LARGEST ENROLLMENT IN HISTORY EXPECTED WHEN SCHOOLS OPEN SEPT. 9TH

Over Hundred Scholastics Transferred To Colorado From Rural Area

The Colorado schools are to open Monday, September 9th, for a full nine-months term, John E. Watson, superintendent, announced late Thursday following an executive meeting of the school board. The meeting was held in Watson's office at the high school building to set date for opening the schools and consider other matters pertaining to operation of the system.

That the schools would be opened with largest enrollment in history was predicted by Watson, who recalled that during the past five years scholastic population of the district has gradually increased. A new high peak was recorded last September.

Along with the largest enrollment ever listed in the district there are over one hundred scholastics to enter the schools as transfers from other school districts of the county, Watson said. As a rule these students will be matriculated in high school.

Registration and assignment to classes will be the first order of business taken up as doors of the school buildings swing open to receive the students.

INTENSE HEAT SETS HIGH RECORD OVER STATE WITH 112 REPORTED SATURDAY

Colorado Sizzles Under Hot Sun Rays As Peak Of 107 Registered

An intense heat wave that sent mercury readings to new all-time peaks began to abate Sunday giving the citizenship of Mitchell county and over the State opportunity to somewhat recover from effects of the sizzling sun rays.

In some parts of Texas it was the hottest weather ever recorded in August. At Athens and Lubbock, the former in far East Texas and the latter in the South Plains area, readings of 112 degrees were noted. Variated temperatures graduating down to one hundred were reported from other sections of Texas.

At Colorado the mercury pushed upward to 107 Saturday afternoon, setting a new high by one degree for the year. Previous high reading set a few weeks ago was 106. The intense heat began to subside Sunday.

Sweetwater reported 108 degrees Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, newspapers there running stories outlining that the day had been one of the hottest ever known. Abilene, San Angelo and other points in this territory reported high temperatures.

The intense heat had one good feature, farmers seen in town Saturday indicated. The continued hot weather had served to stay depredations by leaf worms in their cotton but feed and other crops were suffering.

CONTINUED HEAT, DRY TO CURTAIL PRODUCTION

BUSINESS MEN, LABORERS PLANTERS AND OTHERS TO BENEFIT AS COTTON OPENS

Gin Plants Of County To Be In Excellent Condition For Fall Season

There is a general feeling of restored confidence as another Fall harvest season is seen in the offing, if expressions given this newspaper by business men, laborers, farmers and other citizens are to be accepted as an accredited barometer. One of the best seasons recorded in Mitchell county for several years is looked to.

That the cotton yield will exceed that of last year by a two to one ratio is given credence by local observers and the farmers themselves. Potential yields have been reduced through effect of the continued hot, dry weather of recent days, but even that condition of the weather had its silver lining, it is said. Leaf worms, that shortly before had begun to appear in crops over the county, were put to rout by sizzling rays of the sun.

Total ginnings in the county last season were 12,574 bales. Surveys of the crop condition during this week foretells a crop of not less than 25,000 bales for 1935 and it is probable that an even higher figure will be required to write output from the county's cotton fields after the harvest is all over.

Better business is ahead for the business man at Colorado, Loraine, Westbrook and other community centers. Men, who during the past several months have looked here and there in search of profitable employment, will find realization of that ambition as the cotton harvest begins. The growers, confident that the Administration in Washington will back up a recent pledge to provide a profitable market, are feeling easier than for some months as they take account of prospects out in the immediate future.

Gin plants over the county will be in excellent condition to handle the crop. At Colorado, Loraine, Westbrook, Buford, Valley View and Hyman modern plants are being given final check-up for another season's run. Some of the plants have been reconditioned throughout with new machinery set up to replace worn or less modern equipment.

Colorado will continue to rank with the best markets in West Texas for cotton and cotton seed, local observers have outlined in statements to The Record. Individual buyers and co-operative agencies will vie for quotas of the commodities as they begin to move.

Anticipating an unusually strong demand in all lines represented, Colorado merchants have recently bought heavily in new Fall and Winter merchandise. Every requirement of the home will be found here and the quality and price will compare with those offered by any legitimate competitor.

Lone Wolf Creek Bridge Demolished To Give Place For New, Wider Structure

Construction work on the new, forty-foot bridge to span Lone Wolf Creek on East Second street will be under way within the next few days, J. C. Sparks, superintendent for the West Texas Construction Company, stated Thursday morning.

The old concrete bridge that during the past several years has stood there has been torn away. Monday workmen were detailed to raze the reinforced railings. Wednesday a large steam shovel, wielding a 2-ton hammer with human ingenuity was turned loose on the bridge and it was not long until the floor and other sections were reduced to wreckage, ready to be trucked away.

"We are going right ahead with construction work on the bridge and street widening now that we are on the ground," Parks said. The street widening, extending from Hickory street intersection east to the city limits, will give a paved thoroughfare forty feet in width.

This marks second time within the decade that Lone Wolf Creek bridge has been rebuilt. The structure was widened and made longer a few years ago to care for increased traffic and to give greater channel space underneath for flood waters to pass.

Westbrook School Term To Begin On Monday, Sept. 9th

In announcing the school opening Supt. Patterson issued the following statement:

"The ideal of the school is to build a citizenship for tomorrow with that fine spirit of service and cooperation for the common good which has characterized our best men and women throughout the history of our country. New Gold Vault At Fort Knox, Ky., Will Be Finished Soon

The government's new gold vault at Fort Knox, Ky., is going to be the last word in monetary fortresses.

The pains which the government is taking to make the vault impregnable were revealed today for the first time by a study of the plans.

The vault will be suspended in the mindle of a square building with walls, roofs and floors two feet thick. The walls and roofs will be faced with granite.

The vault itself, into which the government expects to store much of the gold now housed in New York City and at the Philadelphia mint, will be 40 by 64 feet and extend through nearly two complete stories of the building.

That space, allowing for corridors and the like, would be big enough to store $10,000,000,000 in gold—more than the world's present monetary supply.

The two-foot-thick walls of the vault itself will be of highly unusual construction. Steel coils will be laid in them, laying into one another and with a steel rod running down through the interlacings to hold them together.

Thus, even though much of the concrete were removed, the steel coils, too small for even a man's hand to be shoved through, would remain as a barrier.

The vault will be open to continual inspection from all four sides and top and bottom. There will be an 18-inch space under its floor and one of equal size over its ceiling. These spaces will be equipped with brilliant lights, and mirrors are to be installed to give guards an excellent view of the lighted space.

Throughout the whole building, sensitive microphones will be installed and connected to a central guard room.

The top floor of the complete building will be set back from the first floor and the walls of the first floor will extend upward far enough to provide a parapet around all four sides of the building.

Four machine gun turrets with underground entrances to the main building will be erected outside.

The new building will cost $450,000.

We are forced to get cash for our repairs and Binder twine. Please do not ask that they be charged. Price Bros.

SPEAK OUT AGAINST TEXT BOOK AMENDMENT

Speaking out against the free text book amendment which will be one of those voted on August 24, Supt. F. H. Patterson of the Westbrook schools issued the following statement Thursday morning:

"Voters and friends of the public schools should give careful attention to the amendment pertaining to free textbooks which will be voted on in the election of Aug. 24. This amendment provides free text books for all the boys and girls of Texas and at first thought is a fine thing. However on second thought we already have free text books for all children in our public free schools. This amendment would extend this service to children in private schools and denominational schools of all kinds.

"The State would be furnishing books to children in schools not supervised by it. This has always been considered against public interest and should continue to be so considered. Let those who want the benefit of public funds attend public schools. This amendment should be defeated."

MRS. SHERWIN'S BIRTHDAY
(By A Friend)

July 25 was a great day for Mrs. S. N. Sherwin and her many friends. It was her birthday, the ninety third one. This is a date always anticipated with the keenest pleasure by the fortunate ones who have learned to know and appreciate the courage, cheer and friendliness of this honored citizen.

Representatives from the Womens Weekly Prayer Circle, organized over forty years ago, and of which she is a charter member, brought their kind, helpful greetings. Her club came in a body with the hope that she would "live forever" and continue to add the spice of her originality and wit to the Standard Club.

Her church circles also came in a large happy group. But the dainty little hostess was the happiest of all as she received her beloved friends and neighbors and thanked them for their sweet thoughtfulness and tokens of love.

After light refreshments were served the honoree was called upon for a speech and responded with a bit of humor which left the guests in a merry mood as they wished her many returns and assured her they would be back each year and expect to have a grand jubilee when she reached the coveted goal—one hundred years.

TERRACING IS BENEFICIAL

DIMMITT.—The carrying capacity of a pasture on the land of Colin Walton, Castro county farmer, will be more than doubled this season because of water held by terraces from one recent rain, according to the estimate of the county agricultural agent, E. V. Thomas. Walton spent most of last winter building a system of terraces across a wide draw draining into a flat lake in his pasture. The terraces were run level from end to end and the ends built up to hold the water from running around; and terraces were placed close enough together to back the water nearly to the other terraces. Several acres of sloping land were also listed solid.

During the recent rain, an inch and a half of rain and hail fell in about 30 minutes. The terraces held the water back out of the lake to such an extent that all of the water which ran into the lake soaked up by the next morning. Without the terraces, the lake would have filled and the grass drowned out for several weeks. The water would also have run across the draw without the ground soaking it up to any extent.

Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Mason and their son, Ben, of El Paso were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Siegel.

New Cotton Seed Flour Expected To Be Of Material Aid To Southern Planters

More money for Texas farmers and a valuable additon to the human diet is promised by the development at Fort Worth of a palatable flour from the kernel of the cotton seed, goal of research men for three decades.

Credit for the discovery and perfection of the flour, which has won the approval of the American Medical association's committee on foods, goes to C. W. McMath, young chemist, and T. J. Harrell, past president of the Texas Cotton Seed Crushers' association.

Practical feeding tests have proven that the new basic food is rich in proteins, contains vitamins B and G and furnishes the body with much needed phosphorous.

Harrell sees in the new product a great potential source of revenue to cotton growers through the South.

"It is entirely possible that a great amount of cotton will be raised mainly for the seed within a few years," he says. "Even larger and better seed may be developed."

Harrell had the cotton seed flour question in his mind as long ago as 1926. He wasn't the first. Hundreds of others had thought of the idea, even worked at it, for more than 30 years. However, no urgent need for experimentation struck Harrell until he, like others, was faced with dwindling markets of the depression. He sought a way out.

Determined to go after the problem scientifically, he went to Texas Agricultural & Mechanical college and there singled out McMath as the man he needed. The young scientist specialized in cotton seed research and, after completing two scholarships came to Harrell's mill here in 1932 to begin his work.

For six months McMath applied himself to learning operations of the mill from the time the seed entered the warehouse until it was turned out in one of its many finished forms. Harrell then provided him with a fully-equipped laboratory and experiments were begun in earnest.

McMath lived with his problems in the laboratory for eight months. At the end of that time, he was confident he had attained his goal, palatable human food from the kernal of the cotton seed.

But test tube and commercial production are two different things. He reversed the procedure and started again. Days and nights of work finally resulted in success. A flour, light tan in color and rich and smooth in texture came from the laboratory.

The next and largest problem, according to Harrell, was development of machinery capable of turning out the flour in large quantities.

To this end, then, McMath bent his efforts. As a machinist he evolved designs he believed would accomplish his aims. Experts frankly were skeptical, but Harrell put $150,000 into the revolutionary machinery.

While Harrell and his associates looked on, the switch was turned. Gears and wheels roared into action, and a few minutes later cotton seed flour, a new source of revenue for the southern farmer, was a reality.

NEAR NINE THOUSAND TAXING UNITS IN TEXAS

AUSTIN.—"Texas has nearly nine thousand local taxing authorities bearing heavily on the taxpayer," said State Auditor Orville S. Carpenter today about the recent "Report on Taxes and Indebtedness of Local Units of Government in Texas for 1934."

"In spite of the present trend toward efficiency in government and elimination of duplication between departments, we find in this State cities, counties, schools, water districts, drainage districts, road districts, irrigation districts and many others, all assessing and collecting taxes on the same property. As a result most property owners must render the same property to several assessors and pay taxes to several collectors," Carpenter explained.

"The number of local taxing authorities seems increasing. A similar survey made by Moore Lynn, former state auditor, for the year 1932 showed at that time 8,742 tax districts. He called attention to the 'present chaotic conditions' then existing in local taxation matters," Carpenter said.

"The survey just completed for the year 1934 shows 8,936 local taxing units, an increase of 194 in two years," he stated.

In the 8,936 districts an enormous taxpayers' debt of three-fifths of a billion dollars has been built up. The actual figure in 1934 was $60,442,179, with sinking funds deducted, he said.

CHURCHES

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

We want 400 in Sunday school next Sunday morning, and the house filled for the morning preaching service. We were happy in the privilege of being at home for both services last Sunday and are looking forward to the opportunity of being in the pulpit next Sunday. It is our intention to follow the message of last Sunday morning with another on the experience of Jacob at Bethel. We are delighted with the way our membership has stayed by the program this summer. There has been little decrease in attendance, and a fine gain in our offerings. The Training Union will have its meeting at the regular time, but the pulpit will be occupied at the evening service by a Persian Presbyterian missionary, Rev. Yosip Benyamin. Strangers and visitors always welcome at our church.

FEED COST SAVING

MEMPHIS.—A great saving in the feed cost for his hogs this spring is reported by John Ewen, swine demonstrator in the Estelline community in Hall county, according to James A. Jackson, county agricultural agent. Ewen made the saving by running his hogs on excellent alfalfa pasture. He reports that his concentrate requirements have been cut from one-fourth to one-third. His pigs are thrifty and making rapid gains. In addition to the pasture furnished the hogs, Ewen reports an excellent hay crop cut from the alfalfa field.

Establishment Of Penal Colony Off Alaska Proposed

Establishment in the isolated Rat Islands off Alaska of a federal penal colony where prisoners would shift for themselves without guard rule has been recommended to Attorney General Cummings.

Col. C. A. Seoane of the army signal corps now attached in the Baltimore area, is author of the plan he said is made necessary by "the gangster and the racketeer." He submitted it in response to a general invitation extended by Cummings at the crime conference here last December.

The Rat Island, four in number, are near the tail end of the Aleutian group. They comprise 1,000 square miles—about Rhode Island's size—and are more than 1,000 miles from Alaska's mainland, 2,000 miles from the nearest United States point and more than 2,000 miles from Hawaii. Except for one or two fox ranches on each, they are uninhabited.

Banishment to the Rat Islands "would mean a long goodby without hope of pardon, parole or escape," Colonel Seoane said. "Herein lies the secret of what is believed would become an effective damper on the crime wave of today."

Not only federal prisoners but prisoners of the States could be cared for in the scheme. Seoane said with a prison population of around 120,000 in the United States, the proposition might well be tried out on about 10,000 prisoners.

He estimated the cost per capita of maintaining prisoners should be less than for prisoners in the United States. Cost of shelter, with the Government buying materials and sending it in Government-owned transportation, and prisoners doing construction work, based on CCC camp cost, should not exceed $50 a man or approximately $500,000 for 10,000 men.

A time limit of 16 years by law was advocated for exile. The philosophy behind such limit was that those sent would not be in the category of prisoners in jail but through enforced residence would become completely changed individuals with little chance for becoming repeaters.

The Rat Islands are part of the public domain, are suitable for raising blue foxes, sheep and goats, and for fishing. They are washed by the warm Japan current, seldom have snow and have an average temperature of 39 in Winter and 50 in Summer.

Secure Bankhead Certificates Now, Goodwin Suggests

Distribution of 1935 tax exemption certificates has been started from the office of the county farm agent, H. E. Goodwin, assistant in cotton adjustment, stated Thursday morning.

Goodwin suggested that every farmer obtain his quota of the Bankhead contracts at once in that Mitchell county continue in the class of extending full cooperation to the government in drive to sustain farm commodity prices.

BERRIES MAKE PROFIT

COMANCHE.—Thirty-five dollars profit per acre was made on seven acres of blackberries this year by Wilson Herndon of Comanche county, according to J. A. Barton, county agricultural agent. Herndon picked 300 gallons per acre and lost fully 300 gallons on the patch this year due to the extreme rainy weather during the picking season.

Herndon says that his land would not make more than one-fifth of a bale of cotton to an acre, which after counting out all costs left no profit. He is now enlarging his berry patch as well as adding grapes and plums. He feels that his 27 acre place will make him an easy living through the sale of berries, fruits, truck crops, and through the live-at-home program he is getting underway.

RESOLUTION

We, the assembled citizens of Colorado, Texas, hereby resolve:

That since to vote repeal on August the 24th, would back whiskey;

And since the amendment is so worded that there could be no dry territory, no liquor enforcement, and no conviction of the bootleggers;

And since whiskey is demoralizing, dangerous and destructive to business, home, school, church and nation;

We therefore earnestly appeal to every patriotic, home-loving citizen to use his vote and influence against the return of whiskey on August the 24th.

MEXICO CITY ATTRACTIONS RECOUNTED IN REPORT BY PRESIDENT OF LIONS CLUB

Benton Templeton Found The Republic Capitol Filled With Romantic Lore

The colorful history and romance of Mexico City were detailed in an interesting way Friday by County Judge B. L. Templeton in an address before the Lions Club. Templeton and Jeff Curry were delegates representing the club during recent international Lions convention in capitol of the republic to the south.

Curry, also slated to given an account of his impressions of Mexico, was not able to be present, due to death of his father who died the night before at Odom. He will be given opportunity later to give this report.

The county judge described the natural and man-made beauties of Mexico as the most interesting and inspiring it had been his privilege to see. Several places that through the centuries had played important roles in progress of the country were visited by Templeton and hundreds of other Americans during the stay there.

"The Mexican people accepted that success of their efforts in bringing Lions International convention to their city was an achievement worthy of National recognition and in this they did not fail to reflect their appreciation of our presence," Templeton said. "High National and State officials, ranking officials of the army and other dignitaries were present to welcome us and make us feel at home."

Tommie Turk, 11, Returned To Parents' Home In Loraine After Trek To Van Horn

Plans of Tommie Turk, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Turk of Loraine, to hitch-hike to California went on the rocks after the lad had thumbed his way from Loraine to Van Horn. He is back under the parental roof reflecting the experiences that were his along the long ride over Highway One.

Deciding that El Paso, where an uncle lived, and the Golden State, of which he had read, held unusual attractions, Tommie decided to leave home and visit those parts. He caught a ride with a tourist bound for California but upon arriving in Pyote decided to visit a friend. After a time he caught a ride to Pecos, looked up a boy, made his acquaintance and went home with him. That was Saturday night. Sunday morning Tommie accompanied his new made friend to Sunday school.

"Well, I must be on my way," Tommie remarked after accepting invitation to Sunday dinner and bidding his friend good bye, was off. It was only the matter of moments until he was picked up by a motorist. At Van Horn he thumbed ride from a deputy sheriff. The officers, impressed with age of the boy, suspected he had no reasonable occasion to be thumbing rides on the highway. When questioned Tommie admitted his identity. His parents, who had anxiously awaited his return home, drove to the West Texas town and together they returned to Loraine.

Pests And The Elements Hold Handicap In Effective Means For Storing Grain

The main consideration in constructing a grain bin is to provide protection against excessive moisture. Other factors are the strength of the structure and protection against insects, and rats and mice, and against fire hazards.

Moisture damage to grain may result from its storage with too high a moisture content, or from the condensation of moisture on the walls and roof of the bin, as well as from rainfall leading through into the bin. Protection against rainfall water is the easiest to manage.

When grain as it comes from the thresher is too damp to store in farm bins, it is usually most economical to put it in an elevator where it may be moved by power machinery until it is dried out. Small quantities may be handled on the farm if space is available to spread the grain only a few inches deep where it may be stirred with a shovel. Sometimes the particles of green weeds in grain coming from a combine are sufficient to make ordinary farm storage hazardous even though the grain be dry. Condensation is more likely to orcur on sheet iron or concrete walls than on lumber walls. It is, therefore, less habardous to store grain suspected of being a little high in moisture content in wooden bins on the farm. Any bin should have a vent above the grain to permit the movement of damp air out of the bin. Vents in the walls and through the grain will aid in getting rid of excess moisture.

It is well to keep in mind in storing damp grain that it is advantageous to put it in a cool place as well as a ventilated place. For example, if a grain bin is exposed to the hot sunlight, the tendency of the grain to spoil is increased in proportion to the heat transmitted through the walls and roof into the bin. Dry grain is not damaged by the sun's heat on the granary walls and roof.

Threshed grain sorghums are apparently more difficult to keep in storage in the more humid regions than are wheat and oats, due probably to the greater amount of cracked grains and foreign material present which tend to prevent the circulation of air through it. If the grain sorghums are to be stored in considerable quantities, it is safer to store the unthreshed heads which form a mass through which the moist air may escape more easily than through threshed grain. A few dry poles thrown in the crib with grain sorghum heads will aid in preventing their heating. Cribs made of woven wire or slat fencing are suitable for ear corn or grain sorghum heads particularly from the point of providing ventilation, and from low cost of construction.

The prevention of serious damage by insects to stored grain requires some additional expense in construction especially if excess moisture in the grain must be considered. To satisfactorily kill insects in grain with gas fumes, tight bin walls are required. To ventilate such a bin to prevent the heating of the grain if it should be moist, the use of ventilating doors and possibly ventilation flues, are required. The cost of such a bin is therefore increased through the necessity for good tight walls and the need for ventilating doors where tight walls are used.

In escaping damage from rats and mice in inexpensive structures it is advisable to set the floor high enough above the ground to permit cats and dogs to get under the bin. If the bin is to be made rat and mouse proof, it must be a little more expensive structure than would otherwise be required. The most economical way of protecting a bin against rats and mice is to eliminate all perches on the floor sills where they migh sit and gnaw, and if this is impracticable, keep them from gnawing into the bin through the floor and walls by means of strips of sheet iron about 8 inches wide, placed around the bin about 3 feet high.

Concrete floors will be too damp for grain storage on them unless they are properly constructed. The bottom of the concrete floor should be above the surrounding ground level, and the contact between the ground and the concrete above it should be broken by means of a layer of packed gravel or cinders, and a layer of tarred paper is also advantageous.

The space per bushel required for grains will vary somewhat with different samples and particularly is this true with grain sorghums in the head, and corn in the shuck. Threshed grains will require very close to 1¼ cubic feet of space per bushel; shucked corn on the cob about 2¼ cubic feet; corn in the shuck about 3½ cubic feet; and grain sorghum heads about 4¾ cubic feet, each per bushel of shelled or threshed grain.

Farmers' Bulletin No. 1636, "Farm Bulk Storage for Small Grains" contains so much useful information, that anyone contemplating the construction of storage places should get a copy.

There may be some question about providing storage space on the farm where such space does not already exist, in order to speculate on an increased price for grain to be marketed, but there is little question about the advisability of storing as much of the grain crop on the farm as will be needed for feed until more is produced.

Field Is Defined By Duster In Eastern Howard Last Week

BIG SPRING.—The northwestern edge of the Dodge-Denman field of eastern Howard county appeared to have been defined last week when the W&E Production Company's No. 1-46 Read was abandoned dry at 2,842 feet. It is 2,310 feet from the north line and 330 feet from the west line of section 46, block 30, township 1 north, T&P Ry. Co. survey.

In other developments, however, Howard county completed five producers while several other tests were at interesting depths.

International Petroleum Company's No. 4 T-P Land Trust, 330 feet from the south line and 1,650 feet from the east line of section 45, block 30, township 1 north, T&P Ry. Co. survey, was completed for 298 barrels daily, pumping from total depth of 2,905 feet, plugged back to 2,870 feet. The pay top was 2,810 feet.

International's No. 4 T-P Land Trust was much better, swabbing and flowing 970 barrels in 24 hours from total depth of 2,743 feet with pay top of 2,609 feet. It is 990 feet from the south line and 330 feet from the east line of section 45, block 30, township 1 north, T&P Ry. Co. survey.

Owen M. Murray and others' No. 3 Davis heirs, in the southwest quarter of section 2, block 30, township 1 south, T&P Ry. Co. survey, with pay top of 2,706 feet and total depth of 2,835 feet, was good for 244 barrels per day, pumping.

Merrick & Lamb No. 2 A. M. Bell, in the southeast quarter of section 12, block 30, extended, with small production, the area by a half mile to the east when it topped pay at 2,451 feet and drilled to total depth of 2,451 feet, swabbing 38 barrels per day. Previous estimates were higher but the completion will call for offset drilling by The California Company.

Sinclair-Prairie completed its No. 16 Dodge in the northwest corner of section 3, block 30, township 1 south, T&P Ry. Co. survey, for 327 barrels per day on the swab from pay top of 2,560 feet and total depth of 2,777 feet. It was Howard county's fifth completion of the week.

CHANNEL BUOYS

WHAT would modern navigation do without the channel buoys....those floating markers that keep ships off the shoals? In a very real sense, the advertisements in this paper are channel buoys, placed for your protection.....for the safeguarding of the family expenditures.

These advertisements are the signed statements of reputable firms who seek your patronage on the single basis of giving value for every dollar spent. They are honest statements, the only kind an advertiser can use and remain an advertiser.

People who get the most for their dollar in the market-places are those who keep an eye on the channel buoys. Week by week they follow the advertisements to learn what and where to buy to the best advantage. Make this a habit .....Study the advertisements, in the interest of shrewder buying.

The advertisers in this paper have charted the channels of buying for you .....Keep the course.

SAFEWAY STORES

20th BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Invite you to their... of thrilling VALUES!

Just twenty years ago in the little town of American Falls, Idaho, M. B. Skaggs, a young man from Anadarko, Okla., opened a small grocery store, which today is known as Safeway Store No. 1. From this modest beginning the organization has grown to be one of the important food concerns of the nation.
This little store for the year of 1915 was an outstanding, modern, sanitary store, selling well-known brands of merchandise priced at consistently low every day prices, enabling food shoppers to save substantially on their purchases.
No greater compliment can be paid us on this, our Twentieth Birthday, than the loyal patronage of the hundreds of thousands of patrons who have made our success a lasting one.
In sincere appreciation we offer this week's outstanding food values.

PRO LEAGUE ISSUES APPEAL THAT LIQUOR BE ROUTED

YOUTH OF CHURCH APPEAL FOR DRY VOTE TO ASSURE RELIGIOUS, SOCIAL REALM

Big Spring Minister Leader In Spirited Program At Methodist Church

The qualified electors of Mitchell county who would preserve the church, home and even our stable commercial structure have only one alternative as they march to the polls on August 24 and that is to vote against the proposed liquor amendment, speakers addressing community mass meeting at First Methodist church Monday evening declared.

The rally, sponsored by the Texas Youth League Against Whiskey, was arranged under direction of the Rev. Willis J. Ray of Big Spring, director of Team 12. Similar teams are taking up the cudgel againsst legalized liquor traffic in other parts of Texas, sounding strong appeal that the law be not given aapproval at the ballot box.

Committee composed of Rev. Dick O'Brien of First Baptist church, U. D. Wulfjen and J. Ralph Lee, authorized at the rally, Wednesday morning issued appeal to the people of this county to vote against the amendment.

"The amendment is so worded that there could be no dry territory, no liquor enforcement and no conviction of bootleggers in this State," joint statement issued by the committee charged. That whiskey is "demoralizing, dangerous and destructive to business, the home, church, school and nation," was further charged.

Other members of the area team that from now until close of the campaign is to visit West Texas communities in drive against return of legalized liquor are David F. Moore of Roscoe, J. C. Douglas of Big Spring, Herbert Hoosier of Big Spring and Bobbie Wright of Colorado.

Pastorss of Colorado churches and leaders in the several congregations were present at the rally, extending full cooperation in effort of the young people to stay threatened return of constitutional law favoring the sale of hard liquor in Texas.

Joe Mills Sold First Chevrolet Here Ten Years Ago On Tuesday

This is an anniversary week around at Mills Chevrolet company.

It was ten years ago Tuesday that Joe Mills made his first Colorado sale of a Chevrolet car. The buyer was I. C. James, who still lives here.

Coming here from Dallas, Mills had opened his Chevrolet agency in the building just south of Piggly Wiggly's on August 1, 1925. Twelve days later the first sale was made, and since that time Mills and his salesmen have sold approximately 2,000 new Chevrolet cars in this county.

Mills moved his agency to the building at the corner of Oak and First streets on August 1, 1926, and remained there five years. In January, 1931, he moved to his present location at corner of First and Elm.

With one exception, no other car agency has ever been operated here continuously under the same management as long as ten years. The exception was the Ford dealership of A. J. Herrington a number of years ago.

UNDERGROUND RIVER IS FOUND, DRILLERS CLAIM

What is believed to be a large underground river has been encountered by drillers at a Brewster county wildcat, Colorado oil men have been informed. The water was picked up at 1,686 feet and is said to be so deep and swift that efforts to drill deeper have proven futile. Rotary mud is lost as fast as it is put into the hole and over four tons of shredded paper, put into the hole, has gone down the mysterious stream.

BRAND MORE ESSENTIAL THAN REGISTER PLATES

His cattle brand on rear end of the new Chevrolet pick-up bought from the Mills Chevrolet Company Saturday morning was of more importance than the regulation State license, so Lay Powell informed representatives of the motor car agency. In keeping with that suggestion a bright white X Bar was painted on rear of the truck body alongside the registration plate. Another brand in red was done on a door of the truck.

J. P. MAJORS, COLORADO CITIZEN SEVERAL YEARS BECOMES 'LOST' IN CITY

J. P. Majors, Sweetwater business man and through several years a resident citizen of Colorado, will admit that he became lost in Colorado the other night.

Majors, prominent in affairs of the Odd Fellow fraternity, was in town to attend sessions of the annual convention, West Texas division. Wednesday night of last week he attended the competitive work feature in a downtown hall. The meeting over he set out on foot to spend the night with a son, E. M. Majors.

About an hour later Majors found himself in north part of town. He identified the Joe Merritt home and from there finally found his bearings and reached his destination.

The son had previously suggested that he would call in his car to take Mr. Majors home. "No, there is no use in that," the elder man replied. "We will be down here until around midnight, and I will enjoy the walk. I know Colorado too well to get messed up in finding your home."

BOVINE FEMININTY HAD ONLY DISGUST FOR THIS MIRROR'S HUMOR SENSE

There is a Loraine bossie that in all probability has gone shopping her first and last time.

The other day Tom Bennett, manager of the Loraine Mercantile Co., was chagrined to witness a cow leisurely strolling into rear door of the place. Hurrying toward the cow Bennett made wild gestures and emitted loud vocal sounds in effort to rout the animal.

But Bossie, seeing herself in a large mirror, had other thoughts. In the first place she displayed strong contempt for the insinuation that her profile resembled one standing before her and made a lunge for the glass. As the other cow charged, too, bossie did not attack however, and after looking things over, walked slobuly through the building. Stopping near the front she sounded one or two musical moos and giving a brisk swish with her tail, strolled through the door, onto the sidewalk and was gone.

"I did not know whether that cow was after me or the mirror and gave her a wide berth when I saw that head go down, that tail go up and the animal lunge forward," Bennett said.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'do-less.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend, that tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I don't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." . . . If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

BENSON IS ELECTED

Election of W. D. Benson as organizer of Townsend old-age pension clubs for the 19th congressional district of Texas, which comprises 25 counties, was made in a meeting Saturday night of the Lubbock Townsend club, following an address at 2 p. m. Saturday of J. D. McNamara of Fort Worth.

Mr. Benson's election was designed as a new impetus toward enlisting strength for a new fight for passage in the next congress of the old age pension plan. It is planned to organize 436 such congressional districts in the United States.

Mr. McNamara conceded no chance of getting the ownsend plan passed during this session of congress, but said prevailing sentiment eventually will pass it. Effort will be made to elect congressmen in favor of the plan.

Deposit Insurance
AN EXTRA MEASURE OF PROTECTION

The management of this Bank always has taken every possible precaution to safeguard the funds of its depositors. In keeping with this traditionally conservative policy, deposits made here are now insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The insurance thus provided applies to all deposits, icluding personal and corporate deposits, deposits of public funds, and trust funds awaiting investment.

At the present time, the maximum amount insured for each depositor is $5,000. This does not mean that a depositor with an account of say, $500, is guaranteed $5,000, but it does mean that his $500 is fully insured. Deposit insurance is for your protection. It is a permanent part of the Nation's law.

THE FORD V-8

You can drive it 50 miles an hour the day you buy it

THE FORD V-8 is ready for normal driving when you buy it. There is no tedious period of breaking-in for 500 or 1000 miles. You can drive it up to 50 miles an hour the first day. And after the first hundred miles you can drive it as fast as you desire.

That means greater motoring enjoyment for every motorist. It is especially important to motorists who are thinking about a new car for a vacation trip — to physicians, salesmen and all those who use a car for business. Instead of dragging along at slow speeds for days, you can make good time from the start.

The reason for this is as important as the result. The Ford V-8 needs no breaking-in because of unusual accuracy in the manufacture of moving parts and the smoothness of bearing surfaces. Clearances are correct when you buy the car. It is not necessary to depend on a long wearing-in period to eliminate tightness and insure smooth running. Longer life, greater economy and better performance are bound to result from such precision methods. The Ford V-8 gives you fine-car construction, along with fine-car performance, comfort, safety and beauty.

A good cigarette, too needs Balance—

And that's why the tobaccos in Chesterfield are carefully balanced one against the other . . . not too much of one — not too little of another.

We take the right amounts of the right kinds of four types of tobacco — Bright, Burley, Maryland and Turkish.

It is this balancing of tobaccos that makes Chesterfields milder and makes them taste better.

BELIEVES IN CONSTITUTION

Here is a good letter written by L. H. Chamberlain of Dallas:

A word to the wise guys who threw brickbats at our Supreme Court for maintaining our check and balance principle of government in the recent NRA decision:

Let them take their peanut brained hallucinations on social regimentation, constitutional "modernization" and Government control of private business, and holler themselves hoarse in the Kremlin shadows or in the Unter den Linden, where for policy, at least, they may get a hearing. There are several million of us die-hard constitutionalists who just don't give a nickel-plated darn for their gravy-train polities, and who serve notice here and elsewhere that we intend to smack them backward off their soap boxes, just as long as there's a ballot, a bullet or a big stick left for us to use on them.

The constitutional revision they are hollering about, in practically every case, is concerned with establishing and centralizing Federal authority in the United States in capacities for which there are no valid warranties. Attending this system, they will most likely want to provide for a summary dismissal of our bill of rights, so they can hog-tie our newspapers and take our Winchesters and Colt guns away from us (assuring the harmonious co-operation evident in Russia) and then they can run their little play party Government into the ground, bring their troops around when it's time to pay the fiddler, and shove the bill at us on the end of a bayonet. Over our corpses they will do that!

We neither need nor will we tolerate Federal ownership of oil, public service companies, railroads or farming, and we'll burn all the midnight oil and smokeless powder at our disposal to see that that ownership is never realized.

We have sense enough to welcome any Federal extension in crime control which we may consider necessary through the Department of Justice and are fair enough to concede the value of the CCC project of the administration, but remember that this type of activity does not necessitate any constitutional change. Our well-stretched general welfare clause will cover cases of that nature.

Texans are just now finding out that we drew a prize when we made James Allred range boss on Capitol Hill. He has the sand to tell the Brain Trust where to head in on this same policy, and gets in the saddle pronto when the Paters of the Potomac get the wrong drift on who's running private and even personal business affairs out here on the plains.

Texas was once an independent Republic and whipped the whole Mexican Empire without either Code 7-A or any pork-barrel appropriation. We joined up with the States mainly for cheaper postage rates and to help the boys from Hoboken and Walla-Walla when it becomes necessary to strap on our sidearms and indignant expressions and make the world safe for Democracy and foreign investments. We did not then, nor do we now, consider Uncle Sam a nurse or a hard-boiled stepfather.

We consider the United States only an elemental union, furnishing only those necessary services, which as individuals, we cannot expect to perform.

In return Texans have paid enough money into the Federal Treasury to ballast the Mauretania, and have suffered shell-fire, contract beef and army tailoring in every subsequent crisis, regardless of sectional secessional or congressional differences. We love Old Glory and the Constitution and will back up our claim on both.

All of those who want regimentation can get a stomach full of it in Germany, Italy or Russia, but they are in for a good scrap if they try to soft-soap or strongarm this neck of the woods into a goose-stepping camp.

OLD AGE PENSION

A few weeks ago this column advocated the voting against all the amendments and a prominent citizen jumped on us saying surely not against the old age pension. Why not? Here is our argument:

This amendment enables the legislature to make a payment of $15.00 per month to every citizen of Texas over the age of 65 years, excluding only criminals, inmates of State institutions, etc. There is nothing in the amendment limiting the payments to indigents and persons without means of support, and under the provision of the amendment a millionaire is eligible for the pension. The amendment makes no provision as to the total cost to the State or as to how the revenues are to be raised.

If a pension of $15 per month is to be paid to the 232,459 persons in Texas over 65 years of age, the total annual cost to the State will be over forty million dollars. This is more money than annually is appropriated to our schools and is equivalent to the total cost of our State government, excepting the highways.

Already 25 per cent of the people of the State draw their means of support from taxes and these taxes, according to 1932 figures, consume 97 per cent of the net income of the individuals and corporations of Texas. In fact, the total tax bill consumes all of the net income of the people of Texas excepting nine million dollars. It, therefore, seems impossible that this proposed new tax burden can be consumed by taxes on income.

To place the new burden on property and raise the revenue from ad valorem taxes would be still further beyond all reason and possibility. Already these ad valorem taxes are confiscating the property of West Texans and leaving in its wake bankruptcy and destitution. On an average ad valorem taxes are consuming 99 per cent of the net returns from property.

We would favor and support an old age pension plan if the needy were assured of its benefits. Under the provisions of this amendment, however, it is inconceivable to think that West Texans can support it at least until proper restrictions are placed in the amendment and until the present tax base is broadened and property taxes are relieved.

The Benjamin Post says: To vote the old age pension on the taxpayers without opening up some new source of revenue would mean that the pension would not and could not be paid. Think twice before you vote.

THE ARK OF THE COVENANT

It has just been discovered that the Ark of the Covenant reposes in the Ancient Kingdom of Ethiopia and that Haile Selassie is a direct descendant of King Solomon.

Haile's family tree may go back to that Queen of Sheba who once visited King Solomon's court, though we trust that there is no bar sinister on the escutcheon of the long chain of Lions and Lionesses of Judah. Solomon, who was given to singing, had a whole parcel of wives, songsters in his days having much the same trouble with the women folks as crooners in our day. It ought not to be difficult to prove descent from Solomon. He gave posterity every opportunity. The record would be cleared if the chroniclers of the later testaments had been as painstaking with the begets as those of the earlier. After the Book of Malachi the practice sorter died down. Not the begets, but the recording of them. The gap between Selassie and Solomon may be bridged by the King's college of heralds. We take the Ethiopian belief on faith with some speculation as to the effect of an African sun tan on the pigmentation of royal epidermis through the centuries.

About the Ark of the Covenant, it sounds reasonable. The Hebrews are not certain as to what became of the work of Bezaleel and Aholiab. In 2nd Chronicles there is a hint that the Ark was carried off into Babylonia, but some writers think it was concealed and saved from the captivity of Israel. The Mohammedans, who had a powerful respect for the Ark, think that, along with the rod of Moses, it is at the bottom of Lake Tiberias, awaiting the Last Trump. Ethiopia would be just as good a location for the waiting. If Mussolini has anything to do with it, Ethiopia will hear its Last Trumpet now pretty soon.

KILLED TWICE

Floyd County Hesperian: According to the Bible itself, one of its famous characters was killed twice. I Samuel 50-51 reads "So David prevailed over the Philistine with a sling and with a stone and smote the Philistine and slew him; but there was no sword in the hand of David. Therefore David ran and stood upon the Philistine and took his sword and drew it out of the sheath thereof and slew him."

No siree, not at all, the meticulous chronicler of I Samuel did not say that David slew Goliath twice. He said David prevailed over the big boy with sling and stone and slew him, then he went on to say how he slew him. The slingshot was the knockdown, the knockout was administered with the Philistine's sword. Good and accurate Biblical journalism. There was no slurring in the account. The Biblical chroniclers did not write for the modern newspapers but for posterity.

Good Old Days Of 'Meeting The Evening Train' Recalled In 25-Year-Old Record

The good old days when "meeting the evening train" was one of the town's chief diversions are recalled in the following item from the Colorado Record for twenty-five years ago, August 12, 1910:

"Strangers passing through Colorado on the night trains would suppose it was a city of not less than ten or fifteen thousand souls, 75 per cent of them being boys and girls, judging from the crowds which meet the trains. They strictly obey the injunction to welcoming the coming and speed the parting stranger. . . "

The city council had met that week with these present: Mayor C. M. Adams; Aldermen C. H. Earnest, J. W. Bird, S. Cowan, and H. F. Wheeler . . . And the county commissioners court had been in session with Judge A. J. Coe and Commissioners U. D. Wulfjen, W. H. Gardner, J. S. Barber, and W. M. Green among those present.

Mrs. T. J. Ratliff and sons were home after three weeks in New Mexico with the M. C. Ratliff family. . . Orion McCreless was soon to leave to begin his labors on the road as a "knight of the grip and nerve." . . . The school board was considering plans for the new high school building. . .

A crowd of girls had been chaperoned to Seven Wells by Mrs. H. F. Wheeler, honoring Miss Fanny Swan of Merkel. In the crowd were Misses Swan, Smith, Coleman, Terry, Blandford, Pritchett, Earnest, Farmer, and Whipkey. . .

Frances Mitchell had had a party marking her fifth birthday. . . Frank Lupton had come home from a painting job in Burnham. . . Van King had passed through town after a visit with his homefolks, who were visiting at Roscoe. He was employed at Burnham. . .

Mrs. W. L. Doss, Sr., and Miss Willie Smith had gone to the West Texas Odd Fellows meeting at Merkel. . . Miss Irene Whipkey had returned from a visit with friends in Big Spring and Lamesa. . .

After a month in Omaha, Nebraska, and in Fort Worth, Miss Mamie Riordan had come home. She taught in the public schools here. . . Miss Ethel Pritchett was visiting on the H. S. ranch. . . Mrs. Lee Jones had undergone a successful operation at St. Joseph's sanitarium in Ft. Worth . . . Mrs. W. K. Homan had come from El Paso to visit Mrs. Broaddus, Mrs. Harness, and other friends, in addition to her daughter, Mrs. Cliff Beal. . .

Honoring two guests, Mrs. M. K. Jackson had entertained on Wednesday morning. Those assisting in serving were Misses Etta Doss, Claudia Rogers, and Exa McClure and Mrs. Jas. Shepherd. . . Miss Julia McLure had resigned her teaching position here to accept another in Amarillo.

Misses Lena Key, Annie Beal, Shell Merrell, Louela Merrell, Willie Caldwell, and Ethel Greenwood had completed courses in shorthand and typewriting at the Roberts Business college here. . . The cemetery association was to meet with Mrs. M. Carter. Among active members were Mrs. Harry Landers, Mrs. Allen Payne, Mrs. John Vaughan, Mrs. C. C. Blandford, Mrs. S. T. Shropshire, and Mrs. Samuel Gustine.

Chevrolet To Offer Assistance To U.S. In Curbing Crime

The Chevrolet Motor Company is proud to announce the opening of a series of broadcasts of vital interest and concern to every citizen of the United States, according to Mr. H. C. Howard, Zone Manager of the Dallas Chevrolet Zone.

Chevrolet is proud, too, of the fact that the United States Department of Justice has made it possible for them to offer the first authentic broadcasts covering the remarkable exploits of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in its war on crime.

Chevrolet, in setting out earnestly and resolutely to dissipate the false glamour that has surrounded enemies of the public, feels that it is performing a public service. Here are its purposes, as outlined by Mr. Howard:

To bring assurance to law-abiding citizens that the country is being made safe for them to live in.

To aid the Department of Justice, by letting the public know how it operates and how the public may cooperate with it in its war on crime.

To deter the commission of crime by showing potential criminals the utter uselessness of pitting their own misguided ingenuity against the organized intelligence and the scientific methods of the Bureau of Investigation.

"Each of these Saturday evening broadcasts," said Mr. Howard, "will be a complete episode in itself, based on the actual records of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and covering actual case that many listeners will recognize."

"In each broadcast the listener will be taken behind the scenes as if he were a "G-Man" himself, to learn how, step by step, the Federal operators work, both in the locality of the crime and in the Washington laboratories where the science of crime detection outdoes the feats of the most famous detectives of fiction."

District Relief Headquarters To Replace County Units Designated By State Head

Location of the 38 district headquarters to administer relief in Texas, supplanting the county administrative offices, and the names of the district administrator were announced last week by the Texas Relief Commission at the conclusion of a three-day training period at Austin for district staff members.

While the county administration of relief will be completely eliminated, county offices will continue to operate until they have been replaced by the district offices, it was emphasized. Moreover, case workers will be maintained in the counties after district administration is set up and clients will not have to go outside their own county to obtain relief.

Abolishment of the county administration of relief in Texas was announced last week by State Relief Director Adam R. Johnson, who explained that curtailment of administrative costs in line with the reduced program of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, which is being partly supplanted by the Works Progress Administration, necessitated the business end of the 253 county administrators' offices being taken over by district administrators, whose staffs will administer relief over a much wider area.

Under the new set-up, allocations will continue to be made to counties, but funds will be disbursed from the district offices. County relief boards will be continued as advisory bodies.

The district office for Mitchell county is located in Sweetwater. The district administrator is R. F. Formway.

ARE YOU A SAFE DRIVER?

. . . ask yourself these questions

1. Which requires greater caution — a curve to the right or a curve to the left — and why?
2. What is the safest way to handle your car on a highway curve — when do you use the brakes — when do you throw out the clutch — when do you accelerate?
3. In rounding a curve at high speed, is it safer to hold the steering wheel steady or "jiggle" it?
4. In passing another car on the road, is it safer to make a short, quick swing around, or a longer, more gradual one—and why?
5. On a slippery or icy road, your rear wheels suddenly start skidding. What is the way to bring the car out of the skid?
6. When is it safe to pass another car on a hill?

Even the most experienced drivers seldom know the correct answers to these questions. And there are several additional safety questions that every driver should be able to answer. Get them all, and get the right answers, from the nearest Hudson and Terraplane dealer. Come in today.

SAFEWAY CELEBRATES 20 YEARS OF UNIQUE PROGRESS

20 YEARS AGO. . . . A view of Safeway Store No. 1 located at American Falls, Idaho, as it appeared in 1915

It was in the Sagebrush deserts of Idaho that the embryo later to be the nationwide organization of Safeway Stores, came to life just twenty years ago.

This month wherever the familiar orange-colored name of Safeway hangs over a modern grocery store there will be celebration of the brief two-decade period that the organization has been in existence.

Founder of Safeway Stores was M. B. Skaggs who remains at the head of the organization as its chairman of the board of directors, only 47 years old. Born in Aurora, Missouri, fourth child in a dozen sons and daughters of a preacher-grocer-postmaster, Mr. Skaggs has breathed the pungent atmosphere of the grocery store from the time he could walk.

Familiar as he is today with every department of the business—advertising, store arrangement, real estate, purchasing—his one great theme is personnel. He realized early that to build an organization of many units, some of them 2,000 miles from headquarters, he must have earnest, trustworthy, intelligent helpers. He wanted men able to bear responsibility, with courage to take the blows of misfortune, and with vision to grasp at every advantage.

He also realized that if a man was to assume responsibility he was justly entitled to share in the profits accruing from his efforts. With the opening of his second store Mr. Skaggs devised a bonus plan whereby the manager received a generous salary and in addition a percentage of the net profits of his store. The plan was successful and is still in effect.

So well has he built that those who will honor him most at the anniversary will be the members of the Safeway Employes' Association—Mr. Skaggs' own idea, that association.

At the age of 19 Mr. Skaggs opened a restaurant, confectionery and meat market at Diamond, Missouri, in partnership with a brother. Later his father moved to Oklahoma and at Anadarko, Mr. Skaggs, a brother, and his father, opened a grocery store.

A few years later the family moved to Southern Idaho, and in 1915, at American Falls, was started the grocery store that became No. 1 in the system. The store grew, particularly when Mr. Skaggs learned that he couy buy carloads of peaches, cabbages, and other fresh fruits and vegetables and sell them cheaply and quickly.

Another store was opened in Burley, Idaho. Others came in rapid, but carefully planned succession until 1921 the organization invaded the West coast, beginning at Portland, Oregon. Since that day there has been no limit, save judgment, to the expansion of the Safeway Stores, still following the policy of careful, quantity-buying, quick sales at a small margin of profit.

Much of the surplus food of the nation, at varying times, has been disposed of by Mr. Skaggs, to the benefit of the producers, the consumers, and himself. Through nationwide sales in lamb at critical times, beef, fruits, vegetables at others, he has eliminated the surpluses and maintained prices, at the request of producers.

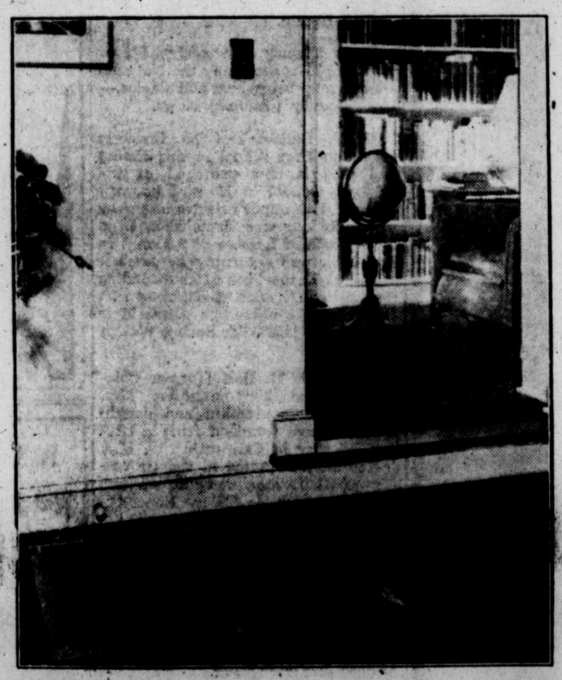

Livestock men, fruit and vegetable growers are his friends. They come to him with their problems and seldom does he fail to throw the great organization's power to their rescue, with resulting bargains to housewives.

Once a contract is signed for the purchase of a huge quantity of any commodity, Mr. Skaggs puts his accountants to work figuring, not "how much can we get for this?" but "how little can we sell this for, and still make a fair profit?"

Thus it is that in his beautiful California home at evening this still-young business man sits watching the cool mists of the Pacifii roll in. At his back is an organization of service, far more perfect than he had dreamed a short time before. Happy in contemplation of the past he is equally certain of the future—a clearly defined program of progress, but only such progress as will benefit the producers of food, the consumers of food, and those thousands of young men and women in his own organization who have bridged the wide gap between the two so efficiently.

Over Hundred New Laws Are Effective As Bills Passed By Legislature Operate

Attorneys of Mitchell and all other counties of Texas have after Friday Aug. 15, to face the duty of familiarizing themselves with 104 additional laws, added to the already crowded statute books of the State.

The big batch of new laws represent about one-fourth of all business passed by the four-month regular session of the legislature, represented from this part of Texas by Representative Howard Davison of Rotan and Senator W. B. Collie of Eastland.

Most important in interest and effect is the act of creating a department of public safety as an agency to weld the Ranger force and state highway patrol into a modernized state police system.

Bureaus of intelligence, communications, education and identification and records will comprise the department. The Rangers and highway patrol, retaining their identities, will form two of three departmental divisions, the third being the headquarters division.

Three commissioners of public safety will manage the department through a director. In advance of the acts becoming law, Governor Allred selected George W. Cottingham of Houston, Albert Sidney Johnson and Ernest Goens of Tyler to be commissioners.

Another new law for the safety of Texans will prohibit owners of livestock from permitting animals to run at large on highways with fenced rights-of-way. Violators will face a fine of up to $200.

A new penal offense will be created, that of attempted burglary of a vessel, steamboat or railroad car. Law enforcement against this type of crime has been difficult for only effected burglaries constituted a violation.

Venue for murder trials will be broadened by another act. A person charged with murder may, by the act, be tried in the county where the body was found, as well as in the county where the fatal injury was done or death occurred.

To enable a closer study of convicts' behavior and records, the board of pardons and paroles will be moved to Huntsville, site of the main prison, while another act will give prison guards a substantial salary boost.

Two businesses will be added to those under state regulation, but restrictions on a third will be relaxed slightly.

Funeral directors will be licensed and supervised by the board of embalming, while transportation agents, who conduct travel bureaus, will be regulated by the Railroad Commission.

Restrictions on nurses training schools will be modified to permit such schools in small hospitals. That act will reduce the minimum size of hospitals permitted to conduct nurses' schools from that previously set by the board of nurse examiners.

Depression-period refinancing by sundry subdivisions will be aided by several bills validating issuance of bonds and tax levies, while another relief act will cancel all ad valorem taxes delinquent prior to Dec. 31, 1929. It will effectuate a constitutional amendment adopted several yeas ago.

Another hard-times bill will expand the items of family property exempt from forced sale for payment of debts. Property so exempt henceforth will include not only the family homestead and kitchen pots and pans, along with a cemetery lot, two horses and a wagon, but also "one dog," as well as wearing apparel, 20 goats and flocks of chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese and guineas.

Texts for teaching the German language, expunged from Texas high schools during the World War, again will enter the approved list for which the Textbook Commission may make adoptions. The act also will permit adoption of texts for teaching Czech.

But a new law to safeguard patriotism in schools will become effective concurrently. Because of evidences "Communism and other un-American doctrines" were being taught, Texas teachers in the future must swear allegiance to the Constitutions of Texas and the United States.

Three years will be added to the maximum age of persons given free tuition in schools while another act affecting the educational system will permit consolidation of tax assessing, collecting and legal departments of two or more independent school districts.

The Southern States' "Jim Crow law" will be extended to motor buses, which will be required to provide separate accommodations for negroes. Segregations of whites and blacks may be effected by compartments within a coach.

In the field of political campaigns costs will rise for residents of large counties who aspire to become a Representative or Senator. County executive committee may charge a candidate up to $50, instead of a $1 maximum, to place his name on the ballot.

White Parker, Comanche Indian, Recalls Father's Battle With Colorado Pioneer

An Indian whose father once battled a leading Colorado pioneer and then lived to become his close friend paid Colorado a brief visit Tuesday.

That father was Quanah Parker, son of the famed Cynthia Ann Parker, and last of the Comanche chiefs. The Colorado pioneer with whom he battled was J. Wright Mooar, now of Snyder. The visitor here was White Parker, oldest living son of Quanah Parker, and now an ordained minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, South. He was the guest while here of the Rev. Cal C. Wright, Methodist pastor.

Laughingly, the stalwart and handsome chieftain's son recalled to the Rev. Mr. Wright how his father and Mr. Mooar exchanged shots over a herd of buffalo below the Caprock near Post in the long-gone days of buffalo herds.

Mooar and his hunting party had camped west of what is now Snyder, at a place which later became part of the Mooar ranch. Quanah Parker and a band of his braves came upon them shooting the buffalo and undertook to drive them away. In later years Quanah Parker and Mooar became close friends and remain so today.

White Parker is spending his vacation speaking in behalf of members of his tribe, endeavoring to show the "sensational modernization, civilization, and Christianization among us since 1901." His home is at Fletcher, Oklahoma. On his tour he is accompanied by Mrs. Parker, who is a white woman and whom he jokingly describes as a "foreigner."

Parker had with him the Bible brought to Texas in 1832 by Daniel Parker, father of Cynthia Ann Parker. In the Comanche raid on Fort Parker, near Nacogdoches, in 1836, Daniel Parker was killed and his daughter taken captive.

The story of how she grew up among the Indians and became the wife of the chief, bearing him children, is familiar to all readers of Texas lore.

Before leaving here to keep lecture appointments in cities to the east White Parker promised the Rev. Mr. Wright to return some Sunday in the near future and speak at the Methodist church.

Texas Ready For Battle On Crime Within The State

Texas' answer to the criminal was ready Saturday in the form of a modern, mobile state police department combining the famed Texas rangers with the speedy and alert highway patrol.

Both organizations, which previously had wended separate ways in law enforcement, were welded by legislative act into a compact organization under a commission whose determination is to make the unsavory appellation "crime corridor," no longer applicable to Texas.

The rangers, 36 strong, have been desginated the state's "G-men," or detective agency; the highway patrol, its manpower shortly to be brought to 140 through recent authorization, as the field force. Both will be aided by bureaus of criminal identification, communication and education.

Personnel of the rangers and patrol was lifted intact into the new setup and placed on probation. Neither the rangers nor the patrol lost their identities except that the patrol was given general police powers.

Undesirable officers will be weeded out during the probationary period and all replacements will be required to pass a rigid civil service examination. Both new and old officers must go through a special training school, stressing the most modern methods of combating crime, promotions will be on merit, alone.

Radio-equipped automobiles, with special gear ratios, for high speed, have been provided for part of the department. Others will use motorcycles.
