From AFL-CIO Council

'Shorter Week' Demand Is Seen

CHICAGO (UPI) — The AFL-CIO National Executive Council opens its summer meeting today amid demands for showdowns with the Kennedy administration on the shorter work week and with the Teamsters union on raiding.

With both George Meany, AFL-CIO president, and his strongest rival for leadership, the United Auto Workers' Walter Reuther, favoring a reduction in the national work week, it was felt the 23-member council will endorse a cut in working hours as a means of cutting unemployment.

July estimates indicated 5.3 per cent of the U.S. labor force remained jobless at the start of this month. This was a reduction from the June figure but most of the amount represented teenagers who found jobs.

Pressure for militant action against James Hoffa's Teamsters, expelled from the AFL-CIO five years ago, will come from the Communications Workers of America (CWA) and the Seafarers International Union (SIU).

A CWA union trial board last week convicted 21 CWA leaders of conspiring to withdraw 18,000 members and affiliate them with the Teamsters. Joseph A. Beirne, CWA president, will demand that the AFL-CIO establish a rival Teamsters' union to raid the Hoffa organization.

The Seafarers have already clashed with the Teamsters in Chicago, granting a charter to a rival taxi drivers local which won bargaining rights for 4,000 cabbies from Teamsters Local 777.

In retaliation, during a recent jurisdictional clash with a Canadian seamen's union, the Teamsters offered at Detroit, Mich., to unload freighters picketed by the Seafarers.

President Paul Hall of the Seafarers wants approval from the AFL-CIO for plans to raid the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 610 in Puerto Rico. The Hotel and Restaurant Employees is an AFL-CIO union but the Seafarers claim it turned over control of Local 610 to the Teamsters.

Eighteen Persons Killed In Traffic Over Week End

By United Press International

Multiple fatality traffic accidents and a rash of other types of violence boosted the weekend violent death toll in Texas.

A United Press International survey for the period that began at 6 p.m. Friday showed 42 violent deaths in the state. Eighteen persons died in traffic, 2 drowned and miscellaneous violence took 22 lives.

A fiery two truck collision near Hale Center in the Texas South Plains Saturday took seven lives. Three members of a prominent Houston family were killed Friday night when their car skidded into a pickup truck on U. S. Highway 75, just north of Madisonville.

In the Hale Center collision, a pickup truck loaded with butane exploded, turning both vehicles into a mass of molten metal. Billy Joe Owens, 27, driver of the pickup, his wife Shirley, 28, twin 6-year-old sons Sherill and Troy Owens and a daughter, Delina, 2, were killed. Milton Wesley Boone, 37, driver of the butane truck and his daughter, Sherry Jean, 5, also died.

It was the second wreck within three days in Texas which took seven lives. Funeral services were held Saturday for seven teenagers killed in the collision of the car with a Santa Fe train Thursday night.

The Houston family killed Friday night included Dr. Howard M. Daniels, 47, his wife Eleanor, 48, and daughter Diana, 16. Gayle Bothwell, 4, was killed Sunday when a car driven by Mrs. Opel Jones, her mother, overturned on a farm road near Denton.

Rodeo Office Due Transfer On Saturday

Temporary offices for the Top O' Texas Rodeo will be transferred from the First National Bank lobby to the Pampa Hotel next Saturday, according to Mrs. Lois Steward, rodeo office secretary.

The rodeo is scheduled to open Wednesday, Aug. 22, and run through Saturday, Aug. 25.

Lynn Beutler, of Beutler Bros., Elk City, Okla., producers of the R. C. A. sponsored rodeo, will arrive in Pampa next Monday to begin preliminary arrangements for staging of the show.

Rodeo tickets still are on sale this week in the First National Bank lobby.

The Kid Pony Show, scheduled for one week from tomorrow, Aug. 21, will hold barrel race practices at 8 p.m. today and at the same hour on Thursday and Saturday nights at the rodeo arena.

The Kid Pony Show committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow to work out final program details. Pennie Reynolds and Bill McIntire are co-chairmen of the Pony Show.

Main Event Comes Tuesday Over The Communications Satellite Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A preliminary event was on tap today in the Senate fight over the communications satellite bill.

The main event comes Tuesday.

Opponents of the long-stalled space measure pressed for a vote on a proposed amendment to the administration-supported measure. The amendment would restore language to the bill giving the State Department authority to conduct all international negotiations over rates and other matters involving the proposed satellite communications network.

Tuesday the Senate is set to vote on a leadership motion to invoke cloture—or to gag debate—to choke off a filibuster against the bill by a handful of Democratic liberals.

Both sides were optimistic over their chances of winning the cloture fight. A two-thirds vote of all senators present and voting is required to curb debate.

The bill would create a private-owned, government regulated corporation to operate the U.S.

share of a worldwide space communications system that would relay television, radio and telephone signals.

Other congressional news: Stockpile — An armed services subcommittee today was expected to begin two or three days sketching details of $111 million in contracts signed with the government nearly 10 years ago by companies under the control of former Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon. ## Airliner Lands At Wrong Airport

TROUTDALE, Ore. (UPI)—A jetliner with 81 startled passengers and an embarrassed crew of seven landed "by mistake" at this Portland suburb's small airport Sunday instead of at Portland International Airport 10 miles away.

Dr. Richard Gorrell of Maquoketa, Iowa, making his first trip to Portland, looked out the window as the DC8 set down with some shock at what he thought was Portland's "small, shoddy" airport. Then the intercom announced,

Rainfall Last Night Measured One Inch

Lawn sprinklers and air conditioners were silent early today as a much-welcomed cool front moved into the Pampa area, dumping an unofficial one inch of rain in the area last night.

According to weather forecasters, the relief from near 100 degree temperatures will be brief, for temperatures are expected to climb into the high 90's tomorrow. Weathermen called for possible scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers, with clearing skies early tomorrow and more hot weather.

High today expected was 92. More than an inch and a half of rain fell at Amarillo in six hours early today. Wind gusting better than 50 miles an hour kicked up dust around Lubbock.

Amarillo reported 1.59 inches of rain during the period from midnight to 6 a. m. A brief thundershower dumped .03 of an inch of rain at Dalhart.

The storms were part of a system stretching across the Texas Panhandle and South Plains into Oklahoma.

A few scattered, light showers fell through the upper Red River Valley area westward to near Lubbock during the day. It was clear to partly cloudy over most of the rest of Texas.

A mass of cool air holding across the northern half of the state dropped overnight low temperatures several degrees below the levels of recent days. Overnight readings ranged from 59 degrees at Alpine to 82 at San Antonio.

In an extended five-day outlook, the Weather Bureau called for a continuation of hot weather with temperatures averaging from two (See WEATHER, Page 8)

Pampa Girl Is Reported Missing

Police today were continuing a search for a 16-year-old Pampa girl reported missing from her home since Friday night.

The father of the girl, Judy Ariene Denham, 720 S. Barnes, said the girl last was seen in the company of three other teenagers, two boys and a girl, in a 1955 two-tone Pontiac Friday night.

She was reported missing Sunday. Police said shortly after noon today, no trace had yet been found of the girl or her companions.

"Ladies and gentlemen, we have inadvertently landed at the Troutdale field by mistake."

United Air Lines said the pilot, coming in for a visual landing, made "a mistaken identity in airports."

The big jet, which usually used an 8,000- to 10,000-foot runway, braked hard but otherwise landed without trouble on the 4,600-foot runway here.

No one on the Chicago-to-Portland flight was hurt. The surprised passengers were ferried by

East, West Berlin Police In 'Wall Of Shame' Battle

BERLIN (UPI) — Communist and West Berlin police fought a battle with tear gas grenades, smoke bombs and water cannon today on the first anniversary of the Communist-built "wall of shame" that divides the city.

The trouble started when West Berliners jammed up against the wall to mark its construction with an official three minutes of silence and an unofficial half-hour of noise, threats and insults hurled across the border.

Drivers massed their cars for blocks around the foreigners' crossing place atCheckpoint Charlie and the nearby Wilhelmstrasse to blow their horns, wave handkerchiefs at East Berliners and shout abuse at Red police.

Factory sirens wailed during the demonstration, drowning out Communist loudspeaker trucks on the other side of the wall.

Grenades Exchanged — The Red police hurled tear gas grenades at the demonstrators, West Berlin police retaliated by throwing smoke bombs across the wall at the Reds.

The Communists also turned two water cannon on the crowd of about 2,000 West Berliners who had gathered at the sightseeing corner of Zimmer and Wilhelmstrasse near the East German government headquarters.

East Berlin itself was quiet and calm, without crowds or demonstrations, Western visitors reported.

Thousands Protest — The incident began about 30 minutes after thousands of West Berliners gathered along the wall at various places to stage their noisy demonstrations and unnerve the jittery Communist guards.

Berlin's Western Allied commandants, in a message marking the anniversary, said the Allies will stand by the city. They praised the courage of West Berliners and predicted the cause of liberty will prevail here.

It was a year ago during the dark hours of the night that the Communists began slipping concrete blocks and barbed wire together along the 26-mile city border as a move to stem the exodus of East German refugees to the West.

The action shocked Berliners

when they awoke in the morning and it increased the East-West tension that has continued until the present. It also reduced the flow of refugees to a trickle.

Despite the absence of any new Communist move by this morning, there was no thought that the threat to West Berlin had lessened. It still faced a Soviet demand for conclusion of a German peace treaty that would end Western rights here.

Mayor Willy Brandt told West Berliners Sunday night they would face new burdens in the future. He expressed certainty the Western Allies would not allow themselves to be "driven out."

JFK Is Expected To Turn Down Present Tax Cut — WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy was reported set to tell the American people tonight that he has decided against asking Congress for an immediate tax cut.

The talk is set for 5 p.m. CST. Administration sources said the President would spell out to the nation in a radio-television speech his reasons for putting off a tax-cutting drive until next year.

These sources said Kennedy would stick to his original plan to ask Congress to enact a combination tax reduction and tax reform bill next year, effective Jan. 1, 1963.

The President has been debating whether he should request a tax cut this year to stimulate the nation's economy. Some business and labor leaders and economists have urged such action.

Kennedy was said to feel that the economy is healthy but that present tax rates are so high they are acting as a drag on the economy, preventing it from reaching full productive capacity.

He delayed announcement of his tax-cut decision over the weekend to study economic indicators for July. The President had said earlier that these figures would influence his decision.

In general, the reports for last month have shown no sharp swing in the key business indicators. Retail sales rose, personal income was up moderately, and the factory work week was a little shorter.

Perhaps even more important to the President was the sentiment in Congress. There has been little enthusiasm in the Senate or House for a tax cut this year, and Kennedy would face a major obstacle in trying to get one through.

The President's economic advisers have been divided over the merits of an immediate tax cut. Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon has been opposed, but Budget Director David E. Bell, Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg, and Chairman Walter W. Heller of the council of economic advisers have favored a reduction.

The legislators . . . Sens. Warren G. Magnuson, D - Wash., and L. Holland, D - Fla., and Rep. Olin E. Teague, D-Tex., did not appear dismayed Sunday that the United States might be behind in the race.

"We have some very solid, feasible technical plans in the same field as the Russians have," Magnuson said. "The fact that one is ahead of the other doesn't necessarily mean anything."

Magnuson and Holland are members of the Senate Space Committee. Magnuson's subcommittee approved a $3.7 billion space budget on Saturday.

Teague, a member of the House Space Committee, said, "our space program is on solid ground."

No Indication When They Will Descend

By ROBERT J. KORENGOLD United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two manned Soviet spaceships orbited the earth at almost 18,000 miles an hour today in a marathon space test pointing to longer voyages to the moon and Venus and with no indication of when they would return to earth.

Both cosmonauts already had traveled more than the round-trip distance to and from the moon.

Moscow radio reported that Maj. Andrian Nikolayev had completed 35 orbits aboard the Vostok 19 orbits aboard the Vostok IV.

Both men reported they felt fine as they continued to loop around the globe about once every 88 minutes. In 35 orbits, Nikolayev had journeyed more than 857,000 miles, and in 19 orbits Popovich more than 475,000 miles.

Radio Moscow scheduled further live television transmissions from space, indicating that they may be up for at least another night.

Earlier interceptions outside the Soviet Union of messages to the space ships had indicated an imminent landing of at least one of them.

Plans Kept Secret — Soviet leaders, from Premier Nikita Khrushchev on down, kept the world guessing as to just how long Nikolayev and Popovich would be kept aloft in their twin rides through space.

In a message to the two cosmonauts after Nikolayev had rounded out two full days in orbit and Popovich one day, Khrushchev told them by radio he wished them "a successful fulfillment of the planned flight program and a happy landing."

Observers noted Khrushchev's care in making no reference to what the "planned flight program" was or when the landing would come.

As the day wore on, Vostok III, launched on Saturday morning, and Vostok IV, blasted up beside it Sunday morning, were flying almost in formation on what looked like a marathon expedition.

Space Stations — A Soviet astronautical expert said the two spaceships are pioneering the way for the establishment of "space stations" which would act as departure points for future voyages farther out into the cosmos.

It was speculated the twin flights were going so well, the astronauts themselves may have elected to go the limit—whatever that may be. Moscow reported the pilots were performing such tasks as threading needles and doing callisthenics to test their reactions.

Previous indications were that a "welcome home" demonstration (See COSMONAUTS, Page 8)

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My mother died three years ago and my father remarried last month. Nobody could ever take my mother's place, but I was told I was getting a "new" mother. I not only didn't get a "new" mother, I lost my father, too. His new wife set up all sorts of rules and regulations to help me grow up "right." And my father is on her side. So, Dear Abby, if you want to give young people helpful advice when they get a "new" mother or father, tell them the sooner they start thinking of themselves as orphans the better off they'll be.

FOURTEEN AND FED UP
DEAR ABBY: My father is a familiar one. When a child loses a parent, the remaining parent frequently eases up on discipline out of sympathy. When "rules and regulations" are suddenly imposed again, resentment follows. Your "new" mother will never take the place of the one you lost, but she is doing her best to raise you "right." Give her a chance.

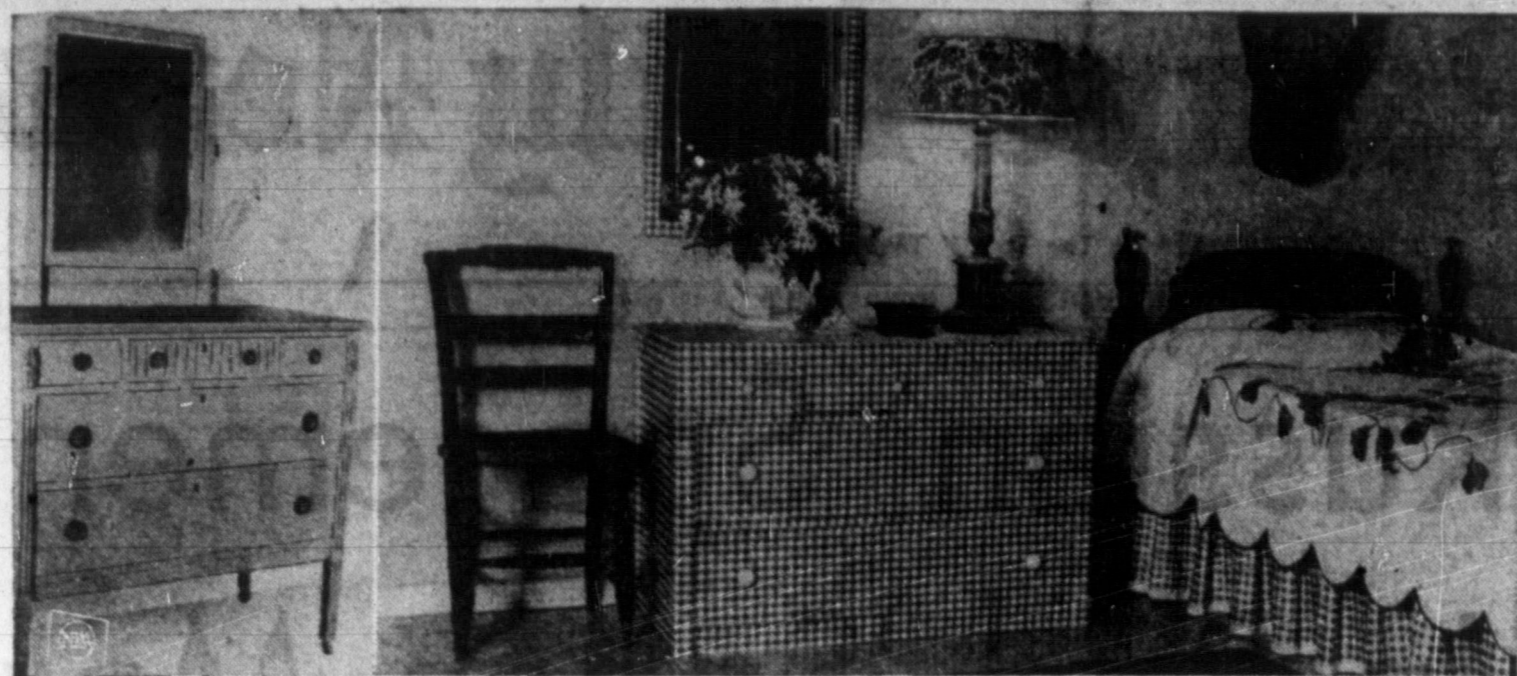

DEAR ABBY: A nephew of mine is being married soon. My husband and I were not invited to the wedding because of a family fight that took place two years ago. The wedding is being held in the church we belong to. I say there is no reason why we can't go to that church and see the wedding. If they don't like it, let them try to throw us out. (Of course, we wouldn't go to the reception.) My husband says we should not go to the church. I don't see why we should stay away since it's OUR church. What do you think?

NOT INVITED
DEAR NOT: If you want to go to your church to see the wedding—go. And if your husband wants to stay home—go without him.

DEAR ABBY: While cleaning my son's room I came across a letter he had written to you, Dear Abby. He signed himself "STILL IN LOVE." I think you should know that "STILL IN LOVE" was born December 9, 1950. What is the matter with children nowadays?

"STILL IN LOVE'S" MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: Don't be alarmed. Your little boy is merely borrowing the romantic jargon of modern times. "Nowadays" children are not much different from yesterday's. Don't ridicule him.

DEAR ABBY: Your correspondent, HARRY, who would rather have a mule than a wife (because the mule would bring in a few dollars) sure bugged me. Call his bluff and send him the mule, Abby. Every jackass should have a mate.

Old-fashioned chest of drawers, left, needn't remain an eyesore. Trimmed of its legs and mirror it can be re-stored to brighten a bedroom and increase storage space.

Bright red and white gingham checked wallpaper, pre-pasted and trimmed, covers the old scarred finish. Matching ruffle is used for bed's dust ruffle and curtains.

Plain-Jane Dresser Is Simple To Glamorize

KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
It is not easy to turn from the splendid variety of new furniture to contemplate the rejuvenation of old and sturdy but not very pretty stuff. But the consolation is that few purchases will give the sense of satisfaction that a successful remodeling of the old into something pretty will.

A good case in point is an old, non-antique chest of drawers which has only its basic sturdiness to recommend it. We have one which is used for storage and is unwieldy to position and ugly to look at. I have seen dozens of similar chests built probably in the '20s or '30s and prime candidates for the thrift shops and rummage sales. They sometimes wind up in children's rooms since the kiddies, it is thought, are not as critical of appearances.

Whether or not to spend the time and effort required to modernize an old chest will depend on its construction. I believe that if a chest is solidly built, with drawers that slide easily, it is worth the effort. If the top, back or drawers are badly warped, if it is shaky or too massive, it probably is not.

There are several possibilities in revamping old chests of drawers. When the finish is not in very good condition, covering the chest may be as satisfactory a solution as any. A young designer I know took a typical old-fashioned dresser and remodeled it for a girl's room as an example of what can be done.

This old dresser, set high on legs, had a mirror attached and was decorated with applied medallions on the corners. First the mirror was removed. The convex medallions were chipped off and the legs cut down. When I performed similar surgery on our old chest, I will add to the new lower height goal, smooth-rolling casters to simplify moving the chest for cleaning.

Old hardware in this example was also discarded. The case and the drawers were sanded down to remove any loose paint and to scour the surface. To cover the chest, a pre-pasted, fully-trimmed plasticized wallpaper in a bright red and white gingham check pattern was selected.

Drawers were papered overlapping the top edge, not the sides. Top and sides of the chest were papered to match. Because the paper is plasticized, it may be wiped clean and its freshness will last.

The old mirror frame was also trimmed in the wallpaper and hung over the chest. New white china drawer pulls give a smarter look to the chest, too.

This paper, as is the case with several budget-priced, pre-pasted papers, is matched to fabric in the same gingham check. The fabric is repeated as a dust ruffle for the bed and crisp curtains for the window. To add the final touch, a bright red cotton area rug underscores the red and white color scheme.

This checked pattern, which does carry the crisp, fresh look of starched gingham, also comes in a clear blue and white and the blue, olive green and white combination, so popular today.

Ruth Millett Married Bachelor Has Unhappy Wife

"The Married Bachelor" is the intriguing title of an article in a recent issue of a national magazine. The only type of married bachelor described in this article is the one who doesn't intend that marriage will interfere with girl-chasing.

But there are other types of married bachelors, too.

There's the father who doesn't want to be bothered with his children — who expects his wife to take full responsibility for their upbringing and full blame for any difficulties they may get into.

There's the husband who refuses to do anything around his home and regards as "nagging" his wife's reminders that the lawn needs mowing, or the garage needs cleaning or the kitchen needs a coat of paint — and who acts more like a star boarder than the man of the house.

There's also the man who buys expensive clothes for himself, always drives an expensive automobile, can find the money for any hobby that takes his fancy, but resents every cent that his wife spends on herself, on the children, or on the home.

And then there's the husband who never wants to take his wife anywhere, but expects her to sit patiently at home while he goes to lodge meetings, to out-of-town conventions, on hunting and fishing trips, to ball games, and so on.

And there's the husband who expects his wife to hold down a job and help earn a living because he has no intention of assuming full financial responsibility for a family.

There are many types of married bachelors today, but they all have one thing in common — unhappy wives.

Take It From Kathy

by Kathy Peterson
Dear Kathy: I'm a college sophomore. My younger sister is a senior in high school. We get along very well except for one thing: I'm constantly pressured to get dates for her and her friends. They think I'm mean for not doing it. My sister is pretty and has a nice personality, but the fellows I know think of girls her age as children. Talking my pals into dates for friendship's sake wouldn't be right, but I can't convince her.

Shouldn't she arrange her own social life? Each time a dance comes up, I'm treated like a Simon Legree.—S. & K.

Dear S. & K.: Having an older brother with friends who are potential dates sounds like a magic carpet to popularity. But if you're lucky enough to have one, it isn't fair to treat him like the president of a lonely hearts bureau.

A brother can and should be a good sport by introducing his sister to as many friends as possible. At that point she is on her own. Once a boy has had a chance to meet her and ask for a date, a girl looks foolish trying to force an invitation via big brother's influence. It shouldn't be necessary to put on pressure to arrange things.

It's natural for girls to want to help one another to extend social activities. If your sister chooses to introduce her dates or their friends to the girls she likes best, that's fine. This doesn't mean that you should be obliged to operate a social service. It's beyond the call of duty for a brother to arrange dates — with a friend, for a friend — of a sister. That's a lot of red tape. She should understand that it could be complicated and even embarrassing for you.

A word of advice! Don't be too aloof in dealing with these girls who SEEM like children. Another few years will erase the age gap that looks so wide. It's possible that one of your sister's "childish" pals could be the girl you choose to marry!

Teen-agers: Please send your personal problems to Kathy Peterson in care of this paper. While she cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

Was nice to see Mrs. Jessie VanHuss and W. E. Towe out after their stay in the hospital.

Mr. F. M. Heaston is doing nicely at home. Mrs. Heaston tells me her cousin gave the lily bulbs, which I was telling you about last week, and she called them the Magic Lily. She has found them in catalogues and they sometimes are called Mystery or Wonder Lily. Sometimes they are called the Naked Lily, perhaps from the fact that the foliage dies down in the summer and up springs the beautiful lily in clusters of six. So there is the name I promised you.

Guests of Mrs. C. G. Miller this week are Mrs. D. H. Porter and children, Ruth and Richard of Shamrock; also Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Callott of Elk City, Okla.

Mrs. Allen Hall and family of Fort Worth were houseguests of her mother, Mrs. Verda Adair last week; also Mrs. and Mrs. Keith Brumley of Hugoton, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bentley and son, Mike, of Compton, Calif. Mrs.

Adair reports a very enjoyable time.

Palmer Is Winner Of American Golf Tourney

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Arnold Palmer, golf's golden boy, has his putter working again, but his fellow pros won't have to worry about it for the next five weeks.

"I've decided to lay off tournaments until Seattle five weeks from now," Palmer said today. "Perhaps it's a mistake because I am putting better now than I have at any time since 1960."

That was the year he set the all-time money winning record for a season with a total of $75,262.85.

He surpassed that Sunday, "with my putter doing magic again," when he won the $9,000 top money in the $50,000 American Golf Classic to run his 1962 earnings to $80,196.

Will Play Exhibitions

While his next tournament appearance will not be until Seattle in September he, meanwhile, will play some half dozen exhibition matches and then return here at the Firestone Country Club for the "World Series" of golf on Sept. 8 and 9. In that one, Palmer, the Masters and British Open champion, will meet U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus and PGA champion Gary Player with first prize money of $50,000.

"I'd like to win it," Palmer said, "and if I can keep on putting like I did in the classic I could."

He had 30 putts Sunday as he matched Firestone's par 70 with four bogeys and four birdies. That gave him a total of 116 putts for the 72 holes as he wound up with a total of 276, four-under-par for the 7,165-yard course.

That 276 was five strokes better than runner-up Mason Rudolph, who had a final round 31-35—66 for a total of 281 and second place money of $4,600.

Eight strokes back at 284—and worth $2,500 each—came Billy Maxwell, Al Geiberger, Don January and Nicklaus. Tied for seventh place—11 strokes back of Palmer, came Frank Stranahan and former U.S. Open champion Gene Littler.

Goalby Fades Badly

Then it was Bob Goalby, who soared to a final round six-over-par 76, and Fred Hawkins, tied at 288. A stroke back of them came Julius Boros, Phil Rodgers, Jackie Burke, George Knudson, Mac Main and defending champion Jay Hebert. Player and Mike Souchak were at 290 with Art Wall, Dow Finsterwald, Doug Ford and Paul Harney at 291.

Sam Snead, golf's all-time money winner, could do no better than 297—23 strokes behind

Palmer, who one of these days will supplant the West Virginian as golf's biggest money man.

While Palmer failed to achieve his golfing objective this year—a sweep of the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and PGA championships—he did establish a new all-time money winning record. His official total does not include the $3,125 he picked up in bonus money here by leading the field at the end of the first, second and third rounds—worth $1,000 each—and picking up $125 for being one of four golfers who had the best second round.

Heinrich Is Big Star With Pro's

By JOE SARGIS
UPI Sports Writer

Don Heinrich, making a comeback after a year's absence, and rookies Lance Alworth, Jim Collier and Merlin Olsen among others were the stars of professional football's first big weekend of play.

The 31-year-old Heinrich left the coaching ranks with the New York Giants this season to give it one more whirl. And of his performance in Saturday night's 21-20 victory for the Oakland Raiders over the Boston Patriots, it seems that he may be the quarterback the lowly Raiders need to carry them out of the American Football League cellar.

Don, the Giants' No. 3 draft choice back in 1953 while he was still setting passing records at Washington, sparked Oakland's winning touchdown march which ended with fullback Alan Miller plunging over from the two-yard line late in the third period. Jackie Simpson then booted the extra point for the margin of difference.

Heinrich spent six seasons with the Giants and one as the No. 2 man for the Dallas Cowboys of the rival National Football League.

Rookies Speed Helps

Alworth, an outstanding halfback at Arkansas last year, and rookie Jerry Robinson of Grambling (La.) put their speed to good use and helped set up two second quarter TD marches with quarterback Jack Kemp that led the San Diego Chargers to a 17-0 win over the Dallas Texans.

Olsen, the All-America lineman from Utah State, turned in an outstanding job on Washington as the Los Angeles Rams whipped the Redskins, 37-7, before a crowd of 65,201 in Memorial Coliseum. He played more than half the game on defense and before the game was over the Redskins were double and triple teaming him without notable success.

A total of eight games were played on Saturday night after the defending NFL champion Green Bay Packers beat the Dallas Cowboys, 31-7, and the Houston Oilers, defending champions in the AFL, downed the Denver Broncos, 31-17, on Friday night. In Sunday's lone game, the AFL Buffalo Bills beat the New York Titans, 20-10.

Giants Blow Lead

In the other Saturday night games, the New York Giants, Eastern Division champions in the NFL, frittered away an early lead and had to settle for a 21-21 tie with the St. Louis Cardinals in the first Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio; Jim Ninowski outdueling Milt Plurtz as the Cleveland Browns nipped the Detroit Lions, 17-14; a 92-yard touchdown pass from Bill Kilmer to Jim Johnson enabled the San Francisco Forty Niners to down the Minnesota Vikings, 30-24; the Baltimore Colts buried the Philadelphia Eagles, 56-28, and the Pittsburgh Steelers edged the Chicago Bears, 19-14, as Lou Michaels booted two field goals midway in the second quarter.

Collier, the big rookie end from Kentucky the Giants hope will replace Kyle Rote, caught a nine-yard TD toss from new quarterback Ralph Guglielmi for New York's third score and as things turned out enabled them to gain the tie with the Cardinals.

Dodgers Fading While Yanks Widen Loop Lead

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

It's a new race in the National League but the same old story in the American League.

The San Francisco Giants completed a three-game sweep of the NL's biggest series of the season with Sunday's 5-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. That cut the Giants' deficit to 2 1/2 games, ended talk of a Dodger runaway and probably means a sizzling pennant fight to the end.

The New York Yankees, meanwhile, opened up a 5 1/2-game lead in the AL with their 2-0 triumph over the Detroit Tigers and already the figure filberts are computing that a .500-pace for the rest of the season would give the Yankees their second straight pennant under Ralph Houk.

Here's a capsule - outlook for both races: The Giants, with 44 games left have one more game to play than the Dodgers and trail by only two games in the lost column. The Yankees would wind up with 94 victories if they win only 24 of their remaining 48 games—and that would mean the second-place Los Angeles Angels would have to play .650 ball to win.

Juan Marichal, 24-year-old right hander, pitched a four-hitter to win his 15th game of the season. Jose Pagan drove in three runs for the Giants.

Yank Singles Win

Run - scoring singles by Roger Maris and Elston Howard produced both Yankee runs in the eighth inning before 42,996 at New York. Bill Stafford pitched a five-hitter to win his 10th game for the Yankees while Ron Kline suffered his fourth setback for Detroit.

The Cincinnati Reds whipped the New York Mets, 8-4; the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Chicago Cubs, 5-4; the Houston Colts defeated the Milwaukee Braves, 8-5; and the Philadelphia Phillies swept the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-3 and 9-7, in other NL games.

In the other AL action, the Minnesota Twins topped the Angels, 5-3; the Chicago White Sox shaded the Kansas City Athletics, 1-0; the Boston Red Sox downed the Baltimore Orioles, 4-1 and the Cleveland Indians rallied for a 5-3 triumph over the Washington Senators.

Jay Wins 18th

Joey Jay won his 18th game for the Reds behind an eight-hit attack that included homers by Gordon Coleman, Leo Cardenas and Wally Post. Jay was belted for a three-run homer by Charley Neal in the first inning.

Bob Skinner drove in three runs with two homers and a single to lead the Pirates' 12-hit attack on four Cub pitchers. Relief pitcher Jack Lamabe picked up his second win for the Pirates while Don Elston was tagged with his seventh defeat. George Altman homered for the Cubs.

The Colts ended a seven-game losing streak but had to throw both Don McMahon and Russ Kemmerer into the game before halting a two-run Milwaukee rally in the ninth.

Cal McLish pitched a seven-hitter to raise his record to 8-2 in the first game and the Phillies completed the sweep by outslugging the Cardinals in the nightcap. Johnny Callison hit a two-run triple to highlight a game-winning three-run rally in the sixth inning of the first game and blasted a three-run homer in the eighth inning of the nightcap.

Errors Help Twins

Errors by Leon Wagner and pitcher Ryne Duren helped the Twins score two unearned runs in the seventh inning. Dick Stigman yielded a three-run eighth-inning homer to Felix Torres but went the route to win his seventh game.

Jim Landis' eighth-inning homer produced the only run of a pitching duel between the White Sox' Ray Herbert and Kansas City's Bill Fischer. The Athletics threatened in the eighth inning but Juan Pizarro struck out Jerry Lumpe to end the threat.

Eddie Bressoud's three-run homer was all that Earl Wilson needed to notch his ninth decision for the Red Sox. Wilson walked four and struck out nine in handling Milt Pappas his eighth defeat.

Gene Green's pair of two-run homers enabled the Indians to come from behind and give Jim Grant his 12th straight win in the Senators' home park. Grant hasn't been beaten at Washington in five years and has a 20-4 lifetime record against the Senators.

Northern Teams Are Given Gridiron Nod

LUBBOCK (UPI) — The North won the annual high school all-star football game over the weekend and indications are that North Texas teams will continue to hold sway in the fall campaign.

The game was played in conjunction with the 30th annual Texas High School Coaching Clinic.

The favored North used a blocked field goal to set up the winning touchdown in a 13-7 victory, and used a last half rally to take the basketball crown, 44-38.

Predictions at the clinic, held last week in Lubbock, call for an all-North finish in the high school football race this fall with two champions repeating.

Coaches tabbed Wichita Falls and Dumas to repeat in the top two divisions, and picked Denver City in Class AA and Rotan in Class A.

Compare Favorably

Interviews during the school indicated that 1962 teams at Wichita Falls and Dumas both compare with the champions the school fielded last year. The coaches are picked to drop Southern representative Houston Lamar in the Class AAAA finals, and Dumas is expected to kayo Sag Benito in the AAA race.

Defending Class AA state champion Donna is not expected to get out of its district. Rotan is favored to defeat New London in the Class A finals action. Albany, which will take a 29-game winning streak into the fall campaign, is expected to reach the semi-finals.

Much of the talk following the weekend games concerned things farther in the future than this fall. It was about the Southwest Conference in the next few years and how Texas would profit from its 14 signees who performed in Saturday's grid battle.

UT Gets Bulk

The Longhorns had signed Houston Lamar guard Tom Currie; who was voted outstanding lineman of the game. They also inked the second and third vote-getters, Tom Novis of San Antonio Jefferson and Ronnie Landry of Port Arthur.

Mike Dossett of Dallas Wilson, a Rice signee, was chosen outstanding back. Dossett's alert play carried the North to victory when he picked up a blocked field goal and ran for a first down on the South 10. Three plays later he scored the winning touchdown.

Second in the backfield balloting was Gene Walker of Hull-Daisetta, also heading for Rice.

Texas Tech landed the most all-star basketball players, including Doug Malaise of Odessa. SMU signed second highest pointer Carroll Hooser of Richardson.

The coaching school attendance of 3,315 was short of the record of 3,333.

The football attendance of 17,500 was far below the record. However the 7,500 attending Friday's basketball game bettered the mark of 5,936 set in Lubbock in 1956.

The coaches will meet in Houston next year Aug. 4-9. The clinic will be in Fort Worth in 1964.

Indianapolis In Swim Victories

By TED VIROSTKO
United Press International

CUYAHOGA FALLS, Ohio (UPI) — The Indianapolis Athletic Club (IAC) today rules as the New York Yankees of the swim world on the strength of its unbelievable performance in the men's National AAU outdoor swimming championships.

Tom Stock, Ted Stickle and the IAC's "B" 400-medley relay team broke four of the six world records that fell by the wayside during the three day event.

Stock set a new 200-meters backstroke mark of 2:10.9 Friday, then came back Saturday to register a new standard of 1:01.0 for the 100-meters Saturday.

Sunday he, Chef Jastrzemski, Fred Schmidt and Pete Sintz combined their efforts to breeze to a new 400-medley relay record of 4:01.6, clipping 1.4 seconds off the old mark set by an IAC squad a year ago.

Stickle, who set a world record of 4:55.8 in the 400-meter individual medley Saturday, became a double winner by winning the 200-meters medley in 2:16.2 Sunday. This was three tenths of a second below his American record.

The IAC wound up, with 124 points, compared with 35 1/2 for runnerup Santa Clara. Others in the top seven were Los Angeles AC 30; Japan 29; North Jersey SA 26; El Segundo and Gopher, Minn., 13, and West Germany 12.

Carl Robie, a 17-year-old high school student from Philadelphia, duplicated Stock's feat of breaking two world records. His efforts came in the 200-meter butterfly. In the finals Robie raced home in 2:10.8 and in the preliminaries he cracked the mark with a 2:12.4 effort. Robie set the previous world mark of 2:12.6 at Los Angeles in 1961.

Senators Sweep Twin Bill To Advance In Texas Loop

By United Press International

The Austin Senators swept both ends of a double-header with Tulsa 3-2 and 8-3 Sunday night to move into the first division of the Texas League.

The victories put the Senators abreast of the third place Albuquerque Dukes.

In another double-header Sunday night San Antonio beat league-leading El Paso 10-8 in the first game but saw the rampaging Sun Kings come back to take the final tilt 8-7. In a single game Albuquerque beat Amarillo 11-5.

The first Austin at Tulsa contest was a pitcher's duel. Austin's winning margin came from Paul Snyder's bases - empty homer in the fifth. The Senators got five hits in the entire contest, to four for the Oilers. Snyder got another homer in the second game, that time with one on.

At Amarillo, the Albuquerque Dukes erupted with 7 runs in the sixth inning to bury the last place Gold Sox.

San Antonio's Al Herring set the pace for a seven-run first inning at home by slamming a three-run homer off Sun King hurler Monty Tarrh.

Fort Worth Is Winner Of Tourney

BRYAN, Tex. (UPI) — Fort Worth beat Sikeston, Mo., 5-2 Sunday to win the Southwest Regional Connie Mack Baseball Tournament and advance into the finals of the Connie Mack World Series.

The finals will be held Aug. 24-28 in Springfield, Ill.

Fort Worth beat Farmington, N. M., 5-1, in the first round. Farmington whipped Pollock, La., 7-2, Sunday night.

Real Persecuted Minority

Justice is something we all take pretty much for granted. To most of us it means a system of laws in accord with the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights of the Constitution, the Human Relations Commandments and the Golden Rule.

The reasoning which went into the enactment of the Sherman Act. She shows the impossibilities, the contradictions, the inconsistencies which exist in this tangled maze termed anti-trust laws.

It means the equitable administration of these laws for all persons. It means that what is true and valid for one person will be true and valid for all other persons. It essentially means a rule of universal law, not a rule of men subject to whims of the administrators.

Miss Rand, whose two novels mentioned earlier have sold more than 2,500,000 copies, was born in pre-revolutionary Russia. She knows the results of big government in its ultimate form. After the communists seized power her father's business was confiscated by the state. She is no stranger to the want created by this big government. Starvation was a constant companion. At one time, after a dinner consisting of a handful of dried peas, Miss Rand sank to the floor, too weakened by hunger to stand.

Consider if you will a situation wherein a set of man-made laws makes it impossible for an individual to be a law-abiding citizen. Wherein it is impossible for him to earn his living and not be a criminal in the eyes of the law.

But it was during this time that her philosophy that man is a free, thinking individual, created for himself and not the state, was formed.

Consider such a law which would punish ability, outlaw success and stifle initiative.

For a long time we believed, as many others still do, that the anti-trust laws should be broadened rather than abolished. We thought that unions should be placed within their jurisdiction. It was only recently that we were able to see the error in this line of thinking. Rather than extend the scope of inherently evil laws they should be done away with.

Consider then, the cold hard fact that such a law is now in existence. Is this justice?

Because we believe Miss Rand's message is important to every American we have purchased the copyrighted authority to reproduce it in this newspaper.

Miss Rand takes up the subject of the anti-trust laws of the United States, the Sherman Act, which she correctly terms "the most infamous piece of legislation in American history."

We suggest that every individual who is interested in the cause of freedom and justice read "America's Persecuted Minority: Big Business." Then pass it along to a friend or neighbor who may not have seen it. If they do not have time to read it at present save the two issues and read them later. It will clarify one's thinking as it did ours. We all need more light.

No Protection

Zoning and planning do not protect the property owner. Actually, the system so popular in a bureaucracy protects the bureaucracy and makes it possible for the tax collector to squeeze the last thin of taxes from those who are thrifty and prudent.

Customers Can Say No

In a free economy, the customer is king. What does this mean? It means that when we rely upon a market place that is unrestrained in any way by government, by unions or by any other force or agency of force, the customer has the final place of refusal.

But the government has planned bread production on the basis of total anticipated consumption. If all the bread that has been baked isn't consumed, it really won't matter because the individual people who don't eat the bread can be compelled to pay for it anyway thru the medium of taxation.

Only the free man may say "no." Only in a free market, may the customer say "no."

Who said no? Was it the customer? Or was the customer forced to pay for something he didn't want by means of taxation?

If the economy is not free, the customer may not say no. And if the customer cannot say no then he cannot be king. Slaves can't say yes. They may not say no.

This is the inevitable, the inescapable problem of all government planning and operation of the economy. However skillfully it is ordered, the customer is de-throned and the government is enthroned. The government decides what shall be produced, who shall have it, and at what price. The government decides who is to pay for it and in what amount. Only the government is in the final decision - making position.

Take a controlled economy or one that is only partially controlled by some kind of central planning. Let us see what happens. The customer goes into a store and asks for some particular kind of product. The store keeper tells him that he cannot have that product because the government planners have ruled that its production isn't feasible, all things considered.

In a free market, the government has no say at all. Individual people have the prerogative of accepting or rejecting anything they find in the market and for any reason. They can buy or they can sell.

Who is saying no, the customer or the store keeper? Or is it the government that has said no?

Take the condition in a completely controlled economy. A person wishes to abstain from the purchase of bread, let us say, because this person believes that bread is fattening and consequently should not be included in

The American Way

CUTTING TAXES

Just about everybody is getting in on the "Demand to cut taxes." It seems that the top organizations are at last climbing on the bandwagon. Even President Kennedy is proposing a tax cut right in the face of a gigantic deficit in 1962 and a similar deficit in 1963.

To many it appears that we taxpayers are at last going to get a break instead of going broke, but others are more skeptical. They recall that the present tax load was developed by other plans, by the same people, with the same glorious fanfare and the same promised benefactions. Somehow the grand innovations always seem to backfire.

This would appear to be the case in the present situation. President Kennedy's "tax cut plan" seems to be based upon the idea that people need the money right now, and will somehow have more money later to pay the interest charges and amortization costs of the increased government debt. Be assured more debt is ahead. The debt limit has just been increased $3 billion. President Kennedy has himself authorized 70 new ways of spending tax dollars on projects already operating.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce made the headlines with a demand for a tax cut, but failed to propose a cut in the costs of government which would make it feasible. It should be clear to this business group that the simplest formula of good business is to keep spending within income. To do otherwise for an indefinite period is fatal to a person, a family and a nation.

The AFL-CIO set up its demand for a reduction in income taxes while opposing efforts to reduce the spending of government and has ignored well established plans for controlling both taxing and spending. But labor, rank-and-file as well as the leadership knows the only valid means of tax reduction is through reduction in federal spending. The only function of taxes is to pay the cost of government. Politicians and their satellites have ignored this truth for years in their successful endeavors to spend it faster than the American people can produce it.

For this reason the national debt is $240 billion greater today than it was 20 years ago — and it now requires twice as many tax dollars to pay interest on that part of the debt as it did to run the entire government 30 years ago.

Tax reform and tax repeal are very popular subjects, but it should be clear to everyone that taxes are a result of spending, and that reform or repeal depends entirely on reductions in spending. Unfortunately big business, big labor and big government have failed to deal with this obvious fact although it has been before them with increasing impact for several years.

It appears that this sudden clamor for tax reduction is bending to a long pent up public demand, yet the public demand is increasing, and insistently, for tax reduction balanced with reduced spending. Vast support has been given the LIBERTY AMENDMENT because it resolves the whole problem.

The LIBERTY AMENDMENT provides for removing government from all fields competitive with private enterprises of the taxpayers except those specified in the Constitution. Research indicates that by simply relinquishing its unauthorized functions, government saving will amount to more than it collects from individual income taxes.

Thus it becomes possible through the LIBERTY AMENDMENT to REPEAL federal individual income taxes completely while restoring fiscal balance to government.

The present clamor for tax reform indicates the LIBERTY AMENDMENT is close to victory. It is currently pending in Congress as H. J. Res. 23, and has been formally approved by the States of Wyoming, Texas, Nevada, Louisiana, Georgia, and South Carolina. It provides that:

"Sec. 1. The Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial, financial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution.

"Sec. 4. Congress shall not levy taxes on personal incomes, estates, and/or gifts."

In a free market, the government has no say at all. Individual people have the prerogative of accepting or rejecting anything they find in the market and for any reason. They can buy or they can sell.

Senate Probes Study Controversial Affidavit Of Delegate to Mass. Dem. Convention

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Senate election investigators are scrutinizing an explosive affidavit in the torrid primary battle between "Ted" Kennedy, 30-year-old brother of the President, and Massachusetts Attorney General Edward McCormack.

I run a liquor establishment in Florida, Mass., known as Peter's Hideaway, and this is where Boland came to see me. I told him I had never met McCormack, and I also hadn't met Kennedy, but I thought McCormack had the experience over Kennedy.

According to this sworn statement by Armand Serre, an innkeeper and delegate to the Democratic state convention, the post-mastership of North Adams, Mass., was used to line up support for young Kennedy. He was overwhelmingly endorsed for the senatorial nomination, but McCormack refused to accept that and is vigorously challenging "Ted" in a bitter primary campaign.

"Further, I thought there were enough Kennedys in politics, even though I think Jack Kennedy is the best President we ever had, and his brother Bob is doing a great job as Attorney General. I discussed with Ed Boland the post-mastership that was open in North Adams and that the City Committee had approved a candidate who was not a veteran.

Serre also alleges that he was, in effect, threatened with retaliation when he refused to switch from McCormack to Kennedy.

"Boland said it was too late to do anything now because he was not a veteran and Senator Smith wanted the second man on the list. The North Adams City Committee however would not endorse the second man on the list. I then told Boland to either tell Lawrence J. Belisle that he cannot get it and don't keep him on the fence because this was the North Adams City Committee choice.

Representative Edward Boland, D-Mass., is directly involved in both affairs in Serre's affidavit. Boland, long politically close to the President's family, was in the forefront in masterminding "Ted's" successful convention drive.

"Ed Boland left and at the convention, Boland saw me and asked if Kennedy had my vote. I again said he didn't. Then someone from North Adams, namely Louis Sinclitto, came to me and told me that Boland has the name of Belisle, endorsed by the North Adams City Committee, placed on the President's desk for approval as postmaster for North Adams.

While this dynamite-loaded document is in the hands of Senate election investigators, no formal request for a probe has yet been made. Committee members understand that is in the offing. They have also been told that other equally explosive affidavits are forthcoming.

"At the convention floor, Ed Boland told Armand (me) that he (Boland) would remember this because they don't forget the ones that didn't go along with Kennedy. When Louis Sinclitto told me about the post-mastership at the convention floor, he also told me that he had a couple of clam-bakes lined up for him.

During the heated convention fight, numerous charges of "White House pressure" in behalf of "Ted" were made. Foremost among them were:

"I still insisted I would vote for McCormack and did."

That more than 50 post-masterships were left unfilled so they could be dangled as prizes for delegate votes; leading delegates were threatened with income tax investigation; deportation proceedings were allegedly intimidated; and members of the White House staff and other government agencies actively campaigned for young Kennedy.

"I have read this statement, written on 2 pages, and it is all true."

Attorney General McCormack indicated he had affidavits affirming various charges, but did not make them public.

POLITICALS — President Kennedy has set October 19 as the day he will spend in Illinois campaigning for Representative Sidney Yates who is running against Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen. In a whirlwind sweep through the State, the President will make a number of appearances and two speeches for Yates; one in the evening in Chicago and another "downstate" at a still unselected place. On the basis of the latest poll, it's a neck-and-neck race in South Dakota between Senator Joe Bottum, R., recently appointed following the death of veteran Senator Francis Case, and former Food-for-Peace Administrator George McGovern. The statewide poll, by a group of newspapers, gives Bottum 48 per cent, McGovern 46.

As far as Senator Clinton Anderson, D-N.Mex., chairman of the Interior Committee and vice chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee, is concerned, this session of Congress is over. Exhausted by eight months of strenuous legislative labors, and following a cardiac examination, Anderson has gone home and intends to stay there — regardless of what happens on Capitol Hill. The Democratic National Committee has picked August 23-24-25 for a Midwest conference at French Lick, Ind. Democratic candidates and leaders from states will attend. Among the top speakers will be Theodore Sorensen, whip-smart and razor-tongued special counsel to the President. The 34-year-old Nebraska is becoming a stellar feature at Democratic meetings. Sorensen is not a rhetorical "stemwinder," but he is proving highly effective in expounding Administration viewpoint and answering critical questions.

The stock market slump is affecting Democratic contributions, particularly from New York and other large cities. Big money contributors are saying they are compelled to "economize," especially in buying tickets for $100-a-plate fund-raising dinners. Senator Vance Hartke, Ind., chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, will shortly publish a book titled "Inside the New Frontier." It will be timed for the fall campaign, and is one of a series of so-called "inside" books on national and foreign affairs. UN Ambassador Adlai Stevenson is getting numerous requests for campaign speeches, but is turning them all down. He is taking the same position as Secretary Dean Rusk — that foreign affairs is non-partisan and officials dealing with it must keep out of partisan politics. This will be the first campaign in years in which the Illinoisian will not be active.

Soblen Angle Calls For N.Y. Assembly Inquiry

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Mrs. Benjamin Buttenwieser of New York recently went bail up to $60,000 for a dirty sneak who had been convicted of spying against the country which enjoys her interesting allegiance. This is Robert Soblen, an old world head-shrinker who had practiced his craft on countless Americans in an enormous New York concentration of living dead called the Rockland State Hospital. Most inmates of such horror camps insist that they are sane and there is recurrent proof that many are just as sane as the judges who sign some of the writs to put them away. However, a victim may have enough money to make it worthwhile for some relative to get a commitment.

day editor of the New York Times who was sitting in as regent hicog and chucking his weight around on enormous hunks. He had never had it so good back home and I doubt that he has since, for he was drawing $14,000 a year of our tax money, free of income tax, plus one of the best German homes in town, with an allotment of eight German civilians of both sexes as household and personal flunkies, a car with driver and fuel, tax-free booze and groceries at PX prices, less than half the price at home.

This repulsive object, a Lithuanian refugee from Hitler's wrath, somehow was able to plant himself on thousands of native American wretches in the country which he betrayed to our enemy. Discovered at last, then convicted and sentenced to life, he set up a characteristic yowl that he was sick unto death and at this point Mrs. Buttenwieser entered the scenario although she has said that she had never met him and was moved only by her un governable passion for justice. Soblen then jumped bail for Israel on his brother's passport and you know the rest to date.

Stone severely insisted that he was using only six, not all eight, of the flunkies assigned him at our expense, but there was no denying that he had 400 American employes trying to keep out from underfoot and an appropriation of ten million a year for libraries of American "culture." I prowled some of those libraries which were supposed to Americanize the barbarian Catholic and Lutheran Germans, many with learned degrees, and found many books by F. D., Eleanor and Anna Roosevelt, by Sam Rosenman, who wrote F.D.R.'s speeches, Elliott Roosevelt and the beloved old Boaca's boy-friend, Joe Lash. Later, Arthur Hayes Sulzberger, the publisher of the New York Times, came through town and held a diplomatic reception for the members of the Provisional Government of West Germany.

Mrs. Buttenwieser is a niece of that majestic statesman, Senator Herbert H. Lehman, and her husband, a lawyer, is a member of Kuhn Loeb, and otherwise influential and rich. By coincidence, Miss Mary Jones, an obscure clerk in the Department of Agriculture, was foully beset, kidnapped and detained for more than two weeks in a Washington hospital, but Mrs. Buttenwieser's passion for her civil rights was inoperative. Miss Jones is a lady of spotless character.

Thus far no reporter has ascertained exactly who nominated Soblen for that job at Rockland Hospital, and what his qualities were to win him that place with its terrifying powers over Americans. I should think the New York State Assembly would like to inquire.

Mrs. Buttenwieser first came to my notice after the second and successful prosecution of Felix Frankfurter's winsome prodigy, Alger Hiss, for perjury in denying on oath that he delivered secret documents of the United States to a Soviet agent. The Buttenwiesers have a country place in Westchester County, N.Y., and to that asylum Hiss, his wife and their young son retired for serenity, quarters, heat and light after his conviction. She and Eleanor Roosevelt had flapped around the courtrooms during both Hiss trials and they may be regarded as soul-mates in their political and social personalities.

Nothing is so plentiful in America as opportunity. There are more jobs than there are forceful men to fill them. — Charles Schwab.

Ben Buttenwieser comes within the circle which lately has been described as The Establishment. I suspected as much as long ago as 1952 when I pulled up at Bad Godesberg, on the Rhine, where John McCloy, of the Chase National Bank, was holding court with minions of the New York Times and with Buttenwieser, as the High Commissioner for Germany, commonly called the Hicogalorum. Buttenwieser had lit out for home on a pass when I arrived and McCloy had gone Alpin on skis down around Garmisch-Partenkirchen where Hitler had held his 1936 Winter Olympics.

I wanted to ask McCloy why he had Buttenwieser on his staff, but that very day McCloy fell off an Alp and broke a knuckle in his foot. So I settled for a pompous, arrogant commissioner for American "culture" calling himself Shepard Stone, an assistant Sun-

All In Prison

What do businessmen say about it? I quote from a speech entitled "Guilty Before Trial," made by Benjamin F. Fairless, then President of United States Steel Corporation, on May 18, 1959: "Gentlemen, I don't have to tell you that if we persist in that kind of a system of law - and if we enforce it impartially against all offenders - virtually every business in America, big and small, is going to have to be run from Atlanta, Sing Sing, Leavenworth, or Alcatraz."

Beginning Of End

If I were asked to choose the date which marks the turning point on the road to the ultimate destruction of American industry, and the most infamous piece of legislation in American history, I would choose the year 1890 and the Sherman Act - which began that grotesque, irrational, malignant growth of unenforceable, uncompliant, unjudicial contradictions known as the Antitrust laws.

Under the Antitrust laws, a man becomes a criminal from the moment he goes into business, no matter what he does. If he complies with one of these laws, he faces criminal prosecution under several others. For instance, if he charges prices which some bureaucrats judge as too high, he can be prosecuted for monopoly or for a successful "intent to monopolize"; if he charges prices lower than those of his competitors, he can be prosecuted for "unfair competition" or "restraint of trade"; and if he charges the same prices as his competitors, he can be prosecuted for "collusion" or "conspiracy."

Horror Story

If you like horror stories and have the patience to read a long, technical one, I recommend to your attention an excellent book entitled The Antitrust Laws of the U.S.A. by A. D. Neale. It is a scholarly, dispassionate, objective study; the author, a British civil servant, is not a champion of free enterprise; as far as one can tell, he may probably be classified as a liberal. But he does not confuse facts with interpretations, he keeps them severely apart; and the facts he presents are such that they will make your hair stand on end; they did mine.

Mr. Neale points out that the prohibition of "restraint of trade" is the essence of Antitrust - and that no exact definition of what constitutes "restraint of trade" can be given. Thus no one can tell what the law forbids or permits one to do; the interpretation of these laws is left entirely up to the courts. A businessman or his lawyer has to study the whole body of the so-called case law - the whole record of court cases, precedents and decisions - in order to get even a generalized idea of the current meaning of these laws; except that the precedents may be upset and the decisions reversed tomorrow or next week or next year.

Legal Or Not?

This means that a businessman has no way of knowing in advance whether the action he takes is legal or illegal, whether he is guilty or innocent. It means that a businessman has to live under the threat of a sudden, unpredictable disaster, taking the risk of losing everything he owns or being sentenced to jail, with his career, his reputation, his property, his fortune, the achievement of his whole lifetime left at the mercy of any ambitious young bureaucrat who, for any reason, public or private, may choose to start proceedings against him.

Retrospective law - which means: a law that punishes a man for an action which was not legally defined as a crime at the time he committed it - is retained by the courts and contrary to the entire tradition of Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence. It is a form of persecution practiced only in dictatorships and forbidden by every civilized code of law. It is not supposed to exist in the United States and it is not applied to anyone - except to businessmen.

'Nightmare'

I recommend to you a brilliant little book entitled Ten Thousand Commandments by Harold Fleming. It is written for the layman and presents - in clear, simple, logical terms, with a wealth of detailed, documented evidence - such a picture of the Antitrust laws that "nightmare" is too feeble a word to describe it. Read it. I quote from Mr. Fleming: "One of the hazards that sales managers must now take into account is that some policy followed today in the light of the best legal opinion may next year be reinterpreted as illegal. In such case the crime and the penalty may be retroactive... Another kind of hazard exists in the possibility of treble damage suits, also possibly retrospective. Firms which, with the best of intentions, run afoul of the law on one of the above counts, are open to treble damage suits under the antitrust laws, even though their offense was a course of conduct that everyone considered, at the time, quite legal as well as ethical, but that a subsequent reinterpretation of the law found destroying the businessman's freedom and of extending the power of political controls over the economy. If you wish to observe the real American tragedy, compare the ideological motivation of the Antitrust laws to their actual results. I quote from Mr. Neale's book: "It seems likely that American distrust of all source of unchecked power is a more deep-rooted and persistent motive behind the antitrust policy than any economic belief or any radical political trend. This distrust may be seen in many spheres of American life... It is expressed in the theories of 'checks and balances' and of 'separation of powers' in the United States the fact that some men possess power over the activities and fortunes of others is sometimes recognized as inevitable but never accepted as satisfactory. It is always hoped that any particular holder of power, whether political or economic, will be subject to the threat of encroachment by other authorities."

Men, Not Law

"At one with this basic motivation of antitrust is its reliance on legal process and judicial remedy rather than on administrative regulation. The famous prescription of the Massachusetts Bill of Rights - 'to the end it may be a government of laws and not of men' - is a favorite American quotation and an essential one for understanding antitrust. Without this factor it would be impossible to explain the degree of acceptance - so astonishing to those outside the United States - that is accorded to the antitrust policy by those interests, especially 'big business' interests, which are frequently and expensively subject to its discipline." Here, on an enormous historical scale, is the tragedy of what happens to human intentions without a clearly defined philosophical theory to guide their practical implementation. The first free society in history destroyed its freedom - in the name of protecting freedom. The failure to differentiate between political and economic power allowed men to suppose that coercion could be a proper "balance" to production, that both were activities of the same order which could serve as a "check" on each other, that the "authority" of a businessman and the "authority" of a bureaucrat were interchangeable rivals for the same social function. Seeking "a government of laws and not of men," the advocates of Antitrust delivered the entire American economy into the power of an arbitrary government of men as any dictatorship could ever dream of.

'Bigness' Declined In the absence of any rational criteria of judgment, people attempted to judge the immensely complex issues of a free market by so superficial a standard as "bigness." You hear it to this day: "big business," "big government" or "big labor" are denounced as threats to society, with no concern for the nature, source or function of the "bigness" as its size as such were evil. This type of reasoning would mean that a "big" gangster, like Edison, and a "big" malefactor, like Stalin, were equal malefactors: one flooded the world with immeasurable values and the other with incalculable slaughter, but both did it on a very big scale. I doubt whether anyone would care to equate these two - yet this is the precise difference between big business and big government. The sole means by which a government can grow big is physical force; the sole means by which a business can grow big, in a free economy, is productive achievement.

Hands Off! The only actual factor required for the existence of free competition is the unhampered, unobstructed operation of the mechanism of a free market. The only action which a government can take to protect free competition is: Laissez faire! - which, in free translation, means: Hands off! But the Antitrust laws established exactly opposite conditions - and achieved the exact opposite of the results they had been intended to achieve. There is no way to legislate competition; there are no standards by which one could defend who should compete with whom, how many competitors should exist in any given field, what should be their relative strength or their so-called "relevant markets," what prices they should charge, what methods of competition are "fair" or "unfair." None of these can be answered, because these are precisely the questions that can be answered only by the mechanism of a free market.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

Scapagoats This is an eloquent example of the businessman serving as scapegoat, taking the blame for the sins of the politicians. It was the politically granted privileges - the charters and subsidies of the railroads - that people rebelled against - it was these privileges that had placed the railroads of the West outside the reach of competition and had given them a monopolistic power, with all its consequent abuses. But the remedy, written into law by a Republican congress, consisted of

"A hungry man is not free," or "It makes no difference to a worker whether he takes orders from a businessman or from a bureaucrat." Most people accept these equivocations - and yet they know that the poorest laborer in America is freer and more secure than the richest commissar in Soviet Russia. What is the basic, the essential, the crucial principle that differentiates freedom from slavery? It is the principle of voluntary action versus physical coercion or compulsion.

Legal Monopoly

The difference between political power and any other kind of social "power," between a government and any private organization, is the fact that a government holds a legal monopoly on the use of physical force. This distinction is so important and so seldom recognized today that I must urge you to keep it in mind. Let me repeat it: a government holds a legal monopoly on the use of physical force.

No individual or private group or private organization has the legal power to initiate the use of physical force against other individuals or groups and to compel them to act against their own voluntary choice. Only a government holds that power. The nature of governmental action is: coercive action. The nature of political power is: the power to force obedience under threat of physical injury - the threat of property expropriation, imprisonment or death.

Foggy metaphors, sloppy images, unfocused poetry, and equivocations - such as "A hungry man is not free" - do not alter the fact that only political power is the power of physical coercion and that freedom, in a political context, has only one meaning: the absence of physical coercion.

Only Function

The only proper function of the government of a free country is to act as an agency which protects the individuals rights, that is: which protects the individual from physical violence. Such a government does not have the right to initiate the use of physical force against anyone - a right which the individual does not possess and, therefore, cannot delegate to any agency. But the individual does possess the right of self-defense and that is the right which he delegates to the government, for the purpose of an orderly, legally defined enforcement. A proper government has the right to use physical force only in retaliation and only against those who initiate its use. The proper function of a government is: the police, to protect men from criminals; the military forces, to protect men from foreign invaders; and the law courts, to protect men's property and contracts from breach by force or fraud, and to settle disputes among men according to objectively defined laws.

Opening Wedge

These, implicitly, were the political principles on which the Constitution of the United States was based. Implicitly, but not explicitly. There were contradictions in the Constitution, which allowed the statist to gain an entering wedge, to enlarge the breach and, gradually, to wreck the structure. A statist is a man who believes that some men have the right to force, coerce, enslave, rob and murder others. To be put into practice, this belief has to be implemented by the political doctrine that the government - the state - has the right to initiate the use of physical force against its citizens. How often force is to be used, against whom, to what extent, for what purpose and for whose benefit, are irrelevant questions. The basic principle and the ultimate results of all statist doctrines are the same: dictatorship and destruction. The rest is only a matter of time.

Now let us consider the question of economic power. What is economic power? It is the power to produce and to trade what one has produced. In a free economy, where no man or group of men can use physical coercion against anyone, economic power can be achieved only by voluntary means: by the voluntary choice and agreement of all those who participate in the process of production and trade. In a free market, all prices, wages and profits are determined - not by the arbitrary whim of the rich or the poor, not by anyone's "greed" or by anyone's need - but by the law of supply and demand. The mechanism of a free market reflects and sums up all the economic choices and decisions made by all the participants. Men trade their goods or services by mutual consent to mutual advantage, according to their own independent, uncoerced judgment. A man can grow richer only if he is able to offer better values - better products or services, at a lower price - than others are able to offer.

Vote By Buying

Wealth, in a free market, is achieved by a free, general, "democratic" vote - by the sales and the purchases of every individual who takes part in the economic life of the country. Whenever you buy one product rather than another, you are voting for the success of some manufacturer. And in this type of Ladies and Gentlemen, I shall ask you to consider the following questions. If a small group of men were always regarded as guilty, in any clash with any other group, regardless of the issues or circumstances involved, would you call it persecution? If this group were always made to pay for the sins, errors or failures of any other group, would you call that persecution? If this group had to live under a silent reign of terror, under special laws, from which all other people were immune, laws which the accused could not grasp or define in advance and which the accuser could interpret in any way he pleased - would you call that persecution? If this group were penalized, not for its faults, but for its virtues, not for its incompetence, but for its ability, not for its failures, but for its achievements, and the greater the achievements, the greater the penalty - would you call that persecution?

If your answer is "yes" - then ask yourself what sort of monstrous injustice you are condoning, supporting or perpetrating. That group is the American businessman.

Omits Business

The defense of minority rights is acclaimed today, virtually by everyone, as a moral principle of a high order. But this principle, which forbids discrimination, is applied by most of the "liberal" intellectuals in a discriminatory manner: it is applied only to racial or religious minorities. It is not applied to that small, exploited, denounced, defenseless minority which consists of businessmen.

Yet every ugly, brutal aspect of injustice toward racial or religious minorities is being paraded toward businessmen. For instance, consider the evil of condemning some men and absolving others, without a hearing, regardless of the facts. Today's "liberals" consider a businessman guilty in any conflict with a labor union, regardless of the facts or issues involved, and boast that they will not cross a picket line "right or wrong." Consider the evil of judging people by a double standard and of denying to some the rights granted to others. Today's "liberals" recognize the rights of the majority's rights to their livelihood (their wages), but deny the businessmen's (the minority's) right to their livelihood (their profits). If workers struggle for higher wages, this is hailed as "social gains"; if businessmen struggle for higher profits, this is damned as "selfish greed." If the workers' standard of living is low, the "liberals" blame it on the businessmen; but if the businessmen attempt to improve their economic efforts, to expand their markets and to enlarge the financial returns of their enterprises, thus making higher wages and lower prices possible, the same "liberals" denounce it as "commercialism." If a non-commercial foundation - that is: a group which did not have to earn its funds - sponsors a television show, advocating its particular views, the "liberals" hail it as "art" and "public service"; if a businessman sponsors a television show and wants to reflect his views, the "liberals" scream, calling it "censorship," "pressure" and "dictatorial rule."

No Indignation Three local of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters deprived New York City of its milk supply for fifteen days - no moral indignation or condemnation was heard from the "liberal" quarters; but just imagine what would happen if businessmen stopped that milk supply for one hour - and how swiftly they would be struck down by that legalized lynching or pogrom known as "trust-busting."

Whenever, in any era, culture or society, you encounter the phenomenon of prejudice, injustice, persecution and blind, unreasoning hatred directed at some minority group - look for the gang that has something to gain from that persecution, look for those who have a vested interest in the destruction of these particular sacrificial victims. Invariably, you will find that the persecuted minority serves as a scapegoat for some movement that does not want the nature of its own goals to be known. Every movement that seeks to enslave a country, every dictatorship or potential dictatorship, needs some minority group as a scapegoat which it can blame for the nation's troubles and use as a justification of its own demands for dictatorial powers. In Soviet Russia, the scapegoat was the bourgeoisie; in Nazi Germany, it was the Jewish people; in America, it is the businessman.

Who To Blame?

A disastrous intellectual package-deal, put over on us by the Secretaries of Statism, is the notion of economic power with unlimited power. You have heard expressed in such bromides as:

voting, every man votes only on those matters which he is qualified to decide for others or to substitute his judgment for theirs; no one has the power to appoint himself "the voice of the public" and to leave the public voiceless and disfranchised. Volumes have been written by the statist to distort, misrepresent and falsify the nature and the history of capitalism - and volumes would have to be written to refute all the popular fallacies on that subject. I cannot cover them all in a brief lecture. I can only indicate the essentials - and refer you to some of the books where you can find the full answers, the evidence, the facts and the irrefutable proof of the case for capitalism, if you care to check it. I will refer you to: Economics In One Lesson by Henry Hazlitt - The Anti-Capitalist Mentality by Ludwig von Mises - Socialism by Ludwig von Mises - Capitalism the Creator by Carl Snyder.

Two Fallacies

I shall mention only two popular fallacies, originated and propagated by the statist. It is not true that the mechanism of a free market, by its nature, leads to periodic depressions. Depressions are caused by government intervention into the economy, particularly by government manipulations of credit. The depression of 1929 was brought about by the credit policies of the Federal Reserve System. It is not true that capitalism, by its nature, leads to the concentration of wealth in the hands of the few and to the establishment of coercive monopolies. A coercive monopoly is a business concern that closes the entry of competitors into a given field of production and thus becomes exempt from competition, exempt from the laws of the free market, and able to make arbitrarily high profits by charging arbitrarily high prices. No monopoly of that kind has ever been established by means of free trade on a free market. Every coercive monopoly is a business created by government intervention into the economy; by special legislation and special privileges - such as franchises, subsidies, tariffs, government loans, tax-exemptions - granted to some persons and denied to all others.

Power Defined

Now let me define the difference between economic power and political power: economic power is exercised by means of a positive, by offering men a reward, an incentive, a payment, a value; political power is exercised by means of a negative, by the threat of punishment, injury, imprisonment, destruction. The businessman's tool is values; the bureaucrat's tool is fear.

Mixed Economies

A system of pure, unregulated laissez-faire capitalism has never existed anywhere. What did exist were only so-called "mixed economies," which means: a mixture, in varying degrees, of freedom and controls, of voluntary choice and government coercion, of capitalism and statism. America was the freest country on earth, but elements of statism were present in her economy from the start. These elements kept growing, under the influence of her intellectuals who were predominantly committed to the philosophy of statism. The intellectuals - the ideologists, the interpreters, the assessors of public events - were tempted by the opportunity to seize political power, relinquished by all other social groups, and to establish their own versions of a "good" society at the point of a gun, that is: by means of legalized physical coercion. They denounced the free businessman as exponents of "selfish greed" and glorified the bureaucrats as "public servants."

Political Pull

All the evils, abuses and inequities, popularly ascribed to businessmen and to capitalism, were not caused by an unregulated economy or by a free market, but by government intervention into the economy. The giants of American industry - such as James Jerome Hill or Commodore Vanderbilt or Andrew Carnegie or J. P. Morgan - were self-made men who earned their fortunes by personal ability, by free trade on a free market. But there existed another kind of businessman, the products of a "mixed economy," the men with political pull, who made fortunes by means of special privileges granted to them by the government, such men as the Big Four of the Central Pacific Railroad. It was the political power behind their activities - the power of

'Eerie Light' Is Now Explained

Imagination sometimes can get the best of you — even to the point where you visualize things that actually aren't there.

Take the case of the lady in the 300-block of Jean St., who called police at 11:08 p.m. last night to report a strange light in the eastern skies.

She said it was there and apparently it appeared to be a bit eerie.

Then she got to thinking about it and called back a little later.

"I've figured it out," she told the police dispatcher. "It's the reflection of a street light on a nearby television antenna."

Man Refuses Surgery And Dies In Houston Hospital

HOUSTON (UPI)—A man, who for religious reasons, refused surgery died Sunday — four hours before a nephew called from Florida and said he would approve an operation that might have prolonged life.

Hammie Billodeau, 69, a farmer from Orange, died in Veterans Administration Hospital.

His foster daughter, Mary J. Dixon of Bridge City, had also refused her permission for surgery ever since Billodeau was admitted July 14.

Both Billodeau and his foster daughter are Jehovah's Witnesses.

Hospital officials had tried nearly a month to find another relative who would approve the operation.

Sunday night the nephew, J.C. Moreau, a truck driver telephoned in vain from Pensacola, Fla., in response to a hospital call.

Hospital registrar L. E. Bruns said Billodeau died "most likely of congestive heart failure," but that the congestion in an important artery in the victim's bad right leg contributed to the heart condition.

Probe Of 'Deals' Is Called For

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senators opposing the space communications bill today called for investigation of a colleague's implication that the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has offered members of Congress beneficial financial deals to win their support.

The suggestion made Friday by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., in Senate debate, was recalled today by Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn.

"If this kind of thing is going on to ramrod this bill through, the public ought to know about it," Long on Friday asked Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah "if the telephone company has offered him the kind of proposal that it has offered me?"

He then asked Moss if the telephone company in his state ever offered to arrange a loan for construction of a building which he would own "just on assurance that the senator would give sympathetic consideration to the company's problem."

Long said such a deal would mean that probably "he would wind up eventually being worth $5 million or $25 million."

Moss replied in the negative to all of Long's questions.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., joined Kefauver in calling this a "very serious matter deserving to be gone into by the Senate, by the press and by the country, before we invoke cloture on this matter."

Long declined to amplify his floor statements when asked about them by newsmen Friday. Kefauver and Douglas complained that they saw no press reports of Long's Friday statement.

Kefauver said today he was sure that if any offers like that described by Long were made to any senator, they would be rejected.

1964 May Be US Date For Feat Like Russians'

HOUSTON (UPI) — James A. Chamberlin, head of America's project Gemini, said Sunday the United States may be able to duplicate Russia's dual manned orbit in 1964.

Chamberlin, head of the U. S. project which will try to rendezvous two capsules in space, said he had meager information on the Soviet venture.

"But from what I understand, this flight is similar to one we plan," Chamberlin said. "However, we will have two men in one capsule and no one in the other."

"This flight of theirs is quite an accomplishment," he said. He declined to say, however, how far the U. S. Gemini project is behind the Russian space program.

Two-man flights in a single Gemini capsule will precede the U.S. dual-orbit try in 1964, he said.

Chamberlin declined to say how close he thinks the Russians are to attempting to put a man on the moon.

"All this is hard to speculate on without more information about the Russian shot," Chamberlin said.

"I don't know whether they are capable of joining up in space yet. I don't believe they will attempt this now," he said.

Weather

to six degrees above normal through most of the week, with cooler weather in North Texas by the weekend.

The cool front gave Northern Texas a very slight breath of relief from the killer heat wave Sunday, but the rest of the state continued to boil.

The cooler air kept temperatures behind the front between 95 at Amarillo and 102 at Wichita Falls.

Far ahead of the cool air, Lufkin's temperature shot up to 108. Waco was the second hottest spot in the state with 107.

The torrid heat claimed its first victim Saturday. George Mahon, 44, a Dallas grocer, died after being rushed to a hospital suffering from heat prostration. Mahon was one of four persons hospitalized in Dallas from the heat.

Other rainfall totals during the 24-hour period ended at 8 a. m. included: Borger 1.15, Pampa 1.00, Perryton .79, Claude .63, Childress .20 and a trace at Lubbock.

was being readied in Moscow's Red Square for Wednesday. Allowed a day and a half for the men to move to Moscow from their pickup point, and for physical and other tests, that had suggested a landing sometime today.

Nikolayev, a 32-year-old bachelor and former lumberjack, rocketed 100 miles into space at about 17,500 miles an hour Saturday morning and Popovich, a 31-year-old married man with a six-year-old daughter, joined him Sunday morning in another Soviet space first.

Prepare For Moon Flight

The flights were designed to pave the way for putting a man on the moon. Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev said that with the flights Russia has "blazed the trail toward group flights into space."

Moscow Radio reported early this morning that both cosmonauts had slept seven hours, had eaten breakfast and were feeling well.

The exact distance between the spacecrafts was not announced, but the pilots, who talked to one another from their craft and whose pictures were flashed to television screens all over Russia, reported they could see each other.

In Tokyo, scientists at the Japanese Radio Waves Research Institute estimated the twin spacecrafts were about 125 miles apart when they passed over Japan late Sunday but appeared to be widening the distance later. They said the estimate was based on calculations made from radio signals received from the capsules.
