

NICHOLS' WORTH

By: Nanalee Nichols

Some weeks are great, others aren't. Some Mondays are a whole lot worse than others, and Mondays aren't rated real high on the scale to begin with.

This Monday probably takes the cake for "days I should have stayed in bed or just died on".

It began when I woke up...late. After blearily pulling on some clothes and starting to the door with a cup of untouched coffee in hand, it came to my sudden attention that I couldn't find my keys.

Now, losing those keys is a pretty hard thing to do. The car keys, house keys, post office keys, keys for two offices and a few odds and ends I don't really know what they are, all reside on a huge brass "N" large enough to be visible on radar.

Not having time to spend looking for a long, I grabbed up the spares and went to work.

I had two apologies to make immediately, one for a story put in the wrong paper, one for a mistake. Two in one week is fairly unusual, and hurts my sense of pride.

I went for the mail. There was my catalog order...goody, new clothes! Upon opening the package, imagine my surprise to find two items that belonged to some other woman somewhere else, a pair of slacks about four sizes too large...even for me, and a notice that the dress I wanted would be shipped sometime between now and June 15!

Then I opened up the checkbook. There was a blank check stub, with absolutely nothing to indicate what the check was written for! That has never, ever happened before, and it took two hours of hard thought to remember what it was!

Finally, at lunch time, I went home to again search seriously for those elusive keys. I knew they HAD to be at the house because there was no way I could have gotten home with the car otherwise.

The only positive thing that emerged was that I cleaned out behind the couch cushions, under the bed and behind the chairs. No keys.

Finally, after becoming increasingly frantic, I sat down and began to reconstruct what I had done the last time the keys were in use. Could they have fallen in the sack of groceries I brought in? Where was that sack? In the plastic bag of garbage...that's when things deteriorated to their lowest level.

When I lifted up the trash sack, which was full and already sealed, I could hear a jingle from within. I knew the hunt was ended.

But...the keys were about half way down. The trash had been in the sun for two days. I dug through the peelings from eight avocados. I managed not to gag at the wrappings off the steak. I even made it through the wet coffee grounds. Then, unfortunately, I came across the half-devoured rat the cat had left outside the door Sunday night. Age had NOT improved the odor or texture of that particular rodent. The keys were right under his carcass.

I ended after holding my breath until blue, nauseated and totally, completely, disgusted.

Yuck. But, I had the keys. Covered in filth...and rodent germs. I disinfected them thoroughly, I disinfected my hands, but still whenever my hand closes over the key chain, I shudder.

No, Monday was not a particularly good day.

It could have been worse...but I don't even want to think about that!

"Chainsaw" Willie Makes Art From Wood Talco Man Uses Only A Chainsaw For His Unusual Sculpture

By Jelu Binion

W.D. (Willie D.) Holt, nicknamed "Chainsaw Willie" by one of the local folks, was born and raised in Wilkinson (Sugar Hill), a small community about nine miles east of Talco on Highway 71. He grew up working with his father in the woods, so he has come to love and respect the timber he works with at his saw mill and also the wood he uses to create his unusual works of art.

Mr. Holt and his wife, Shirley, who have been married 32 years, have five children and 15 grandchildren. He is self-employed, working at his sawmill located next to his home in Wilkinson. After work and in his spare time, he uses the chainsaw for something else besides cutting wood. He sculpts animals and carves Indian pieces out of wood with it.

When asked why he got into chainsaw sculpting, he said that he had seen someone else doing it so he decided to try it. He found out he enjoyed the challenge of being able to take an ugly stump and make something useful or eye appealing out of it.

W.D. displays a lot of his work in a building beside his house and the sawmill where he makes his living.

You can tell what type of wood he uses when you walk into the room and smell the cedar and see the rich red color in many of the pieces of work in the room. He uses mostly cedar because it cracks less when it shrinks and the wood is softer.

Some of his creations are small, like the squirrels, razorbacks, rabbits and other animals. But some of them are quite large, like the Indian pieces he does.

On the front porch of his building stands "Sugar Hill Slim", a life size man just waiting to be waved at. In fact, it's not uncommon for passerby's to wave at Slim because he is dressed in blue painted on pants and a red hat. He was shirtless until the wintertime came and someone told W.D. that Slim might get cold, so they put a shirt on him.

W.D. cuts, trims and shapes his creations with only a chainsaw as his tool. That's why at first glance you may think he's not through, but after looking closer, you can see the eyes he has for detail and the skill he has used in being able to control the saw for a lot of the intricate work.

He prefers not to polish or treat the wood, so that the natural color and smell will be preserved. Each work of art he does is done from a solid piece of wood and can stand on its own. He can turn a cedar stump into a squirrel in less than thirty minutes. The Indian sculptures, which his wife prefers, take a while longer. When asked what his favorite piece of work was, he stated he really didn't have one but he preferred to do the animals because they didn't have as much detail work. Although the eagle he carved while set up at Canton's First Monday Trades Day this month has quite a bit of detail. While there, someone from the Chicago Tribune interviewed him.

Mr. Holt also takes pride in the fact that Glenn Fowler, owner of the riverboat Queen Mria on Lake Bob Sandlin listed him as one of the ten most interesting attractions in this area for his tourist information.

Not only does W.D. carve animals and Indians, he has built high chairs and rocking chairs for use by his grandchildren. He also built a tree house out of a hollow tree that sits in the front corner of his yard, which is surrounded by a split rail fence.

You can see some more of W.D.'s work at Rick's Power Center in Talco, where there is a chain saw display holder. At Cathy's Cafe in Talco, there is a cedar stump with shelves in it and a squirrel on top. Jerry Jones, president of Talco State Bank, has a horned toad on his desk that his son gave him because of his love of TCU. There is also a chain saw display holder at Spruill's Honda in Mt. Pleasant.

Although W.D. hasn't sold that many pieces to individuals, he has no reservations in donating pieces of his work to worthy benefits held in this area, for the purpose of chances being sold for it, or it being auctioned off. He would rather his pieces not be given away as door prizes because he feels if someone pays for a chance, they really want it and will appreciate it more.

W.D. has an extraordinary talent that he has been using for only about two years. It is unusual and people ought to go see how he uses it. He was featured on a television news program last week that was seen by a lady in Shreveport who was about to celebrate her 83rd birthday. When asked what she wanted for her birthday, she said she wanted to see the man from Mt. Pleasant with the chainsaw. She got her wish when she visited the Holts last Saturday.

If you're driving down Highway 71 east of Talco and pass through Wilkinson and notice "Sugar Hill Slim", don't just wave, stop and visit with W.D. and Shirley and look at his work. The impression you get may be of amusement that a chainsaw is not only something that can destroy, but can also create something unusual and beautiful.

W.D. HOLT displays some of his works, an Indian bust, an eagle, Sugar Hill Slim and an Arkansas razorback that he is holding. People mistake Sugar Hill Slim for a person standing on the porch and they wave as they drive by. These are just some of the many items

W.D. Holt has carved with only the use of a chainsaw. (Staff Photo by Jelu Binion)

Big Names To Highlight "Opry" Show!

The Future Farmers of Rivercrest High School announced last week that the Grand Ole Opry (all male) show is coming to Rivercrest on May 7.

There is word this week from the Opry that names more of your favorite entertainers who will be here for the program: Ronnie Milsap (Vince Blankenship), Crystal Gayle (Jimmie Branch), Merle Haggard (Coach Barker), the Judds, that fantastic mother-daughter team (Rusty Jones and another Talco gentleman who is working on his schedule so he can perform with Rusty as one of these two lovely ladies), George Jones (Dr. E.E. Brooks), Loretta Lynn (Coach Giddens), Willie Nelson (Bud Pyron), here for the program will be the winner of the Academy of Country Music Female Artist of the Year, the lovely Reba McEntire (Damon Ward).

The Forrester Sisters will be Coach

Copeland, Frank Stubblefield, Pete Taylor and Craig Ingram.

Not only will there be Grand Ole Opry stars, two of our well known local citizens with exceptional talent have been invited to participate in the program...you'll like this!

No country show could be complete without that hilariously funny story teller from the Mouth of the Mississippi, Jerry Clower (Wood Armstrong), nor those three beautiful talented Pointer Sisters (Charlie Hines, Billy Scales and Willie Fulbright).

The program will start at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 7 at the Rivercrest Auditorium. The admission will be $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students. The proceeds will go to the Rivercrest Chapter of Future Farmers.

Look for our reminder in next weeks paper and mark May 7 on your calendar now and invite others to come. The Rivercrest Chapter of Future Farmers idea of a Grand Ole Opry Show is one you must not miss.

School Board Members Take Oath

The newly elected Talco-Bogata CISD Board members took the oath of office when the board met in regular session on Tuesday, April 14. In the organization of the board, Tommy Corbell was elected president, Jerry Russell as vice-president and Billy Daniels as secretary.

In other business, the board approved the minutes of the previous meeting, approved the payment of bills, accepted the budget changes, and approved the tax report and adjustment. After discussion of the delinquent taxes, the board asked Superintendent Harold Cowley, to laboratory equipment and pay for demolition of the old Imhoff tank. An engineer is checking to see other things eligible for the funds.

The dog problem was discussed and city attorney, Rick Standifer, spoke to the council advising them of the necessary steps for the city to handle the problem. Mr. Standifer stated that the city would have to acquire a dog catcher, a vehicle, a veterinarian, dog pound, liability insurance, and other necessary equipment. Mayor Harbison stated that the cost is prohibitive as it would practically double the city taxes citizens now pay.

The council voted to pay the election judge and workers and to change the council meeting time to 7:30 p.m. during daylight savings time. The motion was made and carried to elect Alfred Puckett as Mayor Pro Tem.

gather information on delinquent tax lawyers.

The Texas School Service Foundation Insurance Company was selected by the board to provide professional legal liability and employee benefits liability and Southwestern State General Insurance Company was selected to provide student and football insurance.

The board approved the early dismissal of school on April 17.

Mr. Cowley gave a report on the board workshop to be held April 30 at ETSU.

The board voted to re-employ all secretarial aides, educational aides, cafeteria workers, bus drivers and maintenance workers.

An Investment in COMFORT

When you buy a new heating and cooling system, you're making an investment in comfort and in energy efficiency. Here is a free checklist of features your new heating and cooling system should offer.

1. Does the unit have a Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio (SEER) and Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER) of at least 8.0? The higher the rating, the better the efficiency.
2. Is the unit properly sized to serve the required cooling area?
3. Have you obtained information at your local Texas-New Mexico Power Company office about energy efficient cooling/heating systems? At TNP, we don't make or sell air conditioners or heaters, but we do have information on how to get the most for your energy dollar.

Ray Stone To Be Speaker At Athletic Banquet

Coach Wake Wood has announced that Ray Stone will be the guest speaker at the Athletic Banquet to be held at Rivercrest High School on Tuesday, May 5 at 7 p.m.

Stone has been a Texan all of his life and has been a dyed in the wool Cowboy fan dating back to the lean years in the '60's. Born in Edna, Ray attended high school in San Antonio. After a two year hitch in the military, he attended Texas Tech College at Lubbock. Following college, Ray played professional baseball for Montgomery, Alabama in the Southeastern League. In 1962, Ray became active in radio and television, producing a variety of programs for central and south Texas. In 1969, Ray Stone and Associates was organized, moving to the center stage of radio/television sports coverage.

Ray and his wife, Lorña, now live in Dallas with son, Loren and daughter, Alyssa. Ray is now in his ninth year of producing Cowboys Football Report, a syndicated daily radio program airing in seven states, on more than 200 radio stations. Ray recently was the master of ceremonies for the Tom Landry dedication, an event which drew more than 3,000 to the McAllen Civic Center in the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Beginning in 1976, Cowboys Football Report has grown to be one of the largest radio talk programs covering "America's Team". Ray Stone produces and narrates the fast moving interview oriented program that is aired in markets throughout the southwest and deep south. The Dallas-Ft. Worth market being the largest and Artesia, NM being the smallest. The program is carried as far east as Decatur, AL and as far west as Prescott, AZ.

The program, which is produced in cooperation with the Dallas Cowboys Football Club, contains daily interviews with the players and coaches and is designed to present an inside look at this unique organization. First hand information is obtained by Stone in his weekly contacts with the team including a one week stay at the Cowboy training camp at Thousand Oaks, California.

Ray Stone's after-dinner speaking, covering the humorous side of the Cowboys, has been taking place for five years. On one occasion, Ray spoke in St. Louis, MO before an overflow crowd of more than 1,000. Tickets are $5.00 each and may be purchased from any athlete or coach. Tickets may also be purchased at the door.
