Charter school puzzle pieces fall into, out of place

By Daniel Arp
Staff Writer

Dick Bowdon, the man who was to be chairman of the board of trustees for Midland Advantage Charter School, has tendered his resignation before holding a single board meeting, just five months before the school's opening.

The resignation removes one piece from a charter school puzzle that does not have many pieces in it to begin with. But remaining board members and administrators say a replacement — from outside Midland — has been found, and the school will open on time in fall 1999.

"I guess we had a little disagreement about how the board should operate," said Bowdon, who declined to go into particulars, except to say the frequency of meetings was a point of contention among the three-member board. "It has nothing to do with the school. It was more a personality thing."

Remaining officers — Ed Jones, chairman and CEO of Chase Bank of Texas of the Permian Basin, and State Rep. Mike Krusee (R-Round Rock) — declined to comment on the specifics of Bowdon's resignation. Jones said he had not even known about it. Krusee said he learned of it about three weeks ago through an e-mail.

"He sent me a note, but that's private. He didn't want me to release it, I don't think," Krusee said. Bowdon said he thought releasing the letter would be "inappropriate."

Midland Advantage, if it opens this fall, will be the Tall City's first open-enrollment, tuition-free state-granted charter, operating independently of the local school district and many of the rules that govern it.

Still missing pieces include a budget, a site — which was to be finalized before the end of 1998, according to the charter application submitted to the TEA — and staffing, including the search for a school director.

- The board has yet to meet officially.
- A preferred site has been chosen at 1800 Big Spring St. but not voted on.
- Budget has not been decided.
- Staff has not been hired; interviews will be conducted within the month.
- Board chairman Richard Bowdon resigned last month because of personality conflicts with other board members.
- Officials say the school will open on schedule in fall 1999.

Many see empty buildings as asset

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

A Chicago resident is seriously considering purchasing the Texas Instruments building on Interstate 20, where he would manufacture prefabricated housing panels to be shipped to other states and the Caribbean.

The TI building is just one of several office and retail buildings available in Midland that could entice new industry or accommodate established businesses that are growing.

Commercial Realtor Don Roderick with Langston Realtors said "I have a feeling there are properties going to come open that we're not aware of yet."

In the meantime, he said, in light of the economy and uncertainty of energy prices, most of his clients are taking a "wait-and-see" attitude.

"I believe we're in a holding pattern," he said. "We've been through this several times, so it's no surprise. The future is uncertain and we need to be careful. It's time to be cautious."

Top, the FDIC building in Clay Desta Plaza is for sale, and, above, the Builder's Square building on the corner of Loop 250 and Highway 191 soon will be vacant.

LeBaron Lee, chairman of Thermal-Systems Worldwide, toured the TI building recently with Odessan Mike Salinas, owner of Industrial Demolition and Salvage (IDS).

Salinas explained that he was working with Lee through his association with the Mexican-American Network of Odessa (MANO).

Lee contacted MANO, told them what he was looking for and MANO put him in contact with Salinas, one of the founders of MANO.

U.S. troops in Kosovo stirring up hot debate

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The fielding of U.S. troops in a ground war in Yugoslavia and in the disputed Serbian province of Kosovo is being shunned by Texas senators.

A congressman, who opposed the war in the Balkan state, has advocated military victory once U.S. troops are committed.

And a Roman Catholic bishop, lamenting the "humanitarian catastrophe," has prayed for peace and for the guidance of Jesus Christ.

U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, who voiced opposition to the United States getting directly involved in a ground war in Eastern Europe's Yugoslavia, said NATO forces, "perhaps without America's participation," might get into the ground war because the United States has "taken the lion's share" in the air campaign.

"If we're talking about ground forces, I don't think we're ready to put Americans on the ground ... absolutely not," Ms. Hutchison said. "But I don't think we should just say that NATO will not have any ground troops" in Kosovo. "We are watching these Albanian refugees pour over the lines ... (and) need to find safe passage for them and try to help them ... to survive.

"Should combat troops become necessary in Yugoslavia," the senator's stance is that "they should come from European countries closer to and more familiar with the region," a representative of Ms. Hutchison said on Monday.

Of the three U.S. soldiers now held captive by Serb forces, Ms. Hutchison said in a statement that she shares "with all Americans the hope that our soldiers will be released safely and soon.

"Their capture is a vivid reminder of the risks our armed forces face everyday so that we can enjoy the freedoms they defend," she said.

Ms. Hutchison said she has contacted the families of Staff Sgt. Christopher Stone and Spc. Steven Gonzales "in Texas and extended the assistance of my office and my staff in whatever ways may be needed during this difficult time."

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm said he has been opposed to President Clinton's decision to launch the airstrikes, which began on March 24, "into a civil war where we have no vital national interest.

"The president continues to march toward the use of ground troops in Kosovo," said Gramm, who is "adamantly opposed"

Recent walk-aways prompt prison officials to scrutinize procedures

By T.E. Jenkins
Big Spring Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Big Spring Federal Bureau of Prisons officials are investigating a breakdown in inmate supervision procedures that may have led to a third inmate at the Satellite Prison Camp walking away from the facilities last week.

Prison Information Officer Alan Booth said a mistake made by one of the inmate supervisors while out on detail may have lent itself to the inmate's escape Thursday, It should not be confused with the two previous escapes as far as procedural failings are concerned, he said.

"One of the most important things I need to stress to everyone out there is that we maintain a zero-tolerance policy when it comes to inmate walk-aways," Booth said. "We can look at the number of inmates that have walked away from this facility and compare them however we want, but the main idea here is that one walk-away is just one too many.

"We are currently investigating this particular walk-away, and it appears from the preliminary investigation that a break in the procedures by one

Suspect confessed role in 4 killings, O'Hair disappearance, FBI agent says

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Michigan man held on weapons charges has admitted an extensive role in what authorities believe was the kidnapping and murder of atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair and her two adult children, according to federal court testimony.

The San Antonio Express-News reported in a copyright story for early Tuesday editions that Gary P. Karr admitted involvement in four Texas murders, including at least one in which the victim was decapitated and mutilated.

FBI agent William O'Leary testified about the confessions in a Detroit courtroom on March 26, saying Karr also told investigators where the victims were buried, the newspaper said.

"(He) told me the city," O'Leary said.

More than three dozen FBI agents spent much of Easter weekend scouring a 5,000-acre ranch about 120 miles west of San Antonio. But officials wouldn't say what, if anything, they found and refused even to confirm that the search involved the O'Hair disappearance.

An FBI official in San Antonio didn't return a telephone call from The Associated Press on Monday.

KOSOVO: Hutchison, Gramm oppose ground troops to the United States getting into a ground war there.

U.S. and NATO alliance air and naval forces are dropping bombs and launching missiles onto military and related targets in hopes of persuading Yugoslavian President Slobodan Milosevic to allow NATO peacekeeping forces into Kosovo and to stop the "ethnic cleansing" of ethnic Albanians in Kosovo by Yugoslavian army and Serb police.

The United States wants autonomy for Kosovo and peace for its 1.8 million ethnic Albanians, mostly Muslims. Milosevic and the Serbs, however, desperately want to hold onto the province, which is considered holy and basic to Orthodox Serbs.

"It appears to me that President Clinton views American pilots, soldiers and sailors as world social workers," Gramm said. "He scours the globe for opportunities to do good in hostile lands, and when he finds a problem, his inclination is to dispatch our troops to fix it."

From Gramm's viewpoint, "American soldiers should be ordered into battle only when the vital national interests of the United States are at stake. To risk American lives for anything less is wrong, and I cannot and will not support it."

In a "Face The Nation" televised program, Ms. Hutchison said, "Milosevic has heard everyone (including Clinton) say 'no troops on the ground.' So instead of using his defense air maneuvers, he's gone on the ground and committed more atrocities."

To stop that bloodshed, Ms. Hutchison suggested that America could arm the Kosovars and "help them fight on the ground to keep their people from being annihilated ... ."

U.S. Rep. Henry Bonilla of San Antonio said America has no proven "national interest" in Yugoslavia. Clinton has not clearly defined his objectives and is ignoring military advisers' counsel on how to wage a war. He said that Clinton has also ignored Central Intelligence Agency warnings that U.S.-NATO airstrikes would lead to more atrocities in Kosovo and to a mass of refugees streaming out of their homeland.

U.S. Rep Larry Combest of Midland, who opposed the House resolution "to commit further military resources to Kosovo," said, however, that "I firmly support our American troops" and oppose the Clinton "policy that got us there.

Combest said there are three basic questions to be addressed when "considering committing our troops" to war: "Is the operation in the U.S. national security interest? Are there clear and well-defined goals with an exit strategy? Would I send my own children to fight in this conflict?"

However, "Once we have committed our troops," Combest said, "we should not hamstring our military leaders from victory."

Bishop Michael D. Pfeifer, president of the Texas Conference of Churches and bishop of the Catholic Diocese of San Angelo, said that "escalating violence in Kosovo is provoking an imminent humanitarian catastrophe."

The Yugoslavian authorities, evidence suggests, "are undertaking a massive, widespread and systematic campaign of aggression and ethnic cleansing against the Albanian civilian population."

People around the world, Pfeifer said, "need to fervently pray that reason will prevail and a political solution will be achieved as soon as possible."

"For peace to prevail," Pfeifer said, "it is essential that the Yugoslav authorities immediately halt the cruel aggression and ethnic cleansing against Kosovo civilians and that there be a suspension of NATO bombing." Displaced people "must be" restored.

SPACE: Midland's buildings can attract business

going to kick off this project, whether he does it here or somewhere else," Salinas said. "We've been trying to impress upon him that there is a labor force here ... ."

Dennis Clayton, director of the Midland Chamber of Commerce economic development department, said Lee's plans would be a compatible use for the building, which he calls a marketable asset for Midland because it's been well-kept and is not that old.

Bill Sandlin of Southwest Commercial Investments (SCI) said the city's inventory of industrial properties has been attracting buyers.

"Even with the downturn in the oil and gas industry, there's not a glut of industrial properties," he said. "Over the last two or three years, there's been an absorption of properties."

For example, he said, the 85,000-square-foot U-Haul facility on Industrial Avenue was purchased by a California-based company, cleaned and now presents a good opportunity for a new owner.

Clayton said he was in touch recently with the brokers marketing the TI facility "and we worked together to identify prospects. Even if the entire TI plant isn't bought, there's room for support services.

"Quite often, one industry is a catalyst for support industries," he said. "We have the knowledge and capability here to support construction."

Salinas said there will "have to be a lot of support work" if the facility comes to the TI plant. "There would be a lot of possibilities for local fabrication shops to pick up some work."

Among the retail properties coming available is the building housing Builders Square and the space in Midland Plaza where Service Merchandise is located. Both retailers are closing their Midland stores as part of a national restructuring of their operations.

"Because retailers were doing well and were doing all they could to grow their companies (Midland has) as many 'big box' retailers as any community our size," according to Don Davis of MRO Management.

The Builders Square location on Loop 250 and Highway 191 "could be anything from housing a church to a car dealership," he said, adding that leasing the Service Merchandise location may prove more of a challenge.

John Elphick, Sandlin's partner at SCI, however, said his company is working on a couple of prospects for the Service Merchandise location.

The city's inventory of what Clayton calls "Class A" office space is competitive and an asset for the city, he said.

"We have a good inventory of office space, and when we get inquiries or relocation or expansion requests, we respond well. That's an asset for us — good quality and available inventory," he said.

Davis predicts some changes in the office building picture over the next six months, particularly if Arco Permian and Chevron complete the merger of their Permian Basin assets into a new company. Despite BP Amoco and Arco's announcement last week that they had agreed to merge, Arco Permian and Chevron's plans are continuing forward, an Arco spokeswoman said.

If the two companies merge and Chevron relocates its operations to Arco Permian's downtown building at Michigan and Big Spring, Davis said, "that could force other tenants out of the building into other spaces and strengthen the downtown market over the next six months."

Between Chevron's possible relocation and Conoco's downsizing, the suburban office market will be affected, he said.

Commercial Realtor Gifford Alstrin pointed out that "over the last 10 years, we've had 3 million feet of office space closed."

Elphick said such closings — both office and retail — are the natural result of business evolution.

Of the office buildings currently closed — Building of the Southwest, Western United Life, Metro Building, Midland Savings and the Hightower Building, only the Hightower is being marketed.

The others, Elphick said are closed because "there's a considerable degree of economic and functional obsolescence. Those buildings evolved to the point where they weren't competitive. It may not be economic to update them."

He said lease rates — what the current market would allow building owners to charge — would not be enough to fund building operations, service the debt and get a return on investment.

The buildings also aren't competitive in terms of updated heating and cooling systems, communications systems and parking availability, he said.

To attract tenants back to the older buildings — which, with the exception of the Hightower, are a minimum of 30 years old — it may be necessary to rethink the buildings' use, Elphick said.

Rather than seeking multiple tenants, he said a building may accommodate a single tenant or be converted to other uses, such as residences, government or nonprofit offices, retail or a restaurant. Or, he said, it may be better to remove the building and use the space for parking.

Roderick said it is a "vexing question" of what to do with office space that has no potential.

While Midland is strong in office, retail and industrial facilities, Sandlin believes the city needs an economic development fund to compete with other cities.

"One of the assets our community has is nice office space. In Lubbock, a lot of their vacant office space is old and not functional. We have the ability — because of some of the properties that have been or will be vacated — to accommodate new businesses. But we have an asset we can't use because we keep getting beat out by Amarillo."

He added that, "It's like chemistry. We have the ingredients, but without a catalyst, they may take years and years to combine naturally. Our catalyst would be economic development."

CHARTER: One of 3-member board resigns

(From 1A)

Though a preferred site has been chosen at 1800 Big Spring St., a bare plot of land near the corner of Golf Course Road, the board has yet to approve the purchase or price, said Lisa O'Brien, communications director for Advantage Schools Inc., the Boston company that will run the charter school.

An annual budget cannot been ironed out, either, until the board meets officially for the first time, which Krusee said will certainly happen within the next two months.

Bowdon and the board had originally planned to have their first meeting in February, but the meeting was postponed indefinitely for undetermined reasons.

"The main purpose of the board is to approve a budget," Krusee said. "I don't see any reason to meet until it's time to do that."

Krusee said he already has decided to replace Bowdon with Melinda Wheatley, vice president of the Public Policy Foundation, a group whose primary interests include education reform.

Ms. Wheatley, who lives in San Antonio, currently serves on the board at the San Antonio charter run by Advantage Schools. Krusee is also on the San Antonio board and will be on three more — in Midland, Dallas and Houston — starting this fall.

Nevertheless, the structure of the current Midland board remains murky.

Bowdon said that in the official election of officers — which he said was done on paper sometime in February — Krusee was voted president and the position of chairman did not exist.

But Bowdon was to be chairman according to the charter application, and Krusee said he expects Ms. Wheatley to be named chairman and for there to be no president.

Whatever the structure of the nonprofit board, the for-profit company, Advantage Schools, seems determined to keep the trains running on time.

Officials were in town holding a career opportunities forum March 29 for potential teachers. The forum drew a crowd of about 45, eight to 10 of whom expressed an interest in joining, Ms. O'Brien said.

"Most said they were disappointed in the Midland and Odessa school districts and were ready for a change," said Ms. O'Brien, who did not foresee the fall 1999 opening date being a problem.

The school expects to hire 23 full-time teachers for the projected 540 students in kindergarten through fifth grade, in addition to instructional assistants, site and professional development coordinators and a school director.

The company's school director search consultant will be in town later this week to interview candidates. Offer letters will be sent out to desired employees by May 1.

On the student recruitment end, the company has sent out letters to parents in the Midland area urging their children to consider the school. A parent information meeting also should take place sometime in May, say officials.

Building on the site once it is purchased should not present time problems, said Ms. O'Brien, because the company plans to use prefabricated, modular buildings.

"We've got a model that works very well," Ms. Wheatley said. "They have a tremendous amount of experience in getting things running."

PRISON: Officials say supervisor's mistake may have led to escape

of our inmate supervisors may have contributed to the escape of this inmate," Booth said.

According to prison officials, 40-year-old Casimiro Soliz walked away from the camp sometime Thursday morning or afternoon. Soliz is the third inmate to walk away from the Federal Bureau of Prisons Satellite Camp in the past month.

Booth said it's important to understand the difference between the previous escapes and Soliz's flight to understand the state of the camp within the community of Big Spring.

"The two previous inmates made their escapes during the cover of night. The second inmate made his escape after we had already implemented additional procedures to see to it that it didn't happen again. Inmate Soliz made his escape during the middle of the day, and at a time when the set procedures were designed to keep the risk of his flight at a minimum."

As the prison officials investigate the recent walk-aways from the camp, many Big Spring residents find themselves concerned about the idea of having an escaped federal prisoner walking the streets of their town.

"Of course when something like this happens, you have to worry a little bit," said resident Pat Simmons. "You have to remember that these guys at both the federal and state prison camps aren't axe murderers or anything that serious."

Simmons has been part of an effort by residents to show their appreciation for volunteer work done by the camp's inmates.

"We work with the inmates at the prison camp on a regular basis, and although these guys have made mistakes, that's no reason to look at them any different than we look at ourselves. They are out there to repay their debt to society, and when they are through, they want to go home just like everyone else.

"I hate to see these guys walk away like that. It just makes it harder on the ones who are trying to make up for their mistakes," Simmons said.

Big Spring Police Chief Lonnie Smith said it is important to look at the overall success rate of the facility before passing judgment on the camps.

"If you look at how many inmates actually come to the facility, and how many actually finish out their time there, it's easy to see what a small percentage of the inmates actually walk away."

Smith said it's sometimes hard to understand the resources prisoners have available to them if they want to escape.

"These guys have all day, 24 hours a day, seven days a week to watch the patterns of the guards and the procedures they use," Smith said. "If they want to escape, there is a pretty good chance they will."

Smith thinks the prisoners who walk away from the minimum security prison camp pose a minimal threat to Big Spring.

"Of course, these walk-aways make more work for us, but most of these guys aren't even from Big Spring. They pose a risk in the matter that they may steal a car to get out of town, but most of the time, they just want to get as far from the facility as possible.

"There will always be the possibility for violence when dealing with a federal prisoner, but in the case of the federal prison camp, we've never found ourselves in that position."

Smith said although the prison camp is a very valuable tool for the system to reintegrate prisoners into normal life, the camps also have a financial benefit.

"These camps cost a lot less to run than the higher security facilities. When you start talking about putting up walls and guard towers at these facilities, you are talking about some big money. These camps provide a valuable service to not only the prisoners, but also to the taxpayers that fund these operations."

Booth said although he understands the concern over various facilities' financial burdens on the taxpayers, that is certainly not the main concern of their operation in Big Spring.

"We are just as concerned about money and operating costs as everyone else. We will not, however, jeopardize the safety of these inmates, or the surrounding community and its residents, just for money's sake.

"We will continue to look at our operations and procedures, and try to see to it that this doesn't happen again."

International aid arrives — along with more refugees

SKOPJE, Macedonia (AP) — As NATO troops around him rushed to put up hundreds of tents, 11-year-old Florin wept alone.

"The police separated me from my family," he said, sobbing, recounting how Serb forces drove him and his relatives last week from their home in Pristina, the capital of Kosovo. "I thought they were going to be here."

The plight of this despondent young ethnic Albanian summed up a persistent pattern that has emerged in the harrowing 2-week-old human exodus from Kosovo: individual suffering set against a backdrop of chaos, urgent international action and growing political debate.

The NATO alliance accuses Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic of purging the southern Serbian province of its ethnic Albanian majority and deliberately trying to destabilize his neighbors with a flood of refugees.

Hardest hit has been Albania, which has taken in 239,000 Kosovo refugees, and Macedonia, where arrivals number about 120,000 and tens of thousands are waiting to enter.

Macedonia has said no more than 20,000 refugees can stay. Fearing utter chaos if the refugees enter freely, Macedonian officials mobilized army troops, and police were patrolling the border to prevent refugees from sneaking in.

"Macedonia cannot deal with the refugee problem without international assistance. We need help," Deputy Prime Minister Radmilla Kiprjanova said.

At Stankovac, a suburb of the Macedonian capital of Skopje, refugees were put up in military tents and received food and medical treatment from a team of Greek doctors. British and French troops worked feverishly to set up what may become a tent city for 100,000 people. By noon, more than 300 tents had been erected.

NATO nations have offered to temporarily take in around 100,000 refugees now in Macedonia. After a series of delays, an airlift finally got under way Monday night with the departure of several hundred refugees for Norway and Turkey.

It was not known when a larger-scale airlift of tens of thousands of refugees would get off the ground.

Conditions remained dire at a makeshift camp at Blace, on the border with Kosovo. Tens of thousands are living in shelters of plastic and blankets in a muddy, fetid no-man's land while they wait to enter Macedonia.

Muslim activists enforce strike in Jesus' childhood hometown

NAZARETH, Israel (AP) — Muslims demanded the resignation of Nazareth's Christian mayor on Monday, a day after sectarian clashes in the town of Jesus' boyhood disrupted its long-standing record of religious tolerance.

And in a rare joint statement, the highest representatives of Christian denominations in Israel said they would close churches in Nazareth on Tuesday and Wednesday to protest attacks against Christians.

"This measure might be repeated and even extended should division continue to be provoked among the population of Nazareth by allowing the sentiment of extremists to be aroused and offenses to be committed against Christians," said the statement.

Signed by the patriarchs of Jerusalem and other church leaders, the statement also called on both sides to refrain from further violence and hostility.

Nazareth has long prided itself on its religious tolerance, but growing tensions in recent months between Muslims and Christians exploded on Easter Sunday over plans for a site for millennium pilgrims.

A dozen people were injured, 30 cars were damaged and 11 people arrested during the confrontations.

As calls to prayer sounded over mosque loudspeakers, 300 Muslim demonstrators waved green flags of the Islamic movement, vowing to build a large mosque on the site, which they claim as their own.

The government wants to build a plaza for the pilgrims at the site near the Church of the Annunciation, where Roman Catholic tradition says the Angel Gabriel first appeared before Mary, the mother of Jesus, and told her she was pregnant.

Pilgrims who made their way to the church Monday passed through a tense corridor where Muslims were demonstrating. Some 150 Israeli police stood nearby in riot gear. The downtown area was deserted as shopkeepers complied with a strike called by the Islamic movement.

Members of the local Christian minority, which once dominated this mostly Arab town of 60,000 in northern Israel, said they are increasingly concerned for their safety.

Southwest Floors helps with spring redecorating

Carpet sale features no payments, no interest for one year

When spring returns warmth and freshness to the air, homeowners start thinking of ways to refresh their décor. Beginning next Monday, Southwest Floors will make it even easier to give your home a new look, when they begin their "The Makings of a Beautiful Home" sale. If you buy any brand of carpet from Southwest Floors between April 12 and May 4, you'll owe no payments or interest for one year*.

Think of it! Now you can select the colors, styles and textures that reflect your individual decorating taste. Southwest Floors' experienced salespeople will help you choose carpet that will suit your lifestyle and please your eyes.

You'll save in other ways, too. During this sale, buy only one or two rooms of Queen or Patcraft brand carpet and get the same discount you'd get if you bought a whole housefull of carpet.

These prices are for quality carpet—not seconds or off goods. "At Southwest Floors, we sell only first quality carpet," says owner Robert Burton. Their selection is made of branded nylon fibers including Stainmaster, Wear-Dated II and Anso—so you know it will be a thing of pleasure for years to come.

Southwest Floors will also make sure you're happy with the installation. "I started out in this business as an apprentice installer 28 years ago," says Robert. "I know our installation crews are the best in town." Their crew will move all of your furniture for you at no extra charge.

"We're offering this sale because we want to kick off the spring season with some really good values for our customers," says Robert. "Our business has always depended on customer satisfaction, and this is just one more way we can help them get what they need at a really good deal."

So—if your carpet is worn or is just outdated, this is your chance to buy what you really need and defer the payments for up to one year. Go by Southwest Floors between April 12 and May 4, and let them introduce you to "The Makings of a Beautiful Home."

Southwest Floors was opened by Robert Burton in 1990. They carry a wide selection of carpet, tile, wood and vinyl flooring. The address is 1113 Andrews Highway, next to McDonald's. The phone number is 689-9312. Store hours are 9-5:30 Monday through Friday and 10-1 Saturday. They accept Visa, Master Card, American Express and Discover.

All this and no payments! Southwest Floors owner Robert Burton shows just a portion of the wonderful selection of carpet available at their special deal: no interest, no payments for 12 months. This sale begins April 12 and ends May fourth.

Midland Muffler and Brake asks a safety question

When is a simple brake job not enough?

When safety for yourself and your family is involved, cutting corners on a brake job won't cut it. That's why Midland Muffler and Brake goes the extra mile to make sure you don't go an extra inch in an emergency stop.

First, you have to know when your vehicle needs a brake job. Midland Muffler and Brake owner Mike Murray says manufacturers today build metal tabs into the brakes, which make a squeaking noise even when the brakes aren't engaged. When you hear this noise, or if you notice your vehicle stopping unevenly, it's time to have your brakes checked.

A full brake job and Midland Muffler and Brake includes turning the rotors (on disk brakes) and drums (on drum brakes). This is necessary, Mike explains, because the new materials used for brakes are harder than ones previously used, which means they get hotter. This extra heat can cause them to crystallize, causing the brake pedal to feel soft and reducing your braking capacity. Turning makes sure all surfaces meet 100 percent, increasing your stopping power.

With antilock brakes, it's important not only to turn rotors and drums, but also to clean the sensor that detects when the wheels lock. If this sensor doesn't work, your brakes could lock up, causing you to lose control of the vehicle in a panic stop.

Mike says setting your emergency brake can make your brakes work better and last longer. How? Because setting the emergency brake is what causes self-adjusting rear brakes to adjust themselves. And, if your rear brakes are properly adjusted, they'll take some of the work of stopping off the front brakes, helping you get more life out of them.

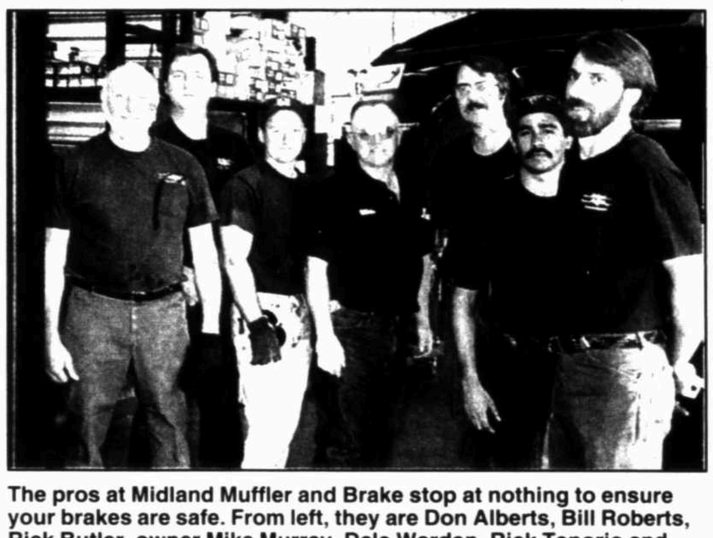

It is also a good idea to have your braking system flushed and refilled. Mike notes that, over time, the brake fluid carries tiny bits of rubber, dirt and moisture that can clog the master cylinder and hurt braking performance. It is recommended that be done every 25,000 miles.

Midland Muffler uses quality Bendix pads and shoes. They offer a lifetime warranty or, if you're on a tight budget, a one-year warranty is available at a reduced price.

Midland Muffler also handles exhaust, shocks and struts, alignments and other under-car repairs. They have just added a second alignment rack to reduce the waiting time on that work.

For exhaust work, they carry the complete line of Walker mufflers and catalytic converters, as well as FlowMaster and other high performance systems.

So stop by Midland Muffler and Brake, where they stop at nothing to give you the best work possible.

The pros at Midland Muffler and Brake stop at nothing to ensure your brakes are safe. From left, they are Don Alberts, Bill Roberts, Rick Butler, owner Mike Murray, Dale Warden, Rick Tenorio and Russell Dolan.

Midland Muffler has been locally owned since 1983. They are located at 3200 W. Front. Hours are 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 7:30 a.m. to noon on Saturday. The phone number is 699-7924.

NATO says Serb ground troops in Kosovo now prime target

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Aided by clearing skies, NATO struck fuel depots, bridges and army barracks throughout Yugoslavia on Monday, and said it was taking particular aim at Serbian ground forces accused of terrorizing ethnic Albanians in Kosovo.

Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic brushed off the continued barrage, defiantly promising to rebuild the bomb-damaged structures and denouncing NATO "aggressors" and "criminals."

As night fell, air raid sirens sounded again in Belgrade, heralding the 13th straight night of NATO bombardment.

Two strong detonations were heard late Monday in the northern city of Novi Sad, Tanjug said, and Serbian television showed pictures of a huge fireball. The private news agency Beta quoted Navi Sad's mayor, Caslav Popovic, as saying the power station at the city oil refinery had been hit.

NATO also targeted a fuel depot near Sombar, 12 miles south of the Hungarian border and the coal mining center of Aleksinac south of Belgrade, television reported.

Kursumlija, a drab industrial town on the road linking northeastern Kosovo with the military headquarters at Nis was also hit, Serb television said.

President Clinton promised an "undiminished, unceasing and unrelenting" air campaign. He said it would no longer be enough for Milosevic to just stop the killing. He said "a Kosovo denied its freedom and devoid of its people is not acceptable," adding, "Our plan is to persist until we prevail."

The 13th day of NATO airstrikes aimed to cut the Yugoslav military's lines of supply and transport — roads, bridges, airports, fuel depots and command centers. NATO officials said better weather Monday allowed them to increase the number of bombing missions.

The better weather was little comfort for the tens of thousands of refugees who continued to pour out of Kosovo in a wave of displacement not seen in Europe for a half-century. The U.N. refugee agency said the number of ethnic Albanians reaching neighboring states had reached nearly 400,000.

Conditions remained dire at a makeshift refugee camp at Blace, Macedonia, on the border with Kosovo, where thousands were living in shelters of plastic and blankets in a muddy, fetid no-man's land.

"There are too many people in that small concentrated area for safety and also for sanitation and health concerns," said Chris Thomas of the American Red Cross.

The human tide has overwhelmed Albania, Macedonia and Montenegro. As of Monday, 239,000 refugees had arrived in Albania, 120,000 in Macedonia and 35,000 in Montenegro, the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees said.

At least 831,000 of the 2 million prewar Kosovo population have been displaced since the conflict began in February 1998, NATO spokesman Jamie Shea said.

NATO said relief flights carrying 200 tons of food and other emergency supplies were scheduled into Albania and Macedonia.

There was growing debate, however, over plans for NATO nations including the United States to temporarily take in about 110,000 refugees refugees. Airlifts of refugees began Monday from Macedonia, with the first flights going to Turkey and Norway, but chaos was causing delays. The United States has agreed to take 20,000.

Albania, despite its own impoverishment, said Monday it would not ask others to take in the refugees who have arrived there because dispersing them outside the region would only help further Milosevic's aims.

In Brussels, Belgium, NATO Air Commodore David Wilby said the alliance would accelerate its attacks on the Serb and Yugoslav police, tanks and soldiers accused of systematically expelling ethnic Albanians from Kosovo.

"We will focus our attention on fielded forces in Kosovo," Wilby said. "We will disrupt Serbian military operations on the ground."

Wilby said NATO jets striking at Serb forces in Kosovo during predawn raids Monday drew heavy anti-aircraft fire, but all planes returned safely.

The reported targets included the command building for the Yugoslav air force in the northwest Belgrade district of Zemun, according to Serbia's Studio B radio.

Sixty dead in Indonesian religious violence

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesian soldiers found 20 bodies Monday in houses that had been burned down by rioters, bringing the death toll from days of religious violence in the Spice Islands to 60 people.

The bodies, which witnesses said were burned beyond recognition, were found in Larat, a village on the island of Kai Besar in Maluku province, the Antara news agency said.

More than 250 people have been killed and hundreds of buildings burned in Maluku — most on the island of Ambon — since bloody clashes first erupted between Christians and Muslims in January.

Fighting broke out in the islands southeast of Ambon on Wednesday and has since left 60 dead. The military said two Christians were killed by Muslims on Sunday in Tual, near Kai Besar, 1,750 miles east of Jakarta.

More than 13,000 people have already fled their homes, seeking shelter in government and military installations in Tual.

Local military chief Lt. Col. Ery Susanto said the navy would send several warships to the region to avert an exodus of frightened residents.

Indonesia is the world's most populous Islamic country. Nearly 90 percent of its 210 million people are Muslims. However, Maluku has a large Christian population.

The violence in Maluku comes amid Indonesia's worst economic crisis in decades as well as political uncertainty that has followed the resignation of authoritarian President Suharto last May.

Ethnic and sectarian unrest has broken out in several parts of the archipelago nation. Last month more than 200 people were killed in ethnic fighting on the island of Borneo.

Fresh violence broke out Sunday and persisted Monday in Borneo's worst hit district, Sambas, Antara reported. Some 17 houses were set on fire but there was no immediate report on casualties.

"Electric competition is almost here — let's make sure it's done right."

ASSOCIATION OF ELECTRIC COMPANIES OF TEXAS, INC.

The Texas Senate has approved a plan to bring electric competition to our state, and the bill is now being debated by the Texas House.

Now it's up to our state representatives to make sure the bill will introduce competition that brings out the best in everyone, so Texans can get the very best that companies have to offer.

The final plan should mean more real choices at competitive prices for Texas consumers. It should give us the power to choose what's best for us.

That way, everybody wins.

Let's let electric companies slug it out for our business.

U.S. expansion in Kosovo raises concerns

When President Clinton went on television less than two weeks ago to announce that he was committing U.S. forces to a NATO air attack in Kosovo, we — like a number of other Americans — expressed reservations.

At that time Clinton said, "... Our troops should take part in that mission to keep the peace, but I do not intend to put our troops in Kosovo to fight a war."

On Sunday, Clinton committed 24 helicopter gunships and 2,000 troops to the effort in Kosovo. Is that not an escalation of a war? What happened to his commitment not to send our troops to fight a war?

Two weeks ago the reason we were hesitant about sending American troops to Kosovo was simple. The ongoing war in Kosovo is internal and except for being aghast at the inhumanity of the slaughter taking place there, there does not seem to be enough justification for involving the United States in a civil war.

We supported the troops being committed to action there regardless, and will continue to support them for their willingness to take on difficult and dangerous assignments. They are simply carrying out their responsibility to obey an order of their commander-in-chief, the President of the United States. They have no choice in this situation and we respect them for their loyalty and bravery in this instance.

But Clinton's decision Sunday to send 24 Apache helicopter gunships and 2,000 ground troops to Albania is an unnecessary escalation of a war that Congress and the American people appear unwilling to support. Congress debated the airstrikes for 13 hours, then passed a resolution to support the NATO campaign, another endorsing peacekeeping troops and one saying they support the military. Yet historically, Congress rarely questions a president's right to commit American troops to a wartime situation.

Even if the ground forces proved successful in stopping the slaughter now taking place there, the history of that region argues for a resumption of hostilities in future years. What will the NATO commitment have gained for the world in such an instance?

We will continue to wholeheartedly support all the Americans sent into military action in Kosovo; they are our main concern. But history asserts that even more could be at stake than the lives of the men and women now fighting in Kosovo.

It was Alexis de Tocqueville, the 19th century French historian and political philosopher, who observed, "No protracted war can fail to endanger the freedom of a democratic country."

That is well worth thinking about at this moment in our nation's history.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, April 6, the 96th day of 1999. There are 269 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 6, 1909, explorers Robert E. Peary and Matthew A. Henson became the first men to reach the North Pole. The claim, disputed by skeptics, was upheld in 1989 by the Navigation Foundation.

On this date:

In 1830, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints was organized by Joseph Smith in Fayette, N.Y.

In 1862, the Civil War Battle of Shiloh began in Tennessee.

In 1896, the first modern Olympic games formally opened in Athens, Greece.

In 1917, Congress approved a declaration of war against Germany.

In 1945, during World War II, the Japanese warship Yamato and nine other vessels sailed on a suicide mission to attack the U.S. fleet off Okinawa; the fleet was intercepted the next day.

In 1965, the United States launched the Early Bird communications satellite.

In 1971, Russian-born composer Igor Stravinsky died in New York City.

CAL THOMAS

Memo: Make love AND war... and keep it simple

People concerned about whether their government can do the equivalent of bombing and chewing gum at the same time ought to be reassured by a couple of government memos that have recently come to my attention.

Thomas

The Training and Career Development Division of the National Institutes of Health's Program Support Center is inviting employees to a May 4 "intensive three-hour workshop on a process proven to create documents that drive action and support strategic decision." The purpose of the workshop is "to learn the six steps for meeting the president's plain language requirements." Maybe the program should start with the memo.

The Six Steps to Plain Language workshop is supposed to "boost productivity for both writers and readers; develop strategic thinking; ensure customer-focused documents; and demonstrate a commitment to quality." Workshop graduates are assured they will be able to apply what they've learned immediately and so begin to carry out President Clinton's June 1, 1998, directive to simplify government language. The cost is $199. For this attendees receive "a vest pocket guide to business writing; workbook with materials addressing plain language; a laminated wallet card containing Six Steps to Reader-Centered Writing and the focus sheet; and refreshments."

You have to wonder what has taken government so long to get around to communicating more effectively with its citizens. How do average people learn to write the language of the complicated tribe? Shouldn't those who composed the indecipherable Tax Code many of us are currently wading through be required to take this workshop?

Memo 2 concerns a Conference on Gender and Human Sexuality, scheduled for April 30 at the National Press Club in Washington. This gathering is sponsored by the Office of Research on Women's Health at NIH and the Partnership for Women's Health at Columbia University. The goal of the conference, says the memo, is to "provide an appreciation of gender differences in the basic physiology of sexualresponse and in the pathophysiology of sexual dysfunction." Basically it appears to be a "how to have better sex" get-together targeted to women (hey, isn't this sexist?).

The sponsors are Procter & Gamble and Pfizer, the latter best known for its development and (with the help of Bob Dole) marketing of the male potency drug Viagra. Unlike the class on better memo writing, the better sex course can be taken for credit. Want to guess which one will have the larger enrollment?

Is it possible that talking too much about sex has created a lot of our sexual dysfunction (or, as Dole would say, "ED")? Day and night, night and day, we are drowning in sex. The mystery is gone and, with it, the interest of many. Everybody's working. Dating services in New York offer to link people up who are too busy to do it the old-fashioned way. "It's Just Lunch," one is called.

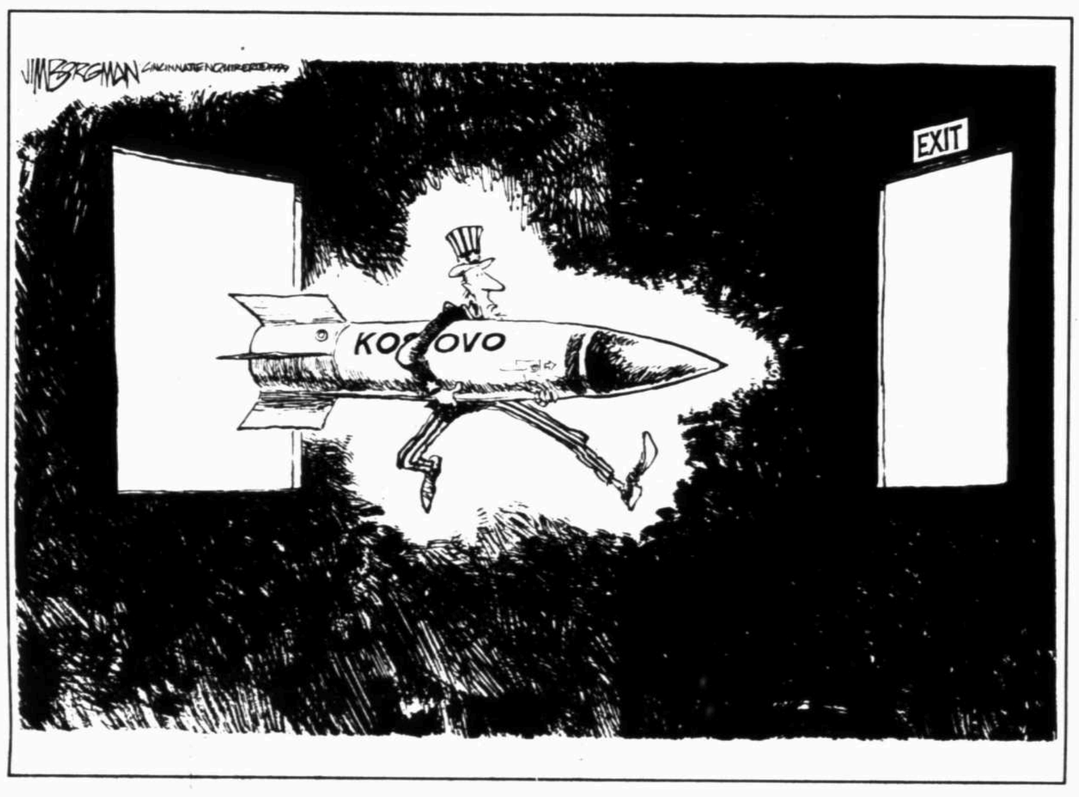

These government memos ought to be re-prioritized, as the unsimple might say. We need simpler language, but we urgently need simplified lifestyles, to make better use of the equal amount of time given to all so we can do more of what we know matters most. That would include sex. The aphorism about teaching -- those who can, do; those who can't, teach -- might be applied to sex and even memo writing. If people would write the way they talk, they might be better understood. Why make it so complicated that you need a class to be simple?

Before "alternative lifestyles" and workdays of 10 hours or more, sex seemed simpler. Now it's complicated. Maybe it's to keep the teachers employed, the government big, and the bureaucrats happy.

I'll have more in a simplified memo.

Republicans have breached constitutional duties

As an opposition party, the Republicans are about as useful as a life jacket in the Sahara desert.

Reese

In committing American forces to war against Yugoslavia, President Clinton has violated the U.S. Constitution. No language is more explicit than "Congress shall have the power ... to declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules for capture on land and water."

There is no language in the section outlining the duties of the president that can even be remotely interpreted to give him the power to involve the United States in a war. Clinton, of course, is not the first president to commit the United States to war without a declaration, but it is time to put a stop to this unconstitutional practice.

But what did the Republicans do? They acted like the lap dogs they are.

You don't "support the troops" by acting the political coward and allowing a president to commit them to battle in an unconstitutional war for no discernible benefit, let alone one that actually will damage and threaten the national interest. In such a situation, you support the troops by not allowing the chief executive to misuse them.

The purpose of American armed forces, their reason for existence, is to defend the United States and its citizens. Period. Nothing else. Not peacekeeping, not being the world's policeman, not being a bully, not digging sewers for people in Third World countries. There is an ongoing, serious misuse of American forces, and the American people had better wake up and get their heads out of that place where they don't belong.

It's obvious that many in the House and Senate have no knowledge of the Constitution and of the political theories on which it was based. Our forefathers set up the House and Senate as separate branches of government specifically so they could act as a check against the executive branch.

To hear men in these offices say "we must support the president" is to hear them admit their ignorance of their duties. Under our system of government, no member of the House or Senate has any obligation whatsoever to support any president on any issue or question. And that is by deliberate design.

They take an oath to support the Constitution, not the president. They are elected as individuals and are answerable to the people, not to any political party or its leadership. This system was designed to prevent exactly the situation we are now in where an arrogant president tosses the Constitution into the trash can and does what he pleases.

For some reason, most Americans don't seem to give a damn about the Constitution or the rule of law. I suppose between government education and television, their brains have been turned to mush. They seem unable to comprehend the basic principle that if you allow the law to be broken to punish people you don't like, the law will not be there to protect you when some future government decides it doesn't like you.

The rule of law is most simply defined as insisting that everybody, citizen and government alike, play by the rules all the time, every time.

In this particular case, the U.S. Senate is guilty of a second breach of duty. The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is simply a bureaucracy set up to administer a treaty. It has no power whatsoever to make decisions to commit the signatory countries to war. The Senate should have stepped in long before this and reminded Clinton that NATO is just a treaty, not a sovereign organization. As a matter of fact, NATO is violating its own charter by making war on Yugoslavia, not to the mention violating the U.N. Charter.

The new world order looks a lot like old anarchy.

Ignorant protestors will be to blame for World War III

I don' t like what I am seeing or hearing on television or reading in the newspapers. I don't like seeing these ignorant protesters on the streets. Protesters led by ignorant people are becoming all too prominent in world affairs.

During all of the 1930s the Japanese were bombing Chinese cities and killing Chinese people. What did we do? Nothing. In the late 1930s, Neville Chamberlain came back from Europe to London waving a piece of paper saving, "There will be peace in our time." Adolf Hitler kept up his aggression in Europe. What did we do? Nothing. On Sept. 1, 1939 Hitler attacked Poland. Only England tried to do something. Did we? No. Oh, we tried a phony lend lease deal to help when Hitler invaded Russia. Finally it all spread until Dec. 7, 1941. You know the rest.

Now people are protesting NAT0 and Clinton for action against Serbia. What they are doing I don't like either. They are just bombing military installations. In the meantime, Serbian ground forces are killing Albanians. Are we trying to stop them by bombing military installations? Well, we are not succeeding.

Slobodan Milosevic is a Communist. Our officials, especially in the State Department, seem to think we are reducing his ability to defend his Communist and murderous actions. If anyone thinks they are going to force him into a diplomatic peace treaty they are wrong. Even if they did he would not keep it. The Serbs have been doing this for over 600 years. It is they who attacked the Turkish Muslems over six centuries ago, not the other way around as the Dallas Morning News reported in an article. Yes, the Serbs lost. And it was in Kosovo.

Our officials do not seem to know what our objectives are. We should be using fighter planes to attack those ground forces. They are all over Kosovo with tanks in the field. We should be attacking them and attempting to destroy them rather than continue to bomb military installations.

Now these ignorant protesters. Well you just keep right on and it will be you who will get us into a war. Some day there will be World War III, and you ignorant protesters will bring it.

Reporter-Telegram readers need to support HB 1624

I had the opportunity to witness the Texas House Energy Committee hearing on HB 1624 (Enhanced Recovery Unitization) last Tuesday in Austin. In short, it was more like a "sideshow" at times and much of the testimony by the opposition to the bill was based on historical principle instead of the state's responsibility of protecting and conserving Texas' natural resources and the rights of "majority rule." The Enhanced Recovery Unitization bill is supported by all regional oil and gas associations and the states' two major oil and gas associations, the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association and the Texas Oil and Gas Association. The local Permian Basin Petroleum Association Board of Directors has unanimously approved unitization and in a survey of its membership, there were few objections to the proposal.

The Permian Basin oil industry has changed in the past several decades. Today's oil royalty and mineral interest owner's rights can invoke virtually hundreds of parties having part ownership in a single or multiple oil lease. Without Enhanced Recovery Unitization, any single owner can exercise his right to nonparticipation in any unit formed for the expansion of oil recovery and thereby, prevent or hold up such expansion efforts that have been approved by the ownership majority.

I recognize that there are valid concerns by those opposed to HB 1624, but I can also say without hesitation or reservation, the unitization bill as written, protects both majority and minority rights. It is fair and just and it is solvent to petroleum industry expansion and enhancement in the Permian Basin.

This is an issue in which the Midland Reporter-Telegram readers can be of assistance by writing a short note of support to the Energy committee chairman, the Honorable Ron Lewis, at P. O. Box 2910, Austin, Texas 78768-2910 and to their respective state representatives.

These 'out-of-golfers' won't return to Andrews course

Recently on a golfing adventure our foursome traveled to the Andrews County Golf Course. Upon arrival we were informed that the greens fee for "out-of-county" residents had been raised from $16 to $25. I inquired as to the reason why and was told there were too many golfers from out of town coming to play.

I wonder how the Andrews residents would like it if Midland charged an extra 25 percent on goods purchased by "out-of-towners." But this is one group of "out-of-towners" who won't be visiting or spending any more money in Andrews.

High school dropout pleads guilty to murder in Shepard slaying

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — One of two men charged in the killing of gay college student Matthew Shepard pleaded guilty Monday to murder, admitting he tied the bleeding young man to a wooden fence and left him for dead on the prairie.

Russell Henderson, a 21-year-old high school dropout and roofer, avoided a trial and a possible death sentence with his plea.

He was sentenced to two consecutive life terms and will not be eligible for parole. His only hope for release is a pardon.

Judy Shepard cried at the courtroom podium while talking about her son, then turned to Henderson: "I hope you never experience another day or night without experiencing the terror, humiliation, the hopelessness and helplessness that my son felt that night."

Authorities said Henderson and Aaron McKinney, 21, posed as homosexuals and lured the 5-foot-2, 105-pound Shepard out of a bar last October, kidnapped and pistol-whipped him and left him tied to a fence in the cold. The 21-year-old University of Wyoming student died five days later at a hospital.

The crime led to demands for stronger hate-crime laws around the country.

Although he pleaded guilty to felony murder and kidnapping, Henderson said his friend and co-defendant delivered the fatal blows.

He matter-of-factly recounted the grisly beating and his attempts to cover up his role, then asked forgiveness from his and Shepard's families.

"There is not a moment that goes by that I don't see what happened that night," he said. "I hope one day you will be able to find it in your heart to forgive me."

Henderson said he tried to stop the beating, but McKinney struck him with a gun when he spoke up. "Matthew looked really bad, so I told (McKinney) to stop, he's had enough," Henderson said.

Judge Jeffrey Donnell told Henderson he did not believe he was remorseful.

"The pain you have caused here, Mr. Henderson, will never go away. Never," Donnell said.

McKinney will be tried in August on first-degree murder, kidnapping and aggravated robbery charges. He could be sentenced to death.

There had been speculation that if Henderson pleaded guilty, he would end up testifying against his friend and co-defendant, but officials would not confirm that will happen.

Prosecutor Cal Rerucha said he believed it was appropriate to offer a plea agreement to Henderson.

"It is my hope that Mr. Henderson will die in the Wyoming state penitentiary and the only time he leaves the Wyoming state pententiary is when they bury him," he said.

Defense attorney Wyatt Skaggs denied that Shepard was targeted because he was gay. "This crime has never been a hate crime," he said.

Chasity Pasley, Henderson's girlfriend, pleaded guilty in December to accessory after the fact, admitting she helped hide Henderson's clothing, which was covered with Shepard's blood.

McKinney's girlfriend, Kristen Price, is scheduled to stand trial in May on an accessory charge.

Outside the courthouse Monday, a dozen young people dressed as angels, with white sheets for wings, tried to block from view an anti-gay group that was demonstrating.

The angels stood silently, but inside their human wall about a dozen anti-gay demonstrators from Kansas shouted slogans and waved signs, including one that said "God Hates Fags."

"These ... creatures are sending this nation to hell in a handbasket," said the Rev. Fred Phelps of Westboro Baptist Church. Phelps and members of his church picketed Shepard's funeral in Casper with anti-gay signs.

Bill would include sexual orientation in hate crimes statute

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton plans to endorse a bill Tuesday that would expand federal hate crime laws to include offenses based on sexual orientation, White House officials said.

Congress failed to act on similar legislation last year.

Clinton also will direct that colleges be required to report hate crimes annually and announce a public-private partnership designed to educate middle school students against intolerance.

The partnership will involve AT&T, Court TV, Cable in the Classroom and the National Middle Schools Association working with the Justice and Education departments to develop curricula to combat intolerance.

"The president is signing this directive to increase public awareness and information about hate crimes among young people and doing whatever he can in his power to advance this cause while we wait for Congress to act," said Bruce Reed, the White House director of public policy.

Clinton was announcing the initiatives with religious, education and law enforcement leaders at a Roosevelt Room ceremony Tuesday, White House officials said.

The idea for the middle schools program grew out of a White House conference on hate crimes that generated a lot of anecdotal information about ethnic and racial insensitivities among school children, officials said.

The aim, said a White House official who spoke on condition of anonymity, is to "nip intolerance in the bud" by educating children about its consequences.

In addition, Clinton will direct the Justice and Education departments to require that college campuses provide specific information about hate crimes in the campus crime statistics they provide to law enforcement each year.

The information will be used to generate hard data on how crimes of violence relate to intolerance on college campuses, the official said.

Justices expand police power to search car passengers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Passengers' personal belongings are fair game when police officers search a car for criminal evidence against the driver, the Supreme Court ruled Monday.

The 6-3 decision reinstated a Wyoming drug conviction and expanded the already considerable police power to stop and search vehicles without a court warrant. Police officials praised the ruling, but defense lawyers condemned it.

"Officers must be free of unreasonable, confusing and unworkable restrictions on what may be searched," said Robert Scully of the National Association of Police Organizations. He thanked the court for "giving officers the tools they need to do their jobs."

But Lisa Kemler of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyer called the decision "an abomination," adding: "You get in a car and, as a passenger, you basically have no rights. Almost anything goes, as long as police can come up with some reason to say they expected to find evidence of a crime."

Andrew Fine of the Legal Aid Society in New York said the ruling wrongly "introduces an element of guilt by association."

The Constitution's Fourth Amendment, which protects against unreasonable police searches and seizures, generally requires police to obtain court warrants. Since 1925, the Supreme Court has carved out numerous exceptions when police targets are in vehicles.

In a key 1996 ruling, the justices said police can stop motorists for routine traffic violations such as a faulty brake light even if the officers really want to search for illegal drugs. Monday's ruling means officers who participate in such stops can search all containers in the car if something gives them reason to believe they will find drugs.

The court's latest ruling on privacy rights stems from a routine traffic stop, a situation that arises countless times daily across the nation.

A car driven by David Young was stopped for speeding on Interstate 25 in Natrona County, Wyo., in the early morning hours of July 23, 1995. After a Highway Patrol officer saw a hypodermic syringe in Young's pocket, Young acknowledged that he had used it to take drugs.

During the ensuing search, two other officers asked the car's two female passengers to get out of the car. One of them, Sandra Houghton, left her purse on the car's back seat. Inside it, police found drug paraphernalia and liquid methamphetamine.

She was convicted on a felony charge but appealed.

The Wyoming Supreme Court threw out her conviction last year, ruling that police were justified only in searching the car for drugs Young may have had with him — and therefore could not search Houghton's purse.

Writing for the nation's highest court, Justice Antonin Scalia said the Wyoming court was wrong.

"Effective law enforcement would be appreciably impaired without the ability to search a passenger's personal belongings when there is reason to believe contraband or evidence of criminal wrongdoing is hidden in the car," Scalia said.

"The sensible rule ... is that such a package may be searched, whether or not its owner is present as a passenger or otherwise, because it may contain the contraband that the officer has reason to believe is in the car," Scalia said.

He added that car passengers "will often be engaged in a common enterprise with the driver and have the same interest in concealing the fruits or the evidence of their wrongdoing."

The decision, however, did not give police the authority to pat down or search the pockets of a passenger when looking for evidence linked to the driver. Such tactics were banned by a 1948 Supreme Court ruling.

Joining Scalia in reinstating Houghton's conviction were Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Justices Sandra Day O'Connor, Anthony M. Kennedy, Clarence Thomas and Stephen G. Breyer.

In dissent, Justice John Paul Stevens wrote that the court had created "a new rule" that would let police search even a taxi passenger's briefcase if they had reason to believe the driver had a syringe somewhere in his vehicle.

Joining him in dissent were Justices David H. Souter and Ruth Bader Ginsburg.

USDA says E. coli outbreak linked to Minnesota plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — An E. coli outbreak that sickened at least six people visiting a Maine ski resort has been traced to contaminated ground beef produced at a Minnesota meat processing plant, authorities said Monday.

"We have genetic fingerprints that link E. coli 0157: H7 in samples of the meat from Rochester Meats to the patients in Maine who have become ill," said Beth Gaston, spokesman for the Agriculture Department's food safety and inspection office.

"We're looking into whether or not other states may be involved as well," said Tom Skinner, a spokesman for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Rochester Meats Inc., of Rochester, Minn., last week recalled 170,780 pounds of product — the equivalent of one day's production. The company supplies meat for restaurants and institutions across the United States.

Company officials said Monday they were unaware of any link between their product and illnesses.

"USDA has not confirmed that with us," said Rochester Meats spokeswoman Joanne Randen.

The recalled products include frozen ground beef patties, ground chuck patties, chopped beefsteak, beef patties, meat for chili, beef patty mix and pure beef bulk.

Manslaughter trial commences

By Rick López
Staff Writer

Attorneys waived their right to make opening arguments Monday in the manslaughter trial of Pablo Gabriel Lopez, 21.

The defendant's charges stem from an Aug. 30 car accident that killed Clemencia Lago, a 59-year-old economist visiting West Texas from Venezuela. She suffered a broken skull from the accident and died at a local hospital several months later.

Lopez is also being tried on two counts of aggravated assault stemming from serious injuries sustained by two other accident victims: Ms. Lago's sister, Luisa Searles, 63, and her niece, Cecilia Leonard, 43.

Midland police traffic officers theorize that Lopez ran a red light on the northbound Loop 250 service lane that intersects with Midland Drive.

Officials said Lopez's pickup was westbound on the north Loop 250 service road when he reportedly disregarded a stop light and hit broadside a beige sedan, driven by Ms. Searles of Odessa.

With force of impact, the sedan, which was northbound on Midland Drive, spun around several times. Ms. Lago was ejected from the back seat of the car onto the street. She was not wearing a seat belt.

Ms. Lago's body, which landed a few feet from the vehicle, was lodged between the two front tires of a maroon sport utility vehicle in the opposite lane.

Ms. Leonard, the front seat passenger, sustained head and shoulder injuries after the passenger side door was crushed inward — pinning her against the dashboard.

Ms. Searles was treated and released from the hospital, where she was treated for minor injuries.

Ms. Searles was on the way back from Midland International Airport. She had picked up Ms. Lago, who had just arrived on a flight from Caracas, Venezuela, officials have said.

The wreck also caused five cars to pile up just north of Hollywood Video on Loop 250.

Lopez was charged with manslaughter two days after the accident and indicted last fall. Court records indicate that he is already serving a 10-year prison sentence for violating probation conditions from an unrelated aggravated assault conviction.

The trial will continue this week in the 238th District Court of Judge John Hyde. Prosecutors assigned to the case are David Watson and Ralph Petty. Thomas Hirsch is representing Lopez.

If convicted, Lopez faces up to 20 years in prison.

P-51 Mustang fighters gather during stopover

Sensuous. Purity of line. Sweetheart of an aeroplane. Fast and furious.

That's the P-51 Mustang, the premier single-engine fighter and bomber-escort airplane to emerge from World War II, according to many pilots and aviation historians.

"The Mustang is the best airplane in the world to fly," asserted John Bagley, an Idaho contractor who constructs buildings to house potatoes.

The P-51 fancier, accompanied by his mechanic, Todd Therp, in the jump seat, flew the 1944-made North American Aviation Inc. airplane to Midland International Airport en route to Florida for a P-51 pilots convention. The craft, nicknamed "Ole Yeller," was formerly owned by aerobatic pilot, Bob Hoover.

Bagley was one of about a dozen Mustang pilots to refuel their aircraft at Midland in a cross-country flight to the "Gathering of Mustangs and Legends" aviation event sponsored by the Mustang Operations and Preservation Society at Kissimmee Municipal Airport near Orlando.

Among the P-51 pilots that are to be honored there is Hoover, who flew the P-51 over Europe with the U.S. Army Air Forces during World War II and who became a post-war aerobatic pilot.

"I'm the luckiest guy in the world," Bagley said of his privilege to fly and to own "Ole Yeller."

Of "all the Mustangs in the world, I fly Bob Hoover's. Bob Hoover is the best 'stick' (stick-and-rudder pilot) who ever flew," Bagley said. "There isn't any better than Hoover."

The "jet jockey" today are computer operators," Bagley figured. "They are not 'sticks'," such as the pilots "back in the day when people flew airplanes" in basic "stick-and-rudder" flying.

The Mustang is "as sweet as it can be," Bagley said.

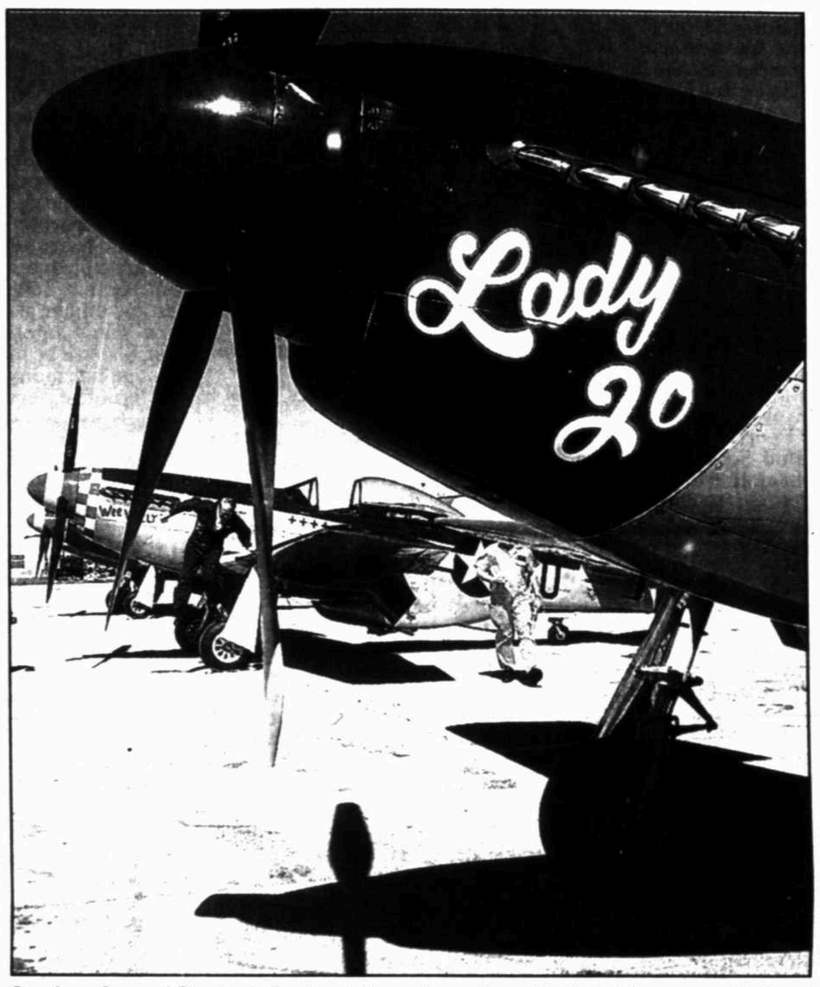

The Smithsonian Institution's The National Air and Space Museum illustrated book on aviation calls the P-51 "America's most outstanding fighter" of the 1939-1945 World War II era.

"There isn't any better airplane to fly, (none) sweeter to fly," said Bagley, who quickly adjusted his perception. "You don't fly a Mustang. You wear a Mustang. You just put it on. The Mustang becomes a literal extension of you. It is the sweetest thing to fly in the world. You just think it, and it's happening."

The P-51's origin came about in 1940 after Great Britain had asked North American Aviation to build the Curtiss P-40 fighter under license for the Royal Air Force to add to the Spitfires and the Hurricanes defending Britain from the German's Luftwaffe.

(The P-40 was variously called the Tomahawk and Kittyhawk, particularly by the British, and the Warhawk.)

Instead, North American Aviation's president, J.H. "Dutch" Kindelberger, said that his company could design and build a superior fighter using the P-40's 12-cylinder Allison V-1710 engine. The P-51 prototype was designed and built in 117 days.

Stephen Grey of Duxford, England, hops down from his P-51 Mustang at Midland International Airport Monday. About a dozen of the World War II aircraft landed in Midland for a refueling stop en route from California to Florida.

Later in war, the P-51's performance reached its optimum when the 12-cylinder British Rolls-Royce Merlin V-1650 engine replaced the Allison engine and gave the Mustang more power, speed, maneuverability and altitude.

Bagley's P-51 is powered by the Rolls-Royce Merlin engine, which develops about 1,600 horsepower, according to his mechanic, Therp, who said that he likes everything about the Mustang.

"I've got the honor of turning wrenches on this thing," he said. "I got the chance to work on it. I have to pinch myself every now and then."

Of the almost 16,000 P-51s built during the war, about half of them were the P-51D model, such as "Ole Yeller." Today there are fewer than 300 P-51s in existence, Bagley said.

"There ain't' enough money to buy this airplane from me," Bagley said. "When I'm through with his airplane, I'd like to see it hung in a museum in honor of Bob Hoover."

Confederate Air Force Col. W.F. "Bill" Stepp, a World War II veteran who piloted the P-51 out of England, flew many missions in the Mustang in escorting bombers over Europe.

Girl Scouts 'Women of Distinction' recognized

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Whether involved in scouting as girls or as adults, six Midland women say that involvement has had a positive influence on their lives.

These Midlanders were recently honored as "Women of Distinction" by the Permian Basin Girl Scout Council.

"We've had the great fortune to have a lot of nominations," said Executive Director Susan Rutherford, who said nominations are requested each fall. "The pool is building and the decisions are getting harder to make."

The council since 1992 has recognized women for their community service, their support of Girl Scouts and their service as role models for young women.

The purpose of the event is two-fold, she said.

"We started with the goal of honoring women with Girl Scouts in their background and show appreciation for the work they've done and the role models they represent. The second goal is to provide scholarships for girls and we use the funds raised at the 'Women of Distinction Scholarship Banquet' to help girls further their goals."

The three scholarship winners this year are Reagan Viney of Midland, the Janice Eleanor Hill Matthews Gold Award; Liberty Lentz of Kermit, the Mary Wynn Hinkle Gold Award; and Amanda Havens, Alpine, the Betty Jo Greene Morgan Graduating Senior Scholarship.

"The girls who attend the banquet are overwhelmed by what scouting means to peoples' lives. They may think scouting stops after high school, and they see that it continues. And the girls who receive the scholarships are role models for the younger girls," Ms. Rutherford said.

As she prepared to recognize the 1999 honorees, she said, "I was struck by the commonality of the women. We had three honorees as presidents of the chamber of commerce. You stand taller when you read their credentials and realize they've been Girl Scouts or supported the programs."

Among the three chamber presidents was Linda Foster, area manager with Southwestern Bell and current president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Growing up outside Houston, she said, she joined a Brownie troop but there was no Girl Scout organization for older girls.

"I think Girl Scouts is so important," she said. "If I can be a small example to young women as they grow up, I've made a contribution."

She said her mother served as her role model.

"Though she never worked outside of the home, she was so encouraging to me and my friends to be all that we could and that we could do whatever we wanted to do. I try to carry on that tradition. I never had daughters, but I try to pass on to my guys that women can do anything."

TEEN BEAT

Daylight-saving time marked by dark circles under eyes

By James Hershberger

Every year, Americans in certain parts of the country struggle with self-inflicted torture as they "spring forward" to lose an hour of sleep.

Hershberger

Daylight-saving time is one of the worst-observed events, along with St. Patrick's Day (I'm still sore from this year's pinching.).

The second half of daylight-saving time, or "falling back," to standard time, is not a bad deal. In fact, moving the clocks back an hour is an event I could enjoy once a week, like Christmas. But when you have to pay that hour back, it's fatigue beyond imagination.

Just as you'd guess, a bad event has a bad reason for being. Apparently, people like to eat dinner around 6 p.m. In winter months, it is dark outside, making barbecuing difficult for dinner. Charcoal companies across the land decided that it wouldn't be a bad idea to change time so it would be light outside around 6 p.m. and people could barbecue without flashlights.

Although the United States adopted daylight-saving time in 1918 and repealed it the next year, the official dates were set in 1967. Additional daylight for recreation was the stated reason and the charcoal company lobbyists rejoiced.

Even if you don't own a calendar, you can tell when a special occasion is on the way. When Halloween is approaching, paper skeletons greet you at the front door. Around Valentine's Day, hearts decorate the town. When daylight-saving time is around the corner, dark circles suddenly appear under each eye and everyone is a little less alert. At times, whole class periods go by with students slipping in and out of consciousness.

This can cause confusion when you begin to mix your facts. Personally, I have never fallen victim to this syndrome. I can confidently say that John Wilkes Booth assassinated Franz Ferdinand beginning the Korean War between the Axis and Allied powers.

As with all drowsiness spells, fatigue disappears the moment you get home. You know how it is. You trudge through the school halls, slapping yourself to stay awake. You get home, jump in bed, only to realize you are not tired. In fact, you are so awake you could run a marathon, or watch a movie, or do just about anything. Your mother suggests you begin your geometry homework and you suddenly begin to feel very tired again.

How can we revolutionize something as painful as "springing back?"

For openers, the hour should not be sacrificed during sleep on a Sunday. Instead, Monday should be the chosen day because it is the most detested day of the week.

"Old time" would be in effect until 9 a.m. Then, it would suddenly be 10 a.m. Thus, whatever was to happen between 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. would cease to exist. In my case, I would miss history class.

Of course, you wouldn't be responsible for anything that was to happen in that 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. hour because it never existed. If you had a boring staff meeting each Monday that lasted forever, you would have an hour relief. If you worked on a time clock, you would clock out after eight hours, even though you only worked seven hours.

HERSHBERGER: 'Springing forward' on a Monday is one idea to skip unwanted hours

From 1B

Of course, the lost hour is up for negotiation. Some people may want to change the clocks at 11 a.m. so they could go to lunch on "the new time."

How much work is really done anyway during that hour you are waiting for lunch? And, if your lunch was at 11 a.m., how many of us can't spare one meal?

Another possible time is 2:30 p.m. Energy levels, as well as production, are dropping. Suddenly, it's 3:30 p.m. and time to close the textbooks. Teachers and students alike would love losing an hour at 2:30 p.m. For the rest of the world, nothing could pep up an afternoon like finding out the clock has skipped ahead an hour.

Who decided we would spring forward at 2 a.m. on a Sunday? Was it planned so no one would notice? I venture to say most people notice, and the result is negative, evidenced by ceaseless yawning.

The masterful plan of "springing forward" between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. on a Monday will never fly. After all, it would take an act of Congress.

Deadline for boll weevil eradication program vote nears

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Midland-area cotton farmers and farmland owners who are voting in the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation referendum must have their ballots postmarked by Thursday to be valid.

The ballots were issued in mid-March.

Two-thirds, or 66.7 percent, of the cotton producers and landowners who were to receive the 3,424 ballots in the six-county Permian Basin Boll Weevil Eradication Zone must approve the program for it to be adopted in the region.

"It is important for the producers in the Permian Basin," said Osama El-Lissy, who is program director of the Abilene-based foundation. "For the eradication program to succeed in Texas, the entire state will have to be eradicated" of cotton's perennial and devastating pest.

In the Southeastern United States, the boll weevil was purged from Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama, El-Lissy said. The eradication program there was started in Virginia and was carried out "in increments across the Southeastern part of the United States. And now it is eradicated all the way through Alabama."

Texas, which in the 1990s annually has harvested from 3.2 million to 5 million bales of cotton valued upward to $1.6 billion in a single year, is the nation's most prolific cotton-producing state. In the 1994 season, according to the Texas Almanac, Texas farmers produced more than 4.9 million bales valued at more than $1.6 billion. The 5 million bales harvested in 1993 were valued at $1.3 billion. Cotton prices fluctuate from year to year depending on the supply and demand.

And West Texas — including the Amarillo, Abilene, Big Spring, Lamesa, Lubbock, Midland, St. Lawrence, Seminole and Stanton areas — is the largest cotton-producing region in Texas.

The boll weevil has devastated thousands of cotton acreage in the East Texas blackland region where the pest is in particularly high numbers, El-Lissy said.

There are approximately 600,000-cotton acres in the six-county Permian Basin Boll Zone, which is one of 13 zones is Texas. The counties are Dawson (Lamesa), Borden (Gail), Martin (Stanton), Howard (Big Spring), Ector (Odessa) and Midland (Midland).

For the Permian Basin Zone, the four-year eradication program by aerial spraying would be followed by an optional continuing maintenance to ensure demise of the boll-damaging weevil.

The per-acre cost of the program would be $6 on dryland and $12 on irrigated farmland for each of 10-to-15 years to pay off the cost, which is estimated at $95 per acre, or about $50 million for the estimated 600,000 acres of cotton in the zone's six counties.

Eddy Herm, an Ackerly-area cotton farmer who is chairman of the Permian Basin Zone, earlier noted that the "boll weevil is spreading out and increasing in numbers" where the intensive eradication program is not in place.

Active boll-weevil eradication programs already are in effect in the Rolling Plains Central Zone, which includes the Abilene-Sweetwater-Snyder area; the Southern Rolling Plains Zone, which takes in the San Angelo-Ballinger area, and the South Texas-Winter Garden Zone, which includes the San Antonio and Corpus Christi areas.

More recently, the eradication program has been approved by 79 percent of the voting farmers and landowners in the Western High Plains in the Seminole area and by 75 percent of the voters in the Northwest Plains in the Hereford area of the Panhandle.

But the vote failed in the Lubbock area of the Southern High Plains-Caprock by garnering only 63 percent of the required 66.7 percent vote.

The boll-weevil eradication concept was approved by farmers in the Southern Blackland Zone, which ranges from Central Texas to the Louisiana border. But farmers there did not approve funding for the program, which for them would have a per-year cost $16.50 per acre for dryland cotton and $27 per acre for irrigated cotton. The cost is higher there because of the intensity of the boll weevil's infestation and the higher cost of spraying in the dense woody areas. Farmers there are hoping for government funds to cut into their cost of spraying, El-Lissy said.

Spraying on the flatland plains is cheaper than spraying in woody areas where dustcroppers have to "dodge trees and powerlines" with much frequency, said a foundation representative.

In casting their votes on the eradication program, farmers and landowners also are voting for a Permian Basin Zone candidate to the foundation board. The candidate is James Brown, a Midlander who farms in Dawson County and who currently serves on the board.

Adoption of the program is being considered in three zones: the Permian Basin; the Northern Rolling Plains, which includes the Wichita Falls-Childress area, and the El Paso-Trans Pecos area.

Midland cotton farmer Brian Chandler, who has opposed the program, said that in Midland County, farmers "really don't have a boll-weevil problem." Chandler, 40, said that since his boyhood, "We've had a few boll weevils. Once in a while, they might give you trouble. They never give you trouble on dryland. Nearly all I farm is dryland, anyhow."

But Chandler said that much of his opposition is economic-based.

"This stripper-cotton in Texas is going to sell from 40 to 45 cents (per pound) next fall if we make a crop," said Chandler, who noted that the break-even price is about 70 cents per pound. "We can't afford (the eradication expense)."

The St. Lawrence cotton-growing zone, which has irrigated farmland, has been fighting the boll-weevil problem for years.

"They have always had their boll-weevil eradication process," Chandler said.

Of the approximately 600,000 cotton acres in the Permian Basin Zone, the per-county acreage listed by county and county seat follows: Dawson (Lamesa), 250,000 acres; Martin (Stanton), 135,000 acres; Howard (Big Spring), 120,000 acres; Midland (Midland), 28,000 acres; Borden (Gail), 26,000 acres, and Ector (Odessa), fewer than 100 acres.

POLICE REPORTS

Suspicious death

MONAHANS — Police in Monahans are waiting to receive an autopsy report from a San Antonio pathologist to proceed with a suspicious death investigation.

Capt. David Watts said Monahans Police Department officers found a body Sunday when responding to a residential burglary in the 400 block of South Franklin Street. There appears to be signs of "foul play," though officers could not find a weapon at the scene.

Watts said he couldn't identify the victim because the family has not been contacted.

If the death is ruled as a homicide, then it will be the first reported to Ward County authorities in two years, Watts said.

Injured girl

Eleven-year-old Cassie Howard, who suffered head injuries Thursday night when she was hit by a vehicle outside Christensen Stadium, remains in serious condition at Memorial Medical Center and Hospital.

Her mother, Sylvia Howard, said Cassie has been taken off all pain medication and life support as of Monday and is struggling on her own.

She's been able to open her eyes once in a while, but not much more, Ms. Howard said.

"We're playing the waiting game right now to see if her little system can handle it. It's looking positive."

Cassie was struck by a car when crossing a street outside Christensen Stadium to get to her parent's car. Police did not cite the driver.

SCOUTS: Honoree says that involvement teaches leadership skills

From 1B

When told she was being recognized, she said she was "totally honored, especially to be in the same company as Joan Baskin, Deana Savage and Iris Foster."

Iris Foster with Samaritan Counseling Center said her daughter was her tie to Girl Scouts. She was never a Girl Scout, she said, but served as a leader for her daughter.

"It was a fun experience watching the girls develop friendships and team-building skills. We'd do projects, like we did a tree for the Festival of Trees. One year we studied women in history and we'd let whoever was 'refreshment mom' that week and her daughter do the program. We had local figures as well as historical ones. That helped the girls realize not all heroines are dead. I loved that year — it focused on women and the fact we can do anything, from going up in space to digging ditches here on Earth."

She said her sister, an engineer at Hewlett Packard, credits Girl Scouts with teaching her she could accomplish anything and allowing her to "make a name for herself in a male-dominated industry."

The three scholarship recipients should be praised, she said, for continuing in scouting even though it's not considered 'cool' in high school.

"Even though scouts is not the 'in' thing, they don't care; they said they believed in the mission and stuck with it. I think they'll be the ones who won't flounder in their lives."

Ms. Foster also supports any organization that promotes volunteerism because she believes it's important to give back to the community, something she wants to teach her daughter.

"I want her to be aware people are suffering and there are ways the fortunate can help, like Girl Scouts, the food bank, or volunteering at the hospital. It's incumbent on all of us to give of ourselves financially, to give of our time and of our talents."

Like Linda Foster, longtime community volunteer Elsie Hugly didn't have an opportunity to join Girl Scouts while growing up in a small Nebraska town. And like Iris Foster, she got involved with the organization through her four daughters, three of whom grew up to be accountants and the fourth a physical therapist.

From troop leader to cookie chairman to troop organizer, she was active in Girl Scouts in Corpus Christi and in Tyler before the family moved to Midland.

Honored by the Girl Scout Council for her community activism, Ms. Hugly's interests range from the Midland Rape Crisis Center to the American Red Cross, where she began teaching first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation in Corpus Christi, from the Children's Advocacy Center to Midland County Housing Authority, the hospital auxiliary and the Petroleum Museum.

She said she believes scouting is a positive influence and reinforces what her father taught her.

"My father always said there was no reason I couldn't to things just because I was a girl," she recalled.

Alice Park, whose family has lived in Midland since 1941, said she felt very honored to be recognized by the council, which she calls a "wholesome organization."

Active in such organizations as the Petroleum Museum, Daughters of the American Revolution, Midland Society of University Women and politics, she was active in Girl Scouts with her two daughters.

"My daughters learned to get along with others, they learned about sports and camping. It's wholesome; they learn to be leaders. I tried to set an example for my daughters and I believe scouts shows they care about girls."

One daughter is now a teacher at California State University and the other lives in Santa Fe.

She said her whole family has been active in the community because they wanted to give back to the community.

"We've lived here since 1941 and we love Midland and the people."

In addition to the six Midland women honored, other honorees were Midland native and Texas First lady Laura Bush; Donna Adams, Fort Davis; Iris Correa, Alma Guerrero, Margaret E. Kerley, Carolyn Medlock and Mary Kaye Moore, Odessa; Janet Frizzell Kopec, Garland; Joan Lamkin, Marathon; Mary Lucille Kiser Laquey, McCamey; Debra Thomas, Pecos; and Brooke M. Wiseman of Chicago, former executive director of the Permian Basin council.

Lawsuit for Selena's bus is unresolved

HARLINGEN, (AP) — The father of slain Tejano star Selena has returned the singer's tour bus to two investors who sued him, but the lawsuit remains unresolved, the investors' attorney said Monday.

Julio Giraldo and Armando Cardenas Jr. filed a lawsuit in Corpus Christi last October against Selena's father, Abraham Quintanilla and his entertainment company Q Productions, claiming they were wrongfully keeping the bus.

Last week, Quintanilla turned the 1964 Silver Eagle bus over to Cardenas, fulfilling a court order. Cardenas owns Latino Sound Network in Corpus Christi and bought the bus in 1995 hoping to use it for promotions.

"My client has been trying to get his bus back for almost 21/2 years so we consider this an accomplishment," said Cardenas and Giraldo's attorney, Jerry J. Trevino. "He now wants to conduct whatever business venture he had in mind with it since it is rightfully his."

Although the bus has been returned to the investors, the men are still seeking unspecified damages from Quintanilla for the money they lost during the time they could not use the bus, Trevino said.

"The lawsuit is still ongoing," he said.

The tangled tour bus tale started when Giraldo and Cardenas bought the bus shortly after Selena Quintanilla-Perez was shot and killed by the former president of her fan club in March 1995.

The investors later leased the bus to filmmakers for use in the movie "Selena," from April to November 1996, but it was never returned because of a dispute over repairs.

The makers of the film said they believed the bus was in good working order when they leased it, but ended up spending about $12,000 in repairs.

The filmmakers tried to bill Cardenas and Giraldo, who refused because they said the bus was roadworthy when they leased it. The bus was put up for public auction under a "mechanic's lien" provision of Texas law.

Quintanilla bought the bus back, for about the cost of the repairs, but Quintanilla's attorney said shortly after the lawsuit was filed that Quintanilla was willing to return the bus.

Darrell Barger, the attorney representing Quintanilla and Q Productions, did not return a phone call from The Associated Press Monday, but told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times last week that the bus has sentimental value for Quintanilla and he regrets selling it to someone who has no feelings for his daughter.

"He doesn't want people making money off of Selena's name," Barger told the newspaper.

Cardenas has said he'd like to transform the bus into a traveling museum.

The lawsuit was recently transferred to Nueces County's 347th state District court and a trial date is pending, Trevino said.

PLANES: P-40 was Cadillac of fighter airplanes

From 1B

"I spent most of my tour between 30,000 and 33,000 feet," recalled Stepp. "It's something," he said of the P-51. "It's just unforgiving when you get close to the ground. You had better be on top of it. Other than that, you're fine. We didn't 'prang' (crash) many of them."

The Mustang was rated at 439 miles per hour above 25,000 feet, Stepp said. "I've had it clocked over 600 (mph) in a dive."

Robert Bell, who piloted the P-40 in World War II and the P-51 in the post-war years, said that piloting the Mustang is "like flying a Cadillac. It's smooth. It's a beautiful airplane."

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll have: 5-Dymanic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, April 6, 1999:
Expect excitement and the unexpected, both within and around you. Others could react strongly to you, not always understanding where this energized personality is coming from. Avoid worrying about what you can't change, and use good sense with what you can. Handle finances meticulously. Don't mix friendship and money, no matter how good it feels. If you are single, a relationship dazzles. Be open to different types of personalities; you'll enjoy the doors that open when you embrace a fresh lifestyle. If attached, it might be hard to agree on finances, goals and desires. Allow acceptance and love to flow. SAGITTARIUS presents a different point of view.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Listen carefully. Don't take another's ideas personally. You are challenged and you may not completely grasp what is going on. Be sensitive to alternatives and different ideas. Reflect on what could be happening. Confusion marks travel and calls. Tonight: Enjoy a movie.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Listen to what others say, especially regarding a work-related matter. You might not understand a boss' intentions. Don't assume that you are hearing correctly or are integrating the message as it was meant to be understood. Attaining clarity could be hard right now. Tonight: Off with a friend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ What started as a good intention easily becomes convoluted. Another clearly does not get your message, or it could be that you are receiving his negatively. Take an overview. Don't let confusion at work mar your productivity. Do what is mandatory. Tonight: Let another decide.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Dig into work; allow friends and co-workers the luxury of uproar. You can't make a sound decision about what to do. Listen carefully to another's suggestion; you might not totally agree, but there is common ground. Tomorrow will be better! Tonight: Soak stress away in a hot bath.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Your imagination flounders in the face of another's logic and work. Confusion marks interactions with partners. Another clearly disagrees with you financially. Think about what is being said. Make no decisions presently, just evaluate. In the long run, this works. Tonight: Center stage.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ Pressure stems from a lack of information. You aren't getting the whole story. Think about what you've been expecting from a co-worker; has he disappointed you? Recognize that you might not be realistic. Build security through hard work and clear thinking. Tonight: Directly home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Talks could be frustrating. You are just too exhausted to comprehend much, today. You might question another's ideas or just not communicate effectively with him. Postpone work and decisions. You might find that you have to do everything all over again. Tonight: Visit with a favorite friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Be careful about spending. You could go overboard. You might have a tendency to be confused about some basics. Think about decisions, especially involving a child or loved one. Be realistic about your limits. You cannot make everyone happy all the time. Tonight: Make it inexpensive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ All your personality can't melt the natural barriers of the day. Pressure and demands from work and daily life could overwhelm you. Communication goes awry when you least expect it. Stay centered and direct, if possible. Domestic issues only add to the chaos. Tonight: Talking up a storm.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★ Doing nothing might be best, under the circumstances. A risk or any financial action could backfire. It is quite clear that a loved one or child wants it his way. Confusion surrounds financial matters; disagreement marks communication. Pull back. Tonight: How 'bout heading on home?

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ Your best intentions get twisted like a pretzel. Others aren't getting your message clearly. You might be down and/or unusually tired. Pull back and make a decision later. Don't allow another to pressure you. Keep goals in mind; don't let events trigger you. Tonight: Where the gang is.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★ No matter how hard you try, clarity eludes you. Caring abounds, allowing you to see others in a different light. Intuition, generally accurate for you, only adds to your difficulties. Take a walk at lunch, clear your head and simply do your job. The less said, the better. Tonight: In the limelight.

The bidding:

WEST	NORTH	EAST	SOUTH
2♠	Dbl	Pass	4♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠

South, at the helm of a four-heart contract, thought this deal was a case of deja vu. As a result, declarer made a thoughtless play and paid the penalty.

Ideally, North needed a fourth heart for the takeout double of West's weak two-spade opening bid. However, the extra strength compensated for the lack of that card — an overcall of three diamonds would not show such a powerful, balanced hand and could lead to missing a three-no-trump contract. South's leap to four hearts with 10 working points was automatic.

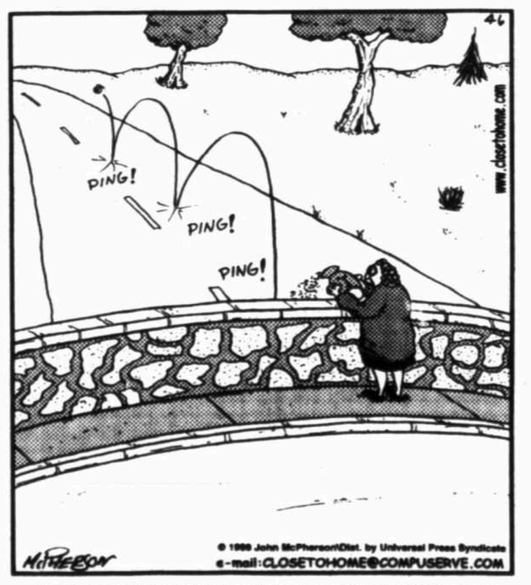

West led the king of spades. East overtook with the ace and returned a spade to partner's eight, and West continued with a third round of the suit. To guard against four trumps in either hand, and to prevent a cheap overruff, South elected to ruff with dummy's ace of hearts. The unfortunate trump break meant that declarer still had to lose two more tricks — down one.

South had no other loser in the plain suits, so the right course was to protect against a 5-1 split. Since West, who had started with six spades, was unlikely to hold five hearts as well, this could be done simply by ruffing low in dummy even though East was sure to overruff.

If East overruffs, four trumps in the West hand pose no threat to the contract. South simply wins any return, draws trumps and claims the rest of the tricks. Refusing to ruff does not help the defense. Declarer draws four rounds of trumps and then starts to run diamonds. East can ruff at any time, but that will be the third and last trick for the defense.

Dylan, Simon to hit the road together

NEW YORK — It's nirvana for 1960s folk fans — Bob Dylan and Paul Simon are hitting the road together for a summer tour.

It's the first time they have shared a concert bill.

Each man will play a 75-minute set and, for most of the tour's 32 dates, they also plan a few duets. The tour starts June 6 in Colorado Springs, Colo., and ends at Jones Beach on New York's Long Island on July 31.

Dylan, who is almost constantly on the road and last year performed several dates with Van Morrison and Joni Mitchell, told USA Today he is excited about teaming up with Simon.

"He's written extraordinary songs, hasn't he?" Dylan said. "I consider him one of the pre-eminent songwriters of the times. Every song he does has a vitality you don't find everywhere."

Simon hasn't toured since 1992, spending much of time in recent years on the Broadway flop "The Capeman."

"I like Bob, I like his music," Simon said. "I've known him for a long time, and it's a nice chance to play. I like the idea of where we came from and what we evolved into. We came out of the same early rock 'n' roll context and took similar routes, although mine's more urban."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Three of Tammy Wynette's daughters Monday filed a $50 million lawsuit blaming the country star's death on negligence by her husband and her doctor.

Daughters Tina Jones, Jackie Daly and Georgette Smith said Ms. Wynette died because Dr. Wallis Marsh of Pittsburgh did not monitor her condition closely and overprescribed medication.

They also said Ms. Wynette's fifth husband, George Richey, did not seek medical care for her after being urged to do so by Marsh on the day of her death.

Marsh "inappropriately treated her in a number of different ways," said Ed Yarbrough, an attorney for the daughters. "It became clear that her husband was very much a party to that."

On Monday, Nashville's medical examiner said he would reconsider the daughters' request to have Ms. Wynette's body exhumed and an autopsy performed. Bruce Levy, who in February denied their request and said he was satisfied with Marsh's finding, said he was reviewing new information provided by the daughters.

The "Stand by Your Man" singer died on April 6, 1998, at her Nashville home at age 55. Her body was found by Richey, and Marsh flew from Pittsburgh to sign the death certificate. He listed the cause of death as a blood clot in the lungs.

LONDON — Singer Dusty Springfield willed her cat to a friend and arranged for the animal's favorite dish — canned baby food — to be flown in from the United States, a London newspaper reported.

The Sunday Mirror said Ms. Springfield, who died in March, left her cat, Nicholas, to Lee Everett-Alkin, along with the animal's elaborate 7-foot indoor "treehouse."

Nicholas sleeps on one of Ms. Springfield's nightgowns and a pillowcase from her bed, Ms. Everett-Alkin told the newspaper.

TROY, Ala. — It's been years since anyone was told to kiss Flo's grits.

Fans still remember Polly Holliday for her "kiss my grits" line.

Polly Holliday, who played the tart-tongued waitress on the 1980s sitcom "Alice," said she hasn't uttered her trademark phrase since the show went off the air.

"People ask me to say it, but the way I get out of it is by suggesting that they should say it to me," she said. "They can probably say it pretty well themselves."

Ms. Holliday returned to her native Alabama on Monday to conduct a series of acting seminars at Troy State University.

She received a 1990 Tony nomination for her performance as Big Mama in Tennessee Williams' "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," but remains "Flo" to many people.

"So many people know people like Flo, who are wittier and smarter than their bosses," she said.

WINDSOR, England — Easter Sunday services at St. George's Chapel were something of a dry run for Prince Edward and Sophie Rhys-Jones.

The couple will marry June 19 at the 15th-century Gothic church.

Queen Elizabeth II and the 98-year-old Queen Mother also attended Sunday services at the chapel, along with Edward's older brother Prince Andrew and his two daughters. Princess Anne came with her 17-year-old daughter Zara.

Prince Charles and his sons, Princes William and Harry, were in Scotland for Easter.

Special Olympics
TO PROTECT AND SERVE, AND SERVE, AND SERVE, AND SERVE...
MIDLAND-Once again, the heroes of Law Enforcement from Midland, Odessa, Big Spring and Ft. Stockton are serving the athletes of Special Olympics Texas. In a series of fundraisers from March to June that includes a Bass tournament, Mile of Quarters, the Golf Tournament at Mission Dorado, and Cops & Lobsters, they will raise approximately 1/3 of the budget for Special Olympics Texas - Permian Basin (Area 18). The height of their dedication to these great athletes will begin on May 25 when they will start their run to Houston where they will join law enforcement personal from all over the great state of Texas. They will then carry the Torch into Rice University Football Stadium to begin the 1999 Olympics Texas Summer Games on May 27. You can meet these dedicated public servants on Saturday, April 10 at Midland Center during the 2nd annual Ragin's Cajun to benefit Area 18 Special Olympics. They will be more than happy to serve (there's that word again!) you a delicious meal and give their tips over to the athlete's of Special Olympics. Midland Special Olympian Medina Swan says "I think the Torch Run is neat" and she is "very thankful for what they do."

Early Wynn dies

CLEVELAND — Early Wynn, who won the Cy Young Award at age 39 and earned his 300th and last victory four years later, died Sunday night. He was 79.

The Hall of Famer's health had deteriorated badly in recent months and he died in Florida from complications related to a stroke, his business manager, Dave Baudouin, said Monday. Wynn spent his final days at Manor Care Health Services in Venice, Fla., said Eric Swope, funeral director at Ewing Funeral Home in Venice.

Born Jan. 6, 1920, Wynn pitched in the major leagues from 1939 to 1963 with Washington, Cleveland and the Chicago White Sox. Wynn, who won 164 games with Cleveland, was known as one of the fiercest competitors of his time.

"He'd knock you down in the dugout," New York Yankees great Mickey Mantle said of Wynn.

Asked once if he would throw at his grandmother, the burly Wynn quipped: "Only if she was digging in."

But Wynn's toughness had a serious side. In 1949, when he was playing with Cleveland, a Detroit pitcher twice knocked down Indians outfielder Larry Doby, the first black player in the American League.

Wynn knocked down the pitcher on four straight pitches when he came to bat.

"Doby is on my team," said Wynn, a native of Hartford, Ala. "If they hurt him, they hurt me. I've got to teach them manners."

Wynn was a 20-game winner four times for Cleveland and once for the White Sox in the 1950s.

He was 23-11 in 1954, when the Indians won the American League pennant with 111 wins in a 154-game season. In 1959, he won the Cy Young Award for the pennant-winning White Sox, posting a 22-10 record.

Fellow Hall of Famer and Cleveland teammate Bob Feller remembered Wynn as a great player to have in the clubhouse and on the field.

"Early was afraid of no one," he said. "We'll miss him. We worked together, traveled together and socialized together."

Wynn was also a good hitter, with 17 career home runs and he hit .319 for Washington in 1946. He was used as a pinch hitter on several occasions.

In 1963, at age 43, he returned to the Indians needing one more win for 300. He reached the milestone on July 13, 1963, pitching the first five innings of Cleveland's 5-4 victory in Kansas City. His career record was 300-244.

After he retired, Wynn was a pitching coach for the Indians and Minnesota Twins. He also campaigned for increasing retired ballplayers' pensions. He was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1972.

Wynn's wife of 50 years, Lorraine, died in 1994. Wynn is survived by a daughter and son, a half-sister and three grandchildren.

Visitation will be on Saturday before a service at the Ewing Funeral Home, Swope said.

Compaq games

HOUSTON — Officials at the Compaq Center are reserving Dec. 11 for a college basketball doubleheader, television station KRIV reported.

The station reported that negotiations are nearly complete for Rice to play Texas A&M and Houston to play Valparaiso in the arena. Proceeds will go to charity.

"I can confirm we are holding December 11 for two college basketball games," said Compaq Center general manager Gerald MacDonald.

Officials at Houston, Texas A&M and Rice all confirmed the event is in the works.

Forget talk, Jacks re-sign coach Clark

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

ODESSA — All that talk about Odessa Jackalope head coach Joe Clark losing his job was apparently just talk, as Clark was given a one-year deal to stay with the team.

Clark — the only head coach in the Jacks' two seasons — agreed to terms on a one-year deal that Jackalope General Manager Monty Hoppel called above average in comparison to those of other Western Professional Hockey League coaches. Hoppel said it is incentive-laden.

"It is a good deal," Hoppel said. "It has a lot of incentives related to winning and making it to the championship series, so both sides feel very good about that."

Clark, who also serves as the team's director of operations, said he would have liked to have had it out of the way earlier but is glad have it completed nevertheless.

"My preference was to get it done early," Clark said. "There is more to it than that. There are four very important people excluding myself that are involved in the decision making (owners Miles Prentice and Bob Richmond, Hoppel and assistant general manager Rick Carden), and everyone had to be on the same page.

"There is a sense of relief to have it done, and now we know we can start to put together next year's squad."

Today, Clark will fly to Denmark for the B World Hockey Championships. He says that by early May, he will start the process of signing returning players.

That list starts with players like forwards Paul Vincent and Sami Laine, defenders Jacque Rodrigue and Mario Dumoulin, and goaltenders Billy Pye and Michael Tornquist.

"I want to bring back the core of this team," Clark said. "It is a good core and will allow us to be one of the elite teams in the league. That is our goal."

Clark also said that next year's team will also be a more physical one.

"We want a more physical team, more toughness," Clark said. "We want people who will drop the gloves and go. This is a blue collar town. They deserve that element of the game."

This past season, there was talk about Clark's job being in jeopardy. While the team was among the top defensive clubs in the league (finishing second), injuries

OPENING DAY

Rangers look 'ill' against Moehler

■ Tiger pitcher overcomes pregame discomfort to help humiliate Rangers 11-5.

By Jaime Aron
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON — The first opening day start of Brian Moehler's career wasn't going very well. He had to cut his pregame warmup short because he didn't feel comfortable on the bullpen mound. And he wasn't too comfortable with his stomach, either.

"For the first time in my career, I felt like I was going to throw up," Moehler said.

Moehler calmed down in time to flirt with history, coming within eight outs of joining Bob Feller as the only pitchers to throw no-hitters on opening day as Detroit beat Texas 11-5 Monday.

Moehler (1-0) dominated the AL's best hitting team of 1998 until one out in the seventh inning when Juan Gonzalez singled to center. Rangers newcomer Rafael Palmeiro ruined the possible shutout by following with an RBI double.

Whether Moehler could pull off the feat became the game's focus early as Juan Encarnacion homered on the game's first pitch, Bobby Higginson and Damion Easley hit three-run homers in a seven-run third inning and Detroit was up 11-0 by the sixth.

Moehler appeared to have no-hit stuff as he retired the side in order in five of the first six innings. His only jam was the second when he walked Gonzalez and Palmeiro, but got out of it with a double-play grounder and a pop out.

Moehler said his pregame nausea was simply a case of the nerves. Once the lead swelled, he relaxed and even allowed himself to daydream about the no-hitter.

"If the game was closer, I probably wouldn't have thought about it," Moehler said. "But 11-0? Sure, I was thinking about it."

Moehler, who had to wait until June 30 for his first road victory last year, allowed one run on two hits with six strikeouts and two walks. He threw 106 pitches and was tired by the end.

"I felt fine, but I wasn't getting the ball down like I was the first six innings," he said.

For the Rangers, bad pitching — especially by ace Rick Helling — and bad defense joined the early offensive flameout as co-conspirators in the lopsided loss. It was no way to treat a crowd of 46,650, the largest for a home opener in team history, on a cloudless afternoon tailor-made for the return of baseball.

"You can't judge us on one game," said Palmeiro, who spent the last five seasons in Baltimore after five in Texas. "We're going to be back. Everyone likes to get a good start, but just because we lost doesn't mean it's over."

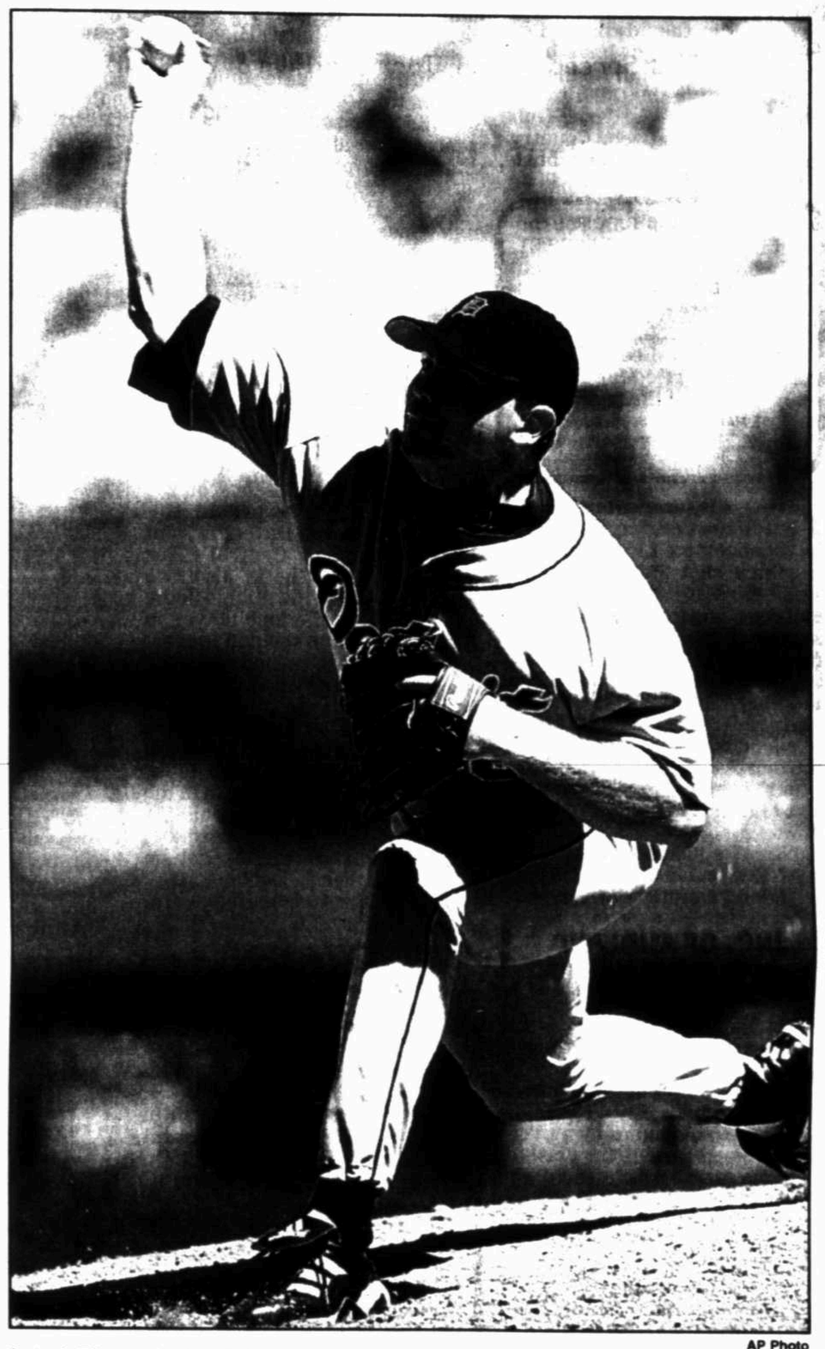

Helling, trying to prove his 20-7 record last year was no fluke, allowed four of the first five Tigers to reach base — and it got worse from there. He was shelled for seven runs, five earned in just three innings.

Helling (0-1) was pulled after hitting Detroit's eighth and ninth hitters, Brad Ausmus and Brian Hunter, when he had two strikes on them. He put his arms over his face in disgust after hitting Hunter.

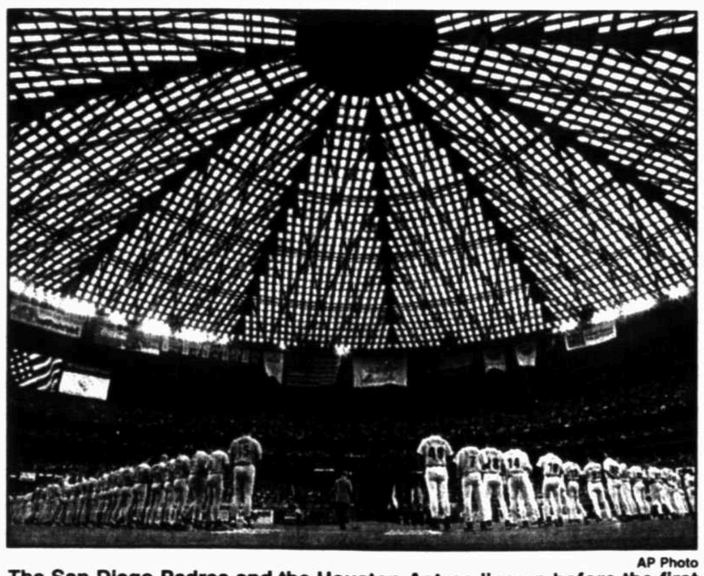

Replacement Esteban Loiaza got the inning's first out when Encarnacion flied out to right, but a run scored on the play because of bad decisions by Texas fielders.

Lee Stevens, playing first base while Palmeiro heals from two knee operations, started it by cutting off Gonzalez's throw and throwing to third. Todd Zeile then opted to start a rundown to get Ausmus coming from second, allowing Deivi Cruz to score. The rundown failed when Royce Clayton's

HOUSTON — They could have taken shovels in hand for a traditional ground-breaking, but that would have been too ordinary.

Instead, with true Texas flair, honored guests fired Colt .45 pistols into a vacant lot south of downtown to begin construction on what officially became the Harris County Domed Stadium, known worldwide as the Astrodome. Billy Graham toured the world's first domed stadium and called it one of the wonders of the world and the Astrodome's creator, County Judge Roy Hofheinz, decided it should be dubbed the Eighth Wonder of the World.

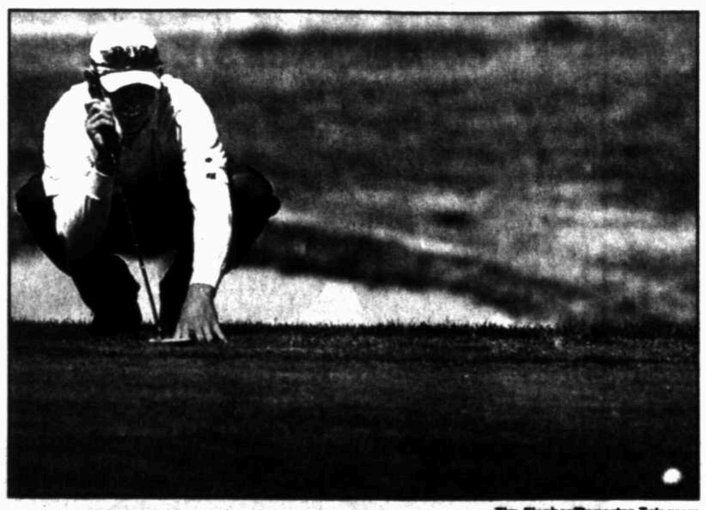

It was 34 years and several facelifts ago when the Astrodome set a spectacular standard for indoor stadiums to follow. Now, even the first-of-its kind Astrodome is giving way to progress, losing its longest-running tenant.

The exodus began in 1997, when the Houston Oilers moved to Tennessee even after officials removed the popular $2 million scoreboard to satisfy owner Bud Adams' demand for more seating capacity.

Now the Astros, formerly the Colt .45s, are moving to a gleaming new 42,000-seat downtown ballpark with a retractable roof. They'll play on real grass for the first time since the earliest days of the Astrodome, whose opaque center-field glass prompted the invention of Astroturf.

Permian has huge lead; MHS, Lee fighting for second place

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

ODESSA — Barring a total collapse like none ever seen in District 4-5A golf history, the Odessa Permian boys will take home the team title next week in San Angelo. Permian leads the field at the District 4-5A Boys Golf Tournament by 41 strokes going into the final round at San Angelo Country Club.

However, the battle for second place, in what could have been called the Permian Invitational, is a pretty good one, and when all the teams get together next Friday, there will be something to play for and two Midland teams involved in the hunt.

The Midland High Bulldogs and Midland Lee Rebels will have deficits to battle from as they chase second place San Angelo Central on its home course next week, because while Permian, which has a three-round total of 917, has already secured its spot in the regional tournament, there is one up for grabs.

Central carded a third round score of 316 Monday at The Club at Mission Dorado for a three-round total of 958. That will put the Bobcats six strokes ahead of Midland High (964), 10 strokes ahead of Odessa High (968) and 11 strokes ahead of Lee (969).

For Midland High, which moved to third after a 318 in Round 3, it is a challenge unlike any other in quite some time. The Bulldogs last quali-

LOCAL BASEBALL TODAY

Midland Lee vs. San Angelo Central

When: 4:30 p.m.
Where: at Central High.
Records: Lee is 15-4 overall and 4-1 in District 4-5A. Central is 9-8 and 3-2.
4-5A Significance: If the Rebels win, they'll close out the first half of district alone atop 4-5A. If Central wins, the Bobcats will be tied with Lee for the district lead and if Abilene Cooper beats Odessa High there will be a three-way tie for the lead. If Lee wins and Cooper loses, though, the Rebels will have a two game lead.
Notes: The Rebels are coming off their most convincing district win of the season, having beaten Odessa High 13-3 last Thursday in a six inning run rule game. Lee scored at least once in each inning, including four in the sixth to end the game. Matt Winston has been the team's most productive hitter in district, batting .538 with seven RBIs, both tops on the team (Nate Brignon is tied with Winston in the later category)... Lee got its best starting pitching performance of district so far when Eric Neatherlin became the first Rebel starter to win in district, going 5 2/3 innings while allowing only four hits and one earned run. Josh Ramos, who hasn't gone past five innings in any of his three district starts so far, is the most likely candidate to start today... Central would be playing for the outright district lead if it hadn't run into disaster at Abilene High last Friday. Like the Rebels, the Bobcats were involved in a run rule decision, but were on the wrong end of it, falling 15-0 to AHS.

Next: Lee will start the second half of district Saturday at 2 p.m. at Zachery Field against crosstown rival Midland High.

Winchell, Lee girls near Region

Staff Report

SAN ANGELO — For Midland High's Shelly Winchell, a possible regional golf berth will go down to the wire. For the Midland Lee girls, their spot might have been sewed up in an unusual fashion.

Monday during the third round of the District 4-5A Girls Golf Tournament at Bentwood Country Club, both went about their business with the hope that they will be representing the district later this month at the Region I-5A Tournament in Lubbock.

The Lee girls had 12 strokes cut off their lead for second place in 4-5A but still came away in a great position to again make the trip to Lubbock. Either a Lee individual or team has qualified for the I-5A tourney in eight of the past 10 seasons.

Monday, the Lady Rebs' team score of 370 was not reminiscent of those past teams but it give them a 18-stroke advantage for the second spot in the district. Lee has a three round total of 1,056 while Central, which shot 358 Monday, is alone in third at 1,074.

Abilene High has all but wrapped up a district title. The Lady Eagles carded a 353 in the windy conditions for a three-round total of 994. That gives them a 62 stroke lead over Lee and an 80 stroke lead over Central.

The fourth and final round of the golf tour will take place next Tuesday at Midland's Hogan Park.

"It was windy today but that was no excuse. We just didn't play well today," Lee coach Phyllis Sutton said. "I don't know if we were prepared to play today like we should have been. We are looking forward to playing on our home course. Teams that have played on their home course seemed to have a little advantage. Abilene High did in Abilene and San Angelo did today. Hopefully, the same thing will happen to us."

While Sutton said there were no excuses, she said the wind — which reached 30 mph — played a factor. Sutton says that Lee just doesn't have the experience playing in the high winds that other teams do.

"If we have good weather (for the fourth round), we can beat Central without any trouble," Sutton said. "We have younger players who fly the ball well, but they don't have as much experience in the wind."

Another player who hopes to benefit from the fourth round at Hogan Park is MHS' Winchell. The junior shot a 78 Monday to keep her in third place. Winchell has a three round score of 234 which is five strokes behind Abilene High's Devon Day (229) and three in back of Central's Liz Wardlaw (231). She is also two strokes ahead of Permian's Jodie Duff, who was the lone player in the top four not to shoot in the 70s. Duff, who was in second when the day started, fired an 83. Wardlaw had a 74 on her home track to move from fourth to second.

Since the top two teams and the top two individuals not on those teams (providing they finish in the top seven) qualify for regionals, it looks as though either Wardlaw, Winchell or Duff will be not be making the trek to Lubbock. Day will go with the Abilene High team, which leaves the next two spots up for grabs unless Central beats out Lee for second place.

One interesting note to a final round at Hogan. Every district team has played a final round at Hogan during the Tall City Girls Invitational. It is interesting to note that on that day, Central beat Lee by 11 strokes while Day shot a 79, Wardlaw 85, Winchell 88 and Duff 87.

Results from the third round of play at the District 4-5A Girls Golf Tournament played Monday at Bentwood Country Club in San Angelo. The final round will be played at Midland's Hogan Park. The top two teams and two individuals not on those teams, providing those individuals finish in the top seven in the medalist race, qualify for the Region I Tournament in Lubbock.

fied for regionals in 1995.

"They are confident right now," MHS coach Jack Ratcliff said. "They are excited that they moved up to third and looking forward to competing next week."

On Monday, MHS had three players break 80 as Jason Lindgren shot a 77, Matt Gerhard 78 and Zack Cauthen 79.

"The kids competed well," Ratcliff said. "They didn't let the conditions (which were cold in the morning and windy all day long) hamper them.

"We haven't hit our peak. We are going to San Angelo's home course, and we played really well on Abilene's home course last year in the last round. That was our best round and we are hoping we can have another good round just like that this year."

Last year, three of the five starters (Cauthen, Lindgren and Gerhard) were on that team which shot 299 to move from sixth to third on the final day.

If the Rebels don't make it to regionals, their performance on the Permian Basin swing of the 4-5A tour might be the reason. Lee went into last week's second round at Ranchland Hills Country Club in second place. They walked off the course at Mission in fifth.

"You don't hope to go from second to fifth and four shots out of third," Lee coach Bobby Dunn said. "Now you have to go on to their (Central's) home course, and they (the Bobcats) have a 10-stroke lead. It will be hard. You have to go and play."

Lee didn't record one round in the 70s in Round 3 and things went south right from the beginning. On the front nine, Lee had scores of 38, 41, 41, 41 and 43.

"The round was so-so. We just didn't play good on the front," Dunn said.

Lee's best score was an 80 from Thomas Freeman.

Chance Finley added an 81. Daniel Pender and Tommy Fioretti each carded 82s.

"That is two weeks in a row that we didn't count the No. 1 player's scores," said Dunn. In team golf, the highest of the five scores is dropped.

To see just how good Permian is playing all one had to do is look at the medalist standings. Permian's Austin Burk, Chad Hanchey and Phil George occupy the top three spots. Burk shot a 77 for a three-round total of 226. Hanchey fired a 73 to move to 227 while George is at 230 after a third round 80.

The other two members of Permian's first team (Brian Murray and Jarryd Foreman) are in seventh and tied for 11th, respectively. Also, Ryan Manicom of the Permian No. 2 team is in fifth which means he could make the regional tournament since the top teams and top two medalists not on one of those teams qualify for the regional tournament.

Results from the third round of the District 4-5A Boys Golf Tournament held at the Club at Mission Dorado. The top two teams and two individuals not on those teams, providing those individuals finish in the top seven in the medalist race, qualify for the Region I Tournament in Lubbock.

Team Standings: 1. Odessa Permian 305-917; 2. San Angelo Central 316-958; 3. Midland High 316-964; 4. Odessa High 319-968; 5. Midland Lee 325-969; 6. Abilene Cooper 334-984; 7. Permian II 321-988; 8. Midland Lee II 341-1,017; 9. Abilene High 331-1,023; 10. San Angelo Central II 338-1,028; 11. Midland High II 354-1,058; 12. Abilene Cooper II 352-1,063; 13. Abilene High II 354-1,064; 14. JACKS: Clark gets one-year extension to Sami Laine and Johan Hagman rocked the Jacks offensively.

Still, Clark made key moves, including obtaining key scorers such as Jan Jas and Vincent, that put the Jacks into the playoffs.

"I am judged on my ability to adjust and I think I do a pretty good job of that," Clark said. "That is why we were able to improve."

The Jacks finished with a 35-29-5 record and fought the San Angelo Outlaws to the third and final game in the best-of-three-game first round of the WPHL playoffs. It was the Jacks' first-ever playoff appearance.

In 1997-98, Odessa was 26-37-6 and ranked last in the league in goals allowed.

"With us struggling the first year, even though we came on strong, it was important for us to have a strong second year, not just for the coach but for the front office and the fans," Hoppel said. "We needed to show improvement for the season ticket holders and fans who were starting to grumble. We tried to stay focused on this year and that is how we showed it to Joe. At the same time, we gave him every indication that we wanted to get it (a new contract) done."

Hoppel said the success of this past season should mean bigger things next year.

"Our motto next year is we need to win regardless of injuries," Hoppel said. "Next year, let's take the next step to be one of the elite teams in the league."

Surging Robinson, Spurs roll on while Mavs fall to Timberwolves

Associated Press

■ NBA Roundup

SAN ANTONIO — After struggling for a stretch during the first half of the season, David Robinson appears to be back to his All-Star form.

Robinson and Tim Duncan each scored 25 points to lead the San Antonio Spurs, who has won 17 of their last 19, to a 93-86 victory over the Golden State Warriors on Monday.

"Over the last three or four games I feel the team chemistry has started to come together," Robinson said. "I feel I'm starting to play better with Tim (Duncan) also. He's been super all year for us. Now we are starting to play off each other and make each other better. It's fun this way."

San Antonio also received 13 points from Sean Elliott. Robinson also pulled down 16 rebounds, while Duncan grabbed 11.

Golden State was led by John Starks' 18 points, while Chris Mills scored 13 and Antawn Jamison added 11.

"Tonight they made the plays and we didn't," Warriors coach P.J. Carlesimo said. "We competed well on the boards and got a lot of good shot opportunities. We beat a lot of teams tonight, but not San Antonio, they are a phenomenally good defensive team."

After leading by 10 points at halftime, San Antonio grabbed its largest lead at 64-50 on two Mario Elie free throws with 4:06 remaining in the third quarter.

Starks had nine points in the quarter to bring the Warriors back to within four entering the final period. Duncan, who had 16 second half points, gave San Antonio an 83-73 lead with 4:24 remaining on two free throws.

"Sometimes guys like Tim Duncan and David Robinson are going to have games like they did tonight," Golden State forward Jason Caffey said. "They are big time players and good shot blockers. You can't count on them having a bad night every time you play them."

A 3-pointer from Starks with 2:51 to play brought the Warriors within 86-80. After a Robinson free throw, Jerome Kersey's 20-footer with 1:18 remaining gave San Antonio an 89-80 lead.

Golden State got no closer than seven points the rest of the way, as Robinson and Jaren Jackson connected on five free throws in the final minute.

"The Warriors are a team that has beat Portland twice and the Lakers in Los Angeles. They are a rugged group," said Popovich after watching his team block a season-high 17 shots. "They'll hit on you and they're very solid. This was a big game for us."

Golden State connected on only 13 of 52 first half shots and shot 35 percent for the game while San Antonio connected on 42 percent of its shots.

Timberwolves 100, Mavericks 93

MINNEAPOLIS — Despite adding starting point guard Terrell Brandon to a growing injured list, the Timberwolves hung on to beat the Mavericks.

Kevin Garnett and Sam Mitchell scored 18 points each and Tom Hammonds added 14. The Wolves ended their six-game homestand with their fifth win.

The Wolves played most of the second half without Brandon, who suffered a right thigh injury with 9:47 to play and did not return. His status will be evaluated after the game. Minnesota dressed just 10 players for the third consecutive game.

Hawks 77, Hornets 71

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Mookie Blaylock had 13 points and eight assists and the surging Hawks defeated the fading Hornets for the second straight day.

Reserve forward Roshown McLeod added 13 points and Dikembe Mutombo had 11 points and 14 rebounds as Atlanta won for the eighth time in 10 games. The Hawks, who came in holding opponents to an NBA-low 84 points per game, limited the Hornets to their lowest total in almost a month.

Charlotte, held to 10-for-34 shooting (29 percent) in the second half, lost its fifth game in a row. David Wesley led the Hornets with 18 points.

Magic 106, Celtics 99

ORLANDO, Fla. — Darrell Armstrong matched a career high with 28 points and Penny Hardaway led a decisive 18-4 run for Orlando.

Armstrong, starting for the third straight game in place of the injured Nick Anderson, scored 19 in the second quarter. Hardaway had seven of his 24 in the spurt Orlando put together after falling behind early in the fourth quarter.

Ron Mercer led Boston with 29 points. Paul Pierce had 23, but Antoine Walker was held to 12 on 5-for-13 shooting after scoring a season-high 32 against New Jersey on Sunday.

Pacers 88, Pistons 86

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Antonio Davis had key plays on both ends of the court in the final two minutes to help the Pacers pull out a victory over the Pistons.

First, Davis's three-point play broke a 84-84 tie with 1:37 left. He then blocked Grant Hill's running jumper with under one minute remaining, and after a Pacers miss, Rik Smits fouled Hill.

He missed both free throws and had another chance to tie the game after Bison Dele was able to grab the loose-ball rebound.

Poor beginning makes Wizards fire Bickerstaff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under Bernie Bickerstaff, the Washington Wizards became a tentative, underachieving team that froze in the fourth quarter. A team lacking the needed hustle for coming up with the big rebound or loose ball.

In danger of missing the playoffs for the 10th time in 11 years and struggling at 13-19, the Wizards fired Bickerstaff on Monday and replaced him on an interim basis with assistant Jim Brovelli.

"It was very difficult. It was something I didn't want to do today, but I felt I had to," said general manager Wes Unseld, whose friendship with Bickerstaff dates to the 1970s, when Unseld played in Washington and Bickerstaff was an assistant coach.

"The way we were going, philosophically maybe, my thinking was different. It just wasn't happening, and it didn't seem to change. With 18 games left and a chance to still be in this thing, I decided to do it."

Unseld said he would start contacting coaching candidates immediately, although he did not rule out Brovelli as a long-term solution. Brovelli, 57, was 1-1 in his NBA head coaching debut earlier this season when Bickerstaff was out with the flu.

LOCAL SOFTBALL TODAY

Midland High vs. San Angelo Central

When: 4:30 p.m.
Where: at Central High.
Records: Midland High is 16-9 overall and 4-5 in District 4-5A. Central is 9-10 and 2-6.
4-5A Significance: MHS needs all the help it can get to snare a playoff spot, and the Lady Bulldogs are still alive if they win. However, if they lose and both Abilene High and Odessa Permian win, they are eliminated. Central is still mathematically alive, but if the Lady Bobcats lose or if both Abilene High and Permian win, they are eliminated.
Notes: Midland High is doing what it needs to survive, having won two in a row to stay above water. The Lady Bulldogs pounded out 13 hits to beat Abilene Cooper 8-3 Thursday. Five MHS hitters had at least two hits in the game, led by Kim Combs, who went 3-for-3 and drove in three runs...Central picked up its second district victory by defeating 0-9 Odessa High 4-0. When the two teams met earlier in the season in Midland, the Lady Bulldogs won a 15-5 run rule game in five innings. MHS had 13 hits in that game while pitchers Megan Clingman and Collin Lange combined for a one-hitter.

Next: Midland High will continue its district schedule when it travels to Abilene High Saturday at 2 p.m.

Mondesi homers bail out Brown in Dodgers' opener

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Baseball's first $100 million man wasn't worth it in his Los Angeles Dodgers' debut.

Raul Mondesi, fortunately, was right on the money and bailed out Kevin Brown, who flopped in his marquee matchup with Randy Johnson. Mondesi tied the game with a three-run homer with two outs in the ninth, then hit a two-run homer in the 11th off John Frascatore to give him six RBIs as the Dodgers beat the Arizona Diamondbacks 8-6 in Monday's season opener.

■ Pro Baseball

Brown allowed five runs and 10 hits in 5 2/3 innings, giving up a pair of solo homers to Bernard Gilkey and a three-run shot to Jay Bell that put Arizona ahead 5-2 in the sixth. Jeff Shaw, who retired all six batters he faced, earned the victory.

Giants 11, Reds 8

CINCINNATI — Charlie Hayes, who took over at third base when Bill Mueller was hurt, hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning to lead San Francisco.

Cincinnati overcame a four-run deficit with homers by Mike Cameron, Mark Sweeney and Sean Casey, pulling ahead 8-6 with a six-run sixth inning. An error by Hayes helped fuel the comeback.

Ellis Burks hit a two-run homer to tie it in the seventh off loser John Hudek. After a pair of walks opened the eighth, Hayes homered into the second deck in left off Gabe White.

Alan Embree got the win with one perfect inning, and Robb Nen pitched the ninth for the save.

Phillies 7, Braves 4

ATLANTA — Marlon Anderson drove in three runs to give Curt Schilling and Philadelphia the win.

Schilling allowed five hits and all four runs in six innings, but picked up the win when Anderson came through in the seventh with a two-run single against Tom Glavine, coming off a 20-win season that earned his second Cy Young.

The Phillies added two runs in the ninth against Mark Wohlers, the former Braves closer trying to make a comeback from a disastrous season. Wohlers walked four and surrendered a run-scoring double .

Marlins 6, Mets 2

MIAMI — Alex Fernandez, making his first start since shoulder surgery 18 months ago, outpitched former teammate Al Leiter to lead Florida.

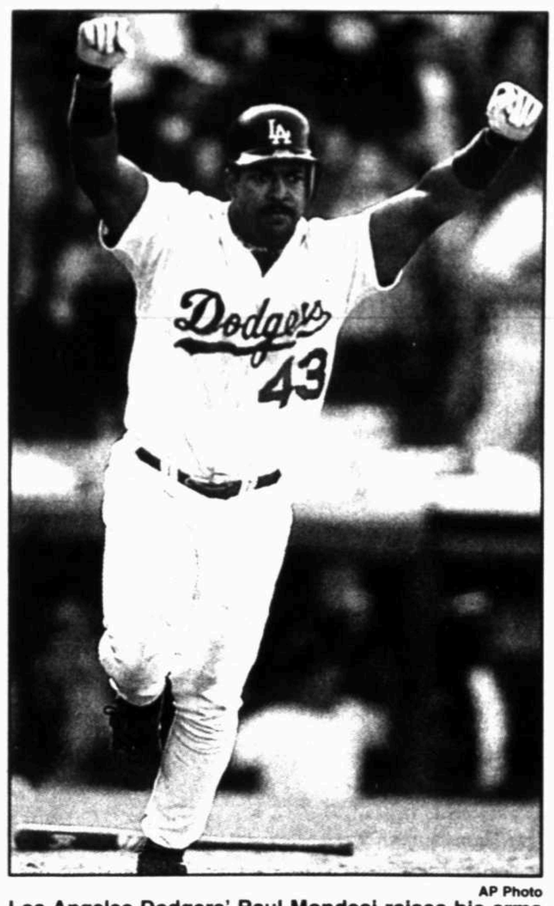

Fernandez, one of the few holdovers from 1997, pitched out of two early jams and left with a 5-1 lead after throwing 95 pitches in five innings. He allowed one run and five hits in five innings.

Preston Wilson, stepson of Mets coach Mookie Wilson, drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly and a single. Derrek Lee added a double and an RBI single and scored twice.

Brewers 10, Cardinals 8

ST. LOUIS — Mark McGwire hasn't missed a beat.

The 70-homer man got off zero in a hurry, hitting his first of the season to give St. Louis fans at least one reason to sit through two lengthy rain delays on opening day. Dave Nilsson and Jeromy Burnitz hit two-run homers for the Brewers and Sean Berry hit a three-run shot and a triple that deflected off the glove of rookie center fielder J.D. Drew at the top of the wall.

Los Angeles Dodgers' Raul Mondesi raises his arms after hitting his game-winning two-run home run in the 11th inning of their opening day game against the Arizona Diamondbacks in Los Angeles Monday.

Expos 9, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH — Vladimir Guerrero hit a three-run homer in the first inning off Francisco Cordova and drove in four runs to back Dustin Hermanson's strong pitching.

The top of the Expos' order tormented Pirates pitching all night, with the No. 1-4 hitters going a combined 10-for-19 with three extra-base hits. The Guerrero brothers combined for six hits — older brother Wilton had two doubles among his three hits.

Orioles 10, Devil Rays 7

BALTIMORE — Albert Belle hit a three-run homer in his first game for Baltimore, which defeated the Devil Rays despite losing Cal Ripken to injury.

Belle added an RBI single in a four-run eighth and Brady Anderson also homered for the Orioles. Mike Mussina got the victory despite allowing four runs and eight hits, including Jose Canseco's homer, in five innings.

Red Sox 5, Royals 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Jose Offerman, signed from Kansas City to replace Mo Vaughn's bat, went 4-for-5 and John Valentin homered to lead Boston.

Pedro Martinez struck out nine in six innings as the Red Sox won Boston won its opener for the sixth time in seven years. Kevin Appier was tagged for four runs and eight hits in 5 1/3 innings.

Rangers have 3rd highest tickets

By Sean Wood
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

ARLINGTON — Once again the Rangers have finished behind the New York Yankees —but this time the fans won't mind.

The Bronx Bombers take a bigger bite out of fans' budgets, according to Chicago-based Team Marketing Report Inc. But the Rangers aren't far behind.

The average ticket price for a Rangers game in 1999 is $19.93, up 20.9 percent from last year's price of $16.49, according to the report. That ranks the Rangers third in major-league baseball behind the Boston Red Sox, with an average ticket price of $24.05, and the Yankees, with an average ticket price of $23.33.

The Houston Astros are a relative bargain at $13.30.

But this year's increase in ticket prices has done little to dampen Ranger fans enthusiasm for the 1999 season, which opened Monday at The Ballpark in Arlington. The home opener against the Detroit Tigers was sold out, and the team sold 74,052 single-game tickets Feb. 6, a single-day record. The previous record was 53,890, set in 1998.

"The majority of the ticket price increases were in the more expensive seats where there's more elasticity," said Charlie Seraphin, vice president of marketing for the team. "The $25 seats went up to $30. A $5 increase isn't that big a deal there. Their $4 seats went up to $5. While that may be a big increase percentagewise, it's still well below the cost of a movie."

Monday's game with Detroit sold out last week.

More Sports/1D

The increase in the Rangers' ticket prices helped make the club the fifth most expensive outing in major-league baseball for a family of four, according to the annual Fan Cost Index compiled by Team Marketing Report. It will cost a family of four $139.31 to buy two adult tickets and two children's tickets at the average prices, four small soft drinks, two small beers, four hot dogs, parking, two game programs and two adult-sized caps.

Only the Yankees, Red Sox, New York Mets and Atlanta Braves have higher Fan Cost Indexes than the Rangers. The Yankees are at the top with an index of $166.84. The league's best bargain is the Montreal Expos with an index of $87.87. The Astros rank in the middle with an index of $120.80.

But Sean Brenner, Team Marketing Report editor, said the sport's popularity, coupled with its value compared with the other three major professional sports, makes it easy for fans to swallow higher ticket prices.

"Baseball marketers clearly are confident that the wave of fan support from a banner year in 1998 will continue this season," he said. "The teams with the highest ticket prices are all teams that have strong fan support. They're buying tickets no matter what the price has been."

Rangers fans have paid higher ticket prices for the past three years. Each year the increases come, according to team management, as a result of rising player salaries.

Brenner said increasing prices at the ticket booth is the easiest way to cover those costs.

"The teams need to deal with the higher cost of doing business, which for most teams is player salaries," Brenner said.

The Rangers estimate their 1999 payroll will be a little more than $75 million.

Nearly every team raised its ticket prices. Only the Tampa Bay Devil Rays, Oakland Athletics and Montreal Expos lowered ticket prices this year. The league's average ticket price is up 9.7 percent to $14.91 from $13.60 last year.

Despite that jump, Major League Baseball remains a bargain among the four major professional sports.

"The average ticket for 1999 is just about a third of what it costs for the other three major sports," Brenner said.

According to Team Marketing, the average National Football League ticket is $42.86; the average National Hockey League ticket is $42.79; and the average National Basketball Association ticket is $42.54.

The Stars hockey team raised its average ticket price 5.5 percent to $45.88. The Cowboys announced they will raise ticket prices an average of 10.1 percent for the 1999 NFL season. The Mavericks did not raise ticket prices before this NBA season.

Sosa returns to scene of No. 66

By Michael A. Lutz
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — Sammy Sosa is starting where he left off last season.

The Chicago Cubs star hit his final 1998 home run against the Houston Astros' Jose Lima in the Astrodome last Sept. 25, giving him a 66-65 lead over Mark McGwire in the race for the home record. McGwire then hit five in his final three games.

"Last year I was ready, but I think in 1999 I am more ready because a lot of people are expecting me and Mark to come back and do the same way and I'm really ready to see this through," Sosa said Monday as the Cubs and Astros prepared for Tuesday night's game, the final season opener in the Astrodome.

Sosa looks muscled up this spring and hit a major league-high 12 homers, three more than McGwire and Seattle's Russ Davis.

"My last home run was here last year and tomorrow we start again," Sosa said; "but last year is over and I want to start again, and have a great year. I have to say that he's ready and I'm ready."

For another record?

"I'm not going to say it's not going to happen," Sosa said. "It could happen or it could not. Right now, we're just trying to get ready for the season."

Sosa will face Astros ace Shane Reynolds (19-8, 3.51 ERA last season). Steve Trachsel (15-8, 4.46) will start for the Cubs, shaken during spring training with the season-ending injury to Kerry Wood.

"Sosa seems pretty hot right now," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "That's the way we left him in September. I'm not sure if there's ever a good time to face him but I'm satisfied to be facing the Cubs and Brewers this homestand. It gives us a preview as far as what we're up against."

DOME: Stadium provides relief from heat

opening day next season, leaving behind the building where they've won division titles the last two seasons. They also were six outs from the World Series against Philadelphia in 1980 and they were beaten 4-2 by the New York Mets in the 1986 National League playoffs.

"It's sad from one standpoint, but that's got to be tempered with the excitement of moving into a new facility," Astros president Tal Smith said. "I think the Astrodome lost a lot of its character when they took down the scoreboard and changed the configuration of the exterior."

When the Astrodome was being planned, city and county officials didn't think fans consistently would sit in extreme Gulf Coast heat and battle mosquitoes at old Colt Stadium. It was a major selling point for enclosed, air conditioned comfort.

Now, fans will get a chance to watch Astros games once again in the elements with the option of closing the roof if weather turns nasty. In Houston, that could mean most of the time in sweltering July, August and September.

The Astros hosted the New York Yankees in the first indoor biggue league baseball game on April 9, 1965. Houston catcher Ron Brand caught the first ball pitched in the Astrodome, a ceremonial toss by former Texas Gov. John Connally.

"Mickey Mantle was the first batter and they told him to take the first pitch so they could keep the ball," Brand recalled. "Mantle said 'I'm too nervous to swing anyway.' I couldn't believe he would be nervous but it really was an exciting time.

"It's one of the fond memories of my career."

The ground-breaking might have been theatrical, but everything was out of the ordinary for the 55,000-seat edifice that started out as a big hole on prairie land south of downtown.

Cost of the Astrodome was $31.5 million, a figure that couldn't meet some player's salary demands in today's market. The Ballpark at Union Station, the downtown stadium's working title, will cost $265 million.

Smith was the Astros' liaison during the construction of the Dome, which opened the era of modern stadium design. Now he's in charge as the Astros move again.

"It doesn't seem like 35 years ago, but it was one of the most impressionable events in my life that I had the chance to be associated with it," Smith said. "I was with that project from the time it was a hole in the ground until completion.

"I don't think people today can appreciate what the Astrodome was in the early days. It was so unique. It was marveled worldwide."

The Astrodome's future depends on Houston businessman Bob McNair's efforts to obtain an NFL franchise to replace the Oilers.

McNair has plans approved for a new football stadium on the same property where the Astrodome stands. If McNair gets a team, most of the events previously held in the Astrodome would move to the new facility.

That would relegate the Astrodome to hosting other events, such as conventions and trade shows. If McNair is unsuccessful, the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, one of the city's major annual events, would consider renovating the Astrodome.

Until Mark McGwire's assault on Roger Maris' 61 home run record that included some towering homers, former Astros Jimmy "Toy Cannon" Wynn and Doug "Red Rooster" Rader had the longest home runs hit in the Astrodome's upper deck. The original seats they hit were marked with a cannon and rooster in honor of their feats.

When the Astrodome was renovated and the seats updated, Wynn got the original marked seat and now has it in his home.

"I knew I hit it and I knew it was going out, I just didn't know how far until I got back to the dugout," Wynn said. "My teammates pointed to exactly where it hit and I just stood there a few seconds and said 'Wow.'"

RANGERS: Texas whipped

throw to Zeile bounced off Ausmus' head for the second of three Texas errors. Two batters later, Easley homered.

Mike Morgan, competing with Loiaza for the fifth starter's job, was Texas' next pitcher and he made pro sports history with the appearance. The Rangers are his 11th team, breaking the major league record held by Bob L. Miller, Tommy Davis and Ken Brett; the NFL and NHL records are 10 and the NBA mark is nine.

Masao Kida relieved Moehler to open the eighth and he, too, made a bit of history. Kida, who played 10 years in Japan, is the eighth Japanese player to play in the majors and the first born in Tokyo. His debut was unimpressive, though, as he allowed an RBI groundout by Rusty Greer and a two-run single by Gonzalez.

Griffey Jr. to sign for $105 million?

SEATTLE (AP) — Ken Griffey Jr. has been offered several contract alternatives worth at least $105 million, The Seattle Times reported Monday.

Griffey said he had not yet responded formally to the team's multiple offers, all of which reach the level of Kevin Brown's record $105 million, seven-year deal.

"Just to get it done? I don't think so, not with two years on my present contract," he was quoted as saying.

Speaking before Monday night's season opener against Chicago, Griffey refused to confirm the offers.

Tech stocks drive Dow to record

NEW YORK (AP) — Technology issues propelled the stock market sharply higher Monday, lifting the Dow Jones industrial average back above 10,000, as investors stopped worrying about interest rates and looked forward to strong first-quarter earnings reports.

The blue chip index rose 174.82 at 10,007.33, just squeezing past the Dow's previous closing high of 10,006.78, set March 29. Monday's session was just the second time that the Dow has finished above 10,000.

The Nasdaq composite index and the Standard & Poor's 500 index also set new records.

The Nasdaq rose 66.69 to 2,560.06, passing its previous high close of 2,510.09, reached Feb. 1. The S&P 500 rose 27.40 to 1,321.12, breaking its record of 1,316.55 set March 18.

"It's a herd instinct out there, as everyone wants to buy the winners," said David Orr, chief economist at First Union Capital Markets in Charlotte, N.C. "This is not economics; it's psychological."

Traders were buoyed by Friday's Labor Department report that just 46,000 new jobs were created in February, the smallest increase in three years. The report calmed investor fears that the economy was growing too fast and that the Federal Reserve might raise interest rates to slow it down.

But analysts said the rally exceeded their expectations from the jobs report. Monday was the first chance the market, which was closed for Good Friday, had to react to the numbers.

"There is nothing wrong with the economy, but is the economy that good? The answer is probably no," Orr said.

Technology stocks once again set the tone for trading.

Among Dow stocks, IBM was up 6 5/8 to 183 5/8 and Hewlett-Packard rose 3 9/16 to 71 7/16.

On the Nasdaq, Yahoo! shot up 39 3/16 to 219 1/8 as traders anticipated a strong earnings report from the Internet company on Wednesday. GeoCities and Broadcast.com, two companies Yahoo! is buying also rose more than 20 percent.

Computer maker Dell was up 2 7/8 at 44 1/16, Sun Microsystems gained 3 13/16 at 130, and Microsoft was up 2 1/4 at 94 15/16.

America Online rose 16 15/16 to 166 15/16 on the New York Stock Exchange. The online services giant declined to comment Monday on a published report that revived rumors that AOL was in talks to buy CBS. The takeover talk was the subject of a report Monday in the online edition of the San Jose Mercury News.

Online stock trading companies also traded higher after a Credit Suisse First Boston analyst issued positive comments about the sector. E-Trade Group rose 11 3/4 to 72 5/8 Charles Schwab rose 9 1/8 to 103 3/8.

Dollar rises

NEW YORK — The dollar rose against major currencies Monday as stocks rallied to record levels on Wall Street.

The yen retreated against the dollar after a report showing that sentiment among major Japanese manufacturers has improved, but remains lukewarm.

The dollar also gained against the euro amid the continuing turmoil in Yugoslavia, where NATO missiles and aircraft blasted Serbian targets for a 13th straight day while the allies readied a massive airlift for ethnic Albanian refugees.

There was no trading in Europe and some Asia-Pacific countries due Easter observances.

In late New York trading, the euro was quoted at $1.0708, down from $1.0779 late Friday. The dollar also was quoted at 121.83 Japanese yen, up from 120.55 yen on Thursday.

Analysts said the dollar drew some strength from Wall Street, where a stock rally drove the Dow Jones industrial average back above 10,000. The Dow rose 174.82 points to 10,007.33, squeezing past the March 29 closing high of 10,006.78. The Nasdaq composite index and the Standard & Poor's 500 index also set new records.

Foreign investors desiring U.S. stocks must buy dollars to transact business.

"The renewed strength of the Dow is pulling funds into the U.S. again. That's lifting the dollar against all currencies," said Douglas Porter, a senior economist with Nesbitt Burns Inc., a Toronto-based investment company subsidiary of the Bank of Montreal.

The dollar started its rise, however, during Asian trading as traders reacted negatively to the latest Tankan report, a quarterly survey of business sentiment in Japan.

The survey, released Monday, showed that Japan manufacturers grew more optimistic about the economy during the first three months of 1999, but not as much as had been forecast.

In addition, according to the survey, big companies are spending 9.4 percent less on capital investment in the current fiscal year and smaller companies are projecting a 26 percent falloff.

Crude gains

NEW YORK (AP) — Crude and its products advanced Monday on the New York Mercantile Exchange after U.N. officials said American airstrikes on Iraqi targets last week may have damaged a pipeline delivering oil.

On other markets, coffee futures fell sharply, while beef and pork futures rose sharply.

Crude edged closer to their highest levels in a year after oil experts for the United Nations, which is overseeing the sale of Iraqi oil for humanitarian purposes, reported there was a drop in flow from the Bazarkan oil fields.

Iraq previously had said missile attacks from British and American planes in the southern no-fly zone of that country had damaged a pipeline control center, although the Clinton administration denied any pipeline damage.

Iraq reported the pipeline operating as of Saturday, but experts said it was operating Monday at least 45 percent below normal capacity.

A slowdown in shipments from Iraq would come at a time when other OPEC members are moving to reduce daily output in a bid to push prices per barrel above $17. Such a sustained rally would put prices at their highest in more than a year.

Crude and unleaded gasoline prices have risen at the fastest rate since the Gulf War on those moves.

U.S. firms bruised, bailing on Russian economic crisis

MOSCOW (AP) — Dunkin' Donuts has taken its Boston Cremes back to Boston. Pizza Hut, unable to capture a large slice of the Russian market, has closed its Moscow restaurants. And Ben and Jerry's ice cream operation melted away on the rocky road of Russian capitalism.

Many of America's best known brands streamed into Russia during the early 1990s, drawn to one of the world's largest untapped markets. But Russia's notoriously difficult business climate combined with last year's financial blowout has sent dozens packing, and prompted others to lay off staff and scale back expansion plans.

"The worst case scenarios of what could have happened in a long, cold Russian winter have not played themselves out," said Scott Blacklin, president of the American Chamber of Commerce in Moscow.

"But if we get to the summer and there is no significant improvement, then I think we could see deeper disillusionment, which could lead to a serious bleeding of the American presence," he added.

The Americans are by far the largest foreign investors in Russia, with more than 500 U.S. firms operating here. Their activity peaked in 1996 and 1997 as Russia's financial markets soared and the economy hinted at growth after years of depression.

But since the economic crisis struck last August, about 50 members of the American Chamber of Commerce have left the country.

Financial services were the hardest hit, and those leaving tended to be smaller firms. Larger companies that have already invested big sums in Russia are still trying to weather the storm.

Under Prime Minister Yevgeny Primakov, the political climate has stabilized. Still, critics say the government still hasn't come up with a coherent plan to reverse the economic decline.

In a survey of Chamber of Commerce members, almost two-thirds said they have suffered "significant losses" due to the crisis and more than half said they have laid off workers.

American food franchises have been among the most high-profile entries into the Russian market, and their mixed fortunes demonstrate both the risk and potential of doing business in Russia.

When Dunkin' Donuts announced its withdrawal earlier this month, it cited sales that swooned 50 percent after the crisis.

But Dunkin' Donuts, like Pizza Hut and Ben and Jerry's, had only a few outlets in Russia. Its departure was mostly symbolic and there is by no means a shortage of American fast food.

Many of America's best-known brands, including McDonald's, shown here, streamed into Russia in the early 1990s, drawn to one of the world's largest untapped markets. But Russia's notoriously difficult business climate, combined with last year's financial downturn, has sent dozens packing.

McDonald's, for example, has 46 restaurants in Russia, and its Pushkin Square site in downtown Moscow remains the busiest McDonald's anywhere in the world, serving 20,000 customers a day.

McDonald's business slumped about 5 percent to 10 percent immediately after the crisis, but it's been steadily returning, said Glen Steeves, the head of McDonald's in Russia.

"We've always taken the long-term view that this is going to be a tremendous market," said Steeves, though the crisis did lead the company to review its short-term plans.

McDonald's opened 19 new restaurants last year, but only one so far this year. McDonald's has invested more than $130 million in Russia, and purchases 75 percent of its supplies locally, including beef. That has protected it against the collapsing ruble, which has hammered American firms that must import their supplies in dollars, and sell their wares in rubles.

A Big Mac in Russia now costs the equivalent of $1.35, significantly less than in the United States.

American enterprises run the gamut from oil companies to computer firms to law offices, and all face problems in a country with a shaky banking system, a choking bureaucracy and a Byzantine tax and legal system.

Microsoft's software is a big hit in Russia — but it's not nearly as popular as the pirated versions that sell at a fraction of the price.

Bill Gates visited Russia and noted that according to official figures, Russians were scooping up computers in large numbers — yet weren't purchasing the software needed to run them.

Microsoft to help ensure privacy for Web surfers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Microsoft Corp. and a prominent technology group will offer a free digital tool kit that promises one day to allow consumers to use next-generation computer software to restrict what personal details Web sites collect about them.

These new tools, for Internet merchants, will help companies write electronic privacy promises that can automatically be interpreted by a Web browser or other software using a promising technology called the platform for privacy preferences, or P3P.

Consumers today must manually find a company's online privacy statement, if one exists, and read through legalese to determine what personal information a Web site might be harvesting, such as their name, e-mail address or even favorite authors or clothing sizes.

Using the new technology, a customer's Internet browser could review a company's promises electronically, then issue a warning only if it can't find a privacy statement or if the Web site wants more information than a consumer has indicated a willingness to disclose.

But widespread use of the technology is at least months away, in part because of a bitter patent dispute and because it almost certainly will require the tens of millions of people on the Internet to install new browser software.

"This is going to get a lot of the system up to speed quickly," said Tara Lemmey, executive director of the San Francisco-based Electronic Frontier Foundation.

The group was expected to make its announcement with Microsoft on Tuesday, the opening day of an important privacy conference in Washington.

Both the Clinton administration and Congress have threatened the industry with tough new privacy laws — possibly by year's end — unless companies can adequately regulate themselves over ways they collect customer information across the Internet.

And the European Union already has passed laws that prohibit the transfer of personal information about its citizens without their consent to any outside country. The White House is negotiating to see how those laws might affect U.S. businesses.

"The technology they're announcing probably isn't the final answer, but it's a real positive step," said Rick White, who headed the Internet Caucus when he was a congressman from Washington state. "I'm not certain that technology will solve all the problems — there are some gaps you might have to fix in a legislative way."

The latest move is the industry's answer to what it describes as a frustrating chicken-and-egg problem: how to encourage Internet consumers to use the new privacy technology until Web sites begin to offer electronic promises that can be understood by the technology.

"What we're trying to do here is build a foundation," said Saul Klein, a group program manager at Microsoft. "We're not saying that we think this is the answer to self-regulation."

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

How do you know when you should hire a tax preparer?

Q: Do you have a rule of thumb for how complicated a tax situation should be before you go to an accountant? Doesn't computer tax software do a lot of the basic stuff a tax pro might have done for you in the past? Also, have the tax rules really changed much for 1998?

Tyson

A: I find that it's generally most beneficial for people to seek out professional tax help when they have major changes to their situation. For example, if you started a small business and will have to complete Schedule C for the first time, you will probably benefit much more from hiring a tax preparer than will someone completing his or her Schedule C for the 10th consecutive year.

That said, some people who have a stable situation might be overlooking things or making the same mistakes year after year. And such people could benefit from hiring a good tax adviser, just as they could from learning more from a good book like my "Taxes for Dummies" and/or using good tax software.

As for tax software, it can do much that a good tax pro can do. Remember, however, that software can't think for you. So in that respect, the best software is not as good as the best tax advisers. Good software can help you accurately complete a return, so long as you're entering the correct information. Good software can also help to highlight possible mistakes and oversights on your part.

While no major tax bills were passed in 1998, the 1997 tax-law changes, which added quite a number of new but relatively small perks, primarily take effect in 1998. Most of these benefits are available to non-high income earners and people with dependent children.

Q: Do you think that America Online will have problems competing with the cable companies?

A: My general philosophy is not to invest in individual stocks, so I do not track individual companies. That said, it seems to me that America Online, like other well-recognized name brands in the technology and Internet field, is selling at a premium valuation.

The last time I looked, America Online had a price-to-earnings ratio of more than 500, which is to say that even if the company increases its per share earnings by 500 percent in the years ahead, the stock is still selling at more than 100 times earnings.

So I think buying into such stocks at this point represents a risky proposition. More and more investors I talk to these days who are buying into such stocks don't even know nor seem to care what a price-earnings ratio is.

I'm not saying that people cannot still make money in such stocks, but there seems to be more danger than opportunity at this point. Such stocks could easily fall 50 percent, 75 percent or more if their revenue and profit growth disappoint investors.

Q: Are you familiar with S corporations? What are their tax pluses and minuses to establishing one for my small business?

A: One tax advantage of an S corporation is that the income or losses flow through to your personal tax return. So, especially in the early years of the business, when most businesses are losing money, that can be advantageous, because you can use your business losses to offset other income.

Many people are attracted to S corporations because they can be simpler to set up than C corporations, and they also provide the liability protection that attracts most people to corporations in the first place. Like all types of corporations, there are additional tax filings required, which cost you both time and money. So be sure that the benefits you're gaining by setting up an S corporation make up for this.

Duval's all the talk entering Masters week

By Doug Ferguson
AP Golf Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Too bad Monday was only a practice round at the Masters. David Duval took the day off.

While most everyone else was getting a look at the new rough and the two new tee boxes at Augusta National, Duval arrived at the clubhouse with little fanfare, seated backward in the back of a golf cart. That seemed only appropriate.

During the first three months of the season, Duval has left everyone in his wake. His latest conquest was Sunday in the BellSouth Classic, where he went from two strokes down to a two-stroke victory over the last four holes in which the full measure of his game was on display — brilliant chipping, solid putting, long drives and remarkable calm.

"He's definitely got something going on in his head that most people don't have," said Mark Calcavecchia. "That could be the peaceful feeling he's talking about, the thing where you hit it, find it and hit it again. He knows he's good enough that he can keep plugging away."

It was his fourth victory this year, and second time he had won back-to-back. No one else has won more than once this year.

Calcavecchia watched it all unfold on the television in Augusta's clubhouse, where he stopped for lunch before playing nine holes in fading sunlight.

"Is he going to win every tournament?" Calcavecchia said. "Four wins in the '90s is good, let alone four wins in 3 1/2 months. That's unbelievable. He's got to be the man to beat."

That proved to be a popular sentiment on Monday. The Duval Express was as hot a topic Monday as the crew-cut rough that frames the fairways and the 17th tee box that has been moved back 25 yards, finally making the best players in the world realize why President Eisenhower wanted to chop down the pine tree that looms over the left side of the fairway.

Winning four tournaments in a year is heady stuff. Since 1980, only Nick Price in 1994 has won more often in a full season. Duval still has about 16 events left this year, including the four majors.

"He's been hotter than a firecracker," said Fuzzy Zoeller. "He has a lot of talent, and it was just a matter of time before it started happening."

With his victory in The Players Championship two weeks ago, Duval rose to No. 1 in the world ranking, ending Tiger Woods' reign at 41 weeks. He still lacks a major championship, and being the heavy favorite at Augusta doesn't always guarantee a green jacket.

The last player who came to the Masters on this kind of a roll and managed to win was Fred Couples in 1992.

"He hasn't won a major yet," Couples said. "But he's won 11 of the last 34 times he's played. That's borderline ridiculous. I don't know of anyone else who's done that."

The last player to put together such a stretch was Tom Watson in 1980. To find someone who has already won four times going into the Masters, go all the way back to Johnny Miller in 1974.

Miller finished in a tie for 15th in the Masters that year, but he bagged his four victories before he even got to the Florida swing. Duval comes into the Masters riding the confidence of having won the past two weeks.

"I think my head is where it needs to be," Duval said. "I think my golf swing is where it needs to be. It is in a good spot right now."

All he needs now is rest, which is why he didn't even bother to bring his clubs down Magnolia Lane when he registered. Duval always takes Monday off, and there's no reason to change that this week.

More than anything, Duval attributes his success this year to his frame of mind. He won in Hawaii, took a week off to go snowboarding in Idaho, then came back and shot a 59 on Sunday to win the Hope Classic.

Vikings sign George to back up Cunningham at quarterback

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings, who were led to the NFC championship game last season by Randall Cunningham, are taking a chance on another quarterback with something to prove.

The Vikings announced Monday they have reached a contract agreement with Jeff George to serve as Cunningham's backup. Terms weren't announced, but the Star Tribune of Minneapolis and the Saint Paul Pioneer Press reported George, the starter for Oakland the last two seasons, would get $400,000 under a one-year contract.

"Signing Jeff George is a big plus for our Viking program," coach Dennis Green said. "Jeff is a very talented quarterback with a competitive mentality. He has proved that he has the physical tools and the right mental makeup to be successful in the NFL."

The Vikings felt compelled to find a strong backup for Cunningham after they traded Brad Johnson to Washington in February. Johnson was the Vikings starter until injuries sidelined him for much of last season, giving Cunningham the chance to step in and lead the team's high-powered offense.

Cunningham had the best year of his career and, despite his age — 36 — the Vikings opted to keep him instead of Johnson, who said he wanted to start or be traded.

The Vikings will be George's fourth team. Indianapolis selected him as the top pick in the 1990 draft. He also played for Atlanta and Oakland.
