■ Q&A

Q: Occasionally, spam e-mail makes the rounds of the Internet warning people not to read certain messages because they contain viruses that will corrupt their hard drives. I maintain that just reading e-mail cannot possibly hurt anything — only downloading of files can be dangerous. Am I correct?

A: Partially. Experts say computer viruses can't be transmitted through e-mail messages. However, they can infect your system through files that come attached to e-mail. Microsoft Word and Excel documents can contain "macro" viruses, and if you open an infected document, it can corrupt your entire program as well as other document files. So as a rule of thumb, don't open attached files that come from strangers.

You're wrong on your second point. Downloading a file poses no threat by itself. It's what you do with the file once it's downloaded that can be dangerous. If you try to install or open a program that contains a virus, you could be in big trouble.

The best way to avoid problems is with virus-fighting software such as Norton AntiVirus ($69.94 at CompUSA) or McAfee's VirusScan ($44.95).

Q: When I installed Internet Explorer, Outlook Express also was installed. Unfortunately, Outlook Express does not include a spell checker. Is there any stand-alone spell checker available for it?

A: Not that I know of. Outlook Express is designed to use the spell checker that comes with Microsoft Office and with individual Office applications — Word, Excel and Powerpoint. If you have any of these, Outlook Express will offer spell checking for e-mail (what a clever way for Microsoft

Fancy computers still need spring cleaning

By Bill Husted
N.Y. Times News Service

My buddy has a 300-megahertz Pentium II machine that costs only slightly less than a Toyota. He loves that PC and has spent a lot of money to make sure it keeps running. It has more protection than a mafia boss.

There's the uninterruptible power supply — it uses a battery to power the machine in case of a power failure. Then he has several software programs — including Norton Utilities — to make sure the hard disk stays in good shape and to sniff out any problems as far as conflicts between programs. And he spends more time defragmenting the disk than using the computer. I'm not recommending against these steps. I'm saying they're not enough.

Even with all this excellent protection, that machine has the probable life expectancy of a fruit fly. The irony is that he spent a lot of money to protect the machine, but he ignored some basic chores that are more important.

Let me take you on a tour of that machine, so you can see the problems for yourself. Along the way, we'll talk about the common sense ways to fix them.

First, take a look at the backside of the computer. Do you see the outlet for the exhaust fan? Notice the mesh is almost completely clogged with dust. In fact, things are so clogged up the exhaust fan doesn't do much good. That's a shme, since heat build-up can kill a computer.

If you've ever put your hand near a Pentium chip while the computer is turned on, you already know it feels like a tiny blowtorch. And there are other components inside that give off heat. Without proper ventilation, the components will fail from the heat. Sometimes a system can limp on for a long time this way, sometimes the heat kills it quick.

Cleaning the exhaust fan slot is easy. Usually you can just remove the top of the machine and pull the dust balls away. If you're fancy (and careful), you can use a small vacuum to clean it out.

Now that the top is off, take a look at the motherboard. It's the main circuit board for the computer. That board can get covered with dust, too. If you look closely you can see that, instead of being wired, the components are connected with tiny copper traces that are etched into the board. Since the distance between these copper traces is so slight, just a small accumulation of dust can sometimes bridge two traces, causing a short.

Circuit boards can survive for years this way. Or they can short out in an instant. Some dust — this is the honest truth — is a better conductor of electricity than other types of dust. Unless you want to be a dust scientist, the safest thing to do is clean off the board. I usually use a can of compressed air — you can buy it at photographic stores for cleaning camera lenses — to blow the dust away.

Finally, while the cover is off, check to make sure all your accessory cards are seated correctly in the slots. Over time, and sometimes from heat expansion, these cards can work loose.

Now put the cover back on the computer. You're almost done. But take a look at the way your computer is situated on the desk. Make sure there is a couple of inches of space on all sides for proper ventilation. And, if you keep the computer on the floor and the monitor on your desk, be aware it'll accumulate dust faster on the floor.

None of these steps is very glamorous. Think of it as a high-tech spring cleaning. But, if you're willing to take the time, you can go a long way toward preventing your computer from becoming the world's most expensive doorstop.

(Bill Husted writes for The Atlanta Journal-Constitution.)

52 million students in kindergarten through 12th grade were hooked to the Internet last year.

Most schools, few classes wired to the Internet

By Jeaninne Aversa
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Nearly 80 percent of the nation's public schools are connected to the Internet, but only 27 percent of the classrooms, the government says.

The Education Department concluded that progress is being made but more work needs to be done, administration officials speaking on condition of anonymity said Wednesday.

Specifically, the report found that 78 percent of the country's 80,000 public schools — covering 52 million kindergarten through 12th-grade students — were hooked to the Internet last year, the officials said.

In 1996, 65 percent of all public schools were connected and in 1994 35 percent were connected, the officials said.

The report also found that 27 percent of all public classrooms K-12 were connected to the Internet last year. In 1996, 14 percent of classrooms were hooked to the Net and in 1994 only 3 percent, the officials said.

The Clinton administration is particularly interested in connecting more classrooms because that is where learning takes place. Vice President Al Gore was expected to stress that point while releasing the report today, officials said.

If you want weird, the Web's the place to be

By Michael Saunders
N.Y. Times News Service

There will always be enough material on the World Wide Web to prove at least one truth of human existence: People are strange.

Of course, we knew this long before the Web emerged, that oddity is a natural byproduct of life, as fundamental as breathing, but far more interesting to watch. The Web gives all forms of strange behavior a playground, especially for the extreme brand of hyper-nerdity that used to manifest itself in spontaneous Monty Python recitations and weeklong Dungeons and Dragons sessions.

These are more than just soapboxes for the growing mob of global-village idiots who have wasted innumerable hours building shrines to dead iguanas and alphabetized lists of their record collections. It takes a peculiar brand of intelligence to be deliberately foolish, and, to paraphrase the eminent philosophers of Spinal Tap, cross "the fine line between stupid and clever."

In some cases, chemical intervention might be the cause of a site's variation from the norm. This is likely the most plausible explanation for the Prozac PEZ site, a semi-detailed analysis of surprising similarities between the oft-prescribed mood-elevator and the popped-from-a-clown's-head candy.

The doctor is in: Fast cure needed for raging viruses

By Doug Bailey
N.Y. Times News Service

I am sitting in a waiting room at an office park in Burlington, Mass., waiting to see Dr. Alan Solomon, the Jonas Salk of the computer virus world. I came here after reading a study by the good doctor that said computer viruses in the Macintosh universe are proliferating at a rapid rate. It placed much of the blame on the new release of Microsoft Office, which apparently is a virtual breeding ground for something called "macro viruses." If I understand it correctly, macro viruses are a new strain of pesky rogue programs that can wreak havoc on your Mac and can be invisibly embedded in e-mail and other items downloaded from the Internet.

I'm scared. And I'm becoming a technochondriac thanks to Dr. Solomon's stern warnings that make Bill Gates sound like Typhoid Mary. Solomon says he is "poised to further capitalize on the growing need for virus protection in the Mac environment." Continuing a merger trend in the health care community, Dr. Solomon just acquired "key anti-virus technology" from Datawatch Corp., called Virex and netOctopus that I guess can inoculate any Mac.

That's what I want. A cure.

"The Doctor will see you now," I think I hear someone say.

Dear Amy: What is Webring and how are its Ringsites different from other Web sites?—Jay, Pasadena, CA
Dear Jay: Webring at http://www.webring.org/ is a company that offers a free way to link up homepages that share the same interests. Each site uses preconfigured HTML code that creates a "Next" or "Previous" link driven from the Webring server. When you visit a member of a Webring, you can travel to tons of pages as if you are going around a ring. In a way, each ring is a virtual community. You can ask to have your site included in a ring or you can start a ring of your own. Some of the individual rings claim to be kid safe, but the RingWorld directory is not, so use the same safe surfing rules you do when you use a search engine.

Oprah adds role of free-speech activist to her long list of feats

AMARILLO (AP) — Oprah Winfrey has undertaken a variety of roles in her multi-faceted career: reporter, talk show host, actress, movie producer and philanthropist.

Now that she's fended off a beef disparagement lawsuit by Texas cattlemen, Ms. Winfrey has eagerly added "free-speech activist" to the list.

"I believe I'm one of those people who probably took (free speech) for granted, and I will never be that way again," she said.

Ms. Winfrey's employees erected a banner at her talk show's makeshift Amarillo headquarters proclaiming what has become her new First Amendment motto: "Free speech rocks!"

Cattlemen had sued Ms. Winfrey, her production company and an anti-meat advocate over the host's April 16, 1996, show about mad cow disease. Plaintiffs claimed the show implied U.S. beef was risky to eat.

A jury on Thursday determined the cattlemen didn't prove that their product had been falsely disparaged.

Last week, the trial judge decided the case would not hinge on Texas' "veggie libel" law, ruling that the cattlemen had failed to make a case under the statute. The case became a routine business disparagement trial.

Twelve other states have agricultural disparagement laws, which allow food producers to sue if they believe their product has been unfairly maligned. U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson decided that cattle aren't a perishable food product, a requirement of the Texas law.

Though Robinson didn't find the law unconstitutional, analysts agreed the jury verdict might make agriculture producers think twice before suing under such a statute.

"After this outcome, I think Las Vegas odds on this kind of lawsuit are going down," said Thomas Baker, a constitutional law professor at Texas Tech University. "They don't look so attractive."

Cattlemen's attorney Joe Coyne promised to appeal Robinson's decision to eliminate "veggie libel" from the case. Defense lawyer Charles Babcock said he'd ask the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals to nullify the law.

Without a "veggie libel" law, plaintiffs in similar future cases probably will have to prove they were specifically targeted by the speech in question.

Seattle attorney Bruce Johnson, who successfully defended CBS in the early 1990s after Washington apple growers sued over a "60 Minutes" story linking the chemical spray Alar to cancer, predicted agribusiness will lobby to make "veggie libel" laws more friendly to their cause.

"I'd expect proponents of 'veggie libel' laws to modify them and make them more draconian, and push much more restrictive versions onto states," Johnson said.

State Rep. Bob Turner, D-Voss, the author of the Texas law, indeed said that the 1999 Legislature might readdress the law to make it less restrictive for the agriculture industry.

Opponents of "veggie libel" plan to do some lobbying, too.

"Until these laws are clearly ruled unconstitutional, there should be efforts in every state that has a law to repeal them at the first opportunity to do so," said Reggie James, an director of the Consumers Union office in Austin.

Another "veggie libel" test could come in Ohio, where egg producer AgriGeneral Co. is suing an Ohio food safety advocacy group over comments made concerning the quality of repackaged eggs.

Back in Amarillo federal court, some Texas emu producers have sued Honda over a commercial that featured a caricature of a bird rancher telling a job applicant that emus are the "pork of the future."

Texas cases of streptococcus stand at 72, 12 deaths

AUSTIN (AP) — State health officials Friday said the number of reported cases of a potentially deadly strain of bacterial streptococcus now stands at 72. Twelve Texans have died.

The invasive group A streptococcal infections prompted the Texas Department of Health to add more suggested precautions to a previous list of steps people can take to reduce the risk of the infection or spot possible early signs of the illness.

The new recommendations included:

■ Contact a doctor for advice for adults with temperatures of 101 degrees or higher and children with temperatures of 103 or more.

■ Anyone who develops an area of unexplained local pain and tenderness, or a skin wound that gets infected — red, swollen, tender and painful — should see a doctor.

■ A doctor should be seen if a child has chicken pox and his fever lasts more than three days; or if a child with chicken pox for three or four days redevelops a fever, has a loss of appetite, has difficulty breathing or has lesions that appear to be infected. Parents should check frequently for signs of infection.

Dr. Michael Kelley, the Health Department's communicable disease control bureau chief, said these symptoms are common to many illnesses and conditions. They do not automatically mean the invasive group A streptococcus bacteria is the cause, he said.

Doctors say group A strep can destroy tissue and cause toxic shock or bleeding in the lungs. Symptoms are sometimes like those of the common flu, along with a violent skin rash.

The 72 cases reported so far have occurred in 19 counties, officials said.

Of those, 30 were in Harris County and 17 in Travis County, five in Bexar County, three in Galveston County, two each in Brazos and Atascosa counties. One case each has been reported from Bastrop, Burleson, Caldwell, Dallam, El Paso, Fort Bend, Hays, Lee, Lubbock, Montgomery, Tarrant, Washington and Williamson counties.

Twenty-five of the confirmed cases were in children and 47 in adults. Of the 12 deaths, four were children and eight were adults.

The Health Department said people should cover their mouths when coughing or sneezing, and it renewed earlier recommendations, including:

■ Anyone taking an antibiotic should follow prescription orders, taking the medicine as directed and until it is gone.

■ Those with sore throats accompanied by fever should seek medical attention, as should people with flu-like symptoms who feel worse after three or four days.

■ Children from 1 to 13, who haven't had chicken pox or been vaccinated against chicken pox, should be vaccinated.

■ Acetaminophen should be given to children with chicken pox if needed to reduce fever.

■ People should, as always, practice good hygiene by not sharing toothbrushes or drinking and eating utensils, and by washing hands frequently.

Spirit Wind, the Youth Choir of the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church, will hold a garage sale from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. today in the Fellowship Hall of St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave.

The choir is in the process of raising funds for a concert tour of New Zealand in July 2000.

Nicholas White, associate organist and choirmaster at the Washington National Cathedral, has been commissioned to compose a Mass for the choir to be accompanied by orchestra.

Entrance to the garage sale will be from the Powell Street door.

Garage sale held

St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St., is holding a garage sale in the fellowship hall today.

Also, the children's music program has been expanded to four sections on Sunday practices. Those interested in joining are asked to call Cameron Given or Steve Holston at the church, 683-3339.

The Wednesday night meal, the Gathering, has resumed. Serving begins at 6 pm. Cost is $2 a person or $5 a family.

Assembly planned

ODESSA — More than 2,900 Spanish-speaking delegates are expected to attend the Special Assembly Day of Jehovah's Witnesses here Sunday at Ector County Coliseum. The program will begin at 9:50 a.m. and end at 4 p.m.

Gregorio Molina, presiding overseer of the East Spanish congregation, said the theme will be "Do All Things for the Sake of the Good News" based on Corn. 9:23. The principal talk, "Fit to be Entrusted with the Good News," will be given by Leonel Rodriquez of New York.

The whole program will be in Spanish. The public is invited.

GTECH to sell Lone Star Card contract

AUSTIN (AP) — The company that helped Texas ditch its paper welfare system is getting rid of its five-year contract with the state.

Transactive, an Austin-based subsidiary of GTECH Corp., has complained for months that the number of people on welfaré in Texas has dropped so dramatically that the company is making little money from operating the Lone Star Card.

The card is the electronic means by which the state distributes welfare benefits to 1.8 million recipients.

Rhode Island-based GTECH on Friday announced it will begin working its way out of the welfare benefits business by selling its Texas contract to the Illinois-based Citicorp Services.

The $11.5 million deal also includes sale of related Transactive assets and similar contracts with Indiana, Illinois and Sacramento County, California. It requires approval from the states' regulators and from federal welfare officials.

Midland churches participate in Invite a Friend program

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

Churches throughout Midland this weekend will join together as part of a nationwide effort to bring new members to their congregations.

Invite a Friend to Worship Day, was developed by Religion in American Life, a non-profit, interfaith, research and public information organization in consultation with people from all major faith traditions.

"Primarily, it is done to reach out into the community to the unchurched," said Schatzie Tighe, a lay coordinator working with the Midland Association of Churches in this weekend's effort; to those not attending places of worship.

"People that attend worship services give both to their community in both time and money and we felt this would be a great way for all the churches in Midland to do something to cross denominational lines."

In fact, studies have shown that people who attend regular worship services give over four times as much of their household income to all charitable causes than people who do not attend regularly.

Ms. Tighe said over 100 churches have been contacted asking them to participate.

Communities nationwide participate in the effort at their discretion. Midland chose this weekend because it is the first Sunday of Lent, the six-week period that precedes Easter and is at the heart of the liturgical calendar.

Reports from communities across the country have reported significant increases in church attendance as a result of the Invite a Friend program.

Ms. Tighe said until Invite a Friend weekend is completed there is no way of knowing how many of the 109 churches sent letters inviting them to participate.

"We'll have to find out after it's all over. Participation can be as little as announcing it, or it can be as involved as having meetings and showing a video.

"Congregations are hoping it might increase membership. It also gives the opportunity for people to reach out in the community that may not have a church home."

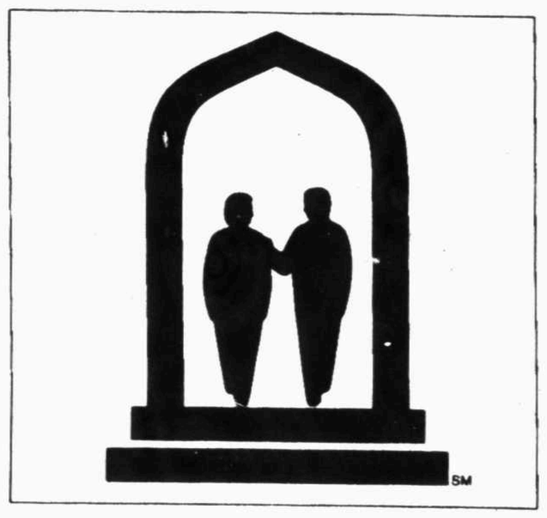
Muslim and Jewish communities in the area have also been invited to participate.

Church membership in United States totals 151,383,738, or 61 percent of the total U.S. population, according to Religion in American Life information. Over 79,000,000 are affiliated with Protestant faiths; almost 55,000,000 are Catholic parishioners; 6,000,000 attend Muslim centers; over 4.3 million are with Jewish congregations, and over 4 million attend Eastern Orthodox churches.

Among members who are not members of a religious congregation, 73 percent attended services, Sunday, or Sabbath School as a child; 73 percent want their children to receive religious training; 69 percent say religion is either "very" or "fairly" important in their lives.

Among Americans who are members of a religious congregation, 86 percent visited for the first time because a friend or relative invited them, and 85 percent would invite others to join if encouraged to do so.

HELP SOMEONE CROSS AN IMPORTANT THRESHOLD.



Invite a friend to your house of worship.

SATURDAY, FEB. 28, 1998

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Feb. 28, 1998:
You will be more concerned with your career than you have been in past years. You might opt to change jobs, return to school or do whatever is necessary to increase your finances. Though you are fortunate this year, you approach security-related matters conservatively. Seek to better understand how you react to events in your life. If you are single, never fear; a romance will be in your life before you know it. Just make sure you aren't doing anything to push someone away. If attached, your sweetheart supports you in your life goals. ARIES grounds you.

Former Eagle Randy Meisner relieved over arrest of man impersonating him

NEW YORK — Emma Thompson can relate to her role as first lady in "Primary Colors."

"She accepts his strange emphatic quality that leads him to do stupid things that cause her tremendous pain," she said of the Hillary Rodham Clinton-like character in the movie based loosely on the 1992 presidential campaign.

Emma Thompson's role in 'Primary Colors' set off emotions.

"I also understood how she could put that pain aside, since she has always been a crusader and feels that personal problems pale in comparison to making the world a better place," Thompson said in the March 1 Parade magazine.

Thompson had to convey her character's acceptance of her husband's indiscretions. The emotions were close to home, considering Thompson's very public breakup with Kenneth Branagh in 1996 amid rumors of his affair with Helena Bonham Carter, who declares her love for Branagh in the same issue of Parade.

Following the split, Thompson gave no interviews for a year as she struggled with insomnia and nightmares. She said she emerged a stronger person.

"I wouldn't say I'm unscathed, but now I think I'm less scared and more confident than I've ever been. After all, I tell myself, I came through a year when at first I thought I wouldn't survive."

SAN FRANCISCO — A man who has been impersonating former Eagles bassist Randy Meisner for 10 years was arrested at a card room.

Police caught up with Lewis Peter Morgan, 52, of Atlanta last week after police received a tip on his whereabouts. He was in jail in lieu of $50,000 bail on charges of fraud, grand theft and possession of stolen property, police inspector Curt Cashen said.

Besides collecting free guitars, clothing and cash in Meisner's name, the impersonator also created enemies, including one former fan who came to an Eagles concert with an ice pick to exact revenge, Meisner said.

"I'm just so happy that they finally caught him," said Meisner, who wonders if the impersonator is also to blame for bad blood with former band mates. Meisner split with the band in 1978 and was snubbed for a reunion tour in 1994.

In 1988, Morgan was charged with posing as Eagles drummer Don Henley. He jumped bail in Las Vegas. Later, he surfaced with everything from false IDs to personalized guitar picks to pass himself off as Meisner at casinos, hotels and guitar shops around the country, police said.

"Now that they've got him, hopefully, all the people he's conned will hear about it and it'll clear my name," Meisner said.

CAMBRIDGE, England — Cosmologist Stephen Hawking will give a lecture at the White House on March 6.

Stephen Hawking will lecture at the White House in March.

The topic, Cambridge University said Friday, will be "science in the next millennium."

Hawking, who wrote the best seller "A Brief History of Time" and teaches at Cambridge, will address 160 guests at the second of President Clinton's "millennium evenings."

Hawking, 56, is paralyzed by motor neuron disease and has been unable to speak since 1985. He communicates through an electronic synthesizer.

"Most visions of the future show a society with very advanced science and technology, but in an unchanging state. I question this picture," Hawking said. "I think it is more likely that biological and electronic complexity will increase at an ever more rapid rate."

WESTPORT, Conn. — The I man owes the tax man $9,070.

Don Imus, one of the nation's highest paid radio personalities, is delinquent on his property taxes for four acres of waterfront property he bought here last summer for $4.6 million, the Connecticut Post reported Friday.

Taxes were due Jan. 1, town Tax Collector George Underhill said.

Robert Andrews, a financial adviser for Imus, said Chase Manhattan Bank, which holds the mortgage to the property and pays the taxes out of escrow, believed the bill was payable at the end of the quarter, April 1, instead of at the beginning of the quarter.

"It was their mistake," Andrews said.

The bank promised to send the tax money in immediately.

Imus' show on New York's WFAN is nationally syndicated.

EMAIL: Even if Apple soured, there would very likely be an active after-market for its units to get you to buy its programs). But obviously you don't have an Office program, or you wouldn't be asking. One answer would be to download and install Netscape Communicator from www.netscape.com. This free Internet package includes the Netscape Navigator Browser and a nice e-mail program with spell checking.

Q: I'm thinking about getting a Macintosh G3 mini-tower model and it's $4,200. Apple puts really good components in their computers, thus the high price. Is it worth it to get a computer from Apple when all I hear is "Apple is going to go bust?"

A: Apple probably isn't going bust, and even if it did, there would continue to be an active after-market for Macs and Mac components. And you're right, the G3 machines are terrific computers. I assume you're looking at the model with the 266 megahertz chip and 128 megabytes of RAM. If you're a die-hard Apple fan, and can swallow the lofty price, I'd say go for it. Just bear in mind that for $1,000 less you can get a fully loaded Windows-based PC with a 333 Mhz Pentium II.

Tip of the Week: Considering a new PC? If you think you may expand it in the future with more memory, a graphics accelerator, etc., ask the salesman to open the PC's case so you can see what you'll have to deal with. Some PCs, like the Compaq Presario mini-tower, are cramped, making it difficult to reach expansion slots. Others, like the latest Acer mini-towers, are a lot more user friendly.

Midland High blasts Eastwood

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

PECOS — The winning formula may be getting old, but it's the tried and true method for the 31-2 Midland High Bulldogs.

MHS thundered to a 95-68 Class 5A area basketball playoff victory here Friday night over the El Paso Eastwood Troopers, using that same victory formula.

Oh, the formula is simple enough. Being ranked No. 2 in the state, most teams come at the Bulldogs with razor blades flashing. That lasts about a quarter-and-a-half when the expected Purple Pack explosion comes so fast that teams are left wallowing in their dust.

It was a fact that Eastwood coach Gary Pippen recognized right away.

"It was like little kids playing against big bullies," Pippen said. "Eventually, it takes its toll. Midland High has depth and size and that is a killer for us. I wished (MHS coach) Jack (Stephenson) good luck the rest of the way because I think they are going to do something down the road."

Pippen could have used the excuse that he had lost four players to grades on Friday, including senior stalwart Gabe Hernandez, but he didn't.

"Hernandez is worth about 12 points and 15 rebounds to me in every game. He is the best post player in El Paso, end of sentence," Pippen said, but added, "Even with him, it might have been a little closer, but we wouldn't have beaten that team."

Eastwood held a 27-26 lead with 4:29 still left to play in the first half. But MHS' formula went to work. Guard Charles Tatum, who ignited a charge against Eastwood last year in the region quarterfinals at this same site, knocked down three 3-pointers and the rout was beginning.

MHS put it away in the third quarter with a 28-12 run with Tatum hitting for nine points and Camar Jackson for eight. Tatum ended with a game-high 27 points while Jackson continued to be red-hot off the bench with 10 points, hitting four of five from the field.

But even this victory had a new twist for the Bulldogs. MHS hit 14 of 20 3-point shots in what is believed to be a single game school record. Tatum hit five. Even 6-6 post Kirby Lemons hit a three.

But the biggest surprise was the four of five from Chris Cox off the bench in the second half. Cox ended the night with 14.

Rebels show depth, claim Tall City lead

By Lee Passmore

The Midland Lee golf team's ship survived Friday thanks not to the big guns up front, but to the supposedly lower caliber artillery in the back.

After the first round of the Tall City Invitational at the Midland Country Club, the Rebels led the Division I team standings by two strokes with a score of 313. Making that score more impressive was the fact that Lee's two top players entering the tournament had the two highest scores of the day on the team.

Picking up the slack big time was Lee's No. 3 player Thomas Freeman, who shot a 75 and was tied for third in the individual standings. In fifth place, one stroke behind Freeman, was Daniel Pender, the Rebels' No. 4 player with a 76.

Had either of the top two players lived up to their seedings for Lee, the Rebels would be holding an even bigger lead going into today's final round at Hogan Park. Freshman Omar Sanchez, designated Lee's No. 1 player, struggled at the turn and shot an 83 while No. 2 Chance Finley had a rough front nine en route to an 84.

"I was pretty well pleased with 3-4-5," Lee coach Bobby Dunn said. "Number one and two didn't play as good as they can play and are going to play (today at Hogan)."

It wasn't the most ideal day for golf, with winds gusting up to about 30 mph at times, but that's literally par

Goodwin grabs 4th seed in 100 back

By Mike Butts
MRT Correspondent

AUSTIN — It wasn't exactly the race Amber Goodwin had hoped for. But her coach, Ted Carson, took the philosophical view: Goodwin won't have to worry about the pressure of being the first seed when she defends her state title in the 100-yard backstroke today at the high school swimming championships in Austin.

Goodwin finished fourth in her preliminary heat Friday at the Lee and Joe Jamail Texas Swim Center with a time of 57.60 seconds. She will also swim today in the consolation finals of the 50-yard freestyle, having placed eighth in the preliminaries in that event with a 24.10.

Other Midland swimmers Gregg Strauss, a Midland Lee sophomore, and Erin Irons, a Midland High sophomore, failed to make today's final or consolation races. Strauss finished 15th in the 500 freestyle with a 4:55.39 and Irons placed 15th in the 100 butterfly with a 1:00.42.

"I kind of like that spot," Carson said of Goodwin's fourth place in the backstroke. "Going in No. 1 that's kind of like the hot seat."

Carson said Goodwin didn't get out as fast as he would have liked her to and that she'll have to start strong if she wants to win the gold in the event for the second year in a row. Goodwin, a Lee senior, won a silver in the event as a sophomore.

"She was out a 28.26 and 29.4 coming back," Carson said. "She can go out a full second faster than that. When she's really pumped up I think she can go out 26.9. I think she has to take charge right up front (today), be aggressive at the start and establish the lead in order to win it."

The fastest preliminary time in the girls' backstroke was recorded by Plano's Mary Beth Mounce, a 56.44.

Irons and Strauss were both competing in their first University Interscholastic League state meet. And under the circumstances Carson was just happy for them to have competed to get a feel for the event.

"I'm pleased with what they did," Carson said. "I had hoped Gregg would break 4:50 but it didn't happen this time. He'll have a chance next weekend at TAGS (Texas Age Group Swimming) to do it. Time-wise it was a pretty good swim (for Irons). She had a little bit of a weak finish and that was probably the difference."

Palo Duro knocks off defending champs

By Tom Ruiz

If you were to tell a girls basketball enthusiast from the Metroplex that none of his teams would be in today's Class 5A Region I final they would probably laugh at you.

Instead the girls from District 3-5A Amarillo Palo Duro and Lubbock Coronado will get the last laugh as they square off at 1 p.m. today for the championship at Chaparral Center.

Palo Duro (31-4) upset the top-ranked and defending state champion Duncanville Pantherettes 46-33, while Coronado earned a hard fought 69-66 semi-final win over Flower Mound Marcus.

Duncanville (31-4) who was expected to breeze into the finals instead were swept away by a Lady Dons squad who frustrated the Pantherettes from the opening tip.

Duncanville was held to single digits in each of the first three quarters. Palo Duro coach A.J. Johnson believed that Duncanville may have underestimated his team.

"I really think they overlooked us. Instead we kept the faith, and we came in here ready to play," Johnson said.

And it showed. The Lady Dons forced Duncanville into seven first quarter turnovers. Duncanville scored the game's

Richland rolls through West Texas Classic

By Stewart Doreen

The Midland Lee and Midland High softball teams have been among the best teams in West Texas for years. Likewise, Richland has been a player in the Metroplex softball circuit.

Friday, the first of what could be many battles this weekend between the teams went to Richland, which defeated Midland High 2-0 to advance to the Winners' Bracket final at the West Texas Classic.

Richland will play Midland Lee today at 11 a.m. The winner earns an automatic ticket to the championship game which starts at 2:30 p.m.

"This is a good win," said Richland's Staci Greear, who drove in a run and scored another in the win over MHS. "They (MHS) are a good team. We have a good place in the bracket, and hopefully we can do the same against Lee.

"We represent the Dallas-Fort Worth area and there are good teams in Fort Worth. We are one of the good ones."

Buffaloes get revenge with win over Tahoka

By Oscar LeRoy

LAMESA — It's strange how Stanton sports go in similar paths on the playoff road.

In football, the Buffaloes avenged a bi-district loss from the year before against Shallowater on the way to a state championship title. On Friday night, the Buffs avenged a 1997 bi-district basketball loss to Tahoka with a 63-55 win in front of packed house at Lamesa Middle School.

Could this be the start of a state championship run just like in football?

Who knows? The Buffs (19-1), however, do advance to the area round of the playoffs against Jim Ned, which beat Coahoma 72-54 in bi-district action at Snyder's Scurry County Coliseum.

"I'm very pleased for our kids and very excited," said Stanton coach Doug Gordon whose team advanced

North Carolina beat Duke in this year's first meeting between the two college basketball powers, but Duke big man Elton Brand missed that game. He's back now, and Duke is more optimistic about their chances today.

Duke players feel better facing Heels in Durham

By Chris Duncan
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. — The Duke Blue Devils are banking on added incentives — their notoriously rowdy crowd and the return of Elton Brand — helping them in their rematch with North Carolina on Saturday.

They might need them.

The Tar Heels beat them 97-73 on Feb. 5 — the Blue Devils' most lopsided defeat in the series since 1983 — and there's a lot more at stake this time around.

A win Saturday would give the top-ranked Blue Devils (26-2, 14-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) their fifth outright regular-season conference championship in the 90s and the top seed in next week's ACC Tournament.

Duke could also become the first ACC team to win 15 regular-season league games in a season. A North Carolina victory would give the No. 3 Tar Heels (27-2, 13-2) their 23rd outright or shared league championship and the top seed in the tournament.

There's also the NCAA tournament to consider. Both Duke and North Carolina are likely to get No. 1 seeds, and the East Regional is in Greensboro — about 50 miles away. Saturday's winner could have the inside track to getting a significant home-court advantage for their run at the Final Four.

On the other hand, both coaches say a loss wouldn't ruin otherwise-spectacular seasons.

"This is why you go to schools like Duke and North Carolina, so you can play in games like this and the way it's come down to it, there's more riding on it," said North Carolina coach Bill Guthridge.

The Tar Heels shot 64 percent (40-of-63) and forced 16 turnovers in the first meeting. Antawn Jamison scored 35 points and had 11 rebounds in the game, but Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said the Blue Devils don't plan any defensive adjustments.

"We're 26-2 and we've had an unbelievable year," said Krzyzewski, who is seeking his 500th career win. "You don't change things and rob your team of their ability to be instinctive."

Duke has won its last six games by an average of 21 points, and Krzyzewski said the current Blue Devils would rout the Duke squad from a month ago.

"The main thing in the first game was our offense hurt our defense," he said. "Some inappropriate shots and turnovers turned into some real quick points for North Carolina."

Shane Battier said the freshmen-rich Duke team is taking a more mature and serious approach to the rematch.

"In the last game, there was a sense of giddiness," he said. "It was immaturity — no one at that point had played in a game of that magnitude. We didn't play very smart. We played very young."

Jamison made 14 of 20 shots in the first meeting, but Duke will have the 6-foot-8, 245-pound Brand to throw at him this time. Brand has scored 22 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in two games since returning from a foot injury, and said he's looking forward to opposing Jamison.

"Watching that last game was hard. He dominated us pretty easily," Brand said. "Whoever's on him — whether it's me or (Shane) Battier or Roshown (McLeod) — he's going to have to play hard and play well."

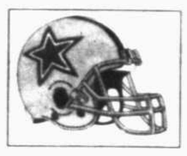
Krzyzewski said last week he was concerned about Brand returning too soon or possibly upsetting team chemistry. But he said Friday that Brand had only made the team better.

Saturday's rematch will be the 100th consecutive time the teams will meet while at least one of them was ranked in the AP Top 25. At least one has been in the top 10 in 47 of the last 50 meetings, and both have been in the top 10 in 29 matchups.

Dallas extends deal for cornerback Smith

By Christy Lemire
Associated Press Writer

IRVING — The Dallas Cowboys have solidified both sides of the line by extending cornerback Kevin Smith's contract and re-signing wide receiver Billy Davis.



Cowboys owner Jerry Jones made the announcements Friday at Valley Ranch.

He also officially announced the addition of wide receiver Ernie Mills, who played for the Pittsburgh Steelers under new Cowboys head coach Chan Gailey. Mills signed a one-year, $325,000 deal Thursday.

"I've got a great association with Ernie and I feel very fortunate to have that association with Ernie," said Gailey, former Steelers offensive coordinator. "He made a lot of great plays for us at Pittsburgh. He knows the offense inside and out."

Smith's deal should keep him in a Cowboys uniform until 2003. His former contract was set to expire in 1999. Jones wouldn't talk about payment but his son, director of player personnel Stephen Jones, said Davis received a "significant" signing bonus.

Jerry Jones called the former Texas A&M player, who's starting his seventh year with the Cowboys, one of the "cornerstones" of the team's defense.

"He's a big significant part of what makes our secondary the best in the league," he said.

Smith, who ruptured his Achilles tendon in the first game of the 1995 season and went on to miss the entire season, gets a bad rap from the media and fans, defensive backs coordinator Mike Zimmer said.

Part of that is because he compliments flashy cornerback Deion Sanders, who receives more attention.

"He's such a good competitor. He never backs down from battle," Zimmer said. "People don't know what we're asking him to do."

Davis, who's been with the Cowboys for three years, signed a deal for three more. Jerry Jones called him "the hardest worker on the field."

"Not only did he step out here all year long, but he wasn't getting as much playing time as he would have liked and he never faltered," he said.

Mills' addition makes the Cowboys heavy on wide receivers. But Gailey wouldn't say who's the No. 2 man behind Michael Irvin.

"We've got Michael and then everyone else is in there just fighting for spots," he said.

Smith and Davis, dressed in matching black short-sleeved T-shirts, both began their statements by thanking God.

"For me, being from Texas and going to college in Texas and being drafted by a Texas team — the only Texas team now — is great," said Smith, who grew up in the East Texas city of Orange.

Davis, an El Paso native, echoed his pride in playing in the Lone Star State: "I'm sure back there they're cheering and shaking their heads and saying, 'This little kid from down the street is playing for the big boys.'"

Concussions convince Humphries to retire

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Afraid of what the next concussion might do to him, a tearful quarterback Stan Humphries bid farewell Friday to the San Diego Chargers.

Humphries, the only quarterback to take the Chargers to a Super Bowl, retired four months after suffering the most serious of his six concussions over a 10-year career.

"I've had a lot of great times playing football, but I think football is in my past and I think my future is with my family," Humphries said at a news conference, his parents sitting on one side of him and his wife, Connie, and two young daughters on the other.

Humphries stopped, needing several seconds to compose himself. "Sorry," he said.

"For me to make sure that I have a future with my family, today I have decided to retire from the San Diego Chargers and the National Football League," Humphries said, breaking down again.

The 32-year-old has always been known for his toughness and ability to play hurt, and said quarterbacks are protected enough by today's rules.

But after suffering four concussions in 22 months — including two in 18 days last season — and six since 1993, he decided that it wasn't worth sticking around — even for the $3.75 million he was due to earn in 1998.

Humphries said he still gets serious headaches, the most recent coming two weeks ago while he and his wife were driving near their home.

Humphries' last snap as a Charger came on Nov. 2 at Cincinnati. Late in the third quarter, his head was slammed to the artificial turf on a late hit by Bengals linebacker Reinard Wilson. Humphries lay on the field for about 10 minutes before being taken off on a stretcher.

Connie Humphries was watching the game from her parents' house in Louisiana.

"The children saw it, too," she said Friday. "It's a very hard feeling seeing him carried off on a stretcher."

Brooke Humphries, 7, underwent successful open-heart surgery in June 1996. On Friday, Chargers owner Alex Spanos said he's giving $100,000 to start the Brooke Humphries Heart Fund to assist children with similar afflictions.

Humphries, who said he's considering a future in television, kept extending his deadline for deciding his future.

He said he was cleared by doctors to keep playing, but one question kept popping up — what would the next concussion do to him?

"The uncertainty was the big key for me," he said. "When I kind of had a little bit of numbness, lost the feeling in my right leg the last time, and two to three weeks later, to see the football player for the Detroit Lions (Reggie Brown) go down, I think that kind of hit home. I think that probably helped make this decision."

While general manager of the Washington Redskins, Bobby Beathard drafted Humphries in the sixth round of the 1988 draft. As Chargers GM, he traded for Humphries in August 1992 after John Friesz went down with a knee injury.

Humphries took over as the starter the second game of 1992 and led the Chargers into the playoffs for the first time in a decade. Two years later, the Chargers reached the Super Bowl, but were routed 49-26 by San Francisco.

Patriots' Meggett free on bail after arrest for sexual assault

TORONTO — New England Patriots running back Dave Meggett and a former member of the team's practice squad were free on bail Friday after being charged with sexually assaulting a woman at a downtown hotel.

Meggett, the NFL's leading career punt returner, also was charged with robbery, said Sgt. Marilyn McCann.

Meggett, 31, and Steve Brannon, 29, a defensive end with the Barcelona Dragons of the World League, were arrested after a 33-year-old woman complained she was assaulted at the Royal York Hotel around 1 a.m. Friday.

The men were detained until a hearing Friday afternoon, then released on bail — $5,250 for Meggett and $2,500 for Brannon. They were ordered to appear in court March 13.

Meggett's lawyer, Alan D. Gold, said his client would plead innocent and contend the incident was a case of consensual sex.

"They were astonished when these charges were brought forward," Gold said. "They were just visiting socially. This is a woman that was known to them previously. It's not like a stranger or somebody they picked up in a bar or anything like that."

The woman, who is from Toronto, was treated for minor injuries at a hospital and released, McCann said.

The woman told police she met as pre-arranged with a man she had known for some time late Thursday night at a suite in the Royal York, a venerable downtown hotel overlooking Toronto's lakefront.

Police said a second man then entered the suite, and the assault and robbery took place.

McCann said the players wouldn't say why they were in Toronto.

Meggett has spent nine years in the NFL, the first six with the New York Giants; the last three with New England. He was chosen for the Pro Bowl twice as a kick returner.

The 5-foot-7, 190-pound back missed the end of last season because of injuries.

Patriots spokesman Stacey James said Meggett was not in Toronto on team business. His contract runs through the 1999 season.

The Patriots, in a statement, said they are "deeply concerned" about the charges. The statement said the team would not comment further until the investigation and legal proceedings conclude.

Downtown Athletic Club files for bankruptcy

NEW YORK — The Downtown Athletic Club, home of college football's Heisman Trophy, filed for bankruptcy Friday.

"Bankruptcy is to straighten the cloud" the club is facing, club president and attorney Peter A. Junge said.

Junge, president of the non-profit health club, hotel and banquet hall, said the trophy itself is unaffected by the filing. The Heisman winner is selected by 920 voters — 870 media members and the 50 living Heisman winners.

first two buckets, then Palo Duro seized a 10-8 lead and never looked back.

But Duncanville was also hurt when Kenya Larkin picked up back-to-back fouls late in the first half. She was arguing with the officials about a personal foul and was hit moments later with the technical foul.

"It hurt them a lot because it was one of their key players. But we kept our poise and made good things happen," said Johnson.

The Lady Dons also used a patient passing game which frustrated Duncanville the most.

When Palo Duro spread its offense, it would painfully kill the Pantherettes with the easy backdoor pass to the hole.

"The passing offense was excellent," said Johnson whose team was well prepared to meet the defending champs thanks in part to the videotape of the last meeting between the two earlier in the season. "We reviewed the video and it helped us organize and learn from the experience of playing them the first time."

As a result Duncanville never had a chance. Led by Casey Jackson's 16 points, the Lady Dons went on a 10-2 run to start the third quarter for a 31-19 lead, and the Pantherettes were done for the night.

The Pantherettes scored 10 points in the fourth quarter, but their reign as champions had ended way before that.

The Lady Mustangs (27-8) made good on a season long goal to advance to the next level of the region tournament. Last year, they were ousted by Duncanville in the semi-finals.

Lubbock Coronado coach Shirlene Lilley had predicted that her squad would go one step further in 1998.

"Did I really say that? We were determined to get back here (region tournament)," Lilley said.

The Lady Mustangs' determination paid off as Erika Valek tickled the twine with two crucial 3-point bombs in the waning seconds of the game for the three-point win.

With ice in her veins, Valek buried Flower Mound Marcus just as the Lady Marauders were threatening to comeback.

"She hit one of those three-pointers with somebody in her face. That's big time that's why she's a star," said a dejected Flower Mound coach Kit Kyle about Valek's shot.

Valek finished with 20 points on the night. Unlike the first game, the team which made the crucial points down the stretch was going to win this game.

Flower Mound led but once in the game at 6-5. Coronado, on the other hand, held leads as much as nine points, before Flower Mound would come right back and keep the game close.

During one stretch of the second period, the Lady Marauders trailed by as much as eight points before going on an 8-2 run thanks in part to a dry shooting streak by Coronado.

At one point, the Lady Mustangs went 0-6 from the floor while Flower Mound fought back thanks in part to the Guild twins, Jessica and Nicole.

Jessica hit a 3-pointer, followed by a drive and finger roll to the rack to cut the lead at intermission to 38-35.

The two teams fought nail for nail in the second half, before Coronado was finally able to hold Flower Mound off. The Lady Marauders owned the last possession in hopes of tying the game, but the Coronado defense never allowed them to get a potential tying shot off.

Pacers hand Blazers incredibly huge loss

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — For the first time in the NBA's 51-year history, one team scored more than twice as many points as the other.

The Indiana Pacers pulled off the feat Friday night with the second-most lopsided victory in NBA history, a 124-59 drubbing of the Portland Trail Blazers.

The Blazers barely surpassed the NBA record low of 57 points and came within three points of matching the worst rout in league history — a 68-point loss by Miami to Cleveland in 1991.

Previously, the closest a team had come to doubling its opponent's point total was in 1951 — before the introduction of the 24-second clock — when the Minneapolis Lakers defeated the Milwaukee Hawks 99-51, according to the Elias Sports Bureau.

It was the largest margin of victory and the fewest points by an opponent in Indiana's 22-year NBA history.

Celtics 120, Warriors 88

BOSTON — Antoine Walker had 21 points, 10 rebounds and 7 assists despite sitting most of the second half, leading the Celtics to their largest margin of victory this season.

Boston has won three of four games since acquiring Kenny Anderson. He had 10 assists and has 19 assists in the past two games without a turnover.

Lakers 104, Timberwolves 91

MINNEAPOLIS — Shaquille O'Neal scored 35 points and Los Angeles held Minnesota scoreless over the final 2:28.

■ NBA Roundup

Eddie Jones scored 13 of his 17 points in the second half for the Lakers, who improved to 3-1 in the midst of their six-game, nine-day road trip — their longest of the season.

Pistons 90, Cavaliers 87

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Jerome Williams blocked a shot by Shawn Kemp that would have tied it, and Grant Hill split a pair of free throws with 10 seconds left for Detroit.

Raptors 115, Magic 107, 3 OT

ORLANDO (AP) — Doug Christie scored 35 points and Chauncey Billups made key plays in the extra periods against Orlando, which played without NBA player of the week Nick Anderson.

76ers 79, Nuggets 78

DENVER — Derrick Coleman had 19 points and 10 rebounds and Philadelphia denied Denver a go-ahead basket in the final 13.9 seconds.

SuperSonics 90, Hawks 88

SEATTLE — Vin Baker's 10-footer over Alan Henderson with 3.1 seconds won the game.

After Baker's winning shot, Tyrone Corbin inbounded from midcourt and Christian Laettner's 3-point attempt from the right corner bounced off the rim.

Suns 104, Clippers 99

LOS ANGELES — Antonio McDyess scored 22 points and Jason Kidd got four of his 15 points in the final 67 seconds as Phoenix held off Los Angeles.

ing could've been better and it could've been worse, but in the end it really doesn't matter.

"We're just happy with our second straight conference championship," Jones said. "We just need to take one possession at a time and go try to win each game."

The No. 4 seed has yet to be determined. Clarendon and New Mexico Junior College will meet at 2 p.m. Saturday at South Plains in a one-game playoff to determine who gets into the regional tourney.

Midland College faces McLennan at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in a rematch of last year's first round regional game, which the Highlassies won 103-98.

Other first round games scheduled will be Howard vs. Grayson County at noon, South Plains vs. Temple at 2:30 p.m., and Weatherford against either Clarendon or NMJC at 5 p.m.

More on the Region V tournament will be in Tuesday's edition of the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

Mayfair narrowly hangs onto Nissan Open lead

Associated Press

VALENCIA, Calif. — Billy Mayfair likes where he is, ahead midway through the Nissan Open, but he can almost hear footsteps behind him.

Mayfair rode a roller coaster round right back to where he began the day, 6-under-par and one shot in front. After five bogeys and five birdies, he finished the second round Friday with a par 71.

Payne Stewart, with a 67, and Tommy Armour III, with a 68, moved into a tie for second. Also at 5-under was Stephen Ames, who was alone in second after the opening round and matched par on Friday.

"I would rather be one shot ahead than 10 shots back," said Mayfair, who hasn't won since 1995. "But this (being the frontrunner) definitely wears me out."

Asked if he was thinking about the players just behind him, Mayfair said: "There's one man we always look back over our shoulders at. But I'm going to go out and try to play as well as Billy Mayfair can play for the next two days, and if it's not good enough, that's OK."

The "one man" he was alluding to is Tiger Woods, who started the tournament with a 68, but had a second-round 73 to slip five shots off the pace.

On a windy day that often made club selection a guessing game, Mayfair went to 9-under on two occasions but gave it back by bogeying three of his final four holes.

"When I got up this morning, I saw that the wind was blowing and I thought that if I could keep it close to par, that would give me a chance for this weekend," he said.

Rick Fehr, with a 67, and Scott Hoch, with a 71, were just two shots behind Mayfair, and a total of 23 players were within five shots.

Defending champion Nick Faldo, who shot a 73 the first day, had a 70 to go to 1-over, seven shots behind.

Fred Couples, who had a 73, and Phil Mickelson, who ballooned to 76, also were at 1-over through 36 holes at Valencia Country Club.

Mayfair won twice and finished second to Greg Norman on the money list in 1995 and has been in a slump since. He was coasting along at 9-under when he hooked his drive into a bunker on his 15th hole of the day, No. 6, and wound up with a bogey.

He three-putted from 25 feet for another bogey on the next hole. After a par on No. 8, he missed the ninth green and went into the shaggy rough, then finally missed an 8-foot putt that would have saved par.

■ Golf Roundup

"I gave three (shots) up coming in and I'm not too happy about that, but I am pleased with a one-shot lead going into the weekend," he said.

Stewart, who also hasn't won since 1995, had six birdies and two bogeys to move up to second.

"I really feel like a lot of things I'm doing this year are going to pay off," Stewart said. "I'm enjoying going out and playing."

Armour, whose only victory came in 1990, had a steadier round, bogeying just one hole and making four birdies.

Martin lines up three more sponsors

NEW YORK — Casey Martin, who returns to the Nike Tour next week after winning the right to ride a cart, has signed endorsement deals to play Top-Flite balls and Ping clubs and display the Hartford Insurance logo on his bag, sources told The Associated Press on Friday.

Martin, already under contract to wear Nike clothing, scheduled a news conference for Tuesday at the Nike Greater Austin Classic in Texas.

"We will have endorsement deals to announce then, and I will be happy to discuss the matter on Tuesday," said Chris Murray, who represents Martin for Signature Sports, a Minneapolis-based agency.

Representatives of Spalding Sports Worldwide and Karsten Manufacturing refused to confirm or deny agreements had been reached. Hartford Insurance business offices were closed late Friday and no one could be reached for comment.

Schreyer fights on despite death of grandfather

GOLD COAST, Australia — Cindy Schreyer played through tears Friday just hours after learning of her grandfather's death yet matched her best round to take the midway lead at the Australian Ladies Masters at 8-under-par 136.

Billy Mayfair chips up on the ninth hole during Friday's second round of the Nissan Open in Valencia, Calif. Mayfair finished the day atop the leader board at 6-under par.

"I shoot the round of my life and I'm in here crying," Schreyer said after making a birdie on the final hole for a 66 and a one-stroke lead over Annika Sorenstam of Sweden and South Korea's Kim Hyun-mi.

"I was going to go home," Schreyer said about her feelings Thursday night when she found out that 92-year-old Carl Gullet, the man who taught her how to play golf, had died.

"I had tears in my eyes out there because of the guilt trip, but I know he wanted me to be here," Schreyer said of her second round at Royal Pines Resort. "He was a golfer himself. He was a great guy."

"I telephoned my mom and my grandmother today and when my grandmother wished me well, I knew it was okay," she said.

Meanwhile, Australia's Karrie Webb, who was two strokes off the lead at 138 along with five other players and just a single shot behind Sorenstam, said she was ready to duel with Sorenstam if it came to a head-to-head showdown on Sunday.

Jarrett surprises by winning Vegas pole

By Mike Harris
AP Motorsports Writer

LAS VEGAS — Dale Jarrett could only chuckle and shake his head in wonder Friday after winning the pole position for the inaugural Las Vegas 400.

Jarrett isn't known as a great qualifier, and his chief goal in the opening round of time trials for Sunday's inaugural Winston Cup race at Las Vegas Motor Speedway was to "make it into the top 25."

That was no problem as he drove his Robert Yates Ford Taurus around the slightly banked 1 1/2-mile oval at a surprising 168.224 mph, easily the quickest lap turned in since practice opened at the track on Thursday.

Until Jarrett went out late in the 51-car session, it appeared Geoff Bodine would have the honor of the first Winston Cup pole at Las Vegas. His lap of 167.411 seemed untouchable until Jarrett's surprising run.

"It blew me away that we could do that," Jarrett said. "When we saw he (Bodine) did that, I just shook my head. I didn't think anybody could do that, and I sure didn't think I would have any chance of knocking him off.

"You know, it cooled off quite a bit and we were lucky to get a late draw. But this was much faster than we anticipated running."

The pole was the sixth of Jarrett's career, all of them coming since 1996.

As expected, Fords were particularly strong in qualifying, sweeping the front row and taking five of the top seven spots.

Ward Burton's Pontiac Grand Prix was third at 166.806, followed by the Ford of Bill Elliott at 166.723, the Chevrolet Monte Carlo of Jeff Gordon — last week's winner at Rockingham and the defending series champion — at 166.605, and the Fords of Rick Mast and Mark Martin at 166.590 and 166.272.

Some credit Ford's strong showing to a recent rule change by NASCAR, which may give the Tauruses a slight aerodynamic advantage. But Jarrett said, "You've got a lot of good Ford teams. I think that's the biggest reason. The Taurus is awfully good. We've had a few weeks to work with it and we're making it better and better."

Current series leader Rusty Wallace was 10th in a Taurus at 166.001, while Daytona 500 winner Dale Earnhardt, who trails Wallace in the standings by just 33 points, just missed the top 25 at 164.860.

Wally Dallenbach Jr., a member of Team Sabco, was 25th at 164.901, clinching a starting spot after failing to qualifying for the first two races this season.

Drivers too slow to be in the top 25 will have another opportunity to make the 43-car field, either by standing on their Friday lap or trying again on Saturday.

Among the drivers who will have to make that decision are Ken Schrader, rookie leader and Jarrett teammate Kenny Irwin, Jeremy Mayfield, Jimmy Spencer, rookie Steve Park, Ricky Craven, Dave Marcis and Todd Bodine, who has yet to make a starting field this season.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Mark Martin, the all-time leading winner in NASCAR's Busch Grand National series, took the pole for Saturday's Sam's 300 at Las Vegas Motor Speedway.

The Winston Cup regular led Friday's single round of qualifying, turning a lap of 162.577 mph on the 1 1/2-mile oval in his Roush Racing Ford.

"This is a big surprise," said Martin, who has 32 Busch Series wins. "This is the car we ran (last week) at Rockingham, and I wasn't overly impressed with it there. We qualified 17th and finished third with it there, but some of the guys had us covered pretty good over there."

Joe Nemechek, who won the Busch Series opener two weeks ago at Daytona, put his Chevrolet on the outside spot of the front row at 162.494.

Jeff Burton, in another Ford, was third at 161.730, while the Pontiac driven by Buckshot Jones made him the top qualifying Busch Series regular at 161.580.

GOLF: Midland High stands in ninth place for the course in West Texas. Nonetheless, several of the scores weren't as good as they could have been.

(From 1C)

That's how Midland High coach Jack Ratcliff felt after the first round, when his team shot a 329 for ninth place out of the 16-team field.

"We were looking to do much better than that," said Ratcliff of his team's score. "We didn't shoot as well as we were anticipating.

"I think the conditions were really pretty good. We shot better in qualifying rounds here than we did today."

But the wind didn't affect everybody's game the same. Only one player managed to break par, Abilene Cooper's Clint Wellhausen, who shot a two-under par 70 which gave him a four-stroke lead. That should be maintainable at Hogan today.

Freeman was prepared for the conditions, and used an unconventional approach off the tee Friday. He used all irons as his driver didn't leave the bag, all day because of the wind.

"It made me want to be smarter about what I was doing," said Freeman of dealing with the wind. "I knew if I hit my driver I'd probably spray it to the left or the right into the bushes."

For the most part though, Freeman stayed on the straight and narrow. He said that when the tournament moves to Hogan that his driver might stay in the bag.

"After playing with irons as well as I did today I might do it again," said Freeman, who enjoyed his best round of the season.

It will take some doing for Freeman to catch Wellhausen, whose nearest pursuer was San Angelo Central's J.C. Ramirez in second with a 74. Unlike Freeman and the other Midland area golfers, though, Wellhausen had never played Midland Country Club before.

Friday, Wellhausen looked like a seasoned MCC vet on the course, thanks mainly to his work around the greens.

"I was just going for a round in the 70s," Wellhausen said. "The main thing was I only had one bogey. I putted pretty well."

Wellhausen and his Cooper teammates were one of five teams within five shots of Lee. El Paso Franklin sat in second at 315 while Cooper, Central and Lubbock Coronado were tied for third at 317. Odessa High is in sixth at 318.

The fact that Central, Cooper and Odessa High are all District 4-5A opponents of Lee's wasn't lost on Dunn.

"You can look up (on the leaderboard) and see our district is going to be pretty tough," Dunn said.

Today, though, Lee will be the team to catch. Hogan figures to play easier than MCC did today, especially since it now looks like the snow that was predicted won't arrive until at least a day later than expected.

"It will probably take about a 300 or even lower for us to win," Dunn said.

Matthew Gerhard was the top individual scorer for Midland High with a 79.

In the Division II bracket of the tournament held at Green Tree Country Club, Borger held a sizable lead in the team standings with a score of 306, well ahead of Andrews at 325. Lamesa was third at 331 followed by Big Spring at 334.

J. Chris Hubert of Andrews and Derrick Dixon of Borger were tied for the individual lead with 76.

In Division III played at Ranchland Hills Country Club, Odessa Permian's No. 2 team led with a 319, ahead of Lee's No. 2 team in second with a 330. Lee's Jared Cooper was tied with two Permian players for the individual lead with a 76.

Texas hits 4 homers in exhibition opener

Associated Press

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. — Texas hit four home runs, including two-run homers by Lee Stevens and Kevin Elster, as the Rangers opened the exhibition season with a 7-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins Friday.

Will Clark's double preceded Steven's homer in the second inning off Twins starter Bob Tewksbury (0-1), who allowed three hits and two runs over two innings.

The Rangers had 12 hits and five Rangers pitchers held Minnesota to four hits.

The Rangers got back-to-back homers in the fourth inning on Elster's two-run homer and a solo by McLemore off Ricky Bones and Ivan Rodriguez got his homer in the fifth inning off Travis Miller.

Darren Oliver (1-0) started for the Rangers and went two innings, allowing one hit. He had two strikeouts.

Astros 7, Dodgers 7, 10 innings

VERO BEACH, Fla. — Mike Piazza homered in his first at-bat of the spring, and Roger Cedeno and Todd Hollandsworth hit two-run shots as the Los Angeles Dodgers rallied for a 7-7, 10-inning tie with the Houston Astros.

Both teams had 13 hits and a total of 13 pitchers were used — seven by the Astros.

Piazza, who hit 40 homers last season, cleared the right-field fence off Shane Reynolds in the first. Cedeno and Hollandsworth connected during a five-run seventh that put Los Angeles ahead 7-6.

J.R. Phillips hit the only homer for the Astros, who led 6-2 before Ramon Garcia was hit hard in the seventh.

Dodgers starter Chan Ho Park allowed sacrifice flies by Moises Alou in the first and Luis Rivera in the second. Park gave up two runs and three hits in three innings.

Dodgers reliever Dennis Reyes gave up single runs in the fourth and fifth, then two more in the sixth.

Dax Jones drove in three runs, and Rivera had a pair of sacrifice flies for the Astros. Piazza, Hollandsworth, Eric Young and Wilton Guerrero had two hits each for the Dodgers.

Spring Training

Reynolds allowed one run and two hits in two innings, and Sean Bergman followed with two scoreless innings.

Blue Jays 5, Phillies 0

Jose Canseco had his second straight strong day for the Blue Jays, going 2-for-3 with a three-run homer and four RBIs off Curt Schilling to lead Toronto over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Canseco had a run-scoring infield single in the first at Dunedin, Fla., then homered on an 0-2 count in the third. In Thursday's opener, Canseco went 1-for-2 with a double.

"I didn't hit it as well as the one I hit yesterday," Canseco said.

Schilling allowed four runs — three earned — and six hits in three innings with one strikeout.

"It was a fastball in, but not in enough," Schilling said. "I made a fundamental mistake and Hercules fisted the ball out to left."

Marlins 2, Devil Rays 1

At St. Petersburg, Fla., the defending World Series champions and AL newcomers christened what will be known as the Sunshine Series.

Craig Counsell, the only player in Florida's lineup on the field when the Marlins won the title last October, drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the sixth. Bubba Trammell hit the first homer in Devil Rays' history.

Indians 7, Pirates 6

At Bradenton, Fla., Richie Sexson hit a three-run homer in the eighth.

Indians starter Charles Nagy, in his first appearance since taking the loss in Game 7 of the World Series against Florida, allowed one run and two hits in two innings.

Kenny Lofton, returning to the Indians after spending last season with Atlanta, had two of Cleveland's 16 hits. Sandy Alomar and Sean Casey also homered for the Indians, and Omar Vizquel had three hits.

Jason Kendall, Jermaine Allensworth, Steve Bieser and Aramis Ramirez homered for Pittsburgh.

Royals 3, Braves 2

At Kissimmee, Fla., Larry Sutton singled home Carlos Mendez in the 10th.

Curtis Pride hit a two-run homer in the fifth to give Atlanta a 2-0 lead. The Royals rallied in the ninth when Joe Kmak singled in Mendez and Shane Halter hit a sacrifice fly.

Anaheim Angels catcher Matt Walbeck, right, tries to tag the Oakland Athletics' Jason Giambi, but he slides home safely in the fourth inning of a spring training game Friday in Tempe, Ariz. Oakland won, 10-1.

Expos 6, Cardinals 4

At Jupiter, Fla., Vladimir Guerrero hit a three-run homer and Mike Mordecai hit a solo shot in a seven-inning game that inaugurated the new ballpark the teams will share.

Guerrero homered in the fifth off Sean Lowe, who gave up four runs in two innings. Mordecai led off a two-run sixth with a homer off Armando Almanza.

Tigers 8, Yankees 5

At Tampa, Fla., Bobby Higginson and Brian Hunter drove in two runs each. Higginson had a first-inning solo homer and added a run-scoring double in the fourth. Hunter had an RBI single in the second and a sacrifice fly in the fourth.

Derek Jeter hit a two-run homer in the fourth for the Yankees. New York starter Ramiro Mendoza, vying for the No. 5 spot in the rotation, was tagged for four runs and seven hits in three innings.

Giants 14, Rockies 3

At Tucson, Ariz., Brian Johnson hit a two-run single during a five-run first off Darryl Kile.

Alex Diaz had a two-run double as the Giants scored five more runs in the third off Kevin Ritz. Marvin Benard added a two-run homer in the ninth against Mike DeJean as the Giants piled on 17 hits.

Kile, who signed a $24 million, three-year contract with the Rockies, allowed five runs — three earned — four hits and four walks in 1 2-3 innings, walking the bases loaded in the first.

Athletics 10, Angels 1

At Tempe, Ariz., Kenny Rogers pitched two scoreless innings in his Oakland debut, and Jason Giambi and Brian Lesher drove in two runs each.

Oakland scored three times in the first off loser Ken Hill on consecutive singles by Ryan Christenson, Ben Grieve and Matt Stairs and a two-run double by Giambi.

Mariners 7, Cubs 6

PEORIA, Ariz. — Rickey Cradle drove in the go-ahead run with a checked-swing single with two outs in the eighth as Seattle beat the Chicago Cubs.

Chicago manager Jim Riggelman and veterans Mark Grace, Sammy Sosa and Scott Servais were among about a dozen Cubs who missed the game to attend the funeral of Hall of Fame broadcaster Harry Caray in Chicago.

The Cubs led 3-0 before the Mariners took the lead with a six-run fifth inning that included home runs by Ken Griffey Jr. and Jay Buhner.

Mickey Morandini went 3-for-4 as the Cubs got 14 hits.

Padres 8, Brewers 4

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Mark Sweeney hit a two-run homer and Andy Sheets drove in three runs to lead the San Diego Padres over Milwaukee.

Milwaukee took a 4-3 lead into the seventh inning, but the Padres pounded righthander Tim VanEgmond for six hits and five runs. VanEgmond was making his first appearance since undergoing elbow surgery last April.

A crowd of 3,102 attended the first game at Maryvale Baseball Park, the Brewers' $25 million spring training home.

Anaheim denies its close to signing Cuban defector

By John Nadel
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES — Responding to reports that Cuban defector Orlando Hernandez is about to sign a contract with the Anaheim Angels, general manager Bill Bavasi said Friday the team hasn't even made the pitcher an offer.

A source who spoke on the condition of anonymity told The Associated Press late Thursday that Joe Cubas, the agent for Hernandez, was expected to meet with Angels president Tony Tavares in Arizona on the matter.

"I'm not saying we're not interested," Bavasi said by telephone from the team's spring training headquarters in Tempe, Ariz. "We just have not quantified the interest yet. No deal is about to be made.

"I wouldn't be able to tell you when something might happen. Our concern is we have a free-agent pitcher who has never played professional baseball. ... I'm here to tell you we haven't done anything at this point."

Hernandez, who was once his nation's top pitcher, is the half-brother of World Series MVP Livan Hernandez of the Florida Marlins.

SOFTBALL: Lady Rebels face Richland

(From 1C)

West Texas Classic softball tournament as the team to beat.

Richland's road to this point got much tougher when the Lady Rebels met up with Midland High. Its third round matchup followed two run-rule victories over El Paso Jefferson (14-1) and Big Spring (10-0) and was highlighted as Richland capitalized on some breaks while the Lady Bulldogs couldn't get the ballgame to go its way.

Richland got on the board early as a Greear fly ball to center dropped. MHS center fielder Crystal Shelton lost the ball in the sun, which had just broken through the clouds moments before. The fly ball scored Kristen Williams, who reached base on an error.

In the sixth, Greear, who reached on a fly ball single which died between the shortstop and left field, scored to make the score 2-0 on a single into right field by Haley King.

"We had a lot of luck and it was all bad," MHS coach Rich Wieligman said. "A fly to center and the sun comes out and then we have a ball land in front of another girl.

"We need to learn from our mistakes. We are getting better and competing well."

MHS's misfortune took away from what was a good game by the Lady Bulldogs. Richland just played better. Case in point, Richland snuffed out a potential MHS rally in the last inning with good defense as the Lady Rebs caught a MHS runner taking too big of a turn on third. So instead of first and third with one out, there was only one runner on with two outs.

"We have to be fundamentally sound," Richland coach Hank Fulkerson said. "We played sound defense and we have to do that. We don't have the superstar player."

Lee's Lady Rebels earned another shot at Richland with wins over Andrews (5-3) and Fossil Ridge (4-1). The Lady Rebels, which fell to Richland two times in last year's tournament, will be ready this time.

"Richland is a good team," Lee coach Perry Young said. "(Richland coach) Hank (Fulkerson) will have them ready to play.

"Whoever is left tomorrow will be tough. There are three teams alive. We will have to play three games or we will be traveling to the house."

In Lee's win over Fossil Ridge, the bats came alive with 11 hits. Leading the way for the Lady Rebs was Andrea Rodriguez, who went 3-for-3 with two RBIs. Brandi Row threw a two-hitter and struck out four.

NOTES: Midland High was eliminated late Friday night after a 5-2 loss to Andrews. That means that District 4-4A will have two of the last four teams left in the bracket...

Sooners blitz Baylor, 19-7

Associated Press

NORMAN, Okla. — Jose Montenegro hit his third grand slam of the season and Oklahoma equaled the best start in school history by defeating Baylor, 19-7, in the Big 12 opener for both teams Friday.

The Sooners are 11-0, matching their start in 1984.

Oklahoma had 17 hits off six Baylor pitchers. Montenegro and Derek Wathan had four hits each, and Montenegro had five RBIs.

The game was ended by the 12-run mercy rule with two outs in the eighth inning after the Sooners had scored six runs.

Geoff Geary (4-0) pitched six innings to get the victory. He gave up nine hits and seven runs, striking out eight.

Oklahoma St. 10, Kansas 1

STILLWATER, Okla. — Jon Adkins pitched eight innings and Steve Hill had three hits including a home run as Oklahoma State opened Big 12 Conference play with a victory over Kansas.

The Cowboys (6-5, 1-0) scored three runs in the first inning off Chad Shuster (0-2) and weren't threatened after that.

MC golf in second place

ROSWELL, N.M. — The Midland College golf team had one of its best days of the year, but still was only in second place Friday after the first two rounds of the Bronco Invitational.

The Chaps had a solid day with a 272-282— 554 but still sat four strokes behind Western Junior College Athletic Conference rival Western Texas College at 274-276—550. The final round of the tournament is scheduled for today.

Making a mark on the tournament record books was MC's Kenneth Ferrie, who shot a 64-71—135 to stand in second place. Ferrie's opening 64 tied a tournament record and led six Midland College golfers who broke par.

Midland College's second team shot a 296-292—588 and is in fifth place.

WTC's Michael Stenger leads the tournament with a 66-67—133. The scores are commendable considering the conditions.

"It never got above 40 degrees," said Midland College coach Delnor Poss. "It's just outstanding play. The guys showed a lot of courage. It's unusual to have six guys shoot under par in any circumstances."

This is the second year. Gifford was named all-state. During her four years with the Lady Chargers, Gifford averaged 15 points a game and over 10 rebounds. MHS JVs beat Midland Chr.

The Midland High junior varsity baseball team advanced to the finals of its own tournament Friday by defeating the Midland Christian varsity 9-4. Matt Bose picked up the win for MHS by striking out 10 in six innings.

Bose also hit a pair of home runs while Santee Hathaway hit an inside the park homer for the Bulldogs, who are now 4-0 on the season. Michael Glover went 3-for-3 with a triple while John Schlaffer doubled.

Greenwood loses tourney tie-breaker

MONAHANS — Greenwood High's baseball team was tied on the scoreboard with Fort Stockton at the end of the game Friday night at the Monahans Tournament, but took the loss because of a tie-breaking rule.

The Rangers were tied 5-5 but lost the time-shortened game due to Fort Stockton's having one more runner reach third base. Greenwood will play either Pecos or Crane at 4 p.m. today.

Wes Smith had a home run for Greenwood while Monty Magee and Rodney Malone each doubled. Greenwood, now 1-1-1 on the season, out-hit Fort Stockton 12-8.

ODESSA — Results were split for a pair of teams from Abell at the eighth grade girls basketball postseason tournament. Abell Blue defeated Alamo Gray 38-24 while Nimitz defeated Abell White 40-31.

Rangers get past bi-district with win over Mountain View

Staff Report

ALPINE — A second post season trip to Alpine was well worth for the Greenwood boys basketball team as the Rangers won their first bi-district game since 1995 with a 54-44 win over Clint Mountain View Friday at Sul Ross State University.

The Rangers advance in the Class 3A playoffs and will play 32-0 Tulia Tuesday night at Lubbock Monterey. The time for that game is tentatively scheduled for 7:30 p.m. However for right now, the Rangers can celebrate a win one year after dropping a bi-district game versus Clint High School.

"It feels good," Greenwood coach Justin Morett said. "We all wanted to win this one badly. It is good to get by the first step. The next round will be tough, but we will be prepared for it."

Morett credits his team's ability to come out and get after Mountain View right away. It showed as the Rangers outscored Mountain View 19-6 in the first quarter and 30-17 in the first half.

James Settles was key early on scoring 13 of his game-high 23 points in the first half. It came as four Rangers (Andrew Wootan, Larry Johansen, Jason Brooks and Calef Montes) had picked up two fouls in the first half.

"Settles has played well in the last couple of games and when I saw him step out in the first quarter and hit a three, he usually doesn't shoot that shot, I knew he was feeling good tonight," Morett said.

The experience of playing in the three do-or-die district games to get to the playoffs helped Greenwood (19-12) as did its scrimmage with Midland High.

"The confidence level was up and they could relax from the beginning," Morett said. "The kids talk about the game with Midland High. It helped them knowing they could step it up a notch.

"It looked as though they (Mountain View) were tight and we were relaxed. We didn't play well in the third quarter but we picked it up towards the end."

Pick it up is what the team did in the fourth quarter. Mountain View cut the lead to six with two minutes to play. However, Settles and Andrew Wootan, who scored 15 in the game, came up with big baskets to stretch the lead out.

It was a very good night for the Rangers and that showed in every respect even the free-throw line, where Greenwood was 9-for-10.

Rebel baseball team goes to 5-0

Staff Report

LEWISVILLE — The Midland Lee baseball team improved to 5-0 for the season with a sweep of two good Metroplex teams Friday in the Lewisville tournament.

Lee defeated Richland 9-6 as the Rebels came back with a five-run sixth inning, which was keyed by a two-run double Stacy Jones which tied the game at 6-6 and a three-run home run by Matt Whitaker, who was 3-for-4 with four RBIs and two runs scored.

Lee out-hit Richland 10-7. Jones was 2-for-4 with two RBIs, Ryan Klatt 1-for-4 with a double. Cody Marcum picked up the win in relief of Jones. Marcum worked 2 1/3 innings.

In the second game, Lee defeated Carrollton Newman Smith 14-9. Again a comeback was in the works as Lee trailed 5-0 early on after giving up three homers, including two to Rich Harrison, who had his fourth and fifth in the tournament.

Lee came back in the fifth inning when the Rebels scored six runs thanks to doubles from Whitaker and Marcum. Jones, Eric Neatherlin and Eric Clodfelter added RBIs in the inning.

"We have been coming behind in all the games and the kids haven't let up," Lee coach Jesse Benavidez said. "We scored when we needed to get ahead and they opened it up today.

For the game, Kevin Crawford was 3-for-4 with three RBI and a home run (his third of the tournament). Marcum was 2-for-4 with 4 RBIs, Brent Powell was also 2-for-4 with a RBI and four runs scored.

On the mound Josh Ramos picked up the win and Matt Watson earned the save.

Lee will play at 12:30 today. A win in the semifinal puts Lee in the title game at 5:30 p.m.

Bulldogs suffer first loss

FORT WORTH — Midland High didn't stay with Lee in the ranks of the undefeated, falling victim to some strong pitching in the Boswell Tournament, losing to Fort Worth Brewer 6-0.

The Bulldogs collected only three hits off Brewer's Kelly Shoppech, who will go to Baylor next season. Laynce Nix had two of the hits for MHS.

Midland High, which fell to 3-1 on the season, didn't support starter Aaron Pullin defensively, committing four errors and giving up four unearned runs. Pullin, who pitched four innings, took the loss while Lee Martin pitched the final two innings in relief.

The Bulldogs will continue play today and must win five straight games to win the tournament championship.

El Paso's goalie outduels Jacks' Pye

Staff Report

EL PASO — It turned into a duel of goalies Friday night and the Odessa Jackalopes put up a brave fight but came up short.

Jim Mullin, subbing for the injured Billy Pye, turned back 36 shots, but his El Paso counterpart Jason Carey stopped 37 to help defeat the Jacks 4-2.

Only three of the four goals against the Jacks could be charged to Mullin. Bill Trew scored the final goal of the game for El Paso with 21 seconds remaining into an empty net after Odessa had pulled Mullin for an extra attacker. It was Trew's second goal of the game.

The Jacks tied the game once at 1-1 on a goal by Sami Laine late in the first period. But El Paso scored twice in the second period for the cushion it would need.

Odessa cut the margin to 3-2 with 11:40 left in the game on a goal by Ryan Equale, but Carey thwarted the Jacks the rest of the way. The Jacks return home tonight at 7 p.m. to face Fort Worth.

past the bi-district round for the first time in two years. "It's a big win for us. It feels great, especially after last year."

"We had nightmares in football about Shallowater beating us," said junior 6-foot-4 forward Chad Smith who scored 17 points on the night. "After we beat Shallowater, we said we've got one (revenge game) left, and we got rid of it."

Tahoka ends the season at 22-12 despite a 29-point performance by senior guard Rocky Moore, who came into the game averaging 22 points per contest. Moore, who carried the Bulldogs on his back throughout much of the game, had to watch the rest of the contest on the bench in the last 4:04 because he fouled out.

Moore's performance was admired by Gordon.

"He's an incredible basketball player," Gordon said. "We did everything we could do to stop him. We just wore him down a little bit but he's just tremendous and I have a lot of respect for him. If somebody's not looking at that young man to play college basketball just because he plays 2A, they're crazy."

But Stanton has some incredible players of its own. Especially in junior point guard Kyle Herm, who has become so used in being a leader.

The 5-foot-10 dynamo, who led the football team to the state championship at quarterback, scored a team-high 24 points, including going 11-for-16 from the free-throw line.

"Kyle was awesome tonight," Gordon said. "Chad Smith had an excellent game, Justin (Cobb), Tyron (Davis) and Marcus (Washington) were all good. But Kyle and Chad were excellent tonight.

"We've got two of the best post men in the area and we've got the best point guard in the area. But Kyle's the leader, and Kyle Herm is one of the top players in the region."

And Herm did his work when it was crunch time and the Bulldogs threatened to take the lead. Herm took control and either made a great pass or drew the foul to get to the charity stripe.

Stepping up in pressure type situations should be no surprise in a player who was playing in his seventh playoff game just this year alone.

"Everybody knows that our inside game is pretty solid and they're going to do everything to stop it. So I knew I had to step it up," Herm said. "I thrive on the pressure. I've been under the gun my whole life."

Despite a size disadvantage, the Bulldogs kept it close because of their jumping-jack ability by going after loose balls and fighting for rebounds.

"That's one of their strengths," Gordon said about Tahoka. "They're incredible leapers and incredibly strong. They're very good and that's why they went to the state tournament last year. When you have to knock out kids that went to the state tournament last year, you're in for a heck of a battle."

"They got on the boards and that kept them in the game," said Smith who grabbed seven boards of his own. "The way they spread the court out, it's hard to block out and get the rebound. When we started to rebound, that's when we pulled it out."

Washington and Cobb added 10 points each for the Buffs. Even though the 6-8 post Washington didn't have a great game as he's normally used to, he did the little things which helped his team.

"He struggled tonight but when we had to have a big play he came through," Gordon said. "Just because you don't score as many points and get as many rebounds doesn't mean you don't make great plays."

What also helped the Buffs on this night was the ability to go to the free-throw line. Stanton got to the charity strip 31 times opposed to Tahoka's 17 trips.

The Buffs' winning tradition also kicked in when the game was still in doubt.

"When it was tight, we got into the situation of when we step out onto the court, we knew we were going to win the game," Smith said. "That's just the way we were taught."

As long as that tradition remains, the Buffaloes will continue to count the victories.

Midland High at Central

Where: Old Bobcat Stadium.
When: 2 p.m.
Records: Midland High is 15-3 and 7-2. Central 10-6 and 5-3.
Last Action: MHS thumped Abilene High 5-1. Central defeated Permian 1-0 (3-1 shootout).
About Central: Since a 2-0 win over Odessa High, the Lady Bobcats have not scored a goal in regulation. That was five games ago. So when a team hasn't scored for the last 320 minutes, don't look for the Lady Bobcats to try to match MHS' firepower. Central's only chance to win is to keep the score low and maybe go into a shootout.
About MHS: Midland High is banged up. Melinda Baca is probably out for the season after a ankle injury against Lee. Last Tuesday, Jill Knottek suffered a knee injury and now she is out for the season. Those are Hodkinson's two super sophomores. MHS, however, must continue to play the type of soccer which put in five goals in the second half against Abilene High.
The Lady Bulldogs need this win, which would put them two games up in the loss column over Cooper and Central for second place. With two left, that pretty much guarantees the second seed.

Boys

San Angelo Central at Midland High

Where: MHS Soccer Field.
When: 2 p.m.
Records: Central is 14-2 overall and 6-2 in district. MHS is 6-9 and 2-7.
Last Action: Central defeated Odessa Permian 4-0. Midland High fell to Abilene High 3-1.
About Central: The Bobcats's magic number to qualify for the playoffs and eliminate Permian is two (No. of Central wins and/or Permian losses). Central must also win to keep district title hopes alive. Central is led by the district's leading scorer Andy Montelongo.
About Midland High: The Bulldogs have three more games left in this season and this stretch run will not get the Bulldogs into the playoffs but might set a tone for the future. MHS ends with Central, Cooper and Odessa High. The last two teams with a combined 2-14 record, so a win here would be the highlight win of the season.

points, the first time this year to be in double figures. Every time Cox took a 3-point shot, the MHS bench stood and signaled it good.

"I just got on fire," Cox said. "I knew the ball was going in when it left my hand. This feels really great because I've been working on the three-point shot for the past two weeks. It's like you just want someone to give you the ball."

MHS assistant coach Craig Raughton said, "This is very unusual for us to hit that many threes. That has to be a school record. These kids are something. They can score in a hurry."

Tatum had 19 of his 27 points in the middle two periods, but naturally, they came when needed most.

"It was like a challenge was calling and I just led the charge," Tatum said. "Everyone stepped up their game."

Lemons, MHS' leading scorer, was just under his average of 25.7 points per game with 23, but he had his usual double-double with a game-high 12 rebounds. Taylor Moody also came off the bench for a trey and Jay Christian, who sat most of the game after a technical foul, had the other.

Christian had only seven points, all coming in the first quarter. The technical obviously bothered Stephenson, who argued the call on the sideline.

"There is a saying in life that the cream always rises to the top and that's what we saw tonight," Stephenson said of his team's explosive third period. "The intramurals are over. This is the playoffs. Chris Cox can shoot the ball as good as anyone. And he doesn't know what pressure is. Kirby and Chuck (Tatum) did what they always do.

"We may lose to someone, but they better bring some folks because these guys can play the game."

Eastwood got 22 points from Jerry DeLaPena while Ben Karam had 14 points and Joel Martinez 12. However, DeLaPena had 10 fourth quarter points when the game had long been decided.

Eastwood ends its season at 23-11, having been eliminated by MHS two years in a row. And Pippen wasn't too pleased to be looking down the MHS roster.

"They're going to be good again next year with that guard (Tatum) and that big guy (Christian) back next year."

Midland High now goes against El Paso Hanks in the region quarterfinals next week. Stephenson was to set up the place and time with Hanks sometime today. Hanks defeated Abilene High Friday night in Odessa.

The bowtie folks brought a minivan to market

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.

It started with years of market research from four continents and forty-two customer clinics to find out what customers truly wanted in a minivan. From that wealth of information, the Chevrolet Venture minivan was born. With modern styling and theater seating, the bowtie folks brought a minivan to market that sought to challenge the established nameplates by offering many unique and innovative features designed to help families gain more flexibility and freedom. I recently test drove a regular Venture in the upscale LS trim.

A Journey in Family Freedom

Introduced during the '97 model year, the Chverolet Venture is built by General Motors in Doraville, Georgia alongside its mechanical siblings — the Pontiac Trans Sport and Oldsmobile Silhouette. This minivan platform is also the basis for the Opel Sintra, built for export in the same assembly plant. The Venture is available in regular or extended sizes, with three or four doors. Those looking for additional freedom can choose the power passenger side sliding door, a $435 option. Dual power sliding doors are not available. All Ventures are powered by a 3400 Series V-6 mated to the 4T60E four speed automatic transmission. This powerplant generates 180 horsepower at 5,200 rpm and 205 ft-lbs of torque at 4,000 rpm. If you are looking for a minivan that accelerates and handles like a sports sedan, this Chevrolet is for you. The powertrain is very responsive with handling and control characteristics that make the demands of daily commuting a breeze. Displays and controls are excellent. A low step in height makes this minivan easy to get in and out of. A good view of the road can be had from the very comfortable driver's seat. Chevrolet has gone to great lengths to make the seating configuration in the Venture very versatile for hauling most any combination of people and/or cargo. There are five different seating plans available to the buyer to suit almost any need. Depending on the seating package, the Chevrolet offers upto seventeen cupholders. Properly equipped, the Chevrolet Venture minivan can tow a trailer weighing upto 3,500 pounds. Underhood fluids are easy to reach and are clearly marked. I have just a few gripes: the CD player is too low on the dashboard and access to the third row of seats is awkward.

By the Numbers

Standard safety equipment includes: dual airbags, four wheel anti-lock brakes, daytime running lights, and high strength steel side-guard door beams. Additional safety features include: electronic traction control, ($195) and the OnStar system, a dealer installed option. OnStar, new to Venture for '98, takes driving security, safety and peace of mind to a whole new level. Using GPS (Global Positioning System) satellite technology and a hands-free, voice activated cellular phone, you are linked to the OnStar Center where advisors are on call twenty-four a day seven days a week. EPA fuel economy for the Venture is 18 city/25 highway. Retail sticker prices range from $20,249 for the regular wheelbase three door model to $22,259 for the extended wheelbase, four door model. Destination charge adds $570. Supplies of the Venture are good and there are no rebates. ■

AUTOALBUM

1958 METEOR

BY TAD BURNESS

First Introduced in 1949, the Meteor was a Ford-sized car created in Canada for Canadian Lincoln-Mercury dealers. (And, since 1946, the Monarch was Canada's Mercury sized car handled by Canadian Ford dealers—thus giving both chains a more complete selection of cars to sell.)

Canadian Fords and Mercurys were similar to their American counterparts, but the Meteors and Monarchs were distinctively Canadian —they were never sold in the United States. Rarely seen outside of Canada, they are now scarce in their own home country.

For 1958, "20 sparkling new body colours" were available in the "Magnificent Meteor" line. Styling was somewhat like the 1968 Ford, but with a different grille, side trim, and other detail changes. Meteor's "Niagara-- and "Rideau" model series were distinctly Canadian.

New "Luxury Lounge" interiors and a Safety-Curve Control Centers dash were designed to "make motoring fun' The deep-center safety steering wheel was a feature also seen on American Fords since '56.

New "Finger-Touch Ball-Race" steering had a 27 to 1 ratio. The Meteor had a 40-foot turning diameter.

"Quadri-Beam" (4) headlight were a new Ford feature for 1968, on both sides of the border. And the front hinged hood was a new safety feature, as this hood could not be whipped open accidentally.

A former product of the Mercury Lincoln-Meteor Division of Ford Motor Co. of Canada, the Meteor is a choice collector's item ! or anyone who likes Fords of the '50s its appearance at car shows—even in Canada —is a rare occurrence.

Should you ever buy a Canadian Meteor, you'll probably never see another exactly like it. And be prepared to hear people say, "Hey, some car! But what is it?"

Chevrolet Impressive at SEMA

LAS VEGAS _ When it comes to making an impression at the annual SEMA show, nobody does it better than Chevrolet. For the past several years the Specialty Equipment Market Association event in Las Vegas has served as forum for the GM division to ``push the envelope'' when it comes to showing off the latest concept, specialty and ``one-off'' vehicles. Last year's event, held in early November, was no exception. Here is a look at some of the Chevrolet products unveiled at the show:

Chevrolet Suburban Lone Star

The Chevrolet Suburban Lone Star is a one-of-a-kind Suburban created by Chevy's special vehicles department as a tribute to the state with the highest number of Suburban sales. With big red, white and blue Texas flags surrounded by the Chevrolet bowtie, the connection between these two institutions is graphically displayed. The words ``Lone Star'' are even emblazoned on the tailgate. The Texas theme is carried over into the inside with ``Lone Star'' also gracing the interior door panels. A replica of the star from the Texas state flag is embroidered into the seat head restraints and ``Texas'' appears on the floor mats.

Chevy Hot Rod Van

When ``Hot Rod'' magazine requested a vehicle to lead its 1997 Power Tour, Chevrolet responded with the Hot Rod Van — a high-tech rolling headquarters wrapped in the image of the American hot rod. Commissioned to create a distinctive vehicle, designers thoroughly transformed a stock Chevy Express van with styling cues than include custom wheels, graphics and paint. Majestic Vans of Saginaw, Mich. removed the stock insides — replacing them with a unique interior featuring rich black leather quad bucket seats and wood accents. Majestic also included a work station equipped with computer outputs and cellular communications technology. Additional equipment includes a refrigerator, two VCRs and three televisions. Rounding out its high-tech components, engineers added GM's OnStar global positioning sensor.

Chevrolet Cavalier Z24 Technic

This hot Cavalier coupe receives a major boost, primarily from an intercooled supercharger.

Dwarfing the 150 horsepower output of a factory spec Cavalier Z24, the Z24 Technic boasts an impressive 258 peak ponies.

Squeezing that much power out of the 2.4-liter Twin Cam engine required a long list of performance components and refinements — most notably an Eaton Twisted ``Roots'' type positive displacement supercharger. Other powerplant features include: a high output crankshaft and connecting rods, special pistons, high lift camshafts, high flow fuel injectors, increased-rate valve springs, ceramic-coated tubular stainless-steel exhaust manifolds and enhanced-flow intake manifold and air filter. The engine is mated with a New Venture Gear NVT 550 5-speed manual transmission, Torsen limited slip differential and a shortened shift lever for smooth shifting. ■
