MayDay is Saturday

With MayDay just days away, preparations continue for the Senior Center's 23rd annual fundraiser.

MayDay activities kickoff at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Scurry County Coliseum. Admission is free.

MayDay is packed with things for the whole family. Activities range from a sweet tooth booth to a craft booth, to auctions to a brisket barbecue and lots of entertainment. There will also be an antique tractor and farm equipment show.

A wide variety of entertainment is planned. The Sparkle City Line Dancers will showcase their skills from 2-2:30 p.m. Then the Deep Creek Cloggers take over and will entertain until 3:15 p.m. The Kitchen Band will take to the stage from 3:30-4:30 p.m. The Aubrey Wilson Band will perform from 5-6 p.m.

Exxon Mobil employees will prepare the brisket for the barbecue which will be served from 4:30-6 p.m. Tickets are $6 per plate and can be purchased from any senior citizen, the center office or at the door. Carry-outs are available.

The quilt auction, with Grady Morris as the auctioneer, begins at 6:30 p.m. Thirty-one quilts, from twin to king size, will be sold along with five baby quilts, an antique quilt, nine afghans, two table cloths with napkins (one oblong and one long), two dolls and a framed doily.

Some quilts are embroidered, cross-stitched, appliqued, pieced, or antique. Quilts also feature clowns, rabbits, angels, roosters or hens.

More than 100 items will be sold through the silent auction. Numerous crafts and home baked goods also will be sold. A variety of breads and desserts will be included.

VARIETY — The Senior Center's MayDay celebration, set Saturday at the coliseum, offers something for everyone. Pamela Fenton, left, activities director, and Carla Thompson, director, display a few of the quilts, afghans, dolls and other items that will be auctioned during the 23rd annual fundraiser. Cogdell board meets Wednesday

Cogdell Memorial Hospital's board of managers will convene at 8 a.m. Wednesday in a meeting postponed from last week due to the lack of a quorum.

CEO George Parsley will lead the discussion on several informational items including the planned assisted living project that proponents hope can be built on 2.1 acres on the southeast corner of the hospital grounds.

Other items to be discussed by Parsley and the board include the emergency department renovation, the recently completed day-surgery unit, surgery suite renovation and physician recruitment.

Parsley will also update the board on a Medicare mock survey, National Volunteer Week and National Hospital Week.

The hospital's Relay for Life team will also be recognized.

Action items include the approval of the financial statements and the certification of accounts payable, and a resolution documenting that the hospital's home health agency is a department of the hospital.

Dr. James Burleson will also present the monthly medical staff report

Early voting ending for Saturday election

Early voting for Saturday's Hermleigh school board election ended at noon today as voters cast their ballots for candidates competing for two spots for a full term, including present board members Larry West and Tony Lambaren. Challengers are Tony Molina Jr. and Roy Gill.

There are three candidates – Burton Sandefur, Joe Roemisch and Wes Shankles – seeking a one-year expired term.

On Saturday, voters will cast their ballots in the school cafeteria between 7 in the morning and 7 p.m.

Early voting will end at 5 o'clock this afternoon for one city council seat.

Voters are deciding between incumbent David Harrell and Stephanie Ducheneaux for Place 2 on the city council.

Voting Saturday will be held in the lobby of City Hall beginning at 7 a.m. and concluding at 7 p.m.

Snyder and Ira school districts, as well as WTC, cancelled their elections as there were no contested races.

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "It's said nobody can be perfect without admitting faults. But if there are faults, how can one be perfect?"

The lead story in last weekend's abilene Reporter-News made us chuckle.

The writer was apparently miffed that abilene (and most of West Texas) had been omitted from a feature article in Texas Monthly about scenic drives in the Lone Star state.

But we really got a laugh out of the lead paragraph:

"Waves of discontent rippled across abilene last week after the fair city, a city steeped in culture, Western heritage, friendly people, tasty steaks, real cowboys, pretty women and precocious children, was slighted once again by a slick, big-city media outlet."

Lack of public relations and advertising may be the key to abilene's being given the cold shoulder by Texas Monthly.

Had the slick magazine been given advance notice of the Garbage Truck Road-E-O (five-column color picture on the front of Sunday AA section), surely hundreds of reporters and photographers would have invaded the city.

We're not good enough to enjoy golf, so we have to enjoy the stories about it. Here's two good ones.

"What are your golf clubs doing here?" she asked.The groom looked her right in the eye and answered, "This isn't going to take all afternoon, is it?

He was able to find his ball and spied an opening between two trees — a clean shot at the green.

Taking out a five wood, he took another mighty swing. The ball hit a tree, bounced back and struck him in the forehead.

As the avid golfer approached the Pearly Gates, St. Peter went out to meet him, still wearing his golfing attire. St. Peter asked, "Are you a good golfer."

WWII 'Rosie the Riveters' to be honored Saturday

SEATTLE (AP) — When a labor group wanted to organize an event to salute the female workers who kept U.S. factories humming during World War II, it didn't take long to find one of its first honorees.

Margaret Berry, who went to work building B-29s as a "Rosie the Riveter" 60 years ago, was still working at Boeing Co. These days, she volunteers to help restore vintage bombers at age 79.

Berry is among dozens of former Rosies invited to a reunion luncheon Saturday sponsored by the Women in Trades Association, a nonprofit labor organization.

Billboards and ads for the event have drawn dozens of calls from former WWII workers who filled a crucial void and broke gender barriers when the nation's men were off at war.

After the 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor, American men enlisted and faltering wartime factories called on women to help build aircraft and ships, among other jobs.

Nicknamed "Rosies" after one of the first women to work in a defense factory, the women were immortalized in a poster of a worker flexing her muscles with the slogan "We Can Do It."

Berry, strong from working in an orchard near her parents' general store, started at Boeing in 1942 for 62 cents an hour. Her hourly wage was bumped to $1.10, thanks to her ability to handle a rivet gun with a "25-pound squeeze" in tight spaces.

Columbia University instructor Penny Colman, author of "Rosie the Riveter: Women Working on the Home Front in World War II," said factories convinced women that their country needed them.

"They decided they certainly did not want to appeal to women on the basis of independence and making a good living. They decided on the patriotism path," Colman said.

The Rosies helped acclimate Americans to the idea of wives and mothers doing paid work, said Karen Anderson, a history professor at the University of Arizona and author of "Wartime Women: Sex Roles, Family Relations and the Status of Women During World War II."

"It became much more commonplace and families got used to the income," she said.

Violet Nelson was on the front lines of change. At age 18, Nelson and three friends from her home in Clarksfield, Minn., got jobs at Winslow Shipyards on Bainbridge Island — a Seattle suburb — helping to make minesweepers.

She moved up to journeyman, though some men bristled at taking orders "from a woman, let alone one young enough to be my daughter," she vividly recalls being told.

After the war, the shipyards became a male bastion again, otherwise "I probably would have stayed in it," said Nelson, 77.

There were protests against postwar layoffs of women, and federal polls showed 80 percent of women wanted to keep their wartime jobs. Of the rest, Anderson said: "I think they were convinced it would be unpatriotic to keep those jobs from returning servicemen."

By early 1944, the campaign launched to get them into the work force was reversed to get them out, Colman said.

It didn't keep women from working, Anderson said, but it made them feel guilty and justified poor treatment.

Contract named for next generation of U.S. Navy warships

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy's next generation of warships will be designed by a Mississippi-based team that will include many of the nation's top defense contractors.

A team led by Northrop Grumman at its Ingalls shipyard in Pascagoula, Miss., won the $2.9 billion contract Monday to design the new DD-X series of warships. Northrop Grumman and its partners, led by Raytheon Systems Co., also will get the job of designing the communications and electronics systems for the new warship.

Northrop Grumman had been in competition with General Dynamics and its Bath Iron Works in Maine for the project. General Dynamics' main partner was Lockheed Martin.

The winning Northrop Grumman team plans to give some of the work to Lockheed and Bath, said Phil Dur, president of Northrop Grumman's shipbuilding subsidiary.

"This is not going to be a winner-take-all solution to shipbuilding in the future," Dur said in a telephone interview.

The Navy has not decided which of the two shipyards will build the first DD-X ship in 2005, said John Young Jr., the Navy's assistant secretary for research, development and acquisition.

"For the Navy to be effective in the future, we need this class of ships," Young told a Pentagon news conference.

The DD-X program grew out of the Pentagon's plans for a new destroyer with a stealthy design and guns capable of hitting targets 100 miles inland. But the Defense Department scrapped that program last year amid worries that the ships would have been too big, too vulnerable and too expensive.

Phone cards to be donated to troops serving overseas

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USO, Wal-Mart, SAM'S CLUB and AT&T are teaming together to send more than 377,000 phone cards to U.S. military men and women serving overseas, giving them the opportunity to call home for Mother's Day.

"Right now we have thousands of troops serving overseas — many who have been away from family and friends for several months. Wal-Mart and SAM'S CLUB are working with the USO and AT&T to bring our troops a little closer to home this Mother's Day," said R.J. Youngclaus, Snyder store manager.

"Our goal is to deliver a phone card to all American troops serving overseas. We know there are troops located in isolated areas or in places that may not have phones, but we are committed to delivering the cards to every service member we can." Youngclaus said.

Youngclaus added, "To help us in our efforts we are asking that anyone with a family or friend serving overseas bring the Army Post Office (APO) or Fleet Post Office (FPO) address to Wal-Mart.

Police officer receives unusual package

PETALUMA, Calif. (AP) — A San Francisco police officer who works at the same stationhouse as his grandfather did more than 50 years ago got an unusual package in the mail.

It was his grandfather's wallet — complete with identification, business cards and $60.

Payne died four years later without telling his family about the lost wallet. It arrived at the police station last week along with a letter from Robert Kupbens, a 79-year-old Tucson, Ariz., man.

The letter read: "Dear Sir, I found this wallet in a telephone booth in Bakersfield, California in 1951 ... Much later I found the wallet in my personal gear and intended to send it to its owner but put it away and forgot about it in the following years because it was misplaced. Sorry it took so long to get this wallet to lost and found."

The letter ends: "P.S. There were $60 in bills in the wallet. Please find a check enclosed."

"Can you believe someone is that honest?" asked John Payne II, of Petaluma.

The fourth player's turn at bat

By Phillip Alder

Now that we have looked at the opening leader and third hand, it is time to turn to the second and last players at trick one: the declarer.

The two most common trick-one errors are playing too quickly and playing without forming a plan. You should stop and think, count your winners and losers, and select a strategy.

In this deceptive deal, you are in three no-trump. After West leads the heart queen and the dummy is tabled, how would you proceed?

That North hand is close between a game-invitation and a game-force. The three-diamond rebid is invitational. In the old days, it was game-forcing; but with a powerful one-suiter, either make a strong jump shift on the first round or go via fourth-suit forcing on round two.

You have seven top tricks: one spade, two hearts, two diamonds and two clubs. The immediate reaction is to duck a diamond, keeping communication with the dummy, but that is wrong. The other two tricks might come from either minor suit. And although a 3-2 diamond break is much more likely than a 3-3 club split, you can try both chances. Start with dummy's two top diamonds. If the missers(!) divide 3-2, concede a diamond trick and, using the spade ace as the dummy entry to the diamond winners, end with an overtrick. But when the diamonds split 4-1, shift to clubs, getting home since they are 3-3. This line wins if either diamonds are 3-2 or clubs are 3-3. These combine to produce a 79.2 percent chance of success.

Blazer stolen again

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — Shortly after Ron Wilson's 1985 Chevy Blazer was returned after having been stolen, it disappeared again.

"I never thought anybody would want to take my Blazer. It's just a work truck and it's a rust bucket," Ron Wilson said Monday.

The Intertrade Steel worker reported the first theft after discovering the vehicle missing Sunday morning. It showed up later that evening in a parking lot.

His tools were missing, along with $260 kept in the glove compartment.

"The funny thing is that whoever stole it had filled it up with gas, and probably used my money to do it," Wilson said.

Jesus and the Pharisees

The Pharisees were an interesting religious party during Jesus' day. They were extremely influential and had the respect of most the people of Galilee and Judea. Concern for obedience to the law of God and the traditions of their elders was their hallmark. Usually the Pharisees were the ones who were considered more religious than anyone else. Before his conversion to Christ, the apostle Paul considered himself a Pharisee, Philippians 3: 5. In light of all this, it is not surprising that Jesus and the Pharisees had a lot to say to each other. Jesus was teaching a new way of obedience to God. The Pharisees were the guardians and advocates of rigid obedience to the law of Moses and various traditions.

What were the differences between Jesus and his opponents, the Pharisees? Those differences come into sharp focus in Matthew 23. In this chapter we read of how Jesus confronted the Pharisees with the points in their faith that needed to be corrected. There were several issues. First, Jesus tells them that they focused their attention on approval and honor from men for their religious devotion. They liked to have the best seats at the synagogue and be addressed with titles of honor, Matthew 23:5-12. For others, the Pharisees laid down rigorous standards that kept people away from God, but they themselves excused many of their own sins, Matthew 23: 13-22. And Jesus goes on. He tells the Pharisees that they were very concerned with small outward details of the law, which Jesus says they should observe, while totally neglecting the more important issues of justice, mercy and faithfulness. In this way, the Pharisees cleaned up their life on the outside appearing to everyone as extremely righteous. The problem was that their life on the inside did not match the outside. Jesus tells them that they need to begin with cleansing the heart and then work outward, Matthew 23: 25-28. If they do that, they will be truly righteous. Jesus' conflict with the Pharisees is interesting from a historical perspective. It is also extremely practical. The things the Pharisees did with the law is the very same thing we can do with the teachings of Christ. Outward obedience is important, but listening to Jesus we know that we need to begin with our hearts.

Heading into Game 4...

Spurs, Sonics battling injuries

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle starting forward Rashard Lewis visited a specialist about his partially dislocated left shoulder Monday and was told to rest it for three weeks.

His bad news came on the same day San Antonio center David Robinson returned to practice, but his strained lower back will still probably keep him out of Game 4 Wednesday night.

Lewis' injury could require surgery, general manager Rick Sund said.

"They've got to wait to see where it's at," Sund said.

The Spurs lead the best-of-five, opening-round series 2-1 after winning 102-75 in Seattle on Saturday.

Lewis, who was the SuperSonics' No. 2 scorer (16.8) and top rebounder (7.0) during the regular season, was injured wrestling for a rebound with the Spurs' Malik Rose in the first minute of the second half of Game 3.

"Three weeks is what they said," Sund said. "If it gets better and if we win this series, they'll look at it. But it's doubtful."

It's unlikely that the 7-foot-1 Robinson, who sat out all of Games 2 and 3, will play in Game 4 in Seattle. But he practiced a little with his team Monday. He didn't do anything strenuous and was gone before reporters were allowed in.

"He's kind of plateaued," Spurs coach Gregg Popovich said. "He hasn't made a lot of progress in the last couple of days. We're not expecting him to play Wednesday."

After the way San Antonio handled the Sonics in Game 3, when Tim Duncan had 27 points and 13 rebounds and 19-year-old Tony Parker scored 23 points on 10-for-15 shooting, the Spurs aren't expected to risk Robinson.

He has played only seven minutes in the series, pulling himself out of Game 1.

But having their popular center back at practice meant a lot to his teammates.

"It did me good to see him out there," Rose said. "He'll be back sometime, it's only a matter of time. He feels better and he wants to get back."

With Lewis all but out for Game 3 with his shoulder injury and a lingering sprained left ankle that has limited him to 12.7 points, 6.0 rebounds and 26.3 minutes in the playoffs, coach Nate McMillan has to come up with a replacement in the starting lineup.

McMillan deferred that Monday because Lewis' likely replacement, rookie Vladimir Radmanovic, has a sprained big toe on his right foot that is still bothering him. Radmanovic played six minutes and scored six points in Game 3.

McMillan held Radmanovic out of most of Monday's scrimmage.

"I definitely expect him to play minutes," McMillan said. "Hopefully, he will be able to provide those minutes whether it's as a starting role or coming off the bench."

The Spurs might not have reserve forward Danny Ferry for Game 4. Ferry is questionable for Wednesday night after spraining his right wrist in Game 3. Ferry visited the doctor on Monday and had the wrist fitted with a brace.

"I think I'd have a hard time playing today," he said. "I need as much time as I can get."

If Game 5 is necessary, it will be played Friday in San Antonio.

Sports Whirl

By SDN Sports Editor Eric Drennan

The postseason for spring sports is kicking into high gear. Here's the pertinent information.

The Snyder Tigers square off with the Pampa Harvesters in a best-of-three bi-district series Friday and Saturday at O'Banion Field in Lubbock. Friday's game starts at 7 p.m., with play resuming at noon Saturday.

The Snyder Lady Tigers compete in the state golf tournament Monday and Tuesday at Roy Kizer Golf Course in Austin.

SHS seniors Wade Pinson (110 hurdles) and Corey Clay (triple jump) compete in the state track meet May 10 at Myers Stadium on the UT campus.

That's the basics. Now, just in case you were wondering...

—The Tigers and Harvesters have met before in the first round. The last time was in 1998.

—This year's Tigers are the second seed with a 22-10-1 record. That year's squad was the second seed with a 23-6 mark.

—Pampa enters Friday's game as the No. 3 seed with a record of 13-16. The 1998 Harvesters were also the No. 3 seed with an 11-17 mark.

—Snyder won the series in two games, 11-2, 3-2, and advanced all the way to the regional semifinals. Maybe the Harvesters are a good omen.

—The Lady Tiger linksters are paired with other regional runners-up for the first round of the state golf tournament. Playing alongside Snyder will be Richardson Pearce, Montgomery "B" and Bastrop.

—Playing together as regional champions will be Andrews, Highland Park, Montgomery "A" and San Antonio Southside.

—Of those teams, six were there last year. Returning are defending champion Montgomery "A" and runner-up Andrews. Highland Park was third last year followed by Snyder. Montgomery "B" was fifth and SA Southside was seventh.

—Teeing off in the 4A boys tournament will be Southlake Carroll, Granbury, Highland Park, Palestine, Brenham, Rosenberg Lamar Consolidated, Austin Lake Travis and San Marcos.

—Wade Pinson's appearance at the state track meet is Snyder's first in the 110-meter high hurdles since Matthew Fambro in 1996.

—Corey Clay makes school history as he is the first SHS male athlete to ever advance to Austin in the triple jump.

—The defending triple jump state champion, Vincent Marshall of Ennis, is back to defend his title along with last year's third-place finisher, Jaimoy Bryant of Jasper.

—The only returner among the field of hurdlers is last year's runner-up, Courtney Jones of Lancaster.

Good luck to all. See you in Austin.

Dr. Gott

By Peter Gott, M.D.

Treatment for aging muscles

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have been diagnosed with sarcopenia. What is this?

DEAR READER: Sarcopenia refers to the universal, involuntary decline in body mass that invariably occurs with age. This loss of body mass — primarily muscle tissue — accompanies the aging process: All of us, sooner or later, get it.

Aside from the obvious consequences, such as weakness and reduction of muscle bulk, sarcopenia leads to problems with the immune system, which depends on muscle tissue to supply protein in order to combat infection and other disorders.

This issue was addressed in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Sept. 12, 2001. Researchers discovered that sarcopenia is not due to inadequate protein synthesis; rather, the condition is related to immunological abnormalities that severely affect the speed with which muscles heal and grow, especially in diabetic patients.

This process may be the direct result of hormonal factors, physical inactivity and diet. Because we have little control over hormonal alterations, doctors urge the elderly to pay more attention to exercise and diet. Thus, they recommend regular physical activity AND a high protein diet. While this strategy will not prevent sarcopenia, it may certainly retard its development and help us oldies to remain healthier and more independent.

A NOTE TO READERS: For an updated and revised Health Report on "Losing Weight" (formerly "Winning the Battle of the Bulge") that includes my No Flour, No Sugar diet send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $2 to Newsletter, P.O. Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092-0167. Be sure to mention the title. Also, be on the lookout for more updated Health Reports.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband and I take Tylenol PM to sleep. This has been going on for years. We typically take about five tablets a week. One doctor says this is OK, another says the medicine could be harmful. What is your view?

DEAR READER: The sleep aid in Tylenol PM is Benadryl, a safe and inexpensive antihistamine that causes sleepiness. I do not believe that your practice will cause any health consequences.

However, if you or your husband is a heavy drinker, the Tylenol itself could, in conjunction with the alcohol, cause liver damage.

Most people who require a mild sleep medication do not need Tylenol, unless their sleep patterns are affected by the pain of arthritis or other medical conditions.

Therefore, I recommend that you consider changing to Benadryl (50 to 100 milligrams at bedtime) as an appropriate solution to your problem. In this way, you'll avoid the potential consequences of Tylenol, but will maintain the benefits of Benadryl.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My family and I frequently enjoy the benefits of a hot tub. This includes my boys, 7 and 3. Because I have heard that hot tubs can cause sterility, I am concerned about my sons. Should I be?

DEAR READER: Hot tubs (over 100 F) can cause deficient sperm production in adults. Because your sons are pre-adolescent, they are not at risk because they do not, as yet, produce sperm. However, I recommend that you modify your hot-tub habits once your sons are sexually mature.

A burned finger should be emersed in cold water for at least several minutes. Cold water will both ease the pain and help prevent scarring. The use of ice should be avoided.

Homeowners sue over contaminated wells

HOUSTON (AP) — Some El Campo residents who claim they can't drink their water because it's contaminated with a possible cancer-causing chemical have sued three companies they say are to blame for the pollution.

The lawsuit, which seeks unspecified damages from the companies, was filed Monday in Wharton County on behalf of 32 residents of the West Hills Addition.

Alcoa, Reynolds Metals Co. and Bon L Campo at various times owned the idle aluminum plant suspected as the source of the contamination, lawyers said.

A common solvent called trichloroethylene was first detected in well water at the beginning of the month. The plant's current owner, Alcoa, has been working with state environmental officials to test wells in the subdivision and has been providing residents with bottled water.

The company also is installing water filters on the more-heavily contaminated wells.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency lists trichloroethylene as a potential human carcinogen and has set a safe drinking water standard for the chemical at five parts per billion.

Thirty-one wells tested positive for trichloroethylene at levels greater than the EPA standard, 12 had levels of between one and five parts per billion and 23 recorded levels of less than one part per billion.

Convicted killer to get life in prison

SEATTLE (AP) — A man convicted in the deaths of 13 people during the city's worst mass killing will not face the death penalty because of the way jury instructions were given during his trial, a judge ruled.

King County Superior Court Judge Laura Inveen's ruling on Monday means Kwan Fai "Willie" Mak will serve out the rest of his life sentence without parole for his role in the 1983 Chinatown Massacre.

Mak, now 41, was convicted of aggravated first-degree murder and sentenced to death after jurors found that he and two other men stormed into the Wah Mee gambling club, where 13 people were hogtied and fatally shot. A judge overturned the sentence in 1991, saying Mak did not receive adequate legal counsel during the sentencing phase of his trial. Ever since, prosecutors have been trying to resentence him.

On Monday, Inveen ruled that jurors were never asked to specify whether aggravating factors in the crime — that it was committed during a robbery and intended to wipe out any witnesses — applied to Mak or only to his two accomplices. As a result, she said, the court has no basis for imposing a death sentence.

5 men arrested in slaying of teen-ager

Police arrested five men Monday in the abduction of the teen-age sweethearts that left Angel dead and her boyfriend, Eddy Nelson Portobanco, beaten and stabbed.

"I don't think I have a future," Margarita Osorio said after learning of her only child's death. "All I want is for my own death to take place. I can't face what's ahead. I'm angry at God and I don't know if I believe in Him anymore."

In 1990, Osorio gave up her job as an accountant to move with her daughter to Miami from Medellin, Colombia, at a time marked by a bloody election campaign and the assassinations of public officials by drug traffickers. The girl's father still lives in Colombia.

"When she was missing I just prayed, 'Give her back to me wounded, give her back to me raped, but just give her back to me alive,'" Osorio said.

Angel's body was found Monday, tossed into the bushes along Interstate 95 near Boca Raton. Police would not say how she was killed but said information obtained from the suspects, arrested in the Orlando area, led them to the body.

Police did not say whether there was any evidence of sexual assault or whether any of the men had confessed to the attack.

"This poor girl was unfortunately in the wrong place at the wrong time with her boyfriend," said Michael Mann, an investigator with the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

Family members said the teens were celebrating five months of dating Saturday with a special dinner at a restaurant along Biscayne Bay and a stroll along South Beach. The couple had spent the previous weekend at a party at Walt Disney World in Orlando.

Police said the five armed men forced the 18-year-olds into a white Ford pickup truck and sped off. Portobanco was dumped along Interstate 95 in suburban Fort Lauderdale, only a few miles from where his girlfriend's body was later found.

Portobanco flagged down a passing motorist and was taken to a hospital where he was treated and released.

"Physically he is getting better little by little," said the boy's uncle, Carlos Portobanco. "It's going to be slow."

The suspects, all from the Orlando area, were identified as Cesar Antonio Mena, 22; Joel G. Lebron, 23; Victor Manuel Caraballo, 34; and his younger brother, Hector Manuel Caraballo, 29. A 16-year-old boy also was arrested, but police said they would not release his identity unless he was charged as an adult.

Astro-graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Wednesday, May 1, 2002

In the year ahead, do all that you can to increase your knowledge in your present field of endeavor. You'll be rewarded in multiple ways if you capitalize on your opportunities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — It would be wise to sit on any initial decision you make involving an important matter. After a hard second look, you could see things in a new light. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your Zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You may think it is more beneficial to go it alone, but after much coercion by others to join their endeavor, you'll discover that they offer the greatest rewards at this time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — If something seems dubious, do nothing until everything becomes clear to you — which it will, if you give things enough time to materialize.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Even though you might be a slow starter, this could eventually turn into a rather rewarding day. The important thing is not to drag your feet for too long.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You might start out with little inspiration, but chances are that a provocative companion will come along and light a fire under you. He or she will send you in the right direction.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — It's possible to achieve your desired results, but you might have to take a different route than you first thought. Have an alternative plan ready.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — You may have a good concept or idea, but that doesn't mean it can't be improved upon. Listen to the input of others — chances are that they can make improvements.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — When shopping for an expensive piece of merchandise, don't settle for the first one you see. There is a better deal out there if you look around a bit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — When dealing with an opinionated companion, have your guard up and don't allow him/her to impose views on you in which you know aren't productive. Keep your own counsel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Even with good intentions, it will be unwise to take it upon yourself to help another when you haven't been asked. Put your good deeds temporarily on the back burner.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Overindulging either financially or physically is always bad. One will give you a pain in the purse, the other a pain in the tummy. Have fun, but take things in moderation.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Although you may get a late start, your awareness will sharpen as time ticks on. So, you could still end up making some favorable gains.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

One poem inspires another from bedtime story lover

DEAR ABBY: I was inspired by the "Old-Timer's Bedtime" poem about the elderly couple who slept in their birthday suits. It inspired me to share what happened to me:

The poem about the couple
Sleeping in the nude
Was really quite revealing
And it put me in the mood.

I talked about it to my wife
And we tried it, bit by bit —
But with "branches entwined," we quickly saw
Our legs just didn't fit.

And then what happened, Abby,
Is something that we all dread —
Our branches got so tangled
That we fell right out of bed!

— VIC MABRY, LAKE HAVASU CITY, ARIZ.

DEAR VIC:

I don't doubt for a minute
What you've said to me is true —
I only hope the two of you weren't bruised all black and blue.

I offer this advice to you —
And take it, please, I plead.
To you and your beloved —
Don't try everything you read!

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law has two family pictures of my husband and his ex-wife hanging on their living room wall. We have been married for nearly three years and have a 2-year-old daughter. She is starting to look at the pictures. We would prefer that she not find out by looking at pictures that her father was married before. (There were no children from the previous marriage.)

I told my husband that I would like the photos to come down. He agrees, but his family doesn't deal well with "family dynamics." He still has not told his parents how I feel about the photos, and we are scheduled to visit them again next month. I trust your advice. — LOOKING FOR HELP IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR LOOKING FOR HELP: Pick up the phone and explain to your in-laws that your young daughter is old enough to notice her father with another woman in the photos — but too young to understand prior marriages. That's a reasonable explanation to justify your request that the pictures be taken down — at least when you're visiting.

**

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of the bride and I just made a whopper of a mistake. When we were planning the wedding, the groom's parents gave me an "A" and a "B" guest list. After budgeting carefully, we realized we could only afford to invite guests on the "A" list. Unfortunately, I mistakenly sent "save the date" cards to everyone on the "B" list.

Is there any way I can undo the damage I've done? I feel terrible about it. — GUILTY MOTHER OF THE BRIDE IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR GUILTY M-O-B: There is no graceful way to "take back" the implied invitations without offending people. Either take out a loan or downsize the reception to accommodate everyone.

Mother pleads for safe return of son

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The mother of a missing 2-year-old boy appealed for his safe return today, five days after he vanished in Balboa Park. His stepfather said he had left the boy alone for about 15 minutes to get a soda.

"I just want them to drop him off in a safe place so that someone can find him and bring him back home and to let him know that we love him and want him to come back," Tameka Jones said on NBC's "Today" show.

Jahi Turner disappeared Thursday. Police, sheriff's deputies and volunteers searched for him in the canyons and neighborhoods around the park, one of the nation's largest cultural and entertainment complexes, with 15 museums and the San Diego Zoo.

"He's just the sweetest little boy that you could ever see," said Jones, an 18-year-old sailor who was aboard the USS Rushmore when her son disappeared. She was brought home by the Navy to help with the investigation.

Jahi's stepfather, Tieray Jones, 23, told police he left the boy alone in a playground for about 15 minutes while he went to get a soda about 150 yards away.

On Monday, police located a woman who the stepfather said was in the area just before Jahi disappeared. She was cooperating with authorities and was not considered a suspect, Saldamando said. Authorities did not disclose what she told investigators.

Israel won't cooperate with U.N. team

JERUSALEM (AP) — A defiant Israel decided today to block a U.N. inquiry into the fighting at the Jenin refuge camp, while 26 Palestinian civilians and policemen emerged from the besieged Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem.

It was the largest number to exit the Bethlehem compound since a standoff between Israeli troops and armed Palestinians began nearly a month ago, but the core dispute over the fate of two dozen wanted gunmen remained unresolved.

In Hebron, columns of armored vehicles rumbled out of the Palestinian city after a two-day incursion during which nine Palestinians were killed and about 250 arrested, including 40 wanted men, the Israeli military said.

At Yasser Arafat's headquarters in the West Bank town of Ramallah, there was no sign that his confinement by Israel was over, despite such assertions by Israel's defense minister Monday. Tanks ringed the Palestinian leader's compound, and troops enforced a curfew in the adjoining neighborhood.

In Jerusalem, Israel's security Cabinet decided not to cooperate with a U.N. inquiry into events at the Jenin camp until six Israeli demands had been met regarding the mandate and composition of the team.

Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said today he doubted the United Nations would agree to the Israeli conditions and expressed concern that it would now impose the inquiry on Israel. "I think the immediate danger is that the Security Council will decide to establish this committee without taking into account Israel's opinion," Peres told Israel Army Radio.

Peres said he did not expect the United States to veto such a step, since Washington supports the inquiry in principle. Israeli officials had said Monday they expected U.S. support in a showdown with the United Nations in exchange for Israel's agreement to release Arafat from confinement. However, Peres denied the United States ever held out such a promise.

Israel initially agreed to the formation of the fact-finding team, but then raised a number of concerns. Israel wants a say over who can be called as a witness and what documents will be presented to the panel, and insists that Israeli soldiers be protected from prosecution. Israel wants more counterterrorism experts to be added to the group, and demands that activities by Palestinian militants in the camp also be scrutinized.

Sen. Robert Byrd chides Bush...

Ridge should have attended domestic security hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert Byrd chastised the Bush administration today for refusing to let Homeland Security Director Tom Ridge testify to Congress, saying the decision was denying the country a full picture of the White House anti-terrorism strategy.

"The real losers are the American people whose lives this government is trying to protect," Byrd, D-W.Va., said as the Senate Appropriations Committee that he chairs began hearing from three Cabinet secretaries on their plans for thwarting terror.

"They are not being told the whole strategy," Byrd said. "The Congress and the American people are forced to learn about the administration's homeland security efforts in piecemeal, patchwork fashion."

Despite weeks of pressure by Byrd, Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, and other lawmakers of both parties, the administration has refused to let Ridge meet formally with congressional committees.

The White House has argued that Ridge need not appear because he is an adviser to the president, not a policy-maker confirmed by the Senate. Byrd and others have argued that Congress has a right to hear from administration officials on such crucial issues as deciding how to shape the government's budget for battling terrorists.

"I've made no threats, I've made no partisan statements," Byrd said. "I simply can't understand the arrogance on the part of an administration that will not assist Congress. .... We need Mr. Ridge."

Body of flood victim found near Albany

The body of 19-year-old Holly Sargent was found in debris in a creek bed around 10 this morning, about one mile south of Albany.

The Albany resident was swept away in a mobile home last Thursday as North Hubbard Creek flooded following heavy rains in Shackelford County.

A Texas Department of Criminal Justice correctional officer located the girl's body in a pile of debris under a bridge on Highway 6.

The correctional officer was on the scene due to inmates from the Sayle, Robertson and Middleton units being used to help clear debris from the flooding.

Man arrested for marijuana

• Arrests

Snyder officers arrested a 21-year-old man at 3:30 a.m. today in the 2600 block of Ave. K for possession of marijuana, under two ounces.

• Burglary

At 11:55 p.m. Monday, Salvador Luna reported the theft of a television and VCR from his home. The screen on a window had been cut and an offense report for burglary of a residence was submitted.

• Fight

Officers responded to a 9-1-1 call Monday evening reporting a fight in the 900 block of 30th Street. Contact was made with two subjects who advised a verbal disagreement had taken place and there was not a fight.

Obituaries

Dorothy Aishman

1926-2002

SAN ANGELO – Dorothy Anne Aishman, a former nurse at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, died Sunday, April 28, after a long battle with cancer.

Graveside service for Mrs. Aishman, 75, is set for 2 p.m. Wednesday in Restland Cemetery in Iraan. Arrangements are under the direction of Johnson's Funeral Home.

Born Aug. 2, 1926 in Caddo, she moved with her family to Iraan in 1928. She graduated from Iraan High School in 1953 and from the Shannon Hospital School of Nursing in San Angelo in 1946.

She married Will Edward Aishman on March 7, 1947 in Iraan. She was a registered nurse at Iraan General Hospital from the early 1960s until 1976 when she joined the nursing staff at Cogdell Hospital in Snyder. Mrs. Aishman retired in 1980 and was a member of the First United Methodist Church.

Survivors include her husband, Will Aishman of San Angelo; three sons, Tommy Aishman of Houston, Ed Aishman of Iraan and Rick Aishman of Dallas; and two grandsons.

Jack Tyree
