'LET'S TALK ABOUT THE GOLD DISCOVERY DAYS'

McGovern Apparently Wavering

CUSTER, S.D. (AP) — The Rapid City Ranger band was playing "Happy Days Are Here Again" as George McGovern, dressed in a cowboy hat and fringed jacket for the parade commemorating South Dakota's gold rush days, was asked if he preferred to avoid talk of politics.

"Yes," sighed the embattled Democratic presidential nominee. "Let's talk about the gold discovery days."

Intense speculation about Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's place on the Democratic ticket had dominated the last few days of what for McGovern had not been the vacation he had planned.

DOUBT

The apostle of the New Politics could hardly be blamed for not wanting to talk politics. What had started as a period of high expectations, with only defections from some party regulars and labor leaders marring initial campaign planning, was ending with a cloud over both the Democratic presidential nominee and his vice-presidential running mate.

On Friday night, table-hopping among reporters in the Sylvan Lake lodge dining room, McGovern gave the first public indication he was wavering in his determination to stick with Eagleton, then created further doubt over the Missouri senator's prospects by saying the two men are deliberating "over the proper course."

In a brief statement before he left his Sylvan Lake vacation retreat near here Saturday, McGovern said he and Sen. Eagleton had agreed to meet Monday evening in Washington for a mutual assessment of the situation.

BOMBSHELL

Eagleton's bombshell announcement of his past record of mental treatment, his admission he hadn't told McGovern about it and the implication that the South Dakota senator had not thoroughly investigated his running mate — had created the biggest problem yet for the uphill Democratic presidential campaign.

Ahead for McGovern, after his return to Washington in the early hours of Sunday, lay the hard decision of whether to stick with Eagleton or bow to the political pressures for an unprecedented switch in running mates.

For someone who had believed all along that he would be the Democratic presidential nominee and had often said there were a number of good possibilities for the No. 2 spot on the ticket, McGovern appears to have made surprisingly little advance preparation before he actually had to make his selection.

WALLACE Will Not Run Even If Drafted

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace, saying he was acting on the advice of his doctors, ruled out on Saturday any possibility of a third party presidential race this year. He said he will not run even if drafted by the American party.

Wallace, who had said repeatedly in the past that he was not a candidate but still left the door open, settled the speculation in a prepared statement issued from the rehabilitation center where he is under-going physical therapy to overcome the paralysis of his legs.

The statement said the doctors' "best advice is that I not involve myself in any extensive campaign activity in the immediate future. In view of my recent surgery, their advice is in the best interests of my health."

The 52-year-old, two-term governor referred to an operation 10 days ago to drain an abdominal abscess resulting from a would-be assassin's bullet wound which damaged his spine and left him without the use of his legs.

Wallace was struck down May 15 following a campaign rally at a shopping center in Laurel, Md. The man accused of shooting him, Arthur Bremer, goes on trial in Maryland Monday.

"I am not a candidate for the presidential nomination of the American party," Wallace said. "and in view of the above condition, I could not accept a draft of the nomination. The American party will hold its convention in Louisville, Ky., this weekend."

The statement said nothing about whether the governor will take any part in the presidential election or endorse any other candidate. But he has said in the past that he cannot support the Democratic nominee, Sen. George McGovern, or the party platform.

Wallace, who campaigned unsuccessfully for the Democratic nomination, has said, however, that he probably will speak in behalf of Alabama Democrats running for congressional state and local offices in November.

Wife Of Millionaire Found Chained To Tree

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Virginia Piper, a millionaire's wife kidnaped in broad daylight Thursday, was found chained to a tree unharmed Saturday more than 12 hours after her husband paid a $1 million ransom in $20 bills.

"She is tired, but otherwise there are no injuries," said C. Morgan Aldrich Jr., a family spokesman told newsmen after the 49-year-old socialite was returned to her country mansion in suburban Orono.

Aldrich said Harry C. Piper Jr., the woman's husband, personally delivered $1 million in ransom money about 11:25 p.m. Friday. He said the Piper family was contacted by the kidnapers about 9:30 p.m. Friday and that Piper "personally followed detailed instructions in delivering the ransom." He said Piper refused to say where he left the money.

MRS. H. C. PIPER JR.

An FBI spokesman in Minneapolis had said Mrs. Piper, 49, was found chained to a tree in a wooded area of northern Minnesota near Duluth shortly after noon Saturday.

The FBI said the investigation was continuing. It said an anonymous phone call to a third party provided information that allowed authorities to locate the woman. The FBI said it had not been able to question Mrs. Piper, and it returned angrily on a television cameraman with the warning: "I'll tell you one damned thing—don't put that bright light in my eyes!"

McKee complained on Monday that a photographer had shown a light close to his spectacles and spent the first day of the trial rubbing his eye with a handkerchief.

Descending to the basement of the courthouse building, McKee was hustled into a blue Lincoln Continental, driven by his wife.

McKee Guilty Of Taking Masonic Order Money

DALLAS (AP) — A jury of eight men and four women found John McKee, 66, former head of the Dallas Crime Commission, guilty of embezzlement of Scottish Rite Masonic funds Saturday night.

The six-day trial ended at 9:10 p.m. after seven hours of jury deliberation.

McKee stood stiffly, showing no emotion as the verdict was read. But as he left the courtroom to face a waiting battery of television cameras, he looked shaken and distraught.

He descended from the fourth floor courtroom in an elevator with his second wife, Mrs. Charlotte Weirauch, who has been frequently mentioned during the trial; her son, his attorney Bill Alexander, and other members of the McKee and Weirauch families.

As the elevator glided down, he was heard to say: "Talk about a fair trial."

At one moment, McKee

turned angrily on a television cameraman with the warning: "I'll tell you one damned thing—don't put that bright light in my eyes!"

Fourth Place Calf Roper Draws Cheers

By STEVE HULTMAN

Spectators were amazed at the performance of a fourth place calf roper Saturday night. D'Lynn Jones, Hobbs, N.M., missed his first throw, but kept his stride and smoothly sailed his second loop to capture a slippery calf in an impressive 19.7 seconds. The event was 13-15-year-old calf roping.

The antics of much-appreciated rodeo clowns, Robert Mesker and Darell Collier, provided excellent coverage for fallen riders throughout the rodeo week.

Gregg Welch, Roscoe, had an impromptu bullride Saturday night. Welch was standing by the fence watching Billy Braswell ride the bull, Zorro. After bucking Braswell, Zorro was still in high enough spirits to attack the bystander Welch and toss him over the fence. Welch was attempting to find a place to climb the fence as Zorro caught him. The startled spectator was (See RODEO, Pg. 2-A, Col. 8)

Unforgettable Day For Old Settlers

Saturday registration of the 48th Howard County Old Settlers' Reunion indicated a crowd of 500, but when almost a thousand plates of barbecue were served at noon, there were no arguments to one old-timer's remark, "It's the biggest crowd ever!"

Master of Ceremonies Bill Birrell introduced the reunion in the County barn, filled soon with the strains of country music from the strings of the Country Cousins, led by Reunion President Vandoyl Murphree.

Country Cousins is a group of fiddlers, guitarists and singers consisting Saturday of five Big Springers: Mr. and Mrs. Vandoyl Murphree, Lois McElreath and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Shrum; Bill Dane, Big Lake; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wilson, Midland; and Memry Alderman, Maryneal.

FROM ALABAMA

Recognition of oldest old settlers revealed Bass Loftin, 88, Big Spring, the oldest man in attendance and Mrs. Sallie Hopper, 94, Coahoma, the oldest woman at the Reunion.

Persons traveling the longest distance to attend the Reunion were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stone, Arab, Ala.

A memorial to the old settlers and invocation delivered by the Rev. Elra Phillips, associate pastor, First United Methodist Church, preceded the serving of barbecue by the famous Odessa Chuck Wagon Gang.

SWEET SALLY

Ten fiddlers competed for the three prize-winning places in the entertaining Old Fiddlers' Contest. Winner was Don Tolle, Big Spring, cutting down on "Sally Goodin" and "Arkansas Traveler." Second place money went to Chester Derrick, Odessa, and third place to Hoyt Roberts, Westbrook.

Tolle attributed his fine performance to the expert rhythm accompaniment of 11-year-old Melody Dabney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dabney, Big Spring. Judging the contest were Charlie Pierce, V. E. Lewis and Mrs. Frank Griffith.

An afternoon dance with Country Cousins music provided a comfortable atmosphere for reunited settlers to settle points of history and renealing of the long, lost friends.

Big Spring Week

Reviewing the ... with Joe Pickle

The United Fund goal for this year has been set at $113,640, and Robert Hickson, campaign chairman, is wasting no time in getting after it. The bulk of his organization now is complete and the kickoff time is Aug. 15 — and that's only two weeks away.

Stanton Independent School trustees kept trying, and last week voters gave approval to a $700,000 bond issue to finance a new junior high and elementary school. In addition to persistence, another magic ingredient was the slicing of $500,000 off previous proposals, which also included a new high school.

The joint's been jumping during the past week, what with the District 2 Little League tournament concluding (Big Spring Nationals won it) and the Red Sox in the finals last night for the Sophomore District title. Our Kiwanians got bumped in the Hi-Junior district meet in San Angelo. Make ready for the Soph district meet here, and then the state girls softball championships with four out-of-

'WE'LL BE HOME BEFORE CHRISTMAS'

Last GIs To Go To Vietnam, Perhaps The Last To Die

EDITOR'S NOTE — The war in Vietnam is coming to an end. President Nixon says it'll be pretty soon. A Democratic presidential hopeful says he'd do it immediately. Either way, the troops that are going now are among the last to go. Here are some of their last moments, as viewed from their jump-off point, Travis Air Force Base, here is how they felt about it.

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The war protests go on. Troop withdrawals are announced periodically on prime time. A presidential candidate runs on a "Peace Now" plank. And at Travis Air Force Base, the dispatcher announces Flight 281 will board from Gate Two. Final destination: Saigon.

The replacement troops and advisers pull themselves up from the floors of the big barn-like terminal where some have been trying to sleep on duffel bags for hours. From the chairs, from the big cafeteria, from the little television sets you can watch for quarters, the young dogfaces and the beribboned brass head for the chartered commercial airliner that will take them into a country whose very name evokes a strong reaction from most Americans.

FIRST-HAND LOOK

Seven hundred to 800 men leave from this air base north of San Francisco each week, some professional soldiers going back to Vietnam for their second or third tour of duty, some teenagers on their way to get a first-hand look at a war they remember reading about practically all their lives.

They go with many emotions. Adventure. Patriotism. The dream of saving a spot in the world threatened by Communism. Bitterness at being among the last to go, perhaps the last to die.

"What difference does it make how I feel about going?" asked an Army major. "I don't know why anyone should be interested in how we feel. We're going. That's it."

A 20-year-old man, Army Lt. Col. Robert Garman, says he looks forward to getting back into the field again. He served his first tour during the 1966-67 buildup. "It's the only fight we have right now," says Garman. "It's where the action is. The pay is better, but the risk is greater. But that's our business, I'm a professional soldier."

Garman, who has a short crew cut, says he has no political feelings about the rightness or the wrongness of the war.

"Politics is not our line of business. A soldier is a soldier. We've started something and I think we have to give the Vietnamese a chance. If it goes Communist, we can only say we've tried."

The thoughts of the young men are far more volatile than those of the professional soldiers. There's a young man calling for the use of atomic weapons, another with a peace symbol tattooed on his arm, some who have signed peace petitions.

But even among the professionals, the thoughts about being among the last to go vary. An Air Force technical sergeant, going for his third tour of duty, says "Why should I go over now? It's just a political thing. The first time I went, I thought I was going for a cause. If I could just feel I was doing some good, it would be different. If these people cared or wanted us in there . . ."

HE'S SCARED

The non-com, with 20 years in and eight months away from retirement, declined to give his name. "Career men won't say how they really feel for the record. They know they'll get hung."

His specialty will keep him in the field pretty much, and this time around, he says he's scared.

"I've run for bunkers before, but we had protection then. Now I'd rather have my 7 and 10-year-old sons out there than the South Vietnamese troops. They're undependable. I can see why they get the nickname 'Zipperhead.'"

"I do feel bitter this time. Nixon might want to save his honor, but I don't want him to do it with my life."

The career men generally looked upon their tour in Vietnam as just another job, a year-long transfer from corporate headquarters to an outlying branch office.

Three Army majors, who just finished 18 weeks of school together at the State Department in Washington, D.C., were reunited at the base, waiting for their flight to be called. All had served earlier tours.

HELP SAVE IT

"I'm not overjoyed about going, but that's my job," said one, Maj. Waldo Freeman. "I'm a professional soldier."

His buddy, Maj. John A. Noble, added: "We still have a job to do over there. We want to see it finished honorably. Too many Americans have died. I love this country and (See LAST, Page 2-A, Col. 1)

Last To Go To Vietnam

Major Freeman, Noble and John Kolsch will be district senior advisers, but don't feel they will be in as much danger this time as in their earlier tours of duty.

"I'll see the same thing as I did last time, but not as close," said Freeman, who was last in Vietnam in 1967-68. "The last time I did some grenade throwing myself."

None of the three were in fear of being the last to die.

"We'll be home before Christmas," said Freeman. "It is the success of Vietnamization, not the failure, that caused the recent new offensive. The 1968 Tet offensive was the beginning of the end of the VC."

The end of the war was discussed by some with bitterness. Air Force Technical Sergeant Cecil T. Crim, going back for the second time in an 18-year career, predicts Nixon will pull everybody out by September.

"It's pathetic. After all this we're going to compromise just like we did in Korea without gaining a foot," says Crim. He spent only 21 days with his bride before he had to leave and he says the war is just a political expedient at this point. "The young men who ask 'why am I here' have got the wrong question," says Crim. "The question is why am I here at this particular time. Why wasn't this war over six or seven years ago? That's the real question."

As he heads for the plane that will take him to what could be the final battles, Crim isn't happy about the new military, the cut-down discipline and permissiveness.

"There's no discipline left," says the 38-year-old Crim. "Curtis LeMay was right when he said that if you're not going to train the military you might as well put civilians in there."

Dying and killing as the world calls for peace—a peace that could be a week or a lifetime away.

The vets don't talk much about either. The recruits express the same feelings of all young men going to wars new or old—the fear for their lives and the spectre of killing another human being.

A 26-year-old Air Force captain, who declined to give his name, is assigned to be the copilot on a gunship.

"I'll be pulling the triggers and I don't like it very much. You can justify it in many ways and I guess I have because I haven't told them I wouldn't do it. I rationalize by realizing you're always helping somebody, even up there."

NO GOOD "I didn't want to go. I don't think we're doing any good out there, anyway. And I know killing somebody is going to change me, making me different somehow. I don't know how, yet."

Air Force Staff Sergeant Mark Boettner, 23, is a bomb loader. "I don't feel personally responsible for what the bombs might do. I'm just following orders."

For Steve Blum, 18, it's survival. Blum, kicked out of school in Sherman, N.Y., joined the Navy four months ago. He will be aboard the Defiance, an amphibious landing craft and will carry a pistol and a rifle.

EXCITING "It might be exciting. I'll be up where the fire is. I figure it'll be them or me, and I'll be pulling the triggers first."

Blum, a lanky blond, looking younger than his 18 years, talked about farming, about the Apalosa mare he owns, about an old barn he would like to repair. "The thought of a beam falling down on a horse's or cow's back worries me," he said.

Blum, a "boot" was traveling with Navy E-3 Gary Owens, 21. Owens was returning to Vietnam after a leave.

"Back here," said Owens, "I have second thoughts about the killing. Over there, it's like a turkey shoot. It's not the VC. It's just somebody who gets in the way. I just hope these kids won't learn to feel about death like I do."

DON'T EVEN HUNT Army Specialist John R. Urban, a teacher of American history and government in Shreveport, La., is one of the most opposed to going to Vietnam.

"Man, I don't even hunt," says the 24-year-old schoolteacher. "All I want to do is go over there and turn a wrench. I don't want to kill anybody. I hope I can come back without knowing how. Five sergeants have already told me I have an attitude problem. I know that."

Those expressing no fear are armed with statistics and rationales: "More people were murdered in Detroit last year."

"Do you know how many people were killed in traffic accidents on the Fourth of July?" "How come nobody counts the number who come back unscathed?"

One career man said he thought it was more dangerous driving I-95 to the Pentagon every day.

LOW RISK Air Force Capt. Robert Carrio says even his wife has no worries. "She realizes I'm in a low risk occupation." The 25-year-old Carrio has a ready answer as to his feelings about being at the tail end of the troops going to Vietnam.

"It's a business venture and I know the club had an affiliate over there when I joined," he says.

Fear often depends upon assignment. Jeff Van Burg, 21, of Hawthorne, Calif., wants to go to save money and get out early.

"Everybody I've talked to has enjoyed it there and I want to see for myself. You know, just to do the things a young guy wants to do. I don't want to go on any missions or anything like that."

A turbine engine repairman for the Army, he figures he'll stay in a well-protected hangar during his entire stint.

"I'd feel a little differently if I were an infantryman," Pfc. Emile LaFrance is an infantryman, but not particularly frightened.

DEATH THOUGHTS "If you've got a brain in your head you think about the possibility of death. I'm more likely to get shot at than a clerk," says LaFrance, 29.

The young Army men—private's up through specialist four—pass through Oakland Army Base en route to Travis AFB and then Vietnam. In the month of June, 1,100 came through, a few to find an 11th hour reprieve as President Nixon announced that draftees no longer must serve in Vietnam unless they volunteer for the duty. Three of the men spared Vietnam were hours away from boarding the airliner when word came through.

"I don't know whether to thank God or Nixon," said one, Pfc. Robert McCarthy when he heard the news. "If I don't have to go my whole family will vote for Nixon."

Of the 22 young men rounded up at Travis following the announcement, only one is in Vietnam.

Spec 4 Arlen Albertson, 21, of Rolla, N.D., signed the necessary papers and went.

DEATHS

Mrs. Beckmeyer's Rites Set Today

LAMESA (SC) — Services for Mrs. E. L. (Jonnie) Beckmeyer, 77, will be at the First United Methodist Church here at 2 p.m. today. The pastor, the Rev. Jim Smith, will officiate, and burial will be in Lamesa Memorial Park under direction of Branon Funeral Home.

Mrs. Beckmeyer, who had lived here for 48 years, died unexpectedly Friday, 6:30 a.m. in Medical Arts Hospital, which she had entered the day before.

Surviving are a son, Harold Beckmeyer, Los Altos, Calif.; three sisters, Mrs. Frieda Stollies, San Antonio, Mrs. Elea Lassig, New Braunfels, and Mrs. Peggy Crum, Yorktown; two brothers, B. J. Snyder and Otis Snyder, both of Baytown. She also leaves one grandchild.

Bids, Joint Buys, Jailers On Agenda

Howard County Commissioners' Court meets Monday morning to discuss and pass verdict on bids, funds consolidation, joint purchases and the cleaning of carpet in the County Library.

Marvin Hanson, Acting Road Administrator, meets at 9:00 a.m. with commissioners for a conference, prefacing the 10 a.m. bid opening for gravel to be contracted for paving.

GENERAL FUND A vote by commissioners is scheduled to determine a question of consolidation of jury, general and permanent improvement, road and bridge and lateral road funds for 1973 budgeting.

The purpose of the consolidation, according to County Judge A. G. Mitchell, is to allow funding of projects in the various departments by the general fund. A shy anticipation in budgeting will not require amendment of smaller budgets by transferral from the general fund.

Consolidation of funds by Commissioners' Court, according to County Auditor Virginia Black, was provided for by a recent legislature, the amendment passing public approval in 1970 or 1971.

SAVINGS Joint purchases will be discussed: one with the City of Big Spring toward a savings on tire contracts, and one with the city and the school district on the purchase of janitorial supplies.

Commissioners will delve into the proposed consolidation of reproduction machine services among the offices of the County Clerk, District Clerk and Sheriff.

Cleaning of the Library carpet is scheduled for consideration.

The question of how many relief jailers the County Jail requires is expected to be settled.

A conference with Max D. Green, CPA, concerning the presentation of the 1971 audit report is scheduled for 11 a.m.

A new secretary for the Road and Bridge Department will be appointed.

BUGGED — It was a scene which left passersby scratching their heads in this "one in a million" mishap in New Kensington, Pa. Both cars were stopped in a flow of traffic when the foreign compact was struck from behind, forcing it under the larger auto. No one was seriously injured but the drivers of the vehicles were undoubtedly wondering who had the next move.

'HOW'S THAT FOR A TOWN MOTTO?'

'Syphilis Put Tuskegee On The Map'

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (AP) — "Syphilis put Tuskegee on the map," Bill Lennard reflected grimly. "How's that for a town motto?"

Lennard is project coordinator for the local OEO Community Action Agency, a college-educated black, born and raised in Tuskegee and now deeply concerned about the future of his home town.

"I FEEL SICK" "How could I have lived here all my life and never know this was going on?" Lennard asked. "I'm astounded. I'm shocked and I feel sick. I don't know what it's going to do to this town."

This town and the surrounding county have, for 40 years, been the object of the Tuskegee Study, a syphilis experiment involving 600 local blacks.

The study was a cooperative project of the U.S. Public Health Service, the Alabama Health Department, the Macon County Medical Society and the Macon County Health Department and was conducted to determine what damage untreated syphilis does to the human body.

In the beginning, 1932, about 200 of the study group showed no signs of syphilis and were used for purposes of comparison with the 400 or so men who had the disease.

DISCLOSURE Questions exist over just how many of the 400 men ever received any treatment for their syphilis.

A firm figure probably will have to await the conclusion of a current investigation by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, parent agency of the PHS.

Another investigation is under way in the Alabama attorney general's office. Among other things, a spokesman said, an effort will be made to determine if the lack of treatment for some of the study participants violated a 1927 state law requiring treatment for all who suffered from the disease.

Both investigations were begun after Associated Press disclosure of the study last week. During the study at least seven men died as a direct result of syphilis and the figure could be higher, said Dr. Don Printz of the venereal disease branch of CDC.

Two issues have been raised since disclosure of the experiment: Why the study was allowed to continue in the era after World War II when penicillin and sulfa drugs were widely available, has been proven a cure for syphilis and probably could have helped or saved a number of the experiment's subjects? The other issue is compensation for surviving participants and families of men who died.

STIGMATIZED Fred D. Gray, a prominent black civil rights lawyer representing several of the Tuskegee Study survivors, said he does not believe they knew what was in store for them when they volunteered for the study. Nor, he added, do they recall signing any releases when they joined.

Dr. Ira L. Myers, the current Alabama state health officer, said the furor over disclosure of the study was an attempt "to make a mountain out of a mole hill."

In Tuskegee, a town which feels stigmatized, the problem already is a mountain. Many people who were involved in the program, both as participants and supervisors, have gone into temporary seclusion. They don't answer their phones or doorbells and are said by their friends to feel the town may turn against them.

In restaurants, the Tuskegee Study is the basic topic of conversation. Many still don't believe it. Many don't want to believe it. A few don't care. But basically, the people seem dazed.

THE WEEK

town teams here Aug. 5, followed by half a dozen on Aug. 11.

Lancer Corporation, a Texas mobile home manufacturer listed on the big board, has made an offer which seems acceptable to Eagles Homes, and if all goes well, the deal should be closed Aug. 8. Lancer would take over operation of the facility here.

Desana Corp. No. 1 Armstrong, near the old Soash community in northwest Howard County, continues to look like a winner. From the Strawn section, below 9,000 feet this wildcat flowed 151 barrels of high-gravity oil. Earlier it had returned 121 barrels and no water.

The week's good news was tempered by the death of Mrs. Billy D. (Polly) Clem, the city's second traffic casualty of the year. She had been injured in a collision July 4. Another tragedy was the suicide of Alva Wayne Daniel at Big Spring State Hospital.

Work should start soon on a safety device for Interstate 20 east of here. Desert Paving Company of Odessa submitted a low bid of $99,367 for the five-mile job beginning at the overpass at the southeast corner of Cosden. This will do away with the temptation to cut across the median, also reduce light glare somewhat.

Dr. Preston Harrison, superintendent of the Big Spring State Hospital, had another honor bestowed upon him. He was chosen by the Texas Rehabilitation Vocational Association as doctor of the year, the first psychiatrist to receive this top award.

A hearing in 118th District Court resulted in a ruling that The Howard County Hospital Authority had been constituted according to law. Unless an appeal is lodged, the authority could, within the next month, proceed with issuing its revenue bonds for new facilities.

The long-awaited moment of pilot training graduation arrived Saturday morning for 60 graduates of Webb's undergraduate pilot training class 73-01.

The officers met on the flightline for review and to receive the coveted wings which they have studied and worked for since entering training Sept. 2, 1971.

Graduates celebrated their accomplishments with a dinner-dance Saturday night.

Fun, Music Packed In Starlight Specials

Local talent takes the stage for eight evenings of family entertainment starting next Sunday in the Comanche Trails Park Amphitheatre.

Starlight Specials is a production, now in its seventh year of presentations, of the Chamber of Commerce's Cultural Affairs Committee. Performances will be nightly Sunday, Aug. 6 through Sunday, Aug. 13.

The presentation this year features an added attraction, on the previously open Wednesday night, The Young Mellow Drama. Cecilia Arcand directs EGAD, WHAT A CAD! — a play of fun and light comedy.

SING SONGS
A Gospel Sing-Song is featured the first and last nights of the week's entertainment. Under chairmanship of Joe Dunn, the singing is lead by Marshall Brown and features youth and general choirs plus special groups from First United Methodist Airport Baptist, College Baptist, Streetview Baptist, Carl Street Church of Christ and Trinity Baptist Churches. Also featured will be groups from Coahoma First Baptist Church, and Church of the Nazarene, East Fourth Street Baptist, Baptist Temple, First Christian, Berea Baptist and First Assembly of God.

Joe Dunn also presents Western Night, Thursday, starting the music of Gayle Kilgore, Tom Castle, Don Tolle, Jess Miles and Arnold Lloyd.

FIESTA AND FOOD
Tuesday evening is the popular Fiesta Night with the presentation of Mexican song and dance under direction of Mrs. Lydia Molina. Fiesta food will set the mood for the evening with serving at 6:30 p.m. A local comedian, Chico Rubio, closes with laughter the evening of vocal duets, a children's Mexican Hat Dance, vocal solo, a band and a trumpet solo.

Friday night features Teen Night. Bands have not yet been selected, but Master of Ceremonies Dan Porter promises fine sounds from local bands.

Starting at 6:30 also is an ice cream supper on Saturday evening preceding a concert of the Big Spring High School band, conducted by Bill Bradley.

Mrs. Mary Every presents Black and White Night, Monday, with an acrobatic jazz dance, two vocal solos, a band directed by Sgt. Paul Lowery, and a clarinet quartet. Also featured are Charles Artyr's alto saxophone solo, a dramatic reading by Cecilia Coffee and Patricia Palmer's soul dance.

MINIMAL COST
Admission is a minimal 25 cents per adult, children free, during the week-night performances. Sunday night performances are free to everyone. Productions begin nightly at 8:15, with exception, however, of Tuesday's Fiesta food and Saturday's ice cream service at 6:30 p.m.

Crane Birthday

On Saturday, Aug. 12, Crane will observe its 45th anniversary and it's one billionth barrel of oil production.

Under sponsorship of the Crane Coordinating Council, a day-long, county-wide, Texas-size celebration will be held to commemorate the occasion. Activities as varied as a flea market and an ice cream freeze-off have been scheduled to interest and entertain visitors and citizens of all ages.

HAIR RAISING HIKE — Recent violent thunderstorm in eastern Norway charged the atmosphere resulting in this hair raising experience for Tina and Grote Stroussencen. They were on a hike in the mountains during the storm. According to experts, the phenomenon is not uncommon but seldom photographed.

Zoning Panel Slates Hearings

Agenda of the Big Spring Planning and Zoning Boards meeting Tuesday includes two public hearings on the controversial specific use permits allowing the placement of mobile homes as fixed dwellings in GR-General Residence Zones.

City manager Harry Nagel reported Friday that he will inform the boards of the recent move of the City Commission authorizing him to prepare a zoning ordinance which will cease the issuance of specific-use permits for mobile homes. He said applicants for the permits should know that when the 12-month limitation of the permit has passed, the mobile home may be required to vacate General Residence zones if the ordinance is passed.

The two public hearings in the Tuesday meeting will include applications made by Marvie A. Wheeler for 1223 Mobile and Ronald Passmore at 804 and 806 Creighton.

Also to be heard is the application of Jack Shaffer for a zone change from 2F-Two Family Dwelling to O-Office on

Broughton Bid Is Low

Two dealers submitted bids on four truck cabs and chassis for use as garbage trucks in the city sanitation department.

A third response from Pollard Chevrolet Co. indicated that "a number of factors unknown at this time" prevented it from offering a bid.

Bob Brock Ford Inc. offered the four trucks at a net price of $29,766.04 delivered in 45 days.

Broughton Truck and Implement Co. asked $28,336.00 for delivery of the four trucks in six weeks.

City Purchasing Agent Bob Butler said that presumably both bids met or exceeded specifications advertised. He said that he will check the features of the trucks offered to determine the accuracy.

The bids will be awarded or rejected at the city commission meeting, Aug. 8.

Elbow New Pupil Signup Aug. 10

Registration date for those entering Elbow elementary school for the first time, (kindergarten through grade five) will be Aug. 10-11; According to W. R. Cregar, principal.

Children attending the school last year are pre-registered. Beginning pupils should bring their birth certificates and immunization records.

Cregar said that the school cannot accept kindergarten, which is limited to 30 pupils, but transfers will be taken in grades 1-5. Elbow children eligible for the kindergarten must be five years old by Sept. 1. The lower income groups will be taken first, and then those nearest their sixth birthday. Additional information may be had by calling Cregar at 398-5444.

DON'T BE TOO SURE A Quiet GOP Convention?

By BENJAMIN SHORE
Capitol News Service

WASHINGTON — With President Nixon's announcement that he is keeping Spiro Agnew as his running mate, and with the White House firmly in control of the writing of the GOP platform, some Republicans are wondering what they'll do for excitement during their Miami Beach convention next month.

Other Republicans, generally the more moderate and liberal ones, think there will be plenty of political fireworks when the convention is asked to consider a package of already drafted reforms for the party's delegate selection process.

PARTY AFFAIRS

Four years in the making, the proposals would force GOP state delegations, among other things, to contain an equal number of men and women and a proportional representation of youth.

If adopted, the changes would go into effect for the 1976 convention.

The 1968 Republican convention called for the "broadest possible participation" by the public in party affairs. The Republican National Committee then appointed a delegates and organization committee, headed by Missouri National Committeewoman Rosemary Ginn, to figure out how to do it.

SENIOR CITIZENS

The committee's 10-point report is causing grumbling among some party leaders and its consideration by the convention is expected to provide some of the liveliest debate of an otherwise predictable week.

Liberal and moderate Republicans such as Rep. Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey Jr. of California and Rep. Tom Rillsback of Illinois are talking about calling for additional reforms such as proportional representation of minorities and senior citizens.

In addition to reforms on men, women and youths, the delegates and organization committee, which unveiled a draft of its report over a year ago, is recommending:

NO FEE PLEAS

1. That each state's delegation members be selected at public meetings on the precinct, township or county levels, and not be appointed to the delegation by party leaders.

2. That alternate delegates, who replace absent delegates at the convention, be selected in the same manner as delegates, and not be selected by party leaders.

3. That delegates should not be assessed a fee as a qualification of being on the delegation, a practice in some states.

4. That party leaders not be automatically selected as delegates by virtue of holding appointed or elected positions.

5. That when a state delegation names delegates to the convention's four committees, it shall select for each committee one man, one woman, one delegate under 25 years old and one delegate who is a member of a minority ethnic group.

YOUNG VOTES

"In 1972," the report states, "the new, young voters will need to know how they can participate not only in the election of a president, but also in the selection of the candidates for this high office."

"In addition, we hope that in the selection of a candidate for president, these recommendations will encourage greater involvement in the Republican Party on the part of all our citizens, regardless of sex, age, race, religion, color or national origin."

Many Republicans are concerned that the Democrats' reforms, which were reflected in the convention delegations as shown on nationwide television, must be matched if the GOP is to get a significant share of the young and minority voters.

RECALLS LONELY STRETCH OF BAD ROAD Country Singer Hails From Maine

by PAT SHERLOCK
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — It's been 10 years since Dick Curless did any trucking, but he still remembers the ice and the curves of that lonely stretch of bad road he made famous in song.

"I knew that Haynesville Woods Road," the tall singer said.

"And I knew it in winter when I drove a logging truck up and down it."

But the closest Curless has come to a truck since he recorded "Tombstone Every Mile" in 1965 is the pickup camper he sometimes drives on singing tours in summer.

Now 39, and one of the top country singers, Curless still carries the truck driver look and likes it—big, rugged, deep-voiced and a black patch over his right eye.

POVERTY

In a hotel room and an hour before a singing engagement at a Portland nightclub, Curless sat cross-legged on a bed, relaxed and smoking.

In years, he's not that far removed from poverty, and his moorings to the past and his family are strong. He recalls his youth in Fort Fairfield in Northern Maine, and the boyhood autumns in the fields digging potatoes.

"That was the Depression Era, and not many people were working. My dad went to New Hampshire to look for work, but he didn't find any."

MOM'S SPIRIT

"Dad knew that Haynesville Woods Road too," Curless said. "He walked it. Walked most of the way back to Fort Fairfield from New Hampshire. He used to think Mom was the one who had spirit."

"He used to tell me, 'If I had your mother's guts and my frame, there's nothing I couldn't do.'"

His father, two inches shorter than the 6-foot-4 Curless, also played guitar and was a guiding influence on his son's future.

When Curless was a senior in high school, his father let him take money set aside for his class trip to New York and use it to buy boots and a cowboy-style hat and outfit.

There were 15 often lean years between then and 1965 when Curless met Dan Fulkerson, the Bangor songwriter he teamed up with for "Tombstone Every Mile."

"Tombstone" was a mournful tale of truck drivers who haul Maine potatoes to Boston in winter, along that 40-mile-long desolate road through southern Aroostook County.

PROUD OF IT

"I'm really proud of that song, because I worked so hard all my life trying to prove someone from Maine could sing country and western music. And make it."

"I had this being from Maine kicked in my face for years," Curless said.

The song had the power of a or touched my guitar," he said, with my guitar."

Curless has recorded 14 profitable albums since then, but fame has left its mark. He's almost blind in his right eye, has developed a back problem from bending his large frame down to low microphones and his calf muscles have contracted from wearing high-heeled western boots since he was 17.

But to Curless, fame is not as great a peril as to be back trucking on the Haynesville Woods Road.

COUP IT LAST PULLED OFF 20 YEARS AGO GOP Smells Victory In House Races

By MICHAEL O'CONNOR
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — The Republican Party is hoping this fall to gain control of the House of Representatives, a coup it last pulled off 20 years ago.

The Republican Campaign Committee, House arm of a Capitol Hill group established to work for the election of members of the GOP to Congress, is optimistic.

Minority Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan has made such a prediction based on his feeling that dissatisfaction among Democrats with the national ticket of Sens. George McGovern and Thomas Eagleton will have a broad coattail effect for President Nixon.

NEED LANDSLIDE

It would take a Nixon landslide to make Ford's prediction correct.

To take control — and to place Ford as speaker of the House — the party needs to make a net gain of 35 seats. No such large gain has been made since 1952 when Gen. Dwight Eisenhower captured the presidency and carried in a batch of new congressmen.

There are 435 seats in the House with all members up for re-election. Republicans hold 178 and the Democrats 255 with two vacancies.

ONLY TWO YEARS

In 1952, the last big year for House Republicans, the margin of control was 221-213. The control position lasted, however, for only two years.

Ford's optimism is based on GOP feeling in Washington that the McGovern-Eagleton ticket will be controversial enough to have a negative effect on the party's nominees for Congress. The optimism is also hedged on some practical factors which may have a larger bearing on makeup of the lower house than the duel for the presidency. They include:

1. A decision by the leadership of the AFL-CIO to siphon much of the money normally earmarked for the Democratic presidential nominee to assist party candidates in House and Senate races.

DEEP SOUTH

2. The increasing trend for states to elect Democrats in open congressional seats. The 1970 congressional elections produced 56 new faces in the House, including 33 Democrats.

3. The setting aside of at least 30 seats in the deep South, all of which are held by Democrats, as "nonattainable" this year.

4. Reapportionment of the House in most states which, because of legislative action favoring Democrats, is likely to produce a net gain for the majority.

STRONGEST GAINS

Where Republicans hope to make their strongest gains are in 22 districts which have been vacated in the 92nd Congress either by deaths, retirements or decisions of incumbents to seek higher office. A big push in these areas plus what Republicans feel will be a downturn in interest with McGovern and Eagleton could give the GOP a House momentum it has lacked for two decades, aides to Ford say.

The GOP will be coming off a less than satisfactory performance in 1970 elections when Democrats gained nine seats.

The Republicans, however, looked at this situation as a moral victory since the traditional off-year margin by a party out of power in the White House was limited to less than the 38-seat gain normally recorded.

The House Campaign Committee is expected to outline its strategy in key districts following the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach in August.

Fina's Earnings Show Big Gain

American Petrofina, Incorporated, reported Saturday that net income increased 44 per cent on a 2 per cent gain in sales in the first six months of 1972 as compared to the same period in 1971.

Net income for the six months ended June 30, amounted to $6,180,000, or 80 cents per share of common stock, compared with $4,324,000, or 56 cents per share, during the same period of 1971.

Cash flow for the six months was $14,658,000, equal to $1.91 per share in 1972 and $12,612,000, or $1.64 per share in 1971. Gross revenue was $138,124,000, as compared with $135,926,000 in the first half of 1971.

Second quarter results showed net income of $3,871,000, or 50 cents per share, up 67 per cent over the first quarter. Fina is the parent company of Cosden Oil and Chemical Co.

R. I. Galland, president, said that prices of products, particularly gasoline and polystyrene, were at depressed levels throughout the first half of the year. He noted, however, that current inventories are currently at low levels and demand has increased into substantial balance with productive capacity.

Results to date of the company's expanded 1972 drilling program have been good, of 14.9 net wells drilled, 9.6 are producers. One of these producing wells, the discovery well in Days Creek Field in Miller County, Ark., promises to be the most significant discovery in the company's history, according to Galland.

The initial well, producing through 15 feet of perforations in a 170-foot Smackover section, had a calculated open flow potential of more than 2,000 barrels per day. Limited by state proration, it has been flowing at 330 barrels per day of 45-degree gravity sweet oil through a 10-64th inch choke.

New York Visit: U.S. Beauties Wouldn't Want To Live There

By CIMA STAR
Copley News Service

NEW YORK — Morning strollers through Central Park did some double takes at the covey of beautiful girls in leotards doing a series of ballet exercises.

NEVER FORGET

The girls, however, were not fugitives from City Ballet, but five regional winners of the annual High School Cover Girl contest, sponsored by Coed magazine and the makers of Cover Girl cosmetics.

"I'll never (pant) forget this!" gasped Southwest winner, Jana Kerr, 16, of Savannah, Tenn.

"Neither will I!" seconded Far West and Canada winner, Mary Eastwood, 17, of Toronto, Canada.

All five girls, including Northeast winner, Donna Raab, 18, Floram Park, N.J.; Southwest, Margaret Bell, 17, Wichita, Kan.; and Midwest, Ena-Maria Timme, 17, of Cincinnati, Ohio, are tall, slim and lithe, but by the time the session was over they had a healthy respect for their instructors in exercise, girls from the Swedish Consulate.

EXERCISE

The exercise session was just one stop on a five-day, all-expense paid winners' visit to New York City. For all but Donna, this was a first visit to Manhattan, and the girls were unanimously awed by the sheer size of New York.

"We have skyscrapers in Cincinnati," said Ena-Maria, a blue-eyed beauty with sun-streaked hair, "but they're nothing like this." Ena-Maria's heart-shaped face and radiant smile contributed to her winning, at the end of the trip, the national title as High School Cover Girl of the Year.

All the girls are beautiful, but what impressed New Yorkers most was the striking contrast between these middle-American teen-agers and their big city counterparts.

The much publicized "Now" generation had no representatives among these girls, who pay for equal work. "Except for equal pay," said Margaret, a dimpled brunette, "I don't like Women's Lib at all. I think a woman should be feminine. I'd like to work for awhile after I'm married, just to help out."

"And if I were working, I wouldn't expect my husband to come home and just sit there and say 'serve me,' I'd expect him to share in the work."

MOST IMPORTANT

All the girls feel that "awareness" is the most important quality for a young woman to develop today.

"Because the more you are aware of what is going on in the world," explained Ena-Maria, who hopes to become a nature photographer, "the more your ignorance fades away, and the greater your ability to enjoy life."

Except for Margaret, who feels most 18-year-olds are "too immature," the girls are enthusiastic about the 18-year-old vote.

"It's great," said Mary. "It's our government, too."

The girls may be nonactivists, but they all believe in involvement. Ena-Maria works to recycle paper. Jana participates in the Cancer Crusade, Heart Fund and March of Dimes. Mary works with retarded children; Margaret took part in a Walk for Mankind, and Donna is secretary of Teen Functions, which organizes dances, a canteen club and a summer day camp for underprivileged youth.

FUN TO VISIT

Dazzled by the excitement of five days in New York, the girls were all talking about feeling "like Cinderella" by the time they boarded their planes for home. But none was really overwhelmed by big city life.

"I wouldn't want to live here," said Margaret. "But it sure is fun to visit," Jana smiled.

were chosen strictly on the basis of mailed in photographs. They see little generation gap, are totally against drugs, promiscuity, and outrageous behavior of any kind.

"Generation gap? No, not really," said Jana, a tall sultry brunette. "My values are no more different from my parents than theirs were from their parents. There is just the change you expect with time."

'FAIRLY TYPICAL'

Donna, captain of the cheerleader squad before her recent high school graduation, feels that she is "very much" like her parents.

"We share the same values and attitudes." "These may not be a statistically accurate sample of middle-American girlhood, but they all feel they are "fairly typical" of the girls in their home towns.

None are strong advocates of Women's Liberation, although they are adamant about equal-

Bloody Vendetta Turning Belfast Into City Of Fear

BELFAST (AP) — Terrorist assassins, both Protestant and Roman Catholic, have turned Belfast into a city of fear.

The British administrator in Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw, has expressed concern over the bloody vendetta that has left 31 persons dead and helped sabotage peace moves designed to end sectarian feuding.

MANY VANISH

Whitelaw says he will tighten security in the city with newly arrived troop reinforcements in an effort to cut down the killings, qualified sources said today. Police have set up a task force to hunt down the killers. The killers operate by night, often prowling the dimly lit streets in stolen cars, picking off their victims or kidnaping them.

Many victims simply vanish until their bodies, usually hooded and gagged, are found in back alleys or slumped in stolen cars.

Most are shot in the back of the head.

This month alone, 31 people have been shot down in "blind, motiveless murders," police say. Apart from the known victims of Irish Republican Army gunmen, more persons have died in the vendetta this month than were killed in terrorist bombings.

WALL OF SILENCE They include 17 Catholics and 13 Protestants. Another was an English student, apparently as-

Woman Crosses Ocean Alone

By PEACE MOFFAT
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — On June 12, 1971, Nicolette Milnes Walker climbed into her 30-foot sloop and set sail alone — from the southwest tip of Wales. On July 26, 45 days and 3,500 miles later, she brought her boat to port in Newport, R.I., and became the first woman to sail nonstop across the Atlantic Ocean.

BORED WITH JOB
What kind of woman would want to do a thing like that — endure the known physical and the unknown emotional hazards of facing the Atlantic alone on a small boat? And why?

"I really do think the reason I took this trip is that I was darned bored with my job, and I had to have a good reason to hand in my resignation," says Miss Walker, a petite 28-year-old woman, whose blue eyes are flecked with gold. Here to promote the book she wrote about her trip, "When I Put Out to Sea," she went on:
"I had been working in the city, had a lot of evenings at home, and started thinking about this trip. Before I knew it, I was making lists of what was needed and I had the thing organized."

had on a safety harness to keep from falling overboard. It would have made a funny Playboy photograph."
The noise from the sea and the boat were surprising, Miss Walker says. "There's always a slapping, and with bad weather, the whole boat shakes, and the water goes 'boom.'"
Time and space were sometimes distorted, this blonde sailor also reports. "I was always aware of what time it was for navigational purposes," she says, "but I had no sense of time happening — of time passing."

"I also felt I was in a small environment. The world of the Atlantic is quite a small world. There's about a six-mile horizon — with just the sea — blue, green and always a swell. I would look back and not be able to believe I had gone past 2,000 miles of ocean."
There were several severe storms during her trip, but not many times when Miss Walker says she thought she wasn't going to make it. "Those were only on occasions when I was in bad weather, and felt the boat might not last," she recalls.

Webb Veteran Retires And Takes Overseas Job

Chief Warrant Officer Henry D. Brewer ended 30 years of military service Friday afternoon during ceremonies at the flagpole in front of Wing Headquarters at Webb.
Thirteen of those 30 years have been at Webb, and for the past few years, Brewer has been the workload controller and special assistant to the chief of maintenance.
First arriving at Webb in August 1958, Brewer has left only once for a year in Korea.
It will not be a pipe-and-slippers retirement for him. Brewer has accepted a job as workload control manager for Northrop Aircraft Division at Alcozar, Saudi Arabia. There he will supervise maintenance for Northrop F-5 Freedom Fighters used in teaching Arab student pilots to fly.

HENRY BREWER

WORKED ON T-33
His first duty at Webb was as maintenance officer for T-33 Shooting Star jet trainers. In 1962 he became flight line maintenance and periodic section officer for the super-sonic T-38 Talons.
"Without a doubt, the biggest change I have seen at Webb came when we went to the T-38s. There was a tremendous challenge involved in getting the supply line flowing and training the ground crews," Mr. Brewer observed.
"I can remember at one time we had 85 T-38s on base and only three of them were operational," he went on.
As knowledge and abilities increased, the T-38 program made great progress, Mr. Brewer said. By 1966 sorties increased to a high of 240-plus per day.
"Webb has always had a winning team," Brewer said. "There is a winning personality here and the magnetism carries over to all the people assigned. Base-community relations are outstanding, and I've always wanted to be a part of that friendly spirit."

RE-ENTERS SERVICE
A native of Phoenix, Ariz., Brewer entered military service following his graduation from high school in 1940. His first assignment was as a member of a howitzer gun crew in the field artillery.
During the World War, he entered the Army Air Corps and was crew chief for many different aircraft, including C-47s, B-24s, and CG-4 gliders.
After the war he was discharged, but reentered the Air Force in December, 1947. He made warrant officer in 1952.
Along with his many Air Force medals and decorations, Brewer also wears the Vietnam Service Medal with two bronze stars and the Republic of Vietnam Campaign Medal. He also received the Meritorious Service Medal during his retirement ceremony.
Mr. and Mrs. Brewer have three children, Henry D. Jr., 24; Robert D., 21; and Patty D., 20.

Pollster Finds Sympathy Trend

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sindinger Research, a syndicated public opinion research firm, says about 60 per cent of those answering a telephone poll are sympathetic to Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Thomas Eagleton but think the Democratic ticket will be hurt because of his medical history.
In a report to be released today on the poll, Sindinger said the 60 per cent figure was arrived at through comments accompanying regular poll questions asked of the random sampling.
Albert E. Sindinger also said the reaction to the statement by columnist Jack Anderson saying Sen. Eagleton had twice been arrested for drunk driving was very negative.

Col. And Mrs. Ryan Are Honored By Local Friends

Col. and Mrs. Malcolm Ryan were honored at a dinner party at Big Spring Country Club Friday evening.
Col. Ryan, who has served the past year as wing commander at Webb, has been reassigned to command a wing at Randolph AFB.
Big Spring friends presented him and his wife, Lois, with a handsome silver service after Friday evening.

R. W. Whipkey, with aid of R. H. Weaver, Chamber of Commerce president, had made several facetious decorations to the departing commander. Mrs. Ryan, who had been pitcher for the base women's softball team, received a baseball glove.
"This is home," responded Col. Ryan. "No matter where you go in the military, there is only one first command, and you never forget it. You have made this the most memorable and the shortest year and a day of our lives."
Big Spring civilian couples were hosts to members of Webb's official party and their wives at a cocktail and social hour followed by the dinner.

Panel To Meet

The new tourism committee of the Chamber of Commerce has been convoked for a 3 p.m. meeting Thursday at the chamber office, according to Arnold Marshall, chairman.

Calling Moscow's Bluff: Mideast Moving Closer To War?

By ROBERT BETTS
Copley News Service

It's crisis time again in that dangerous game of international poker that keeps the Middle East on constant tension.

In evicting Russian military advisers from Egypt, President Anwar Sadat has called Moscow's bluff, pointing up the fact that it wanted only to maintain the tension, not at all to help the Arabs conquer Israel.

Is the chance of war enhanced or reduced? That depends on whether Sadat himself is bluffing when he says Egypt will fight Israel "alone if necessary."

ECONOMIC AID

To what extent the eviction of the military advisory group will affect further supplies of Russian arms and economic aid to Egypt also remains to be seen.

Since 1955, when the Soviets began pouring in sophisticated weapons, they have built up an enormous stake there, making it their springboard for penetration of the whole Middle Eastern, Mediterranean and Indian Ocean area.

Sadat says Soviet instructors will continue to serve with the Egyptian armed forces. Before he issued his expulsion order, there were an estimated 20,000 Russian military men, of which 5,000 were considered "advisers." There also are 10,000 Russians working on civil projects.

RADAR NETWORK

Soviet military installations and equipment remaining include a number of Russian-manned surface-to-air missile sites, a radar network, large air installations in Cairo West—once Britain's key base—and vast quantities of aircraft, rockets, artillery and tanks.

The disposition of Russian naval forces in and around Egyptian waters also remains unchanged. They have base facilities at Alexandria and Mersa Matruh.

According to the London-based Institute of Strategic Studies, Egypt has in all a 257,000-man army using mostly Soviet tanks and heavy guns, a 25,000-man air force with 523 combat aircraft—all Soviet-made—and a 14,000-man navy which has 12 submarines and four Soviet-built destroyers as its spearhead.

POKER FACE

Moscow maintained a poker face when Sadat's eviction order was announced. Moving to kill any speculation that Soviet-Egyptian relations had become strained, it blandly asserted that the withdrawal of the military advisory group has been agreed upon by the two governments because it had "completed its functions."

Sadat, playing the cards less close to his chest, admitted there had been disagreements with Moscow. Moscow's repeated refusals of Egyptian requests for more weapons had already made this clear.

Sadat's latest references to "independence" and his disavowal of Marxist leanings confirmed what was in fact increasingly evident—that the Arabs have become disillusioned with the Russians.

BRINK OF WAR

Moscow has armed the Arabs and encouraged them to the brink of another war with Israel. Then it has backed off, telling them they are too weak to take on that nation again, but denying them the offensive weapons they need to give them military superiority, and advising them that it would be in their best interest to seek peaceful settlement.

The last straw was the agreement Soviet leaders made with President Nixon in May, to limit arms shipments and work for a peaceful settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute. It seems finally to have convinced the Arabs that Russia has no intention of tipping the arms balance in their favor against U.S.-armed Israel.

"I have an occupied land. Do not involve men with the problems of the big powers!" fumed the frustrated Sadat.

He has become a prisoner of his own rhetoric. Repeatedly he has threatened vengeance against "arrogant" Israel for the humiliating defeat it inflicted on the Arabs in the Six-Day War of June, 1967. He has promised his own people again and again that the lost Arab land would be recaptured and that Arab honor would be redeemed, however much bloodshed it cost.

CRITICISM

Growing criticism, from army officers, rebellious students and others who are fed up with oratory and are demanding action, has made his position more precarious at home. His leadership of the Arab world is questioned, particularly in so-called progressive states like Libya, Syria and Algeria.

It has become increasingly embarrassing for him to be regarded as the joker in the pack while the big powers continue their highstakes play for influence over the strategic area.

His drastic effort to loosen the Russian grip was followed up by more fulmination against the United States. He called for an Arab-wide campaign against American interests in the Middle East.

Cairo regards the United States as just as much an enemy as Israel.

"Without American aid," said Sadat, "Israel would not have found the bread to feed its people in the morning."

Despite his belligerent tone and the continuing sporadic attacks across the Suez Canal, there are many observers close to the scene who think all-out war can be avoided.

EXPULSION

Arab political analysts in Beirut believe the expulsion of the Russian advisers could lead to better relations between Cairo and Washington, and conceivably open the way to peace talks between the Arabs and Israel. They hold that the United States alone can put pressure on Israel, and that Sadat's action pulled the rug from under Israel's claims for massive U. S. support as the only bulwark against Soviet penetration of the region.

According to one report from Jerusalem, quoting "Western diplomatic sources," Sadat already has made overtures to the United States in hopes of reviving efforts toward a partial settlement.

The danger is that Sadat, in his present mood, may decide on a more face-saving formula to show the world that he was not bluffing after all.

The Israeli, while keeping up

LIFE FOR 10 MEN WILL NEVER BE THE SAME

Journey To Moon Soul-Bending Experience

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — They went to the moon, explored its desolation and the mystery of the heavens beyond. They returned home as changed men.

Somehow in that timeless, lifeless land they found a new understanding of themselves, their earth and of mankind.

Ten men have made that trip and, in one way or another, all have felt it change their lives.

For James B. Irwin of Apollo 15, it was a trip that lent "a new appreciation of everything we have on earth."

He quietly left the astronaut corps and now teaches engineering at the University of Cincinnati.

AMBITION, PROFIT

Some were less affected, or chose to be. Apollo 12's Charles Conrad turned his attention back to earth, his home, and to future space missions. He is concentrating on the space shuttle which may not fly until the 1980s and is slated to command the first flight of Skylab, the orbiting scientific laboratory due for space next spring.

The trip to the moon seems to alter visions of grandeur, ambition, profit.

Irwin, and his fellow Apollo 15 astronauts David Scott and Alfred Worden, carried 400 unauthorized stamps covers to the moon, the space agency alleges, for a dealer. They were to profit $21,000 from the lunar smuggling, but when they returned from the flight they had a change of heart. They admitted their misdeed and were reprimanded.

Most of the returned moon walkers, when thinking of their experience, talk more of the earth than of the moon.

CHRISTMAS

Their quarter of a million mile journey through space carried them so far from home that the earth appeared, as John Young of Apollo 16 observed, "small enough to cover up with your thumb." To Irwin, earth was "a Christmas tree ornament hanging in space."

They talk of the awesome size of the universe, the smallness of earth and of the majestic symmetry of the whole of creation.

Irwin views it as an overpowering religious experience, one that he feels compelled to tell others about.

The astronaut retires from the space corps and the Air Force in August and plans to start a ministry, or, as he calls it, "a witness", of his faith in God that was freshened and made more real by his trip to the moon.

BEAUTY OF EARTH

"I talk about the beauty of the earth and the different types of beauty of the moon," says Irwin, in explaining his message. "We all came back with new understandings and new perceptions. We are keenly aware of the necessity for all men to work together on the planet so it may continue its travel through space peacefully just as we traveled through space."

Irwin said the new awareness came over him gradually, after the mission as he grasped all that he had seen and done.

"It's made me a warmer, more human person," said Irwin. "I used to be strictly a nuts and bolts type of guy with not a great deal of thought about individuals. Now I've become more of a humanitarian in my outlook."

Irwin is forming a foundation to organize and finance his ministry. He said a group of Baptist ministers, including Dr. Billy Graham, have agreed to advise him.

FACE OF GOD

There's no name for the foundation as yet, but the astronaut hopes to use "Highlight", the name of a poem about a pilot who, in his ecstasy of flying, felt he "put out his hand and touched the face of God."

Mitchell feels nearly the same about his moon mission.

"I would say my experience was similar to Jim's, but I cannot possibly use the words he uses," says Mitchell. "Instead, it's an identification with mankind, with the universe, the concept of oneness with all mankind."

Mitchell also has resigned from the astronaut corps and plans to retire this fall. He also will create an organization, but it will concentrate on the study of psychic phenomena.

The astronaut conducted a test of extra-sensory perception during his moon voyage and called it a conditional success.

HEALER

Shortly after his mission Mitchell was divorced from his wife and now devotes much of his time to research into psychic phenomena. He recently claimed that a woman friend was cured of a long-time kidney ailment after contact with a "healer." Mitchell doesn't claim the cure came as a result of the healer, but that "something happened" that should be investigated scientifically.

His organization, as yet unnamed and in a state of "delicate negotiations," will investigate such phenomena, he says.

Mitchell said his trip to the moon and back has "changed my point of view toward humanities and the need to help people on earth learn to solve their problems in harmony and peace. It's become a very real crusade for me. But I do not identify that with a religious belief, but with a philosophic concept ... You can characterize it as a search for truth with a capital T."

"I recognize the universe as an orderly, harmonious place," he said. "The intelligence and consciousness of man are part of that."

TAKE A LOOK

Shepard, the first American in space and the commander of Apollo 14, found his moon mission expanded his awareness.

He said it tended to lift his sights beyond the confines of day-to-day life.

"It's awfully easy for everybody to become parochial," he said. "You get to thinking that the county is the center of the universe."

But on a moon mission, "you get the chance to back away and look at the whole thing."

"Part of this is really trying to visualize how big the universe is, how small our solar system is, and how many light years away the nearest star is even in our own galaxy," said Shepard. "When you look away from the earth and look at it, you realize it's pretty insignificant after all ... It is in fact a very fragile planet."

"I think everybody has feelings along these lines," he said.

Shepard has changed in other more subtle ways. Gone is the brusque, sometimes abrasive attitude noted prior to his mission. There is a feeling about him now of contentment.

MASTER PILOT

He has achieved enough for several careers. Shepard was the first American in space. He has walked the moon. He achieved wealth through investments. And Shepard, who fought in World War II aboard a ship, has become an admiral in the Navy.

Such contentment was denied Aldrin, the second man on the moon. He was a single-minded engineer, a master pilot.

Shortly after his Apollo 11 flight, Aldrin felt himself sinking into despondency. He told a reporter he felt for the first time a great indecision. He dreaded public appearances and felt listless. The Air Force passed him over for star rank.

Aldrin quit the astronaut corps and assumed command of Edwards Air Force Base. But his problem continued and he sought psychiatric help. He has since retired from the Air Force.

Now he talks frankly of his illness and is writing his autobiography, to be entitled "Return to Earth."

For Conrad, his Apollo 12 mission to the moon is a thing of the past, a grand memory, but tomorrow is where the excitement lies.

STUFF IN ATTIC

The balding, fast-talking astronaut displays only a few memories from the flight at his home, although "there are piles of stuff in the attic."

He ducks personal appearances when he can and prefers to spend time with his family as he did before instead of "going to some banquet where they're honoring me. Some people don't understand this."

"I don't want to sound not appreciative of all the nice things that people did for me," says Conrad, a three-time space veteran. "But that's not the only thing that makes the world go 'round'."

Conrad views his experience and his generation of space pilots as only stepping stones for the next generation.

"There's some kid out there who's six years old today who's gonna look at me like I looked at aviators like Lindbergh," he said. "He's gonna look at us like I look at the old guys with the silk scarves and goggles whom I still admire."

City Park Chess: Shot In The Arm For Oldster

By GEORGE RAMOS
Copy News Service

LOS ANGELES — An old chess buff, sporting a long, white beard, stared at the chessboard and scratched his head.

After some thought, he checked the local newspaper for a few moments and then reviewed his pieces on the board.

Shaking his head, he checked the newspaper one more time. This time, his disgust became audible.

"I don't see how Fischer does it," he muttered, throwing away the newspaper, which had move-by-move accounts of the Bobby Fischer-Boris Spassky chess battle in Reykjavik, Iceland.

LARGE CROWDS

The old chess buff's opponent just sat there and grinned. But before the opponent made his next move, he checked his newspaper.

Persons who frequent the two favorite Los Angeles meccas — Pershing Square and MacArthur Park — report the number of chess matches there has increased to more than 30 matches at one time. Ordinarily, only three or four matches go on all day without the aid of a daily newspaper.

Furthermore, larger than usual crowds are reported daily at the two parks to watch the senior citizens in action.

The oldsters, who take their chess seriously, seem to take satisfaction from the larger crowds.

CAN'T TRUST REDS

"I come to MacArthur Park every day to play chess," one old-timer scowled. "Where were all these people then?"

"Fischer." He'll beat that Russian. Can't trust the Russians, you know."

Another oldster, who has been playing chess since 1907, took dead aim at Bobby Fischer's behavior in Iceland.

"I don't like the way Fischer is acting," said Samuel Frumkin, bent over his pieces.

"He's been uncontrollable since he was a kid. I really don't care who wins, all I'm looking for is mastership."

Other senior citizens preferred not to talk about the Fischer-Spassky matches and concentrate on their game or talk about the weather.

CAN'T REMEMBER

While deploring Fischer's behavior, most of the senior chess players agree the 29-year-old Brooklyn native will win.

They also believe the matches have been a shot in the arm for chess.

But most importantly, they hope it's a shot in the arm for them, too.

"You know," one oldster said, "I haven't seen my son in years. All these people to watch us play, he might just come to see me play."

"Can't remember, though, if I taught him how to play chess."

BIG SPRING HERALD

SEC. B BIG SPRING, TEXAS, SUNDAY, JULY 30, 1972 SEC. B

TROPHY PRESENTED — Tournament Director Jimmy Felts presents the trophy to the Big Spring Red Sox after the High-Noon Optimist-sponsored club won the District-5 Sophomore League Tournament Saturday night. The Red Sox will represent Big Spring in the State Tournament at Euless. Team Manager Bill Battle accepts the trophy.

OUT AT THIRD — Red Sox Mike Warren is tagged out by San Angelo American Rudy Hinojosa as Warren slides into third base in third inning action in the championship game of the District-5 Sophomore League Tournament at Johnny Stone Park Saturday night. The Red Sox won the tournament and will advance to the State Tournament at Euless.

Moore Hurls Sox To Tourney Win

The Hi-Noon Optimist Red Sox of the Big Spring Sophomore League took advantage of some poor fielding and wild pitching on the part of the San Angelo Police and Firemen's Association to take a 7-3 win and capture the District Five championship Saturday night.

The victory made it possible for a Big Spring team to go to the state tournament for the first time in seven years.

San Angelo pitchers walked eight batters while their fielders committed two errors plus several passed balls.

Big Spring put the victory away with a five-run fifth inning after San Angelo had pushed across a run in the top of the inning to take the lead for the second time in the game.

In the fifth, Mike Warren led off the inning by grounding out to third base. Eddie Vela followed with a strikeout, but he took first when the ball got away from the catcher. Dick attle then walked, and Ray Don single. Vela singled Warren followed with another walk. Mark Moore, who was the winning pitcher, singled to score two runs. Pat Carroll singled home, and advanced to second on the play at the plate while Moore was taking third. San Angelo catcher Todd Butts tried to pick Moore off at third out the ball got past third baseman David Flores to allow both runs to score. That provided the final score of 7-3.

The two teams had swapped a pair of runs in the first inning. Angelo started out when Orville Jackson walked, and Ted Butts hit a sharp ground ball to shortstop that was mishandled for an error. John Jeske struck out, out Jackson and Butts stole first and second respectively while he was doing it. Todd Butts singled to chase both runs home.

Big Spring countered in the bottom of the inning when Warren led off the inning with a single. Vela singled Warren around to third. Vela then second base to set the stage for Box who delivered with a two-run single.

San Angelo's run in the fifth came after David Flores had grounded out second to first to start the inning. Jackson walked again (he was given three free passes to first in the game) and advanced to second when Moore tried to pick him off at first. Ted Butts grounded out to second, and Jackson took third. John Jeske then beat out an infield hit to score Jackson with the go-ahead run.

BS Teams In Tournament

MIDLAND — Two Big Spring teams are involved in the Slowpitch Softball Tournament being held here. In the opening rounds, Big Spring Jaycees defeated Midland Mufflers, 8-3. Big Spring Baroid lost to the Midland Roughnecks, 6-3.

A third Big Spring team, St. Paul's Lutheran, failed to show for its game and lost on a forfeit.

Baroid will advance to the second round in the loser's bracket with the Jaycees advancing in the winner's bracket. Competition will continue today with the finals scheduled to get under way at 6:30 p.m.

Robinson's HR Gives Birds Win

BALTIMORE (AP) — Brooks Palmer's first pitch in the top of the ninth gave Cleveland a 3-2 lead. But pinch hitters came through in the Baltimore half of the inning with a double and single, respectively, making it 3-3.

Frank Duffy's first major league home run gave Cleveland a 2-0 lead against Palmer in the second inning. Duffy connected with one out after Chris Chambliss had drawn a leadoff walk.

The Orioles scored their first run in the fifth. Palmer drove it in with a single following Elie Hendricks' single and a walk to Dave Johnson.

Larry Bowa Leads Phils Past Pirates

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Larry Bowa drove in two runs and scored twice to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the first game of a twilight doubleheader Saturday.

The Phillies took command with three runs in the fourth inning off loser Steve Blass, 11-5. John Bateman singled with two out and moved up as winning pitcher. Woodie Fryman walked. Denny Doyle singled for one run and Bowa singled to score Fryman and Doyle.

Bowa scored the Phillies' first run in the opening inning when he combined with Tommy Hutton on a double steal and continued home when catcher Manny Sanguillen threw wildly to third. Bowa singled to open the third, took third base on Hutton's single and scored the tie-breaking run as Greg Luzinski grounded out.

Pittsburgh scored once in the first as Dave Cash forced Gene Clines after a single, stole second and scored on Sanguillen's single. Willie Stargell hit his 22nd home run of the season to make it 5-2 in the sixth.

Hiskey-Zarley Duo Leads Tournament

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — Babe Hiskey and Kermit Zarley, college teammates at Houston a decade ago, combined for a five-under-par 66 and a one-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $200,000 PGA national Team Championship.

Hiskey and Zarley had a 54-hole total of 196, 17 under par on the 7,045-yard Laurel Valley Golf Club course.

Scoring in this event is based on the better ball of each two-man team.

Gibby Gilbert and Lanny Wadkins, tied for first when play started on the bright and sunny day, fell one stroke back with a 67-197.

Arnold Palmer and new partner Jack Lewis all but counted themselves out after managing only a 67 for 205, a distant nine strokes off the lead going into the final round.

Palmer teamed with Jack Nicklaus to win the last two titles but he was left without a partner this time when Nicklaus had to withdraw because of a badly infected right index finger.

Palmer tabbed the 25-year-old Lewis, winner of only $1,400 this season, as a last-minute replacement. He admitted Saturday that his chances of repeating as champion on his home course were "almost impossible."

Two teams, South African Gary Player and veteran Bob Rosburg, and Buddy Allin and Al Geiberger, were tied for third at 200, 13 under par. The Allin-Geiberger team had a 67, Player-Rosburg 68.

At 201 were Frank Beard and Deane Beman, Charles Sifford and Bob Stone, and Bob Barbarossa and Ralph Johnson. Barbarossa-Johnson had a 66, Sifford-Stone 67 and Beard-Beman 70.

British Open champ Lee Trevino and teammate Ray Floyd failed to qualify for the final two rounds.

Yanez Gets Call; Faces Abilene Eagles

Adam Yanez gets the call as the Big Spring Tiger Cubs host the Abilene Eagles at Steer Park today. Game time is 2 p.m.

Yanez will be hurling to a team which has run up a 14-8 record this season. Yanez's battery-mate will be catcher Jessie Olague.

The infield for the Tiger Cubs will have Oscar Cervantes at first, Louis Parras at second, Gilbert Pesina at third and Clarence Byrd at shortstop.

Other Tiger Cubs who may see action are Salome Rias, Johnny Munoz, David Arguello and Joe Pesina.

Ready for relief action, should Yanez get into trouble on the mound, are Earl Weeks, Ysmael Paderez and Mike Gamboa.

YMCA Wins Tournament

Mike Eaton captured first place honors as he led his YMCA team to victory in a ping-pong tournament at Webb AFB Saturday.

Jeffery Edmundson of Webb was second. Pat Owens of the YMCA was third in the tournament.

Also playing for the YMCA team were Dave Scott R and Reggie Traywick.

Mrs. Ellen Gladden served as hostess for the base team.

PODOLAK DIVES FOR FIVE — Kansas City's Ed Podolak dives into the New York Giants line for a five-yard gain during the first quarter of Saturday's Hall of Fame football game in Canton, Ohio. Bringing down Podolak were New York's Pat Athas (45) and Pat Hughes (56).

'Don't Call Us, We'll Call You' SMU Tells Scholarship Players Not To Report

DALLAS (AP) — Some Southern Methodist University scholarship football players—perhaps as many as 20—have been told not to report for the start of school and to draw only shoes and shorts. The players were told to work out on their own on a "we'll call you if we need you" basis, the newspaper said.

Fry was out of the city and not immediately available for comment.

There is nothing illegal by Southwest Conference law about the directive. The players will remain on scholarship, but some of the players believe the move was designed to encourage them to leave school and give up their grant-in-aids.

"They're trying to run us off trying to get us to give up our scholarships," said one player, who agreed to talk anonymously. Three other players and the father of a player talked to The Times Herald under the same agreement.

"We were told they were bringing in the freshmen to work with the varsity and they needed to cut back the size of the squad. What they are trying to do is cut expenses and get some players to give up their scholarships."

One player said, "We were told medical expenses and taping would run too high with such a large squad. Everything out there has to do with a cut in expenses."

Another player said, "Expenses are the only thing important to them now. They don't think about friendships that have been built up and what this means to a person who has worked as hard as he can possibly work."

The same player added, "When I heard I had a long-distance telephone call from Dallas I was hoping it was an SMU coach calling to say there had been some change in plans."

Every player made reference to expenses, which ties in with a directive the SMU athletic department received from the school's board of governors earlier this year. Fry was told to slash expenditures for the 1972-73 school year.

The players who talked to The Times Herald were red-shirts, players who were held out of competition last year.

"I really don't know for sure how many players were told not to come back," said one. "I would guess between 15 and 20. We weren't told until just before school was out. We really won't know how many, or how many quit until school starts."

May Leads Astros By Bums, 7-2

HOUSTON (AP) — Lee May drove in four runs, three with a homer, to power the Houston Astros past the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-2 in National League baseball action Saturday night.

Six of the Astros' runs were unearned, including two in a first-inning rally and four in the seventh when May hit his 21st homer of the year.

Third baseman Bobby Valentine's throwing error opened the door for the Astros' first-inning rally as they struck for a pair of runs on May's single and Bob Watson's triple.

In the seventh, pitcher Pete Mikkelsen's fumble on Roger Metzger's bouncer allowed Tom Griffin to score from second base. After Jimmy Wynn walked, May delivered his homer to cap the rally and give the Astros their eventual winning margin.

Pastorini Shines In Scrimmage

KERRVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Quarterback Dan Pastorini completed 9 of 13 passes for 78 yards and receiver Charlie Joiner caught passes of 23 and 26 yards to highlight a one-hour Houston Outer scrimmage Saturday.

Running back Woody Campbell scored the session's only touchdown on a 3-yard run to cap a 70-yard drive. Campbell and rookie Paul Magalski of Florida State were the leading ground gainers with 21 yards each.

"The pass protection was better Saturday," head coach Bill Peterson said. "We had a couple of offside that cost us touchdowns, but the team as a whole was more consistent."

"The defense was hitting real good, but some of the linemen were having to go all the way because we're just critical at some positions."

WILLIAMS, HUNDLEY STAR Cubs Nip Cardinals, 3-2

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Williams drove in one run with a sacrifice fly, doubled and scored another and Randy Hundley hit a home run to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 3-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday in a nationally-televised baseball game.

Williams put the Cubs ahead 1-0 in the first inning when he hit his sacrifice fly after Rick Monday singled, stole second and took third on an infield out.

The Cardinals tied it in the top of the fourth when Ted Sizemore singled, stole second, went to third on an infield out and scored on Joe Torre's sacrifice fly.

Chicago regained the lead in the bottom of the fourth as Williams led off with a double, advanced to third on the second of three singles by Joe Pepitone and scored on Ron Santo's sacrifice fly.

Bill Hands, 8-7, and the Cubs got out of a serious jam in the seventh. Ted Simmons singled and went to third on a single by Bernie Carbo. Jose Cruz then grounded to Santo at third, who threw to second for a force play and then Simmons was caught in a rundown between third and home for a double play.

Hundley cracked his fourth homer in the bottom of the seventh.

The Cardinals scored an unearned run in the eighth when Lou Brock singled and stole second. Ted Sizemore then singled to deep short and when Don Kessinger threw wildly past first, Brock scored. Steve Hamilton replaced Hands and got Matty Alou to line into an inning-ending double play.

Jack Aker pitched the last inning for the Cubs to save the game for Hands. St. Louis starter Rick Wise, 10-11, was the loser.

Four - Run Outburst Lifts Yanks To Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Murcer, Gene Michael and Hal Lanier delivered run-scoring hits as the New York Yankees scored four times in the first inning Saturday and went on to defeat the Boston Red Sox 8-1.

Their eighth victory in the last 11 games lifted the fourth-place Yankees to within one-half game of Boston in baseball's American League East and pushed them over the .500 mark for the first time all season.

Boston starter John Curtis, 6-4, began his own downfall in the opening inning by loading the bases on walks with one out. Murcer drove in the first two runs with a bouncing single up the middle that skipped under Curtis' glove and over the glove of shortstop Juan Beniquez.

After Ron Swoboda struck out, Michael singled and Lanier doubled, each driving in a run. Mike Kekich, 10-9, went the route for only the second time this season. He allowed five hits, including Carlton Fisk's 18th home run in the fifth inning.

The Yankees added a run off Curtis in the fourth on Horace Clarke's double and a single by Thurman Munson. They jumped on Stan Williams for two in the fifth on Felipe Alou's double, an infield hit by Murcer, Michael's groundout and a single by Hal Lanier. Clarke walked in the sixth and came around with the eighth New York run on a stolen base, infield out and wild pitch.

Oakland Rips Minnesota, 7-2

OAKLAND (AP) — Reggie Jackson blasted a pair of home runs and Joe Rudi added a three-run shot to give the Oakland A's a 7-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

After Ted Kubiak's run-scoring double gave Jim Hunter a 1-0 lead, in the first inning, Jackson padded it with a bases-empty homer, his 19th, in the third.

Jackson then drilled a 400-footer off relief pitcher Jim Strickland in the seventh with no one aboard as the A's rallied for four runs in that frame to pull away from a 3-1 lead. Rudi connected for his 11th homer in that frame.

YMCA Announces Schedule Changes

The Big Spring YMCA is wrapping up its summer programs. Prior to the winter program activities, the YMCA has announced the change in the schedule for the period beginning July 31 and running through August 19.

According to YMCA Physical Education Director Pat Owens, the YMCA will operate Monday through Saturday. Elementary school children will have recreation swimming from 9:30-11:30 a.m. Monday-Friday. Junior High and above will have recreation swimming from 1:30-4:30 p.m. Family Swim Nite for parents and children will be Monday and Friday from 7:8-45 p.m.

Family night for the gymnasium will be Friday from 7:8-45 p.m.

Owens said the rest of the physical education department daily schedule will remain the same. The swim team will have the same schedule as well as the special interest classes.

The new schedule for the winter program activities will be completed and mailed to YMCA members as soon as possible, according to Owens.

Age 18 and over. Prepare now for U. S. Civil Service job openings during the next 12 months. Government positions pay high starting salaries. They provide much greater security than private employment and excellent opportunity for advancement. Many positions require little or no specialized education or experience.

But to get any of these jobs, you must pass a test. The competition is keen and in some cases only one out of five pass.

Lincoln Service has helped thousands prepare for these tests every year since 1942. It is one of the largest and oldest privately owned schools of its kind and is not connected with the Government.

BS Kiwanis Ousted From Tournament

SAN ANGELO — Big Spring Kiwanis was eliminated in the Texas Teenage Baseball Association Hi Junior District Six tournament here Friday as it fell to the Midland Mavericks, 1-0.

The loss was the second for Kiwanis in the double elimination tournament. Thursday, it dropped an 8-6 decision to Odessa Radiator Service.

Kiwanis outthit Midland, 4-2, in the game, but losing pitcher Duron surrendered five walks compared to one by Brosig, the winning pitcher.

Midland scored its lone run in the top of the seventh inning. The run was unearned. Kiwanis committed four errors in the game.

Paradez, the center fielder for Big Spring, led Kiwanis with two hits in three at bats. No Midland player had more than one hit.

Three Added To BS Staff

Big Spring High School Athletic Director Clovis Hale announced the addition of three coaches to the coaching staff recently. Joining the staff are Jerry Grider, Larry Horton and Lorenzo Monroe.

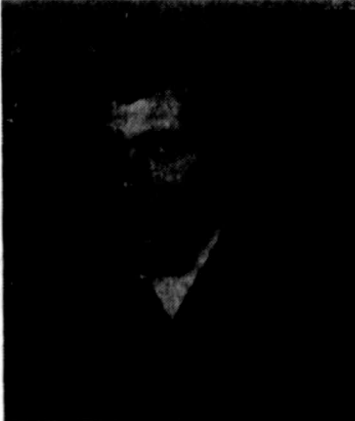

Grider, 30, is a native of Abilene and a graduate of North Texas State University. He also received his masters at NTSU. He will coach the varsity backs in football and will be the head track coach.

Horton and his wife Sandy have no children. Monroe is a January, 1972, graduate of Angelo State University. He will be the seventh-grade football coach at Runnels Jr. High. He is from Roscoe.

coach and the defensive back-field coach in football at Beeville. He and his wife Sandy have one son, Jerry Lance. Horton will coach the defensive interior linemen and will be head baseball coach. He is a 1965 graduate of Roswell, N.M., High School and the University of Texas. He played baseball at Texas and one year professionally. Horton has coached at Corpus Christi Moody for the past two years.

RANGER PITCHER

Hand Cites Changes As Key

ARLINGTON, Texas — Rich Hand attributes two drastic changes in his makeup as the key to a rather remarkable 8-6 pitching record for the Texas Rangers.

"I decided that I had to stop pitching scared and add, or concentrate, on another pitch," said the 23-year old righthander after he had taken over the won-lost lead for the American League club.

Hand said he sought out the aid of veteran bullpen coach George Susce to help perfect a fork ball. That worked. Hand's fork ball, thrown from full overhand, breaks sharply downward.

"It has to be my best weapon although my fast ball and breaking stuff are primarily my bread-and-butter pitches," said Hand.

Hand explains his change of mental attitude thusly: "I think the big change came about when I was sent down to Denver early in the season. I decided that I'd just forget about losing, or throwing a bad ball, and simply relax. I started reaching back, turning loose the pitch, and forgetting everything else. That, too, worked."

Now Hand, who is in only his fifth season of pro ball, is in position to win at least 15 games this season.

"NOT OUT OF REASON" — "That shouldn't be out of reason," explained the Seattle native. "I'll get enough starts this last half to easily make it if the guys will give me some runs."

Hand came to the Rangers along with lefty Mike Paul in an off-season trade that sent Del Unser and four other players to Cleveland. Hand was 2-6 at Cleveland in 1971 after pitching an 8-2 mark with Wichita, including a no-hitter.

Rangers Ted Williams has been impressed with the hand-some blond stalwart since he showed up at the Texans' Pompano Beach, Florida, spring camp.

"I'll never forget Hand's first comment to me," recalls Williams. "He came up and said, 'I don't know who this club sent to Cleveland for me but they got the best deal.'"

Hand has shown enthusiasm, dedication, and most of all in Williams' way of thinking, a little bit of extra confidence, a touch of cockiness.

Hand has pitched 101 innings in 18 games, struck out 64 and walked 59. He has an earned run average of 2.41, best among the starters, and lists two complete games.

FORD'S ONE GOAL — Moon-faced Ted Ford has one goal as he plays the outfield for the Texas Rangers other than hit the ball hard and win ball games.

"I'm trying to prove some things to some people in the Cleveland organization and the only way I can do that is play every day," said the stocky 25-year old Theodore Henry Ford, Jr.

When he was a member of the Indians organization Ford, a native of Vineland, N. J., where he was a letterman in the high school as a baseball, basketball and football player, pressed for every day duty in the outfield but his pleas fell on deaf ears.

"I told them I could hit up here in the big leagues if they would just give me an opportunity. It was clear they didn't have much faith in me because I never got a good shot at a regular job although I hit .326 and .329 in successive seasons at the Indians Triple-A farm club in Wichita," said the squatty righthanded slugger.

EARLY-SEASON DEAL — Ford was acquired by the Rangers in a deal early in the season that sent Tom McCraw and temperamental Roy Foster, an outfielder who wanted to return to Cleveland, Foster was in the pre-season deal that brought Ken Suarez, Rich Hand, and Mike Paul to the Texans for Del Unser and two other players.

When Ford, who then was at Wichita, became Ranger property there wasn't an opening on the big club roster so he went to the TRIPLE A farm club at Denver. Ford quickly displayed a potent and Bears manager Del Wilber suggested he be moved up.

BENEFIT CONTEST All-Stars Meet Brass

The Ladies Softball League All-Stars will meet the Big Brass in a fund-raising game Sunday evening at Webb.

The event is to help collect funds for the U.S. Olympic Committee as part of Operation Munich.

Playing for the Big Brass will be Wing Commander Col. Malcolm E. Ryan, team captain; deputy commanders Col. Ronald Catton and Col. William Kilpatrick; Lt. Col. (Dr.) Sidney Curtis, hospital commander; SMSgt. Walter Purgeson, base senior airman advisor, and many others.

The women's team will be made up of players selected from the Pink Panthers, Southern Bells, Sanddusters and Sunshines. More than one husband will be pitted against his wife in this diamond showdown. For example, Lois Ryan, the wing commander's wife, will be pitching.

The game will be played by 1972 Slow Pitch Softball rules and will be umpired by volunteers MSgt. Joe Gomez and TSgt. Pete Gomez (no relation).

To help keep things even, the men will be playing under a slight handicap, which will be determined before game time.

The public is urged to attend the 7:30 p.m. game. A $1 donation will be requested from spectators, all going to the Olympic fund for the American team.

Members of the All-Stars teams, which were announced recently, are Kay Kaiser, Fran Portel, Irene Nikkila, Marsha Crawley, Mary Hilliard, Peggy Linberg, Debbie Jackson, Ruth Simcox, Mary Jane Brown and Bobbi Lord on Team A.

Team B All-Stars were Charlotte Jennings, Anthony Conwell, Debbie Davis, Jamie Caton, Christi Johnson, Lois Ryan, Carol Brown, Debby Addy, Paulette Buskirk and Rose Davis.

Cardinals On Road; Face Snyder

The Big Spring Cardinals travel to Snyder today for a single game against the Snyder Redlegs.

The contest will be the last one for the Cards before their important intra-city encounter with the Big Spring Tiger Cubs next Sunday at Steer Park.

Starters for the Cards include Sammy Rodriguez of Felix Martinez at shortstop, Benny Marquez or Abel Ramirez in right field, Jimmy Pjero at second base, Jessie Zapata in left field, Andy Gamboa in center field, Billy Pineda at third base, Joe Martinez at catcher, Pat Martinez at first base and either Jody Florez or Orlando Otague on the mound.

Tony Fierro and Joe Cadenhead will be available for relief help should they be needed.

Big Spring is 17-0 for the season.

Astros Sell Hiatt

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros of the National League said Saturday they had sold catcher Jack Hiatt to the California Angels of the American League for cash or a player to be named later.

Durocher Bids Farewell To Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — "Retired?" smiled Leo Durocher. "By no means."

Durocher, who earlier this week had stepped aside as manager of the Chicago Cubs, was bantering with reporters Saturday.

He had just given a brief farewell speech to his former players, many of whom had said they would rather not play for Durocher.

But Leo, never one to turn his back on anything, faced them one more time.

"I talked to them as a group and I shook hands with them and 'adieu,'" Durocher said. "I wished them the best, not for just now, but also in the future."

Then Durocher reminisced. He told stories of Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Miller Huggins, Branch Rickey, Ty Cobb and other baseball legends. He spoke of his scrapes and his controversial character.

"If I crossed the street on the right side," laughed Durocher, "there'd always be someone to ask why I didn't cross on the left side. That's how it's been for 45 years. It's just a way of life with me, I guess."

Durocher appeared gracious, and well rested. He said, "There was never any contract between me and Mr. (P.K.) Wrigley. Only a handshake. And in that handshake there was a mutual agreement which did not include the word fire."

"I've already had some interesting offers. No, not in baseball. No I'm not interested in going back to sportscasting. But there's no hurry. I'm not going anywhere. I can take my time."

Then Durocher proudly pulled a telegram out of his pocket and asked someone to read it. It was from catcher Randy Hundley, who thanked Durocher for "giving me a chance to play" and "enjoy your retirement, give my best to your lovely family."

Asked about the telegram later, Hundley said, "I didn't send it for show. I just like the guy. I can't help it."

Durocher said he was pleased that Whitey Lockman, one of his former players on the old New York Giants, had been chosen his successor.

Short Supply Of Fishermen

Fishermen were in somewhat short supply last week at Lake E. V. Spence, but not the fish. Jerry Hammond, Colorado City, landed a pair of black bass weighing 2½ pounds each. Bob Rankin, Nolan, came in with 12 white bass weighing two pounds on the average.

F. D. Christensen, Big Spring, caught 20 channel cat up to 2½ pounds. Dale Byrd, Big Spring, had five black bass going up to 2½ pounds, while Hawley West, Big Spring latched on to two black bass at 2½ pounds each. Tom Guin, Big Spring, found catching sunfish was a lot of fun and hooked upwards of 150 of these.

J. W. Stewart, Odessa, came in with a string of 45 channel cat weighing up to 2½ pounds.

Patrolmen said that the lake was clear and waters smooth during the past week.

CARROL RIGHTER

SUNDAY, JULY 30, 1972

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day for you but which you know very little about. You are able to expand your horizons far beyond their present boundaries and others can see you are a person of considerable worth.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Forget a rat you are in and go out with congenials for fun and relaxation. Make appointments with pals early in the morning. Show that you are an intellectual.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Important matters with those who live with you so that mutual affairs work out harmoniously. Do some entertaining and make a fine impression.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are most appreciated. Talk over with good pals now you can become more effective in routine matters.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You now know how to add to your present abundance through new acquisitions. Talk over with good pals. Visit with good friends tonight if you feel harassed in the night.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are able to find the right persons who can help you in a modern way. A long-distance telephone call could be very helpful to you. Discuss an important matter with a friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Your intuition tells you how to make the most of your past experiences, especially if you get together with people who think in a modern way. Evening is a fine time for romance with mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are now able to get your views across with an associate if you permit a good friend to intervene who has the ability to persuade. Make the projects you are working out successfully.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle work ahead of you in such a fine fashion that you make a big impression on your associates. Take time out to make plans for the future. Spend the evening with clever people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can be highly inspired now and gain your aspirations. You attend the services of those who are able to help you with person you admire and have a good time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Your home should be the focal point of your activity today so make plans for entertainment in advance. Study new methods that could make the future more prosperous for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have many excellent ideas that should be discussed with friends today. Make plans for a trip in the near future. Go to bed early tonight so you can get a good start in the morning.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) You can do much to improve the appearance of your home today and get favors you want from kin and others. A clever friend gives the fine ideas you need and want. Show your appreciation.

'Ifs' Still Add To Good Crops

"There are a lot of 'Ifs' involved, but if everything works out right, we should have good cotton crops and feed crops this year," Ronnie Wood, assistant county agricultural extension agent, said Saturday.

"If we can get a little rain within the next week or 10 days, if we have a good fall and if there is no frost until at least the middle of November, we should get a bale of cotton to the acre and a ton to a ton-and-a-half of feed crop to the acre," said Wood.

"The crops look thriffter now. The cotton is so late that I hate to hazard a guess on its outcome.

"Some of the cotton around Vincent and in the western part of the county needs rain, but it's not hurting yet. The cotton there will be all right if it gets some rain in a couple of weeks," said Wood.

'Three Fingers' Coppola Exiled

ROME (AP) — Frank "Three Fingers" Coppola, described by police as the dean of the underworld in Italy, has been ordered into a four-year exile at a small town near here.

Coppola, 73, was ordered confined to the town of Poeszia by an Italian court Friday. He had been arrested last October and charged with "conspiracy to commit crimes," a catch-all charge used against suspected Mafia figures in Italy.

Big John Loses Place On $1 Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Freshly-minted $1 bills bearing the signature of Treasury Secretary George P. Schultz replacing those with John Connally's name, have started rolling off government presses at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing here.

Schultz and his family watched Friday as the first bills were printed. The $1 bills will be released first, sometime in August, with higher denominations to follow.

League Report Calls For Mobile Home Grouping

"The mobile home belongs in a mobile home park," is the attitude of the Texas Municipal League as stated in the League's year-old publication "The Regulation of Mobile Homes in Texas Cities."

The book was published February, 1971, resulting from extensive investigation and survey into the facts of characteristics, taxation, and construction of mobile homes.

Local attitudes in city government reflect the mood of the Texas Municipal League, evident in city manager Harry Nagel's request of the city commission during Wednesday's council session for permission to rewrite zoning ordinances which presently allow the placement of mobile homes in certain general residence areas as fixed dwellings through issuance of specific-use permits.

COUNCIL AGREES

The four city commissioners present, M. R. Koger, Jack Watkins, Harold Hall and Mayor Pro-Tem Eddie Acree, agreed with Nagel that mobile homes should be allowed only in mobile home parks or mobile home subdivisions. Mayor Wade Choate was on vacation.

Nagel reported that the ordinance will be prepared for and presented at the second August meeting scheduled for August 22.

The League took a strong position against allowing the fixture of mobile homes in zones designed for conventional housing, "contending they should be 'restricted' to mobile home parks. . . . A properly-planned mobile home park will contain adequate space for the mobile homes themselves and for separating the units from one another, for off-street parking for automobiles, and for meeting other needs of the residents."

Utility connections will be available, as will laundry and storage facilities, the League noted, as well as mail service and solid waste collection service, normally.

Webb Lists Promotions

The central base personnel office has announced the promotions of 28 officers and 62 enlisted personnel.

Promoted from second to first lieutenants are James M. Anstett, Michael W. Ballard, Larry L. Byrd, Ronald M. Currie, Walter B. Currie, Richard W. Ferguson, Shirley Fitzwater, Graham Harrower Jr., Donald L. Jennings, Jerome Johnson, Mark L. Manwaring, George K. Miller Jr., Theodore C. Rall Jr., Kenneth W. Rhoton, Charles A. Royce, Robert B. Shelton, Michael H. Steele, and Dennis W. VanderVen.

11 enlisted promotions, leading the list was Henry G. Ray Jr. of 3560th Supply Squadron, who made chief master sergeant.

Charles H. Sifton of 3500th Field Maintenance Squadron was next with his promotion to senior master sergeant.

To technical sergeant went William D. Haas.

Staff sergeants named were: James P. Crews, Sylvester J. Lacour, Larry E. Marvin, David G. Hathaway, James H. Hornback, Dean S. Hansen, Harold E. Peterson, and William C. Reynolds.

Promoted to sergeant were: Fernando Baez, Michael A. Hamock, Luis Hinojosa, William Paustenbach, Charles Valentine, Leon R. Crawford, James M. Curley, Steven H. Kurreich, Lester W. Morgan, Dallas D. Wolf, Kenneth C. York, Gary Childers, Lance M. Feuge, Bobby L. Gooch, and Joseph A. Johnson.

Also to sergeant: Viven R. McKinney, Glen M. Stewart, Walter R. J. Wallace, David M. Williams, Larry S. Winkler, David M. Womack, Leighton H. Hewitt, Martin M. Miller, Boyd L. Wilson, Richard L. Aromando, Donald E. Campbell, Timothy A. Daniel, and Robert T. Kendrick.

Thumb Sucker

Your Good Health
Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In your column recently you discussed thumb-sucking.

I'd like to tell you how I cured my daughter. She's the youngest child of four; and the only one who sucked her thumb. A couple of months before her fourth birthday, I said to her: "Soon you'll be four years old and you'll be a big girl, then you can't suck your thumb anymore."

We never made a fuss about her thumb-sucking nor allowed anyone else to scold her.

Occasionally I would repeat that she would be a big girl on her birthday and couldn't suck her thumb anymore. Soon she was repeating this herself (thumb in mouth).

I wasn't really confident that this course of action would work, and I planned to try another course later on if it didn't.

Her fourth birthday arrived and she gave me her satin quilt that she always fingered while thumb-sucking. She absolutely never sucked her thumb again, and it had been an almost constant habit.

She's now a well-adjusted 13-year-old and makes straight-A grades. Don't know if this would work for everyone, but it sure did for us. — Mrs. C.C.

In most cases, the approach is as important as the method, and in your case you probably used an effective approach to this problem. Whether facing a child with a deadline of that kind would always work is another question.

But I'm happy to pass along your experience to other readers.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I make a cranberry relish to serve with chicken dinners. My family has enjoyed eating this until my husband found out there were two whole oranges in this relish. He claims that the orange skins contain some very harmful ingredients and refuses to eat my relish. What is it, orange skins and it is really harmful to humans? — Mrs. B.R.

Your relish sounds as harmless as it undoubtedly is delicious.

Skins contain bio-flavonoids, whose function is similar to that of vitamin C. They are not harmful.

If this doesn't convince your husband confront him with a label from any commercial jar of orange marmalade which contains orange skins and is mighty popular around my own breakfast table. Eat on.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In the past several months I have heard about two people who lost a kidney because of tuberculosis. Please explain. They both had them removed and seem to be in very good health.

Mrs. R.K.

Although tuberculosis of the lung is the most common type of TB, it is possible for the germ to be disseminated through other organs such as the kidneys.

Where removal of the kidney is indicated the patients usually continue on to lead healthy lives with a single kidney.

Dear Doctor: Is it harmful to a child's ear to pull on it to discipline him? — F.L.S.

Given the delicate mechanism of the ear, the answer is an unqualified yes. If you feel you must resort to some physical manifestation of disapproval, I'd advise you to seek out some more sturdy portion of the anatomy — such as the bottom.

Dear Doctor: If a person has a drunken hangover and is restless is it okay to take a sleeping tablet? — F.O.

The tablet will tend to augment the effects of the alcohol, not diminish them. The alcohol serves as a sedative; hence omit the sleeping tablet.

High blood pressure can be controlled. To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it get "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension)" by Dr. Thosteson. To obtain a copy of this helpful booklet, write to him in care of The Herald, enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope.

Policeman Killed In 'Assist' Call

DALLAS (AP) — One Dallas policeman was killed and another seriously injured Friday night when two police cars answering an "officer assist" call collided on a Dallas street.

Killed was Joe Jones, 29, of Mesquite. He died shortly after being admitted to Baylor Hospital.

A police spokesman said another officer, Donald Goins, 24, was in serious condition early Saturday.

Police reports said Goins and Jones were in one car and officer Richard Millward was in another when they collided roadside while answering an "assist officer" disturbance call at a Dallas lounge.

Fondness Changes

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

CHANGE: (Q) Last summer I worked on my uncle's farm in Kansas. While I was there I met the nicest girl I've ever known. I went out with her every night I could.

I have gone back to see her three times — at Thanksgiving, Christmas, and again in February.

The first two times she was very friendly — like last summer. But the third time she wasn't. She said she didn't think she was ready to get serious with me and wanted some time to be on her own.

I agreed and told her I didn't mind if she went out with other boys when I wasn't there. She said she would write me and go out with me whenever I came back.

Since then I have found out she has gone out with at least four boys, and for six weeks has been going with one boy regularly.

Last week she wrote me that she thought there was nothing between us any more. What do you think I did wrong to get a letter like that? How can I get her back? — 18 and Hurt in Michigan.

(A) There is no indication in your letter that you did a single thing wrong. You simply have run into two facts of teen-age life. Either or both may have had a part in your girl friend's change of heart.

1) A girl, any girl, may meet a boy she likes better than the boy she is going with.

2) Long distance romance is not enough for most teen-agers. Nearness is a powerful force. After a while, this girl may decide she prefers you to anyone else. But anything you do to crowd her into a decision will probably hurt more than it will help. So wait a while to visit her again.

CHEEKY: (Q) My cheeks are so full I look like I have a big wad of gum in my mouth. I have a shag, with my hair parted in the middle. Could that be the trouble? — Fat Face in Florida.

(A) Yes, it could. A center part makes any face look wider. Try your hair neck length and let the sides swing over your cheeks and take the emphasis away from them.

Overweight could also be a factor. A plump girl is likely to have plump cheeks.

GOSSIP: (Q) What do you do when one of your so-called friends is real sweet to your face but then, when your back is turned, she gossips about you? — Sweet and Sour in Pennsylvania.

(A) You cannot do much about someone who gossips behind your back except to recognize that she is not a real friend and you can do without her.

KISSING: (Q) How do I make an approach to kiss a girl? I will be in the sixth grade in September. — Wondering in Washington State.

(A) Don't worry about the kissing right now, just make friends with the girls you know.

(Jean Adams reads and considers every letter, but she regrets that she cannot answer each personally. Mail your questions and comments to Jean Adams, care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 2092, Houston, Texas 77061.)

LT. CHARLES GRAY

JOHN D. HYDEN

2nd Lt. Charles H. Gray, son of Mrs. Alvera F. Gray of 2490 46th Ave., San Francisco, has been awarded his silver wings at Webb AFB.

He is being assigned to McClellan AFB, Calif., where he will fly the EC-121 reconnaissance aircraft.

A 1963 graduate of Fremont (Neb.) High School, he received his A. A. degree in 1969 from City College of San Francisco and his B.A. degree in 1971 from San Francisco State College. He was commissioned there through the Reserve Officers Training Corps program. His wife, Lorie, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sparks of Rt. 1, Big Spring.

Pvt. James E. Rayburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Rayburn of Silver Heels, recently completed basic training at Fort Dix, N.J. Pvt. Rayburn will now proceed to Fort Lee, Va., where he will undergo advanced training in supply operations. When he returns this fall he will assume duties with Det 1, 974th Supply Company, United States Army Reserve in Midland.

Pvt. Rayburn joined the Army under the reserve enlistment program which permits him to serve in his military specialty, after four months of active duty training.

Airman Charles A. Tidwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Tidwell of 511 Austin, has graduated at Sheppard AFB, from the U. S. Air Force electrical power specialist course conducted by the Air Training Command. He was trained to operate and maintain electrical power generating equipment, and is being assigned to Malmstrom AFB, Mont. for duty with a unit of the Strategic Air Command. Airman Tidwell is a 1971 graduate of Big Spring High School.

Airman John D. Hyden Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hyden of 3709 Connally St., Big Spring, Tex., has completed his U.S. Air Force basic training at the Air Training Command's Lackland AFB, Tex.

He has been assigned to Ft. Belvoir, Va., for training in vehicle maintenance. Airman Hyden is a 1971 graduate of Big Spring High School.

SAN ANTONIO — U. S. Air Force Lt. Col. Everett W. Truxal has arrived at Randolph AFB, for duty as chief of maintenance for the 12th Tactical Fighter Wing.

Col. Truxal, whose wife, Sue, is the daughter of Mrs. Eva Nall, 1305 Scurry, Big Spring, is a member of the Air Training Command.

He was commissioned in 1953 through the aviation cadet program and holds the aeronautical rating of command pilot with 5,000 hours flying time.

Col. Truxal completed a tour of combat duty in Vietnam, where he flew 711 combat hours. He attended high school in Bardsdall, Okla., and received his bachelor's degree in 1965 from the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

Wire-Tap Rule Frees Abbie

WASHINGTON (AP) — An indictment charging Yippie leader Abbie Hoffman with interstate travel to organize and participate in a riot and obstructing a police officer has been dismissed at the request of the Justice Department.

The government asked for dismissal because of a June 19 Supreme Court decision that declared illegal the government's wiretapping of suspected domestic subversives without a warrant.

Naked Girls Make Scene

LONDON (AP) — There was just the normal Saturday pandemonium on crowded Oxford Street, London's department store row, until a bus pulled up, six naked girls jumped out and started distributing leaflets.

Hundreds of weekend shoppers who thought they had seen just about everything gaped at the girls who wore only smiles and stars painted on their buttocks.

"Disgraceful," one middle-aged woman muttered. Others just grinned.

Pop singer Screaming Lord Sutch, also took part in the demonstration to promote the rock 'n' roll festival at London's Wembley Stadium on Aug. 5, in which he stars. His status rated the only costume of the sidewalk performance, a leopard skin and a top hat.

His lordship gyrated around, waving a rattle. A spokesman said the British singer dislikes "progressive" music and wants to return to the "animalism of early rock."

"He is waging a campaign against the drug scene," the spokesman added. "He wants to replace it with a sex scene."

Editor's Note: Bonnie and Clyde they're not, but Texas bandits still strike banks with amazing regularity. If not overwhelming success, it's puzzling and perplexing to those involved. And Texas bankers are groveling concerned.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

"A guy is some kind of a nut," says a Fort Worth police officer, "to try to rob a bank."

"Only winos or real crazy people," says a Houston banker.

"You just can't get away with it," says a veteran investigator. "Even if you succeed in robbing a bank, you'll be caught."

Interesting theories all. But few bank bandits would agree. And not all get caught.

GREAT CONCERN

For whatever reason and regardless of who is involved, bandits view Texas banks as prime targets, a fast buck and perhaps instant wealth.

VISIONS OF INSTANT WEALTH

Bank Capers In Texas Soaring

Three robberies in March illustrate the implied and actual violence and techniques of bank robbery.

—Four men armed with shotguns stormed the University State Bank in Fort Worth, seized $20,000 and two women hostages.

—An intruder held hostage the wife of a bank president in a small West Texas town while an accomplice extorted a large amount of cash from the bank.

—Three bandits entered Houston's South Park Bank, shot and killed a bank officer, wounded a policeman and fled with thousands of dollars.

Police arrested suspects in each case. But their capture apparently did little to discourage other attempts. Two bank extortion attempts in Fort Worth alone occurred in July.

SWIFT JUSTICE

Houston banks now are teaching their employees how to be robbed. New security devices are being tested. The Texas Bankers Association has a special committee probing for solu-

During the Roaring '20s, and for a time afterward, Texas bankers sought to curb robberies by offering a $5,000 reward for capture of the bandits—dead or alive.

They abandoned the practice some years ago, presumably for humanitarian reasons.

Swift and often irrevocable Texas justice gave way to more sophisticated deterrents, such as hidden cameras, silent alarm systems and increased security forces.

Still, banks remain frequent targets for daytime raiders, most without the flair and flamboyance of such Texas predecessors as Bonnie and Clyde but not lacking their bravado.

In Texas and elsewhere, robbers apparently view drive-in tellers as the most vulnerable and convenient victims usually threatening them with real or fake explosive devices. But they also have turned to capture of hostages as one means of circumventing electronic and photographic security systems.

It has become popular among bandits to hold, or threaten, the family of a bank official, commanding the banker to quickly produce ransom money.

Earlier this year, the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover called for more stringent security measures to curb bank robberies in which hostages are used.

TERROR

"The hostage bank robbery is not a condition that an open, free society can live with," Hoover said. "This dangerous crime merits the grave concern of every banking institution, law enforcement agency and community in the nation."

He said the "terror and danger connected with these tactics defy description" and declared:

"A campaign of continuous, coordinated effort is needed to make the odds against success so great that hostage bank robberies will cease."

The risk factor already is heavily stacked against the bank robber. Besides elaborate security systems, including closed circuit television, such bandits also must cope with the FBI.

Preview Of Fashion From New York, London, Paris And Rome

By JO BRIGHT

"The general's lady and Rosie O'Grady are sisters under the skin."

The observation is credited to Rudyard Kipling, but the Englishman's insight is shared by a group of men and women whose business it is to clothe and compliment the feminine figure.

The news is out, and even the most liberated ladies listen when the word comes from such fashion citadels as New York, London, Paris and Rome.

Ladies of leisure once made fashion their domain, and they its slaves. Not so today. The garment industry now woos the working woman, and the contemporary female rejects styles which do not serve her well.

This season the American woman is favoring what is often described as an updated version of the "classic look." What is a classic? Whatever else it may be, it is timeless and in good taste — the best of pure design.

As fall approaches, look for some of the best-loved fashion ideas of all time to make their reappearance in a slightly different guise. It's said that today's classics have a spirited feeling that is anything but 'safe' or tame. Lifestyles are free, natural and an individual choice. Clothes are comfortable and cut to a fine line.

The specifics: Sweater sets, dolman-sleeved dresses, tailored suits, blouson jackets, cardigan costumes, tent coats and the after-five short cocktail dresses. Pants come cuffed and pleated, but the return of the daytime dress puts them in their proper place.

There are even hints that women may want to wear hats again this fall, and who could resist a big, black beret or a camel-colored beauty with 'Garbo' brim?

The final touch: warm, worldly pearls — a girl's second best friend.

FUR-OUT FASHIONS were presented by the fashion house, Sarli of Rome, with these evening dresses which were part of the autumn-winter showings. The gowns are of white silk composed of pants with short tunics trimmed with white fox fur and silver beads.

THE VALENTINO LOOK in Rome stressed skirts. This sport dress is of beige wool with the gown partially pleated and worn with a short jacket of checkered design.

ELEGANT EVENING wear was underlined by the Capucci fashion house of Rome. This long skirt is made of soft white wool and the short tunic is of beige silk.

THE NEW dolman sleeve is featured in this green jersey dress designed by Leo Narducci for Ambiance in New York City. The green and striped cummerbund is built in so women don't have to fidget with tying it.

READY FOR RAIN are two pretty models who show Pacca Rahanne creations in Paris. These wet weather ensembles were made from a surprising fabric—fake fur.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S world-famous figure provides the motif for this black and white trouser suit shown in London by the college of Fashion and Clothing Technology.

Farewell Tea Honors Mrs. Malcolm Ryan

Mrs. Malcolm Ryan, wife of the departing wing commander at Webb Air Force Base was honored Thursday with a farewell tea in the Fireside Room of the Officers Club. The affair was hosted by the Officers Wives Club, with guests including OWC members and a group of women from the civilian community.

Receiving guests with Mrs. Ryan were Mrs. Fred Wertz, OWC president, Mrs. Austin Bryan and Mrs. David Little. Mrs. Ryan, whose dress was in navy and white, was presented a corsage of yellow and white daisy mums, as was Mrs. Wertz.

During brief ceremonies, Mrs. Wertz presented Mrs. Ryan with a silver wine cooler as a gift from the OWC, and Mrs. Little presented a scrapbook of Mrs. Ryan's activities during her stay at Webb AFB. The book was prepared by Mrs. Anne Jennings, Mrs. Thomas Warren, Mrs. Susan Kelly and Mrs. Kevin McGinty.

Mrs. Michael J. Karaffa served as general chairman for the tea, with hostess duties arranged by Mrs. Timothy Danforth.

Those presiding at the coffee, tea and punch services were Mrs. W. O. Jones, Mrs. H. D. Shultz, Mrs. Ronald E. Catton, Mrs. W. M. King Jr., Mrs. K. D. Murgatroyd, Mrs. K. D. Summy, Mrs. R. L. Reid, Mrs. R. J. Ginder, Mrs. R. P. Nass, Mrs. R. M. Miller, Mrs. R. D. Kaiser, Mrs. R. W. Woodson, Lt. Col. Teresa Carfagno, Mrs. Joe E. Crewiege, Mrs. D. E. Ellis, Mrs. J. Grimes, Mrs. E. Hart, Mrs. H. Willingham, Mrs. M. Holmes, Mrs. R. Jones, Mrs. R. Howland, Mrs. P. Adams, Mrs. E. Crandall and Mrs. R. P. Barr.

MRS. MALCOLM RYAN, MRS. DAVID LITTLE

featuring silver coffee and tea services at either end, was centered with a silver wine cooler arranged with white spider mums, daisies, babies' breath and greenery. The cooler was flanked by branched silver candelabra holding white tapers. A smaller, similar arrangement was used on the hors d'oeuvre table, and garlands of the same flowers circled a silver punch bowl on the third table.

Other OWC members who assisted with the hostess duties were Mrs. Dorham Crawford, Mrs. Larry Conwell, Mrs. Robert Goldey, Mrs. Clayton Cole, Mrs. Paul Henry, Mrs. James Radabaugh, Mrs. W. Brian Dickinson, Mrs. Dale Green, Mrs. Charles Bernhardt, Mrs. Gary Raymond, Mrs. Roger Ward and Mrs. Tom Elcharst.

FOR YOUR PLEASURE Summer Night Entertainment Spotlights 'Starlight Specials'

Those of you who have interest in home-town theatre are reminded of the community theatre get-together Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., at 108 Lincoln. Cecilia Arcand, director of Around-Stage, the name for the new organization, said attempts will be made to do some casting for one-act plays. Everyone with any interest in theatre is invited, and those needing information can call Miss Arcand at 263-4229.

Start of the Starlight Specials is only a week away from this evening when the traditional hymn sing will launch the week-long series. Community culture will be covered with Monday evening being arranged by the black population, Tuesday by those of Mexican-American heritage. A youth theatre group will present some melodrama Wednesday; Thursday will be Western night; Friday rock music for the teens; Saturday band night; and the finale another hymn sing the evening of Sunday Aug. 13. The Tuesday evening affair again features Mexican food along with Mexican music.

Howard County Library has some new titles which are getting good play. Among the books are "Eleanor and Franklin" by Joseph Lash; "Island in the Wind" by Noel B. Gerson; "Captains and Kings" by Taylor Caldwell; and a mystery, "Take a Body" by Joe Creasy. For the music fanatics, new recordings include "Tapestry" by Carole King.

Plans for the fourth Van Cliburn International Piano competition to be held Sept. 17-30 at Fort Worth are about complete. Walter Susskind, conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, will lead the orchestra in the final two rounds. Competition is sponsored by the National Guild of "Nashville Gold" by Che Atkins; "Bob Dylan's Greatest Hits"; and "At Folsom Prison" by Johnny Cash. The Friday 10 a.m. Children's Story hour continues to get good response, and all children are invited.

Traffic, including that of a number of out-of-state tourists, continues to be good at the Heritage Museum, according to Mrs. Jerry Atwell. Alden J. Ryan brought in several photographs, among them, those of the historic George Bauer home which once dominated the northern landscape. One shot showed his father, Jessie B. Ryan, in front of the Wig Wam cafe 60 years ago. H. D. Richmond had some old papers and magazines, and Agnes Currie a collection of souvenir slogan and organizational buttons.

The Pickwick Players of Midland Community Theatre will present their last play of the summer season at matinee showings Aug. 3, 4, and 5 at Midland Theatre Center. The show is an original piece entitled "Dandelion Daydreams" and beamed to the young audience.

Young Women Rejecting Traditional Marital Role

NEW YORK (AP) — A new youth poll claims there has been a significant increase in the past two years in the number of young women who have come to reject the traditional marital role of homemaker. Dr. Hal Edrich, director of the research division of the Institute of Life Insurance, said the results may provide the first statistical measure of the influence of the women's movement among young women.

The survey was conducted for the institute by Gilbert Youth Research Inc., which interviewed 2,500 men and women, ages 14 to 25, in neighborhoods, high schools and colleges. It was a followup study.

The poll said that 51 per cent of the women interviewed said they disagreed with the traditional notion of the woman's place, compared with 42 per cent two years ago. And while 35 per cent preferred the domestic role in 1972, compared with 42 per cent two years ago, 31 per cent now said they would choose the life of the successful executive or professional, compared with 26 per cent in 1970.

When it came to projecting their roles 15 years hence, however, 53 per cent of the female interviewees said they expected to be average housewives, raising children.

As for men, the poll claimed they appeared to have modified their view of the woman's place very little in the past two years. It said 41 per cent of the men polled objected to the traditional woman's role, compared with 39 per cent in 1970.

The tent dress is what everyone is talking about for fall. It's cut high at the armholes, tightly over the bodice and has a swirling hemline a few inches over the knee.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Folks:
By the looks of my mail, I would say that the waterbed has made quite a splash across the country. In almost all cases, the question of how to best make these beds has come up.

Since so many of you gals have voiced an interest, I want to print excerpts from a letter that I received recently from a leading waterbed company.

"As the waterbed industry is still in its infancy, there are many salesmen who are not knowledgeable about the use of this innovation in sleeping. When buying a waterbed you should be advised to use flat sheets, not fitted ones.

"Standard contour sheets are not adequate for use on a waterbed mainly because waterbeds are longer than the standard eighty inches in length.

"Therefore, the sheets tend to slip easily out of place. I think you will find that a good tuck with a flat sheet will remain in place as long as it will with a conventional bed.

"The problem of lifting the mattress to make a tuck may not be a problem at all. When tucking in sheets, you never actually "lift" the mattress at all.

"You merely push the water back with the backs of both hands and make your tuck simultaneously. Be certain that the sheets go all the way to the bottom to assure a lasting tuck.

"The pressure of the water on the sides of your frame is more than enough to hold the sheets in place.

"As for the corner tucks, grab the vinyl mattress firmly and lift. You will find that the water will run toward the center of the mattress, exposing the sides and bottoms of your frame. This enables you to tuck the sheets a foot or so underneath the bed.

"This tuck is not difficult and when properly made a small herd of elephants couldn't shift it out of place.

"Granted that making up a waterbed takes a little more effort than making a conventional bed, but when you weigh the advantages of a waterbed, it becomes a pleasure."

Sure hope this settles some of the questions concerning these new beds. Nightly night, and pleasant dreams... Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER
Dear Heloise:

It used to be such fun to write and rhyme an ode, but now... My hands are stiff, my brain cobwebbed, and here across my brow... Are etched deep lines of permanence that nothing will erase... Unless: I've heard of doctors who can lift a sagging face... And chip out pieces of a nose — to change a plumpish female a measurement of — oomph. So lead me to the doctor who scoops out dents or stuffs in filler... And see if he can make me look as good as Phyllis Diller... Irene Taylor Dear Heloise:

Here is an idea for keeping melting butter from turning brown in the hot pan.

Just put a small amount of cold water (one half teaspoon) in with the butter you are melting and, I'll guarantee you, the butter will not burn and it will not affect your recipe. Anita McCullough

Church In Eldorado Scene Of Wedding

Miss Connie Sue Speck and Edwin William (Bill) Brumfield Jr., both of Big Spring, were married at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the First United Methodist Church of Eldorado.

Brumfield is public relations officer for the Webb AFB Federal Credit Union, and the bride is a dietitian at Medical Center Memorial Hospital.

The Rev. Roy Shilling, pastor of Travis Park Methodist Church, San Antonio, performed the rites at an archway entwined with greenery, candelabra flanked the arch and held votive candles and arrangements of yellow gladioli.

A prelude of traditional wedding music was provided by Mrs. Phil Olson, organist and Miss Patty Olson, pianist. Bryan Mahon of San Angelo was soloist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Brumfield Sr. of Odessa and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Speck Jr., Eldorado.

The bride wore a formal-length gown of champagne silk organza over delustered satin, fashioned with princess lines and a gathered skirt. The neckline and bell sleeves were highlighted with embroidered Alencon lace appliques and seed pearls. Matching lace created a wide border on the skirt that extended to a rounded court train. She carried a bouquet of white roses and yellow babies' breath.

Miss Barbara Ann Speck served her sister as maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Elda Cruce of Tahoka and Miss Nancy Lux.

The attendants wore yellow floor-length gowns fashioned in silk organza over yellow satin. They featured fitted bodices, puffed sleeves and champagne lace insertions on the sleeves and midriff.

Paul Rawlings of San Angelo was best man, and Larry Brumfield of Odessa, the bridegroom's brother, was a groomsman along with Walter Speck of San Angelo, the bride's brother. Serving as ushers were Lee Ray and Alan Kelley, San Angelo; and David Rawlings, Water Valley.

Brumfield graduated from Odessa High School and attended Odessa College. He is a graduate of Angelo State University where he was listed in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," and the National Student Register, served as vice president of the student association, was editor of the school paper and president of the Press Club. He was also named "editor of the year" and was recipient of the Wayland Yates Memorial Award.

Mrs. Brumfield graduated from Eldorado High School and attended ASU before transferring to Texas Tech University where she received a bachelor's degree in home economics. She majored in therapeutic dietetics.

A reception honored the couple in the Schleicher Memorial Building. A champagne-colored linen cloth covered the bride's table which was centered with a tiered cake topped with yellow roses. Candelabra draped with the bridesmaid's bouquets flanked the cake. A round yellow linen cloth covered the bridegroom's table, and an arrangement of yellow spider mums formed the centerpiece.

Cans Collected By 'Walkers'

What started out as regular evening exercise for two local women soon turned into a money-making ecology project for them and their children.

Mrs. Bob Talley and Mrs. Charles Campbell began walking around Scenic Mountain every night for exercise. One night they began picking up empty beer cans that had been thrown on the road.

"We really started losing more weight from bending over so much to pick up the cans," said Mrs. Talley. "Then we started walking out the Country Club Road because there were more beer cans there."

Pretty soon, the women's children started going along and helping collect the cans, and their husbands would cooperate by picking up in the car what they collected along the way. While walking the road to Lake Colorado City, the women and their children collected more than 1,100 cans in one day, but an average day netted five to six hundred cans. Most days the women walked about three miles, but the mileage reached seven miles one day.

The efforts of the two women were culminated Friday when they turned in 248 pounds (about 6,000 cans) of aluminum beer cans to the local Coors Distributing Company. They were paid $24.80 for the collection.

The Adolph Coors Company began its "cash for cans" project to help clean up the countryside. They pay 10 cents a pound for aluminum beer cans and one cent for each Coors glass bottle. Many individuals and organizations across the country use the program to raise money for philanthropic projects or personal needs.

MARGARET DANA'S Consumer's Question-Box

Q. I am enclosing a sheet of paper which lists a lot of items like box tops, labels, etc., from different products which we are asked to donate to a special fund to buy a kidney machine for the local hospital. I would like to know if this can possibly be a genuine offer because these are not coupons but worthless pieces of packaging. I remember people saving cigarette packs for a worthy cause and never finding out where to send them because it turned out nobody wanted them. Our church women all received this page of items to donate and we wonder if it is just a waste of time.

A. I have studied the page you enclosed and am unable to give you a good answer simply because I do not know by whom these pages were given out, or what group sponsored the drive. According to the printed lines crossed out on your page, a local home extension group is mentioned as the official collector. I suggest you check with this group — if it exists.

As for the box tops, labels, etc., they ARE worthless, except that they act as advertising and promotion for the companies, and the cash offered in return for their collection is considered an advertising expense by the companies. This is entirely legitimate. But as to the reliability of the drive, contact your local hospital and find out if it knows about this.

Q. A year or so ago there was talk of the Swedish government banning U.S. beef exports because of an over-concentration in it of steroids used to fatten or stimulate growth of beef cattle. Has the U.S. checked this?

A. The Food and Drug Administration's Meat Inspection Service is considering a complete ban on the chemical DES used to speed up weight growth in beef animals. They have had for some time a regulation that DES hormone be withheld from beef cattle for at least seven days before slaughter to prevent its being held in the meat for human use.

Most scientists feel this food additive is a useful and effective product if used exactly as directed. Growers claim by feeding this hormone, an animal will reach the market weight of 1,000 pounds at least 35 days sooner than without it, taking 500 less pounds of food to get comparable weight. They feel it has saved cattle feeders over a billion dollars, to the benefit of consumer prices. But just as many experts question the use of the chemical and the benefit to consumers of the forced growth.

Q. I would like to know if processors fortify skim milk and if so, what with?

A. Processing differs with different brands, but generally dairies add Vitamins A and D to skim milk. Since in removing the milk fat, and with it Vitamin A, the skim milk is altered from the original whole milk to a degree, it is restored except for the fat by returning Vitamin A and adding Vitamin D. The label on skim milk should tell you specifically with what it has been fortified and how much.

(Margaret Dana welcomes opinions and question on buying and will use them in her column as rapidly as research and space permit. Personal answers are impossible due to large volumes of mail from readers. Address: Margaret Dana, care of the Big Spring Herald.)

Parents, Youth Lack Dialogue

Confidence, freedom and love: those are the three qualities that French youth appreciates and wants most from parents.

In a poll conducted by France Soir, the Paris evening newspaper, youngsters put parental confidence in their off-spring far ahead with 27.6 percent of the votes. Respect for a son or daughter's freedom won 21.6 per cent of the young vote. Parental love placed third, but with only 10.4 per cent of the vote. And "material aid" came fourth with 7.6 per cent.

Six per cent of the young voters added that they receive none of these satisfactions from adults. The young folks indicated strongly that there is a lack of "dialogue" between parents and their offspring.

Traces Development Of Community Center

Sgt. Peter A. Stone, of the Big Spring Police Department, briefly outlined the history of Westside Community Center since its founding in 1933, for members of Altrusa Club Thursday at Coker's restaurant. The center was first known as the Westside Recreation Center," said Sgt. Stone. "It was founded by Park Methodist Church when they acquired a small building from the Civilian Conservation Corps. During World War II it was supported by Church Women United who used it as a day care center. The women continue to support the center today."

Sgt. Stone said the center closed in 1970 when its director, Mrs. Earnest Bauch, was hospitalized. The center later opened as a non-profit corporation.

"Through the diligent efforts of many individuals and groups, the corporation was established with a board of directors to provide the center with leadership," Stone said. The director receives $1,800 per year from the United Fund, and Stone said the UF increased its support to the center this year by $700.

"Activities at the center are planned to meet the needs of not only the youth in the Community, but adults, as well," said Sgt. Stone. "Events include a women's sewing class, arts and crafts for boys and girls, family game nights, special events for teenagers and younger children, as well as a non-denominational Sunday school class."

Sgt. Stone said a new building for the center was recently obtained from Webb AFB through the courtesy of the City of Big Spring. All expenses incurred in moving and restoring the building were paid through a gift from the Dora Roberts Foundation.

Sgt. Stone said the programs and operational costs at the center are paid through contributions from private individuals, church organizations, fraternal organizations, clubs and associations.

Mrs. W. H. Kay presided, and Mrs. R. B. Hooper of Memphis, Tenn. was a guest. The next meeting is at twelve o'clock noon, Aug. 10 at Coker's Restaurant.

white floor-length cloth covered the refreshment table, and the bouquets of the bride and the matron of honor formed the centerpiece. The tiered cake was adorned with miniature wedding bells, and crystal appointments were used. Serving were Mrs. Terry McGarrity, Denton; Mrs. Elmer Askins, Mrs. T. P. Macklin and Mrs. D. W. Pierce.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Dennis Clark, Dallas, Miss Velma Marlin, Fort Worth, the bride's aunt; and Mrs. Ward Grow, Oklahoma City, Okla., the bridegroom's grandmother.

A LOVELIER YOU Method Outlined For Proper Cuticle Care

By MARY SUE MILLER

A lovely writes: My fingernail cuticles are coarse — very thick and cover the moons. About two months ago I started trimming them with manicure scissors. Now they grow faster than ever and look ragged. What overcomes this problem?

The Answer: First off, stop cutting your cuticles. Cutting leads to a ragged effect that requires a long time to clear up. Put those scissors away; use them only if hangnails develop. And handnails respond better to nippers than scissors.

Now for cuticle control: At manicure time, take off any enamel with oily remover. Massage a dot of cuticle oil into skin surrounding nails. File nails with an emery board to desired shape. Then submerge fingers in warm, soapy water for several minutes, rinse and dry well.

Next dip a cotton swab in cuticle remover and saturate cuticles in turn with the liquid. Using the blunt end of an orangewood stick, gently push back cuticles. Also move stick back and forth across moons. Ragged ends are thus detached and eventually eliminated. The process is gradual. Do not expect perfection for some weeks.

P.S. After cuticle remover, wash hands and proceed with manicure as usual. Rub cuticle oil into flesh around nails nightly, making certain to push back cuticles at that time. And after every hand washing with your towel as you dry off.

Helen Willard To Receive Award

Miss Helen Willard of Big Spring will be honored by the Vocational Homemaking Teachers Association of Texas Wednesday for her dedicated service in the teaching profession. She is a teacher of vocational homemaking education at the Big Spring High School.

The award will be presented by Carl E. Morgan of Jasper, member of the State Board of Education, at the annual banquet of the association in the Statler Hilton Hotel, Dallas.

Mrs. Willard will also be attending a week-long inservice conference for vocational homemaking teachers.

More than 2,300 teachers are expected to attend the conference, said Mrs. Jane B. Moore of Balmorhea, president of the association.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dierschke, Rowena, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sharon Kay, to Roger J. Lange, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold O. Lange, St. Lawrence. The wedding is scheduled Sept. 23 in Rowena.

DENISE BRYANT

Miss Bryant Wins Contest

Miss Denise Bryant, representing Radio Station KBST, will be in Houston Aug. 10-13 to compete in the annual state contest to name "Miss Astro." Miss Bryant, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dub Bryant, 1602 Tucson.

First runner-up in the local contest was Miss Connie Lou Torres, daughter of Mrs. Consuelo G. Torres, 1502 Oriole, and second runner-up was Miss Pamela White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy L. White, 2303 Morrison. The runners-up will serve as alternates if Miss Bryant should be unable to participate in the contest at the Astrodome.

Miss Bryant received an expense-paid trip to Houston and a wardrobe costume from Hemphill-Wells Company. Ken Carter presented her with a bouquet of red roses after she was named winner by the three judges, Mrs. Jo Bright, Mrs. Jerry Spence and Tom Wall.

The contestants will be headquartered at the Astroworld motel complex during a round of events which will include parties, luncheons and other social events prior to the judging. The final event will take place in the Astrodome. The winner will receive a four-year scholarship to the college of her choice along with other prizes. During the year, she will be the official representative of the Astros baseball team.

Miss Bryant is a graduate of Big Spring High School where she was a cheer leader for four years, a member and officer of the Student Council and delegate to three of its state conventions, a member of the annual staff and on the volleyball team for two years. Other honors include being recipient of the American Legion Award as well as the DAR Good Citizen Award and Demolay Sweetheart, freshman favorite, Key Club Sweetheart, homecoming queen and outstanding girl workshopper at the Student Council meeting at Trinity University last summer.

Miss Bryant is employed this summer in the Creative Visuals department of Gamco and plans to enter East Texas State University at Commerce this fall. Her hobbies include drawing, swimming and assisting her father at auction sales.

Miss Marlin Weds Michael E. Butler

Miss Velma Ann Marlin and Michael Edward Butler were united in marriage in a ceremony at 8 p.m. Friday in the Wesley United Methodist Church Chapel.

The Rev. Caleb Hildebrand performed the ceremony at an altar flanked by arrangements of fern and white candles. A prelude of traditional wedding music was provided by Miss Barbara Pierce, pianist. She also accompanied Miss Verna Goswick, vocalist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Marlin, 1306 E. 18th, and Butler is the son of Mrs. Clara C. Butler of San Benito, formerly of Big Spring, and the late Harold Butler.

The bride wore a street-length gown of white peau de soie overlaid with alcon lace. A satin ribbon belt highlighted the empire waistline. Small satin buttons trimmed the bodice, and the oval neckline was trimmed with ruffled lace. The long sleeves also featured satin button accents. Her face veil was attached to a net and pearl caplet, and she carried a bouquet of yellow Sweetheart roses and daisy pompons.

Mrs. Amado Salinas of Hagerman, N.M. was matron of honor. She wore a sleeveless street-length gown fashioned in yellow crepe with a ruffled neckline and accents of yellow rose petals. She carried a nosegay of daisies and babies' breath.

Dennis Clark of Dallas was best man. Serving as ushers were Terry McGarrity, Denton; and Amado Salinas, Hagerman, N.M.

Mr. and Mrs. Butler will reside in Denton following a trip to the Galveston area. She received a bachelors degree in history and English from North Texas State University, and has taught English at a Roswell, N.M. high school for four years. Butler is a graduate of Texas A & M, with a bachelor's degree in political science. He recently completed three years of duty as a captain with the Army.

A reception was held for the couple in the church parlor. A white floor-length cloth covered the refreshment table, and the bouquets of the bride and the matron of honor formed the centerpiece. The tiered cake was adorned with miniature wedding bells, and crystal appointments were used. Serving were Mrs. Terry McGarrity, Denton; Mrs. Elmer Askins, Mrs. T. P. Macklin and Mrs. D. W. Pierce.

Candlelight Ceremony Performed Thursday

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Martha Zann Lewis and Ellis Brent Womack at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the College Baptist Church, with the Rev. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of First Baptist Church, officiating.

The couple stood at an altar enhanced with branched candleabra holding white wedding tapers. Arrangements of carnations and gladioli completed the setting.

Miss Connie Gary, organist and pianist, provided a prelude of wedding music and accompanied Steve Pyles, a vocalist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley A. Lewis, 1205 E. 18th, and Mr. and Mrs. Odell Womack, 1601 Tucson.

The bride chose a formal-length gown of candlelight beige de soie fashioned with a fitted high-rise bodice which was accented with a silk organza yoke edged with lace. Small buttons extended to a matching lace wedding ring collar, and the bishop sleeves featured self buttons on the deep cuffs. The A-line skirt was complemented by a lace bordered train, and her elbow-length illusion veil was held with a caplet of satin bows and sheer petals edged with pearls. She carried an arrangement of white roses and orchids.

Miss Sheila Armistead served as maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Lana Parks and Miss Cynthia Cook. The attendants wore identical floor-length gowns fashioned in blue and white dotted Swiss with empire bodices, puffed sleeves and lace accents. They wore matching garden hats, and each carried a single pink rose.

Danny Clendinen of Coahoma was best man, and groomsmen were Johnny Thomas and Mike Hall. Serving as ushers were Mike Graves, Thomas and Hall.

Tracy Sue Lewis of Midland, the flower girl, carried a basket of pink rose petals. Ring bearer was Ross Lewis of Archer City. Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Big Spring High School. Womack, presently employed by Bettle and Womack Construction Company, plans to return to San Angelo State University in January, where he will be a junior. The couple will reside at Coronado Hills Apartments until that time.

A reception honored the couple in the church hall. The brides table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of blue and white summer flowers. The tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. A candle centerpiece was used at the bridegroom's table, which was covered with a blue cloth and overlaid with ecru lace.

Serving were Mrs. Milton Lewis, Mrs. Eldon Massingill, Miss Polly Wade, Miss Ronda Hooper, Mrs. David Grifford and Miss Jane Armistead.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lewis, Gainsville; Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Lewis, Midland; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tarter and Gabe Lewis, all of Colorado City; Melvin Lewis, Marlin Lewis, Dr. and Mrs. Barney Barnhill and Mr. and Mrs. David Womack, all of Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. Buster Lewis, Lorraine; Mr. and Mrs.

Westbrook Residents Have Guests

SETS DATE — The engagement of Miss Millie Christie to Steven D. Hirt is being announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson of Garden City. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hirt of St. Lawrence. The wedding will take place Sept. 16 in St. Lawrence Catholic Church.

WESTBROOK (SC) — The Buddy Robinsons of Sherman, returning from a vacation in Juarez, Mexico, and El Paso, have been guests of the Altis Clemmers.

Mrs. Otelia Crow of California is visiting her parents, the H. M. Rices and brother, Floyd Rice, and family. The elder Mr. Rice has been dismissed from Root Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Sloane, who moved to Bracketville Monday, have both accepted positions in the school there.

Mrs. A. L. Young is visiting in Bronte.

Joyce McKenney is a surgical patient in Root Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Miller of Crane were guests of the W. E. Smiths Jr., and Susie Miller returned home with her parents after a month's visit in the Smith home.

'ROUND TOWN

BY LUCILLE PICKLE

Here the summer is almost two-thirds over and I haven't yet got around to my worrying that I had set up for right after summer began.

Guests of the ROY REEDERS left Saturday morning after visiting them at their Granite Shoals home and here. They are MR. and MRS. KENNY OSMOND and their daughter Sue, who had come to Texas for the Imperial Shrine convention in Dallas earlier this month. Their home is in Madison, Wis.

MRS. HOYT HALLFORD and MRS. HULEN DAVIE have returned here after a 10-day vacation spent mostly in Nashville, Tenn. There they were the guests of Mrs. Hallford's son-in-law and daughter, MR. and MRS. TED LANCASTER who are former Big Spring residents. Other children of Mrs. Hallford came from Ohio and Georgia for the visit.

While in Nashville the two women joined others in touring the Country Music Hall of Fame and attended the Grand Old Opry. They also went through the still unfinished Opryland, U.S.A. and were present for the taping of a Bill Anderson Show segment.

Had a short visit with MRS. SMITH SWORDS at the OWC tea Thursday for MRS. MALCOLM RYAN. Sawyer says to write her a goodbye for she is now moved to Lubbock so she can attend Texas Tech University. She said she has so enjoyed living in Big Spring for the past eight years. And Big Spring has enjoyed her too, and we hate to see her go.

GENE NORTON, who was stationed at Webb AFB for several years, is completing special training at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis, Ind., and this week will move his family to Cheyenne, Wyo. SGT. NORTON will be in the Ft. Frances E. Warren information office. Since they moved from here another member has been added to the family. A son, Brian, was born on Jan. 26.

Couple Recites Vows In Home Ceremony

Miss Jennifer L. McCartney became the bride of Pvt. I. C. Luther B. Turner Wednesday evening in a ceremony performed by the Rev. Arthur Thomas, pastor of Airport Baptist Church.

MRS. LUTHER TURNER

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charmaine Jeter, 1317 Wright, in whose home the wedding was performed, and R. J. McCartney of Forsan. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Nellie Yocham, 1008 W. 6th.

The bride was given in marriage by the bridegroom's cousin, James McCarty, before an improvised altar accented with blue and white carnations. She was attired in a floor-length white organza gown sprinkled with pale blue dots. The princess-line, sleeveless gown was styled with scooped neckline. Her elbow-length veil was held by a caplet adorned with daisies and iridescents, and she carried a bouquet of feathered carnations and babies' breath.

Miss Terri McCartney attended her sister as maid of honor. She was attired in a sleeveless blue nylon dress and carried a nosegay of blue carnations.

Larry Turner, the bridegroom's brother, served as best man.

Immediately after the nuptial rites, the couple was honored at a reception in the home, with Miss Susan Weaver registering guests. The refreshment table was covered with a white linen cloth and appointed with crystal. Centering the table was an arrangement of blue and white carnations, and the tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Those serving were Miss Cindy Day, Miss Lyn McCartney and Miss Tom McCarty.

The couple will reside in Killeen where Pvt. Turner is stationed with the U. S. Army. Both attended Big Spring High School.

Winners Named For La Gallinas

Four tables were in play during La Gallinas bridge game, Wednesday afternoon at Big Spring Country Club. Mrs. Ralph McLaughlin and Mrs. Hayes Stripling Jr. won first place.

Other winners were Mrs. Monroe Gafford and Mrs. Jerry Harding, second; Mrs. Henry Bell and Mrs. John Turner, third; and Mrs. John Taylor and Mrs. Auriel LaFonde, fourth.

MRS. DAVID BRUCE ALLEN

Wedding Performed In Baptist Temple

The Rev. James A. Puckett performed wedding rites for Miss Marsha Kay McCraney and David Bruce Allen at 8 p.m., Thursday in the Baptist Temple.

The couple stood before an archway decorated with greenery and flanked by arched candelabra and palm trees. In the background was an arrangement of white gladioli and purple stock and a candle tree holding votive candles.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Dan McClinton, organist, and a choral group featuring Joe Acuff and Dan McClinton as soloists.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Cooper McCraney, 2514 Broadway, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Allen of Coahoma.

The bride's formal-length gown of white bridal satin was overlaid with sheer organza and featured an empire bodice with four bands of lace reaching to a high round collar. Matching lace marked the empire lines and edged the long full skirt. Long sheer sleeves attached to lace cuffs. Her lace and pearl tiara held an illusion veil which extended to form a short train. The bride carried a cascade of white camellias, lily of the valley and cymbidium orchids tied with satin streamers.

Miss Christy Gillett of Abilene, maid of honor, wore a floor-length purple dress overlaid with white lace. The empire bodice was accented with orchid ribbons. She carried a miniature inverted parasol with purple camellias.

Bridesmaids were Miss Katie Kernodle and Miss Diane Proctor of Coahoma. They wore orchid gowns styled identically to Miss Gillett's and featuring orchid accents. They also carried parasols with orchid camellias and long satin streamers. Gary Roberts of Coahoma was best man, and groomsmen were Mark McCraney, the bride's brother; and Hubert Rowden of Coahoma. Ronnie Ward, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, and David Gillett, served as ushers.

Tina Kay Robertson, the flower girl, wore a long orchid gown. Mike Henry was ring bearer, and altar tapers were lighted by Tracy Meeks and Tony Meeks.

Following a trip to Cloudcroft, N.M. and Carlsbad Caverns, the couple will reside in Coahoma where Allen is employed by Walsh and Watts, Inc. He is a graduate of Coahoma High School and attends Howard County Junior College. Mrs. Allen graduated from Big Spring High School and is employed by Dee's Fashion and Uniform Center. She plans to attend HCJC.

A reception honored the couple in the church fellowship hall. A floor-length embossed white net cloth overlaid an orchid and purple cloth on the serving table. An arrangement of candelabra with votive cups holding purple and orchid carnations and leather leaf fern centered the table. A tiered cake was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The bridegroom's table was covered in gold with a gold net overlay. A chocolate cake was topped with purple grapes, and brass candle holders had tall purple tapers.

Serving were Mrs. Ronnie Ward, the bridegroom's sister; Miss Paula Gillett, Miss Tammy Meeks and Miss Patricia Cherry. They all wore orchid dresses.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gillett, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Langford and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Henry, all of Abilene; Glendon Brown, Denver City; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kiser, Omaha, Neb.; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Kiser and Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Roberson, all of Odessa.

'Quotable Women'

By The Associated Press
 Here are some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"Let us search for a way to break the deadlock, to seek a way out of the ossified situation. Let war be renewed between us, let us advance toward complete peace." Israeli Premier Golda Meir in proposing peace talks with Egypt.

"I never thought I could do anything before I was at least 25, but now I'd like to get two books under my belt before I'm 26." Novelist Julie Goldsmith.

"Everybody said I'd have two strikes against me—that by being black and being a woman, I'd only have one-third of a chance. I just said, 'Well, I'm going to do one hell of a lot with that third.'" Vinnette Carroll, New York theatrical director.

"If present trends continue, there is a chance that we will almost double women's participation over the 1968 convention." Anne Armstrong, co-chairman of the Republican National Committee.

"We're really ordinary people—like everyone I guess you can't hide a good thing, though." Barbara Flaherty after her Santa Rosa, Calif., neighbors complained about her back yard nudist camp.

Refused To Sell Homes To Blacks, Complaint States

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Houston real estate firms have been charged with discrimination against Negroes in the selling and renting of homes, the Justice Department has announced.

The suits were filed in a Houston federal court against Jim Tucker Co. and Brass Buttons Realty Co. and were described as the first of their kind to be filed in Houston.

One complaint charges the Brass Buttons Co. refused to sell homes in white areas to blacks and used sales and advertising procedures which created racially segregated neighborhoods by steering prospective homebuyers to areas predominantly non-white.

The other complaint against Tucker also charges the company with using discriminatory sales techniques and advertising techniques to steer black prospective purchasers to predominantly black, rapidly integrating neighborhoods while channeling white purchasers to predominantly white areas.

OH YES, GOOD NEWS TODAY Here's How To See Your Town From 50,000 Feet Without Getting High

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copley News Service

Want to know what your town looks like from nearly 10 miles above the earth? If you live in any one of 23 cities in 17 different states, you can buy aerial photographs of your community from the Interior Department's U.S. Geological Survey. And the price is not too far out of line, unless of course you stop to think that you're a taxpayer and already helped to finance this project.

Anyhow, it's part of the 1970 Census Cities Project conducted by the survey in cooperation with the federal space agency. The high altitude photography phase was aimed at testing the ability to detect urban changes from earth-orbiting satellites.

PRICES VARY
Photos of the 23 cities may be purchased from the EROS Data Center, Sioux Falls, S.D.

They were snapped at 50,000 feet from high-flying RB-57F aircraft equipped with nine cameras. Prices range widely, from 70mm film transparencies at $2.50 for black and white and $4.00 for color, to 40-by-40-inch paper print enlargements at $9 for black and white and $25 for color.

The cities photographed include: Asheville, N.C.; Atlanta, Ga.; Boston, Mass.; Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Dallas, Denver, Colo.; El Paso; Houston-Galveston; Lawrence, Kan.; Midland; New Haven, Conn.; New Orleans, La.; Peoria, Ill.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Pontiac, Mich.; Riverside - San Bernardino, Calif.; Salt Lake City, Utah; San Francisco, Calif.; Seattle, Wash.; Tucson, Ariz.; Washington, D.C.; West Palm Beach, Fla. and Wichita Falls.

10 people, three would make it earn well for them by the end of the year; three more would have the principal but very little else and four would be broke again, for the very same reasons they were broke in the first place, before the windfall.

PROFITS
Well, the incoming generation may do better, according to the results of a University of Wisconsin experiment.

Twelve students were given $100,000 to invest as they chose. They turned in $18,850 in profits this year, $1,300 more than their predecessors in 1971.

The students had to show a 4 per cent profit to pass their courses, entitled "Applied Security Analysis and Investment Management." Their earnings reflected an 18.85 per cent profit.

The students decided where to invest and profited most from investments in leisure-related industries and consumer products. Their smallest returns came from real estate trusts, says Prof. Stephen L. Hawks, who taught the class.

The profit is returned with the original $100,000 fund donated by the Brittingham Foundation. When it reaches the half-million dollar mark, the fund will be used to provide scholarships.

Dr. Louis Gluck of San Diego, Calif., is a hero to baby doctors in scattered parts of the world, in such places as Lyons, France; Moscow, Leningrad, San Francisco and even in the grass belt of Ethiopia.

The reason: Dr. Gluck conceived a simple test on babies before they are born. The World Health Organization says it probably has saved more than 5,000 infants in the last year.

The Gluck Test, as it has become known widely, is so uncomplicated that it works with almost unerring accuracy. It lets baby doctors know if an infant's lungs are strong enough to support life. By taking a measured amount of the liquid surrounding the fetus, doctors can determine the chemical maturity of the lungs in a yet-to-be-born child.

The test can mean the difference between a healthy and a chronically ill baby and in some cases prevents stillbirth.

SWIFT RATE
Dr. Gluck acknowledges the test has spread around the world at an incredibly swift rate.

"On a trip to Paris this year I was surprised to find that it is a common medical procedure there," he recalls.

The man who invests $100,000 and makes it earn $8,000 to $10,000 a year for him is no financial genius, but he is no dummy, either. Financiers say that if you handed $100,000 to

FIRE, SMOKE AND WATER DAMAGE SALE!

During the night of July 5th there was a fire in our General Electric distributor's Lubbock warehouse. Although the fire was contained with relatively little effect, there was extensive smoke and water damage when the automatic sprinkler system went off, soaking the cartons of literally hundreds of General Electric appliances and TV's. After cleanup, G-E has offered this merchandise to their dealers at distress prices. We have made substantial purchases, and can, in turn, SAVE YOU MONEY on that major appliance or TV you may have been planning to buy. Normal new warranties will apply, as well as General Electric's "Customer Care, Everywhere" service guarantee.

Where Educating Is Needed

Trustees of the Howard County United Fund have approved a goal of $113,640 for the 1972 campaign. This represents about a four per cent increase over last year and means that a few agencies will get modest increases.

Last year's goal was finally reached, thanks to the heroic campaign leadership which would not give up. It would appear then that the United Fund really has its work cut out for this year.

This may be so, but it need not be an insurmountable challenge. Indeed, there is every reason why we should reach the new goal and exceed it.

Morris Robertson, president, called attention to the need for "educating" our people. This is a two-fold process — educating people to the imperative need of these funds in order for some 16 agencies to keep going and serving the community, and the need for broadening support.

We suspect that his remarks are beamed more at the latter, for indeed the UF must have a broader base and increase the amount it raises if the agencies are not to be seriously constricted. That means first of all that a lot of people — and we do mean a lot — who are not now having a part, are brought into the fold of givers.

There are entirely too many heads of businesses and industries who "shield" their employees from this civic responsibility. It's unfair to these employees — they ought to be confronted with the challenge of supporting their community agencies. It's unfair to the community not to have this support. And those who do this "shielding" are unfair to themselves, for if more money has to be raised, it will fall back on them individually.

Every gainfully employed person in Howard County should be asked to give — and to give a fair share — to the United Fund.

This is where we need our educating, and part of the process is enlisting the support of every businessman to help carry this appeal to his employees.

Look At Redistribution

This is the season of the year when the Howard County Commissioners Court is obliged to look at the voting and population structure of the county with the view to seeing if things are in balance.

That means an examination of the four commissioner precincts to see that they are as near in population balance as possible. The Supreme Court "one-man one-vote" rule seems to spell this out clearly.

There is the addition matter of trying to equalize the voting box load. There are many boxes which are entirely too large, and by the same token some that are too small for efficiency and economy. Perhaps next year is not crucial in this matter, but certainly before another "on" year comes around there should be some drastic redistribution of the voting potential within various boxes.

The Bank Bounced

Around The Rim

Walt Finley

My drinking cousin, Bobby Harris, asks:

"Did you ever hear the story about the Texan who wrote a check and the bank bounced?"

YEP!!!

I WENT to a doctor who told me I was too fat. (I kinda' expected this. I've ballooned 60 pounds since I stopped smoking).

A skinny co-worker suggested that I join the YMCA and get some exercise.

"No," I said. "I bought a Y membership once and didn't lose a pound."

"Did you ever go over there?" J. O. Sheid asked.

"No."

AN ENTERPRISING whipper-snapper on the staff has found a new use for me.

I turned around one day and there stood Frank Gonzales.

"What do you want?" I asked.

"Nothing," he replied. "I'm just hiding behind you."

Maybe I can rent the space.

OLIVER COFER, ad expert, says:

"A congressman who doesn't have the wind at his back is sitting in the back row."

There was an item I wanted to use in this column today for a very special reason. I have spent the last 2½ hours looking for it without success.

But the time wasn't totally lost. I found a few other things of value and many others I can't understand why. And I threw away a lot, some of which may have been your semi-brilliant idea of many months ago.

Now I don't remember what it was, even though I may have found it.

JOLLY JACK JARRELL, St. Louis, writes:

"I would chide you for leaving the last letter off my name in your column, but I'm afraid you'd reply 'The L, you say?'"

Tommy Jordan, you remember him, says:

"I can remember when a teenage drug problem was finding something that worked on acne."

MY CHUNKY uncle, Chester Ladd, an Okie in Muskogee, reports earthily:

"I just paid for a load of topsoil and I can vouch for this — There may be some things that are dirt-cheap, but dirt isn't one of them."

That's a thought. Out here in West Texas a guy could start a dirt farm, and erect barriers to catch the dust kicked up by the spring, summer, autumn winter winds.

Then after they're over, he could sell the farmers back their own soil. Yep!

My Answer

BILLY GRAHAM

I have a friend whom I loved and admired very much. We are both in the same church, and lately she has snubbed me, and will have nothing to do with me. I have made overtures to her, but she shuns me. Lately I have even left that church, but I still have no peace. What can I do to regain her friendship? M.J.A.

I usually tell people who have misunderstandings to talk it out, for to understand is to forgive, usually. But in the tone of your letter I sense that you have an unusual affection for this person, and that she does not wish to return the endearing overtures you continually make to her. The fact that you are still disturbed, even though you have changed churches is evidence that you are still drawn to this person who doesn't seem disposed to reciprocate your affection in kind.

Under the circumstances I would forget the matter. You don't need to hold enmity, for that would be unchristian. But at the same time it would be unwise to continue to nourish an affection for this person who obviously is not disposed to return it. For you to grieve over this lost friendship could cause grave and serious psychological and spiritual harm to you.

Since this person seems willing to break the friendship, you must be willing to do the same. It is folly to pursue a relationship, spend your time more profitably in reading the Bible, and praying for strength to face this problem which has upset you for a long time. Keep all ranch out of your heart, and do not permit this person to hurt you more.

Demos For McGovern

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — In a direct challenge to the "Democrats for Nixon," a new political organization has been incorporated in Washington this week with the unlikely name of "Democrats for McGovern."

THE CHAIRMAN, Partridge Wankleman, opened the storefront headquarters last Thursday on Pennsylvania Avenue, just three blocks from the White House. We went to a cocktail party celebrating the festivities and had a few moments with Wankleman.

"This is a grass-roots movement," he explained. "There are many Democrats who are fed up with Nixon, and we want to welcome them into our party."

"That's a good idea," I said. "But according to the polls, there aren't too many Democrats who have indicated they would vote for McGovern."

"THE POLLS could be wrong," Wankleman said. "There are some Democrats who want to vote for McGovern, but at this stage, they're not willing to speak up. We hope that by starting this organization we can make it possible for them to work for our candidate. We're not asking them to stop being Democrats."

"All we're asking is that they search their consciences and vote for the best man, even if the best man is George McGovern."

"That's pretty hard for a Democrat to do," I said.

"WE'RE OPTIMISTIC. As a matter of fact, we've already signed up three Democratic senators and four Democratic governors and that's only the beginning. Our people are now working on Democratic congressmen. I wouldn't be surprised if at least half of them didn't come out for the McGovern ticket."

"That's a good start," I admitted. "I suppose you won't go after people like Mayor Daley or George Meany."

"We will, eventually. But at the moment, we'd rather attract Democrats who are on the fence and could go one way or another. We want those who will work for McGovern even if it's against their philosophy."

WANKLEMAN said the "Democrats for McGovern" were printing buttons, bumper stickers and posters. They were also seeking testimonials from well-known people associated with the Democratic Party in the past. Money seemed to be the big hitch.

"We can find Democrats for McGovern, but we can't seem to find many who will support him financially."

"How do you find them?" I asked.

"We're working from Democratic Party lists. We send out mailings to the Democrats, asking if they would be interested in supporting our candidate. It's amazing how many we've heard from. Last week, out of 1.6 million letters, we received 1,678 affirmative replies."

"THAT SHOULD give the Republicans something to think about," I said. "Where did you get your idea for the 'Democrats for McGovern?'"

"Strangely enough, from the Republicans when they started 'Democrats for Nixon,' it occurred to us that some Democrats deserved another chance. So we organized the Democrats for McGovern, to give them a place to go."

"WILL YOU have storefronts like this all over America?" I asked.

"We hope to. This is the race to the finish, and if we can prove that even Democrats will vote for McGovern, then perhaps the independents might go along with us."

Singer's Gift

NEW YORK (AP) — Neil Diamond has donated $3,000 to Phoenix House here and the same amount to the Los Angeles Free Clinic.

Phoenix House is a rehabilitation center for drug addicts.

The money came from the sale of souvenir programs during a recent U.S. tour by Diamond. It is meant to aid both establishments with purchase of medical supplies and operating expenses.

Corporate Profits Booming

By LINDA RUBEY

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bigger corporate profits and a record national trade deficit were among business highlights of the past week.

New York's First National City Bank, in one of the first surveys of second-quarter profits, said a check of 748 corporations showed net income up 16 per cent above levels of the 1971 second quarter.

Auto producers were among the big gainers.

General Motors reported record quarterly profits of $723 million, up from $567 million. Ford said its profits totaled a record $283 million, up from $198 million, and Chrysler and American Motors both said their net income more than doubled.

STEEL SAGS

But while automakers were making money from strong first-half sales, steel producers said their profits were down from last year, when customers were buying heavily to stockpile against a possible strike.

U.S. Steel Corp., the biggest producer, said profits plunged 37.5 per cent for the quarter and sales were off 12 per cent. Bethlehem Steel, second-rank

The Week's Business

- Survey shows 748 corporations averaging 16 per cent gain
- But trade deficit reached $3.3 billion, growing worse
- Steel, bucking bit stockpiling of last year, is off sharply
- Another 10 million exempted from 5.5 per cent wage guidelines
- This makes 56 million free to seek wages over that limit ed, reported a 23 per cent drop in profits and a 20 per cent decline in sales.

The government reported the nation's trade deficit climbed to a record $3.3 billion in the first half of 1972 and was showing no signs of easing. The Commerce Department said the value of goods shipped into the country exceeded the value of exports in June alone by $590.3 million, slightly more than May's $552.4 million.

BIG DEFICIT

The deficit, which reflects on American competitiveness in the world market and can cut into American jobs, has already passed the 1971 mark of $2 billion. Last year's deficit was the country's first in this century.

The Nixon administration announced it was exempting 10 million more workers from government wage controls by increasing to $2.75 an hour the wage level below which workers are not subject to the Pay Board's jurisdiction.

The Cost of Living Council, which originally set the cutoff point at $1.90 an hour, said taking into account earlier exemptions, 56 per cent of the nation's 58 million nongovernment and nonfarm employees would be eligible for pay raises in excess of the board's 5.5 per cent guideline.

Beverage Truck Flips, Also Crowd

BOKOSHE, Okla. (AP) — A Highway Patrolman was predicting good times in this eastern Oklahoma community Friday night after a trailer full of beer and soft drinks overturned.

Trooper Roy Leming said that by the time he arrived at the accident, some 200 area residents had gathered at the scene and were hauling away about half of the 200 cases of refreshments.

Leming said he was unable to stop the looting.

Steel's Earnings Off Badly But Better Days Are Looming

By JOHN DORFMAN

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — While most industries have been displaying glowing earnings reports in the past two weeks, returns from the steel companies have been coming in grey as a girder.

Appearances may be deceiving, however. Steel's profits are being compared with 1971 first-half figures that were artificially swollen by mass buying in fear of a steel strike.

No strike ever came. But buyers had stocked up so much inventory by August that demand for steel fell to a trickle.

"It took virtually all of 1971 to work off this inventory," one analyst said. "So profits in the second half of 1972 are going to be up very substantially."

OUTLOOK BETTER

The outlook for steel is boosted by the latest returns from the auto makers, who in good times are hungry consumers of steel. General Motors announced Friday its June quarter was its best ever, with profits up $723 million, up from $567 million last year.

Ford's first-half profits jumped from $367 million to $535 million, on record worldwide sales. Chrysler and American Motors also reported healthy increases in earnings.

On paper, the steel earnings don't look so good, and most steel stocks were down a point or two following release of corporate reports this week. But one Wall Street expert discounted the trend.

"The investing public is making a mistake, looking at these earnings in a very superficial way," he said. "If investors continue to look at this on a surface basis, the third quarter is going to excite the hell out of them."

Foreign imports—an increasingly annoying thorn in the pocketbook of domestic producers, are expected to drop this year to 17 million tons or less, after peaking at 18.32 million tons last year to capture 16 per cent of the U.S. market.

Chief cause for the change is a series of "voluntary agreements" negotiated by the U.S. Treasury Department with European and Japanese producers.

Moral Egnomania

William F. Buckley Jr.

LOS ANGELES — Daniel Ellsberg is leading a very public life during his trial for divulging government secrets. It is, to say the least, unusual to give press conferences, and appear on television, while a jury weighs evidence of your alleged misdeeds.

DAN ELLSBERG'S team knows what it's up to. It seeks every kind of publicity for their principal. The concern here is less for law — though they appear to be having quite a legal frolic — than for ideology. Like the Chicago Seven, the point they want to make is extra-legal. Dan Ellsberg is concerned to publicize his case against the United States government and the Vietnam war, and he assumes that the lawyers will take care of the matter of keeping him out of jail.

THE GOVERNMENT has not chosen to go after Ellsberg on the Big Count — the Espionage Act that forbids the disclosure of a government secret "with intent or reason to believe that it is to be used to the injury of the United States or the advantage of a foreign nation." In this connection, it is instructive to recall the motives of Daniel Ellsberg for releasing the documents. Everyone knows that he became an anti-war evangelist. But last March Ellsberg reminisced before an audience most specifically. He said that he remembered the exact moment when he decided to release the secret papers. It was after a Yale-Harvard football game in the fall of 1970, and the report reached him that President Nixon was determined to renew the bombing of Hanoi, and that he was even contemplating an invasion of North Vietnam.

NOW IF ONE agrees that an invasion of North Vietnam is a disadvantage to North Vietnam, and that Ellsberg intended, by releasing the Pentagon Papers to diminish the chances of such an invasion, then it follows that Ellsberg's intent was that the information he released should be used to the advantage of a foreign nation.

Sure, he also believed that it was to the advantage of the United States to desist from further military action in South Vietnam, even as Klaus Fuchs thought it to be the ultimate advantage of Great Britain to give away our atomic secrets to the Soviet Union. But the people who designed the Espionage Act were not universalists in that sense. What they meant to discourage was the kind of thing Benedict Arnold did.

Who's Lucky Now?

Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON — Who really lucked out at the recent and largely unattended Democratic convention is still in dispute. Listening to the losers, you are sure it is not the winner, Sen. George McGovern.

ONE WHO COUNTS himself lucky is Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey. He says that he came to realize — it was a belated realization — that if by some miracle he had been nominated the convention would have been torn to pieces and he would have endured two days of bitter humiliation and anguish.

Now, he says, he can devote himself to being a good senator which is the ambition his wife, Muriel, has cherished for him all along. What is more, he is going to give most of his campaign time to helping fellow Democratic senators pull out of the doldrums in which many of them now are. If the election were held today, Humphrey is frank to say, the Republicans would score a net gain of not less than five seats for a majority of the Senate in the next Congress. That is a bleak prospect for a party that has so long had the prerogatives of control with powerful committee chairmen running the show.

SOUTH DAKOTA, Sen. George McGovern's home state, offers for the Democrats working in the Senate vineyard a note of cheer. Sen. Karl Mundt, absent from the Senate for nearly three years following a paralyzing stroke, is not running for re-election. The Democrat after that seat is James G. Abourezk, one of the two South Dakotan members of the House. Elected in 1970, he is an odds-on favorite.

Enjoying Yourself Is Supposed To Be Fun

Copley News Service

Another one of those highly touted American rituals has come to pass. George looked up from the Sunday newspapers and said, "Let's take a drive after dinner."

"With the children," you breathe before you realize what you are saying. "Naturally, what else?" "Do we have to?" "It would be a change."

So promptly at 2:00 p.m. the car rolls out of the driveway with Orphie and Junior in the back seat. NOW HEAR THIS

"Does he have to sit back here with me?" Orphie screams. "Yah, yah, yah, yah, yah," Junior serenades. "Quiet or I'll throw you all out," George shouts above the din.

Orphie's hand is already on the door and George comes to a screeching halt. "Now hear this," he shouts. "We are all going for a Sunday afternoon drive... that's all there is to it." He looks at me. "Control 'em," he orders.

Junior leans over the front seat... whining. "Do we hafta, ma, do we hafta?" "Foreigner," Orphie grunts. "Can't even talk right!"

You ignore all of them. Actually you have learned how to shut them out completely by turning off your ears. You learned this little trick years ago when you found out Orphie was a screamer and Junior was a whiner. You think they're throwbacks but you haven't decided to what.

George heads out on the parkway and after about half an hour you say, "How about a Coke, George? There's a gas station ahead."

Interest perks up in the rear. "Yah, dad... dad," it's Junior, of course. "How about a Coke?" "I don't care to partake of refreshment at this particular time," Orphie bites through her teeth.

George stops at the garage. "Synchronize watches... you have exactly fifteen minutes." "OK Scrooge," you quip. "Would you like a Coke?" LAST EXIT

After Cokes, two sojourns to the rest room, with Orphie grinning satanically, obviously enjoying pushing Junior into the Ladies' Room, (the Men's Room was closed), you breathe a sigh of relief as the troops move out. At least they are all cooped up in the car, what more can they do?

Then the sign looms ahead of you. "Last Exit Before the Toll" and you groan. Junior starts immediately, "Can I throw the dime in... yah, dad. You promised me last time... next time would be my turn. That was two years ago!"

George turns to you. HOME FREE "You always said he was a throwback. I just discovered what..." he throws back his head and howls, "an elephant! That's what... an elephant! Then he is quiet, furrows his brow. "We don't really have any elephants in the family, do we?"

"Let's go home, George," you suggest. "We can watch TV." "No, no," the whining echoes from the rear seat, "just when everything is getting good!" Orphie screams, "I want my back!" George, once again master of the household, grinds the car to a halt, bellowing, "Now hear this! We are all going home to watch TV. And I don't want to hear another sound!"

Shupe said he felt the Angels Murphy Judicial Court was not receiving proper respect from Whiting.

You smile at George weakly. You are home free.

'Good' Manners

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I realize that many young people have gone in for far out weddings, which is all right with me. But when they depart from the conventional "thank you" note for their wedding gifts, I think they are going too far.

Today I received what was supposed to be a "thank you" note for a wedding gift I sent to a young couple. (The bride was the daughter of dear friends, so I sent a very expensive silver coffee service.)

The acknowledgment was a folded piece of paper. On the front was "THANK YOU" commercially printed in gold letters. When I opened it there was a photographer's picture of the couple on one side, and a short poem on the other with the couple's names printed below. Abby, that was it! The bride did address the envelope by hand, which was the only personal touch.

I was appalled. I wouldn't have the nerve to say anything to the couple or to their parents, but through you, Abby, I have been able to fume accordingly. Any comment? No name, please.

DEAR APPALLED: Glad you didn't have the nerve to say anything to the parents. After the kids say their "I do's" their parents are not responsible for their actions. I agree, though customs do change, good manners do not. The appropriate expression of gratitude is a personally written note — The exception being when the number runs into the high hundreds or into the thousands.

(P.S. That couple at least sent a card. I was advised that a young couple was sent a check for their wedding gift, and the only acknowledgement ever received was a "thank you" written on the back of the cancelled check!)

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old girl and I have been taking guitar lessons for some time now. I recently switched to a new teacher who is very attractive. (He's about 20.) He has complimented me on my clothes, my hair, and once he even said he thought I was "cute." He has casually put his arm around me, touched my hand and nudged my foot. From these actions I take it he has an eye for me.

Well, I want him to know that I have an eye for him, too, but in these situations I tend to turn red and clam up.

I am hoping he will ask me out, but I am getting a little tired of waiting. Should I make some sort of move toward him? Or should I let him make the first move?

TIRED OF WAITING
DEAR TIRED: Don't make any sort of "move" toward him, but if something comes along that requires an escort, ask him. If he doesn't jump at the chance, quit waiting. He probably has a girl friend.

JANE FONDA ASKS:

What Is A Traitor?

NEW YORK (AP) — Academy Award-winning actress Jane Fonda defended herself today against an accusation that remarks she made over Radio Hanoi during a two-week visit to North Vietnam were traitorous. She labeled as "absurd" an allegation that she had urged U.S. pilots to defect.

"I would not tell the soldiers to defect and go over and fight with the Vietnamese. It is absurd. They are needed at home," she said. "Anybody that is speaking out against the war is carrying on a propaganda—a propaganda for peace, a propaganda against death, a propaganda for life," the auburn-tressed anti-war activist said.

CRIED EVERY DAY
Rep. Fletcher Thompson, R-Ga., said earlier this month that Miss Fonda had committed treason by allegedly urging American troops in Southeast Asia to disobey orders.

"What is a traitor?" the actress asked. "I cried every day I was in Vietnam. I cried for America. The bombs are falling on Vietnam, but it is an American tragedy."

"I believe that the people in this country who are speaking out against the war are the patriots."

Miss Fonda spoke at a news conference here. She returned from Paris Thursday night after her visit to North Vietnam.

HORRIFIED

"I was horrified by what I saw," Miss Fonda said, adding that she felt the pilots would stop bombing if she could "tell them what they are doing." She said her comments were intended to direct the pilots' attention to what she described as death and destruction on the ground.

Miss Fonda had promised to distribute transcripts of her radio speeches at the news conference but said the copies had not been made.

However, the actress said her remarks as quoted in the Congressional Record last July 20 were accurate and typical.

Miss Fonda was quoted as saying, "Why do you follow orders telling you to destroy a hospital or bomb the schools? Do you know what happens to the women when the napalm you are dropping lands on them... and I say that the time has come for us to stop it."

She also was quoted as saying, "The men who are ordering you to use these weapons are war criminals according to international law, and in the past... the men who were guilty of these kinds of crimes were tried and executed."

Blame It On Sahara Dust

MIAMI (AP) — Hazy conditions in much of the southeastern United States and the Caribbean have been blamed by weathermen on dust particles from Africa's Sahara Desert.

"It's thick enough in some areas across the Atlantic that it collects on aircraft windshields," John Boyd of the National Weather Service's Miami office quoted Puerto Rico meteorologists as saying.

Boyd said Thursday that the weather experts in San Juan, P.R., blame the haze on Sahara dust being carried 5,000 miles across the Atlantic by an easterly wind flow.

"This is unusual as far as daily occurrences go, but it happens periodically over the years," he said. The haze, which has persisted for two days, is turning the sky over Miami to a milky blue. Boyd said he could not predict how long the condition would last.

All of Florida and parts of Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee are affected by the wind-blown dust, Boyd said. He added that a frontal system north of this area was keeping the particles from traveling farther while dry weather within the area was helping to keep the dust aloft.

Exchange Words

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ralph Nader and presidential consumer adviser Virginia Knauer have exchanged words over a suggestion that she resign.

Nader, the consumer crusader, called on Mrs. Knauer to resign to protest wrangling over the consumer protection bill.

Nader told Mrs. Knauer that the administration had surrendered "to some of the most intense special interest lobbying ever seen in this city."

60 - Second Race Moves Millions

Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — The Post Office likes to boast that mail moves the country. But the men who work their appointed rounds even in gloom of night must share honors with television.

Television is capable of moving millions of people — and in a big hurry. Those whose evening hours are plugged into the 21-inch screen have developed a new life form.

It's punctuated by what we can here call the 60-second activity burst. You're way ahead of me. You've guessed that it's triggered by commercials.

Although there are a few quality commercials that might be worth watching, the first couple of times around, most are bad enough that only an unimaginative viewer would permit himself to sit through a sales pitch and actually watch and listen.

There are two levels of noncommercial watching.

In one, the viewer can actually remain in his chair but, of course, divert his attention from the screen.

As Ironside leans close to the commissioner's desk, draws an asthmatic breath, and declares that he needs more manpower to crack the wheel chair heist racket, it's a tipoff that the commercial is coming.

So one looks away before the very first "try it, you'll like it." At my house my wife is also alert. She knows she can have my ear for 60 seconds.

"We ought to get tickets to that play for Saturday night. They say it's good."

"Um."

Subliminally, the final "try it, you'll like it" comes into the room and I know the second 30-second commercial is beginning. Something about used cars. A bumper.

She goes on about the play until the final "mile of cars" fadeout triggers my eyes and ears back to the screen. There's the old chief, still choking and gasping. Maybe they got him in the lungs as well as the spine.

The true 60-second activity burst comes when the viewer takes advantage of back-to-back commercials to get things done. I have completed as many as five tasks and made it back to Doc Adams' bullet removal in time to hear the clank of lead in the tin pan.

Like — going to the bathroom, getting a drink of water, snatching up a miniature Mr. Goodbar, letting the dog in and writing myself a three-word note about an errand to take care of during a work break the following day.

As it turns out, everybody's happy. I've caught every scene and my wife has caught me.

Instead of watching Mary Tyler Moore Saturday night, we're going to see — a play.

OUTSIDE TEL AVIV, LONDON 'Fiddler' Star Unknown

With the presentation of the Norman Jewison film "Fiddler On The Roof," Tevye, the poor, irresistible milkman with a special pipeline to God, begins a new journey. He had completed a seven-year, round-the-world odyssey that took him into 32 different countries where 35,000,000 people shared his joys, sorrows and assorted problems. Following the opening of "Fiddler On The Roof" on Broadway in September, 1964, countless productions in 16 languages criss-crossed the theatres of the world. "Fiddler" is showing at R/70.

Now the burden of supporting five unmarried daughters, coping with a sharp-tongued wife and replacing a lame horse belongs to Topol, who is portraying Tevye on the screen.

Why Topol? Why should the 35-year-old actor, Topol, who is little known outside London and Tel Aviv, be the one chosen to play the lead role of Tevye?

Jewison explained his reasoning: "I felt Tevye should be played by someone who, in his own background-cultural background and upbringing-in his very heart and soul, was either a first or second generation Russian Jew or as close as one could get to being one, because Sholom Aleichem was writing about a very certain group of people. This led me didn't feel that a second generation American from Brooklyn could possibly reach far enough back into his heritage. I didn't want him to reach much further back than his own father — that is ethnically and emotionally.

"I feel to this day that no one in the world could have played Tevye as well as Topol does.

Disney Actor Sports Figure

Kurt Russel, 21, who stars as the college student discoverer of the secret of invisibility in Walt Disney Productions' zany comedy, "Now You See Him, Now You Don't" is on the rising crest of two careers. An actor of increasing importance in Hollywood for over a decade, Kurt is also becoming a sports figure.

In 1971, Kurt became a professional baseball player. He signed with the Bend (Oregon) Rainbows, the farm team of the Hawaii Islanders. Playing the summer season in the Northwest League, Kurt distinguished himself with a .285 batting average and the most double-plays in the league.

Currently in his second summer season under contract to the Hawaii Islanders' farm team, this year he plays at Walla Walla, Washington, in a cooperative rookie club with the Giants.

Since his senior year in high school, Kurt was scouted by a number of major league clubs, but accepting an offer would have meant giving up acting. The beauty of his agreement with the Islanders is that he is allowed time off for motion picture commitments.

"I wasn't ready to compromise acting for baseball or vice versa," recalls Kurt of the earlier overtures from the world of pro ball. "I wanted to do both and still do. That's why this is such a lucky break. I hope to move on into the big leagues and maybe someday make the Hall of Fame."

He smiles optimistically and quips, "And maybe win an Oscar, too."

The switch-hitting infielder began training in Walla Walla in June and plays through September. His father, Bing Russell, ex-Yankee who plays the sheriff on TV's "Bonanza," is confident that "Kurt will make an even better showing than last year."

The young Russell still has one more picture remaining on his non-exclusive pact with Disney, for whom he's appeared in six motion pictures and nine episodes on "The Wonderful World of Disney" NBC-TV series.

Star's Wardrobe Is Untouchable

William Holden, Ernest Borgnine and Susan Hayward, a trio of Academy Award winners, head the cast of "THE REVENGERS," an action-packed western adventure tale of a quest for vengeance in the post-Civil War era.

"THE REVENGERS" opens Wednesday at the Cinema Theater. In this film Holden recruits a gang of desperados from the convict ranks of a Mexican prison to lead them on a long and dangerous quest for a Comanchero who led an Indian massacre of his family. The grim odyssey leads from Colorado to Texas to Mexico. Observers have compared the exciting action scenes to "The Wild Bunch," in which Holden also starred.

Director Daniel Mann used the natural splendor of Mexico's backgrounds as complementary tones to the colorful story.

Added to Holden, Borgnine and Miss Hayward is co-star Woody Strode — the legendary black athlete, one-time teammate of Jackie Robinson and the late Kenny Washington, and now a rising star of European films. Strode is followed in billing by Academy Award nominee Arthur Hunnicutt and an international cast: French film star Roger Hanin, German actor Rene Koldehoff, and Mexico's Jorge Luke and Jorge Martinez de Hoyos. Warren Vanders is a memorable, white-eyed villain: Holden's son, Scott, 26, came from Switzerland to make an American film debut.

Outlay for the star's "wardrobe" at which any self-respecting thrift shop would sneer, totaled $46,100-$300 of which was for a leather vest and a battered beaver hat the late Ted Lewis wouldn't have looked at twice.

Costumer Carlos Chavez pulled together the disreputable items from some of Mexico City's notoriously questionable pawn shops. They were the beaver top hat and leather vest, a long-sleeved undershirt, new trousers (to be aged), and new shoes, also to be aged. Total price: 605 pesos or $36.10

Jonathan Winters Stars In Improvisational Show

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — "There's a little boy in all of us," said Jonathan Winters. "It's the little boy in me that makes me funny. And I think it's the little boy in everyone else that makes people laugh at me."

"I get my characters from people I've known around southern Ohio and from my days in the Marines and just from kicking around the country. I paint verbal pictures, vignettes."

"Like Maudie Frickett, she's an aunt of mine, lived in Springfield, Ohio. Fantastic woman. Taught me how to play poker. Gave me my first touch of booze."

As he talked, Jonny Winters was sitting in his dressing room at ABC in Hollywood, where they are taping his new series, called "The Wacky World of Jonathan Winters."

A script rested on the table in it there were indications that Zsa Zsa Gabor and Bill Russell, the old basketball player, were the guest stars and there were notations on camera angles and other technical matters. Otherwise, it was virtually blank. Oddest script I had ever seen.

"What kind of script is this?" I inquired. "Where's the writing? Where's the jokes?" Winters grinned. "That's it," he said. "It's all improvisational. I wing it as I go. The problem is, who'll believe it? Guy out there, sitting in front of his set somewhere with a beer in his hand, he'll say, 'Hey, that's all made-up stuff. I'll bet.' But it isn't. It's just me going out on a limb and I hope it goes."

"But I feel lots freer doing it this way, which is my way. The networks wouldn't sit still for this kind of a series. They always want something on paper. But that's not how I work best. Way we do it here, they give me a situation, a few actors toss me straight lines and off I go, winging it."

Rabbits Habits Disastrous In New Suspense Thriller

The figures may seem incredible but the progeny of a single pair of rabbits can total 13,718,000 in three years.

In the International Wildlife Encyclopedia there is a passage which reads, "... in many areas in which they (rabbits) have been introduced, they have no natural enemy and consequently have caused widespread devastation of grasslands and robbed the native animals of their food."

A book entitled "Wonders of Animal Life" by J. A. Hamerton contains a chapter devoted to "Pygmies That Threaten the World." Of the most threatening according to Hamerton are rabbits. Quoting him, "Rabbits may have as many as six young to a litter and four litters a year, the young begin to reproduce at the age of six months... a phenomenal rate of increase... it is, of course, perfectly obvious that unchecked multiplication... would be utterly disastrous."

Based on scientific fact then is the production of MGM's "Night of the Lepus," a film termed a "science-fiction" suspense thriller. Fact or fiction, the story has a frightening reality.

"Night of the Lepus" concerns a rancher who creates a rabbit over-population problem when he poisons the coyotes on his land. With no coyotes to kill rabbits, his cattle are soon starving — the rabbits are eating all vegetation intended for his cattle. Problems increase when experiments with the rabbits develop a mutated form of the animals, considerably larger with voracious appetites. Soon an entire community is terrorized.

The film, starring Stuart Whitman, Janet Leigh and Rory Calhoun, features 350 rabbits in the opening scenes and more than 2,000 in the final sequences. The film opens today at the Ritz Theater.

Lone Ranger, Green Hornet For 15 Cents

CHICAGO (AP) — It was Lone Ranger and Green Hornet time over the weekend at an exhibition called, Nostalgia '72.

From the radio days of the Lone Ranger there were toy silver bullets, pedometers, atomic rings and dozens of other items bought long ago for 25 cents and a cereal boxtop.

The displays brought back memories of Batman, Wonder Woman, the Green Hornet, Dick and Jane primers and Saturdays filled by cartoons, two Durango Kid westerns and a Don Winslow of the Navy semi-Midnight decoder ring or Lone Ranger pedometer, he could replace it at the exhibition but the price was a bit steeper than 25 cents, more like $15. All — all for 15 cents.

Swamp Creatures Star In 'Frogs'

Five hundred native Florida frogs and 100 giant South American toads were cast into the title roles of American International's new screen adventure, "Frogs," opening Tuesday at the Jet Drive-In Theatre. Each of the creatures was selected for size or repulsiveness... a sort of reverse beauty contest.

A suspenseful drama describing the battle of a Florida plantation family against a mighty invasion of deadly swamp creatures upon their home when man-made pollution had driven the beasts from their backwater environments, the frogs and toads were used to portray the vanguard of the assault. Supporting them are poisonous snakes, alligators, lizards and giant spiders.

Although production was completed long ago on the film, many of the frogs and toads are still living happily in the vicinity of Eden State Park, Florida where the story was photographed. During some of the "mob scenes" they skipped... or hopped... to freedom.

Remap Rule Spelled Out By Martin

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — County Commissioners may use the number of registered voters instead of population as a basis for drawing commissioners' precincts, Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin held here.

Martin, responding to a request by Travis County Atty. Ned Granger of Austin, cited a 1970 U.S. Supreme Court decision that districts must be drawn so that "equal numbers of voters can vote for proportionally equal numbers of officials."

The attorney general's opinion said this "would seem to indicate that districts composed of an equal number of registered voters, as opposed to persons, would be constitutionally sanctioned."

Martin also cited a 1970 federal district court decision, later affirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court, which approved the redistricting of El Paso County on the basis of registered voters rather than population.

In that case, El Paso commissioners wanted to draw districts on the basis of voters because of the large military population in the county.

Granger, in his request for Martin's opinion, said that the 18-year-old vote "altered the previous ratio of registered voters to total population in some areas due, in part, to the concentration of students in some parts of Travis County."

Prior to a U.S. Supreme Court ruling in 1968, commissioners' precincts did not have to follow the "one man, one vote" formula which the court had earlier applied to state legislatures.

Sen. Stevenson's Mother Expires

HAMMOND, Ind. (AP) — Eileen Borden Stevenson, 64, who was married to the late Adlai E. Stevenson, former Illinois governor and two-time Democratic presidential nominee, for more than 20 years, died Friday.

Mrs. Stevenson, the mother of Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., was divorced from her husband in 1949 during his governorship.

GLOBAL REPORT

SALT Is A Disaster

By RUTHVEN E. LIBBY
Copley News Service

Many things have to be seen to be believed. Some things we see, however, are almost incredible — they have a nightmarish quality of unreality.

The widespread indifference displayed by the American public to the implications of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT), the interim agreement and the protocol falls in this latter category. So does the fact that an American President, known to be seriously concerned about the deteriorating military posture of the United States in the face of a Soviet buildup in all arms, particularly strategic nuclear weaponry, felt compelled to sign these documents.

They are described by Phyllis Schlafly as "the most dangerous, disadvantageous, and devious document (s) the United States has ever signed."

In recent testimony to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, she said of the SALT pact: "No more unequal, craven and degrading agreement has ever been signed by any nation — except by a nation which was defeated in war, or about to be defeated in war."

NUCLEAR BLACKWIT

Congressional ratification of these pacts would insure that in the very near future the United States will be confronted either with a choice between ignominious surrender to Soviet nuclear blackmail or assault by a vastly superior Soviet nuclear force, or alternatively with a nuclear surprise attack which would eliminate the United States as a factor in international affairs. The selection of our fate would be made in Moscow.

One of the phenomena of today's political climate in the United States is the prevailing wave of antimilitarism, of which the powerful anti-defense lobby in Washington is a moving spirit.

Furthermore, defense has become a political football — and 1972 is an election year.

The result is that Senate leaders have told Mr. Nixon that the anti-defense lobby — along with the "Members of Congress for Peace Through Law" — is so strong that the Senate "simply will not vote enough money for the United States to keep up with the Russians."

Hence, despite his deep concern over our military weaknesses, the President reportedly felt that the best he could do was work out an agreement with the USSR that would get them to stop their surging military buildup.

NO REASON

The SALT pact is being recommended to the country on the basis that it will stop that buildup. But there is absolutely no reason to believe that it will do any such thing.

What SALT would do is stop the nuclear "arms race" by eliminating the United States as a contestant. The pact freezes us at 1,054 intercontinental ballistic missiles, but permits the USSR to complete 1,618 — to continue their building program in this area for the next five years with no restriction on the amount of megatonnage they can put into these missiles.

The pact limits us to 710 submarine-launched Polaris-Poseidon missiles in 44 boats, while authorizing the Soviets to build 62 submarines carrying 950 missiles.

SUPERIORITY

The pact places no restrictions on Soviet buildup of other strategic systems such as land-based mobile ICBMs, long-range bombers, space weapons and the like.

The pact permits the Soviets to convert their present five-to-one superiority in missile megatonnage to a like superiority in numbers of warheads.

The only category in which we are ahead today is in numbers of warheads — but our MIRVed (multiple independently targetable reentry vehicles) warheads which give us this numerical superiority are 1-20th of a megaton compared to the Soviets' 25-megaton weapons. Hence the numerical comparison is specious and misleading.

The pact waives on-site inspection, leaving the door wide open for Soviet cheating and secret violations of the pacts. Note that the Soviets have violated 24 of the previous 25 summit agreements. In view of the overwhelming advantages which these pacts would give the USSR, there is little presently foreseeable need to violate them — but they would if and when it served their purpose.

STRONG VIEW

Only four months ago, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, in a published interview,

Bra-Burning Fems Harm Movement?

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Helen Delich Bentley, the first woman to serve as chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission, says bra-burning feminists are harming the women's rights movement and alienating those who support it.

"We can compete without being hostile, ladies," Mrs. Bentley told delegates at the convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

"The way I see it, women's male-directed hostility, where it does exist, is a sign of insecurity in such females, and an immature attitude employed to cover up and disguise their real feelings," Mrs. Bentley said.

declared: "... It is my strong view that it would be a great and dangerous mistake for the United States to take unilateral disarmament actions... We must have verifiable mutual arms limitation agreements."

The consensus of the experts is that satellite reconnaissance cannot by itself detect violations of the provisions of the SALT pacts. One expert, Gilbert S. Stubbs, assistant director of the Draper Laboratory at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has noted that "an arms limitation agreement without provisions for direct personal inspection would not halt the arms race."

INDUSTRIAL POWER

We are the greatest industrial power in the world. Our gross national product is twice that of the USSR. The current difference is that the USSR, indefinitely pursuing its goal of world domination, is spending 33 per cent of its GNP on its military establishment, whereas we are devoting less than 8 per cent of ours.

We do not lack the ability, the know-how, the materials, the industrial plant or the competence to regain our security.

All we seem to lack is the will.

Auto Heists Big Business At Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Car theft is a $7 million a year business in Dallas.

An estimated 2,150 cars have been heisted in the first five months of 1972. On an average day some 50 cars are taken from their owners.

Of 10 major cities listed in FBI figures, only Atlanta and Miami have fewer stolen cars than Dallas.

New York City, where a car is stolen every four and a half minutes, leads the list with more than 96,000 cars stolen in 1971. Dallas seems almost small-time in comparison, with one stolen every 90 minutes, but that is little solace to the owners.

Many cars are recovered, but 20-25 per cent of the stolen cars are never seen again, or are returned with tires, engines and other parts missing.

Police said owners can discourage inexperienced thieves and "joyriders" by locking their doors and keeping their car keys with them.

Many WT Ranges Dry, Posing Fire Hazards

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Showers hampered harvest in South Texas during the week while other areas needed moisture. Ranges are dry in many sections with parts of Far West Texas posing potential fire hazards.

Harvesting of cotton and grain sorghum is being slowed in southern areas due to light rains, said Dr. John E. Hutchinson, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Rains also have delayed the rice harvest and have brought on some lodging problems. The grain sorghum harvest continued in full swing in the Uvalde area and became more active in Central Texas.

Harvesting of onions, potatoes and other vegetables gained momentum on the High Plains. In eastern and southern areas, the spring vegetable harvest is about complete. Tomatoes and green peppers are being planted in the Rio Grande Valley.

Livestock are in generally good condition although range conditions are below average in a number of counties. There was no letup in screwworm cases.

District agricultural agents reported these conditions:

South Plains: Weather-damaged cotton recovered slowly due to cool wet conditions. Early fields of grain sorghum are blooming and greenbugs are increasing in some counties. Corn and soybeans are making good growth. Ranges in the southern part need rain.

Rolling Plains: Cotton is furling well with insect activity increasing. Grain sorghum is growing well with aphids, stink bugs and midge causing some damage. Ranges and livestock are in good shape.

Far West: Many ranges are dry and posing fire hazards. Livestock are in good condition with lambs and calves moving to market. Irrigated cotton and grain sorghum made progress, but dryland crops are late and need rain.

Houston Girl Is Among Finalists

NEW YORK (AP) — Cynthia Lew, 15, Miss Black Teenage Texas, was named one of five finalists Friday night in the annual Miss Black Teenage America competition at Madison Square Garden.

Joining Miss Lew in the finals were Miss California, Regina Battle, 15; Miss Florida, Sheila Davis, 15; Miss Kansas, Loranda Breckenridge, 16; and Miss West Virginia, Carla McClinton, 14.
