Carter Pledges U.S. To Resist Terrorism

Issues Of Principle Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter halted oil imports from Iran on Monday, declaring that America will not bow to economic pressure or terrorism in its efforts to protect "the lives of our people" held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Carter said he was cutting off Iranian oil imports, which account for at least four percent of daily American consumption, "to eliminate any suggestion that economic pressures can weaken our stand on basic issues of principle."

He said the Iranians, who have held the embassy and some 60 Americans hostage since Nov. 4, are trying "to force unacceptable demands on our country."

"Many Clients"

Iranian authorities insisted however that they already had decided to cut off shipments of oil to the United States before Carter's announcement and planned to sell the oil to other customers. "We have many clients, we can sell it with no problem," said Iran's oil minister, Ali Moinfar.

Iran's decision to continue selling oil to other customers lessens chances of shortages in the United States. Customers buying the Iranian oil that had been earmarked for the U.S. market are expected to cut back purchases from their regular suppliers. That oil will then be available to U.S. companies.

The students occupying the embassy have demanded that the United States surrender the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi for trial as a war criminal. The shah is hospitalized in New York for cancer treatment.

The president said it is vital to the United States and the world that diplomatic personnel be protected, "and that we refuse to permit the use of terrorism and the seizure and the holding of hostages to impose political demands."

No Change Reported

U.S. officials said, earlier in the day, that there had been no apparent change in the condition of the American hostages.

In his statement, nationally broadcast from the White House press room, Carter said, "No one should underestimate the resolve of the American government and the American people in this matter."

He then ordered a ban on the purchase of "any oil from Iran for delivery to this country." He said the move must be part of an international effort to secure release of the American hostages.

In announcing the ban on Iranian oil, Carter warned that his action will present a "real challenge" to the nation and will test American strength and determination.

He said he has asked the Energy Department to develop conservation measures and promised to work for fair and equitable distribution of short fuel supplies.

A spokesman for the American Petroleum Institute, an industry lobbying group, said it would take four to six weeks for any effect of the prohibition to be felt because of the amount of Iranian oil already enroute to refineries.

The White House is considering asking the nation's governors to attend a meeting in Washington, this week, at which President Carter would discuss conservation steps that would reduce oil consumption.

Carter said: "America does face a difficult task and a test. Our response will measure our character and our courage. I know that we Americans will not fail."

He praised Americans for their restraint, despite scattered anti-Iranian incidents across the country.

He urged Americans to keep calm "despite the intensity of our emotions." He added:

"The lives of our people in Iran are at stake."

Carter's decision marked a departure from the U.S. attitude last week, which was to take no action that might be viewed as hostile by the Iranians holding the hostages.

A senior U.S. official said of the end to oil purchases, "There is a strong feeling it will not jeopardize the hostages." Asked if the move would help win the release of the hostages, he replied, "No one can say that with any certainty."

Following Carter's statement, White House officials said the administration intended to remove the U.S. oil purchases as a factor in any decision reached later by policymakers.

Mexico Shuts Down Embassy In Tehran

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexico, which once hosted the ailing Shah of Iran, Monday announced it was temporarily closing its embassy in Iran because of "the situation prevailing in that country."

A four-paragraph Foreign Ministry statement did not refer specifically to the 60 to 65 hostages being held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, nor to strained Mexican-Iranian relations since the ousted Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi came to live in Mexico.

There was also no reference to President Carter's announcement banning Iranian oil from the United States.

It noted that the measure "is of temporary character and is due exclusively to the situation prevailing in that country, which does not guarantee that our diplomatic mission in Tehran can continue operating."

The communique said Mexico's business attache and other embassy personnel already had left Teheran, and added that the Mexican government will continue to provide the Iranian Embassy in Mexico with all guarantees.

Relations between Iran and Mexico have been strained since the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime ousted the shah, and took a turn for the worse when the monarch and his family came to live in Mexico on June 10.

The shah was leading a quiet life in the plush resort of Cuernavaca, 50 miles south of Mexico City, until he went New York for cancer treatment last month.

Basques Kidnap Spanish Official

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The Basque separatist organization ETA said Monday it had kidnapped one of Premier Adolfo Suarez' top aides, and demanded amnesty for Basque prisoners and withdrawal of national police from the Basque region in exchange for his safe release.

A telephone caller claiming to represent the ETA told the news media in the Basque city of Bilbao that the organization was responsible for the abduction, Sunday morning, of Javier Ruperez.

Ruperez, 38, was kidnapped as he left his Madrid home to preside over a conference of Suarez-style centrists from more than 20 Latin American nations. The abduction came almost three weeks after residents of the Basque region voted for home rule. The ETA wants full independence for the region.

Amnesty Denied

Suarez has repeatedly said he would not grant amnesty to the more than 100 Basque prisoners, mostly ETA men, in Spanish jails. Authorities blame ETA for more than half the 112 political killings in Spain so far this year.

ETA's statement came as police questioned more than 100 Spaniards and some foreigners in a widening search for Ruperez. Police dogs roamed a wooded area on Madrid's outskirts in a search of the missing official.

Ruperez' car was found by police early Monday in a park about a mile from his home, the door on the driver's side was open and the keys were missing. Police said there were no signs of violence.

The ETA statement read over the telephone said the kidnapping was part of its new campaign for release of Basque political prisoners. It accused the government of "responding with torture and assassinations" to the demand for amnesty.

Party Held Responsible

"It was not casual that we have decided to attack the ruling party again, as it is mainly responsible for the repressive acts which have occurred lately" in the Basque reion of northern Spain, the statement said. It did not elaborate.

Ruperez' family also issued a statement appealing for his release.

"Javier always has been a fighter for the defense of democratic liberties and human rights," his family said.

Ruperez is a member of Parliament and the foreign affairs expert of Suarez' Union of the Democratic Center coalition.

Spanish political leaders, including Socialist leader Felipe Gonzalez and Communist leader Santiago Carrillo, condemned the kidnaping and demanded his safe release.

"We must not accept the condition set by ETA," Carrillo said. "If ETA agrees with the Basque statute, it must release Ruperez safe and sound and without any conditions. We cannot speak of amnesty until terrorism stops."

Forest Ranger Killed

In Oyzrzun, outside the Basque capital of San Sebastian, four gunmen believed by police to be ETA guerrillas shot to death a forest ranger, Monday. The attack followed ETA's acknowledged wounding of two paramilitary civil guards, 36 hours earlier, near the Basque city of Vitoria.

The ETA also was blamed for an explosion at a partially constructed nuclear energy plant, Monday near Bilbao, that caused an estimated $6.1 million in damage. Ten employees were tied up but not injured. The plant has been a previous ETA target.

GOVERNOR JOINS GROUP

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements became the first Texas governor Monday to join the Texas Public Employees Association. "You want my signature or my check first?" he asked Gary Hughes, executive director of TPEA, at a brief public ceremony.

Plane Crash Probed For Drugs Link

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

AUTHORITIES suspect that a twin-engine plane that crashed near Tucumcari, N.M., killing a Lubbock man, may have been carrying drugs.

Officials from the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board are investigating the wreckage in which the bodies of David Alan Jones, 33, of Lubbock, and Michael O'Keefe, 31, of Bremerton, Wash., were found Monday.

Authorities said the plane had been missing since Oct. 30 on a flight from Grand Junction, Colo., to Lubbock, but they could not explain why the aircraft was not reported missing until Friday. The search for the plane, which began Saturday, also was hampered by the pilot's failure to file a flight plan with the FAA.

George Baker, chief of the Denver field office for the National Transportation Safety Board, said that although it had not been confirmed Monday, authorities suspect that drugs may have been aboard the downed plane.

Pilot Is Lubbockite

Jones of 5427 Ave. B, the pilot of the Cessna 310, was a part-time employee of Sky-Breeze Aviation Inc. in Lubbock. A spokesman for the Department of Public Safety in Lubbock said Jones also was a national officer in the Bandidos motorcycle club.

The bodies were removed by helicopter from the wreckage, located in an area of rolling hills about 20 miles southwest of Tucumcari, and taken to Albuquerque for autopsies, said Tom Reese with the New Mexico State Police.

Reese speculated that the plane, spotted from the air by Civil Air Patrol searchers, had been down for at least four days.

Rough, Hilly Terrain

Don Davis, a CAP spokesman in Tucumcari, said the plane was located about 10 a.m. (CST) in an area where it was last recorded on radar. He said debris from the plane was scattered in a hilly terrain spotted by Mesquite trees and salt cedars. The plane had not burned, he added.

CAP spokesman Earl Livingston said the search had been concentrated in Colorado until this weekend, when a radar trace indicated the aircraft apparently

Times Of London Back On Streets

LONDON (AP) — The Times of London was back on the streets, Monday night, after an 11½-month shutdown caused by labor disputes.

The return of the 194-year-old newspaper, which had never ceased publication before, was delayed by a last-minute hitch — a dispute between two print unions over who would press the start button on the presses. Union leaders worked out a temporary settlement and the presses rolled.

The Times has been off the streets since Nov. 30, 1978, when the publishers, Times Newspapers Ltd., stopped producing the paper, its stablemate, The Sunday Times, and three weekly supplements because of a complex dispute with print unions over manning levels and the thorny problem of computerized printing.

Texas Congressmen Back Cutoff Move

PRESIDENT Carter's move to cut off U.S. oil imports from Iran received strong support Monday from Texas lawmakers, including Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and U.S. Rep. Kent Hance.

"I am in total agreement with the president on the oil cutoff," said Bentsen, while Hance termed the decision "a good move."

"It was inevitable that the Iranians would have ultimately done this anyway, but we beat them to the punch for a change," Bentsen said.

Spare Parts Withheld

"I am also pleased that the president has moved to stop sales of military spare parts to Iran and to deport Iranian students who take part in illegal demonstrations in this country," the Texas senator said.

But, both lawmakers warned that the oil import halt will require stricter conservation of energy by Americans.

Hance said the cutoff, which will remove 750,000 barrels of oil from American imports each day, could be balanced "if every American drives two miles less per day."

While the Lubbock congressman stressed that freeing the American hostages in Iran is a "number one priority," he also said, "I don't think waiting in line to get gasoline is too much to ask to get people to stand up and to economically, politically and militarily draw the line."

Hance disagreed with those who suggest sending military troops to Iran to free the hostages. He said such a move was unfeasible because U.S. would not have "the element of surprise."

Unsound Leadership

He also is against taking Iranian students in the United States hostage, saying, "The person leading their government is not a sound person. Just because they're breaking international law doesn't mean we should."

Hance said he thinks the oil import halt is "temporary until there is a change in government" in Iran.

He said the decrease in oil imports could be offset by "the spot market in Amsterdam, where companies without long range contracts sell oil, and possible gasoline lines developing on the west and east coasts."

U.S. Sen. John Tower's office was closed for the Veteran's Day holiday and he could not be reached for comment on the president's decision.

Comet Chase Proposed By NASA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is proposing an international space mission that would send a spacecraft to Halley's Comet and then chase another comet across the sky.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Monday that the four-year mission to the comets Halley and Tempel 2 would return the first closeup pictures of these dazzling bodies and significantly increase man's knowledge of the phenomena.

Although the project has not yet been approved by Congress, the space agency asked scientists to propose experiments so more detailed planning could begin.

The spacecraft would be launched by the space shuttle in July 1985 to coincide with the long-anticipated return of Halley's Comet, last seen by observers on Earth in 1910.

Halley's is the most famous comet, a cold collection of ice, gases and dust that goes around the sun about once every 75 years.

HSCH Job Applications Studied

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

COUNTY hospital district officials are considering several applications for administrator of Health Sciences Center Hospital, and they may have narrowed the applicants down to a pair front runners.

Lubbock County Hospital District board members are seeking an executive director for the teaching hospital to replace Brookwood Management Services, the Birmingham, Ala., group which ran the hospital from August through October.

LCHD board members decided not to hire Brookwood for an additional two years at a recent board meeting, making the search for an executive director a top priority. Dub Rushing, board vice chairman, talked briefly about the progress of the search after Monday's regular weekly board meeting.

"We have some applications that really thrill us," Rushing admitted. He declined to release names of applicants, saying to do so would jeopardize their present jobs.

"We will be more cautious in hiring an executive director than in the past," Rushing said. Board members don't feel they can afford another change in management too soon, he said.

"There are two that look particularly good," Rushing said of the applicants. The board members went into closed executive session Monday afternoon to discuss the applicants.

But Rushing stressed that the group expects several more applications and will not make a hasty decision. He said that interim administrator Charles Roberts has done a great deal for morale at the hospital and can run the operation successfully until permanent help is found.

Rushing said that Brookwood's stay at the hospital had made the search for a new executive director easier. Though the board did not approve of all of Brookwood's methods, he said, the firm's personnel cleared up enough of the hospital's problems to make the executive director's position attractive to more qualified people.

"That makes this job not insurrmountable," Rushing said. "It's no cinch," he admitted, but said that the problems still facing the hospital — mainly financial — have been simplified.

During the business meeting, board member Don McInturff asked for a report on the payment of hospital vendors — those people owed money for services supplied to the hospital. It was recently necessary to cash a $200,000 certificate of deposit to cover a backlog of bills, many of which dated back to August.

Oscar Will, the hospital's chief accountant, reported to the board that hospital employees had mailed out payment checks Brookwood personnel had been holding. Those accounts, amounting to $560,000, are over 60 days old, Will said.

Rushing repeated to the board information which had been alluded to in previous meetings — that Brookwood representatives had been understating their accounts payable figures. Interim

Slight Warming Trend Predicted

A slight warming trend is expected to relieve the winter-like conditions on the the South Plains early today, sending the mercury up as much as 10 degrees higher than the 49 degrees it registered Monday.

The weather across the region should continue to be fair, with nearly cloudless skies and easterly winds at five to 10 mph during the day. Only isolated showers are forecast through Wednesday, according to the National Weather Service.

Today's predicted high of near 60 degrees comes as a high pressure system to the northwest of the South Plains continues to build and push slightly warmer and drier air through the area.

The sunny skies seen across the South Plains will be shared by most of the nation today.

Appraisal District Vote Slated

Lubbock public school trustees are scheduled to cast their votes Wednesday for the five-member board of directors which will govern the Lubbock County tax appraisal district.

The candidates nominated by the various taxing entities in the county are Mabry Brock and Lynn Stafford, nominated by the Lubbock Independent School District; Ray Diekemper and Joe Horkey, nominated by the City of Lubbock; Paul E. Crosnoe, nominated by the New Deal Independent School District; Donald Martin, nominated by the Shallowater Independent School District and Bill Nelson, nominated by the Frenship Independent School District and the city of Wolfforth.

Each voting unit in the district must cast its ballots by Thursday.

Each taxing authority is allowed a number of votes based on the amount of taxes it levies annually. Thus the Lubbock school district will be entitled to 43.8 percent of the votes and in combination with the City of Lubbock will be able to elect four of the five directors.

The elected directors are scheduled to take office Jan. 1.

The appraisal district, mandated by S.B. 621 during the last legislative session, is aimed at consolidating the numerous taxing entities of each county into one district in order to achieve uniform taxation and assessment.

In other business, the board is expected to consider a request for four additional school bus aides to ride the special education bus routes.

Superintendent Ed Irons said the district now employs 10 aides for 19 bus routes, compared to 15 aides employed last year for 15 routes.

Irons said four of the routes are for special education students who need the "constant supervision" that the extra aides would provide.

He said the aides could be employed at a cost of about $12,800.

Board members will also hear a request by the League of Women Voters that Lubbock governmental bodies establish written guidelines outlining the procedure for filling vacancies in office and publish the qualifications for candidates.

The board will meet at the Administration Building, 1628 19th St.

AN EDITORIAL:

Revisit To Three Mile Island

THERE MAY BE some question as to what the commission investigating the Three Mile Island accomplished, but none as to what it did not do, i.e., determine the role nuclear power is to play in our energy future.

The 12-member panel of scientists and laymen took six months to wade through voluminous statistics and analyses, inform itself of the state of the art of reactor construction and study existing government regulatory procedures.

It came to the conclusion that there can be "no guarantee that there will be no (future) accidents." No one, of course, ever said nuclear or any power generating system was infallible.

Moreover, the recommendations it made are nothing more than common sense precautions such as tighter safety procedures and greater care in selection of and sites for construction of nuclear plants.

THE COMMISSION'S effort appears to have brought us right back to where we started—wondering where we go from here in the development of nuclear energy.

However, if we haven't been given any answers, at least some questions have been posed that may sharpen the focus of debate and guide it toward an eventual consensus we can live with (no pun intended).

The commission has been roundly criticized for emphasizing the human factor of the accident, thereby allegedly letting the industry "off the hook" by passing no judgment on the hardware and techniques presently employed in nuclear power generation.

The commission sees errors on the part of reactor operators, compounded by the follow-up performance of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission as having escalated an essentially minor malfunction into a crisis.

BUT IF THE uncertainties about nuclear power are ever to be resolved, the human factor in a larger sense may be precisely where the emphasis should be placed.

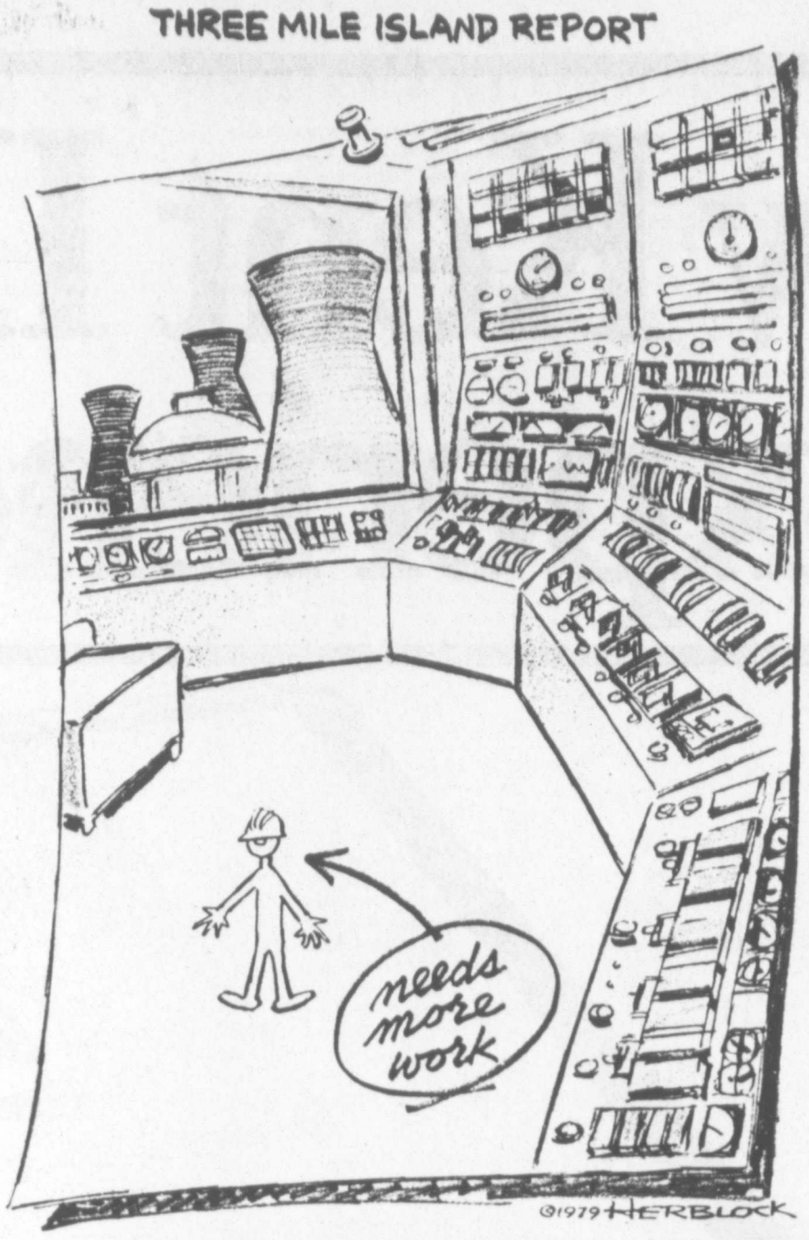
Hardware and techniques do not create themselves. If the industry is encouraged to return to the drawing boards, instead of being put on the defensive by withering castigation, it might improve both.

In the quarter of a century since nuclear power became a reality, it has not yet delivered the wonders promised by its more enthusiastic proponents. But it has come much further than its skeptics expected.

IT DOES generate approximately 13 percent of the national electric power supply, a substantial proportion, the loss of which would cause severe problems. It might be taken as an appropriate reflection of public opinion that the commission could not reach agreement on a moratorium on new plants.

Resolving differences is going to take some doing, but it must be done. To put it in a Churchillian context, the end, or even the beginning of the end, is not in sight. But we may now be seeing the end of the beginning.

THREE MILE ISLAND REPORT



JOSEPH SOBRAN:

Saga Of S. Africa

WASHINGTON—America, "dedicated to a proposition," is a paradox: a universal nation. The French don't insist that anyone can become a Frenchman, but we like to think that anyone can become an American.

In fact a French immigrant has written a book with the title—is it partly Gallic irony?—"On Becoming An American."

The irony is apt to be lost on us. We tend to look on all mankind as potential Americans, and even our foreign policy can be shaped by our irritation with those who are slow to Americanize.

In our own guilt at the treatment of black Americans, we are increasingly censorious toward South Africa.

Its regime is infinitely milder than those of the Communist world, but Communism tyrannizes without regard to race. We are obsessed with the unseemliness of a system where whites openly rule blacks.

IT ISN'T that we have no right to criticize other countries. Though we have no right to prescribe to them, we have every right to measure them against our ideals and to judge their policies in the light of the proposition we are dedicated to.

And I have known hardheaded realists to be as revolted by the humiliation of South Africa's blacks as by the poverty of India's beggars.

But there are crude ways of judging South Africa, ways exemplified by those who have condemned promoter Bob Arum and the World Boxing Assn. for staging a heavyweight championship bout in Pretoria.

Arum & Co. got large concessions from the South African government: the fight itself pitted a black against a white, a match that would have been illegal until recently. In addition, the huge sports arena was integrated for the first time, and will remain so.

BUT ARUM is under attack for settling for something less than total revolution. The white regime, according to the critics, "used" the WBA to buy time and gain respectability, in return for "cosmetic" concessions which will not affect the abiding policies of apartheid.

The charge comes oddly from the likes of Jesse Jackson, who demands something less than instant reform as his fee for singing along with Yasser Arafat.

The government of Pieter Botha is in fact making substantial changes in the country's racial policies. Blacks are now allowed to form their own labor unions.

Restaurants and theaters are now being integrated. New commissions, dominated by blacks, are studying proposals for deeper structural reforms. Anyone who is not possessed by a raging lust to damn South Africa should at least take these things into account.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP bout itself represented reforms too deep to be dismissed as cosmetic.

It was the biggest sports event in South Africa's history, and its symbolism included the principle that a black should be free to compete on equal terms with a white.

In 1947 Jackie Robinson was the only black player in the major leagues, but it would be silly to say his presence was merely "cosmetic," even though he played in cities where public facilities remained segregated. The integration of those cities today is his monument.

If introducing principles into history is thankless, keeping them out is impossible. Lincoln was not being rhetorical, he was being sensible, when he said that a nation cannot permanently remain half-slave and half-free.

You can't have a freedom that makes grotesque exceptions, as by requiring freemen to help capture fugitive slaves.

White South Africans are finding they can't preserve their liberty while rigidly limiting that of others. Laws that forbid blacks to mix with whites also forbid whites to mix with blacks.

APARTHEID WAS doomed all along. As the South African economist W.H. Hutt wrote in 1965, "Apartheid, even if softened by successive modifications, will prove to have been an ephemeral episode, a mere stage in the rapidly changing relations between races."

Hutt looked forward to the day when the pressure of the free market, rewarding production without respect to color, would dissolve racial barriers. His own words suggest how artificial those barriers have seemed even to whites.

Botha seems to be giving the country the leadership it needs. But the real source of whatever hope there is must be the people of South Africa themselves.

They are increasingly ready to subordinate racial and tribal differences—which are real and important—to common interests; out of which may come what Garry Wills speaks of as the deeper "social affections" that give nations their real unity.

Afrikaners and Bantus will not become Americans, but they deserve a chance to become South Africans.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

THE BIG movie makers in Hollywood signed their actors and actresses to standardized contracts. But those for the actresses weren't the same as those for the actors.

The actresses were supposed to get five extra days off every month. No such provision was in the men's contracts. Theory was that a natural matter need be considered. Supposedly, actresses faces puffed up periodically, making them unphotogenic.

Q. Why are masquerade parties prohibited by law in New York City?

A. They're banned only in public places. Police lobbied it through years ago. They got nervous whenever a bunch of citizens started running around wearing face masks.

Q. Of any of the various things you'd customarily keep in your bathroom medicine chest, which is the best seller?

A. Tylenol is No. 1. No. 2 is Crest.

Q. How far can a camel spit with any accuracy?

A. Up to 50 yards.

Q. Can Adolph Hitler's book "Mein Kampf" be sold in West Germany?

A. Can now. The West German Supreme Court only recently legalized it. It had been a black market item for the three previous decades.

Another family secret was disclosed recently. Lettuce is related to the dandelion.

AN EDITORIAL:

Mayor Takes Rap For Crime

NOT MANY people had heard of Maynard Holbrook Jackson in 1968 when he ran against and lost to Sen. Herman Talmadge, who, recently rebuked by his colleagues in the Senate, may be serving his last term.

One plank of Jackson's platform called for stringent gun controls, a factor which contributed to his losing 157 of 159 counties.

Today, Jackson is in his second term as mayor of Atlanta, a city reeling under a crime spree that has resulted in more of its people being murdered as of Nov. 1 than in all of 1978.

The transformation of Georgia politics in the interim and the anticipated demise of Talmadge's clout may augur a defeat for the senior senator in 1980.

But if a strong challenge to Talmadge is mounted, conventional wisdom has it that it won't be by Maynard Jackson.

JACKSON'S CRITICS blame him for Atlanta's crime rate as well as for the failure of Georgia's predominately rural legislature to pass any gun control legislation.

The Atlanta Constitution said editorially that Mayor Jackson could spoil the chances for success of gun control laws in the 1980 Georgia General Assembly.

The Constitution's formulation is that much of the anti-gun control feeling among Georgia's state lawmakers is thinly disguised anti-Atlanta sentiment.

Atlanta's murder rate, while terrifyingly real to Atlanta's citizens, is low in comparison to other American cities. It is also part of a demographic trend in violent crime.

FBI STATISTICS indicate that four of the five metropolitan areas with the highest murder rates are now located in the Sun Belt. They are:

Houston, 18 (murders per 100,000 population); Los Angeles/Long Beach, 16; Miami, 15.6; and Dallas/Fort Worth, 15.2. Second to Houston is the New York-New Jersey metropolitan area, 17.1.

Murder is the best indicator of overall criminal activity, crime experts say, because murders are almost always discovered and reported, if not solved.

Consequently, Mayor Jackson's political future may have been shot down in part by demographic trends beyond his power to control.

No one ever said the life of a big-city mayor is easy. But Maynard Jackson surely must wonder these days whether that first plunge into national politics in 1968 should have been his last.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Zbig Hits Big Time

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Zbigniew Brzezinski's quiet ascent in Jimmy Carter's constellation of foreign and military advisers has given him enough new clout to reduce the power of his controversial deputy, David Aaron, a protege of Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

Without fanfare or even internal announcement, Aaron has lost his authority over some of the most delicate areas of foreign policy: the U.S.-European economic connection, U.S. policy toward the Third World (a world now dominated by Cuba's pro-Soviet Fidel Castro) and others.

Aaron was named Brzezinski's deputy by President Carter out of deference to Mondale shortly after the 1976 election.

He had served as Mondale's agent on the Senate committee that investigated—and drastically whittled down—the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) during the Ford administration.

His removal from the line of command in European and Third World economic-political matters enhances Brzezinski's power and that of other National Security Council staff men more concerned than Aaron about growing Soviet power.

FORMER PRESIDENT Ford told breakfasting reporters on Oct. 18 that he would never, never raise the question of Chappaquiddick in attacking Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's qualifications for the presidency.

In the next breath, Ford said he certainly would not think of committing U.S. troops to the Mideast to guarantee Israel's security.

The unmistakable target of those two promises was John B. Connally, the Republican presidential candidate who: 1) has hit the Chappaquiddick issue harder than any other politician; and 2) has proposed an offer of U.S. troops to help satisfy Israel's security demands.

Ford also said he would never, never publicly criticize the statements of any Republican presidential candidate. And disagreements that the titular leader of his party may have with his fellow Republicans would be transmitted privately, Ford said.

The reporters got the hint. While downplaying direct public attack on Connally, Ford let it come through crystal clear that Connally is not his choice for the Republican nomination (a preference that most party leaders think Ford has reserved for George Bush).

A HALF-HOUR campaign film now being edited is developing into an overriding theme for President Carter's re-election campaign: to persuade skeptical voters that he really is competent.

Robert Squier, the crack Washington-based filmmaker, was given full access to the White House for two days to depict the President as he has not been seen by the public.

The results were some dramatic scenes of Carter in action, particularly in conducting a Cabinet meeting.

At one point in that Cabinet meeting a sensitive point was reached and two or three Cabinet members pointed in alarm to the movie cameras. "No," said Carter, "these are my cameras." They stayed.

THE CHANGE in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's political demeanor since he signalled his availability for the presidency is typified by the background of his recent campaign trip for John Y. Brown Jr., who voters last week chose as their Democratic governor-elect of Kentucky.

The initiative came not from Brown but from Kennedy, who suggested travelling to Kentucky on Brown's behalf. With fried chicken millionaire Brown well in the lead and Kentucky's delegates expected to be closely contested between Kennedy and President Carter, Kennedy needs Brown much more than Brown needs him.

Insiders believe Brown now leans slightly to Kennedy on the basis of personal affinity. But Kennedy is ideologically well to Brown's left, and the new governor of Kentucky might well end up with Carter.

PRESIDENT CARTER unwittingly cast new gloom over the slowly recovering Central Intelligence Agency with his offhand return to 1976 election year sloganeering in a White House meeting with out-of-town broadcasters on Oct. 17.

Reverting for the first time in months to CIA abuses of years ago, a sure sign of the approach of the 1980 campaign, Carter used the old formulation of "Vietnam, Watergate and CIA violations of the law" to lambast his predecessors in office.

"That was devastating to the CIA," one high-level administration official told us. "Those guys were just starting to recover and now the President without even realizing what he is doing hits them all over again."

DONALD F. GRAFF

Job For The Mob

WASHINGTON—While there is nothing positive to be read into the seizure of the U.S. embassy in Tehran, there may be one least-negative consequence.

The outrage has simplified the political situation in Iran. It has compelled Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan to make good on his repeated threats to resign.

Now "de jure (and) de facto" authorities in Iran are one and the same—the Ayatollah Khomeini?

In fact, there is some reason to believe that the attack on the embassy was instigated in part for precisely this purpose.

It has enabled the religious extremists within the fragmented revolutionary ranks to neutralize the few pragmatic political figures who have had the effrontery to attempt to act like a government and to deal on civilized terms with other governments.

THE ISSUE of the ailing shah's presence in the United States may be a superbly convenient pretext serving this end and in the process propelling this country once more into the domestic political infighting of yet another erstwhile ally.

The embassy seizure may be news, but there is certainly nothing new in the violation of diplomatic turf.

That has been going on as long as potentates have been exchanging envoys. There were Hittites in the capitals of the pharaohs and Greeks at the courts of the shah's and ayatollah's imperial Persian predecessors.

Modern diplomatic niceties such as immunity of person and property are, however, essentially a European refinement imposed upon the rest of the world.

AND IT IS to the West's recurring surprise that portions of that world from time to time suddenly decide not to play by the rules.

At one time the penalty could be swift and irresistible. China's Boxer Rebellion on 1900 sent an eight-nation international army marching to the relief of beseiged embassies in Peking.

But in a contemporary world where the distribution and application of power are more complex matters, that sort of response it out of favor. It can be self-defeating, strengthening popular support for the very violators being punished.

Not that the ayatollah would appear to be weak in that area at present. But situations can change rapidly, particularly revolutionary situations, as he himself keeps demonstrating.

HE MAY have rid himself of inconvenient political frontmen in this latest escapade, but he has also very likely added moderate politicians to a growing opposition that already includes leftists, rebellious Arabs and Kurds and a chunk of the armed forces.

What else he has accomplished is difficult to say. He has proved again that a mob can seize a few unarmed foreigners, but he has not been able to force his will upon another government.

He has shown his power to inflame the public but has not brought public order to Iran, only continuing turmoil and rule by terror rather than law.

His is the sort of authoritarian, destructive performance that in the end may well prove him to have been his own worst enemy.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Nader's New Crusade Unsafe For Columnist

LOS ANGELES—Self-styled consumerist Ralph Nader is currently waging a legal crusade which could result in a sharp restriction of freedom of the press.

Nader has made it his vocation to level scathing criticisms at business institutions and others who don't agree with his peculiar vision of the regulated life.

In many cases, the charges he makes are inflammatory and misleading—but his right to throw about such accusations, in the rough and tumble of political debate, has been taken for granted.

It appears, however, that while Nader likes to dish it out, he doesn't like to take it.

Witness his libel action against syndicated columnist Ralph de Toledano, which has tangled the columnist up in court for many months, drained his financial resources, and put a freeze on his ability to ply his trade where Nader is concerned.

THE NADER-Toledano cases had its genesis in a Senate committee staff report concerning Nader's charges against the Corvair automobile.

Nader alleged the Corvair was unsafe, that General Motors had test data and other information that showed it was unsafe, and that the company suppressed these data and went ahead with the marketing of the vehicle anyway.

These charges of deceit and reckless disregard of safety against GM drew widespread public notice, and the attention of a Senate committee chaired by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

The committee staff conducted an exhaustive inquiry into the matter, and found that Nader's inflammatory charges were without substance.

Though the committee staffers politely expressed the view that Nader had made his allegations in good faith, they refuted his thesis, point by point.

ENTER TOLEDANO, a long-time Nader critic, who wrote a column about the Ribicoff committee staff report.

Toledano summarized the import of the committee's researches by saying that Ribicoff had "devoted some 250 devastating columns of the Congressional Record to demonstrate conclusively that Nader falsified and distorted evidence to make his case against the automobile." It is for this statement that Nader is suing Toledano—to the tune of $1 million.

By the current standards of libel law, to sue someone on such a basis is, to put it mildly, strange. Nader is a "public figure," and the prevailing law of libel is that, to prove the libel of a public figure, it is necessary to demonstrate deliberate and malicious falsification.

It is hard to see how such a description could be applied to Toledano's characterization of the committee report—which did, after all, knock Nader's charges against the Corvair into a cocked hat.

NADER'S CONTENTION, however, is that since the committee staffers had said he had made his egregious errors in "good faith," Toledano's charges about "falsifying" and "distortion" constituted a reckless libel.

This argument has so far received at least minimal countenance from the courts, since a divided Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia has refused the columnist's request for summary judgment to throw the Nader charges out.

How the courts will ultimately rule in this matter is anybody's guess. Suffice it to say that, while the case drags on, it has a crippling effect on Toledano, who can hardly muster the legal resources available to Nader, and has the effect of muzzling him concerning Nader's activities.

And were the Nader plea eventually to succeed—which seems improbable on the face of it, but cannot be precluded as long as the case is still alive—the effect would be to contract severely the range of freedom to comment available not only to Ralph de Toledano, but to all other journalists.

High Interest Rates Being Blamed For Drop In Mortgage Loans

A-J News Services

High interest rates and other factors caused Lubbock mortgage loans to fall $33.6 million or 39.4 percent in the first eight months of this year, a Texas Senate committee has been told in Austin.

A Texas Savings and Loan League representative told the Senate Interim Committee on Financial Institutions that, altogether, mortgage loans over Texas dropped by $1.2 billion through August of 1979 compared to the same period last year.

"Virtually every area of Texas has suffered a sharp decline in lending activity in 1979," said Pat Malone, administrative vice president of the league.

Malone cited a report showing that, in the Lubbock area, total mortgage loans closed dropped 39.4 percent, single-family mortgage loans 44.3 percent, construction loans 65.1 percent, new commitments to make mortgage loans 32.6 percent and net savings flow into savings and loan associations 59.3 percent.

In Lubbock, contractor Sam Reyes said the federal government "attacked" the housing industry by raising interest rates in its attempt to curb inflation.

"It doesn't surprise me," Reyes, president of the West Texas Home Builders Association, said of the report. "I hate to see it because it appears that the government is attacking the wrong source.

"If they kept up at this rate, it could put 1½ million people out of work nationwide and just put a bunch of people back on welfare."

Reyes said his association and national representatives of home builders have gotten indications that interest rates have peaked out, however.

"If they have peaked, maybe it won't throw us into such a terrible recession," he said. "Maybe we'll be able to pull out of it.

"We are going to see the most impact in December and January because people are still, to some extent, employed in the housing industry now, but it's because of stuff that was already on line" before the rates went into effect.

Malone told the senate committee that the dollar volume of mortgage loans made by Texas savings and loan associations dropped by 24 percent during the first eight months of this year and single-family mortgage loans by nearly 30 percent.

Those figures compare to declines of 6 percent on mortgage loans and 4 percent on single-family mortgage loans nationally during the same period.

"The pace of mortgage lending activity had dropped markedly even before the sharp increase in interest rates in October," Malone said.

Statistics presented to the committee in a report entitled "Texas Mortgage Markets" showed that Texas savings and loan associations have closed $4 billion in mortgage loans during the first eight months of this year compared to $5.2 billion during the same period of 1978.

The report was prepared by California consulting firm Kaplan, Smith and Associates and presented by Malone, who blamed Texas interest rate ceilings on the decline in mortgage loans closed and in forcing Texas savings and loan associations out of the secondary mortgage market.

Another witness was Dr. Joseph Ewers of the University of Texas Finance Department, who also blamed the interest ceilings for the decline in mortgage loans closed and advocated a free market system in Texas.

"The mortgage market is sufficiently competitive that no ceiling is necessary," Dr. Ewers said.

Abilene, Bryan, College Station and Wichita Falls were the only areas in the state to show any increase in mortgage loans, and much of the increase at Wichita Falls was attributed to tornado damage in the city earlier this year.

In a related development today, a spokesman for the Texas savings and loan industry suggested the state's interest ceiling on home mortgage loans be raised to 18 percent, the same rate consumers pay for most credit card purchases.

Spokesman Says Nuclear Material Can Be Transported Safely

By KEN ORTOLON
A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Nuclear material can be transported safely to disposal sites across the country, a spokesman for a New Mexico research firm contends.

Speaking at the National Conference of State Legislatures held here, Robert Jefferson, manager of the Transportation Technology Center, Sandia Laboratories, said packaging can be designed to safely transport nuclear material.

Jefferson said the accident record for transporting nuclear material is four times better than for the transportation of other hazardous materials.

Jefferson showed legislators a film demonstrating that a container his company is testing can withstand impacts at more than 80 mph without substantial damage.

"In 30 years of moving radioactive material there have been no deaths or disabling injuries," Jefferson said.

The majority of the nuclear material being transported involves smoke detectors, watch dials and other commercial products and radio-pharmaceutical and medical products, Jefferson said.

Lee D. Santmann, director of the Materials Transportation Bureau of the Department of Transportation, said existing DOT and Nuclear Regulatory Commission standards for transporting high and low level materials are sufficient.

"The existing standards, if adhered to, provide a high level of protection," Santmann said.

Don Hopkins of the Transportation Product Standards Branch of the NRC's Office of Standards Development said inadequate inspection, not packaging, were at fault in the only two transportation accidents in the United States.

"The record of safety for nuclear materials exceeds any other hazardous materials,' Hopkins said.

He also said control over package design is very effective in providing safety, but that there is never enough inspection.

Dale Smith, chief of the NRC's Low Level Waste Branch, said no high level nuclear wastes are now being generated commercially in the United States.

Jefferson said nuclear wastes only account for about seven percent of the materials transported, but Smith said the disposal of those wastes has become a serious problem.

There used to be six disposal sites for radioactive wastes, but now only one, in Barnwell, S.C. is in operation, and that site will cut back by one-half the amount of nuclear waste received over the next two years, Jefferson said.

Other sites in Nevada, Washington, Kentucky, Illinois and New York have been shut down because of operational problems or are filled to capacity.

The Barnwell site has refused to accept wastes from Three Mile Island and is refusing to accept some wastes generated by medical facilities or pharmaceutical companies, Smith said.

Low level nuclear waste disposal is a problem the states, not the federal government, should be called on the solve, Smith said.

"We need more sites reasonably distributed around the country," he said, adding that some 2,000 to 3,000 truckloads of waste from Three Mile Island may have to be moved 2,700 miles for disposal.

"The states, having derived the benefits" (from the products or power plants) should take responsibility (for disposal of the wastes)," Smith said.

Ed Bailey, administrator of the Texas Department of Health's Radiological Control Program, said 98 percent of the nuclear waste from a four-state area are being stored in Texas by three companies.

"For the present, we are not going to limit receipt of nuclear wastes at these sites," Bailey said, adding that decision was based on the recent closing of disposal sites in Washington and Nevada.

Robert Bishop, corporate secretary for Northern Utilities, agreed with Smith that action has to be take on the matter of disposing of these wastes.

"We don't have the luxury to suggest it is someone else's problem," Bishop said.

Tech Law School Grads Admitted To State Bar

Nine 1979 graduates of the Texas Tech University Law School were admitted to the Texas State Bar Association during ceremonies Monday in El Paso.

Those sworn in at the Eighth Court of Civil Appeals included Jay Morgan Broaddus III of El Paso, Robert V. Gibson of El Paso, Sally Anne Holt of Amarillo, Mary Lane Chapman Mantooth of Lubbock, Joseph A. Pitzzinger III of Dallas, Steve M. Williams of Wichita Falls, William E. Ward of El Paso, Homer Woodfin Leverett of Houston and Marta Rosas of El Paso.

Also included in the ceremonies was B. Bradford Stiles, an El Paso native who graduated from the University of Arizona.

Presiding at the swearing-in ceremonies were Chief Justice Stephen F. Preslar and Judges William E. WArd and Max N. Osborn, all of the Eighth Court of Civil Appeals.

Judge Ward administered the oath of office.

TAKE THE PLEDGE

On November 15 you can take the pledge! The Great American Smokeout pledge. Quit smoking (or help a friend quit) for one day, November 15. Hundreds of thousands of Americans will join us. How about you? Just cut off the official pledge card, sign it, and carry it with you . . . you're on your way to one Great American Smokeout day!

Pledge: "I do solemnly swear to give up smoking or help a friend give up smoking for the Great American Smokeout, November 15. I promise not to smoke for 24 hours (and maybe longer), or to help a friend quit."

Stop Smoking Clinics Slated For Puffers

In conjunction with the American Cancer Society's "Great American Smokeout" set for Thursday, the ACS will provide a "stop smoking" clinic for persons wishing to continue to kick the habit. The clinic will begin Nov. 20 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and will continue for the next two consecutive Tuesdays.

According to the instructor for the course, Ellen Rubenstein, herself an ex-smoker, the sessions are based on a group therapy approach and not on "scare tacties."

"We use films, literature, self-help tests, experts speak and we have lots of group encouragement. But we don't use scare tactics. We do not show unpleasant pictures or objects in our classes. We don't intend to scare smokers into quitting. We want them to make the choice not to smoke through group encouragement," she said.

Mrs. Rubenstein said the classes are divided into two phases. The first step used, she said, is to try to get the smoker to understand why he smokes and what he can to replace the smoking habit. Also during this period, she said a nutritionist explains that smokers need not gain weight and how they may prevent weight loss.

In addition, a physician addresses the physical aspects of smoking. For example, she said, "He will explain why you feel better when you quit smoking and that it's a fact that, if there has not been permanent damage to the lungs, when you quit smoking, the lungs will immediately begin to rid themselves of all pollutants from cigarettes."

Finally at the end of this stage, the smokers are encouraged to try to quit for a 48-hour period. Mrs. Rubenstein emphasized that this is a trial period and smokers are encouraged to come back.

In the second phase of the course, the smokers evaluate what they have learned and analyze their particular problems with quitting in a group therapy atmosphere. Also, in phase two, the participants are permitted to review what they've learned and ask questions and find answers to questions posed in the beginning of the course.

Some groups, Mrs. Rubenstein, said, ultimately form an "I.Q." (I Quit) club and meet regularly as reinforcment for kicking the habit.

For further information on registration for the course, call the American Cancer Society office at 762-0825.

The American Cancer Society will offer a "stop smoking short course" from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Nov. 15 in the cafeteria of the Health Sciences Center Hospital here.

The course will provide smokers with information and literature on how to quit the cigarette habit.

The ACS is sponsoring the course as part of the "Great American Smokeout" that same day.

For further information, call the ACS office at 762-0825.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Q. Several times, after reading questions and answers in your column about mutual funds, I've been tempted to suggest that you mention the great variety of funds — especially the "closed-end" funds. We own shares of a closed-end fund, which has performed fairly well. Do you have something against closed-end funds?

A. Not at all. They have been mentioned in this space, in the past. This column replies to reader's mail. Your letter is the first to mention closed—enders in quite some time.

Some closed-end investment companies have done well. Some have not. The A mutual fund is open-end, because it stands ready on any business day to redeem its shares. Except for the handful of mutual funds which charge redemption fees, an open-end investment company redeems at "net asset value" — the actual dollars and cents value behind each share at the time of the redemption.

It's the redemption feature that makes an investment company open-end. Most mutual funds also continuously offer new shares for sale.

A closed investment company does not redeem its shares. Nor does it sell new shares. Shares of closed-enders are traded on stock exchanges or in the over-the-counter market.

The market prices of closed-end investment companies are usually at a "discount" — below asset value per share. That means you can buy them at a discount. But, when you sell, you also have to accept a price below their asset value. While you own them, however, you have more money working for you.

In the last couple of years, a number of closed-end investment companies have switched to open-end — mutual fund — form. Why? Because some shareholders wanted to be sure that, if they "wanted out" they could redeem and get net asset value per share.

Q. I lost a considerable part of my life's savings in two debentures. One s issued by a local implement manufacturing firm which was thrown into receivership because of too large an inventory during the recession of 1974. The other was through a local brokerage house which tried to finance a motel but ran out of money because of inflation.

Both were firms of long standing in the community. Where did I go wrong? Should I avoid local investments? Are debentures too risky? Or was I just unlucky?

A. There's no getting around the fact that you were very unlucky. Rather than avoid local securities, the natural advice is to investigate such ventures very carefully.

A debenture is a promissory note backed by the general credit of the company which issues it and is usually not secured by a mortgage or lien on any specific property.

Lamesa Chamber Banquet Set In Student Center

LAMESA (Special) — The Lamesa Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual banquet at 7:30 p.m. today in the high school student center.

W.G. Marquardt, president of Texas Electric and chairman of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, will be the guest speaker.

TechCommittee Schedules Forum On Iranian Issue

Because of the national and local interest in the situation in Iran, the Texas Tech Ideas and Issues Committee will host a University Forum at 7:30 p.m. today in the University Center Ballroom.

Dr. Metin Tamkoc, professor of political science, and Dr. Raffi M. Turian, chairman of chemical engineering, will present background on the Iranian issue. Possible solutions to the problem and "what if" situations will be discussed with the audience.

The public is invited to the forum.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: All sorts of interruptions can occur now which can keep you from getting across the plan of action you have in mind. Keep as consistent as possible while accepting opportunities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use patience in trying to get your work done despite annoying interruptions. Listen to the problems of a co-worker.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't argue with a loved one or you create hard feelings. Find a new approach for improving your appearance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Please those at home by more thoughtfulness and helpfulness. If it is hard to get a project working, now is not the right time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A co-worker could be confused about work, but use patience with him, her.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure your income is greater than your outgo so that you need not worry about finances. Try to save.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to plan well if you are to gain personal aims. Attend social affairs but be only with trusted friends.

LIBRA Sept. 23 to Oct 22) Plan early how best to handle chores so that you have good results. Listen to the advice of an expert for any problem.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you keep at it, you accomplish much. Be more cooperative in a worthy commununity project.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Many new situations can be handled successfully now. A new acquaintance thinks you are too old-fashioned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You want to get into responsibilities that are hardly worthwhile, so forget them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Know what associates want from you, so listen carefully. Civic matters might not work out well.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will be able to make peace among others because of the desire to be of help. Stress the study of mathematics early in life. Sports, Musical abilities are good here.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My 11-year-old son has multiple tics — head jerking and hand movements. He is presently taking Clonopin. Is this drug dangerous? He's had tics on and off since age six. He is very fidgety. Could he outgrow this problem? — A.M.

Tics are purposeless, repetitive movements of muscles. It is very difficult for a person with a tic to inhibit it. Parents should understand this and not add psychological dimensions to an already difficult problem by badgering a child.

Most tics are short-lived, and the less attention paid them the better off the child and parents are. There's a big IF attached to that statement. Harmless tics must be distinguished from certain forms of central nervous system disturbances, so the tic problem should be brought to the family physician's attention.

The drug Clonopin (clonazepam) is used for nervous system overactivity. Like all drugs it has risks. The benefits have to be balanced against any side effects, which are minimal when the drug is used carefully.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Does being able to hear the beat of your heart when you lay your head on a pillow at night mean you have high blood pressure? — N.N.

It can mean that, but certainly doesn't always. There are several symptoms of this kind — ear ringing, morning headache, for examples — that do not necessarily mean high blood pressure. They are best evaluated by the physician.

Since high blood pressure sneaks up on us with no symptoms at all, we should heed those that may appear. The one good thing about high blood pressure is that it cannot hide from the simple test that diagnoses it. There's a discussion of this in the booklet, "How to Control Hypertension," (high blood pressure). For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have heard that if a person is allergic to the dye injected for kidney x-rays, that a "cortisone pack" can be used. Is this true? Please explain. — M.L.R.

In the hospitals where I practice, radiologists will not inject the iodine-containing dye if the patient says he is allergic to it. The dye is injected into a vein, and the chances of reaction are great if there is a known allergy to the substance. But there are other ways to x-ray the kidney. Dye can be introduced through routes other than veins. One is from below, through passages (ureters) leading upward to the kidneys. This is called "retrograde pyelogram." Dye given this way rarely causes reaction.

In some areas of the country, patients are injected with the dye under close supervision. A small test dose is tried, and if there is no reaction the full dose is given. The patient is given antihistamine and cortisone-like drugs to minimize chances of reaction. I think this is what you refer to as a cortisone pack.

As I've mentioned before, medicine is an inexact science. You can see from the above that it even varies in practice from one part of the country to another. Layman find it difficult to believe that what is done in one large medical facility in California, for example, might not be practiced in another equally large and respectable facility, say, in Michigan.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Dipyridamole is one of the new drugs prescribed to some after strokes and heart attacks. In your opinion, how long should one be on this drug if the patient has had what might be called a "little stroke?" Also, what are the side effects of this drug? — D.H.

Dipyridamole has been suggested by some authorities for the prevention of strokes. It reduces the ability of the blood platelets to form clots in the arteries leading to the brain (a cause of stroke).

Side effects are few (dizziness, nausea, rash in some). It has been used for long-term therapy in angina pectoris and presumably may be tried for long-term use for prevention in stroke patients. A tradename of the drug is Persantine.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Since coffee contains caffeine, a notorious stimulant drug, could withdrawal from coffee, as when it is restricted suddenly in your diet, cause withdrawal symptoms like any other drug withdrawal? — J.G.D.

Sure. The idea is for the person suffering symptoms of withdrawal, as headaches, to taper off gradually.

Did you know that 80 percent of stroke victims resume to some degree their former lives? The booklet "Stroke Recovery — Hope and Help" describes the causes and treatmen of stroke. For a copy write Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 35 cents and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

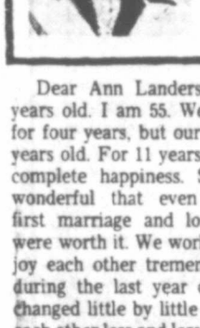
ANN LANDERS



Dear Ann Landers: My wife is 40 years old. I am 55. We've been married for four years, but our relationship is 12 years old. For 11 years she has given me complete happiness. She has been so wonderful that even terminating my first marriage and losing my children were worth it. We work together and enjoy each other tremendously. However, during the last year or so things have changed little by little and we have seen each other less and less.

A few weeks ago, a friend informed me that he had seen my wife entering the apartment of a man who joined our firm about 17 months ago. When I confronted my wife with what I had heard, she hotly denied it.

In an effort to find clues, I went through her purse last week and found some unfamiliar house keys. When I asked her whose keys they were, she became upset and refused to give me an explanation — on the grounds that searching her purse was so dishonest, so base, that she could not forgive me.

For 10 days she has not been speaking to me. When I plead for some kind of communication, the answer is always the same. "You have proven yourself to be a reprehensible, dishonest man. I cannot tolerate such sneakiness, nor can I forgive you."

Was looking in her purse such a terrible crime? Am I an unethical louse, as she insists? Please, Ann, answer this question. I need to put this whole thing in its proper perspective so I can find the strength to deal with the problem realistically. — Your Faithful Reader In Las Vegas

Dear Reader: Rummaging through your wife's purse in search of evidence of her unfaithfulness was, indeed, rock-bottom. She has a right to be angry. But it appears she is trying to get off the defensive in an effort to dodge the issue of the unfamiliar keys.

Give it another week. If, by then, she still is not talking, ask if she would be willing to go with you to a counselor. You're going to need a third party to straighten out this little mess — unless, of course, your wife should suddenly lay all her cards on the table, along with the keys, and ask you to forgive and forget.

Dear Ann Landers: Thanks for coming out in favor of breast-reduction surgery. I'm a 17-year-old girl who has been there and I'd like to tell my story.

I had a small frame and a huge bust. From the time I was 14 people never looked at my face when they met me. Their eyes were always on my chest. It was so embarrassing I wanted to die. It was also painful. My back ached from carrying the load, and my shoulders hurt from where the bra straps cut in.

Finally, after one too many rude comments and a lot of physical suffering, I went to a qualified plastic surgeon. He reduced my bust size by four inches and two cup sizes.

That operation helped me both physically and psychologically. I no longer feel like a freak. I can now wear any kind of dress or bathing suit. I'm also happy to report that several young men have finally discovered I have a face! Sign me — Standing Tall In Short Hills

Dear Standing: How nice of you to share your experience! You have indeed proven that less is more. Thanks for writing.

Confused about what's right and what's wrong in today's "new morality"? You're not alone. If you want honest, down-to earth information on your sex questions, read Ann Landers' new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It — A Guide for Teens and Their Parents." Send 50 cents plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

CONTACT LENSES

If you're thinking about whether to get soft or hard contact lenses, here are some facts to help you make up your mind. Hard lenses tend to give better vision, soft ones are more comfortable; hard lenses take about two weeks to adapt to, soft ones a week; hard lenses come in many colors, soft ones only in clear; hard lenses are not good for athletic activities as they may pop out, soft ones are good for those who participate in sports; hard lenses are easy to clean, some spots are difficult to remove from soft lenses Now, you and your eye doctor decide.

She reduced from size 14 to size 7 at Pat Walker's

Although she is beautifully svelte now, Frances Lewis used to worry about her waistline—and habitually wore long blouses and coverups to hide her large abdomen. That was before she discovered our proven program of weight reduction and lost a total of 20 pounds and 29¾ inches (including 9 inches off the waist). Her story:

"I never liked to admit I had a weight problem, so I attributed my 33-inch waist to a large bone structure. I envied all the girls who could wear fitted clothes—especially bikinis . . . When I did diet, I alway lost weight in all the wrong places—my arms, legs and bust—but never where I needed it—my waist and tummy.

"At Pat Walker's I learned I could still eat all the foods I enjoyed without giving up anything except the 29¾ inches I've lost . . . It's nice to know there is a place you can go when you need help with a figure problem and where people understand . . ."

Explorer Bivouac Staged For Over 1,000 Explorers

By LYNN HOHERTZ
Family News Staff

The United States Army at Fort Hood and the South Central Region High Adventure Exploring Committee recently staged its 1979 Explorer Bivouac for some 1,200 Explorers.

Army highlights for the weekend event included live fire-power demonstrations, M-16 firing, field kitchen meals, transport by various military vehicles, survival and medical training, military equipment displays, buffalo barbeque (with rattlesnake hor d'oeuvres,) giant tug of war and competition by crews in High Adventure activities.

Competition between each Exploring crew included backpacking, rappelling, cross-country skiing, archery, orienteering, skeet shooting, an obstacle course and outdoor cooking.

South Plains High Adventure Exploring Posts did exceptionally well — receiving five places in the top ten crews.

Post 402, sponsored by First United Methodist Church, placed first. Its crew members included Beth Lowder, Karla Thornton, Cindy Davis, Maureen McKenna, Chris Mann, Jeff Chambers, Mark Middleton, Brad Reed, Steve Whipple, Ken Campbell, Brad Enloe, David Martin, Carol Craig, Pam Redmond, Mary Crass and Tracey Harris. A.B. Enloe and Pat Enloe were adult advisors. Post 402 also placed fourth.

Post 405 held 10th place. Its crew consisted of Barry Kirkpatrick, Rex Adams, Teri Thomas, Don Cash, Jeff Johnson and Randi Murphey. Todd Dickinson served as advisor.

Other posts to attend the Bivouac included Lubbock Post 806: Mike McAfee, Scott Wilkes, Kevin Holt and Clay Zorns. Advisors were Hank Zorns and Karen Battle.

Also participating in the event as Post 721, Tahoka: Lisa Perkins, Starrlyn Knox, Sarah Marez, Denise Ehlers, John Curry, Dennis Grocke, Lee Holden, Otis Pendleton, Ellen Hutsell, Dustie Cook, Jhoni Caswell, Rajeania House, Bryan Simpson, Ralph Huffaker, Roddy Williams, Jim Cawman. Advisors — Benge Williams, Debbie Williams, Ronny Vaughan, Pam Vaughan, Rudy Johnston and Betty Johnston.

The Exploring Committee consisted of Jack Calloway of Littlerock, Ark., formerly of Lubbock, Billy Weese of Dallas and Dr. Lowell Snyder.

Parkinson's Disease Topic of Workshop

Coping with the physical and emotional aspects of Parkinson's disease is the thrust of workshops sponsored by the Tarbox Clinic for Parkinson's Disease at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

The second in a series of monthly workshops will be held on Thursday from 10:30-11:30 a.m. at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, located on 4th Street near Indiana Avenue. Patients and their friends can register in Room 4A100 at 10 a.m. There will be no charge for participation.

Parkinson's disease is a neurological disorder that affects people in middle and later life.

From early symptoms such as a trembling hand, changes in posture, a slow and shuffling walk...the patient's physical condition worsens over a period of 15 to 20 years, leading to complete invalidism. Cause of the disease is unknown.

During the Thursday workshop, Libby Gardner, physical therapist at the Health Sciences Center Hospital, will demonstrate exercises to help promote greater physical mobility and flexibility. According to Gardner, if patients receive education early, they can better maintain coordination of their joint. Muscle strengthening activities can often help reduce debilitation and help patients maintain their physical independence.

The first Tarbox worksho was attended by 43 people from West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

Gardner stressed that oneshould always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. Sheinstructed the patients in standing an walking with their feet positioned wie apart to improve balance. She demontrated exercises that strengthen musles in the back and help patients breath more efficiently. She also recommened the use of leather-soled shoes for pod, firm support.

"Something as basic as psture can make a world of difference o the Parkinson's disease patient," sai Gardner. "With beter posture, the ptient feels healthier. His whole self-imge can improve noticeably within a matter of weeks."

Parkinson's disease invoves the patient's family to a large degee, according to Paul G. Meyer, MD., medical director of the Tarbox Clini As the disease progresses, a patient bcomes more physically and emotionally dependent on others. He soon loses manal dexterity. He needs help in performing the simplest of functions, such as dressing himself — and he needs constant reassurance and moral support.

The Tarbox workshos promote more than patient educatin. All participants are encouraged to bring friends and family members to the classes. When patients are unabl to attend, a friend or relative will ften come in their place and take clas notes for the patients.

Future workshops will feature a wide variety of speakers from the HSC staff. Topics will include copig with stress, change in body image, ffective use of eating utensils, and emotonal aspects of the disease.

In this charity-game hand, South will wind up playing in two, three or four hearts. The bidding in the box shows one way to get to four.

All Wests will open with the king of diamonds and probably shift to a club at trick two. South will win, lead his jack of diamonds and get to discard his losing spade on the diamond queen.

Those West players who make the superior shift to a spade will collect a spade trick and their top diamonds.

In all cases South will get to lead the singleton heart from dummy. A few will finesse the nine and wind up losing just one heart trick. Those who finesse the jack will have to lose two heart tricks.

A few South players get top scores by making four hearts doubled. They did not get the spade shift, and when they got around to leading trumps they decided the doubler held K 10 x x and took the nine-spot finesse.

Most Wests who found the spade lead at trick two held declarer to eight tricks and were plus 100 against four hearts, plus 50 against three and minus 110 against those who only got to two.

All in all, any plus score either way was above average.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I took the hems down on a few of my dresses and now I can't get the creases out.

Will you please tell me how to remove them? I would appreciate it very much. — Mrs. Frederich Raulli

With hem lines going up, then down and back up again, your problem has become a widespread one.

But it's simple to solve — only wish some others were as simple, huh?

Just dampen the crease line with white vinegar and press over it with your iron. If the fabric is doubleknit, or another man-made fiber, use a pressing cloth to prevent shine.

The trick of this method is in applying the vinegar directly to the crease. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

The first hole in an otherwise perfectly good decorator vinyl shower curtain tore.

Searching about for a good way to repair it, I thought of the plastic rings used as a base for crocheted buttons.

I glued one around the hole with epoxy and held it in place for a day with a clothespin.

Works great and is stronger than when new. — Candy Santo

DEAR HELOISE:

Can anything be done to bring life back to a permanent marker?

So far I've had to bury two of them because I forgot to replace the caps immediately. They dried up and then I had to throw them away. What a waste!

Please, in case I'm careless about replacing the caps again, What can I do? Thanks — Jinx from Jamaica

Fortunately, the solution is easier than breaking the habit, so tack this hint to your pencil holder as a friendly reminder.

If the pens are black, or dark colors, you can dip them into a bottle of ink and leave them overnight.

For the pastel colors, pour a little rubbing alcohol in a jar and put a pen (one color at a time) in to soak for a few hours.

It should come out as good as new. And just think, "no funeral expenses, either!" — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When buying several pairs of socks, always buy the same kind and color and your matching problems will be over.

Also, if you get a hole in a sock, you won't have to discard the odd good sock. You can match it and have another pair practically for F-R-E-E! — Helen

DEAR HELOISE:

In these days when we need to conserve so many of our natural resources, water is one we seem to take too much for granted.

Don't just run it down the drain while you're waiting for it to get hot or cold.

A small plastic paint bucket can hold what otherwise would be wasted water.

Keep it handy for cooking, watering plants, or watering the pets and birds.

Put it in the humidifier during the winter.

Water costs all of us, one way or another. — B.P.S. in Ohio

DEAR HELOISE:

To easily thread a needle with a thick thread, such as creweling, form a loop with ordinary thread and put it through the eye of the needle.

Put the yarn through the loop and, using the two ends of the regular thread, pull the yarn through the eye.

So simple and saves so much aggravation! — Bernie Bentz

Mart Rally Maintained

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market scored a broad advance in moderate trading Monday, adding to gains registered Friday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 15.45 points to end trading at 821.93. The index of blue-chip industrials gained almost nine points Friday.

Advances outnumbered declines by more than a 3-1 margin among issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume on the Big Board came to 26.64 million shares, down from 30.06 million shares Friday. Most banks and federal government offices were closed Monday for Veterans Day.

Some analysts said they doubted the market would continue the Friday's rally, citing investors' worries about the onset of a recession and the possible severity of the economic downturn. Record-high interest rates, which make borrowing by corporations costly, could also hold back the market, analysts noted.

The NYSE's composite index of common stocks rose 1.08 to 58.82.

New York (AP) — Monday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

UNCERTAINTY ABOUT THE EVENTUAL SIZE of the High Plains cotton crop persists even on the heels of new production estimates last week.

Don Roberson of the Lorenzo Farmers Co-Op Gin says production prospects there, contrary to a trend reported for the area as a whole going into November, have not improved from a month ago.

"In fact, our prospects have deteriorated," he said. "Cotton that we thought would yield about 1 1/4 bales per acre is actually making only about three-fourths of a bale."

Roberson said he had estimated earlier the Lorenzo gin would process something more than 5,000 bales this season. Now, he added, he "would feel good" about a ginning total of 4,000 bales.

"Until less than 30 days ago, I felt pretty good about our crop," he commented last week. "But when we started ginning, I got sick, and then I got sicker every day."

THEORIES HAVE BEEN ADVANCED that micronaire and turnouts may improve, at least temporarily, when harvesting of freeze-killed cotton gets underway in earnest.

The Crosby County ginner doesn't believe this is going to happen. And others are beginning to wonder if maybe he's not right.

"We have some cotton planted in late April that hasn't been (chemically) defoliated where we'd be thrilled to get a mike of 3.1 or 3.2," he commented. He said the mike at his gin point is averaging about 2.8, with the highest reading at 3.4.

"A big crop just isn't going to be here for us," he said. He believes that when the areawide harvest reaches full swing others also will find that the appearance of the crop is deceptive and that mike and turnouts — which have important effects on yields — won't show the significant improvement, even temporarily, that some expect.

Without that improvement, some crop specialists agree, even the private 25-county production estimate — which now is about 186,000 bales below the comparable projection by the U. S. Department of Agriculture — may not be achievable.

THE PERCENTAGE OF COTTON MIKING within the base range of 3.5-4.9 failed to improve last week. Only 20 percent of the 75,740 bales classed areawide during the week miked 3.5-4.9, compared with 21 percent on classings of 45,608 the previous week.

But the classing offices haven't expected to have processed appreciable amounts of freeze-killed cotton before almost the end of this week at the earliest, assuming favorable harvesting conditions prevail.

The Lamesa territory has been harvesting by far the largest percentage of base-mike cotton. On classings of 19,410 bales last week, 42 percent of the Lamesa territory's cotton miked in the 3.5-4.9 range.

Production in Dawson County now is projected at a hefty 250,000 bales, up from 212,000 a month ago, and the yield per acre is estimated at a healthy 506 pounds.

As compared with a month ago and based on conditions as of around Nov. 1, prospects were rated in private estimates as improved in 15 counties, down in five counties, and unchanged to basically the same in five counties.

In last week's classings, cotton miking 3.5-4.9 included 13 percent of 36,329 bales at Lubbock, 9 percent of 11,170 bales at Brownfield, and 10 percent of 8,831 bales at Levelland.

Paul Dickson, area director of the USDA's cotton division offices on the High Plains, points out that the areawide quality picture so far is one of high grades, normal staples, and low mikes. White grades accounted for about 75 percent of last week's classings.

Average breaking strength last week was good at 87,000 pounds per square inch.

A BILL RAISING 1979-CROP wheat and corn target prices to $3.63 and $2.35 per bushel, respectively, passed the House by a voice vote last week and was sent to the Senate where an attempt is expected to be made to have the new levels apply to the 1980 crops as well.

The sorghum target price would be increased commensurate with the corn hike.

The House passed the bill unchanged after Agriculture Committee members decided not to attempt to amend the measure on the House floor to make it apply to 1980 crops as well. The House Rules Committee would have had to have granted approval for such an attempt.

The Agriculture Committee had wanted to add the 1980 provision to the bill because the administration's decision to forego 1980 set-aside programs for wheat and feed grains otherwise will force 1980 target prices below 1979 levels.

But backers of the move to make the target prices apply also to 1980 crops decided instead to make the attempt in the Senate, which has yet to consider the bill introduced by Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla.

MEANWHILE, WINSTON WILSON OF QUANAH, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, said large increases in production costs require that substantially higher target prices be authorized in 1980..

Wilson said the NAWG is pleased with the House vote to increase grain target prices by 7 percent in 1979.

Growers are urging the Senate to amend the bill and establish a higher 1980 wheat target to reflect increased production and credit costs, Wilson said. He said production costs have risen 16 to 20 percent in the past year.

The NAWG has urged the Senate to add a requirement that farmers stay within their normal crop acreage next year to qualify for the higher target price protection, he said.

STRONG COMMISSION HOUSE AND LOCAL buying drove cotton futures to limit gains and new contract highs in nearbys, except for December, at the close Monday.

Floor brokers said there was no news in the market to account for a limit-up move and described most of the buying as technical, derived primarily from chart inspirations.

Spot December closed up 183 points at 69.20 cents and the next three months were all up the 200-point daily limit at 70.72 for March, 72.13 for May, and 73.12 for July.

Estimated volume was 15,550 lots, believed to be a record daily high. There was volume trading — estimated by some sources at 700 or more contracts — at the limit-up positions.

Reports circulated of heavy rains in portions of the Delta but did not excite fundamentalists. Some rough guesstimates indicated roughly 800,000 bales, give or take 50,000, of the Mississippi crop, estimated by the USDA at 1. 1.330 million bales, were out of the fields.

The basis at Lubbock widened.

THE VOLUME OF COTTON TRADED on spot cotton markets continued to increase last week but activity was below normal for this time of year, USDA reported.

Grower offerings increased and were reported sufficient to meet demand in most markets. Merchants needing cotton to fill nearby commitments were active buyers. Most merchants were reluctant to buy cotton that could not be turned quickly. Domestic mill purchases were light. Export trading was light to moderate.

On the strength of a good sold-ahead position, mills operated five to six-day work weeks. Many mills producing denims, corduroys and all cotton yarn for sale operated at full capacity. Sales of goods were fully booked through 979 with many constructions, especially denim and corduroy, heavily registered through second quarter months.

A sustained period of high production coupled with unusual delays in delivery of raw cotton depleted mill stocks and stimulated demand for immediate delivery. Mills were offered cotton for forward shipment at prices somewhat lower than in recent weeks but demand continued slack.

Concern for tight inventory control remains a dominating business practice.

Cattle Futures Close Higher On Exchange

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 65 higher in January to 30 lower in August on 24,444 cars Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Prices were carried to 5 1/2 week highs before profit taking and other selling clipped the upturn. Strength in cash cattle on light arrivals and decreased slaughter brought early support. Traders also looked for lighter placements in Wednesday's cattle on feed report.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 100¼ to 102¼ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points which is a five week high. Cash cattle were steady to up $4 with the best top $68.25 per hundredweight at Peoria which is a one month high. Slaughter figures were unavailable. About 13,850 head are expected today at the major markets.

Feeder cattle futures closed 22 to 135 higher on 2,130 contracts.

Light cattle marketings and continued firmness in beef attracted fresh buying as did the forecast for plentiful feed supplies. The possibility of light placements on feed in Wednesday's cattle on feed report was also cited.

Deliveries total 184 thus far. Cash cattle were steady to off $2 with the best top $100 per hundredweight at San Antonio. The major terminals are expecting about 2,200 head today.

Hog futures closed 62 higher in August to 55 lower in distant February on 6,330 lots.

Much of the early demand spilled over from other meat pits and lifted prices to two-month highs before resistance was met. Lower cash hogs and premium of futures over cash touched off late profit taking and other selling.

Wholesale hams were unchanged at 82 to 85½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is the highest since April. Cash hogs were off $1.50 to up $1 with the best top $37.50 per hundredweight at Indianapolis. Kill figures were not available. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to total 33,500 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed the daily limit of 200 higher the second day in a row with buyers over across the board. Volume was 6,794 cars.

Stops were touched off as previous resistance points were penetrated, lifting July and August to new season's highs. The heavy pace of bacon slicings and modest storings despite heavy kill fueled the upturn. Traders ignored lower cash hogs and lack of news on cash bellies due to holiday closings.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged at 31 to 43¾ cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is a two-month high.

Farmers, Ranchers Calculating Storm Losses

DALHART, Texas (UPI) — With the death of 9,000 cattle and grain sorghum losses estimated at $1 million, Dallam County ranchers and farmers are comparing a late October snowstorm to "the blizzard of '57," an official said Monday.

Robert Devin, county extension agent, said a freak Oct. 30 snowstorm accompanied by 70 mph winds that raked the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles for 12 hours killed 6,000 cattle in Dallam County immediately.

Another 3,000 head, he said, have died since. The 9,000 cattle lost in the northwestern Panhandle county has inflicted a conservative $3.6 million loss, he said, in what apparently was the most damaging winter storm in years.

"This storm has been related (by farmers and ranchers) in a lot of ways to the blizzard of '57," he added.

Range cattle caught in the storm "started moving and quit eating. The duration of that storm meant they walked a great distance and were stressed more than cattle in a feedlot. They were bunched up and had feed unavailable to them," Devin added.

Most of the livestock drowned from inhaling snow into their nose and lungs, suffocated as ice froze over their nostrils, were trampled to death or simply died from exposure.

Up to 40 percent of the county's grain sorghum crop also may have been lost in the storm, he said.

Though Dallam County appeared to have been the Texas county hardest hit, Texas counties and Cimarron County in Oklahoma have cattle losses from the storm of up to 12,000 head.

Garth Merrick, owner of Hereford Bi-Products said most of the carcasses in both states have been recovered.

Merrick said his own rendering firm collected "probably 7,000 to 8,000" head of cattle. "In terms of losses it produced, it's the worst (storm) I've ever seen," said Merrick, who has worked in the rendering business 11 years.

"Deaf Smith County here took a hell of a loss. It's been a terrible period. It's been a disaster for the people involved. We don't like to see this kind of thing happen. It's terrible for the local economy," he said.

Disaster Loan Meetings Slated

Six meetings have been scheduled for High Plains farmers and businessmen to provide information on the Small Business Administration disaster loan program.

The first meeting will take place at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Forrest Park Community Center in Lamesa.

Two meetings in Levelland, one at 8 a.m. and the other at 8 p.m., will be held at the Levelland State Bank on Monday. Another Monday meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the Yoakum County Courthouse in Plains.

Farmers in the Crosbyton area can attend a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Pioneer Memorial Building while Littlefield has scheduled a meeting for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Lamb County Ag Center.

Farmers and other businessmen who have experienced financial losses caused by disastrous weather may attend the meetings to find out about the low-interest, long-term loans. Applications will be distributed.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures rose Monday after a government crop report predicted crops about the same size as traders expected.

Corn and soybean futures both drew strength from a reaction to an Agriculture Department crop report issued Friday. While the report predicted a 7.59-billion-bushel corn crop, 7 percent bigger than last year, and a 2.236-billion-bushel soybean crop, 20 percent bigger than last year, traders said the numbers were about as expected in the market.

The result was a relaxation of the bearish atmosphere that preceded the report's release. Little commercial harvest-time selling emerged to depress prices.

'Hutch' Taking Different Route

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A TV Star leaving a series is a dubious commodity in Hollywood, a questionable quantity for the future.

Some actors move directly into a new series as did Lorne Greene in "Griff" which bombed out.

Others simply fade away, as did Efrem Zimbalist on departing "The FBI."

A few maintain a low profile for a year or more before tackling another project, a TV Movie, a feature film or perhaps another series a la Robert Wagner.

David Soul, who with costar Paul Michael Glaser quit "Starsky and Hutch" last spring after four years, has his own game plan. He formed Topanga Services Ltd. and signed a contract with Warner Bros. to develop his own projects.

His non-exclusive contract with the studio allows him to set up his own feature films and V movies with a proviso that if he decides to star in another series in the next year, he must do so for Warner Bros. only.

Soul, a tall, blond handsome actor of Norwegian extraction, left a hot show and remains a hot property. He's "saleable", as they like to say at the networks.

A veteran of two previous series, two years in "Here Come The Brides" and a halfseason in "Owen Marshall," Soul is adamant about not appearing in a fourth series.

He will be seen on the tube Nov. 17 and 24 in a two-part, four-hour vampire movie, "Salem's Lot" (ABC) and later this winter in "Swan Song," a two-hour TV film, plus a Dec. 12 TV special, "Country Christmas."

"I'm slowly making bridges from TV to feature motion pictures," Soul said, "with quality TV films like 'Salem's Lot' and 'Swan Song.'"

The primary thrust of Soul's life right now is a series of from four to six two-hour movies for television tentatively titled "Senate Ivestigator" in which he will star as a driven, socially conscious young man probing abuses of big business, government agencies, unions and lobbyists.

Henry Fonda Portraying President For Third Time In Film Career

LOS ANGELES (Special) — If Henry Fonda announced today that he was going to seek the presidency in 1980, he might very likely win. Because the veteran actor has appeared in more than 70 feature films, he would dearly garner millions of write-in votes from fans because he looks like a president.

On October 19, Fonda surfaced in the part of an American president for the third time in his long and distinguished film career that spans 40 years. He plays the president in American International's newest film, "Meteor," now available at the South Plains Cinema in Lubbock. The movie also stars Sean Connery, Natalie Wood, Karl Malden, Brian Keith, Martin Landau, Trevor Howard and Richard Dysart.

The 74-year-old actor played Abraham Lincoln in "Young Mr. Lincoln." Fonda also portrayed a president in "Fail Safe." In "The Best Man" he even played a presidential candidate who decides to pass up the nomination from his party rather than resort to Watergate-level skullduggery and mudslinging.

And now in "Meteor," Fonda once again demonstrates his usual on-screen aplomb in solving international crises. A five-mile wide meteorite is careening towards the earth. Splinters of the giant boulder will destroy a Swiss Alps village, parts of New York City and much of Hong Kong. Fonda and Connery convince the Russians that the meteorite threat is real and the two superpowers agree to point their missiles, located high above earth, at the oncoming meteorite — and not at each other. Will it work? And in time?

What is it about Henry Fonda that makes casting directors choose him to portray the man in the Oval Office? Lynn Stalmaster, "Meteor" casting director, said Fonda "exudes integrity.

"An actor who portrays a president must be able to project an aura of solemnity and trust," he said. "He must be able to project an image that is both forthright and dignified. Fonda is one of the only actors I know who can do this convincingly and effectively."

Indeed, on screen Fonda resembles a typical midwestern man of integrity. He has the demeanor a president is required to have.

"One of the most difficult roles an actor can receive is that of president," Stalmaster said. "You have to possess the right attitude — domineering but not overbearing like Henry VIII. It's melding these together into on personality that's really tough."

In "Fail Safe," for example, Fonda played a charismatic John F. Kennedy-type of national leader who refused to buckle under pressure from the Soviets and avoided a Cold War confrontation. In "Young Mr. Lincoln" he successfully depicted the 16th President as humble and sincere — two qualities that still endear Lincoln to Americans today. And in "The Best Man" he prevailed upon his audience to accept him as an honest candidate — not as a mellifluous, backbiting politician (as portrayed by Cliff Robertson).

"It's a simple formula why casting directors such as myself have chosen Henry Fonda," Stalmaster said. "He is a great versatile actor and has a quiet authority that makes him believable. It's more than noticeable in 'Meteor.'"

"Meteor" was directed by Ronald Neame. Executive producers are Sandy Howard and Gabriel Katzka. The movie was produced by Arnold Orgolini and Theadore Parvin. Jere C. Henshaw is in charge of production and the screenplay was written by Stanley Mann and Edmund H. North, based on a story by North.

ELECT HENRY — Henry Fonda is the sort of actor one trusts, at least one would assume so since he's so often been cast as the president of the United States. Clockwise from top left, he can be seen as presidents in "Young Mr. Lincoln," "The Best Man," "Meteor" and "Fail Safe." The disaster film "Meteor" is now playing at the South Plains Cinema in Lubbock.

Kennedy Tops Carter Among Tailors

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has replaced President Carter as the best-dressed man in American politics, according to the Custom Tailor's Guild of America.

Kennedy was one of ten men chosen by the guild to be on this year's list of the ten best-dressed men i America.Each year, the guild asks its member to name their choices for the best-dressed men in ten different career fields.

The ten must be "immaculately groomed and properly dressed for all occasions," said Alfonso Caprio, president of the guild.

Last year, President Carter won the honor for best-dressed man in American politics.

The other winners on this year's list were: motion pictures, Burt Reynolds; night clubs, entertainer Don Rickles; television, game show host, Monty Hall; music, singer Frank Sinatra; business, Chicago industrial designer Mel Boldt; comedy, impressionist Frank Gorshin; concerts, pianist and conductor Peter Nero; sports, Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw; and industry, Vito Pascucci.

'Captain Kirk' Surprised At Impact Of Show

NEW YORK (Special) — It happened during the filming of a major scene for "Star Trek: The Motion Picture." One of the more than 300 extras on Stage 10 at Hollywood's Paramount Studios walked up to star William Shatner, stuck out his hand and said, "Captain Kirk, I'm James Kirk."

Four years earlier, the young man went on to explain, he had changed his name legally to that of his hero, the commander of the Starship U.S.S. Enterprise.

It was just another in a long string of experiences with the "Trekkie" fandom that never fails to surprise Shatner.

"I've thought about it a lot, and I still can't say I understand it," the actor pondered after the meeting with his namesake. "I know that I am awed by the fact that a human being's life is affected by a show and something I've done. I feel a certain responsibility not to demean it, to maintain it."

"Trekkies," the ever-faithful "Star Trek" followers that first came into evidence 11 years ago in a letter-writing campaign (it kept the series on NBC another and third year), have been increasingly vocal even since. They've staged conventions attended by as many as 20,000. They've organized 371 fan clubs around the world.

As a result of another letter-writing barrage, this time to the White House, America's pioneering Space Shuttle was named Enterprise in honor of the "Star Trek" vessel.

"None of us connected with the show ever had any thought of its enduring like this, for more than a decade," Shatner admits. "It never occurred to us, when we started, that we were doing anything beyond an hour show for TV. That was reflected in our contracts. There was a limit of five re-runs for payment of residuals.

According to Shatner, he first felt "something was happening here" when "Star Trek" conventions began springing up around the country the year after the series ended its network run and began its phenomenal history in syndication.

"But, it wasn't for another six or seven years, not until comparatively recently, that anybody began to see great material value in it," he continues. "Then, about three years or so ago, Paramount began talking with us about a 'Star Trek: The Motion Picture.'"

The idea of a big-scale movie wasn't discouraged by a growing mass of Trekkie letters to the studio. Nor by a national poll that ranked "Star Trek" number one among all TV shows of the past 10 years.

When "Star Trek: The Motion Picture," a Gene Roddenberry production directed by Robert Wise, finally went before the cameras at Paramount on August 7, 1978, it was an emotional experience for the entire original TV cast. All, headed by Shatner, Leonard Nimoy, and DeForest Kelley, reunited for the big budget, big screen movie, with a screenplay by Harold Livington, story by Alan Dean Foster.

"Most of use had kept in touch, meeting socially or at conventions, but 10 years had passed since we all had been together, and worked together," Shatner explains.

"Yet, I think we all still had that sense of 'family.' I believe that was one of the keys to the series' success. Other factors, in my opinion, would be the action-adventure of science fiction and the thoughtfulness, the philosophy that was unique to 'Star Trek' stories.

"Probably most important was the show's expression of optimism for the future. It said that things might be a lot different in the 23rd century, but we'd still be here."

Shatner's own reunion with his character of Capt. James Kirk for "Star Trek: The Motion Picture" obviously has been gratifying to him. "Once I came to realize the influence of the show, I somehow know that Kirk wasn't just in my past," he says. "He would continue to play an important part in my life.

"I don't think of myself as Kirk, because actually I've always played him just as I thought I would be or do in his situation. But, he certainly has opened many doors to me professionally. And, he hasn't prevented my getting a diversity of roles."

"Diversity" has characterized Shatner's career from its beginning.

The Canadian-born actor began as an understudy with the renowned Stratford, Ontario, Shakespeare Festival, in company with such distinguished performers as Sir Alec Guinness, James Mason and Anthony Quayle. Catching the attention of New York critics, he soon was playing important roles on "Playhouse 90" and other live TV shows. A co-starring role in "The Defenders" prompted Hollywood to beckon and he made his screen debut in "The Brothers Karamazov."

A number of other films followed, including "Judgement at Nuremberg" and "The Intruder." Then came Broadway and a two-year engagement as leading man in "The World of Suzie Wong," a year opposite Julie Harris in "A Shot in the Dark" and a year in the comedy hit, "L'Idiote."

Between the "Star Trek" TV series and "Star Trek: The Motion Picture," he has been appearing continuously in films, on TV and on the stage.

"Star Trek: The Motion Picture" is booked to open Dec. 7 at Showplace Six in Lubbock.

Actress Likes 'Take Charge' Characters

NEW YORK (AP) — If you think you've noticed something of a common denominator to Joanne Woodward's most recent work — "Sybil" for NBC in 1976, "See How She Runs" for CBS last year — you're not far from the truth.

"I thought about something not long ago," the Oscar-winning actress says. "I took est training about five years ago, and though I'm certainly no est-nik, one tenet I consider important is that your are responsible for your life, for what you are.

"I suppose since then, the things I've done have reflected that. I've played people who try to make their lives work."

Miss Woodward's portrayal in "See How She Runs" of a 40-year-old schoolteacher who works herself into shape to run in the Boston Marathon is particularly illustrative. And the notion can be extended to her latest role, as Carol Schramm in "Streets of L.A." tonight on CBS.

"Streets of L.A." is the story of a middle-aged divorcee who, incensed by a meaningless crime, pursues three teenage hoodlums in a Los Angeles barrio.

"It was just the idea that here was someone who takes charge of her life," Miss Woodward says of her decision to take the part. "and that's not easy in a country where it seems people are always being told what to do, by the media or by the government.

"It's just hard for people to get up and do something about their lives," the actress says, "and here's this woman whose life is not going very well, and she has an opportunity to make it work."

"Streets of L.A." is based on an actual incident, in which free-lance writer Janice Berger risked her well-being in Los Angeles' Diamond Barrio to demand, and collect, payment for a new set of tires from a group of youths who had vandalized her car.

Marvin Gluck, who worked with Miss Woodward on "See How She Runs," wrote the script for "Streets of L.A."

Reagan Prepares Campaign Kickoff

By The Associated Press

Ronald Reagan prepared Monday to launch his third campaign for the Republican presidential nomination as other candidates of both parties fanned out to court voters in the East, the South and the Midwest.

Reagan plans to announce his candidacy in a speech taped Monday and televised Tuesday night on a makeshift network of local television stations. He'll also deliver the speech live at a $500-per-plate fund-raising dinner in New York.

After the formal announcement — which will make him the 10th and presumably the last candidate for the Republican nomination — the 68-year-old former California governor will embark on a five-day, 12-city campaign intended to solidify his position as the early favorite.

For the other candidates, the campaigning was already well under way.

Reagan's three major opponents for the Republican nomination — former Texas Gov. John Connally; former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations George Bush; and Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker — all were on the road, Monday.

Baker was meeting reporters in Philadelphia. Connally was in New Orleans, where he was addressing a group from the National Association of Realtors. And Bush was in Sioux City, Iowa, a key state for presidential contenders because of its closely watched January caucuses.

Also in Iowa was Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who is challenging President Carter for the Democratic nomination.

Accompanied by a local union official sporting a Kennedy campaign button, the Massachusetts senator toured an Alcoa Aluminum Co. plant in Davenport employing some 3,000 workers, most of them union members. In 1976, labor gave Carter substantial support in the Iowa caucuses, helping Carter establish himself as a serious candidate.

Brown Ends Trip To East

Meanwhile, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. wound up a five-day campaign trip to the East that began with his formal announcement for the Democratic nomination last Thursday.

In one of his final appearances, in Atlanta, Brown said he won't concede the South to Carter and expects to campaign often on Carter's home turf. "I believe the president is vulnerable in the South," Brown said.

Carter, immersed at the White House in the Iranian crisis, was doing no politicking, Monday.

However, he picked up a significant endorsement at the Illinois statehouse in Springfield, where former Lt. Gov. Neil F. Hartigan broke ranks with fellow Chicago Democrats who have endorsed Kennedy. Hartigan said the country has had a string of one-term presidents stretching back two decades, and "that's not good for the country."

Meanwhile, Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, told reporters at the White House that, as of Monday, Carter had no plans to cancel a trip to Pennsylvania on Tuesday. The president is scheduled to visit Philadelphia for a town meeting and Harrisburg, Pa., for a political dinner.

Front-Runner

Although Reagan has done virtually no campaigning for the Republican nomination, he enters the race as the acknowledged front-runner.

Charles Black, Reagan's national political director, said the speech in which the one-time film star formally announces his candidacy is "forward-looking, touching on some of the things the governor feels the next administration should be doing. ... It looks at energy, the economy and foreign policy, but stays fairly general."

Reagan tried to buy a half-hour of network television time to broadcast the speech, but was turned down by network executives who said it was too early in the 1980 campaign for such programs.

So, "we've put together our own network," said press secretary James Lake. He said Reagan's speech will be seen on stations in about 75 to 80 percent of the nation, while a five-minute condensed version will appear on CBS at 10 p.m. EST.

$1.5 MILLION IN ART STOLEN

PARIS (AP) — Two young men conned their way into the office of a Paris ophthamologist, Monday, and made off with 16 paintings valued at $1.5 million, police said. Paintings stolen from Dr. Andre Cleper included canvases by Marc Chagall, Maurice Utrillo and Raoul Dufy, they said. The names of the pictures were not disclosed.

Iranians Requested To Leave Classes

By The Associated Press

A LAMAR UNIVERSITY engineering professor asked Iranian students to leave his classes, Monday, shortly before 500 protesters burned the Ayatollah Khomeini in effigy and scuffled with other Iranian students on the Beaumont campus.

In Kingsville, about 300 students at Texas A&I burned an Iranian flag and demanded that the 200 Iranian students on campus be deported. Protesters surrounded about 50 Iranians, who took refuge in a dormitory while campus security guards formed a protective line. There were no arrests.

In Houston, anti-Iranian demonstrators marched downtown for the fourth time in the past five days, aided by a plane overhead, dropping leaflets.

Mostly "Shoving"

Lamar's vice-president for university relations, Bud Leonard, said a "scuffle" between American and Iranian students occurred about 11:30 a.m. in front of the campus police office, but the confrontation consisted mostly of "pushing."

No arrests were made and no injuries were reported.

Lamar security police had to escort several Iranian students to safety from shouting matches with groups of sign-carrying protesters who called on the United States "to quit bleating like sheep and start roaring like lions."

Dr. F.C. Jelen, a Lamar chemical engineering professor said he asked a total of four Iranians in his two morning classes of 70 students to leave.

"I told them a feeling of anger prevailed in the United States at the moment," Jelen said. "Classes exist to teach and the students cannot learn when such feelings of animosity exist.

"I asked them — I did not force them — I asked them to leave, and they did. An American student sitting next to an Iranian student is just not going to put his full efforts into his studies."

Jelen said nothing specific prompted his request, and said he would tutor the Iranians privately. He said he would ask Iranian students to leave his Tuesday classes.

Jelen's superiors said they would take no action on the professor's request as long as the students continue to get an education.

The Lamar protest was organized by Lloyd Ewart, 28, an ex-Marine, who said he was asked by school administrators, early Monday, to cancel the demonstration.

A 25-year-old Iranian student shoved about by the Lamar crowd, said he "could not blame" the students for their anger, but he could "not believe the American hostages would be harmed."

Leaflets Dropped

In Houston, a small biplane circled the 40-story Dresser Tower and dumped streamers and leaflets during another demonstration at the building housing the Iranian consulate.

Signed "The John Wayne Society — Every American Citizen is a Member," the leaflets urged that Americans stop buying where Iranians work, that Iranians be fired and denied housing, and that restaurants and merchants refuse to serve them.

"If in doubt, ask for identification. Only Iranians will refuse," the leaflets read. "Starve the Iranians out of Our Country."

The leaflets also called for daily noon rallies at the consulate, where several hundred persons began the Houston demonstrations, Thursday, by heading their protest march with huge American flags and photographs of Wayne, the late actor the protesters described as a symbol of American patriotism.

"Crucial Threat"

The plane also showered a mimeographed message from "Americans for America," a self-styled group that says the attitudes of the Iranian government "are a crucial threat to the American way of life."

"Americans unite: we've had it with political rhetoric and U.S. detractors; get involved; get our problems solved," the message read.

Monday's protest at Dresser Tower, the tallest of four-high rise structures in Cullen Center in the extreme southwest corner of downtown Houston, was smaller than those of Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Many offices were closed for Veterans Day, and some organizers had urged that no Monday protest be held because of the holiday.

But the enthusiasm and chanting were the same — "Let our people go," "Take your oil and shove it," and "Stand up and fight."

Some of the placards were new — "Fair Trade: 60 Americans for All Iranians, plus a president," "America: The world is watching, what will we show?" and "Save money. Roast an Iranian student for Thanksgiving."

SALT Petition Presented

Opponents of SALT II set up a table at one corner of the plaza, seeking signatures for petitions urging the Senate to reject the treaty.

A small protest, scheduled in downtown Dallas, fizzled in the brisk cold ad light rin. Organizers scheduled the rally for noon at Thanksgiving Square, but directors said they would not allow the four protesters onto the private park. The four organizers moved to a park on the west end of town, but picked up no supporters.

Petitions sponsored by a group known as The American Committee and asking that the United States sever all ties with Iran and use military force if any hostages are harmed were circulated at the Thursday protest in Houston.

John Sandefur, 29, spokesman for the committee, said petitions with 1,300 signatures were sent Monday to U.S. Sens. John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen, with a copy going to Ali Aga, the Iranian ambassador in Washington.

Sandefur, 29, a steel salesman, said the "losely organized, apolitical" committee was formed in response to the seizure of the embassay and the taking of 60 hostages.

A spokesman for Dallas radio station KRLD said the station has been deluged with phone calls and requests for a song penned by a Dallas songwriter. The ballad, entitled "Where Are You Now When We Need You, Ross Perot?" laments a "leadership of the meek" and a lack of "heroes" in America, referring to Perot, head of Electronic Data Sytems. Perot masterminded the sucessful rescue of several EDS employees imprisoned in Iran after the revolution there earlier this year.

Board Studies Hospital Job Applications

administrator Roberts also explained after the meeting that many of the purchase orders never made it into the hospital's computers and therefore did not show up on the computerized print-out of accounts payable.

In other business, the board voted to hire Shared Management Services to provide data processing services for the hospital. The data processing system is the heart of the hospital's billing system.

Shared Management Serices personnel will be taking over the services now provided by Health Management Services, which is going out of the health care industry. The contract with SMS lacks only the approval of the hospital district's legal counsel before going into effect.

It is estimated that the transition from one system to the other will take place in January.

Plane Crash Probed For Drugs Link

made it into New Mexico before disappearing.

A Colorado CAP official said Sunday information retrieved from an FAA computer indicated a plane flew from Colorado into New Mexico during the right time frame for the flight on Oct. 30.

Livingston said although the "radar trace" on the missing plane was "not that good," it did show the plane had flown as far as the Tucumcari area. Searchers were not certain until they found the wreckage that the radar trace was that of the missing plane.

Livingston said the trace disappeared from the radar screens in the vicinity of the town of Montoya, about 20 miles southwest of Tucumcari.

Seven Aircraft Search

Seven state CAP aircraft were involved in Monday's search effort, which was concentrated in the Tucumcari area, but went as far south as Capitan.

The plane had left Washington state Oct. 29 and stopped in Grand Junction, Colo., to refuel but failed to arrive in Texas.

The crash apparently occurred during an intense snow storm which produced near blizzard conditions in eastern New Mexico. Up to 12 inches of snow had fallen in the area of the crash, and winds of up to 60 mph were common.

South Africa Blamed In Talks Bottleneck

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — President Julius Nyerere said Monday that the Zimbabawe Rhodesian peace talks in London may break down because of South African pressure on the British government to reject demands by black nationalist guerrillas.

Speaking to reporters at his home, Nyerere criticized British rejection of a Patriotic Front guerrilla call to allow a six-month transition period leading up to elections under an independence constitution.

He said South Africa has threatened to intervene in neighboring Zimbabwe Rhodesia if a settlement reached in London seems likely to result in a massive exodus of Rhodesian whites.

British Plan Accepted

The bi-racial Zimbabwe-Rhodesian government of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa has agreed to a British plan to supervise elections under the constitution negotiated during the peace conference, now in its tenth week.

But the guerrillas have rejected a two month pre-election transition period called for by the British. They have threatened to quit the talks and instensify their seven-year war with the government of the breakaway British colony which, under white leadership, declared independence in 1965.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, the conference chairman, said Monday he would give the guerrillas only "a day or two more" to endorse the British plan.

Nyerere said, "things can break apart on this issue, and the responsibility will be Britain's because they are asking the Patriotic Front to accept something which is clearly unfair," said Nyerere, who heads a committee of the leaders of "front-line" black states backing the guerrillas.

Support Would Continue

He said he has told Patriotic Front leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo that the frontline states will continue to support the guerrilla war if the talks break down because Britain refuses to give way on the transition issue. The guerrillas operate from bases in Mozambique and Zambia, two other frontline states.

"I've been trying to get some understanding as to why Britain insists on a shorter period. A short period clearly favors the internal parties. The only thing which seems to make sense is the rumor of South African involvement," he said.

Patriotic Front leaders also object to the British plan to leave Zimbabwe Rhodesia's white-run security forces intact and not provide a role for the guerrilla forces during transition.

Tough On Guerrillas

"I suppose the South Africans are saying the agreement must make it difficult for the Patriotic Front to win," Nyerere said.

He added: "I've made it clear to Britain and the Patriotic Front that if conditions of elections are truly fair and free, I'd be among the first to recognize the Bishop's (Abel Muzorewa's) government should he win, despite my political preferences."

Texaco Makes Gas Discovery

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Texaco Inc. said Monday it has struck more natural gas 106 miles off the New Jersey coast, the fourth and biggest gas discovery reported so far in a small area of the Baltimore Canyon Trough.

Texaco said its leased semi-submersible rig Ocean Victory discovered the additional gas in the same 15,699-foot hole where it reported a significant gas strike on Oct. 22.

The gas flowed at a rate of 14.2 million cubic feet a day, the highest rate of the four gas strikes, the company said.

Texaco spokesman Edgar Williams said the latest discovery was "from an interval below 13,000 feet." He refused to give details on the vertical width of the test zone or how much hydrocarbon condensate, an oil-like byproduct of deep natural gas finds, was brought to the surface.

Newlyweds Survive Long Fall

WEST HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Two newlyweds missed death by inches when they fell together from a sixth-floor balcony during a photo-taking session at their wedding night party, police say.

Kenneth Burke and the former Donna Kriehn, his bride of a few hours, barely missed a brick wall and concrete patio but slammed into rain-softened grass about 72 feet below the balcony, police said.

"It was a miracle. A couple of inches and they wouldn't be alive," Chief Salvatore Malinconico said Monday.

Although the two were conscious immediately after the Saturday night fall, they suffered serious injuries and were placed in the intensive-care unit of Yale-New Haven Hospital.

Burke, 39, an employee of Xerox Corp. in Rochester, N.Y., was in critical condition Monday with multiple face and skull fractures, a dislocated and broken hip, liver injury and damage that required removal of his spleen, a hospital representative said.

Mrs. Burke, 30, of West Haven, was listed in guarded condition with a broken left arm and spine and hip injuries.

Neither was well enough to talk with reporters, the hospital said.

Police said the newlyweds invited a few friends after the ceremony to the luxury apartment that had been Mrs. Burke's.

At about 11 p.m. the couple went onto the balcony for Burke's brother Kevin to photograph them sitting on the brick ledge or railing with city lights in the background, police said.

"That ledge must have been a little higher than sitting height," Malinconico said.

Kevin Burke told police his brother climbed onto the ledge first and was helping his bride up when he faltered, the chief said.

"When he did, he must have lost his balance and pulled her over as he fell," the chief said.

When the guests rushed to the balcony and looked over, the couple lay sprawled on the grass below, just off the patio.

ENCOURAGES TERRORISTS — Ayatollah Khosrowshahi, a prominent member of the Revolutionary Council, visits the American embassy in Tehran Monday. Derailed Tank Cars Endanger Thousands

By The Associated Press

The threat of explosions from derailed tankers kept more than 200,000 people from their homes, Monday, in two communities in Canada and Florida, but the danger passed for 1,000 others in Michigan, after a tanker carrying hydrogen fluoride was righted without a leak.

No injuries were reported in the three weekend derailments.

Authorities said about 200,000 people, who fled their homes in Mississauga, Ontario, will have to stay away at least one more day because of the threat of explosion and leaks from a tanker carrying deadly chlorine gas.

Close To Burning Cars

Authorities said the derailed car lay close to burning tankers of propane gas that exploded after the Canadian Pacific freight train derailed late Saturday.

The gas, if exposed to extreme heat, could form phosgene, a type of poisonous gas used in World War I, authorities said.

The fire was under control, Monday, but about 200 men continued to fight the flames. "We still have a propane fire," said Douglas Burrows, police chief of the Peel region. "We don't know when it's going to be extinguished. We'll have to let it burn itself out."

In Molino, Fla., six railroad cars continued to burn as they leaked propane. Authorities, fearing a major explosion if the vapors ignite, warned residents of the sparsely populated area to stay away.

About 400 people were evacuated, Sunday, after the 98-car Louisville & Nashville freight train derailed when it hit a section of washed-out track.

Blasting Rejected

Officials say the fire could burn for weeks, but rejected a plan to blow up the cars to end the lingering threat. Scores of officials are debating what to do about the burning cars.

In Holland, Mich., authorities used a special crane Monday to lift an overturned tanker back onto the tracks. It carried liquid hydrogren fluoride, a corrosive chemical that can cause skin ulcers and breathing problems when released into the air.

"There are no leaks and the evacuees are returning to their homes. Everything went smoothly," said Glen Timmer, Ottawa County emergency services director.

What caused four freight cars in a Chesapeake and Ohio train to derail, early Monday, has not yet been determined. About 1,000 persons, evacuated after the derailment, were allowed to return to their homes, Monday.

FOOD POISINING SUSPECTED

Extradition Hearing Slated For Suspect

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An extradition hearing for Joseph Michael DePauw, charged with the Oct. 5 murder of Lubbock businessman Oland Kenneth Anderson, is scheduled to begin in federal court in San Jose, Calif., today.

DePauw, 28, remained in the Santa Clara County Jail in San Jose Monday.

The month-long search for DePauw ended about 7 p.m. Sunday (CST) when he surrendered to an FBI agent at his brother's house in San Jose.

An FBI agent in nearby Campbell, Calif., who asked not to be identified, said he took DePauw into custody at the suspect's brother's house after the two men failed to meet him at a shopping center in Campbell.

The suspect had taken several doses of LSD and had finished off a quart of wine just prior to his arrest and had to be taken to Valley Medical Center in San Jose to "sober up" before he was booked into the county jail, the agent said.

The federal agent added that DePauw "probably has a pretty big hangover," but otherwise was in good condition Monday.

The agent called DePauw's brother's house about 3:30 p.m. (5:30 p.m. CST) Sunday and was told by the brother, "Hey, he (the suspect) just called me and said he wanted to give himself up."

The agent said he set up a meeting time with the two men at the Pruneyard Shopping Center in Campbell, but that the men did not show up, and that after about 40 minutes he located the suspect at the San Jose residence.

"He just wanted a little extra time to finish the quart of wine he had," the agent said.

A nurse at the Santa Clara County Jail refused to have DePauw booked into the facility until he was treated at Valley Medical Center. He was jailed about 10 p.m. (CST).

The suspect reportedly had called his brother earlier Sunday from San Luis Obispo, located between San Jose and Los Angeles.

"Our agents just missed him in Santa Barbara (Calif.) in the early part of last week," the arresting agent said.

The FBI held a warrant for DePauw on a federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

DePauw was charged here Oct. 8 for the murder of Anderson, the 63-year-old owner of Neon Speciality Co. at 2402 Ave. J. Justice of the Peace Charles Smith set the suspect's bond at $100,000.

Anderson was found dead inside his business Oct. 5. He was discovered sprawled in a pool of blood by his brother and an employee. An autopsy revealed the victim died from a crushed skull caused by a blow to the side of his head with a blunt instrument.

The same day Anderson's body was found, police located the victim's car parked in front of a North University Avenue pawn shop. His wallet, empty of money, was found several days later in a trash dumpster by an 11-year-old boy.

Stolen Car Involved In Wrecks

A woman who allegedly stole a car in the 2300-block of Second Place, was involved in two separate traffic accidents shortly before midnight Sunday and early Monday, with one of the mishaps injuring a 29-year-old Hurst man.

Reports indicate the 25-year-old Lubbock woman was ticketed in the first accident for failure to yield the right of way and driving without a license after the car she was driving was in collision with a motorcycle at North Avenue Q Drive and Erskine Street.

The driver of the motorcycle, Jeronimo Galban Jr. of Hurst was listed in satisfactory condition Monday at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

About 2½ hours later, the woman was involved in another traffic accident in the 2400-block of Auburn Street, according to police.

Reports indicated there were no injuries in the second mishap. However, police were told by a man living in the 2300-block of Second Place that the woman had taken his car without permission.

Your Personal Biorhythms

by Bernard Gittelson

For your own permanent biorhythm number for the Physical (P), Emotional (E), and Intellectual (I) cycles, just follow these steps:

	P	E	I
STEP 1. YEAR OF BIRTH
STEP 2. A-B MONTH OF BIRTH
STEP 3. DAY OF BIRTH
TOTALS

YOUR PERMANENT NUMBERS

PHYSICAL
Criticals: 4, 16, 27, 38, 50, 62, 73 ... Critical time physically
Highs: 1-3, 17-26, 40-49, 63-72 ... You can do more today
Lows: 5-15, 28-38, 51-61, 74-75 ... Everything seems hard

EMOTIONAL
Criticals: 12, 26, 40, 54, 68, 82 ... Charged up feelings
Highs: 1-11, 27-39, 55-67, 83-85 ... You're fun to be with Lows: 13-25, 41-53, 69-81 ... Keep to yourself

INTELLECTUAL
Criticals: 9, 26, 42, 59, 75, 92 ... Mentally you're off
Highs: 1-8, 27-41, 60-74, 93-95 ... Easy to convince others
Lows: 10-25, 43-58, 76-91 ... Hard to retain facts

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2 — Month of birth. Find the corresponding numbers for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

	Jan.			Feb.			March			April			May			June			July			Aug.			Sept.			Oct.			Nov.			Dec.
	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I

Step 3 — Day of birth. Enter your day of birth three times in the figure chart, once each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I).

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's biorhythm readings.

Anti-Nuclear Rally Set Today

Participants in a scheduled rally today against the use of nuclear energy are as much interested in promoting alternative energy sources as in opposing nuclear sources, a rally organizer said in a Monday news conference.

Roger Scarbrough, a steering committee member of the rally-sponsoring South Plains Alternative Resource Coalition (SPARC), announced a list of rally speakers and discussed its purposes in a Monday news conference.

The rally will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. today between the University Center and the library on the Texas Tech University campus.

"We're not so much anti-nuclear as we are pro-alternative sources," Scarbrough, a Tech student, said.

The rally is on the fifth anniversary of the controversial death of anti-nuclear activist Karen Silkwood, Scarbrough noted, and it will begin with a statement about the death of Miss Silkwood by National Organization of Women spokesman Mary Wenzler, of Lubbock.

A featured speaker will be Rick Piltz of Austin, who is well known in the anti-nuclear energy movement.

Others will include Ted Taylor, a Tech economics professor and Sierra Club member, who will read a Sierra Club statement.

Oil Production Decline Puzzles Officials

Oil industry officials attribute much of the drop to problems with the Alaskan pipeline, but they are unable to explain the decline elsewhere.

Some industry officials say the drop in production — the second large one in a few months — seemed unusual at a time when the industry was faced with shortages of petroleum products.

"There shouldn't be that much of a fluctuation," said Melvin Mesnard, statistics director for the Independent Petroleum Association of America, a group of oil producers not affiliated with major oil companies. "I wish I had an explanation for it, but I don't."

"I don't know what would have caused it to drop like that," said Wayne Glasgow, an official in the supply department of Phillips Petroleum in Bartlesville, Okla. "I just don't know. If I did, I'd tell you."

Government officials also did not know why the drop in production occurred. "I don't have any explanation for why it happened," said James Diehl, acting director of the Department of Energy's statistics division.

Domestic production outside of Alaska has been falling for the past several years for a variety of reasons, but the decline in June was larger than in recent months.

The production drop was similar to one last winter, which was cited by government investigators as a key element in this year's oil crisis.

Debate To Focus On Marijuana

Legalization of marijuana will be the topic of debate at the Texas Tech University Forum today from 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom.

The motion, "Resolved that the United States should legalize marijuana," will be supported by Dr. Robert P. Davidow, law professor. Speaking against the issue, will be Dr. David Potter, professor of pharmacology and therapeutics.

After opening remarks by the professors, the debate will be turned over to the audience for discussion. At the end of discussion the audience will vote on the issue.

Previous University Forum debates this year have dealt with Salt II, recognition of the PLO, nuclear power, and government-supported abortions.

The debates are sponsored by the division of speech communication and University Center Programs.

Eagles Slap 'Pokes To Remain Alive

IRVING (AP) — Tony Franklin's 59-yard field goal, second longest in pro history, just seconds after Charlie Smith's first touchdown reception of the year, ignited the Philadelphia Eagles to a 31-21 National Football League upset Monday night over the Dallas Cowboys.

It was a must victory for the Eagles, who had to withstand a typical fourth-period rally led by Roger Staubach, who threw two touchdown passes in the final six minutes. It was the Eagles' first victory ever in Texas Stadium and snapped a nine-game losing streak to the Cowboys, who had not lost to Philadelphia at home since 1965.

The loss dropped Dallas to 8-3 in the National Conference Eastern Division, just a game ahead of both Philadelphia and Washington at 7-4.

Dallas scored a touchdown in the first 61 seconds of the game on a 48-yard pass from Staubach to Tony Hill.

The Eagles tied it on the first of two Harold Carmichael touchdown receptions, this one a 32-yard pass from Ron Jaworski.

However, it was the unlikely combination of backup quarterback John Walton to Smith that gave the Eagles the go-ahead touchdown with 1:03 left in the first half.

After Jaworski injured his left wrist on a sack by Harvey Martin, Walton flipped a 29-yard touchdown strike to Smith following a Frank LeMaster recovery of Steve Wilson's fumble on the Dallas 29.

Jaworski started the second half and threw a 13-yard touchdown pass to Carmichael and the swarming Eagles defense sacked Staubach five times.

Staubach, who played the second half with a bruised thigh, found Hill alone again on a 75-yard touchdown pass play with 5:56 to play. Hill streaked behind the Eagles secondary on a post pattern, caught the ball at the Eagles 20 and sailed untouched into the end zone. With 1:19 left, Staubach threw another scoring strike, this one to Billy Joe DuPree covering 5 yards.

LCHS Accepts Playoff Berth

The Lubbock Christian High School football team Monday accepted an invitation to participate in the Texas Association of Private Schools playoffs.

LCHS, 6-3 in the regular season, will host Trinity High School of Richardson Saturday at 1 p.m. on Lena Stephens Field. The site of the game was determined by a coin flip.

Cleaning Out The Coliseum

THERE WASN'T A TRACE OF THE RODEO in the Municipal Coliseum Monday afternoon. Not a single solitary stain from the blood sacrifices of the KISS concert could be found on the floor either.

No sir, just a handful of basketball players were present, tossing the ball around on the slick surface of the court. And they didn't have time to hunt for any lost horseshoes or Satanic emblems. Among other things, they were going over some international rules.

Because the Texas Tech basketball team was preparing for the season opener Thursday against the Poland National team. International rules will be employed in the contest and that should satisfy some of Tech's more rabid fans.

THE RAIDERS, YOU SEE, have a particularly vocal student section that doesn't mind letting its feelings be known. And in the past, their favorite cheer has been, "Shoot, fool!"

One pass they can tolerate, after two they're shifting in their seats. Three passes and you can start hearing some murmurs, four tosses and they're positively irate. After five passes the anger explodes in a unified, "SHOOT, FOOL!"

More often than not, the Raider cagers manage to avoid the temptation to jack one from 25-35 feet. Because the wrath of Coach Gerald Myers can make that entire section sound like a Sunday morning choir. But on Thursday the fanatics will have their wishes fulfilled.

Under international rules, a 30-second shot clock is employed so the Raiders won't be able to wait too long before putting one up. Other changes from NCAA rules are that the official doesn't have to touch the ball after every basket or whistle, players can enter the free-throw lane immediately after the ball leaves the shooters hand on foul shots, and the free-throw lane is wider at the base.

BUT REALLY, BASKETBALL DOESN'T CHANGE — regardless of the rules. And the Polish squad will present the Raiders with an interesting problem. The Poles, already being dubbed "The Towering Poles," have an abundance of size. The Raiders may have plenty of speed, but heighth is another story.

The Poles have five players on their 12-man roster that stand taller than 6-9 while the Raiders biggest men are juniors Ralph Brewster and Leslie Nichols — both 6-8.

"I don't know much about the Polish team," admitted Myers, "except that Marquette and Alabama-Birmingham beat them last week."

Of course, Marquette only beat the East Europeans by 14 points and a 14-point loss to Marquette is nothing to hang your head about.

Myers got a look at his Raiders last Friday in an intra-squad scrimmage and the results didn't leave him overwhelmed.

"It was really ragged," said Myers. "One team had 24 turnovers and the other had 21. That's way too many.

BUT DON'T BE OVERLY CONCERNED with Myers' pessimistic appraisal of the scrimmage.

"It's just so hard to tell anything from an intra-squad game," explained Tech assistant George Davidson. "You can find out a lot more when you get to play somebody else."

And that's just how the Tech coaching squad is approaching Thursday's scrimmage with the Poles — as a test.

"We're going to play at least 10 guys," said Myers. "Naturally we want to win the game," he added, "that's why you play — but we're also looking at this as a learning experience for some of our younger guys."

Like the rodeo cowboys and the rock stars, the Poles stay at the Coliseum won't be a long one. But the Raiders have a long season ahead, and not much time left for learning. The regular season opens on Dec. 1 when the Raider cagers host West Texas State in the Rodeo Arena.

And Red Raider fans are starving for a winner after the disappointment of Tech's 3-4-2 grid record. Those same folks that abhorred the thought of KISS putting on a blood sacrifice may be screaming for one of their own at the Coliseum if things don't get better.

But they could probably even put up with a slow-down offense — as long as it put marks in the win column.

Kress Kangaroos Hope To Punch Lions

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

It's been a long time since either Al Mitts or the Kress High School football team was in the playoffs, but with a little help from some magic, the drought is over.

That dash of the supernatural is fleet running back Eddy "Magic" Johnson, a 5-10, 170-pound senior who is averaging almost exactly seven yards a carry.

His prolific running has hopped up the Kangaroo running attack to the point where Kress, regardless of the outcome of Friday night's game with Bovina, has clinched the District 3-A championship and a berth inthe state high school playoffs.

That's the first district championship for Kress since 1971 and the first playoff trip since 1970. For Mitts, who joined the 'Roos in 1975, it's the first post-season game since 1973 when he coached at Class B Wilson.

Kress may be in for a rude welcome to the "big time." The opponent in bi-district has already been selected and it's the New Deal Lions, 8-1 on the year with an eight-game winning streak in which they've allowed only two touchdowns.

The Kangaroos scrimmaged New Deal before the start of the season and didn't fare well.

"They put it on us pretty good," said Mitts. "It was four to one or something like that. But I'll guarantee you a different ball game this time. We have improved considerably.

"Our offense is a lot sounder and our defense has made tremendous improvements."

Kress lost two of its first three games but since then has put together a string of six straight victories to bring its record to 7-2

In those last six wins, Johnson has gained more than 150 yards all but once. That bolstered his average to a strong 146 yards a game on 1,314 yards in 187 carries.

But Mitts says Johnson isn't the only weapon in the Kangaroos' pouch. Henry Amador and Richard McKelvy alternate at the other halfback spot in Kress' veer offense while Larry Monkers subs for Johnson in spots.

"It's very difficult for anyone to key on Johnson," Mitts said. "These guys are all tremendous athletes. Eddy'll get his 150 to 160 yards a game, but these guys are running too."

According to Mitts, the other halfback spot, manned by Amador and McKelvy, accounts for about 125 yards a game.

And, even though Johnson is a senior, Mitts feels his program is strong enough to provide this town a string of winners from now on.

"There's been a tremendous change in attitude and desire in these kids," he said. "I feel like we have a very adequate football program now. Our seventh and eighth graders and our JV all have at least co-championships this year.

"I feel like we have a well-balanced program going for us now."

Tech's Lautenslager Set For NCAA Championships

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

For Greg Lautenslager, Texas Tech's cross-country specialist, the hard part is behind him now. In front of him is the NCAA championships — and a chance for an All-American ranking.

Lautenslager qualified for the prestigious NCAA meet last Saturday in Georgetown where he finished fifth in the District 6 meet by completing the six-mile course in 30:16 — a personal best.

It was the second straight year that the Tech senior has qualified for nationals, and Lautenslager said that the qualifying race is actually more difficult than the championship itself.

"I was really worried before the race Saturday," said Lautenslager. "All I could think about was what if I didn't make it. I mean, the nationals are what I've been working for all year.

"After I came so close last year, I feel like I've got a shot at making All-American this year."

The NCAA championships will be run Monday in Bethlehem, Pa., and the top 25 finishers are awarded the coveted all-American status. But more runners than that can qualify for honors because the top 25 Americans are awarded the designation in addition to the top foreign entries.

For instance, last year the first 36 finishers were given the award out of a field of 250. Lautenslager finished 48th running in a steady snowstorm in Champaign, Ill.

But to fully understand the magnitude of a runner reaching the NCAA championships, consider this: last Saturday there were over 2,000 runners across the country attempting to qualify for the national meet.

Next week in Bethlehem the field will be narrowed to 250. And if you think Tech track coach Corky Oglesby isn't just a little bit proud of his star pupil, well, think again.

"I think Greg has the potential to be an All-American," said Oglesby Monday. "He's just run super this fall and if everything comes into place there's no telling how well he can do."

Lautenslager is forced to agree with his coach.

"Last year I was so excited just to get to nationals," he said. "But now I've been there before; I want to be up there with the leaders at the finish line."

And the best way to be among the leaders at the end of the race, says the Tech runner, is to be out in front at the start of the race.

"It's like no other race you'll ever run," he explained. "There's about 250 runners all boxed in together at the start — and if you don't just shoot out in front at the start, you'll spend the first mile or so just dodging around people.

"You've got to run the first 200 yards at full speed just to get away from everybody."

But things don't get any easier after the first couple hundred yards — no sir. The runners will have 10,000 meters (six miles, 385 yards) of rolling ground and hills to cover.

"I've heard that the course in Bethlehem is pretty tough," said Lautenslager, "but I really think that's an advantage to me because, by now, I've run so many tough courses that I think I can handle them better than some younger freshmen or sophomores.

"When I come to a hill, I just think 'I've got to charge this thing and pick up some time,'" he said, smiling. "Sometimes a younger runner will really get shook up about a hill.

"A lot of running is just a matter of experience and I think I've got plenty of that by now."

But whatever happens Monday, Lautenslager is prepared for it.

"You can never tell what's going to happen," he said. "Some guys may choke, or someone may just run out of their head — maybe I'll just run out of my head.

"The nationals are just so much different from a regular race — it's gonna be crazy."

Buckeyes Gain Ground On Top-Rated Alabama

By A-J Wire Services

Alabama's hold on the lead in The Associated Press college football poll narrowed Monday while Ohio State slipped past Nebraska in a close race for second place.

Alabama squeaked past Louisiana State 3-0 Saturday night and received 34 first-place votes and 1,262 of a possible 1,320 points from a nationwide panel of 66 sports writers and broadcasters.

However, Nebraska dropped from second to third despite a 21-12 triumph over Kansas State while Ohio State pounded Iowa 34-7 and moved up from third to second.

Ohio State received 14 first-place votes and 1,218 points while Nebraska had five first-place ballots and 1,209 points. Last week, Alabama had 46 of 66 first-place votes and 1,290 points to 1,190 for Nebraska.

Southern California, a 24-17 winner over Washington, retained the fourth spot. The Trojans received 12 first-place votes and 1,164 points. The remaining first-place ballot was split among sixth-ranked Texas, No.8 Arkansas and No.9 Houston.

Florida State, one of the nation's seven unbeaten-untied teams, did not receive any first-place mention but the Seminoles piled up 983 points following a 27-7 trouncing of South Carolina and jumped from seventh place to fifth.

Rounding out the Top Ten are Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Houston and Brigham Young. Texas climbed from eighth to sixth with 981 points for a 21-13 victory over Houston that dropped the previously undefeated Cougars from fifth to ninth.

Oklahoma, a 38-0 victor over Kansas, slipped from sixth to seventh with 960 points. Arkansas moved up from ninth to eighth with 859 points after coming from 17 points behind to turn back Baylor 29-20. Ninth-ranked Houston had 788 points while Brigham Young, 9-0, cracked the Top Ten for the first time this season with a 31-17 decision over Long Beach State.

The Cougars were 11th a week ago. They replaced Michigan in the No.10 position when the Wolverines were beaten by Purdue 24-21 and skidded to 13th.

The Second Ten consists of Pittsburgh, Purdue, Michigan, Clemson, Auburn, Washington, Wake Forest, Temple and Tennessee, with Baylor and Tulane tied for 20th.

Last week, it was Michigan, BYU, Pitt, Notre Dame, Purdue, Washington, Auburn, Baylor, Clemson, South Carolina and Wake Forest.

Temple and Tulane made the Top Twenty for the first time this year. Temple, whose only defeat was to Pitt by one point, boosted its record to 8-1 with a 35-3 rout of Akron while Tulane is 8-2 after crushing Mississippi 49-15.

Chaps Explode To Road Victory

GILMER (Special) -Kevin Wharton hit 23 points, Bruce Carver 22 and Keith Gardner 20 as LCC won its first basketball road opener since 1971 with a 95-74 victory over Jarvis Christian Monday night.

Wharton hit 10-of-12 field goals and Gardner nine-of-11 as the Chaps continued their hot shooting from the floor, connecting on 40-of-68 field goals to keep a season shooting average of about 60 percent.

Jarvis Christian held a 32-30 lead with 3:26 remaining in the first half, but LCC scored the next 13 points without allowing a reply to take a 43-32 halftime lead. Jim Steensma had five of those points and Wharton four.

Wharton, in addition to leading the scorers, grabbed nine rebounds and blocked five shots. Gardner pulled down another 14 boards.

SWC Teams Tempt Sugar Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Sugar Bowl executive said Monday there are still too many "ifs" to speculate now on an opponent for the Southeastern Conference representative in the Jan. 1 college football classic.

Mickey Holmes, executive director, responded to reports that either Arkansas or Texas would play in the Sugar Bowl under an arrangement that was to be presented Monday to bowl sponsors. The SEC will fill one of the berths with either Alabama or Georgia when bowl invitations start going out at 6 p.m. Saturday.

"Sure, that's one of our options," Holmes said of the possibility that either Texas or Arkansas might get a Sugar bid. "We're going to meet again tomorrow and that is one of our options. But there are others, too. There still exists quite a series of ifs."

Although No. 1 Alabama the SEC championship locked up, unranked Georgia — with four non-conference losses — could be the SEC Sugar representative since the Crimson Tide went to the New Orleans bowl last year. If Georgia beats Auburn this Saturday, it would send a four-time loser to the Sugar Bowl for the first time ever.

Last Jan. 1, Alabama bested Penn State in the Sugar Bowl and went on to be named national champion.

"Georgia?" responded Holmes. "That's certainly one of our options."

Then, Holmes focused on reports that the extra Sugar Bowl berth might go to someone other than Texas or Arkansas, like Oklahoma.

"Don't forget, Oklahoma's got to play at Missouri. And don't forget, Missouri hasn't pulled its annual upset.

"You could go another step further and note that an interesting situation exists in the Big Ten. Who knows, maybe Ohio State will pop loose."

Smothers Bets Too Tall Jones

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The boxing camp of Ed "Too Tall" Jones accepted a fight challenge from a Texas lawmaker on Monday, but not on the terms laid down by Rep. Clay Smothers, D-Dallas.

"We're prepared to make this guy a counter offer if he really wants to be shown up," said Dave Wolf, Jones' manager. "But it won't be to fight Too Tall. It'll be to fight Too Tall's 58-year-old trainer, Murphy Griffith."

Smothers challenged Jones to a three-round match last Thursday, following Jones split-decision victory over Jesus Meneses on Nov. 4. Smothers called Jones' debut a terrible fight, and called for Jones' return to the Dallas Cowboys as a defensive end.

Griffith, uncle of former middleweight and welterweight champ Emile Griffith, "is so mad he wants to fight with a $20,000 side bet," said Wolf, as he prepared for Jones' weigh-in.

Jones fights Abdullah Muhammad here tonight in a six-round match. Muhammad also has a victory over Meneses.

"What we want him (Smothers) to do is put up 20-grand," said Wolf. "If he can beat Too Tall's trainer, Too Tall will go back to the Cowboys."

If Smothers accepts, the match with Griffith could be held in conjunction with a fight being prepared for Jones in Tucson on Nov. 20, Wolf said.

Smothers' challenge said Too Tall would have to return to the Cowboys if the lawmaker won a round or finished the match standing up. But if Smothers suffered a technical knockout or was knocked out, he would quit politics.

Noll Cools To Steelers' Praises

PITTSBURGH (AP) — With the Pittsburgh Steelers' crushing 30-3 victory over Kansas City, coach Chuck Noll can boast more career wins than the legendary Vince Lombardi. But Noll's not impressed.

"I really don't give it any thought. I concentrate on what's coming up," Noll told reporters Monday. His career record is now 97 wins, 55 losses and 1 tie. Lombardi, former Green Bay Packer coach who later became part owner of the Washington Redskins, was 96-34-6.

The Kansas City trouncing on Sunday capped a four-game winning streak of a combined 124-20 score, which prompted cornerback Gary Green to call the Steelers "the hottest team in football."

Noll, however, declined to say whether the three-time Super Bowl winners are the best. "If we go undefeated to the end of the season, we could fall into that category," he said.

Even the Chiefs' coach admitted Pittsburgh was the best team he'd seen this year. "There are not any weaknesses with the Steelers that I can see," coach Marv Levy said.

"The biggest thing is staying power to keep it going week after week," said Noll. "One of the things that erode staying power is if you think you're pretty good. You're only as good as your last game."

Despite the stunning victory, quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who threw for 232 yards and three touchdowns, professed near-incompetance after the game.

"I just didn't have a good day ... I threw more ducks and bad passes today than I have all year," said Bradshaw, who woke up Saturday morning with a back spasm. "We just didn't play well offensively."

When Noll joined the Steelers in 1969, the National Football League team was 1-13. By 1972, it shot up to 11-3 and at the end of the 1974 season, had its first of three Super Bowl victories.

Lombardi took Green Bay to a 7-5 record, its best in 12 years, when he became coach in 1959. He then led the Packers to win the first two Super Bowls in 1966 and 1967.

Next week, the Steelers, whose 9-2 record is the best in the NFL, meet the San Diego Chargers in California, a team Noll says likes to put the ball in the air and plays good defense.

"They have the ability to run the football, but they chose to throw," he said. "They're a good football team."

Tech Cracks South Plains

LEVELLAND (Special) — Pam Stone scored 14 points and Nodia Vaughn 13 as the Texas Tech women's basketball team rolled to an 80-50 win over South Plains College Monday night.

The win raised the Raider record to 2-1 on the year. South Plains, 1-2, was led by Lou Ann Davis and Sharon Brown, who scored 14 and 13 points, respectively.

Tech shot 53 percent from the field, hitting 31 shots in 57 attempts. The leading rebounder for Tech was Gwen McCray with seven.

Watson, Nancy Lopez Repeat

CINCINNATI (AP) — Nancy Lopez and Tom Watson are the 1979 winners of the Golf Writers Association of America Player of the Year awards.

The winners were a repeat of last year's selections and it was the third consecutive year that Watson has received the honor.

Association officials said Miss Lopez was an overwhelming victor with only a handful of votes cast for Jerilyn Britz, Pat Bradley, Sandra Post, Sally Little and Lori Castillo.

Magic Johnson Claims Honor

NEW YORK (AP) — Earvin "Magic" Johnson, the rookie guard of the Los Angeles Lakers, was named Monday the National Basketball Association's Player of the Week for the period ending last Sunday.

Johnson, who led Michigan State to the NCAA championship last winter and was the first player selected in the college draft, scored 89 points as the Lakers won three of four starts last week. He also had 35 rebounds and 34 assists and shot .680 from the field.

The 6-foot-8- Johnson capped his week's performance with 24 points, 16 rebounds and 12 assists in Sunday's 140-124 victory over Cleveland.

Johnson is the first rookie to win the weekly award, which was instituted this season.

Corso Closes 'War Zone'

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana Coach Lee Corso closed practice to all outsiders Monday, ordered his staff and players not to speak to the press and put up "war zone" signs throughout the football offices as the Hoosiers began preparing for Saturday's big game against arch-rival Purdue.

"It isn't war in a deadly or vicious sense," Corso said. "It's war as an intense, competitive contest between two highly emotional and dedicated football teams."

Saturday's confrontation at Indiana's Memorial Stadium will be for the Old Oaken Bucket, the annual trophy symbolizing one of college footall's fiecest rivalrie.

Bu this year's game carries more than its ordinary importance, since the Boilermakers have a chance to tie for the Big Ten title, the Hoosiers could finish in a second-place tie, and both teams are strong contenders for post-season bowl bids.

"I think it's wonderful to come into a game like this with more at stake than the bucket."

Bum Phillips Believes In Oilers' Passing

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers rediscovered their once-feared passing game Sunday en route to a 31-17 victory over Oakland but Coach Bum Phillips said Monday the aerial game never was lost.

"I was happy we were able to pass the ball but I always knew we could so it wasn't a matter of us having to prove that we could pass," Phillips said.

Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini completed eight of 13 passes for 208 yards and touchdown bombs of 55 and 35 yards to Ken Burrough to complement Earl Campbell's 107 yards rushing.

"There's more to a passing game than throwing," Phillips said. "Sunday the protection was good, the receivers were open and Dan could see the receivers. It helps not to have hands in your face when you're trying to pass."

While Phillips never doubted Houston's passing ability, fans had not been as certain at times this season, making quarterback Dan Pastorini the object of most of the criticism.

The Oilers, 8-3, had to rely on three field goals by Toni Fritsch for a 9-6 Monday night victory over Miami. In that game, Pastorini completed six of 10 passes for 11 yards.

"I take criticism with a grain of salt," Pastorini said. "You can't gloat over a good game or dwell on a bad one."

Some of the Oilers did Pastorini's gloating for him, including Burrough, who caught his third and fourth touchdown passes of the season.

"When Dan and I are healthy and our timing is down, we can do as good as anybody in the NFL," said Burrough, who had three catches for 109 yards in the game.

The Oilers did not ignore their basically conservative running attack. Campbell had 32 carries for 107 yards to become the first American Football Conference player to gain 1,000 yards in each of his first two seasons in the league.

Houston's Toni Fritsch also continued his kicking show with a 51-yarder in the fourth quarter. Phillips said the Oilers intended to punt but Fritsch asked to try the field goal.

"Toni comes out before the game and tests the wind and his leg and he knows how far he can kick into the wind and with it," Phillips said. "He told me he could make it."

The Oilers host Cincinnati, 2-9, Sunday.

Akers Cites Longhorns' Superior Effort

AUSTIN (AP) — Coach Fred Akers of Texas — one of the favorites of bowl scouts — said Monday, "Right now the only bowl bid we're concerned with is the Cotton Bowl."

No. 8 Texas upset fifth-ranked Houston, 21-13, Saturday to scramble the Cotton Bowl picture as Texas, Houston and Arkansas each has one loss with games yet to play.

A three-way tie, however, would boost Arkansas into the Cotton Bowl as the host team from the Southwest Conference.

Despite the excitement of Texas fans over defeating previously-unbeaten Houston, Akers told his weekly news conference, "Nothing is less important now than the Houston win ... That's over and gone with."

Nevertheless, he said, "That was probably the most complete ball game we've played."

The upcoming game with Texas Christian, 2-6-1 for the season, "will require our full attention," said Akers. "They're acting like they want to win."

Asked if Texas coaches had spotted anything in films of Houston's previous games that enabled Texas to block two punts, Akers said, "Nothing concrete."

On the block by 6-foot-6 tackle Kenneth Sims, Akers said coaches had called for a return, but Sims just made a "great effort."

Asked about two missed field goal attempts by John Goodson, Akers disclosed that Goodson had injured his nonkicking foot when a player from Southern Methodist dived into him on an extra point Oct. 28.

He said Goodson, 15 of 24 for the season, was having trouble "planting" his left foot to kick.

Akers said Texas coaches had selected sophomore quarterback Donnie Little as Texas' outstanding offensive player of the game and senior cornerback Derrick Hatchett, who intercepted two passes, as the best defender.

He said junior linebacker Mark Martignoni, who had earned his first starting role this season for the Houston game, dislocated a shoulder and will miss Texas' three final regular season games.

X-rays also were taken of offensive guard Joe Shearin's injured elbow.

Akers praised Texas Christian as "probably the most improved team in the league. They've come on strong their last four games and have earned the respect of every team they played."

Texas Christian tied Texas Tech, 3-3, Saturday, one week after Texas had edged Tech, 14-6.

Asked if Texas was as emotionally charged for the Houston game as for Oklahoma, Akers said, "Probably so."

However, he added, "I don't think you are obliged to be 'up' only a certain number of times a year.

"Regardless of how difficult it is to come back with a fine performance after a fine performance, it's necessary."

Browns' Coach Defends Nickel

BEREA, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Browns' defense suffered a letdown Sunday and Coach Sam Rutigliano is concerned.

"It's quite obvious we're concerned about the defense," Rutigliano said Monday during his weekly news conference at the Browns' Baldwin-Wallace College training facility.

"We're not worried about statistics this isn't baseball, where you have batting averages or earned run averages but making the big plays when you need them.

"As we go into the stretch drive, we're going to have to play good, solid defense because our offense can't carry us in every game."

The Browns dropped a 29-24 decision to Seattle Sunday as the Seahawks controlled the ball for the last seven minutes and 29 seconds of the game.

"I felt if we could have stopped them at midfield and gotten the ball back with just a little time left, we would have been able to get on the scoreboard again and win the ball game," the coach said.

Rutigliano continued to defend the Browns' use of the so-called "nickel defense," in which two linebackers are removed and replaced by defensive backs in obvious passing situations.

The "nickel" is designed to stop long passes, although allowing short passes to be completed with relative ease. Seattle receivers turned short passes into first downs twice at critical moments.

Rutigliano said one of those was successful because a linebacker was out of position and the other — during the decisive final drive — came on a third-and-13 situation and went for 23 yards when a defensive back missed a tackle.

"The important thing about any defense is that it's executed properly," Rutigliano explained. "Ideally, we hope to use the nickel 19 to 20 times a game because that means that our defense is controlling the offensive tempo.

"Every team in the National Football League uses that defense in some form or other. Look at the strongest teams using the 3-4 defense — teams like Houston, Denver and Miami — and you see they go to the nickel on third down and seven or more.

"We ran the nickel 11 times Sunday and it was successful all but three times. That's not bad. I think it's becoming overemphasized here. Even the fans are getting on it now."

There were boos from the stands Sunday every time the linebackers Dick Ambrose and Charlie Hall came out in favor of defensive backs Ricky Jones and Clinton Burrell.

Tickner Sharpens Olympic Skates

ATLANTA (AP) — Charlie Tickner, the 1978 World Figure Skating Champion and three-time U.S. champion who at 26 is affectionately called "granddad" by other skaters, is considered America's top threat to capture a gold medal at the 1980 Winter Olympic Games.

But, the slim, dark-haired Tickner says he would have "had nothing" if he had been forced to retire at the age of 20 like most other amateur athletes in the United States.

"Our athletes retire too early," said Tickner, in Atlanta over the weekend to kick off ticket sales for the 1980 U.S. Figure Skating Championships Jan. 15-20 at Atlanta's Omni complex.

"Most athletes retire at 20. If I had retired then, I would have never won the national championships or the world championship," said Tickner, who took up competitive skating at the age of 18 when most skaters are getting ready to go to college or enter the business world.

"Usually when you get that age, your parents tell you it's time to go out and get a job or go to school. That's because in this country, we don't get subsidized from our government like in many other countries," he said.

"I was fortunate. My father supports my skating. To be the best at anything in the world, you need a lot of time and money. You can't do it spending a couple of hours a day," said Tickner, who practices seven hours a day, six days a week.

Tickner, who has won the U.S. Figure Skating Championships the past three years, failed in 1976 to make the Olympic squad when he finished fourth in he nationals, and admitted that was a disappointment.

"I was favored to make it but skated poorly," he said.

Getting ready for the 1980 Olympics is "on my mind only during training," said Tickner. "Figure skating is not on my mind 24 hours a day. You can train just so much and then you can reach a point of overkill. I don't want that to happen."

He said he is not going to the Olympics figuring he has to win.

"I'm just going to skate the best I can. My chances of winning the gold medal are good but I'm not going to go thinking I have to win," said Tickner.

After the games, he doesn't know what his plans will be but ultimately he would like to join a professional ice tour.

"I'll continue to compete until I no longer enjoy it," he said.

Nets Refuse To Panic Despite Poor Start

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Despite a start reminiscent of their first two years in the National Basketball Association, the New Jersey Nets are not planning drastic player shakeups.

"We're not going to do anything dramatic," New Jersey General Manager Charlie Theokas said Monday. "We have enough talent to win our share of games."

New Jersey, however, has won just four of its first 14 games. In their first two years in the NBA, the Nets lost 118 of 162 games before qualifying for the playoffs last year with a 37-45 record.

"Its still too soon to worry," Theokas said. "Last year we jumped out good but the last two months we were horrendous. Hopefully, we'll finish better this year."

The Nets big problem has been putting the ball in the basket, a skill required to win basketball games. They have been particularly dreadful on the road where they are winless in six games. As a team, New Jersey is shooting just 43.5 percent.

"We've got to pull out of this real quick or the circle will get really vicious," said center Rich Kelley. "Bodies will start flying out of here. We've got to start winning some games or the season will become meaningless."

The Nets have had particular trouble winning close games. Invariably, they stay close for most of the game and they fold in the last couple of minutes.

They lack a floor leader to take command when the game is on the line. John Williamson is the leading scorer, again, with a 20.9 average, but point guard Eddie Jordan has been erratic. Mike Newlin, acquired from Houston a day before the season, has not fit in and is confused about his role.

New Jersey has had six days off since losing to Houston and San Antonio on a Texas tour last week. They return to action tonight at home against Atlanta well-rested and with three of the next four games at Rutgers.

"This particular unit can win in this league," Theokas said. "We're not saying, 'Let's go reach out yet.'"

Rookie Calvin Natt, who inherited the starting small forward position when Bernard King was sent to Utah for Kelley, has been the most consistent player.

Natt is averaging 17.7 points and is the leading rebounder with just under 10 a game. Kelley is scoring at a 12.9 pace with almost nine rebounds a game.

"We have not been beaten by centers in the league. Looking at the losses, the center play has been bright. Kelley has played well the past five or six games," Theokas said. "We haven't been beaten at small forward either. We've been hurting at big forward and the guard play."

"I don't think this is a bad team," Coach Kevin Loughery said. "I think it can be pretty good. I think we have to learn one another."

Raider Women Assume Lead

The Raiders lead the seven-team field with 316 as Robin Wohltman holds the individual lead with a 76.

In third place is Raider Linda Hunt with a 79. Lamar College is second in the team standings with a total of 323. Host Temple Junior College has 325 and Midland Junior College has a 344.

Action will continue today in the 36-hole tournament.

Selection Resumes In Bostock Case

CROWN POINT, Ind. (AP) — Three women jurors were chosen Monday at the start of the second murder trial of a Gary man accused in the shooting death of California Angels baseball star Lyman Bostock.

Bostock, 27, was slain Sept. 23, 1978, as he and two others sat in a car with the estranged wife of the defendant, Leonard Smith, 31.

An earlier trial last July resulted in a mistrial after the jurors were unable to resolve a deadlock in their deliberations.

Smith, an unemployed steelworker, had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity, but two court-appointed psychiatrists testified that he was sane at the time Bostock was slain.

Eight other potential jurors were rejected during the five-hour proceedings Monday before Judge James Kimbrough in Lake Superior Court. Defense attorney Nick Thiros and prosecutor Jack Crawford will resume examination of jurors on Tuesday.

Bostock, who lived in Gary until he was 7, was visiting relatives there after a game with the Chicago White Sox. Police theorized Smith's wife, Barbara, 26, was the target of the attack.

Bostock joined the Angels in 1977 and signed a $2.7 million, five-year contract, making him one of baseball's highest-paid players.

McEnroe Repeats At Stockholm

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Defending champion John McEnroe of the United States, down a set and trailing 1-3 in the second, fought off a brisk challenge from countryman Gene Mayer and won the men's singles title in the $210,000 Stockholm Open Tennis Championships 6-7, 6-3, 6-3.

The top-seeded McEnroe became the first player ever to win two straight titles in this tournament, billed as the oldest and biggest indoor Grand Prix event in the world.

Stan Smith and Arthur Ashe won the tourn.y twice, but never in successive years.

Eighth Graders End In Tie

A three-way tie resulted in the eighth grade zone volleyball playoffs Monday at O.L. Slaton Junior High School.

Slaton, Hutchinson and Matthews tied and will play off Wednesday for the zone title.

Hutchinson beat Slaton 11-15, 15-10, 17-15 and Matthews 15-1, 15-4 in Monday's action.

MHS, Coronado Win District

The Monterey boys and Coronado girls' varsity cross-country teams dominated the District 4-AAAA meet here Saturday.

Monterey's boys had four of the first six finishers, including first-place winner David Howard. Coronado was second and Lubbock fifth.

The Coronado girls won their varsity event taking five of the first eight places, although Mindee Mayfield of Monterey, which claimed second, finished first in a district-record time of 12:34 over two miles.

Dumas won the District 1-AAA boys' meet, with Dunbar third and Estacado fifth. The highest finish among Lubbock entries was Dunbar's Lewis Soto, who was fourth.

Bernice Navariz, of Dunbar, set a AAA district record in winning the girls' race. She ran her two miles in 13:07. Canyon won the girls' team title.

MONEY-MONEY-MONEY! Yes, there is Conventional financing available now! Campbell Builders and The Rabon Company are offering new homes today in Lubbock's finest areas. The values of these homes are enhanced by 80% Conventional financing. With an initial investment of 20%, the wise home buyer will be investing in the future at today's prices. For more information, call us today at 795-5506.

THE LOW EQUITY of this squeaky clean 3 bedroom, 2 bath home in Southwest Lubbock makes it a MUST SEE. The prudent home buyer will appreciate the beautiful ash panelling, marble vanity tops and easy flow floor plan. There's even a special place for Rover. Call Earlene Hall, 795-7519 or 795-5506.

MELONIE PARK, FOUR BEDROOMS, $59,950! An unbeatable combination for the family on the grow. What else can we say. Call Nita Kiesling today for a personal and professional showing of this outstanding home. 799-5928 or 795-5506.

BEAUTY, LUXURY, QUALITY. Campbell Builders offers this polished gem in Woodland Park with 80% financing available. Three large bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, formal living and dining, Corning range with Microwave oven, delightful decorator accents throughout. But wait, there's more. Ample RV parking in rear, homemaker's kitchen with walk-in pantry, bonus room and a master suite with luxury bath. There's still more, so call Aliene Campbell for your own preview. 799-3436 or 795-5506.

LESS THAN $5300 is the total equity of this 3 bedroom 2 bath home with established lawn. An outstanding buy, this home is just waiting for its new owners. Call Nita Kiesling today, 799-5928 or 795-5506.

LAKERIDGE COUNTRY CLUB ESTATES is the setting for this beautiful new home by the Rabon Company. The dramatic entry invites you to enjoy the warmth of the double fireplace, isolated family room and the light and airy flow of this outstanding new floor plan. Mom and Dad will enjoy their own isolated master suite and luxury bath, imagine your holidays brightened by the custom features of the Jenn-Aire kitchen, wet bar, energy saving design and 80% financing. Give yourself a bonus and call Kent Rabon, 795-5506 or 795-8592.

TREES-TREES-TREES! And a substantial price reduction of this large older home in a mature neighborhood invite your attention. Three bedrooms, 2 1 2 baths, large den living and heavily landscaped grounds should place this home at the top of everyone's shopping list. Santa's helpers and Ron McClendon will show you how to make this house your home. Call 799-7216 or 795-5506.

LET US HELP YOU GIFT WRAP this beautiful Raintree Duplex. Enjoy the season in one side while renting out the other. This package has happy surprises for the wise investor. Featuring refrigerators with icemakers, patios, gas grills, and electric garage openers, this home plus investment fills the bill for the special family that's hard to please. Council Undecided On Street Naming

Lake Renaming Given As Alternative

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Although Lubbock City Council members say they favor some memorial to Martin Luther King Jr., the council is split on whether Quirt Avenue should be renamed in honor of the slain civil rights leader.

However, the Human Relations Commission told the council Monday the street name change is the only commemoration of King which is acceptable to the minority community.

Following the meeting with the HRC, council members were asked how they would vote on the renaming of Quirt Avenue if the vote were held then.

Two council members said they would vote to change the street name, while the same number said they would vote against the renaming. Councilman Alan Henry, called away from the meeting because of the death of a business associate, refused comment.

Because the name of Quirt Avenue is offensive to blacks and Mexican-Americans, Councilman Bill McAlister said he favors changing the name. However, he would change the name to something like Airport Drive or Skyline Drive.

McAlister said he fears setting a precedent by naming a street after a person and questioned how the council could refuse any future requests to rename streets after persons.

However, McAlister said he would like to name Canyon Lakes 6 after King as an alternative to renaming Quirt Avenue.

Councilman Bud Aderton also said he would cast a "no" vote because "I don't think it's the right thing to do."

"I'm a devotee of the idea if it's not broke, don't fix it," he said. "I'm not against change — just change if it doesn't accomplish anything."

Aderton said he would go along with naming a park after King, though, since parks traditionally have been named after individuals.

However, Mayor Dirk West said he would vote to change the street name. "I don't think it's that big a deal," he said.

Although West expressed concern about setting a precedent for naming other streets, he said that problem should be solved in the way the ordinance is written.

Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan agreed with West and said she would vote for renaming Quirt Avenue because "it has become very symbolic."

With the council split 2-2 on the issue, it appears Henry will cast the deciding when the street name change appears on the council agenda on Nov. 29.

If the council expected the HRC to agree to an alternative method of honoring King, it was disappointed by Monday's meeting.

Commission members said they were representing blacks and Mexican-Americans in Lubbock who want Quirt Avenue's name changed to memorialize King.

HRC member Bill Crouch said "I see no real reason not to change the name. It seems like such a small thing to ask."

He added minority members view the renaming of a street as more permanent than naming a building or park after King.

"We're not asking you to change the name because the HRC asked for it," Gilbert Flores told the council.

"The proposal was brought up by the citizens of East Lubbock. If we don't do this, I don't feel we're serving the community like we should," he said.

When Mrs. Jordan said the council was "making sure the naming of the street is the best possible way (to honor King) and to examine any alternatives," Flores replied, "We've been settling for someting else for a long time."

Flores said the renaming of Quirt Avenue had become an issue of whether the council "represents all the people of Lubbock or just the Anglo community."

Crouch said it was a question of whether the HRC "can come to you with a reasonable proposal and have it granted, or if we've got to have council members elected by districts and get a minority on there so we'll have someone to talk to."

HRC Chairman Theron Cole admitted the commission "could have come up with something less controversial," but said something other than the street name change "wouldn't have as much impact or effect."

Man Delivers Script Via Parachute Jump

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ronald Darby said he told Playboy czar Hugh Hefner that he had a new movie script to show him and would be "dropping in." And he did, from an airplane.

Darby, a 35-year-old musician, flew over Hefner's Holmy Hills estate Sunday in a red and white striped single-engine plane. Then, using a black parachute, he jumped with red smoke trailing from flares on his boots.

On the way down, Darby apparently decided to switch course and landed on a golf course about 50 yards shy of the mansion. Police and Hefner's personal security guards hurried to greet him.

Police To Offer Trading Cards In Effort To Better Relations

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock police officers today will begin dispensing football trading cards along with law and order in an effort to bring local youngsters and policemen together.

Through a new program in Lubbock sponsored by the Kiwanis Clubs and the Police Department, youngsters can begin collecting trading cards of their favorite Dallas Cowboys simply by contacting any uniformed policeman on his beat.

On the back of each of the 14 cards in the set is a definition of a football term and a related reminder of civic laws that should be obeyed.

Floyd Kernes, lieutenant governor of the District 7 Kiwanis Clubs, said at a news conference Monday that the "Kids-Cops-Cowboys" program is designed "to let youngsters have the opportunity to meet one on one with uniformed policemen."

Kiwanis members said the project is aimed at improving community relations with the police department and particularly, at preventing youngsters' fear of law officers.

The program is modeled on similar efforts in Portland, Ore., and the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Kernes said more than 4 million cards have been distributed in the Dallas-Forth Worth Metroplex.

The Project is a part of the Kiwanis "Right Stand—Hand in Hand With You" program that emphasizes "one adult in contact with one child," said Kernes.

Kiwanis Clubs are funding the trading card program through their various fund-raising efforts throughout the year. Approximately 70,000 cards are currently available for distribution at a cost to the Kiwanis Clubs of one cent per card.

Police Chief J.T. Alley said police officers will not hand the cards out, but that youngsters must ask the officer for a card. He added that the trading cards will not be handed out at the police station.

Alley said he is optimistic about the success of the program and said it will benefit officers as well as city youths.

Alley said parents' use of threats to call the police to correct the behavior of unruly children is a "widespread" practice and that he hopes the trading card program will show youngsters that "the police are out there principally to help people."

James Swan of the Hub City Kiwanis Club and a former Lubbock policeman said, "In most cases children are afraid to approach a police officer," but that the Kiwanis project will "benefit in getting them to contact a uniformed officer."
