Santa To Be In Town Saturday

Santa Claus will reach Wellington Saturday, Dec. 6, at 2 p.m. to spend part of the afternoon with children of this area.

All youngsters are urged to bring their parents to town so they can tell their secret wishes to Santa and their parents can shop.

Bill Hatch, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Christmas committee, announced plans.

Santa Claus will spend about an hour in downtown Wellington. He will walk around the square, where he will greet the children and they can tell him what to bring for Christmas. He will also go into the stores and visit with youngsters who may be there.

His sack will be packed with candy.

Christmas decorations went up around the court house square and along Highway US 83 with City of Wellington employees and West Texas Utilities Company employees doing the work.

The Chamber of Commerce is encouraging all businesses and residents to decorate their stores and homes.

The best decorated business will receive the traveling plaque and the most attractively decorated home will receive a prize of $25 in script.

A secret committee will make the selections and announce them Dec. 21.

More than at any time in several years, people are being urged to do their Christmas shopping with Wellington stores, who have filled their shelves with attractive merchandise.

On Sunday, Dec. 21, a number of Wellington merchants will remain open for Christmas buyers. The choice is up to the merchant.

On that afternoon tentative plans are being made for the Cub Scouts to go caroling in downtown Wellington.

SANTA CLAUS IS COMING TO TOWN!

This gentleman was seen north of Wellington Tuesday afternoon. He told the Leader photographer he would be around the square at 2:00 p.m. Saturday. He plans to rest for a while at an undisclosed hideaway before coming into town.

Samnorwood Men Plant for Neighbor

Mr. Breeding, of the Lone Mound community, is ill and members of his family must be with him.

These friends brought tractors and plows and drills, and at the end of the day they had planted about 200 acres of wheat.

Mr . Breeding is a life-long resident of the north part of the county, and he has helped many of his own neighbors with crops when

by Bobo Castleberry

If a friend borrows your car to do an errand, are you covered? If you drive your neighbor's station wagon to pick up a large purchase, and scrape a fender, will your insurance pay?

Generally, your auto insurance will cover your car, whoever is driving it. However, it's advisable that the friend who borrows your car has coverage of her own, in case there's a serious accident with claims that exceed your coverage.

Similarly, if you borrow a friend's vehicle, your policy will usually cover any scrapes.

There are some exceptions. If you lend your car to a friend who is intoxicated, or otherwise incompetent, you may be considered negligent, and therefore liable.

And if your friend borrows your car frequently, and becomes a regular driver of your vehicle, that person should be added to your auto policy, or your coverage may be compromised.

Questions about your auto policy? Ask the insurance experts at...

Melvin Cardwell, president of the Board of Directors, has indicated that although the response through contributions of food and clothing has been good; more is needed. Some food items are still in short supply such as corn meal, margarine, bread, shampoo, laundry detergent, and toilet tissue. There is also a need for cash contributions to help with the expenses of getting the service started. Persons in our county are encouraged to consider remembering COS as you make your plans for end-of-year giving. Small gifts add up when many people are involved.

Monetary gifts may be made through an individuals church or directly at the COS office on Thursdays or to one of the co-directors.

MIGRANT EDUCATION—

gram is less well known than some of the other federally funded programs, Dr. Ward explained the program as it relates to Wellington and other schools where it is found:

"The Congress created the Migrant Education Program in 1966 to meet the special educational needs of children who move with a parent or guardian who is seeking temporary or seasonal work in agriculture, fishing or timber industries. There are hundreds of thousands of eligible children nationwide, but we, in Texas, have been missing the opportunity to serve many of these eligible children and are hurting the funding sources available to local school districts, Dr. Ward explained.

"Funds are allocated to each state and then to local school districts on the basis of the number of identified and enrolled migrant students pre-school through 12th grade. Once identified as a migrant student, the child is eligible for services for six years from the date of an eligible move.

The Migrant Education Program provides supplemental instructional services based on individual needs; supportive health services including screening and corrective measures; assistance for high school students in transferring credits so that they may graduate; and the more rapid transfer of educational, health and social service information from school to school as well as from state to state.

Without education, many migrant children find little opportunity to break out of the migratory labor pattern of their parents. The Migrant Education Program provides that opportunity to earn an education, to improve the present quality of life, and give them choices and hope for a brighter future. This brighter future is one all Texans will share in.

Those wanting more information should contact Mrs. Davis at Wellington Elementary School.

Jet travel may not be so modern after all. In fact, that jet propulsion has been used by squid for millions of years. While jet airplanes take air in and blast it out the back, the squid uses water power the same way to make fast getaways.

It may pay to be low on the social ladder if you are an Alaskan Dall's sheep. Male Alaskan mountain sheep who expend their energy on breeding and belligerence to gain high social standing in the summer, are often left weakened and vulnerable for the bitter winter. This prompted one biologist to say, "It must pay to be a nerd in (Dall's) sheep society."

Make sure paper ornaments and tinsel do not touch light bulbs. Also, never adjust outdoor or tree lights while they are turned on or connected to a power circuit.

Always use a wooden ladder or a metal one with rubber-tipped legs when installing outdoor lights. Be sure to stand on a dry surface.

Watch for the U.L. seal of approval.

Only buy lights that have been checked for safety. The Underwriter's Laboratory's seal of approval is your guarantee that lights and wiring have been properly safety checked.

Make sure you don't overload circuits.

Avoid overloading electrical wiring by using more than one circuit for your tree lights. Use heavy-duty extension cords to run to other circuits.

Collingsworth County Agent Report

by Don Reeves

"Farm and City: Partners in Progress" was the theme of this year's Farm-City Week November 21-27.

Purpose of the observance was to focus on the teamwork of farm and city people as partners in the growing, processing, marketing and consumption of food and fiber.

In other words, Farm-City Week was aimed at promoting better understanding between farm and city people and increasing the knowledge and appreciation of each for the American way of life.

Farm-City Week was under the direction of the National Farm-City Council, Inc., which was coordinated by Kiwanis International.

Agricultural production, marketing and processing provides jobs and income for about a fourth of the working force in Texas.

One out of every 35 Texans is a farmer or rancher, and about 25 percent of the state's retail trade business is directly associated with agricultural production and selling of food and fiber products.

Total farm assets in Texas are estimated at $98 billion. With 160,000 farms in Texas, assets average about $600,000 dollars per farm. Many commercial size, full-time opperators, have much more than a million dollars invested in their farm or ranch business.

Texas ranks in second place in total cash receipts among the leading agricultural states, surpassed only by California. Texas, however, is traditionally number one in the sales of cattle and calves, cotton, grain sorghum, sheep and wool, goats and mohair, cabbage and spinach.

One farm worker today provides food and fiber for more than 80 people. He also creates jobs for more than five nonfarm people who produce the things farmers need and who process, transport and merchandise the crops farmers harvest.

American agriculture is the world's largest commercial industry with assets exceeding $1 trillion. This industry employs nearly 23 million people, a full 22 percent of America's total labor force. The agricultural industry encompasses manufacturing, farming, transportation, processing and merchandising.

Farm and city people make the best food and fiber team in the world and give this country the capacity to feed its own people and to export for economic gain as well as for humanitarian purposes.

Watch out America's Cup hopefuls--the Australians may have a secret weapon--kangaroos! While kangaroos have long been regarded as "natural athletes" for their leaping and boxing abilities, they are also great swimmers. Kangaroos have been spotted swimming across the rivers and even in the ocean! A "roo" swims with its head and back above water, pumping its strong hind legs one at a time. So that's what those Aussies have under their yacht this year!

Sandhill Crane Hunting Permits Still Required

AUSTIN - Free federal sandhill crane permits again will be required of all persons hunting sandhill cranes during the upcoming hunting season.

In some years, sandhill cranes come in large numbers to Collingsworth County, in other years there are only a few.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials said the permits may be obtained by writing department headquarters or one of seven other locations. Requestors should include the name, address (including zip code) for each individual planning to hunt. Two weeks should be allowed for processing.

The sandhill crane season opens Nov. 8 in Zone A, Nov. 29 in Zone B and Jan. 3 in Zone C. The season closes Feb. 8 in all zones.

After the hunting season, a sample of the permittees will be contacted through questionnaires to obtain data about the crane harvest.

The permits may be obtained in this area by writing any of the following locations:

TPWD Headquarters, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, TX 78744.

TPWD Regional Office, P.O. Box 3369, Lubbock, TX 79452.

Low Fat Dairy Products Mean Fewer Calories

COLLEGE STATION - If you're already drinking skim milk to cut calories, you can save even more by cooking with other low-fat dairy products.

"Yogurt can be substituted in just about any dish that calls for sour cream," says Dr. Alice Hunt, a nutritionist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

It works well in cold dips, or to stretch mayonnaise-based dressing in cole slaw, tuna and potato salads.

In cooked foods, yogurt tends to separate and become watery, she says. But this can be avoided by whisking some flour into the yogurt before cooking, or adding the yogurt to cooked foods after removing them from the heat.

By using a cup of plain low-fat yogurt for a cup of sour cream you save 375 calories, the nutritionist notes.

Imitation sour cream can be made by blending low-fat cottage cheese along with several tablespoons of skim milk or yogurt until smooth. This mixture is suitable for dips or dessert recipes.

Cottage cheese also makes a good substitute for ricotta cheese and sour cream in casseroles, Hunt says. Using 1 cup of low-fat cottage cheese for an equal amount of whole-milk ricotta, saves 250 calories. Replacing the ricotta with regular cottage cheese still cuts 190 calories.

Low-fat ricotta cheese has less fat and fewer calories than regular ricotta, but is still higher in both than regular or low-fat cottage cheese, she adds.

For sauces, casseroles and omelettes, Hunt suggests low-fat processed cheeses. In addition to American cheese, low-fat versions of Swiss and Monterey Jack are now available.

Using 1 ounce of low-fat processed cheese for an ounce of cheddar cheese saves 60 calories. However, the nutritionist cautions people on low-sodium diets to avoid processed cheese, since it is high in sodium.

"By substituting low for high-fat dairy products, dieters can get the nutrients and calcium they need without adding extra calories," she concludes.

Choose Right Kind of Fire Extinguishers

COLLEGE STATION--A fire extinguisher may not add much to the decor, but could keep your kitchen--or the whole house--from going up in flames.

The combination of heat and flammables, such as grease, make the kitchen a prime location for fire hazards, says Dr. Peggy Owens, a housing specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

She says that small fires in pots on the stove can be extinguished simply by replacing the lid to cut off the oxygen supply. Baking soda poured from the box will also put out small fires.

But a home fire extinguisher is still the best insurance against the spread of a small fire into something that could threaten the entire house, remarks Owens.

According to the specialist, a small carbon dioxide extinguisher is ideal for small kitchen fires because it sprays a fog which smothers the fire and evaporates without making a mess.

Next best is one containing a dry chemical, which also will deny grease fires the oxygen needed to burn, but will require cleanup of the spray powder afterward.

Both types of extinguishers are superior to using water or an extinguisher with a water-base agent as the fire-fighting material.

"Spraying or throwing water on grease or electrical appliances is very dangerous," says Owens, "since water causes the grease to spatter and spread."

Putting water on electrical equipment not only creates the risk of shock, but can also short out the appliance and ruin its future usefulness, she adds.

Once you have a kitchen fire extinguisher, study the directions so you know how to use it. Periodically check the expiration date to make use the contents are still good.

Also check to see if the fire extinguisher must be discarded after use or can be refilled. Then place the extinguisher in a kitchen location away from the stove area so you can get to it in an emergency, advises the specialist.

The Record Shows.
Safety in the natural gas industry is excellent. And, Lone Star Gas assures safe operations through its monitoring, inspection and maintenance programs. Safety is also a priority consideration in the design and construction of its pipeline and facilities.
Another safety step is the harmless chemical Lone Star adds to natural gas to give it a distinct odor. It's this odor and knowing what to do when you detect it that helps keep gas safe.

The Nose Knows.
If you're outdoors and smell gas, you should call your local Lone Star Gas office.
If you're indoors and detect faint whiffs, check to see if a pilot light has gone out or a burner valve has been left partially open. These are corrective steps you can take yourself.
If your equipment is working properly and you still smell gas, please follow these precautions:
1. Don't switch anything electrical on or off. Don't strike a match or do anything that could cause a spark.
2. Have everyone leave immediately, leaving door open to help ventilate.
3. Go to a nearby phone and call Lone Star.
Another precaution: Before you do any digging, call your local Lone Star Gas office so we can inform you on pipe locations.
Help us keep natural gas one of the safest energies available. Use your nose. Then use your head... and follow the proper precautions.

While Nora Drake is in South Texas for Thanksgiving and some other fun festivities, her Collingsworth County Historical museum column will have a substitute writer.

Guest speakers at the annual meeting recently were the knowledgeable and delightful Judy Hope and A.V. McFarland of the Childress Heritage Museum.

Mr. McFarland said the first time he visited the Collingsworth County Historical Museum was in 1975, when Clyde and Nora Drake showed him what was being done here.

This time he and Mrs. Hope returned to give us lessons on how they handle one phase of the Childress Museum--gifts or loans of items.

First, they told us, be certain if the item brought in to you is a gift or a loan. You don't want to have to clear up that some years down the way, possibly with someone other than the person who brought it in.

If it is a gift, an agreement should be signed.

Then, get as much history as you can about this artifact. Have a history card for the purpose.

Some small unobtrusive items carry with them a great deal of history about a person, family or county.

"Accession" is a major word in museum language. Accession begins when the item comes in the door of the museum, and has to do with recording and indexing and cross indexing every artifact received. For a good many years, Nora has urged that every item in our museum be accessed.

Those who do this work need training under professionals or knowledgable volunteers, and this Childress couple has volunteered to assist the Wellington group when they are needed.

One set of records should be on cards, another set in a bound register--then a sheet or sheets will not be lost. One complete set of records should be kept in a vault so that neither fire nor cyclone can destroy them. Mrs. Hope and Mr. McFarland had much of their own training from the Square House Museum at Panhandle and a museum in Ft. Worth.

When all these records have been completed, the artifact should be placed in its own container in a basement or storage area set aside for that purpose.

The speakers also recommended that an inventory of the entire contents of the museum should be made every 10 years.

The visitors told of a dilemma that arose when it was discovered that there were more than 900 items in the Childress museum basement that had no identification whatsoever.

Identifying these, if they can be identified, is a work of many months.

Nora can sympathize. She has had gifts to the museum, with nothing to identify them, left in her car when she was away from it, and several years ago, she returned from an out-of-town trip to find a large antique folding bed, a beautiful piece of furniture, that had been left on the museum porch.

Fortunately, it was identified.

Mrs. Hope is the paid employee of the Childress Heritage Museum, and Mr. McFarland, who is retired from his profession, is the devoted full-time volunteer.

And remember, they will meet with us to help us along.

SHIPPING HOLIDAY TREATS

With the holiday season in our midst, many of you may have loveu ones across the miles that you wish to share holiday goodies with. To prevent damage during shipping, here are some helpful pointers:

-Soft, moist cookies travel best. Avoid sending fragile cookies such as sugar or gingersnaps. Sturdy cookies (bar, brownie, drop) are less likely to be damaged.

-Cookies with fillings and frostings become moist at room temperature. These will become stickey.

-When packing, use a sturdy cardboard box or metal container. For lining, avoid popcorn or puffed cereal, as this attracts insects. Use layers of waxed paper, foil or plastic wrap. On the bottom layer, use crumpled newspaper.

-Proper packing insures extra protection. Using plastic wrap or foil, individually wrap each cookie (or back to back). Place in snug rows, leaving little room for movement. Place a cushion between each layer (paper towels, crumpled newspaper...)

-As long as cushioning is in the box, bar cookies may be mailed in the metal container.

-Finally, tape the box securely shut. Wrap in mailing paper and write "Fragile, Handle With Care" on both sides of the box.

STRAIGHT TALK... about funeral homes.

When it comes to selecting a funeral home, what determines a good firm from a poor one?

In reality, facilities and equipment at funeral homes are generally similar. All are quite good and can appear to be professional.

But what determines the "actual" quality of a funeral home is the service, merchandise, and prices they offer.

That's why we have always encouraged the families we serve to compare what we have to what others offer. We feel this is to our advantage because, only then will families feel certain our funeral home provides the highest quality services, at the most reasonable prices.

THE AMBITIOUS POLITICIANS

One of the many sidelights in the current Iranian Arms Crisis is the scramble for committees in both Houses to interview the participants and come up with the right answers.

The ambitious congressmen and senators...almost everyone is wanting to get its committee to undertake the question and answer discussions.

Aside from much duplication (which means more tax dollars down the drain) the correct solution, it would seem, is to appoint a special prosecutor and one committee to do the work, much like the special group for the Watergate scandal.

The Republicans want a special session because they are still in control of the Senate. The Democrats, who will take over the reins in the Senate in January, want to wait when they will chair the committees.

The politics continue in Washington, D.C. and President Reagan can't help but be on center stage for this one.

The Democrats finally have something on the President and his administration and they won't let up until a lot of dollars are spent and what they hope, the truth will be aired.

Some of the Democrats even sense another Watergate.

This President is too smart for that. He will appoint a special prosecutor, take the inquiry out of the Attorney General's hands and proceed with the business at hand.

But the effect the scandal will have on foreign relations is the real key to this scenario. Our allies are stunned. The biggest majority of Americans are stunned.

America has lost ground in its quest for more respect in the world.

Texas View

LUBBOCK - When it comes to dealing with the state's budget problem, Texans feel strongest about state spending -- cut it -- and a state income tax -- forget it.

Those are the findings of a survey conducted by the Institute for Communications Research (ICR) at Texas Tech University. Survey participants were given six options for dealing with the state's fiscal problems and more than 75 percent favored cutting state spending and opposed instituting a state income tax.

Other fiscal options put to the 387 Texas residents in a mail and telephone survey during September and October included cutting college and university spending, increasing sales taxes, instituting a state lottery and initiating legal parimutel betting.

Participants were given the fiscal options and asked how strongly they agreed or disagreed with them "in order to reduce the state's budget problem."

Of the respondents, 75.3 percent favored cutting state spending. Of those, 50 percent agreed with the option and 25.3 percent strongly agreed. Only 14 percent did not favor state spending cuts while 10.7 percent of those surveyed were unsure.

Though persons making above $20,000 a year were more than twice as likely as persons earning less to favor a cut in state government spending, persons in all income categories approved a spending reduction.

Males and females favored spending cuts in comparable percentages. And, comparison of responses by education level, age and length of residency in Texas shows across the board support for spending reductions.

Initiating a state income tax was frowned on by 75.3 percent of the respondents with 38.2 percent strongly disagreeing and 37.1 percent disagreeing it was a viable option. Only 12.8 percent favored a state income tax while 11.9 percent remained unsure.

While most respondents opposed a state income tax, the older they were, the wealtheir they were or the longer they had resided in Texas, the more opposed they were to initiating the tax.

The survey's closest division of opinion was over increasing the state sales tax. On the issue 45.7 percent of the participants agreed it should be increased while 45 percent disagreed with the option. Another 9.2 percent remained unsure.

Responses to increasing the sales tax broke down by age with 26.7 percent of those 45 and under opposing it, compared to only 18.7 percent approving. By contrast, 27.2 percent of those 46 and over favored increasing the sales tax, compared to 18.4 percent opposing.

Though participants in the survey favored cutting state spending, they generally felt those cuts should not come at the expense of the state's colleges and universities. Only 17.5 percent of the respondents favored college and university cuts. By contrast, 69 percent were against cuts in higher education. Unsure responses came from 13.5 percent of the participants on the option.

The greater the income, the more likely respondents opposed cutting college spending. Female respondents were more likely to oppose college spending reductions than male survey participants.

On issues related to gambling, about two-thirds of the participants approved or revenues generated by those methods. Some 66.6 percent favored a state lottery and a slightly smaller number, 62.7 percent, liked parimutuel betting to generate funds. Only 21.9 percent of those questioned opposed a lottery and 28.2 percent opposed horse race betting as a way to reduce the state's budget problem.

Men favored the gambling issues more than women. Instituting a lottery drew favorably responses from 70.9 percent of the men and 63.2 percent of the women. Horse betting was favored by 68.2 perent of the men and 58.2 percent of the women.

Survey results were announced by ICR Director H.J. Hsia. The survey had a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percent.

Letters From The People

Dear Mr. Constabile,

I know that times are hard in our county and city, but I was surprised to read in the 11-27-86 Leader that the candles on the utility poles along Hwy 83 will not be lighted this year. I'm sure lots of children as well as adults will be disappointed by this. I know that lots of families enjoy driving around town at night during the holidays and enjoy seeing our town decorated for the season.

I would be interested to know what it would cost to get the bulbs for the candles and if a fund could be set up for individual donations in time for this year.

I would be willing to pledge $25.00 toward this fund and I bet a lot of other people would too. I think this would be a good time for everyone to show their civic pride.

Sincerely yours,
Norman Miller

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—During the last weeks of the campaign, Mark White often warned black voters that Bill Clements would effectively do away with two black colleges by merging them with other schools.

Now it appears that White's people are pushing ahead with a program they accused Clements of hiding, and it promises to become one of the key irritants during the next session of the Legislature, and one that could wind up before the Supreme Court if the battle is waged hard enough.

Larry Temple, chairman of the Select Committee on Higher Education and appointed by Mark White, last week recommended three university mergers to save state dollars.

Temple wants to merge Texas Southern University with the University of Houston system, Texas Woman's University with North Texas State University in Denton, and Corpus Christi State University with Texas A&I in Kingsville.

Already, members of the Black Caucus are circling the wagons to defend predominately black Texas Southern, a school created in 1947 under the old "separate-but-equal" doctrine.

Panel Divided

Temple waited until after the election, but he may not have the votes on the panel, which will grapple with his plan this week.

The plan is opposed by TWU. Some black officials who want to protect TSU's heritage are also fearful that someone is waiting in the wings with a plan to integrate Prairie View A&M, their other predominately black state college, deeper into the Texas A&M University System.

Temple may have an ally in powerful state Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, because she has tentatively pointed out some of the benefits the merger may bring.

Fund The Promise?

Delco, who chairs the House Higher Education Committee and is considered the most powerful black on that side of the Capitol, said the merger could enhance TSU's role in urban education.

But she wants the Legislature to come up with the bucks to fund the promises that come with a merger.

Delco knows that for years other legislators have tried to close TSU on the grounds it perpetuates segregation, and they will try again.

She defends Texas Southern and Prairie View as no more racist than The University of Texas and Texas A&M.

The possibility exists that in the next battle for college appropriations, the two schools could fare poorly and might be better off funding-wise if the mergers occur.

Other Highlights

• Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox filed a lawsuit last week to stop the U.S. Forest Service from tree-crushing a 2,600-acre portion of national forest near Huntsville.

The feds plan to burn the pine-beetle infested area with a napalm-like gel and replant with pine trees.

Mattox said that would destroy the unique plant and animal life there.

• Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro disputes a recent court ruling in the lawsuit involving Mobil Oil Co. and South Texas oil leases. He may go to the Texas Supreme Court with it.

The appellate court gives $2 million to Exxon Corp. and rancher Clinton Manges instead of the state Permanent School Fund.

Mauro and Mattox also plan to retrieve millions in oil royalties from investors who failed to pay the state its share.

• Supreme Court Chief Justice John Hill said a poll of the state's lawyers and judges shows they favor repealing the present system of electing judges along political party lines, but do not demonstrate support for an appointment system favored by Hill.

• Governor-elect Bill Clements named Reggie Bashur to be his press secretary and James Huffines to be appointments secretary.

• Texas unemployment jumped to 9.5 percent in October, while the national rate remained stable at 7 percent.

• Outgoing Gov. Mark White lifted his hiring freeze of state employees. His office said the paperwork could be best handled by state agencies; his critics charged the action was taken so his staff could find other jobs.

• State Comptroller Bob Bullock told a taxpayers group that broadening the sales tax base and lowering the rate is the only good alternative to a state income tax for new revenues to resolve the deficit.

Social Security Benefits

Social Security benefits brought Collingsworth County income of $386,000 per month ending Dec. 21, 1985, according to Larry Mayo, branch manager of the Pampa office of the Social Security Administration.

Collingsworth had a total of 1,101 recipients for the 1985 year, and this was up from 1,044 for the 1984 year.

Income from social security paid in Collingsworth for 1985 totaled $4,632,000.

The figures for other counties included:

Carson: 1,129 beneficiaries; $523,000 per month income, with 523 beneficiaries at the end of 1984.

Gray: 4,996, $2,361,000 income per year; and with 4,983 beneficiaries in 1984.

Hansford: 837 recipients, $375,000 income per month. Recipients were up slightly from 824 in 1984.

Hemphill: 517 recipients, $234,000 income per month. Like the other counties, there was little change in the number of recipients, 526 in 1984.

Hutchinson: 4,792 recipients in 1985; $2,266,000 income. This county showed an increase in the number of recipients, from 4,582 in 1984.

Lipscomb County: 625 recipients in 1985; $255,000 per income per month) 643 recipients in 1984.

Ochiltree: 1,118 recipients, $510,000 income per month; 1,081 recipients in 1984.

Roberts County: 163 recipients; $70,000 income per month) 165 recipients in 1984.

Wheeler: 1,675 recipients; $649,000 income per month; 1694 recipients in 1984.

Total: 16,895 recipients in 1985; $7,529,000 income per month; recipients in 1984, 16,616.

From December 1984 to December 1985, the nation went from 36,478,710 beneficiaries to 37,058,345 beneficiaries. This was a 1.6% increase.

Landscape Water Conservation Studied

COLLEGE STATION - Xeriscaping is a nationwide concept that focuses on landscape water conservation, and a special conference on that topic will be held at the Marriott North in San Antonio, Nov. 6-7.

"Xeriscape offers a sensible approach to conserving water in the landscape," points out Doug Welsh, Bexar County horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, who is involved in planning the conference. "Water conservation is of utmost importance because of the burden being placed on Texas water resources in recent years due to population and industry growth."

According to Welsh, the upcoming conference will examine the xeriscape concept as it applies to Texas, with discussions of exciting technological advances in water conserving products, plants and techniques.

Among issues addressed will be landscape design, soils and mulches, plant selection, irrigation and water management.

"Xeriscape is truly an interdisciplinary approach to landscape water conservation in that it employs the plantsman, the irrigator, the designer and the soils expert," says Welsh.

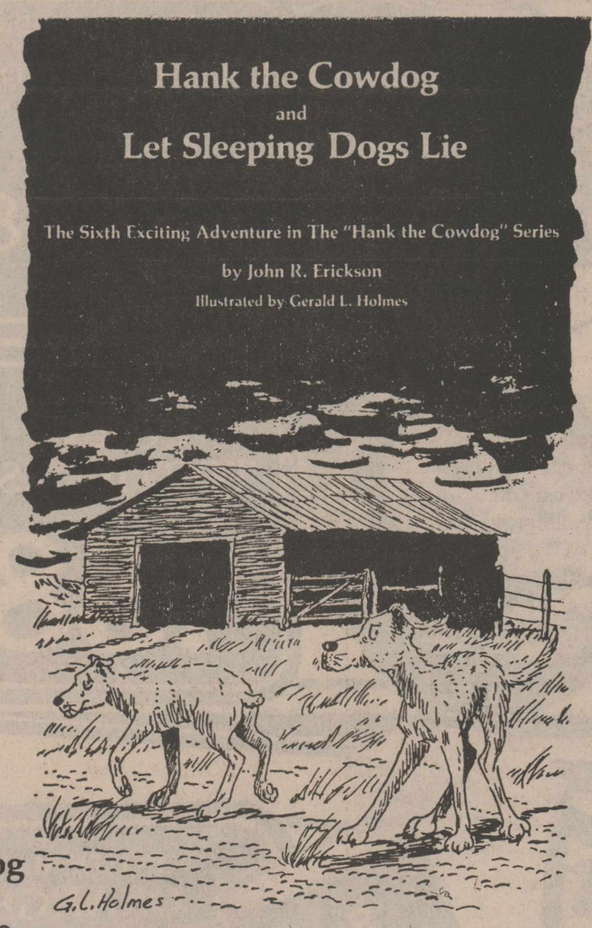

The horticulturist points out that xeriscaping involves these basic elements: landscape design, soil preparation, reduced lawn areas, adapted plants with low water demand, efficient and effective watering methods, mulching around shrubs and flower beds, and proper landscape maintenance. Results of xeriscaping include reduced costs due to lower water consumption and less time involved in landscape maintenance.

An added feature of the conference will be a tour to the South Central Texas Xeriscape Garden at the San Antonio Botanical Center. The tour also will include a visit to Lone Star Growers where native plant production is emphasized.

In addition to the xeriscape garden in San Antonio, xeriscape projects have been developed in Austin, Corpus Christi, Fort Worth, McKinney, McAllen and El Paso during the past three years, says Welsh.

Between Us...
by Tom Constabile

Finally, the Wellington boys basketball team hit the boards in competition for the 1986-87 season when it opened against Childress and hosted Elk City, Ok. during Thanksgiving week.

The Rockets edged Childress in the opener and were nudged by Elk City, but in both games, Wellington displayed terrific hustle and speed. Both commodities will win many a ball game for coach Rick Pinson down the stretch.

Against Elk City, the Rockets were about even with the big squad The Elks had two 6-6 inch starters, plus a couple of dandy outside shooters. And Elk City plays in a 3A basketball league in Oklahoma, one notch above the Rockets in a comparable situation.

Alex Johnson and Lance Duke displayed outstanding ball handling. James McIntosh and Arthur Pennon provided the rebounding and inside shooting wizardry and Curtis Nash showed up with a spark that dominated play.

Lee Souder was one of the main cogs as a guard.

Before Elk City hit 8 straight points midway in the final quarter, the Rockets kept it close. After two games, there's plenty of improvement to be expected, but by district time, Wellington could be the surprise of the league.

Coach Rick Pinson wouldn't say too much about his boys, who got a late start, but he would smile broadly and was evidently pleased with the first two performances.

McIntosh and Pennon make a great one-two combo off the boards and in the scoring department. Duke, a newcomer, is a good mixer and ball handler.

The Wellington Rockettes continue to impress and junior Ginger Daniel at 5-10 will be one of the better players in the district. She continues to score in double figures and her rebounding improves with every outing.

Senior shotmaker Margo Duncan was blanked at Paducah last weekend, but she contributed 13 rebounds. Leigh Ann Barton had 6 buckets at Paducah. The scoring should pick up.

Pennon, Davis on First Team, Coaches Name 7 More Rockets

Rocket Cagers Open With Win and Loss

The Wellington varsity boys basketball team made its long awaited debut last week and after two games the Rockets stand at 1-1. Wellington defeated Childress in the opener, Tuesday, November 25 by a 47-45 count and was defeated by Elk City here Saturday November 29 by a 59-48 score.

Next action for the boys will be in the Wellington tournament which starts Thursday, December 4. The Rockets were due to play at Wheeler, Tuesday, December 2, but the Wheeler boys are in the football quarterfinals playing Sunray Friday, December 5.

The Rockets showed hustle and speed in both games, especially against the bigger and more talented 3A Elk City crew from Oklahoma.

Wellington kept it close until the final period when the visitors hit 8 straight points to go up 50-38. Until then, the Rockets were within 4 points and held the lead on several occasions.

James McIntosh had 11 points against Childress and was high man with 17 against Elk City. Arthur Pennon contributed 17 and 9 in both games.

Wheeler Boys Out Of Local Tourney

The Wellington junior varsity boys have replaced the Wheeler boys in the invitational basketball tournament scheduled to tip off in Wellington Thursday.

Wheeler has been replaced because its football tam is still in the playoffs and basketball practice will not begin until football season is over.

The Wellington JV will open with Lakeview at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, December 4. Samnorwood replaces Wheeler in the boys bracket and has drawn a bye.

Tournament director is Rick Pinson of Wellington, coach of the varsity boys and girls teams.

The tournament will run for three days and be concluded Saturday with finals in both the girls and boys divisions, starting at 7 p.m.

Texas Pecan Crop to be Short

COLLEGE STATION - Texans will soon be feasting on golden kernels of pecans as the 1986 crop reaches maturity.

This year's crop is expected to be short, but what it lacks in quantity, it will make up in quality, says a Texas Agricultural Extension Service horticulturist.

"Qualitywise, this year's crop will be off the chart; it should be the best crop we've had in the past 10 years," points our Dr. George Ray McEachern.

Most of the state has had excellent rains since mid-August, and that accounts for the excellent quality of this year's pecan crop, explains the horticulturist.

"We should have a crop of between 25 and 30 million pounds; that's about 40 percent of normal," McEachern points out. "However, the crop also will be short in other pecan growing states."

The horticulturist says the carryover crop will likely be sold by the time this year's crop hits the market. That means prices to growers should be good. However, consumer prices should be about the same as last year.

"Consumers can expect new crop pecans to be on the market about the first of November," McEachern points out. "To select for quality, check the kernel color. The lighter the color of the kernel.

McEachern advises consumers to store pecans in the freezer as soon as they get them home. "This preserves their quality, and they can be used straight from the freezer as needed," he says.

I Saw... by Virginia Robey

O.V. Johnson doesn't believe in waiting too long for some things, pecans gathered from your own tree, as an example. O.V. and Wandell bought a large, older, pecan tree to set out at home. It was bearing some this year, and they watch in frustration as the squirrels scurry off and the blue jays fly off with pecans in their mouths.

Usually the Wellington Volunteer Fire Department goes to the fire when an alarm is turned in. Friday, however, the fire came to the Fire Department.

Bill Nation's car was parked in front of the ASCS office and directly across the street from the fire station, when the electrical wiring began to blaze. Danny Gray ran out with a hand extinguisher

Santa Claus sure knew what he was doing when he chose reindeer to pull his sleigh. While reindeer are quite small--usually around three-and-a-half feet tall--they have great strength and endurance. A healthy reindeer ususally weighs about 150-250 pounds and can pull its own weight in cargo on sleds across the tundra--or the rooftops!

THE GOSPEL LIGHTS

Singing Group At Dodson Nazarene

The Gospel Lights will make two appearances at the Dodson Church of the Nazarene Sunday, December 7.

The group of seven men will appear at 9:45 a.m. and give a full concert at 10:45 a.m., according to pastor Al Mixon.

Rev. Mixon added that everyone is invited for this treat with gospel music.

According to many experts, plastic trash thrown into oceans may be as big a problem, if not bigger, than oil spills. Non-biodegradable plastic waste is killing up to one million seabirds, 100,000 sea mammals, and countless fish each year. Part of the problem is that seals, turtles, fish, and birds become entangled, and then die, in discarded fishing nets and strapping bands.

Methodist Cantata Planned on Dec. 21

The annual cantata of First United Methodist Church will be given Sunday, Dec. 21 at 7 p.m. in the sanctuary.

The 9 Lessons are scripture readings, ranging from prophetic writings about Christ's coming to the scripture from the traditional writing of St. Matthew and St. Luke which tell of Christ's birth.

Jamie Johnson is directing the cantata and Mrs. Robert Owens is the accompanist.

TRANQUIL MINDS

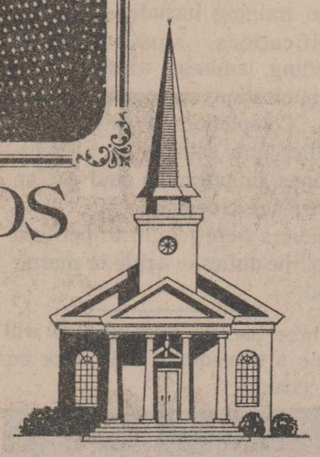

There may be a tendency to confuse tranquility with the popular tranquilizers. There is, of course, a great difference.

Tranquilizers are sometimes prescribed to soothe a troubled mind or body; but tranquility of the mind comes through the calm peace that is realized when one's life is so attuned to God's will that there is neither time nor space to allow frustration and confusion to invade the inner spirit of the soul.

A tranquil mind is not an inactive one, and it is never a closed door, but rather an open door to more abundant blessings with an ever faithful assurance that God has even more blessings in store for us.

When we are at peace with our maker, we are capable of inviting tranquility to enter and live within us; we seek His will quietly with the knowledge that He never fails us.

Your church or synagogue offers an opportunity for this serenity.

For the first time since George Washington was president, an Atlantic salmon has migrated 255 miles from Long Island Sound to historic spawning grounds in Vermont's White River. During the heyday of the powdered wig in France, girls' heads were laced to form ridges upon which the wigs could rest.

Life in the big city is tough, especially for trees. But soon, healthier strains of trees may be developed that can survive and beautify the city. The Illionois Tollway Authority is supporting a program at the Morton Arboretum in suburban Chicago, that would breed trees and shrubs that could tolerate inhospitable soil, salt sprays, and other pollutants from expressways. Most promising thus far are several salt-resistant Asian elms.

Why not make wildlife a part of your holiday season. Decorate a tree in your yard especially for wildlife. Adorning a tree with pinecones dipped in suet or peanut butter makes a sumptuous Christmas feast for both birds and animals. Popcorn, raisins and cranberries strung on the branches are also treats for wildlife and give the tree a festive look. The best decorations, however, are those that come to feast--birds and nature's other living ornaments.

The results are in and the "eyes' have it! An experiment conducted by Japan's All-Nippon Airlines found that painting large eyes on the engines frightened birds away from the plane, reducing the number of "strikes". In the past year, the airline recorded only one bird strike per engine on the painted 747s while the unpainted 767s were struck 22 times per engine. The airline is preparing to paint eyes on all of their commercial jets. While this may startle the birds, it probably will save their lives.

Bloodmobile Needs Increase in 1987

The Bloodmobile from the Red River Regional Blood Center in Wichita Falls will be in Wellington three times during 1987, due to increased need for blood, according to Dollie Mae Wilson, president of the Collingsworth General Hospital Auxiliary.

This group sponsors the bloodmobile visits.

Dates for the 1987 visits will be May 18, August 3 and November 2.

Collingsworth County is being asked for 57 units of blood at each of these visits.

The increasing blood needs of hospitals in the Red River Region have forced us to increase our annual collection goal for each bloodmobile sponsor.

"To create fair goals for each bloodmobile sponsor, we have recalculated the goals based on the four percent increase in blood needs," a spokesman for the Red River Region blood center has told Mrs. Wilson.

33 Units Received By Bloodmobile November 24

Thirty-three donors gave blood when the Red Cross Regional Bloodmobile from Wichita Falls visited Wellington Monday, Nov. 24.

This was one of the smaller amounts to be given at any visit since the program was begun with the Red River Regional blood center.

Two donors reached a gallon mark. Tommy Hudson, manager of West Texas Utilities Co., achieved the two gallon mark. Telling why he is a consistent donor, Hudson said: "I just hope my giving will help someone."

Helen Patterson, an employee of Greenbelt Electric Co-operative, Inc. Her reason for giving is simple: "I care," she said.

There will be three visits from the bloodmobile in 1987, according to Dollie Wilson, president of Collingsworth General Hospital Auxiliary, which sponsors the bloodmobile.

Donors were Bonnie Guthrie, James M. Brown, Sidney R. Herring, Neal W. Duncan, Vickie Porter, Helen Patterson, Darrell Nash, Nell McKinney, Karen Caison, Pat Lewis, Tommy L. Lonon, Maria S. Torrez, Annese T. Darter, Doris C. Nash, Trinidad Cantu, Jr., Richard Cameron, Dee Burba, Tommy Hudson, Rudy Torrez, Willie O. Gragson, Dan N. Beachy, Andy E. Henard, Phyllis A. Floyd and Ray Floyd.

Raul S. Torrez, R.L .Hunnicutt, Allen J. Peters, David D. Peters, Nancy McKinney, Marshall J. Peters, Margie G. Pennon and Albert S. Fulcher.

Volunteers who worked with the bloodmobile are Billye Owens, Bessie Rainer, Susan Ford, Becky Bridges, Willie B. Harwell and Loraine Gragson, Maudie Coffee, Merle White, Ruth Phipps, Willie Wade, Paralee Coleman, Lois Ratliff and Dollie Mae Wilson.

Dinner for City Employees Planned

Wellington City Council met Monday, Dec. 1, to make plans for the employees annual Christmas dinner.

This was set for Monday, Dec. 8, in Bura Handley Community Center.

This is a family event, and Santa Claus will come during the fried chicken supper to greet the children. It will start at 7 p.m.

Also in the Monday night meeting, councilmen discussed the Firemen's Benefit Fund, to which the city contributes each month.

It is from this fund that retirement benefits are paid to firemen who served with the Wellington Volunteer Fire Department 20 or more years.

The widows of firemen also draw retirement from this fund.

The employees insurance plan was reviewed, and further discussion and action on the proposal is due at the next meeting Dec. 15.
