COUNTY'S NO. 1 CITIZEN DIES IN NEW JERSEY: BURIED AT ARLINGTON

MAJOR GEN. Wm. S. GRAVES
BROTHER OF LOCAL PEOPLE

Major General William Sidney Graves, 74, secretary of the general staff corps of the United States Army during the World War died at his home Tuesday in Shrewsbury, N. J., after a brief illness.

Major General Graves was a brother of Dan E. Graves, Price Graves and Dr. Ed Graves and Miss Josie Graves all of Gatesville, and S. P. Graves of San Antonio and J. B. Graves of Mart. He was buried yesterday at eleven o'clock in Arlington National Cemetery with military honors.

General Graves was born in Mt. Calm and entered West Point in 1884. He was retired at his own request in 1938. He was also a student at Baylor University, Waco for two years.

General Graves moved with his family to this county in 1869, four years after his birth. He lived in this county until his appointment to West Point.

His active army service covered a period of 40 years, during which he distinguished himself by gallantry in the field against Filipino insurrectionists. He received the Distinguished Service Medal for his service in the World War, especially as an executive assistant to the chief of staff and commanding general of the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia. He was chosen by Secretary of War Baker to go to France in May, 1917, as an observer.

He also received decorations of the governments of Italy, Japan and China.

IN COMMAND AT PANAMA

After the World War, General Graves was for a time in command of the Panama Canal Department and then commanded the First Division at Hamilton, N. Y., where he was retired.

He was placed at the head of an American expedition to Siberia in July, 1918, when General Kalmikoff and his Cossack troops were ravaging the Ural River front, staging a reign of terror on behalf of the White Russians. He characterized the expeditionary force in Siberia as the strangest one of the World War.

His order, in the form of an outline of policy from the State Department, reputedly written by President Wilson, were merely to protect the interests of the whole Russian people.

CONFLICTS ON AUTHORITY

Ostensibly the purpose of the expedition, in which Japan, France and England joined, but without unified command, was the protection of contingents of Czechs, who had deserted from the Austrian Army and made their way into Oriental Russia. The real reason, perhaps, was the creation of a new Eastern Front, to draw the attention of Germany from the Western Front, prevent her from salvaging high military supplies in Siberia and to make it impossible for the enemy to draw sustenance from

Two Accidents Mar Week's Activities

First, an automobile wreck, in which Shafe Weaver and a Humes boy figured near Turnersville. The car was practically demolished, as they were returning from practicing a school play. Weaver was only shaken up a little, and Humes had an injury on his head, and a gash on one knee which took 7 stitches to close. Details of the cause of the wreck are not known.

The second, was very serious injuries to Vernon Castleman of Coryell City, who was thrown as he was mounting a horse near White Hall. He landed on his head, and it is reported chances of his recovery are slight. He was injured some years ago in an automobile wreck from which he never fully recovered.

Plaque Man Gets Another From Lion

Plaque winner Claude Wallace, who's in the light business here, has another plaque.

Recently he won a badge of honor from his company, the Community Public Service Company for something or other.

And now, Melvin Jones, President of the Lions Int'l awards him another for getting two new Lions during the tough month of January, which, must be said, was deserved during that month, if business conditions have anything to do with it.

Thump-Thump Game By Lions March 7

It'll be a battle of Gargantuas, of Goliaths, of Colossals—a grand spectacle. Avoirdupois will be spilt all over the gym floor, Thursday, March 7, in the Lions Den League playoff.

Divided by weight—they could not be classified by points because they never made any—will be J. B. Martin's "club" composed of J. H. Barneburg, Roger Miller, Geo. Painter, V. C. Ray, Crawford Scott, Earle Worley, Frank Farquhar, Pat Holt, R. D. Foster, and Howard Franks.

The "anti's" will be Troy (Too Long) Jones, Corporal and his "men", Reb Brown, H. K. Jackson, Bobby Patterson, Dr. O. Carter Ray, Wade Sadler, M. G. Slay, Luke Walker, Dr. K. R. Jones, Harry Jones, A. L. Chollar and E. W. Brooks.

When an irresistible force meets an immovable object, you know what happens, if you don't be at the gym, the evening of Mar. 7.

While the Lions get their breath which will be often Bodiddles! Quartet will try to take up all the time.

Hat Hurler Is in R.R. Com. Race

Ross Hardin, of the Hardin Twins announces for Railroad Commissioner, opposing Chairman Lon A. Smith.

Hardin promises to "clean up the East Texas oil field" and to institute some economy measures in the Austin office.

He served Limestone county in the House and Doss is State Senator.

Ross has championed the old-age pension cause, and voted for the joint resolution designed to finance pensions, it is said.

NATAL DATE, 29TH

Just one, yes, just one has turned in his name to the News as having a birthday on the 29th of February. This man is:

ED DEVOSS.

Mr. Devoss is 72 years of age, and according to a little dividing gives him only 18 birthdays in the seventy-two years of his life.

Mr. Devoss, the News wishes you at least eight or ten more birthdays, and may be more.

Now if any of the—but just a minute!

As we were writing this, "Happy" Holcomb, one of Uncle Sam's Best came in and gave us a card from, who was born on February 29, 1912 and is 28 years of age. Evidently, "Watson" from our deductions, Mr. Anderson has had only 7 birthdays. We're hoping he has as many birthdays as we wished for Mr. Devoss. Mr. Anderson lives near Purluma, and Mr. Devoss near Gatesville.

Now, if any of the others who are 29'ers have this peculiar birthday, we'd like to know. We'll surprise you—if you report. What, no ladies?

W. G. Wally Jr. Lion Speaker

Attorney W. G. Wally, Jr., of the law firm of Ward and Walley of Austin headed the program at the Wednesday Lions luncheon at the M. E. Church, and spoke on good government, stating that he thought democracy would be sufficient in itself to weed out the undesirables in office, and that the right officials would eventually be selected, and that democracy would continue.

A report was given on a Zone meeting at Clifton which was attended by Howard Franks, Dr. O. Carter Ray and Guy Powell.

Miss Rowena Blackwell was conveyed to a Waco hospital Thursday afternoon and will undergo an appendicitis operation.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR MAYOR COMES FOR H. K. JACKSON: PLACED BY OTHERS

Herdsmen Meet In Court Room

Enthusiasm was manifest at a meeting of Coryell county sheep and goat men in their meeting in the County Court room Tuesday.

A constructive program is being planned for both large and small raisers, and the question of shows and sales will be determined at an early meeting.

Following the meeting, many paid their associational dues and membership in the Coryell County Sheep and Goat Raisers Association is growing daily.

"Sheep and Goat Day" will be held at College Station, Monday, March 4. A program will start at 9 a. m. and continue until 4 p. m. All sheep and goat raisers who can are urged to attend this meeting.

State Inmates Rob Jonesboro Store

Three boys, all Mexicans, who had ran off from the State Juvenile Training School entered Gene Berry's store at Jonesboro and got away with about $5.00 worth of merchandise, consisting mostly of tobacco, candy and cold drinks.

Sheriff J. H. Brown and his deputy, Ted Liljedahl went to the store, and after taking fingerprints, found a part of a "State" shirt in a window. Checking up, they found the boys had escaped, and using the State dogs, trailed the boys until they caught them on the Leon river near Jonesboro. The boys were returned to the "State" and no charges were filed.

Leonard Meeks and Louie Campbell came back from Lometa Lake after a successful fishing trip. Louie had a 5 1/4 pound bass.

Books Put Out On S.C.S. Law, District

This week, committees are distributing to land owners in every section of Hamilton and Coryell counties, pamphlets which give complete information on the proposed Soil Conservation District which will be voted on in both counties, March 9.

Included in the booklets are: a brief summary of the law, questions and answers, local, state and federal agencies, polling places, eligibility rules and other information for the information of the public in general.

A few of the pertinent points which are frequently asked are answered here: No local officer of the District and no State officer can force any land owner into the soil conservation program; no tax can be levied against any land owner to pay any expenses of operation of the law, as this paid entirely by appropriation from the state and federal governments.

Sentiment seems, at this time to be almost universally in favor of the law, and those who have studied the law state it is the most democratic law that has been passed by the Legislature of Texas.

Chester Baize, a former resident of this city, was here Thursday visiting friends. He is in the insurance business in Nacogdoches.

We are authorized to announce H. K. Jackson, as candidate for Mayor of the City of Gatesville.

Although there had been considerable "talk" nothing materialized until yesterday morning, when the announcement came.

Mr. Jackson is well known in Coryell County as well as in Gatesville, and has taken an active part in civic and social affairs in the county. He has had considerable experience in civic affairs, being for some years connected with the city of Seymour in various capacities. He is a graduate of Baylor University and moved to Gatesville some years ago to make his home here. This is his first time to sanction the announcement of his candidacy for public office in this county.

Mr. Jackson is in the insurance business in Gatesville, has been instrumental as a member of the Highway Committee of the Chamber of Commerce in getting highway construction for this county, which has been so badly needed for many years.

Injuries Fatal To Tommie Boyd

Tommie Bond, age two and one-half, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Bond of this city, died in a Waco hospital at 3:55 a. m. Wednesday of burns received early Tuesday afternoon while playing at a brush fire at his home in east Gatesville.

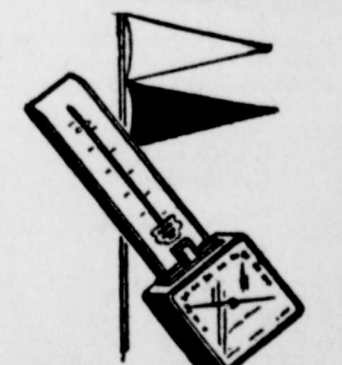

Flames covered the child when he tossed a half baking powder can of gasoline, which he found on the back porch, into the fire. A brother, Billy, also received burns on the face and one hand when he tried to aid his little brother.

Funeral services were held at the Guy Morgan home at 4 p. m. Wednesday with the Rev. S. L. Culwell, pastor of the Methodist Church conducting. Burial was in the City Cemetery.

Surviving are: his parents; two brothers, G. E., age 10, and Billy, age 8; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Benard of San Saba, and Mrs. W. L. Bond of Gatesville; and several aunts and uncles.

W. M. WOODSON BURIED AT BETHEL CEMETERY

Funeral services for W. M. Woodson, who passed away Feb. 27, were held Tuesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Siler, friend of the family and a dear friend of the deceased. Burial was made in the Bethel Cemetery.

Mr. Woodson was born in Tennessee June 9, 1859, and when a small boy, he came to Coryell county, where he has lived near Gatesville since that time. He was married to Mary Ann Bates in October, 1880. To this union ten children were born, nine of whom survive; one daughter, Mrs. J. M. Price, passed away in 1929. The following children are left to mourn his loss Mrs. Ida Cummings, Gatesville, N. W. Woodson of California, Mrs. H. B. Millraney of Fort. Worth, F.A., Wallace, Ernest, J. E. and R. L. Woodson, all of Gatesville, and Wornie Woodson of Corpus Christi. Surviving also are: his widow; one sister, Mrs. Catherine McDonald of Gatesville; two brothers, Jonathan of Fort Worth and R. T. of Mineral Wells; 42 grandchildren; 10 great grandchildren.

Mr. Woodson was a good man, a good neighbor, was loyal to his community and was willing to do his part in his community. He was very jovial and always looked on the bright side of life. His failing health kept him confined to his home the past few years. The beautiful floral offering and the many friends proved he was held in the very highest esteem.

Active pallbearers were six of his grandsons, Aubrey Collins, Sybil Price, Winfred Cummings, Ernest Woodson Jr., Bernard Millraney and B. W. Woodson.

Out-of-town relatives who attended the funeral were: R. T. Woodson and son, Raymond, of

JOHN TARLETON PLOWBOYS

The John Tarleton Plowboys of Stephenville sewed up the Central Texas Junior College basketball crown by winning all their conference games this season. Of a total of 22 games, the Plowboys won 21. They have won 17 consecutive games. Several years ago they ran up a world's record of 86 consecutive wins. In ten years the farm boys have lost fewer than ten games.

The Hornets are working hard preparing to defend their state girls basketball title in the state meet at Waco, March 7, 8 and 9. The first game is scheduled for Thursday evening March 7 and will continue through Saturday March 9.

This State meet is sponsored by the State High School Basketball Association which has over two hundred members. Approximately 20 district championship teams will compete in this tourney and it is expected to be the greatest girls cage meet in the history of the association.

The local sextet is likely to find it tough sledding as most of the girls are playing their first year of high school basketball. Rutherford is the only one seeing service in the State last year.

The John Tarleton Plowboys pictured on this page recently closed a very successful season with a record of 21 victories out the 22 games that they played. Several years ago they established a world's record by winning 86 consecutive games.

The schoolboy baseball race is likely to get underway in a few days as several high school clubs over the county have already started their workouts. The Gatesville Hornets who were tops in the schoolboy league last season are again due to be in the thickest of the fray with their nearest competitor probably being the Flat Yellowjackets.

Though the Hornets are likely to put a better all-around team on the diamond, Halcomb of the Yellowjackets is likely to shadow anything that the locals can put on the mound. Nothing has been heard from the other teams of the county, but several more are expecting to be ready for the opening game of the season which will probably be played shortly after March 1.

LIBERTY H-D CLUB NEWS

The Club meeting at Miss Grace Elam's home was a program "catch up" affair. In discussing the program on cutting beds, one feature was especially emphasized "The one thing that causes the cutting to take root is to have the earth beneath warmer than the air above them. This can be produced through nature by catching that time in autumn when the air has cooled while the earth is still warm. Artificial underheat can be produced at any season by means of hot-bed or by means of electric lights placed in a container or frame that has been buried 12 or 18 inches deep."

Another very interesting program was the transplanting of native shrubs.

About twenty-five members and several visitors enjoyed a delightful cake and coffee course.

Another very successful meeting was with Mrs. Jno. Laxon last week. Our members enjoyed their first meeting with Miss Jones, their new agent. Her lesson for the day was on lawn sodding. Members and visitors enjoyed a delicious sandwich and cake course.

The next Club meeting will be with Mrs. Eldon Harris March 12. Another very important H-D Club activity was the organization of a community recreational affair, the meeting held at Liberty school house February 21. The program was enjoyed by old and young. It was conducted and sponsored by Miss Jones, the county H-D agent and Mrs. Loy Gene Brown, our recreational chairman. Our club hopes to make it a permanent organization.

4 CORNERS CLUB REPORT

Mrs. Orin Beverly entertained the members of the 4 Corners Club Thursday afternoon with a George Washington program at her home.

Each member answered the roll call with some quotation in regard to Geo. Washington. The afternoon was spent piecing a quilt.

At a late hour a delicious plate lunch was served to seven members and three visitors.

Next meeting, March 7, will be with Mrs. George Hicks at which time Miss Gibson will be present. All members be present. Visitors welcome.—Reporter, Mrs. J. L. Bland.

H-D Council Meeting Held Saturday Last lar, Mrs. J. H. Conner, Mrs. Dewey Lovejoy, Mrs. M. E. Rodgers, Miss Eva Durham and Mrs. M. T. Carroll.

TEXAS POLITICS

Texas political aspirants are limbering up for the free-for-all which will culminate in the first primary on July 27, to be followed by the run-off primary on August 24.

High state offices other than the governorship to be filled include those of attorney general, lieutenant governor, railroad commissioner, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction, commissioner of agriculture, 150 state representatives, 16 state senators, one associate justice of the Supreme Court, one judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals, and various members of the 11 courts of civil appeals.

Harry Hines projected the gubernatorial race into the limelight last week with his formal announcement for the position now held by W. Lee O'Daniel.

A member of the State Highway Commission, Hines is the second candidate officially to announce, following Rep. Albert L. Derden of Marlin.

Speaking from Austin over a state-wide radio hookup, Hines pledged full co-operation with the Legislature with "that degree of statesmanship which should characterize the thought, words and conduct of a chief executive of this state in fulfilling the needs of a free people."

"Only by united, concerted effort of the Governor and the Legislature," he said, "may the many urgent problems of government which now confront our state be solved."

Hines declared against a sales tax and promised that he would not attempt to "snare" votes "by offering the glitter of an undeliverable future."

Entrance of Hines in the gubernatorial melee will perpetuate the record of Wichita Falls in entering one or more candidates in every race for governor. James V. Allred was a resident of that city when elected. Other Wichita Falls candidates have included Orville Bullington, Republican nominee; C. C. McDonald and Tom F. Hunter, who has run three times.

Judging from the preliminary warmup, consisting of constant sniping directed toward Governor O'Daniel, it may be said that Texans are facing one of the most torrid gubernatorial battles in the history of the state.

A list of probable and possible contenders serves fully to justify this prediction.

Expected announcement by Governor O'Daniel for a second term will inject the aura of master showmanship plus the bitterly fought issues of pensions and taxes, which have raged around the chief executive into the campaign.

Surprising and possibly foreboding was the statement made in Dallas last week by former Gov. James E. Ferguson that his wife is being urged to run again. Having been elected in 1924 and 1932, Mrs. Ferguson refused to accede to a draft movement launched in San Antonio in 1938. Whether she will agree to run this year is another question.

Ferguson stated that the cardinal issue of the campaign this year will be the levying of a gross income tax to meet the social security obligations and pay off the state government's indebtedness.

As a participant in many of the state's most hectic and bitter political campaigns, Ferguson is one of the most seasoned and astute politicians ever to stump the state. Should his wife enter the hustings against the potent group now looming as contestants, the intemperate tenor of the campaign undoubtedly would be heightened.

Victrolac pronouncements against Governor O'Daniel by Railroad Commissioner Jerry Sadler have increased the possibility of his entering the campaign. Sadler is opposed to a sales tax and has repeatedly declared that he would fight Governor O'Daniel on this issue either directly as a candidate or indirectly by supporting some other entrant.

Ernest O. Thompson, another member of the railroad commission and runner-up for governor in 1938, has been ill and consequently has not revealed his plans. Thompson's announcement for governor was tentatively slated for March 1 but may be postponed. It does not seem likely that both Sadler and Thompson will leave their duties on the railroad commission to run for the same office.

With a potential lineup including O'Daniel, Hines, Thompson Sadler, and Mrs. Ferguson, Texans well may prepare themselves for four months of bitter campaigning on the stump, over the air and through the printed page.

HORNETTES PREPARING TO DEFEND STATE CAGE TITLE IN WACO MEET

The Gatesville High School Hornets are busily engaged preparing to defend their state girls cage title at Waco, March 7, 8, and 9 after winning the district title by defeating the Jonesboro Lassies by a score of 41 to 12 here last Friday night.

Ruth Rutherford, only returning veteran from last year's championship team, paced the locals to victory by ringing up the amazing total of 34 points and setting a new all time high individual scoring record for the local sextete.

The Hornets have had a fine year, regardless of how they fare in the state meet. This good work has been due chiefly to the fine coaching of Schwarz and the hustling and fine spirit of his proteges. With the loss of six of the seven lettermen from last year's great outfit staring them in the face, Hornets fans expected the Gatesville girls to have a most dismal year, especially since Evant, Pearl and Jonesboro has veteran sextettes returning.

The Hornets started slow due to youth and inexperience, losing to Mesquite, Evant and Ireland early in the season, but once the girls became accustomed to Schwarz's style and had been under fire once or twice in important games, they went into high gear and defeated all the teams that had previously beaten them. They copped the county Class A bunting by defeating a most capable Evant sextette in the closest series in the cage history of this county 23-22, 28-29 and 18-17.

Rutherford, of course, was the outstanding star on the club. But she has received the best type of support from her fellow-forwards, Dollie Moore, Mac Curry, and Doris Patterson. Moore has done quite a lot of scoring herself, having a fine corner shot which enables her to ring up many tallies. Patterson and Curry are both excellent passers, an dpend most of their time feeding the ball to Rutherford.

Ara Mae Black, Ewing girl, came along fast under Schwarz's tutoring and broke into the first string line up in the middle of the season and has been playing sterling ball all the latter part of the season. Her work during the Evant series was great, and had it not been for her outstanding defensive work, we might be writing a different story now. Lester has played flashes of brilliant ball, but at other times has been disappointing. Apel has played consistently good ball, while Mueller has always been good and sometimes great.

Schwarz Has Fine Record

Delving into past history, we find that Coach Schwarz has compiled an enviable record since he started coaching girls cage teams here four years ago. His first year his club won 45 battles and lost three. In 1938 the Hornets won 43 of their 45 tilts. Last year his girls won 45 out of 47 and captured the state championship to become the toast of the city. This year they have won 36 while losing 7. Totalling these figures we find Schwarz's record to be 185 played, 171 won, with 14 losses. Half of those defeats came this year.

Temple Boxers Beat Texas Longhorns

Temple's CTAAC boxers who practically monopolized the titles in Gatesville's Golden Gloves Boxing Tournament continued their march to fistic fame by winning six out of eight bouts from Texas University's boxing team when the two clubs met in a mitt slinging contest in Temple Monday night.

Here's the results of the fights: Bantamweight: George Blalock of Temple defeated Phillip Eng of Texas University.

Heavyweight: Aubrey Martin of Millford beat Jack Wallace of Texas.

Dick Jackson of Temple out-pointed Walter Florence of Texas, Jack Baker beat Dick Shepherd, and Charley Skupin won a clear decision over Bryon Sherrill also of Texas University.

In the opening fights of the night Jimmy Glover nosed out

Raymond Sodek and Steven (Hard Times) Marinik beat Donal Brantly.

Shelby Buck, State Heavyweight finalist from Texas University was unable to fight due to an injured hand and Wallace substituted for him in his match against Aubrey Martin.

Blaylock, Lueck, Brisbin, Jackson and Baker all of Temple won District Championship Titles in Gatesville's Golden Gloves Tournament.

GENERAL GRAVES—

the wheat fields of Russia's eastern plains.

There were conflicts of authority between General Graves and General Otani, the Japanese commander, and political differences among the Allies, creating a complex situation, the handling of which brought Gen. Graves high commendation.

In his book, "America's Siberian Adventure," Graves told how he refused to be stampeded by the State Department into using his expeditionary force for a partisan campaign against the bolsheviks.

Besides his local relatives, General Graves leaves his widow; a son, Sidney Graves of Washington, D. C. and a daughter. His son was a Major during the World War.

Undoubtedly, Major General Graves has surpassed any other Coryell Countain in making himself known thruout the world. He was truly "cosmopolitan" in his experience, travel and acquaintance. It is indeed a rarity that a man rises to this rank in the U. S. Army, and this alone, attests to the qualities of Mr. Graves'.

During the ceremony at eleven o'clock yesterday morning. The National Bank of Gatesville closed for a short time, in reverence to his memory, and in respect and admiration of his brother, Dan E. Graves, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the bank.

GATESVILLE, TEXAS FRI., MARCH 1, 1940

The tariff question is almost as old as the United States of America. As tariffs have been increased industry has strengthened itself at the expense of agriculture. As industry has become strong it has secured higher and even higher tariffs; finally, culminating in the outrageous Smoot-Hawley tariff of 1930. This tariff resulted in the immediate enactment of retaliatory tariffs against the United States by most of the nations of the world. The result was that not only did the tariff act to keep practically all imports out of the United States, but it kept our exports out of the nations of the world as well. We were unpleasantly reminded of the fact that we can't continue to expect to sell our products to other nations and refuse to buy any of their products.

If a Central Texas Farmer produces a bale of cotton and that cotton is ultimately sent to France, both the vital productive elements of American soil and the time or labor of American citizens—the very lives of human beings—have gone into the cotton and are carried with the cotton out of our country. Unless America gets in return something that can be used—something that represents at least an equal combination of natural and human resources, America is poorer by reason of having exported the cotton. But if we receive in return for the cotton which required, let us say 250 man-hours of human labor, some useful article the production of which in this country would have required more than 250 man-hours of human labor, as for instance a case of French sardines, then America has been benefited by the trade.—And if the article sent to America in exchange for the cotton could have been produced in France for less than 250 man-hours of human labor, then both nations profited by the exchange, and the people of each nation will be able to enjoy a higher standard of living with the same expenditure of human labor (life).

This is the fundamental reason for trade—the exchange of goods between people on a basis which enables each party to the exchange to acquire more of the desirable things in life than he could acquire if he were to undertake to produce everything he needed for himself. We readily recognize the advantage among individuals. On it depends all specialization of production. It enables one man to grow cotton, another beef, another to make cloth, etc., and by exchange of goods between them each of them has more of all of the needed goods than would be possible if each family attempted to produce and fabricate every article needed by the family. In other words, trade lets each individual and each locality specialize in the article he or it can produce with the least expenditure of effort.

The same relationship exists among nations. We need trade if we are to raise the standard of living. Each part of the world should produce those articles it can produce with less expenditure of human life (labor) than any other section, and should depend upon trade with other nations for those things which other nations produce more efficiently. In this way everybody the world over would have more of the goods he needs. It is possible to grow rubber in Texas, but it is not practicable (it would have to be grown under glass.) Is it not, therefore, better for Texas and the United States to produce cotton, oil and cattle and trade these things for the rubber, coffee and tin that we need than to attempt to follow the European effort, to become "self sufficient"? To become self sufficient, any nation must be willing to sacrifice a tremendous portion of the effectiveness of its human labor—in other words, it must be willing to force its people to do a great amount of useless labor and thereby to lower its standard of living.

The protective tariff system of the Republicans sacrificed the American living standard by destroying the opportunity for our farmers to exchange their products for the greatest possible amount of useable goods. The present Administration on the other hand has sought to in some measure restore our markets by working out reciprocal trade treaties with various foreign nations whereby we lower our tariffs on the goods we need from these countries and they lower their tariffs on goods that they need from the United States. This plan is not as rapid in its working as many would like, but it avoids the serious economic upsets that would of necessity follow a complete and immediate reversal of our tariff policy. As I see it, this plan is practicable and offers the greatest possible benefit to all parties. Certainly it offers some hope for the recapture of lost foreign markets, and it assures America that we will get actual useable goods that will help our people in return for the American products we export. The House has just voted 216 to 168 to continue this sound policy. I voted for the reciprocal trade policy as did most of the Democrats.

Burney Votes A Farmer Ticket

The Farmer's Banner is in receipt of the following letter from Representative Weldon Burney, representing Coryell and Hamilton Counties in the Texas State Legislature:

"It is a pleasure for me to state my views upon the important issues that face the farm people in the coming elections, as requested in your recent letter.

"In regard to the truck load limit law, I advise all farm folks to look up my record in the past Legislature. In so doing, you will find that I put forth an outstanding effort in behalf of raising the 7,000 pound load limit.

"With reference to your second question, my stand upon SJR 12, the proposed sales tax amendment, I am proud to state that I was one of the "56" members who consistently voted against it. Upon looking at the record, you will find that I have a straight record of voting NO upon all sales tax proposals. I voted this way because I believed, and I still believe, that this revenue could have been raised from our natural resources.

"Finally, with respect to the soil conservation law, you will note that I voted in favor of the soil conservation law. I shall be glad to work with any program that will conserve the soil of this State. It is my opinion that our soil conservation law needs further revision to make it more workable.

"I appreciate your letter and I hope that my views are satisfactory to farmers of Texas."

Thank you, Mr. Burney. We have looked up your record and find that you have voted for the farmer on every occasion mentioned above; therefore, the Texas Agricultural Association gives you a "clean bill of health" and hopes for your continued success.—"The Farmer's Banner".

In forty oil-producing counties of Texas, taxes on oil-producing properties making up 68 per cent of all local tax levies including cities, counties, school districts, water districts, levee districts and other independent taxing subdivisions.

Oil companies made an average profit of slightly over two per cent yearly on their investment for the 17 years from 1921-37.

NTSTC Co-Eds Observe Leap Year With Sadie Hawkins Day Feb. 29

Denton, Texas—Since women everywhere have the privilege of chasing men this leap year season, co-eds at the North Texas State Teachers College warmed up for a Sadie Hawkins Day chase here February 29.

And even members of Denton Teachers famous track team trembled in their boots—including bachelor Blaine Rideout, unmarried member of the famous running Rideout twins, and little Welby Williams from Wolfe City, a 9.8 second dashman who is shown in the clutches of pretty Marilyn "Daisy Mae" McDuffie, freshman from Beaumont.

Each pig-tailed and be-ribboned co-ed in gingham dress and sandals ran after her man all day on the NTSTC campus Feb. 29, bought his cokes, carried his books, walked on the outside of the walk, and called for him at his "cabin" to escort him to the Dogpatch Dance in the college recreation building that night.

Races like the one above were forecast for the day by members of the Girls Forum Council, which sponsored the event. It was the first all-campus Sadie Hawkins Day at NTSTC, although individual social clubs have sponsored Li'l Abner and barn dances in previous years.

Followers of Al Capp's Li'l Abner comic strip know that Sadie Hawkins Day came into being when the first illustrious mayor of Dogpatch, Heksebiah Hawkins, laid down the law to young eligible bachelors concerning the mating of his young daughter, Sadie. He set aside one day of the year on which the maids, young and old, of Dogpatch would be permitted to marry the men of their choice—if they could catch them.

CHAPTER 9 SYNOPSIS

Johnny Potter, Annapolis man kicked out of the Navy, is shanghaied by his friend, Skipper Joe, who has outfitted a submarine for pearl fishing in the South Seas. They fight with a native chief and find a haven on an uncharted island. There, Johnny is picked up by the island's lone inhabitant, Dea, a beautiful girl who has been wrecked ten years before. She falls in love with Johnny in her innocent savage way. Johnny, however, runs away. Meanwhile Joe's crew mutinies and takes the submarine which immediately sinks under their incompetent handling. Dea and her pet chimpanzee Koko, rescue Johnny and Joe.

CHAPTER IX

EARLY the next day Johnny and Joe, aided more or less by Dea and Koko, started work on the unfinished sailboat. Dea discovered that she could be most useful cutting and shaping the bamboo pegs which the two men were forced to use instead of nails.

"We've got it all figured out, Joe and I," Johnny said to Dea when she joined them with a new batch of pegs. "It's going to take us eighty-six years to finish this boat. Then we'll hop right down to Samoa in it."

Johnny's humor was lost on Dea. But Joe answered sourly. "That will undoubtedly be one of the greatest feats of modern navigation—crossin' four hundred miles of open sea without a chart or a compass!"

"We've got a compass," Johnny pointed out. Joe glanced at the stern of the sunken submarine. "Sure, we got a compass but the trick is to get it."

Dea followed their eyes. "Today is a good day to get it," she suggested.

"What do you mean? Why today?" Joe asked.

"Because now it is calm. When the typhoon comes it will rain for days and days. And the typhoon will come soon. It is the time."

"She's right, Joe," Johnny agreed. "These big blows don't wait. I'll go after it right now." He kicked off his shoes and waded into the water.

"I'll go with you," Dea suggested. "You stay here and help the Skipper." Johnny called and started swimming lazily toward the wrecked submarine.

Reaching the hull, Johnny swam close to it and listened. He thumped the metal wall but there was no answering thump. Mekaike and his mutineers were all dead.

Diving obliquely, Johnny reached the open hatch. As he started to enter it, the tentacles of an octopus suddenly wrapped themselves around him. The creature was inside the submarine and was using all of its power to drag Johnny through the hatch.

Johnny fought desperately to free himself but another and another tentacle fastened itself on his body.

From the shore Dea and Joe had watched Jimmy dive. "Why doesn't he come up?" Dea demanded.

"It's probably cool down there," Joe said flippantly, faking a cheerfulness he did not feel.

"Look!" Dea pointed to where the water showed signs of the struggle Johnny was putting up. Seizing the knife she had been using to whittle pegs, Dea grasped it in her teeth and plunged to Johnny's rescue.

Johnny's lungs were bursting and his body was already partly through the submarine's hatch when Dea reached him. With one hand she seized Johnny and with the other she struck at the octopus with the knife. Instantly the octopus flooded the water with its inky fluid. But the creature released its hold on Johnny. With her feet against the sub's hull, Dea propelled herself and Johnny to the surface.

As Johnny floundered helplessly on the surface Dea slapped him gently across the face. His eyes opened and he smiled faintly.

"Johnny! Johnny!" the girl cried. Pushing him ahead of her she swam to the protruding end of the submarine. With Johnny's weak cooperation, she managed to drag him up on the stern and held him there in her arms.

"He thinks we stole his pearls," Johnny explained. "We didn't—"

"I can hear myself trying to explain that to him," Joe cut in.

Behind Dea's back, Johnny panted to Joe his fear for Dea. Keki captured them. Joe nodded in agreement. Unconscious of this Dea linked her arm happily in Johnny's. "I think we go home now," she announced.

"Come on, Skipper," Johnny agreed. "Keki will never find us there."

"Okay," Joe said. "But I think I'll sneak back to camp for my toothbrush."

As he stepped into the clearing, a bullet lodged itself in a tree a foot from his head. Joe plunged back into the jungle. "I—I—I think I'll keep

"When the typhoon comes it will rain for days and days," Dea said. "And the typhoon will come soon. It is the time."

Johnny looked into her eyes. "Thanks, Dea," he said with a great effort. "That time I wanted to be brought back." He put his weak and water-logged arms around her and crushed her to him. His lips met hers.

This ecstatic moment was interrupted by a frantic hail from Joe on the beach. "Hey! Look. A boat!" Joe shouted. "We're saved!"

Johnny followed the direction in which Joe was pointing. There it was, quite close. Johnny did not notice Dea's disappointment. "We're in luck, Dea," he said happily. "We won't have to wait for our own boat. He cupped his hands and called to Joe. "Signal them. Don't let them get away."

On shore Joe ripped off his shirt and fastened it hastily to a long bamboo pole which he waved frantically. As Johnny turned back to see the effect of this signaling on the approaching boat, a couple of bullets struck the submarine's hull a few feet from them. Suddenly, Johnny recognized the approaching boat. "It's Keki!" he shouted to Joe. To Dea he said: "Hurry! Get in the water." Together they dove and raced through the water for the beach.

"Who is Keki?" Dea demanded as they joined Joe and the three hurried for the shelter of the jungle.

m-my t-teeth clean s-some other w-way," he stuttered as he rejoined Dea and Johnny.

As the three hurried through the jungle they were joined by Koko. Safely out of rifle range, they paused to study Keki's boat. It had come to anchor in the cove and the crew were busy launching a large and seaworthy lifeboat.

Realizing that Keki would soon land, the party hurried toward the safety of the tree-house. But the way was difficult and Joe, older than his companions, tired quickly. At last he halted. "I can't make it, Keki or no Keki," he panted. "I can't walk another step."

Johnny grinned. "Maybe we'd better shoot him, eh?" he said to Dea. She smiled in return and issued a guttural command to Koko. The big chimp seized Joe under the arms and forcibly propelled the tired man through the jungle.

When they reached the foot of the trees in which the hut was hidden, Joe collapsed completely. When he came to he was in the tree-house. He glanced around in amazement.

"So that penthouse story was on the level," he muttered.

In the distance they could hear shouts and occasional shots. Keki's men were on the island. The search was under way.

DEMONSTRATION AGENTS OFFICE

Braided Rugs

Hazel Landrum Bedroom Demonstrator for the Clear Creek 4-H Club started a braided round rug but she took it out and is now making an oval rug because an oval rug is more serviceable than a round one. In order to achieve this pelasing effect one must determine in advance the size and shape and probably use of her rugs. It should be remembered that the rug used in front of her fireplace should be approximately as long as the hearth. The space beside a bed requires a somewhat larger rug than one designed to be placed in front of the dresser, while a still smaller rug is suitable for the doorway. As a general rule an oval rug fits in better with most furnishings than a round one and rectangular rugs are more usable than square ones.

Only closely woven cotton materials of good body and weight should be used in the construction of braided rugs if wear and best results are to be obtained. Avoid the loose, open mesh knitted cotton materials for either braided or hooked rugs. The results will not be satisfactory for the rug will give poor return for the labor of making it, it will be flimsy, and will soon wear out. Bulletin B-77 entitled "From Rags to Rugs" with directions for making rugs can be obtained at the Home Demonstration Agents office.
