Viking sends photos of Mars' surface

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — America's Viking 1 spacecraft landed today on a dusty plain of Mars to search for life on the red planet. In a spectacular space achievement, Viking began sending back razor-sharp photos of the planet's surface.

The pictures arrived dramatically, appearing line-by-line on television monitors after traveling 213 million miles at the speed of light. The failure of two earlier Soviet Mars landing crafts had heightened the tension in the project laboratory.

"The details are just incredible," said Dr. Thomas Mutch, head of the lander imaging team.

" It just couldn't be better," he said as the first picture, a portion of the surface directly under one leg of the lander appeared on television monitors at Jet Propulsion Laboratory. It was of the Chryse Planitia, the Gold Plain of Mars — the smoothest place on a planet marked by volcanic peaks and deep valleys and craters.

Later, the unmanned three-legged lander will make life-detection and soil sampling tests. For more than 100 years scientists have thought Mars might harbor some form of life.

Scientists cheered and hugged each other as the 1,300- pound craft radioed that it touched down on Mars at 6:53 a.m. CDT. The signal took 19 minutes to reach earth. For many, the achievement was a childhood dream come true — a Mars landing.

President Ford telephoned his congratulations to the project headquarters, calling the mission a "wonderful and most remarkable success."

He said, "I think it's amazing that in the span of a single lifetime, the exploration of space has grown from the dreams of very, very few individuals to such a massive cooperative reality."

Science fiction writer Ray Bradbury was at JPL for the touchdown, his dreams racing ahead of the Viking mission.

"I know in the next 20 years we'll have a manned landing on Mars — eventually we'll have colonized and taken over the planet," Bradbury said.

The first picture showed an area of soil strewn with what seemed to be chunks of rock of varying sizes. Mutch said it looked as though some of the rocks had tails of dirt formed by the rushing of strong Martian winds across the surface.

Scientists had expected the landing site, a low plain where streams may once have run, would be covered by a blanket of material deposited by the water. Although the pictures showed a rocky surface, the lander apparently avoided any geologic hazards that project officials had feared might imperil the touchdown.

In the corner of the first picture could be seen one of Viking's round metal landing footpads. The rivets on the footpad were visible and the footpad cast an oval shadow in the late afternoon sun as it rested on the soil among the rocks, which Mutch described as "a beautiful collection of boulders."

The second picture was a panoramic view of the Martian landscape, made by a camera on the lander with the ability to sweep a long path across the horizon.

As the lander's panoramic picture came through, oohs and aahs reverberated through the center.

"I think it's great," said Mission Director Thomas Young, viewing the Martian horizon. "It has exceeded all our expectations. The landing was O.K., there were no problems, and it's as scientifically interesting as we had hoped."

Asked if the panorama shots of the Martian surface revealed the desert scientists had expected, project chief Jim Martin said, "It's certainly very close. We don't see a lot of big rocks. It looks like there might be some hills out there."

Viking 1, the first of two unmanned American spacecraft scheduled to land on Mars this summer, was launched last Aug. 20. It arrived near Mars and went into orbit around the planet — which is about half the size of earth — a month ago.

Viking 2 is an identical lander and is soaring through space and is due to enter Martian orbit Aug. 7.

Coincidentally, the touchdown schedule of the Viking 1 lander was on the seventh anniversary of man's first walk on the moon, Neil Armstrong's and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin's monumental acheivement on July 20, 1969.

President Ford took note of the coincidence of the two events Monday, and proclaimed today as Space Exploration Day.

A landing site several hundred kilometers to the southeast of today's landing site — along with a planned July Fourth Bicentennial landing — was rejected by the Viking team as being too hazardous. The newest area, though seemingly much flatter, was not thought to be any less interesting, scientists said.

Under the Viking plan, eight days after landing, a telescoping claw attached to the 1,300-pound lander was scheduled to reach out and scoop a handful of Martian soil, then dump into miniaturized biochemical laboratories to be analyzed for signs of life.

Alyeska pledges full inspection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of a consortium building the trans-Alaska oil pipeline told Congress today that X-ray inspections will be made on every weld on the line requiring one.

"All of them will be reconciled even if it means exposing a weld in the field and re-Xraying it," said Edward Patton, chief executive officer of the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co.

He testified before a House subcommittee trying to find out what went wrong with the pipeline welding program.

Chairman John Melcher, DMont., called the hearing after learning from the Interior Department that the Arthur Andersen auditing firm has been unable to verify the validity of X rays required to confirm the integrity of the welds.

Patton said the number of discrepancies has been reduced to 61 and that Alyeska is continuing to work on the problem.

Most of the pipeline is buried, and Patton was asked if federal inspectors will be reluctant to give it final approval for use. He told the commiittee: "That's my problem before it's yours."

His figure on remaining discrepancies marked an improvement on those given by Alyeska on Monday.

Patton and his aides said that out of more than 31,000 welds performed in 1975, Alyeska considered 3,955 questionable. Of those, they said, 2,305 have been corrected either by replacing missing or falsified X rays or by repairing actual welding flaws.

Work is continuing to correct the rest of the problems, Patton said.

Assuming Alyeska's findings and corrective actions are accepted, Patton said, the pipeline could begin carrying oil at the rate of 1.2-million barrels a day from Alaska's Arctic shores to a tanker terminal on its southern coast by mid-1977, as scheduled.

But the Andersen report raises doubt about the acceptance of Alyeska's findings. Melcher has said it may be necessary to X ray all 31,000 welds again, including an estimated 18,000 already underground.

Alyeska has been preparing a possible alternative, a new technique called "acoustical holography," using a device that would check welds by bouncing sound waves through them, entirely from inside the pipe.

If it works, this method could avoid digging up the 18,000 buried welds. Patton said it will be tested Wednesday on pipe welded in Alyeska's assembly yard at Anchorage.

The pipeline's welding problem came to light last August after Alyeska and the Interior Department checked up on the X rays performed by a subcontractor, Ketchbaw Industries. Some X rays were duplicates of authentic X rays, and some were missing.

Interior officials say the pipeline will not be permitted to operate until they are satisifed that all welds have been adequately checked.

GNP growth rate down sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Gross National Product, the broadest measure of the nation's economic well-being, registered a sharp drop in the growth rate during the spring quarter, the government reported today. The drop was attributed primarily to a stabilization of business inventory accumulation.

The Commerce Department said the GNP grew at an annual rate of 4.4 per cent in volume for April through June, compared to a 9.2 per cent annual rate of growth in the year's first quarter.

Despite the decline in the rate of growth, most economists say they feel the drop will be temporary.

The GNP represents the nation's total output of goods and services and is a key determinent of how many new jobs the economy generates as well as the economic status of all Americans.

The Commerce Department said the slower growth rate was accompanied by a quickening of inflation. Prices as measures in the GNP accounts, which include the prices of all goods and services in the economy rather than just consumer prices, were up 5 per cent at an annual rate in the second quarter. The inflation rate in the first quarter was 3 per cent.

A sharp drop in the growth rate had been expected by Ford administration economists for at least a month.

LATE NEWS

BEIRUT (AP) — The U.S. Embassy said today it would try once more to evacuate Americans and other foreigners from Beirut by road.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman from Texas urged the House ethics committee today to ask news reporter Dan Schorr how he got the House intelligence committee's secret report and said Schorr would have no legal recourse but to answer.

Southwest service within a year asked

AUSTIN — Midland City Attorney Joe Nuessle Monday told the Texas Aeronautics Commission in Austin that the city had withdrawn its opposition to an application by Southwest Airlines to serve Midland, provided service is begun one year after permission is granted.

Midland had previously joined with Odessa in opposing the intrastate carrier's proposal to link Midland-Odessa with Dallas Love Field and El Paso. The two West Texas cities had feared Southwest would hurt their efforts to secure more interstate air service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Nuessle, asked if a possible reduction in flights by more interstate carriers gravely concerned the city, told the TAC the city was concerned.

He said, "We're isolated out there, and people in that part of the country fly all over the world — it's part of the oil business."

Odessa City Attorney Larry Sinclair, in withdrawing that city's opposition to Southwest's proposal, said that since the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington, D.C., had denied the two cities' request for additional interstate carrier service, the proposal from Southwest now meets with "overwhelming public support" there.

Nuessle said Midland objects to granting any certificate of convenience and necessity unless Southwest intends to have service in operation within a year after TAC approval of the proposal.

Southwest president Lamar Muse said the airline plans to begin immediate service on a route from Dallas to Midland-Odessa with six daily flights and two flights going on to El Paso and returning.

Nuessle further stated Midland opposes any "open-ended" authority for the airline to establish new routes at some indefinite future date. He said the "open-ended" authority could discourage other airlines considering an entry in the West Texas market from entering the area. He also said the Midland-Odessa region has had some problems in the past with airlines not using their authority to service the area once they had obtained it.

Southwest officials told the TAC Monday during the first day of hearings on their proposal to serve Austin, Corpus Christi, Lubbock, Midland-Odessa and El Paso that the airline could provide passengers across the state with savings of up to $5 million annually, if the application is granted.

Attorneys for the Austin Chamber of Commerce led the opposition forces in the hearing, noting that the application would prove to be the end of the state's major interstate air traffic if the TAC approved the proposal.

The cities of Dallas and Fort Worth joined Austin in opposing Southwest's request, while the City of El Paso expressed no official position on the petition.

POW-MIA issue not history yet

COLORADO CITY — I promised a couple of columns back that I'd have plenty of pet projects to promote, and I'm visiting this fine old oil and rail town to promote one of them.

I'm speaking to the Kiwanis Club here in a gentle reminder that about 1,300 Americans are still unaccounted for in the jungles of Southeast Asia (more than 110 of them from Texas), and I'm among the relative handful of members of the POW-MIA organization seeking a full accounting before we lay the sorry Vietnam debacle to rest in the history books.

There are some fairly concrete reasons for an update of the situation, and I only wish I had sufficient expertise to impress the Colorado Citians with the urgency — and, yes, the remaining hope — of the project, whose active advocates are all too few. (I had to be shamed into the program myself by being lured to a meeting and made an honorary member.)

Bob Pryor, a former POW now living in San Angelo and one of the most active of the ex-POWs in the national drive, has filled me in on reports from the statewide meeting in Austin late last month, the conclusion of which was, in a nutshell, that more action is both needed and justified from the national level to the grassroots.

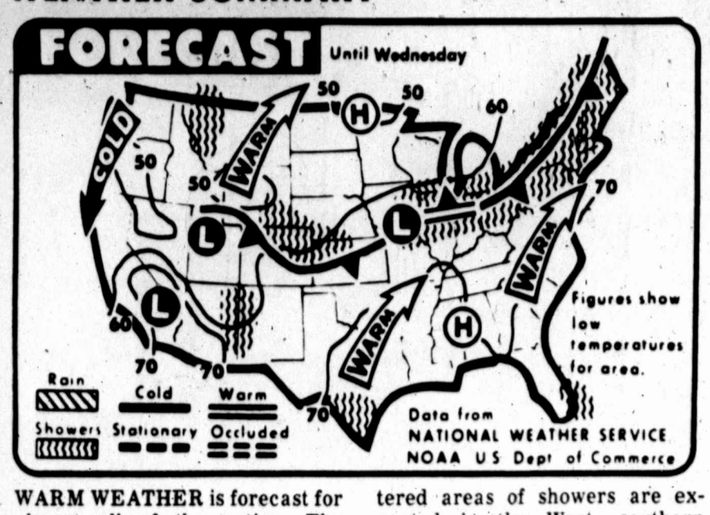

Rep. Henry B. Gonzales of Texas, a member of the congressional select committee appointed to study the POW-MIA question, made three major points in his keynote speech: that more time is needed than the one-year term originally mandated (expiring Dec. 31); that President Ford and Speaker of the House Carl Albert must be prevailed upon to seek the extension of the life of the committee, and that a direct negotiator ought to be appointed by the President to deal directly with Hanoi since the breakdown of talks between Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the North Vietnamese.

Texas POW-MIA members viewed with alarm the impending shutdown of the National League of Families headquartered in Washington, D.C., for lack of funds and talked about local and state initiatives to continue the program.

The word is that some citizens in the Permian Basin are interested in starting an area chapter of the POW-MIA group, and today's luncheon meeting of the Colorado City Kiwanians could be a launching pad for such an organization.

If so, it'll be more worthwhile even than the free meal and the fellowship of a new group of Oestexans for me.

Texas area forecasts

North Texas: Clear to partly cloudy and warm tonight and Wednesday. Widely scattered, mainly afternoon and evening thundershowers east portion. Low tonight 68 to 74. High Wednesday 90 east to 98 northwest.

South Texas: Widely scattered, mainly daytime showers or thundershowers coastal sections through Wednesday. Partly cloudy with little change in temperatures through Wednesday except morning and night cloudiness interior. Low tonight 70 to 77. High Wednesday 87 to 94.

Upper Texas Coast: Wind south 10 to 15 knots tonight and Wednesday. Isolated showers or thundershowers. Seas less than 3 feet except briefly higher in thundershowers.

Lower Texas Coast: Wind southeast 10 to 15 knots tonight and Wednesday except gusty in afternoons. Seas 3 to 5 feet and briefly higher in scattered thundershowers.

West Texas: Partly cloudy through Wednesday. Scattered showers and thunderstorms most sections tonight and Wednesday. No important changesin temperatures. Low tonight mid 60s north and upper 50s mountains to upper 60s south. High Wednesday mid 80s north to low 90s south.

Midland asks early Southwest service

ternational Airlines have assumed adversary positions in the proceedings as "intervening parties."

John Gray, head of the Austin chamber's traffic and transportation division, said approval of Southwest's application would divert passengers from already authorized CAB carriers and hurt the current air market irreparably.

Attorneys for Dallas and Fort Worth said approval would impose problems on the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, making financial planning for the airport an impossibility.

The City of Lubbock and the Lubbock County Commissioners both voiced approval of Southwest's request, but the Lubbock chamber has refused to take a stand on the issue, apparently fearing such action could hurt efforts to obtain expanded services from Lubbock Regional Airport out of the state.

Lubbock Mayor Roy Bass said the city will welcome the new airline provided Southwest officials will record the number of passengers who board flights at Lubbock so that the city's share of federal aviation funds will increase.

Bass also said the city is not worried that interstate services would be badly affected if Southwest is granted permission to serve Lubbock.

Mike Wilson, chairman of the Corpus Christi chamber's aviation committee, expressed support for Southwest's request, noting that expanded services at the low cost offered would be a boon to airline traffic because a new class of citizens would be able to afford air travel.

Continental Airlines, another major air carrier serving West Texas, offered no opposition at the hearing.

Opportunity decreasing for more precipitation

A few clouds were the only vestige this morning of the recent siege of rainy weather in the area..

Lamesa, Rankin, Stanton, Andrews, Crane and Garden City reported some clouds, with warm weather and mild breezes. Big Lake was overcast and cool.

Partly cloudy skies, with only a slight chance of thunderstoms, are due through Wednesday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The low tonight should be in the mid-60s with a high Wednesday near 90. Winds from the southeast and south at 10 to 15 mph are due tonight.

The probability of precipitation Wednesday is 20 per cent.

Monday's high was 86 degrees and today's low was 67 degrees.

Dry weather—a rarity in recent days—returned nearly everywhere in Texas today.

A notable exception was the Van Horn area in far West Texas, where an unusually severe thunderstorm developed near daybreak and moved slowly westward.

Scattered thundershowers fell in the Gulf of Mexico 30 miles east of Brownsville and farther out but there was no sign of their moving ashore, The Associated Press reported.

Skies were clear to partly cloudy elsewhere across the state with no major changes expected. Occasional showers were forecast by late in the day west of the Pecos River in West Texas and in parts of East Texas.

More warm weather was promised all sections.

Monday's top temperatures went as high as 95 degrees in Wichita Falls. Readings near dawn today ranged from 76 at Palacios on the coast down to 68 at Dalhart in the Panhandle.

Council, court slate meeting

The Midland City Council will meet in special session with the Commissioners Court at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in the conference room at city hall.

The two bodies will discuss ambulance services and other areas of mutual interest, such as fire protection, the library and the city-county health unit.

Three air compressors taken from three homes

Three air compressors with a total value of $3,500 were taken by burglars Sunday night or Monday morning from three different houses that were under construction.

An air compressor valued at $500 was reported taken from a house at 2414 Flare Court. Entry was gained by kicking in the front door and the compressor was taken from the garage, police said.

An air compressor valued at $1800 was taken from a house at 3 Saddle Club Drive. Entry was gained by kicking the in the back door on the east side of residence. The compressor was taken from the garage, police said.

An air compressor valued at $1,200 was taken from a house at 3211 Haynes Drive. Entry was also gained by kicking in the front door of the house. The compressor was taken from a room on the west side of the house, police said.

MEN CHARGED

Three Midland men were charged with felony possession of marijuana Saturday.

Richard Marion Traylor, 20, of 307 D St., Hugh Ryan Cooper, 19, of 2400 S. Terrell St., and Robert Lawrence Sands, 19, of 4000 W. Illinois Ave. were arrested about 11 p.m. Friday night by Midland County sheriff's deputies after three men were observed to be intoxicated at a truck stop cafe on FM 1369. The deputies followed the men after they left the cafe and stopped the car after it swerved over the center line several times, deputies said.

Upon searching the car, the deputies discovered 14 containers of what was believed to be marijuana.

Bond for the three men was set at $5,000 each by Justice of the Peace John Biggs.

CARPET TAKEN

A roll of carpet valued at $540 was reported stolen Sunday night or Monday morning from the Town and Country Decorators warehouse at 2002 W. New Jersey Ave. Entry was gained by breaking the lock on the warehouse door, police said.

Marine DI convicted, says he got 'bum rap'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A Marine drill instructor given a letter of reprimand in the death of a mentally retarded Marine recruit called his conviction "a bum rap and a bad deal."

S.Sgt. Henry C. Wallraff was convicted Monday of one count of dereliction of duty in the fatal training injury of 20-yearold Lynn E. McClure of Lufkin, Tex.

McClure was knocked into a coma last Dec. 6 during a pugil stick bout and died March 13 in a Houston veterans hospital. He never regained consciousness.

A Marine martial of two officers and two sergeants deliberated 90 minutes Monday before convicting Wallraff of failing to ensure that a subordinate DI, S.Sgt. Harold Bronson, was experienced in running pugil stick bouts.

The same court acquitted Wallraff on two other dereliction charges and deliberated only five minutes before sentencing him to a letter of reprimand.

Wallraff is the second drill sergeant to be tried in McClure's death and the first to be convicted. Bronson was acquitted of manslaughter and assault charges on June 28.

Wallraff said he was pleased that his sentence was light, but insisted he did nothing wrong.

"It was a bum rap and a bad deal," he said of his conviction.

PBRPC sets membership conference

FORT STOCKTON — The semi-annual general membership meeting of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission will begin at noon July 28 at the Pecos County Exhibition Building.

Guest speakers for the session will be Rep. Richard C. Slack of Pecos and Dr. Nathan C. Galloway of Odessa. Slack will address the group on "What to Expect from the 1976 session of the Texas Legislature," while Dr. Galloway, chairman of the Permian Basin Health System Agency, will speak on the role of the Health System Agency and the future of health care for the Permian Basin.

The PBRPC general assembly also will consider the selection of a site for the January general membership meeting.

Reservations are $4 per person for the session.

At the conclusion of the general membership meeting, the board of directors for the PBRPC will hold its monthly meeting in Fort Stockton.

Man injured in collision

ANDREWS — A Eunice, N.M., resident was in critical condition this morning in an Odessa hospital after a car-truck collision on U.S. 385.

Police said Roger D. Hood of Eunice, driving an automobile, and Franklin Donica of Odessa, driving a freight truck were both traveling north. They collided when Hood attempted to turn from the left lane, police said.

Hood, 25, was in route to an Andrews hospital, where wife and son were scheduled for surgery this morning. Both his wife and son were released without surgery after the accident, a Permian General Hospital spokesman said.

Hood was transferred to Medical Center Hospital in Odessa and admitted to the intensive care unit with a head injury.

Donica was uninjured, police said.

HUD accepts Midland's application

Midland Count's Community Development Block Grant application for $17,000 earlier budgeted by the Department of Housing and Urban Development has been accepted for processing by HUD's area office in Dallas, County Judge Barbara Culver said.

The county commissioners decided to apply for the funds to be used for a rehabilitation and counseling facility after public hearings in January and February.

The facility will be built in Midland County and operated by the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

"MH-MR has provided the citizens of this area with ready access to treatment for alcohol and drug abuse problems, which was not readily available elsewhere. Now this facility must be renovated or abandoned, "Judge Culver said. She said the commissioners court felt the grant could best be used by improving this facility.

DEATHS

Jim Gray rites set Wednesday

STANTON — James "Jim" Lester Gray, 58, of Grand Prairie and formerly of Midland, died Monday morning at Arlington following a lengthy illness.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the First United Methodist Church of Stanton, with the Rev. Bill Simpson of Midland officiating. Burial will be at Evergreen Cemetery in Stanton, directed by Gilbreath Funeral Home.

Gray was born August 25, 1917, in Cameron. He was a World War II veteran and a self-employed truck driver. He married Maggie Gamel in Ackerly in 1939. He moved to Big Spring in the late 1930s, and lived in Midland many years until moving to Grand Prairie five years ago.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Maggie Gray of Grand Prairie; two sons, T. A. Gray of Carlsbad, N.M., and Roy Gene Gray of Grand Prairie; a daughter, Mrs. Wanda Sue Benefield of Grand Prairie; two sisters, Mrs. Lucille Price of Midland and Mrs. Fannie Simmons of Burton; three brothers, David Gray and Kenneth Gray, both of Cassville, Mo., and Virgil Haggard of Burton; nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Box services set Wednesday

LEVELLAND — Earl Quitman Box, 65, of Pettit, was dead on arrival Monday afternoon at a Levelland hospital following a sudden illness. He was the brother of Wilburn Box of Midland.

Services will be at 4 p.m. Wednesday in College Avenue Baptist Church, with burial at Levelland Cemetery directed by George C. Price Funeral Home.

Box was born in Wilbarger County and had lived in Hockley County since 1936. He was married to Helen Kitchen in 1940 in Levelland. He was a farmer in the Pettit community and a member of College Avenue Baptist Church.

Survivors include the widow, two sons, a daughter, four other brothers, two sisters and three grandchildren.

Gains Boyd dies in home

Gaines L. "Bill" Boyd, 74, died Monday afternoon in a Midland nursing home where he lived. He had been in poor health eight years.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the Wilson-Miller Funeral Home Chapel in Monahans. Burial will be at Monahans Cemetery, directed by Ellis Funeral Home.

Survivors include a stepson, Bobby Ray Anderson of Tyler; two daughters, Mrs. Grady Butler of Andrews and Mrs. George Davis of Sacramento, Calif.; two brothers, Henry Boyd of Truth of Consequences, N.M., and Lacy Boyd; two sisters, Mrs. Pauline Wesley of Happy and Mrs. George Vaughn of Englewood, Calif.; 21 grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

Midlander's rites slated

SAN ANGELO — Mrs. Gladys Newbrough, 74, died Monday at a Midland nursing home.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Johnson's Funeral chapel at San Angelo.

Mrs. Newbrough lived at Texon 30 years before moving to San Angelo in 1955. She had lived at Midland one and one-half months. She had a lifetime membership at the WSCS at the First Methodist Church at San Angelo.

Survivors include three sons, Bill Newbrough of Azle, Jim Newbrough of Andrews and Pat Newbrough of Midland, three grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Snyder rites set Wednesday

BIG SPRING — R. H. "Shorty" Snyder, 84, died early Monday morning in a Big Spring hospital.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel, with burial at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Evergreen Cemetery in Ranger.

Snyder was born July 6, 1892, in Pleasantville, N.J. He married Grace Barber in 1921 in Beaumont. He had lived in Big Spring 35 years. He had worked for Woolworth's 42 years before his retirement.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Grace Snyder; a daughter, Mrs. Babs Moore of Big Spring; four sons, Lewis Snyder of Virginia Beach, Va., Don Snyder of Sweetwater, Jerry Snyder of Temple and Dick Snyder of Kerrville; seven grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Rites Thursday for Ollie Ham

Ollie B. Ham, 77, died today at an Abilene hospital after a short illness.

Services are set for 2 p.m. Thursday at the Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Terry Chapman, associate minister of Bethel Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be at Twilight Gardens.

He was born Nov. 6, 1898 at Willard, Ky., and was raised there. He was a World War I veteran and moved to the Stanton area many years ago. He farmed near Lenorah. He moved to Midland in the 1960's. He was a construction worker and a member of the Baptist church. He married Myrtle Horton Aug. 12, 1922, and moved to Abilene 10 years ago.

Survivors include his wife of Abilene; one son, George Ham of Midland; two daughters, Mrs. Dora Walker of Midland and Mrs. Delores Mashburn of Abilene; a brother, Delmer Ham of Lenorah; a sister, Mrs. Jack Young of Stanton; 11 grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Miss Gilbert dies in Dallas

COLEMAN — Services for Linnie Gilbert, 44, sister of Janet Gilbert and Larry Gilbert, both of Midland, were held today in Coleman, with burial at Coleman Cemetery.

She died Friday night in a Dallas hospital.

Miss Gilbert was born June 22, 1932, in Coleman. She taught school in Coleman two years. She was director of a Dallas day care center and a member of Smith Methodist Church in Dallas.

Survivors include three other sisters and two other brothers.

Senate panel checking new tax loopholes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee is taking a second look at dozens of amendments that were written into a big tax bill last month, including several that benefit only one or two firms.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., arranged today's meeting of his committee in response to criticism of the amendments as the Senate neared a vote on extending last year's individual tax cuts at least through next June.

Unless the tax cuts are renewed, a four-member family making $15,000 annually would face a tax hike of $180 a year. For a single person earning $8,000, the increase would be $182 and for a couple with no children and earning $10,000, there would be a $204 hike. A family of four earning $6,000 would pay $445 more.

Long called his committee into session after liberal senators attacked several amendments to the tax bill as a windfall for special interests.

Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who are seeking to reconsider some of the amendments, concede several amendments now being discussed are meritorious.

But as a whole, Proxmire said, the amendments are "welfare for the well-to-do." Kennedy said the package invites speculation that the tax laws are for sale to wealthy campaign contributors.

The amendments were proposed by one or more of the committee's members and approved by the panel without hearings and with no public announcement of who would benefit.

But all were subject to scrutiny, before or after approval, by congressional and Treasury Department experts.

In a statement prepared for the hearing, Long said the committee, because of time pressures, had to make numerous decisions with the clear understanding they would be more thoroughly considered at a later date.

One of the most expensive amendments being questioned would cost the Treasury an estimated $40 million a year for the benefit of the major oil companies. The amendment would make certain that firms belonging to the Iranian oil consortium continue to receive a U.S. tax credit for foreign taxes paid on their Iranian oil.

It is easy to determine who would benefit from some of the amendments. For example, Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., was looking out for a homestate industry when he won approval of an amendment providing a tax credit for homeowners who install energy-saving thermostats.

One of the biggest manufacturers of such equipment is Honeywell, Inc., of Minnesota.

Other beneficiaries of the amendments, identified by Proxmire or Kennedy, include: Investor Diversified Services, United Airlines, Chrysler Corp., large shipbuilders, Boise Cascade, General Electric, Westinghouse, Eaton Corp., Encyclopedia Britannica, major life-insurance companies and Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

Argentina kills No. 1 guerrilla

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Army troops killed Argentina's most-wanted guerrilla, Roberto Santucho, and his second in command, police sources reported.

Intelligence officials said the slaying Monday night of Santucho and Enrique Gorriaran Merlo might be a death blow to their Marxist People's Revolutionary Army (ERP), considered the more important of the two leftist guerrilla organizations at war with the government.

Security forces killed Juan N. Carrizo, the fourth man in the ERP high command, earlier this month and captured a number of records and documents of the organization. The ERP's third in command, Domingo Mena, is still at larre.

The other leftist guerrilla army is the Montoneros, a radical offshoot of the Peronist movement. Right-wing terrorists are also extremely active, but the leftists are their targets, and the government does nothing to curb them.

Santucho, a 42-year-old former accountant, was the founder of the ERP and was also reputed to head a center for international terrorism in Paris.

He and Gorriaran Merlo, 34, were reported killed when troops stormed an ERP hideout just north of Buenos Aires. Other guerrillas and two army officers reportedly died in the attack.

Army spokesmen would neither confirm nor deny the report. They said a communique was being prepared and released an interim statement saying an army captain was killed Monday night. It gave no details

The ERP first surfaced in 1970 with an attack on a police post in the industrial city of Rosario. In recent years, the organization has collected millions of dollars in ransom for kidnaped foreign executives and has harassed the army and police with daring frontal assaults and sabotage.

Estimates of the ERP's strength range from 500 to more than 2,000 well-trained guerrillas, with thousands more sympathizers to provide aid and cover.

The latest major attack attributed to it was the assassination June 18 of Police Chief Cesario Cardozo, who was blown up by a bomb reportedly placed under his bed by his daughter's best friend.

More than 70 suspected leftist guerrillas have been killed this month, and well over 700 persons have died in political violence this year.

Accord reached on buffer zone

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon's warring Christians and Moslems announced an agreement today to establish a buffer zone between their sectors of Beirut.

Palestinian chief Yasir Arafat also announced he was sending a peace emissary to Damascus "because the SyrianPalestinian crisis as well as the Lebanese civil war must come to an end."

Arafat held a night-long emergency conference with his allies, the leftist Lebanese Moslems. He also held his second secret meeting in three days with a delegation from the right-wing Christian Phalange party, which has the largest Christian militia fighting in the 15-month-old war.

BOTH THE JOINT PalestinianMoslem command and the Phalange party announced that the meeting resulted in agreement to restore electricity to Beirut and to establish a "free zone" to restore communication between the Moslem and Christian sectors of the city.

The announcement said both sides would withdraw their fighters from the 100-yard-wide no man's land in which U.S. Ambassador Francis E. Meloy Jr., his economic counselor and their Lebanese chauffeur were captured last month prior to their murder.

The zone will be manned within 48 hours of the withdrawal by 1,300 Saudi Arabian and Sudanese troops of the Arab League peace-keeping force who have been standing by at Beirut airport, the announcement said.

Observers believed Arafat's decision indicated he was ready to bow to Syrian President Hafez Assad's demand that he and his leftist Lebanese Moslem allies stop shooting and negotiate a peace settlement satisfactor to Syria.

MEANWHILE, the U.S. Embassy postponed indefinitely the evacuation of Americans and other foreigners scheduled for today because cause of fighting along the route to Damascus.

An embassy official said a convoy would be organized later if the "security problem" eases, or that an evacuation by sea or air might be arranged.

Only 143 of the approximately 1,000 Americans left in Lebanon signed up for the convoy, along with 266 persons of other nationalities. This was only slightly better than the response to the previous U.S. evacuation in June, when a U.S. Navy ship took 110 Americans and 157 others to Greece.

On the battle fronts Monday, Christians continued their attack on a Palestinian refugee camp in Christian-controlled eastern Beirut for the 28th day. But the Palestinian defenders of Tal Zaatar refused to give up.

Lamb, wool crops down

WASHINGTON (AP) — A further decline in U.S. lamb and wool production is indicated this year, according to the Agriculure Department.

The 1976 lamb crop is forecast at 8.9 million head, a 10 per cent decline from last year and 16 per cent smaller than in 1974, the department said Monday. Wool production was estimated at 108.4 million pounds, down 10 per cent from last year and 18 per cent below 1974 output.

Extension granted to Soviet actress

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — A 30-day extension has been granted by the Russian government for Soviet Actress Zoya Fyodorova's three-month visit with her daughter and family.

Miss Fyodorova came to the United States in late April to be with her daughter, Victoria Fyodorova Pouy, when she gave birth to a boy early in May.

Mrs. Puoy is the daughter of the actress and retired U.S. Adm. Jackson R. Tate, who had an affair during World War II while Tate served as a naval attache in Moscow.

When Victoria Fyodorova came to the United States last year to meet the father she had never seen, she decided to stay and marry Fred Pouy, an airline pilot.

Natural foods advocate cites nation's waste

By MIKE COCHRAN

HEREFORD, Tex. (AP) — It was the wise and wily Pogo, said food specialist Frank Ford, who best diagnosed the nation's ills: "We have met the enemy and they is us."

It is Ford himself who said:

"We as Americans can no longer ignore the fact that millions of people on our planet are starving while we continue to lead the world in the waste of natural resources, including energy."

THE AFTERNOON was hot and humid across the High Plains of Texas as Ford, 43, invited a visitor into his office to discuss natural food and nutrition. Ford is lean, tanned, handsome, intense, curious, personable, articulate and unquestionably Christian. He is a farmer, businessman, author and spokesman for natural nutrition and conservation.

He also is founder of Arrowhead Mills, a once humble processor of natural foods and now a multimillion dollar fixture in the food industry.

"We treat food with respect, not chemicals," says one bit of Arrowhead advertising, which could stand as the company slogan.

"We produce food the way God made it," Ford said. "It's that simple."

THESE FOODS include grains, beans, seeds, nuts, cereals and flakes, flours, unrefined oils, even vitamins and pure peanut butter. Arrowhead's unprocessed wheat bran is grown on the richly irrigated plains without pesticides, herbicides or artificial fertilizers.

Ford's message is not a pleasant one.

This nation is squandering its natural resources, wasting its soil, over-refining its foods, and jeopardizing the health and welfare of its people.

"By violating the laws of nature we've got ourselves into a heck of a mess," he said. "The only solution is to work with nature instead of against it."

THE BIG MAJORITY of Ford's food sales are by mail, all over the United States. There is no retail operation in Hereford.

Arrowhead products can be purchased also in specialty food stores around the country.

It is when Ford talks of the earth and its natural products that he visibly turns on.

The words flow:

"... A few inches of topsoil on a rapidly-shrinking portion of our land must support the exploding populations of the 20th century. Yet we have mined this topsoil as he we simply did not care about those who will follow.

"For example, in order to boost agricultural production, American farmers have used synthetic fertilizers and pesticides, depleting our soil rather than improving it."

TO STOP WASTING the soil, he said, farmers must turn to compostable material to improve the biological life of the earth. Farmers must also increase their reliance on beneficial insects rather than cumulative poisonous pesticides to control pests.

Turning to a second area of waste, he said:

"If Americans would stop buying over-refined, denatured results of our modern food processing industry, the problem would solve itself.

"The giant food processors have proven they have no respect for the consumer or for the natural, whole foods which God has created for our enjoyment.

"Instead, they have refined out half the nutrients and substituted instead coloring agents, preservatives, chemical additives, hydrogenated oils and wasteful procedures."

THIS WASTE CAN be curbed, he said, if people learn to enjoy the taste of whole natural foods.

While organic farming will stop waste of the soil, and use of natural foods will stop waste of the food supply, he said man has less control over a third threat: drought.

He quoted a spokesman for the National Center for Atmospheric Research as saying a major and potentially catastrophic drought appears overdue on the Great Plains of America.

Although scientists say an inadequate food supply could result, about all that can be done is preparation, Ford said.

"We must," he stressed, "establish food reserves where the people are and provide for home water purification in case of emergency."

IN CHINA, we explained, the government is storing grains in the cities, providing a food supply convenient to the people in the event of a crisis.

And America?

"Although we are more vulnerable to the effects of trucking strikes, earthquakes, oil embargoes and other threatening situations, the only action being officially taken so far by the government is the training of some police forces in food riot control."

Perhaps Pogo was right.

$2 bill becomes major mint flop

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a lot of buck-passing when it comes to the $2 bill. Despite government predictions that "the two" would be warmly received by the public as a partial substitute for the $1 bill, it so far has been a flop — hoarded but not spent.

More than 210 million twos have been delivered by the government to banks, but relatively few have found their way into general circulation, officials say.

Millions of dollars worth apparently are being hoarded as collectors' items, especially those issued April 13, the first day.

Although officials aren't giving up on the $2 bill yet, there's a lot of finger-pointing on who's to blame for the poor reception.

The Treasury Department blames banks and retailers; banks blame the public and the government; the Bureau of Engraving and Printing blames the U.S. Postal Service and the Federal Reserve Board.

Clarence Selin, the Treasury Department's project director for the $2 bill, said, "We have no problem in saying the bills are being accepted by people. They are not being distributed by banks and retailers as fast as we would like to see it done."

But an official of the Riggs National Bank, the largest in the nation's capital, said Thursday that most customers won't accept twos. He called on the government to do something to promote them.

"When our tellers give them out, most people return the twos and ask for two ones," said assistant Riggs vice president Tom Brooks.

"People don't want twos because they are afraid they will get them mixed up with ones," said a teller at Madison National Bank here.

Hayes says no appeal

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Former Castroville City Marshal Frank Hayes was sentenced today by District Court Judge Earl Smith to at least two years in prison but not more than 10 in connection with the shooting death of Richard Morales.

Hayes' lawyer, Marvin Miller, said he would not appeal the conviction of aggravated assault in the shotgun slaying of Morales, who was a prisoner in Hayes' custody at the time of the shooting.

Miller asked for probation but was denied.

The San Antonio lawyer told a reporter after the sentencing that the outcome of the trial could have been worse.

"I have no quarrel with this jury verdict," Miller said. "I have quarreled with jury verdicts in the past but this case was tried well and I won't file an appeal."

Smith said, "I think the conduct of the court was outstanding."

"The jury consisted of ordinary business people and housewives," said Smith who added that there was no indication that the race might have been a contributing factor in the verdict.

"They were an attentive jury and the jury did recognize the seriousness of the defense," Smith said.

"It was a well-tried case on both sides," Smith said.

The jury—10 women and two men—heard testimony that Morales was killed with a single blast from a shotgun held by Hayes. Hayes said the gun discharged accidentally while he was in an open field with Morales, who had been arrested earlier the night of Sept. 14, 1975.

End asked to breast X-raying

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of cancer experts today strongly recommended ending routine X-ray screening for breast cancer in women under 50 years of age.

The scientists emphasized that there is no direct evidence, but strong theoretical suggestions, that routine X-raying of symptom-free women under the age of 50 increases their risk of developing breast cancer.

Their recommendation was made at a meeting called by the National Cancer Institute and attended by scientists from several government agencies and outside organizations.

Dr. Lester Breslow, dean of the school of public health at the University of California in Los Angeles, said all five members of his study group concurred in the recommendations.

The group evaluated a seven year mammography or X-ray breast screening program. It found ths benefit was limited to women over the age of 50. Women over 50 account for three-fourths of all breast cancer cases and four-fifths of breast cancer deaths.

There was no measurable benefit from X-ray screening for women under the age of 50, "certainly some hazard" from the radiation exposure, and suspicion that benefits decline even for women over the age of 50 if the radiation is not reduced to the lowest effective level, Breslow reported.

The cancer institute must decide, but perhaps not today, whether to adopt the recommendation and change procedures in its own breast cancer detection program funded jointly with the American Cancer Society.

Auto industry anxious about emission revisions

The Washington Post

The auto industry is reviving up for what it hopes will be the last lap in a year-long race to get exhaust emission standards revised in time for its 1978 models. And the more the legislative mechanics tinker in the pit stop, the more nervous Detroit becomes.

Two weeks ago, General Motors Corp. chairman Thomas A. Murphy sent a telegram to House Speaker Carl Albert urging him to "do everything possible to assure action" on the clean air bill when the House reconvenes after the Democratic convention. "A failure to pass legislation promptly can seriously disrupt (automobile) production with consequent adverse impact on the national interest," Murphy said.

This legislation attempts a comprehensive revision of the omnibus Clean Air Act of 1970, which was aimed at cleaning up the environment by 1980. That includes a progressive reduction of three exhaust pollutants; hydrocarbons (HC), carbon monoxide (CO) and oxides of nitrogen (NOx).

The statutory reductions are due to go into effect in 1978 if Congress does not act. Meanwhile, the energy crisis — which sent gasoline prices soaring, and the recession — which caused car sales to plunge, coming on top of industry's protestations that the standards could not be achieved in the time allowed, put the signals on flashing red.

The Ford administration called for a five-year moratorium — until 1983 — on imposing tailpipe standards. As finally reported out several months ago, both the House and Senate amendments to the Clean Air Act represent compromises in varying degrees between the original goals and 1976 realities.

Since May 27, however, the House bill has been stalled in the Rules Committee. Its next meeting to determine the late summer agenda is not scheduled until July 26, so the chances of the bill going to the floor before the Aug. 11 recess for the Republican convention are not small, in the opinion of staff aides.

The Senate, on the other hand, has scheduled floor debate on July 22-23, although there is considerable feeling additional delay may occur.

That brings it down to the waning days of August and possibly into September — dangerously close to the Oct. 1 deadline industry leaders say they must meet in order to tool up, build and test 1978 models. Dangerously close because other, less pressing provisions of the clean air bill, dealing with stationary pollution sources, make the entire legislation very controversial. Close, because the upcoming election campaign may demand the attention and presence of many members.

Finally, if the bills do pass, a lengthy conference may be required to reconcile differences between the House and Senate versions.

The central issue, so far as the auto emissions question is concerned, is the amount of oxides of nitrogen (NOx) that can and should be tolerated. (There is far more agreement on the timetable for the other two pollutants.) The 1970 act originally decreed a maximum of 0.4 grams of NOx per million by 1976, but interim standards eased that to 3.1 grams NOx in 1976 and 2.0 in 1977. Now, if Congress does nothing, the law says the level of NOx will have to be cut by 80 per cent by next year, clearly an impossibility.

The House bill calls for extending the current 2.0-gram level another year, through model year 1979. The 0.4 level would go into effect two years later unless the Environmental Protection Agency director called for a phased reduction, not achieving 0.4 until 1985. It has the support of Interstate and Foreign Commerce committee chairman Harley Staggers (D-W. Va.) and Rep. Paul G. Rogers (D-Fla.).

In adopting this approach, the House committee rejected a more relaxed timetable proposed by Rep. John D. Dingell (D-Mich. who has the backing of EPA director Russell Train, the auto industry and, as of May 28, President Ford. But Dingell plans to propose his amendment — extending the 2.0 level unitl 1981 — again when the bill reaches the floor. The Dingell amendment has the additional industry sweetener of easier standards for the other two pollutants and of allowing EPA to set standards after 1983 rather than locking these standards into a bill in advance.

Telescopes give scientists look at stars' birth

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Using a worldwide link of four radiotelescopes, astronomers have peered deep into the interior of two giant clouds to see embryo stars 100 million years before they are born.

These telescopes have provided the earliest look science has ever had at the birth of the stars that dot our universe.

Astronomers are now looking at what previously appeared only as big, blurred water-vapor clouds 1,000 light years away (1 light year equals 6 trillion miles) and seeing at least 100 embryo stars in each cloud.

The diameter of each of these embryo stars could be triple the 93-million-mile distance from earth to the sun, said Dr. Herbert Friedman, director of the Naval Research Laboratory here.

ONE OF THESE embryo stars gives light readings as bright as the sun, even though it is 3 billion times farther away from earth, indicating that it is hundreds of trillions times brighter than the sun.

Yet it would be impossible for anything to be hot enough to produce such brightness. Indeed, Friedman said, the embryo stars could be as cold as minus 200 degrees Fahrenheit and no hotter than 1,300 degrees Fahrenheit. The sun at its center has a temperature of 15 million degrees.

The intense brightness fo the embryo stars is caused not by heat, but by the concentration of all their energy into one narrow band, a phenomenon known as maser, which stands for microwave amplification by stimulated emission of radiation.

Masers are concentrated bands of radiation. as lasers are concentrated bands of light.

Although scientists long have believed masers are the precursors of stars, this is the first time they have been seen in the center of the big clouds that are the cradles in which stars are formed, said Dr. Kenneth J. Johnson, who scheduled the experiements at the Naval Research Laboratory.

He still is analyzing data coming back from the May 6 look at the two primordial clouds in the constellation Aquila, the Eagle.

When he is through, Friedman said, the scientists should know the size of the primordial clouds and their density at this stage in the formation of new stars.

This information can be compared with data from infrared telescopes about later periods in the birth of stars — when they get very hot and collapse into a dense, bright object.

THE CLOUDS under study probably began to take shape 1 billion years ago and have another hundred million years to go before their stars are born. Since the galaxy is full of stars in various stages of development, "we are able to study the whole life cycle of the universe," said Friedman.

Getting this earlier look at the birth of stars is possible only with the linkage of the four radiotelescopes — the 85-foot antenna at the Naval Research Laboratory's Maryland Point Observatory; the 21-foot antenna of NASA'S deep space network at Tidbinbilla, Australia; the 72-foot antenna of the Crimean Astrophysical Observatory at Semeiz in the Soviet Union, and the 130-foot antenna of the California Institute of Technology at Owens Valley, Calif.

Together they form the most powerful antenna possible on earth for pulling in radiation signals from the far-off clouds. The combined antenna is so powerful, Naval Research scientists said, that it can record an object the size and thickness of a human hair from 100 miles away, or a man's footprint on the moon.

To get a more powerful antenna, one of the stations would have to be placed on the moon, Friedman said.

These composite drawings of the suspected kidnapers of 26 children and their bus driver were released by the Madera County, Calif., Sheriff's Office. Photo at left is unidentified. The man at center is described as a white male, 30, with dark hair and eyes, standing 6 feet, 2 inches tall and weighing 170 pounds. The man at right is described as a white male, 55, standing 5 feet, 10 inches tall and weighing 210 pounds.

Revenge may have been motive

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — The kidnaping-entombment of 26 children and their bus driver may have been plotted by convicts inside San Quentin Prison as revenge against the entire community of Chowchilla, Calif., law enforcement officials revealed Monday.

An all-points bulletin seeking information on three former prisoners reportedly overheard a year ago planning revenge against "a small community in the Madera County area" reportedly was issued by the Alameda County Sheriff's office.

It said the "exact reason for the revenge is unknown."

But the informant, said to be another former San Quentin inmate now in custody in Tuolumne County, spoke of "caves or caverns" that would be used to hold the kidnap victims — and supplied the information "several hours prior to the children being located" in Livermore, Calif.

Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins later denied that his department had originated the statewide APB or that he attached any special importance to the story.

But Los Angeles law enforcement authorities and sources in the state Department of Justice at Sacramento said the APB had originated with the Alameda County sheriff's department, that it was signed by Houchins and that it was labeled "Rush, Rush, Rush."

They also confirmed that the source of Houchins' information was Tuolumne County Sheriff Jack Litteral.

Tuolumne County authorities at Sonoma said the man had been a San Quentin inmate in 1974-75 and said he told them he heard three other convicts talk of a revenge plot similar to last Thursday's bizarre kidnaping of bus driver Frank E. Ray, 55, and 26 summer school children aged 5 to 14.

Alameda County Sheriff's Lt. Ed Volpe said names and photographs of at least two suspects could be expected soon on the basis of information supplied by the Tuolumne County informant.

He said his office presently has "no viable information to make us believe we should be looking for convicts from San Quentin." But he also admitted that "so far, the source has been reliable."

Sheriff Houchins, confronted with the confirmations from Sacramento and Tuolumne County, said only, "No comment."

Clothing apparently taken from bus driver Ray and the children before they were entombed, including Ray's volunteer fire department identification and wallet, a tarpolin and a two-compartment folding suitcase were found by two young bird-watchers Monday beside a highway near Saratoga, in Santa Clara County.

Sheriff Houchins and Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates said this seemed to indicate that the kidnapers had driven west and south into the San Jose-Santa Clara area after leaving Livermore.

It was to Livermore, in Alameda County, that three men wearing stocking masks transported the kidnap victims in two vans and forced them at gunpoint into an underground cell formed by a moving van buried in a rock quarry.

Sealed in the van with a steel plate, dirt, debris and two heavy truck batteries blocking their exit, the driver and the children finally managed to dig their way to freedom after at least 17 hours.

The kidnaping, and the subsequent escape, touched off one of the most extensive manhunts in California history.

Rather sketchy descriptions of the three suspects, as given by the Tuolumne County informant and included in the APB, contained certain striking similarities to those already developed in interviews with Ray and the children.

One suspect, according to the bulletin, may use the name Randall. He was said by the informant to be 35 to 36 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall and weigh 150 to 160 pounds. He was described as having a neat haircut, heavy eyebrows, deep-set eyes and acne scars around his jaw.

The APB said he may have been serving time in prison for a sex offense, and may have been a narcotics user and dealer.

A second suspect was said to be about 40; 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet tall, with jet black hair. The APB said his name might be Larry Arthur Allred and noted that he did not like the name "Larry" and went by the name "Art" at least while he was in prison.

This suspect was also said to be "very articulate when speaking — noticeable to the point approaching an accent."

(The descriptions based on interviews with the victims noted that one man was believed to have a "French accent.")

The third suspect mentioned in the APB was described as a fairly large man, perhaps 6 feet 2 inches and 220 pounds, in his early 30s, who "appeared to have some background as a cowboy or calf roper."

(One of the gunmen described by the former captives wore cowboy boots and a horsehead belt buckle.)

Citing the informant's recollection of conversations overheard in San Quentin during 1975, the APB said, "One or more of the subjects had some reason for revenge against a small community in the Madera County area," and the three "talked of pulling the caper as soon as all three were released."

Sheriff Bates held a news conference late Monday during which he acknowledged having seen the APB, but said he was not convinced of the Tuolumne County informant's reliability.

Hill questions hospital about Hughes autopsy

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill has sent a list of questions to be answered by Methodist Hospital officials in Houston concerning the autopsy on the body of billionaire Howard Hughes.

Hill said Monday the questions were aimed at obtaining a copy of the autopsy report so it could be used in court proceedings.

Hughes died April 5 at the age of 70 en route to Methodist Hospital from Acapulco, Mexico.

The state attorney general has been investigating the final years Hughes' life in an effort to determine the circumstances under which the billionaire recluse lived.

Ted Bowen, president of Methodist Hospital, refused to comment on the questions, but said, "We'll certainly deliver a copy of the autopsy report when it is properly subpoenaed."

Hill declined to speculate on what he expects the report to disclose.

A Mexican doctor who examined Hughes shortly before he left that country said the billionaire was suffering from "neglect."

The attorney general said he expects to be in court Friday during the first local hearing in connection with the legal squabble by those hoping to obtain at least a share of the Hughes estate.

If Houston probate judge Pat Gregory declares Hughes a legal resident of Texas, the state will be aided in its bid to collect inheritance taxes from the estate.

Call confirmed in bombing

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona Republic reporter Don Bolles told detectives from his death bed the telephone call that sent the newspaper reporter back to his car moments before a bomb exploded under it was made by John Harvey Adamson, police said.

Detective Capt. Don Lozier said Monday the confirmation was obtained from Bolles the day after the June 2 blast. Bolles died 10 days later. Adamson was arrested on an open charge of murder about two hours after Bolles died.

Lozier said Bolles was able only to answer the questions by nodding or shaking his head.

"He nodded to identify a photograph of Adamson and when asked if he had gone to the Clarendon Hotel to meet Adamson," Lozier said.

Lozier said Bolles nodded when asked if Adamson was the man who called the hotel to postpone the interview.

Bolles had told colleagues he was going to the hotel to meet a man named Adamson who allegedly had information concerning a land deal involving prominent Arizonans. The man never appeared.

While Bolles was in the hotel, he received a telephone call and then returned to his car. A bomb exploded under the floorboards as he was backing from the parking space.

Lowell Thomas in hospital

DENVER (AP) — Radio commentator Lowell Thomas has been admitted to Presbyterian Medical Center here for examination, hospital officials confirm.

They said Monday that Thomas, 84, was flown to Denver from Santa Rosa, Calif., Sunday night after complaining that he didn't feel well.

Thomas' son, Alaska Lt. Gov. Lowell Thomas Jr., and his physician, Dr. Robert Bosworth Jr., said Thomas was doing fine, but was expected to remain in the hospital at least the rest of the week.

Thomas became ill at the Bohemian Grove, a country retreat on the Russian River near Santa Rosa. The retreat is owned by the exclusive Bohemian Club of San Francisco, of which Thomas is a longtime member.

Intelligence committee members deny report leak

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen who served on the House intelligence committee are telling investigators they did not leak the panel's secret report to CBS newsman Daniel Schorr and don't know who did.

House ethics committee investigators said Monday that after more than 400 interviews and $150,000 spent, they have not been able to determine who gave Schorr a copy of the intelligence committee report.

Chief investigator David Bowers said the source of the leak has been narrowed to five intelligence committee members, three or four staff aides and a number of federal officials. Members of the now-disbanded committee are saying they don't know how Schorr got the report.

That was the testimony of former committee chairman Otis Pike, D-N.Y., to the ethics committee Monday. Reps. Dale Milford, D-Tex., and Les Aspin, D-Wis., were ready to testify to the same thing today.

Schorr has acknowledged that last February he arranged publication of the report in New York City's weekly Village Voice. Excerpts printed by the newspaper included classified information on several U.S. intelligence operations that the Ford administration wanted to keep secret.

The five committee members and the staff aides, who were not named, had the final report at home on Sunday, Jan. 25, the day Schorr said he obtained it, Bowers testified.

Ethics committee investigators determined that 40 copies of the report were in six federal bureaus, including the White House, the CIA and the State Department that weekend, Bowers testified.

He disclosed that 40 photo copies were made by the CIA from a copy loaned by a committee member. Aspin confirmed he was the member who loaned the copy to the CIA after committee aides refused to do so.

Aspin said he loaned the copy as part of negotiations with the CIA to get as much information as possible declassified so that it could be put into the report and made public.

Bowers told the ethics committee that his investigators had not even found an exact version of the report leaked to Schorr.

He said the copy Aspin loaned to the CIA was close but that it had one page missing from the report published by the Village Voice and did not have two pages that were published there.

The closest copy of all belonged to an unnamed intelligence committee member. There were only four differences between that copy and the one that appeared in the Village Voice, he said.

Police patrols alerted for new riot outbreaks

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Reinforced police patrols were on the alert for a new outbreak of rioting today in the Soweto township eight miles south of Johannesburg. But the birthplace of the black uprising last month remained calm.

The government postponed the reopening of black schools, scheduled for today, following widespread rumors of antigoverment demonstrations in Soweto to coincide with the resumption of classes.

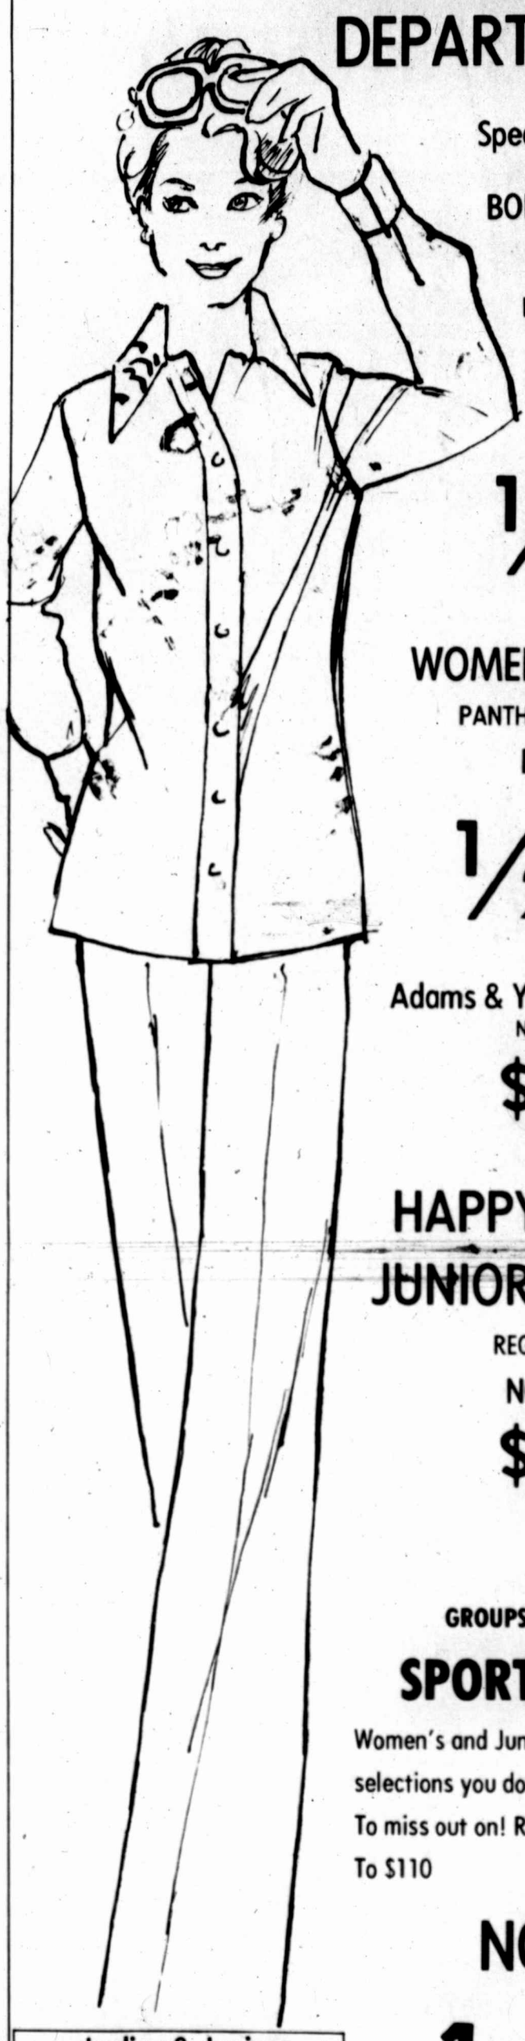

The schools have been closed since the rioting last month in which 176 blacks and two whites were killed, and there were fears that the postponement would touch off new disturbances in the sprawling ghetto where the trouble last month began.

Soweto residents reported militants were trying to organize a strike and threatening black workers with violence if they went to their jobs in Johannesburg.

DEAR ABBY

Tickling becomes ticklish situation

By ABIGAIL VANBUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a ticklish problem, or perhaps I should say a "tickling" problem.

I have been going with this fellow for six months. He is a peach and I adore him, but there is one thing I cannot stand, and that is his tickling me.

He is 6 foot 5 tall, 35 years old, and weighs 190, which needless to say puts me at a big disadvantage. He thinks it's funny to tickle me until I am nearly hysterical and beg for mercy. I have always been ticklish and probably will never get over it.

I don't want to end this relationship, but if this keeps up it may be the only solution. My nerves are always on edge when he approaches me, and I am beginning to lose control.

How do I get him to stop this childish action?——TORMENTED

DEAR TORMENTED: Tell him that if he tickles you again, it's the end of your relationship. And if he does, don't hesitate to show him the door. His seemingly "childish" action is nothing of the kind—it's sadistic.

DEAR ABBY: I've been wondering about the following for quite some time: Many people think that if they sit at a counter in a restaurant instead of at a table, it's not necessary to leave a tip. Is it?

I'm sure lots of people sit at the counter just to get out of tipping. Your answer will be appreciated.—DORIS

DEAR DORIS: No matter where one sits in a restaurant, a tip is in order—unless, of course, the service is poor.

DEAR ABBY: I am 67 and my husband is 71. A few years ago, after all our children left home, it got so quiet around the house we started going to a nearby supper club to dance. We're both pretty fair dancers.

My husband has always lived in this territory, so there are usually some of his old girlfriends there who are either widows or whose husbands are poor dancers.

Some of these women are very aggressive, and they ask my husband to dance. Naturally, he's flattered and never turns anyone down, which leaves me either sitting it out or dancing with a poor dancer.

I am getting tired of being a "good sport" about this. What would you do in my place?—SITTING IT OUT

DEAR SITTING: I'd continue to be a "good sport." Look at it this way: A dance or two is probably the only fun most of those widows get all week. (I'd be a little less charitable, however, when it came to trading my good dancer for someone's poor one.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LITTLE D. IN BIG D.": If it were my decision, I'd marry the man who was the best provider but didn't know how to kiss. It's easier to teach a man how to kiss than how to take home $600 a week.

Although the space is small, the decorative drama in this room is sizable. A plaid carpet in red, white and blue hides badly marred floor and sets contemporary pace for white furniture, red terrycloth sofa cover and the patriotic stripes of the window shades.

Decorative drama can be a reality

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q. My husband and I are moving into an old two-bedroom apartment in the city to be close to our jobs. We want to make one very small bedroom into a den-guest room, but we do not have a large budget to work with. The floor is badly in need of new covering, either vinyl or carpeting, and we will be able to paint or wallpaper or whatever. There are two windows which look out on a rather poor view. We have a twin bed we want to use for a couch and two wicker chairs in addition to a small desk. Could you please give us some ideas on where to start to create a room with lots of personality but not much cost? — H.P.

A. Designer Peg Walker suggests that you begin with an analysis of your room's assets and defects and go from there when working with an older home. These include perhaps the negative things such as oddly proportioned rooms, exposed pipes and vents and dated fixtures. And the positive things might include ornamental moldings, fireplaces and decorative windows not found in modern buildings.

Walker created a charming little room which might give you some ideas on creating yours. Color was an important part of her decorating plan. She put a bright red, white and blue geometric carpeting of Herculon fiber on the floor to cover marred spots. She painted one wall blue and three white to bring the high ceiling down and give the room better proportion. At the windows she repeated the patriotic color scheme.

AT WIT'S END

Before crime was 1940 B.C.

By ERMA BOMBECK

A group of us indulged ourselves recently in a walk down memory lane in the year 1940 B.C. (Before Crime).

"Remember when we were kids and slept on our front porch in the summer and your only worry was catching cold?"

"Remember when the only time Daddy locked his car was when his keys were in it?"

"Remember when a sign in the window was for the bread man and not an emergency help station?"

"Remember when you could go into a public restroom and hang your purse on the hook inside the door?"

"Remember when you weren't afraid to open the door on Halloween?"

"Remember when your biggest problem was keeping kids from walking on the grass . . . not smoking it?"

We were all on a pretty good nostalgia trip when my mother came into the room. "I'll bet Mom remembers those good old days."

"What days are those?"

"The days when pens in banks weren't chained to the desk."

"Why should they be? They never worked anyway."

"The days when we went on vacation and never locked our house."

"There wasn't anything in there worth stealing."

"When there wasn't heavy breathing on the phone at night."

"That's because you never knew your asthmatic grandfather."

"When police didn't have to walk their beat in twos."

"So nuns have been doing it for years."

"Oh c'mon, Mom, you know what we mean. I can remember leaving my tricycle out on the street at nights. You couldn't do that nowadays. By the way, what happened to that tricycle?"

"Someone ripped it off," she said.

"Are you saying someone stole it?" We looked at her like she had just reported that the Yellow Brick Road was linoleum.

"Yep. Same week someone pinched my girdle off the back clothesline and a box of canning jars from the garage."

"You never told me that before."

"When we told you Alan Ladd was short, you cried for 15 days. We didn't think you could handle it."

Lion Tamers Club takes ranch outing

A large group of members and special guests of the Lion Tamers Club Saturday afternoon and evening enjoyed an outing at the ranch of Mr. and Mrs. Windell Thomason in the St. Lawrence area.

The visitors were taken on tours of the ranch property and to points of interest in the vicinity. A covered-dish dinner was served.

Mrs. Lester Van Pelt Jr. is president of the club, which is the woman's auxiliary to the Midland Downtown Lions Club.

Mrs. Thomason is a past president of the Lion Tamers.

New group elects slate

The wives of members of the American Business Club met in the home of Kay Blanck and elected Diane McIntosh president, and selected AmBuc-ettes as the name for the auxiliary.

Other officers named were Dee Holly, vice president; Marty Plake, secretary; Blanck, treasurer. Becky Nichols, reporter; Zena Kay Morse, yearbook chairman, and Susan Clark, sunshine girl.

Retired employes have dinner party

The Permian Basin Chapter of the National Association of Federal Retired Employes had a Bicentennial dinner party in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hickey, 302 S. I St.

Hickey presented the invocation, and the president, Roy E. Terry, led the group in the pledge of allegiance and conducted a brief business session.

Mrs. Elsie Ingham turned in proceeds from the sale of flag pins at the recent Fun A' Fair. Members decided to continue selling the pins, and also tie tacks, until December. Anyone desiring to purchase these items should contact Mrs. Ingham.

Mrs. Hickey was elected as secretary-treasurer, succeeding Mrs. Ellen Roberts, who resigned.

Roy E. Terry was appointed to serve as a delegate to the national convention in Salt Palace Convention Hall at Salt Lake City, Utah. J. Wayne Campbell was named as alternate.

O. B. Russell was appointed to telegram committee to send telegrams to Washington, D. C. for bills coming up in Legislature concerning tax issues.

Recipient of the special prize was Mrs. Elsie E Ingham, who will be the hostess for the next meeting at 2 p.m. Aug. 19 in the Fellowship Hall of the First Christian Church.

Q. Does the term "floating ribs" indicate a defect in the body?
A. There are 12 ribs on each side of the body. In the back, each rib is connected to the backbone by small joints. In the front, the first seven ribs on each side are connected to the breastbone. These are called true ribs. The five others on each side are called false ribs. Three of the false ribs are connected to each other with cartilage. The last two ribs remain free and are known as floating ribs, a part of the body.

McGuffey's reader

There are those yet around who remember the old team of "reading, writing and 'rithmetic."

But some of you may not be aware of the fact that the old team is making a comeback these days with their old partner, the McGuffey Eclectic Reader.

This very well could be one of the brighest bits of news in the field of education today.

McGuffey's Reader, the school standard textbook, maintained as its philosophy during almost a century of continuous use from 1836 to the 1920s a strong belief in the three Rs, strict discipline, strong moral values and love of God, country and family.

With these beliefs, one wonders why in the world this valuable textbook vanished from the classrooms in the first place.

Well, you know how it is. Changes come and go, along with bright young teachers who envision a new and "better" way, and who are bold enough to cast aside the old and institute the new. Sometimes the new fangled ideas catch hold — sometimes they do not. Quite often, the new methods never quite seem to take the place of the old. This quite likely is the case with McGuffey's Reader.

A belief in the love of God, country and family in itself would prove the reader invaluable. We need to gear ourselves to a rewakening along these lines at this particular time.

"We've gone from printing 500 copies five years ago to 10,000 copies in 1976," according to Bob Baird, publicity director for Van Nostrand Neinhold Co., a division of Liton Education Publishing of Florence, Ky. Sounds good, doesn't it?

And to make it even better, the last printing was sold out more than three months ago.

Baird believes that the enthusiasm for McGuffey Readers comes from parental dissatisfaction with today's public education.

"When 30 per cent of our kids who graduate feom high school can't even fill out a simple application for a job and 50 per cent of our incoming college freshmen need remedial reading classes, it's time to rethink our entire elementary education processes," Baird said.

"The McGuffeys have never been out of print in 140 years," he added. And we may see in the 1970s, with the cry of back-to-basics in education and the upsurge of orders for the readers, the publishing phenomenon of the decade."

It also is noted that 42 states have orders in for the readers at this time. And the list is growing.

"Eighty per cent of all Americans used the McGuffey Reader for about 80 years in this country," Stanley Lindberg, a professor at Ohio University, said.

"I am tremendously impressed with them historically because they had a massive impact on shaping our consciousness."

This is exactly right, and one cannot keep from getting excited about the fabulous comeback this textbook is making.

And just to refresh your memories, the McGuffey readers included one primer and six "graded" readers.

And with the comeback undoubtedly will come a resurgence of interest in reading, writing and 'rithmetic, as taught in McGuffey's readers. Things are looking up.

ART BUCHWALD
Atlanta connection is fast taking hold

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — What we're talking about when we elect a President is power. The power starts at the top and seeps down into every part of the country. For people who deal in power and make their living off of it, it's very important to know — or at least to pretend to know — the President of the United States, or the Vice President, or anyone faintly connected with them.

There is no certainty at all that Jimmy Carter will be elected President of the United States. But if he is, these are a few things you could say to impress your friends and business acquantances.

"Y'all know Rosalyn Carter, Jimmy's wife? Well, ma brother dated her sister."

"We just bought a summer home in Plains Ga."

"Come over to the house for dinner. Billy Carter, Jimmy's brother, left some catfish in the deep freeze for us this morning."

"We just joined the First Baptist Church in Washington. The Episcopal Church wasn't doing anything for us."

"My mother and Jimmy Carter's Aunt Cissy have the same hairdresser." "Fritz Mondale's son William gave my son a black eye yesterday."

"We decided to move our company headquarters to Atlanta. The South is where it's happening."

"Can I call you back? I've got Jimmy's mother, Miss Lillian, on hold."

"My law partner used to do Fritz Mondale's brother's tax work."

"So I had this bad back and I went to 20 doctors and none of them could do a thing for me. Then I heard about Jimmy's sister, Ruth. So I said, 'what the heck, I have nothing to lose.' Now I know you're not going to believe this but I had three sessions and my back was cured. It's amazing what faith can do for a bad back."

"Jimmy Carter has never lied to me."

"Have some peanuts, but I can't tell you who gave them to me."

"Joan Mondale went to school with my wife."

"I can never get the Carter kids' names straight. When they come in the house for milk they all look alike."

"I'll never forgive Gen. Sherman for what he did to Atlanta, even if Jimmy does."

"Eleanor Mondale used to be in my daughter's car pool."

"The reason I didn't take a job with his administration is I told the President I could be of much more value to him by advising him as a private citizen."

"Three guesses who came to my Bible class last Sunday?"

"When Jimmy was governer of Georgia, he pardoned my brother."

"Carter has never forgiven me for turning down a job in his administration."

"I'll say this for Jimmy. When we played football together in the Navy, he always wore a helmet."

A CHANGING WORLD:
Africa for Africans only is on the way

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Copley News Service

MOMBASA, Kenya — The good-looking young Indian curio shop proprietor on busy Klindini Road adjusted his gleaming white turban and said, "Oh, I'm safe; I've got a Kenya passport."

He was responding to the often-asked question regarding whether he soon would be one of the many non-Africans being told to go home, to get out of Africa.

"Lots of other Indians, and as you can see, we run most of the shops, will be going home or somewhere else," he said. "The Kenyan government is after us. They don't brutally kick us out. They just give us notice that our work permit will not be renewed."

The aggressiveness of Indian merchants long has made them unpopular in most parts of Africa, in Fiji and in other parts of the world where they have found ways to prosper when others have failed. However, the future in Africa may be just as bleak for other resident aliens, particularly whites.

At present there are 40,000 British citizens in Kenya, just as many as there were before Kenya won its independence in 1963. However, their future is uncertain, as it is for 300 Americans other than those assigned to the U.S. Embassy in Nairobi.

"Things are very good for us here right this minute," a British plantation owner said. "In some ways they are better than they were during colonial days. But, we keep waiting. It's a day-by-day affair."

This man operates a sisal plantation of several hundred acres. Other Britons operate a factory in nearby Voi where the raw sisal that is part of the agave plant is converted into millions of feet of tough fiber binding cord. The cord finds a tremendous market among midwestern U.S. farmers; even after shipment from Africa it is cheaper than American-produced nylon cord.

How much longer sisal will be a British-owned and operated enterprise is anybody's guess. Kenya is far less militant in anti-white attitudes than its neighbors, but make no mistake, it is just as interested as any other nation in an Africa that can boast complete black government and complete black business operations.

Eighty-six-year-old Kenya President Jomo Kenyatta mostly speaks in moderation, particularly in any references to the United States, but the thread that runs through his many pronouncements is unmistakable. It comes out as continuing pressure on whites, Indians and any others not native to this volatile continent.

In Dar es Salaam, about 300 miles south of this Indian Ocean beach resort and shipping center, the outcry against whites is shrill, at the least. The Tanzanian capital city's Daily News, for instance, characterizes South Africa's ruling whites as "puppets of the white fascist regime." Equally strong language is used in any stories concerning the leadership of Rhodesia's Prime Minister Ian Smith.

The brutal killings of peaceful black demonstrators in Soweto, outside South Africa's Johannesburg, has damaged the cause of whites everywhere, even though U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has laid the groundwork for American-African amity with his demands for eventual black majority governments.

Kissinger has asked for transition to a black government in Rhodesia within two years, but as the British plantation owner said, "They might not want to wait that long. The situation is very touchy."

White newsmen have difficulties in almost every African country except Kenya. Journalists find reporting the news particularly difficult in Angola, Mozambique, Ethiopia, even in white-run South Africa. Things are even worse in some countries. Malawi has banned foreign reporters for over three years.

Only by interviewing tourists and monitoring radio broadcasts can newsmen cover Guinea and the Congo Republic. In some countries that claim freedom of the press, cabled news stories often somehow get "lost" in transit.

What all this adds up to is that the future of Africa is black — in more ways than one. Blacks will run the continent, and the manner of their ascension will determine whether such a move will also be a black mark of violence and massacre in the history books.

Britain did an outstanding job in preparing Kenya for self-rule. Portugal, Belgium and other Western nations did not do nearly as well in other areas. This sad situation could be made worse by tribal struggles within the new Third World nations.

What this means is that the demand "white man, go home," now muted, soon may be the law of many African lands. And, not to heed such a warning, business investments notwithstanding, could be a risky adventure.

BROADSIDES

COMMAND CENTER:

By L. EDGAR PRINA
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — I felt a little like Dr. Strangelove, sitting there in the big, padded swivel chair.

The Pentagon had invited a number of military correspondents to tour its supersecret National Military Command Center (NMCC), which it recently updated and expanded at a cost of $15.4 million.

We started with a briefing in the new emergency conference room and, as it turned out, I got the seat in the center of a long, oblong table.

It is there that Secretary of Defense Donald H. Rumsfeld sits when he comes into meetings with members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, as he did a few weeks ago during the evacuation of American citizens from shell-shocked Lebanon.

On Rumsfeld's right at that time was Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements and, on his left, Gen. George S. Brown, the JCS chairman.

In front of each of their chairs are two telephones — a red one, for "secure" or protected communications, and a gray one for regular calls. Each also has a microphone so that his voice may be carried to every corner of that big room or to any of many other offices in the NMCC where it needs to be heard.

From these chairs and several more on either side of them, the high command can look up to four display panels. Digital-type clocks show the time, around the world.

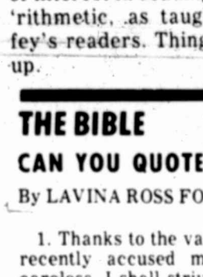

The briefer asserted that the Chiefs had "near instantaneous" communications with virtually any U.S. military base or ship in the world. He then gave a demonstration to prove it.

"This is command center with a communications flash test call," he said over a phone. Almost as fast as he read the list, the replies came back from duty officers on the alert all over the world.

NICK THIMMESCH
The 1976 Democratic convention: Oh Holy Night . . .

Nick Thimmesch

NEW YORK CITY — Carter-Mondale is a highly electable ticket. In 1976, piety will surely get more votes than specificity. The team of "Grits" (appealing to the Southern mentality spanning 13 states) and "Fritz" (denoting Mondale and relentless Northern liberalism) packs an electoral punch.

After all, if, as the Rev. Martin Luther King Sr. declared in a benediction which amounted to a tub-thumping political speech, "Surely the Lord is in this place," meaning the Democratic convention, how can this ticket lose?

Why Mr. King found it necessary to bellow, "We shall overcome," I don't know, since Dr. George Gallup just reported that the Rev. Mr. Carter would win in a landslide against either President Ford or aspirant Ronald Reagan were the election held now.

But the team of Mondale, the minister's son, and Carter (who wishes he were one) might be to goody-good to be true. Icons, even of the righteous fundamentalist variety, can tumble from pedestals.

So Carter, using Nixon-like code words, wants "Big Shot Crooks" to go to jail — meaning Nixon and the Watergate gang.

Does Carter also intend that Congress and the press pursue the Democratic congressional leadership, richly implicated in abuse-of-power wrongdoing? Will Carter demand an investigation of, say, House Democratic Leader Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, described in The Washington Post recently as traveling in high fashion about the globe on a secret fund, paid for by taxpayers?

And what does Carter say about some of the 1972 Democratic presidential aspirants severely criticzed in the final — but largely unread — Senate Watergate report? Is he aware of the fiscal perfidy attributed to the campaigns of Hubert Humphrey, George McGovern and John V. Lindsay? Tsk, tsk.

Carter-Mondale bleated plenty about "compassion." But Mondale, in his strident speech, condemned President Ford for pardoning Richard Nixon. Where is the much advertised love in Mondale's Christian heart, especially when Patricia Nixon suffers partial paralysis from a stroke and Nixon himself is doomed to shame for the rest of his years on earth?

Could Carter-Mondale, in their politics of holy uplift and stamping-out-old sinners, make themselves vulnerable to common sense skepticism?

Carter stretched the truth a bit when he said that he and Sen. Mondale are very close on the issues, and that his new partner would get the same good reception that he does in conservative areas.

Now which conservative Democrat can accept Mondale on: his advocacy of forced busing; the child-welfare bill he pushes and which looks like federal intrusion into American family life; his vote for federally funded abortion; a voting record always calling for more spending programs and regulations by the federal government?

Come now, Mr. Carter, Fritz is a liberal. And Mr. Carter, you did lead the saved to believe that you are against forced busing, interference in American family life by the feds, federally funded abortions, a grand reduction in federal programs and elimination of unnecessary federal regulations.

Actually, Mondale might be a liberal cosmetic for whatever kind of Administration Carter has in mind. Vice Presidents don't make that much difference, except during election season.

Carter, in truth, is a highly salable political commodity. His piety touches the millions of hearts belonging to the folk who follow Billy Graham. He invokes John F. Kennedy and other popular pseudo-intellectual inspirational figures. Without crediting George C. Wallace, the subdued populist in the wheelchair, Carter used some of old George's rhetoric in his acceptance speech (the bit about the political and economic elitists sending their kids to private schools while poor folks integrate by busing).

Carter appeals to the pride of Southerners, long maligned and discriminated against by the dominerring Northern wing of the Democratic Party. He exudes triumph, and victory is what hungry liberals pant for. They would do anything to get back into Washington, even going through the "born again" rite, if necessary. Carter is master of the soft, sincere speech and is highly skilled in employing abstractions that become ambivalence.

Given the sick condition of the feverous Republican Party, the yearning in the American people for a restored faith and solidity, and the 5-to-2 voter registration advantage enjoyed by Democrats — it looks like Carter-Mondale is headed for the White House.

But we in the writing and talking trade have an obligation to keep after Carter-Mondale because we have been elevated to pedestals ourselves after Watergate. H.L. Mencken should be reread by all in our trade, and Mondale-Carter put in context. Charlatans, quacks, the bellowing pious should all be kept in mind.

Woman found in contempt in Lincoln lineage suit

By STEPHEN GREEN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A 35-year-old West German woman was found in contempt of court here Monday for failing to obtain blood test to determine whether her 7-year-old son is the only great-great grandchild of Abraham Lincoln.

The contempt order was issued against Annemarie Hoffman Beckwith by D.C. Superior Court Judge Joseph Ryan who had ordered the blood tests for her and the boy, Timothy Lincoln Beckwith, in connection with a divorce suit filed by her 71-year-old husband, Robert Todd Lincoln Beckwith.

Beckwith, last surviving great-grandchild of the 16th President, is seeking the divorce on the gounds of adultery and contends he did not father the boy.

At stake in the case — in addition to the status of the marriage — is the eventual disposition of the Lincoln family trust fund. If the boy's lineage can be determined, he could be in line to become sole beneficiary of the fund, which is estimated to be worth more than $1 million.

In a hearing Monday before Ryan, two physicians testified that Bechwith has been sterile since 1962 — six years before the birth of the boy in October 1968 in Williamsburg, Va.

Ryan continued the case until August in order to hear testimony from the physician who was said to have performed a vasectomy on Beckwith.

He also said this will give Mrs. Beckwith a chance to purge herself of the contempt finding by having the blood tests done and by appearing in court, which she also has refused to do.

The exact wherebouts of Mrs. Beckwith and the boy were not disclosed during the hearing. The affidavit filed by her attorney's Monday states she is somewhere in the United States.

In April, when the D.C. Court of Appeals upheld the blood test order, she was said to be living in West Berlin.

Testifying Monday in a soft, halting voice, Beckwith said he and his wife — a West German national — were married in 1967, several years after Mrs Beckwith came to the United States.

In the affadavit, Mrs. Beckwith said she has fought the divorce "to protect my son's interests, both as to his privacy and such property rights as he may have, and to protect my own similar interests."

She said that subsequent to the birth of the boy when Beckwith would no longer let her stay at their home in Middlesex County, Va., she and her son have lived in West Germany, Austria and Switzerland.

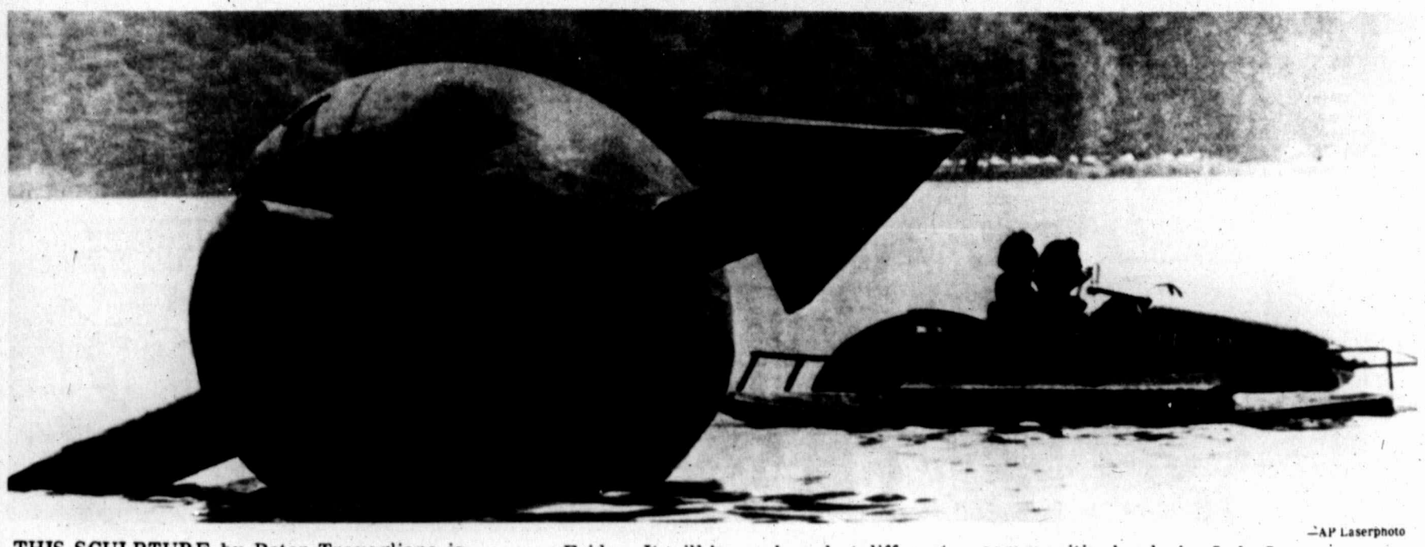

She stated that after news accounts of the appeals court decision, "My residence and place of employment were beseiged by representatives of the press wanting interviews with and photographs of me and my son. Threats to kidnap my son for ransom were telephoned to my apartment."

"To avoid the publicty and constant harrassment," she stated, "I was forced to leave my employment and place of residence, and because of fear for my son's safety, I left Europe."

"I still believe," she stated, "that my son should not be involved in any way in this suit between me and my husband. I am concerned for his safety ..."

Dr. Parker Sturgis Dorman, a urologist, testified his brother, Dr. Hamilton Dorman, performed a vasectomy on Beckwith in 1962 at the same time that Beckwith underwent a prostate operation. He said that X-rays taken in 1968 showed that the vasectomy was still effective.

Beckwith now is the sole beneficiary of a trust fund established by the will of his grandmother, Mary Harlan Lincoln. Mrs. Lincoln, the wife of Robert Todd Lincoln, the President's son, died in her Georgetown home in 1937.

Ford again defends pardon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says he was right to pardon Richard Nixon in the wake of the Watergate scandals and that the voters will decide if the pardon should be a campaign issue.

Ford was jovial, talking like he had the nomination of his party sewed up, as he held a news conference on the White House lawn Monday.

But Nixon's name and the word Watergate kept popping up, both at the news conference and at the nearby offices of the AFL-CIO, which cited the pardon as one reason in explaining why the labor federation will support Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter over Ford.

Pressed by reporters, Ford said his decision to pardon Nixon was best for the nation. And he added, "I would do it again."

Democrats have raised the pardon and the memory of the Watergate scandals in launching their campaign to take the White House.

Ronald Reagan last week condemned the Watergate comments made at the Democratic National Convention as "brutal." He also said, however, that the pardon could hurt Republicans in the fall if Ford is the party's nominee.

But Ford indicated it would be the voters who would ultimately pass judgment on his pardon of Nixon.

"I think the American people will make the decision, not me, myself, whether it will be an issue or not," Ford said.

"I decided to grant the pardon in the national interest. At that time, the United States was faced with serious economic problems and we were still involved in a long and difficult war in Southeast Asia. We could not be involved in the Nixon matter and concentrate fully on the more important matters. I decided in the national interest, I would do it again."

Ford also said he has sent Congress new Watergate reform legislation "which would further advance our efforts to restore public confidence in the integrity of all three branches of the federal government."

Ford said he didn't like a Senate Watergate reform bill because it would allow federal judges to appoint special prosecutors to investigate wrongdoing by government officials without the president's approval. Ford's plan calls for a permanent special prosecutor, to be appointed by the president. He said such a prosecutor could not be fired except "for extraordinary improprieties."

House of Labor stands united behind Carter

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Divided in 1972, the House of Labor stands united in this year's presidential election. Jimmy Carter has won the AFL-CIO endorsement, with federation President George Meany declaring, "I think he wants to change things — change the whole economic picture."

Meany's announcement Monday of the AFL-CIO endorsement gives the Democratic nominee support from virtually the entire labor movement.

The big independent labor groups — among them, the auto and mine workers and the National Education Association — have either endorsed or are expected to soon back the former Georgia governor.

The Teamsters, the nation's largest union with two million members, supported Republican Richard Nixon for re-election four years ago. But this year, Teamsters chief Frank Fitzsimmons has denounced President Ford's economic policies to such a point that one union official said he couldn't back the GOP now "even if he wanted to."

Ford was expected to win the backing of conservative construction unions until he vetoed legislation that would have broadened their picketing rights. Now the "hard-hats" are lining up behind Carter.

"I cannot find anyone, at any level, in the official family of the American labor movement who is going to be for Gerald Ford," Meany said in explaining why Carter will have labor's "all-out support."

Meany told a news conference Monday that with the Republicans "it's tweedle-dee Ford and tweedle-dum Reagan or the other way — tweedle-dum and tweedle-dee."

The 81-year-old patriarch of the labor movement said he is "very happy" with Carter, adding, "I think he wants to change things — change the whole economic picture, and that's what we want to do."

Meany steered the AFL-CIO to a neutral course in 1972 and refused to back the Democratic candidate, Sen. George McGovern. However, several individual unions went for McGovern, while others, including the building trades, backed Nixon.

The AFL-CIO endorsement came in a resolution adopted unanimously by its Executive Council, which said Ford hurt confidence in government "by pursuing economic policies that brought about the worst recession in 35 years, by seeking to impose minority rule through an abuse of the veto power unparalleled in American history...."

Shortly after the announcement, Meany entered George Washington University Hospital for tests. A spokesman said Meany, bothered by a bronchial condition, would be hospitalized three or four days.

Claim-jumping battle expected

By DICK BARNES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford-Reagan battle for the Republican presidential nomination apparently will focus this week on alternating claims from each side about delegates captured from the uncommitted category.

The President Ford Committee scheduled a news conference today to lay claim to uncommitted delegates, including some from New York.

Ronald Reagan's campaign manager said Monday the former California governor will have at least 10 more delegates than he needs to win a first ballot victory over President Ford at the GOP convention in Kansas City. And campaign officials listed as new Reagan voters one delegate each from Delaware, Virginia and North Dakota.

The Reagan people said they'd be following later this week with announcements of more than 10 other delegates joining their ranks.

Ford campaign chief Rogers C.B. Morton scoffed at the Reagan camp's prediction of victory, calling it "baloney" and part of a "psychological warfare campaign."

Ford, at a news conference Monday, said he expected good news from his delegate hunters later in the week. Ford claimed he already has 1,103 of the 1,130 delegates needed to assure nomination on the first ballot at the Aug. 16-19 convention.

The Associated Press delegate count, which does not count those considered to be only leaning toward one candidate or the other, currently gives Ford 1,066 and Reagan 1,023, with 169 uncommitted and one expressing a preference for Sen. Howard Baker Jr. of Tennessee.

Ford acted at his news conference on the White House front lawn Monday like a man already certain of nomination and looking toward the general election campaign against Jimmy Carter.

He said his campaign will be pitched on economic recovery, maintenance of peace and restoration of faith in government. Asked what his biggest issue with Carter would be, Ford said, "I'm not going to discuss this campaign from that point of view. It is important for me to act affirmatively. I'll let Mr. Carter decide the issues where he has some difference."

Ford again would not speculate on who he might pick as his running mate if he is nominated. He said no one, including Reagan and Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, was excluded from consideration.

Ford even threw out the notion that he might look outside GOP ranks for a running mate, but when asked to elaborate, said "use your imagination."

Reagan campaign manager John Sears, at a news conference Monday, said he has never been more confident of a Reagan win. He said some of Ford's claimed delegate strength is soft, that "in many parts of the country it makes little political sense to come out too early" against a sitting President.

Solon favors using surplus to hike state's school funding

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The chairman of a special House committee on school finance says he favors using a large part of the projected treasury surplus to increase the state's share of essential—or minimum foundation——school costs.

"I think we are going to recommend spending an additional, substantial chunk of state funds," said Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, chairman of the House Committee on Alternatives to Public School Financing.

Massey also is chairman of the House Committee on Education.

With Gov. Dolph Briscoe's no new taxes policy, the place to get more money is the surplus and windfall revenue from rising oil prices and inflation, he said.

Massey said the committee probably would propose some new taxes to finance education, looking ahead to the day when state revenue sources no longer are frozen.

"The record would show that the one recommended most by the people who have testified before us was a one per cent increase in the sales tax, with a narrowing of exemptions," Massey told reporters following a meeting of his committee Monday.

Massey said a $500 million increase would raise the state's share of the Minimum Foundation School program from 80 per cent to 90 per cent. He made it clear the figures were produced just for discussion and did not necessarily reflect what the committee might recommend.

He said he also had concluded reluctantly that the state should put a limit, by law, on the amounts local school districts can spend for enrichment of their educational programs.

"My position has changed drastically in the last 18 months," Massey said.

"I think if you are ever going to do two things, you are going to have to limit local enrichment. One is equalization of educational opportunity. The other is relief for the local taxpayer."

Massey acknowledged that feeling in the legislature has run against limiting local enrichment.

But he challenged the assumption that added local expenditures for education reflect the desires of local taxpayers.

With some school board members having terms as long as six years, they do not have to seek frequent voter approval of their policies, he observed.

"I don't think it is a result of a mandate from the people," Massey said.

In answer to a question, he said he believed his committee shared his attitude toward enrichment.

A school district's share of the foundation program, as well as local enrichment, comes entirely from property taxes. Massey said the committee was trying to find alternatives to that funding method, which has produced sizeable local tax increases in many districts while the state pursued its no new taxes policy.

During the committee's meeting Monday, Massey observed that while the state had won the famous Rodriguez case, the issue it raised of educational inequality among rich and poor districts still exists.

"It shows that the ad valorem (property) tax is a hell of a way to finance your schools," Massey said.

Escaped killer recaptured

CONROE, Tex. (AP) — Jim E. West, convicted in the slaying of a tavern owner, was back behind bars today, two days after escaping from the Montgomery County jail.

West, 32, of Porter, had been sentenced to 20 years in prison for the rifle slaying of Joe Hammer, 65.

Bates to step down from bench temporarily

HOUSTON (AP) — State Dist. Court Judge Garth Bates, charged with bribery, apparently will step down from the bench until his case is resolved.

Gerald Payte, personal attorney for the judge, said Monday Bates had told him he would leave the judicial post. A former state legislator and Houston city councilman, Bates is unopposed for a second four-year term to the state court.

Bates, 61, and Ed Riklin, a 46-year-old salesman, were charged Friday with accepting and agreeing to accept money from Nukie Fontenot, 38, a pawnbroker, with an understanding the judge would not send Fontenot to prison.

Fontenot is scheduled to go on trial in Bates' court on a charge of receiving and concealing items taken in a $90,000 jewelry robbery.

Dist. Atty. Carol Vance said the case was presented to a grand jury Monday and the panel probably will end its investigation Wednesday.

Vance said a registered letter has been sent to Bates stating that he has until Wednesday to meet with the grand jury.

Bates and Riklin are free on $118,000 bond each.

Accompanying Vance before the grand jury were three assistants—Bob Bennett, head of the special crimes bureau, John Holmes, an assistant to Bennett, and Henry Oncken, chief prosecutor in Bates' court.

Prior to the announcement by Payte, Vance said he and his assistants would refuse to present any cases before Bates while the bribery charge is pending.

District Judge Perry Pickett of Midland will preside over Bates' court this week, at the request of State Dist. Court Judge Max Rogers of Huntsville, the presiding officer for the judicial district that includes Harris County.

Prosecutors have declined to discuss the details of the Bates case.

Strikes take finals in Sutton, Runnels

Discoveries have been completed in Runnels and Sutton counties. Also, a wildcat site was staked in Runnels and Sutton and Val Verde confirmers were finaled.

James K. Anderson of Dallas has completed No. 1 Puckett, a Runnels County Capps lime gas strike, four miles northeast of Wingate.

The absolute, open flow potential was for 10.7 million cubic feet of dry gas daily, producing through perforations at 4,448-4,452 feet, after washing with 500 gallons of mud acid.

Drilled to 4,550 feet, it has 4½-inch casing seated at 4,546 feet, and it is plugged back to 4,487 feet. Top of pay was picked at 4,444 feet, under ground elevation of 2,076 feet.

Wellsite is 2,100 feet from south and 467 feet from west lines of section 116, block 64, H&TC survey.

Tri-Star Petroleum Corp., Dallas, has scheduled a 4,800-foot wildcat in Runnels, two miles southeast of Wingate. It is No. 1 D. E. Pinegar.

Location is 2,000 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 10, BBB&C survey, 1⅛ mile northwest of the Big A (upper Fry) oil field.

SUTTON ACTIVITY

G-K Corp., Houston, No. 1-7 Meeks Ranch Fee, a Pennsylvanian lime gas discovery in Sutton County, has been finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow of 1.930 million cubic feet of dry gas per day.

Production is through perforations at 3,253-3,386.5 feet. The pay zone has been treated with 3,000 gallons of acid.

Total depth is 3,950 feet, and 4½-inch casing is seated at 3,748 feet. Plugged-back depth is 3,707 feet.

Location is 467 feet from north and 2,173 feet from east lines of section 7, block 7, TW&NG survey.

Amoco Production Co. has completed its No. 1 Marjory R. Johansen as a fifth Strawn well and 2½-mile south extension to that pay in the Sutton County part of the Whitehead field.

The calculated, absolute open flow was for 2.35 million cubic feet of gas daily, producing through perforations at 8,468-8,757 feet. The pay had been acidized with 3,000 gallons and fractured with 37,500 gallons and 12,000 pounds of sand.

Originally slated as a wildcat, it was drilled to 8,770 feet. The plugged-back depth is 8,767 feet. Operator set 4½-inch casing on the bottom.

It is 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 17, block EFD, D. Y. Jackson survey, abstract 477.

VAL VERDE WELL

Hunt Oil Co. of Dallas completed as a shut in Ellenburger gas well, No. 1 Mills in North Val Verde County, 1⅞ mile southeast of the Ellenburger gas opener of the Morrison field.

On the last reported test, it flowed at the rate of 2.652 million cubic feet daily, through perforatioms at 14,053-14,952 feet, after the pay had been treated with 1,000 gallons of acid and fractured with 750 barrels of acid and 50,000 pounds of sand.

It was staked as a wildcat and drilled to 15,571 feet. Operator set 5½-inch casing set at 15,570 feet. It is plugged back to 15,488 feet.

Wellsite is 1,976 feet from south and 2,426 feet from west lines of section 14, block Q-4, TCRR survey, 8½ miles northeast of Pandale.

Langdon suggests shale oil

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Railroad commissioner Jim Langdon suggested today that the United States could solve its oil import problem by requiring importers to take shale oil, for example, before they can receive foreign oil.

Langdon told the regular statewide monthly oil allowable hearing that oil could be produced from shale over a period of years at no higher price than it costs to import oil.

"Imported foreign oil," he said, "continues to rise at an alarming rate."

Commission chairman Ben Ramsey said the four-week average of foreign oil imports as of July 9 was 5,499,000 barrels a day, an increase of 692,000 barrels a day from Jan. 2 and 1,726,000 barrels a day more than was being imported on Jan. 3, 1975.

The commission routinely set the August allowable at 100 per cent—for the 53rd consecutive month—after listening to major buyers of Texas crude ask for 3,985,121 barrels a day next month. This is an increase of 15,979 from July's daily nominations.

As usual, the East Texas field was restricted to 86 per cent of potential to avoid possible waste.

Nominations by major purchasers of Texas crude oil for August, in barrels per day, with changes from July in parentheses:

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Four employes of the Conam Inspection Division here of Nuclear Energy Services, Inc., have been exposed to radiation in excess of federal government limits, the company has announced.

The firm, which is based in Houston, Tex., said that the workers were exposed on July 8 at its Columbus plant. But the company added that the exposure did not result in any medical problems to the workers.

A prelimnary investigation by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission showed that a sealed radiation source was left unshielded at a completion of a work shift. The company said that plant uses radiation sources for industrial purposes such as measuring the thickness of materials and assuring the integrity of welds.

The firm added that there was no radiation exposure to the public and that the workers' exposure was not more than 25 rems, a unit which measures radiation.

Sprayberry well finals

Frank W. Cole Engineering has completed No. 2-A Robertson as a new producer in the Midland County part of the Spraberry Trend Area, seven miles southeast of Midland.

It finaled to pump 64 barrels of 37-gravity oil and 185 barrels of water daily, with gas-oil ratio measuring 2,500-1. Completed through perforations at 7,585 feet to 9,152 feet, the pay was treated with 5,500 gallons of acid and fractured with 140,000 gallons and 225,000 pounds of sand.

Location is 660 feet from north and 1,788 feet from east lines of T. J. Murphy survey, abstract 585.

HOUSTON — J. Kelly Elliott has been named vice president of Galveston-Houston Co. in charge of the company's new Production Equipment Division.

The new division consists of McMurry Oil Tools, Inc., and Thornhill-Craver Co. Both companies are headquartered at Houston and manufacture equipment used in the production segment of the petroleum industry.

Elliott will retain his title of president of McMurry Oil Tools.

Reeves test rates flow

Crayton W. Williams Jr., Midland, No. 1 Chicora Modesta, Reeves County wildcat, 13 miles east of Balmorhea, flowed gas at the maximum rate of 1.6 million cubic feet per day, decreasing to 850,000 cubic feet daily, in an unidentified formation.

The flow was through a 24-64-inch choke and perforations at 15,951-16,428 feet. The project has been shut in.

Drilled to 16,532 feet, it has a 5½-inch liner hung from 11,182-16,530 feet.

The project is 1,980 feet from south and 2,226 feet from west lines of section 322, block 13, H&GN survey, 1¼ mile southeast of the Pec-Reeves (Devonian) gas field and 4½ miles east of the Barilla (Wolfcamp) gas field.

Coastal States plans Lo-Vaca Gathering restructure program

HOUSTON (AP) — Coastal States Gas Corp. has proposed to restructure its troubled subsidiary, Lo-Vaca Gathering Co., into a totally independent company and to carry out a gas search program costing as much as $230 million during a 15-year period.

The plan, aimed at settling more than $1.4 billion in lawsuits involving Lo-Vaca, also called for Oscar S. Wyatt Jr., Coastal States chairman, to dispose of the new company stock to which he would be entitled.

The company announcement Monday said the proposal is conditioned on satisfactory rates being established by the Texas Railroad Commission so Lo-Vaca and Rio Grande Valley Gas Co. could continue to sell gas at a price that assured their continuing viability.

Don Newquist, a Lo-Vaca vice president, said a satisfactory rate would be equal to or more than is now paid by customers.

The Railroad Commission has scheduled a July 22 public hearing on the proposal.

Harry L. Blomquist Jr., Coastal States president, said some significant problems still must be resolved and many other customers to be included before a final agreement is reached.

Blomquist said if the plan is approved in principal it will be followed by further negotiations in an effort to reach definitive final agreements. These would be submitted to all parties, including certain Coastal States security holders, for a final yes or no.

The restructuring plan calls for Coastal States to assume existing debts of about $108 million and to insure unsecured promissory notes of an estimated $120 million during the next 15 years.

The new company would issue $1.15 million in preferred stock to be placed in trust for the benefit of Lo-Vaca customers.

This stock would have a dividend rate of 8½ per cent andn initially, have 20 per cent of the voting rights in the new company.

Ultimately, the preferred stock would be sold or redeemed and the proceeds, together with the dividends paid on the stock, distributed to LoVaca customers.

All of the common stock of the new company would be spun off to Coastal States shareholders.

Wyatt, a major stockholder of Coastal States, has agreed to place his interest in the new company either in a trust to be given to charities, primarily in Lo-Vaca's area of operation, or distribute it to Coastal States shareholders.

Company spokesmen said it would be premature to predict whether the proposal will be approved in principle by the many parties or that a final settlement will be consumated.

The Coastal States announcement made no mention of those parties involved in the negotiations, but Lo-Vaca's major customers include San Antonio and its Public Service Board, Corpus Christi and Central Power & Light Co., the Lower Colorado River Authority, Austin, and Brownsville.

The Austin City Council will meet in executive session Wednesday to discuss the Coastal States proposal and also Thursday's meeting of the railroad commission.

Don Butler, the city's utility attorney, said Monday he was "not in a position to say" whether he will recommend city council approval.

"I think we need to do some careful examination of it," he said.

Railroad Commission members Mack Wallace and Ben Ramsey declined comment on the proposal.

Charles Herring, general manager of the LCRA, said he had not seen the plan and that the LCRA board has no plans to meet to discuss it.

Blomquist pointed out that the proposed settlement cannot become effective without favorable rulings by the Internal Revenue Service and other regulatory agencies.

"Among other things, the securities of the newly-created company have to be formally registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission," he said.

Casing set in Andrews

I. W. Lovelady has set 5½-inch casing and was moving off rotary and waiting on a completion unit at No. 1 Lindley, Andrews County unidentified prospect, nine miles west of Andrews townsite.

A drillstem test, time unreported, from 4,648-4,751 feet, recovered 1,260 feet of gas and 597 feet of heavily oil, water, and gas-cut mud.

The sample chamber recovery was 2.2 cubic feet of gas and 2,800 feet of heavily oil, water and gas-cut drilling fluid.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 16, block A-47, PSL survey, one location southwest of a 4,498-foot failure.

Are uranium exports dangerous to nation?

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Are U.S. exports of uranium, formerly considered routine and harmless, actually arming the world with nuclear weapons? The controversy is now before the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

For yearsthe United States has been supplying low-enriched uranium for India's Tarapus nuclear plant, which generates electricity for the Bombay area. A hearing today revolves around what would once have been a routine application for an export license.

Now, however, three citizen groups are objecting to further exports because India is building a reprocessing plant at Tarapur, capable of extracting from the spent nuclear fuel the byproduct plutonium, which could be used in nuclear bombs.

The hearing follows an acknowledgement by U.S. officials that it was U.S. uranium shipments and technical aid, meant only for civilian power generation, that made possible India's development of an atomic bomb and its explosion in 1974.

These officials said India's ability to use peaceful nuclear technology for bomb development was misjudged.

Although India used a research reactor supplied by Canada to produce bomb material, officials said, India also made use of U.S. uranium, "heavy water," and scientific training.

Last July 2 the NRC approved another shipment of more than 12,000 kilograms of enriched uranium to the Tarapur plant, but held open any decision on further exports pending this hearing.

The hearing directly involves another proposed shipment of 9,000 kilograms of enriched uranium.

The shipments have been opposed by the Sierra Club, the Union of Concerned Scientists and the Natural Resources Defense Council, which says safeguards are inadequate to prevent the diversion of nuclear materials into nuclear weaponry or terrorist activity.

The issue has brought dissenting votes from NRC Commissioner Victor Gilinsky when his three colleagues approved the last shipment to Tarapur and, earlier, when they approved an export of nuclear power plant parts to Spain.

Outpost testing

Cities Service Oil Co. No. 1-CU State, 1⅛-mile southwest outpost to an undesignated dual Wolfcamp oil and Morrow gas strike in Eddy County, N.M., continued production tests in the Morrow.

It flowed gas at the rate of 1.008 million cubic feet per day for 3½ hours on a 1-inch choke, through perforations at 11,069-11,158 feet.

Operator acidized the section with 4,500 gallons, and it cleaned to pits, making a trace of distillate and 118 barrels of load water in 10 hours, on a 1-inch choke. Gas volume was 1.8 million cubic feet daily.

A subsequent 11-hour test through a 20-64-inch choke, flowed two barrels of 55.2-gravity distillate and 24 barrels of load water, with gas rated at 2,786 million cubic feet daily.

Location is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 36-20s-27e, seven miles northeast of Carlsbad.

Middle East development plan biggest in petroleum's history

TULSA — A spending and development program is taking place in the Middle East that dwarfs anything in the history of petroleum.

The Oil and Gas Journal says Middle East oil projects always have been on a huge scale, but superlatives of the past no longer adequately describe the programs unfolding now.

James E. Akins, former U.S. ambassador to Saudi Arabia, writes in the weekly business magazine that Saudi Arabia held back a price increase by the Organization of Petroleum Explorting Countries this year. Akins anticipates a 15 per cent increase next January, though.

Petrodollars already have swelled the treasuries of Saudi Arabia, Iran, Kuwait, Iraq and the Arab Emirates, enabling them to launch programs for maximum hydrocarbon development. And the oil revenues are becoming even more vital, the Journal says.

For instance, Iran complains it lost revenues of $7.4 million a day last year when the international oil companies produced 740,000 barrels daily under goals. Continued shortfalls would be disasterous for Iran's ambitious five-year plan for social and industrial development.

Saudi Arabia also has a five-year improvement plan with a whopping $144 billion price tag. That is $18,000 per capita.

Although the Middle Eastern nations have been spending at an increasing rate, the demand for their oil hasn't kept up with the projected 6-7 per cent increase per year. There are signs that it may pick up this year.

Meanwhile, the trade balances of the "Big Three" producing countries have suffered. Kuwait's surplus shrunk $3 billion, Saudi Arabia's $5 billion and Iran's $6.2 billion.

Bart Collins, the Journal's International editor, finds inflation and the financial demands of government programs are supporting current crude prices while preventing increases.

"The producing states are now captives of their own development plans. They apparently are aware that any abrupt upswing in prices will cause market resistance that will lower crude lifitins," he reports.

Saudi Arabia is starting work on a $15 billion natural-gas gathering system, the largest engineering project in the history of the oil industry.

The Arab nation produces 7 million barrels of oil a day, each with about 500 cubic feet of natural gas. Some of the gas is used for reinjection or power generation, but about 80 per cent is flared.

A 500-mile gathering system will transport the gas and natural-gas liquids to five processing centers. From there, a 270-mile system will take the dry gas to cities and industries.

About 400,000 of the 554,000 barrels of NGL will be transported through an 800-mile pipeline to be constructed across the girth of Saudi Arabia to the Red Sea port of Yanbu for export to Europe by tankers. At a conservative $10 a barrel, the NGL exports will pay for the entire system in 10 years, the Journal calculates.

Akins says Saudi Arabia could "break OPEC" by increasing its production to the full 12 million barrels daily capacity, and reducing prices. It also could force world oil prices sharply higher by restraining oil production, he says.

Drillstem test shows

Morris R. Antweil of Roswell, N.M., was drilling below 10,665 feet in lime and shale, at No. 1 Mesa Macho, Eddy County wildcat, after taking a drillstem test in the Strawn.

Tool was open 2½ hours on the test taken from 10,085-10,157 feet. Gas surfaced in 12 minutes, flowing at the rate of 242,000 cubic feet daily, increasing to 536,000 cubic feet per day. Recovery was 1,400 feet of fluid. Reversed out of the tool was 1,250 feet of condensate and 150 feet of condensate-cut mud.

Location of the test, in which Mesa Petroleum Co. of Midland is a partner, is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 24-20s-27e, seven miles north of Carlsbad.

DRILLING REPORT

CROCKETT — Mobil No. 1-B Virginia Crockett; drilling 3,422 feet in lime.

EDDY — Antweil No. 1 Mesa Grande; td 11,550 feet, acidized perforations at 11,431-11,452 feet with 750 gallons; recovered small gas flow behind each swab pull, still testing.

Hondo No. 1 Wright-Federal; drilling 2,666 feet in anhydrite.

Mesa No. 1 Moore-Federal; drilling 3,750 feet in dolomite and shale. A one-hour and 15-minute drillstem test in the Bell Canyon from 1,950-1,984 feet, had gas to surface in six minutes, volume too small to measure. Recovery was 630 feet of heavily gas-cut sulphur water. The sample chamber contained 1.85 cubic feet of gas with a trace of sulphur water.

Mesa No. 3 Nash; drilling 13,456 feet in lime, shale, sand.

Mesa No. 5 Nash; drilling 2,525 feet in anhydrite, salt.

Belco No. 1 Jones; drilling 1,993 feet.

C&K No. 1-15 Pennzoil-Federal; td 10,582 feet, circulating and mixing mud.

Aminoil No. 2 Willow Lake; drilling 10,038 feet in shale, lime.

Aminoil No. 1 CNB; td 12,835 feet, testing top of liner. A five-hour and 20-minute drillstem test from 11,326-12,617 feet, surfaced gas at the end of the test on a ½-inch choke, gauge not reported, and recovered 1,300 feet of drilling mud and 670 feet of gas-cut mud.

GAINES — Williamson & Williamson No. 1 Cotton Lindsey; drilling 5,670 feet in dolomite.

Samedan No. 1 North Central; td 12,6-7 feet, preparing to drill ahead. A ½-hour drillstem test in the Mississippian from 12,550-12,607 feet, recovered 30 feet of drilling fluid and the 3,000-foot water blanket, plus 1,700 cubic centimeters of drilling fluid from the sampler.

GLASSCOCK — Lovelady No. 1 Cooper; td 8,410 feet, logging.

HOWARD — Estoril No. 1-26-1 Fryar; drilling 8,980 feet in lime.

IRION — Union Texas No. 1-3061 Sheen; td 8,065 feet, preparing to take a drillstem test in the Ellenburger from 7,975-8,065 feet.

Union Texas No. 1-19 Sugg; td 8,010 feet, set a cast iron bridge plug at 6,300 feet, pulled tubing, now shut in.

KENT — Belco No. 1 Elkins; drilling 7,392 feet in lime.

KING — Bass No. 1 Summers; drilling 4,236 feet.

LEA — C&K No. 1-6 Greenwood-Federal; drilling 12,390 feet.

American Quasar No. 1 Corbin-State; drilling 7,951 feet in lime.

LOVING — Williams No. 4 Gataga; drilling 18,520 feet in lime, shale.

MARTIN — RK No. 1-B Wolcott; drilling 8,571 feet in lime, shale.

PECOS — Texas Pacific No. 3-A Elsinore; drilling 12,836 feet in lime and chert.

Gulf No. 3-2 Gomez West Unit; td 11,000 feet; still moving out rotary.

Sohio No. 1-63 Canon; drilling 7,490 feet in lime and shale.

Texas O&G No. 2-C Blackstone-Slaughter; td 10,925 feet; pb 10,913 feet; preparing to perforate.

Texas O&G No. 1-G Wilson; td 650 feet; waiting on cement; set 12¾-inch casing at td.

Union Texas No. 1-71 Ligon; drilling 7,430 feet in sand, shale and lime.

C&K No. 1 ARCO-Terrazas; moved in work over unit; pulled tubing and packer; now preparing to run 9⅝-inch bridge plug on 2⅜-inch tubing.

American Quasar Petroleum No. 1 Hudgins; drilling 12,460 feet in shale and sand.

Brock, Highland, Equity No. 2 Wimberly-Bryan; rigging up pulling unit.

Pennzoil No. 1 Petrey; td 4,345 ft; fshg.

REEVES — Gulf No. 2 Randolph; td 13,850 feet; still recovering load, through perforations at 12,908-13,754 feet.

BTA No. 1 Orla; drilling 7,728 feet in sand and shale.

ARCO No. 1-26 Beckham; drilling 205 feet.

Union Texas No. 1 Johnson; td 12,070 feet; has been temporarily abandoned.

Chevron No. 2-17-39 TXL; td 4,147 feet in lime and sand; preparing to take a drillstem test.

John L. Cox & Texas Land & Mortgage No. 1 Crow; drilling 13,872 feet.

Orla Petco No. 1-1 TXL; drilling 2,525 feet in black lime.

SCHLEICHER — Gulf No. 1-T1-18-53 State; td 7,951 feet; on a trip; took a drillstem test from 7,800-7,951 feet; tool was open 1½ hour and recovery was 50 feet of mud, no show oil or gas.

STERLING — Cox No. 1 Foster; drilling 6,125 feet.

TERRY — Gulf No. 6-B First National Bank of Roswell Trustee; td 8,200 feet; still shut in.

Gulf No. 1 Cleveland; td 8,200 feet; still shut in.

Conine No. 1 Herring; drilling 10,160 feet in lime and shale.

UPTON — Cotton No. 1-A Cody Bell; td 12,475 feet; still shut in.

Gulf No. 1 Griffith; td 8,440 feet; still "tight".

Gulf No. 1 Sabo; drilling 6,559 feet in lime.

VAL VERDE — Gulf No. 2 Glasscock; td 11,000 feet; still flowing back load, through perforations at 10,340-10,641 feet.

WARD — Amarillo No. 1 Pioneer-State; td 16,142 feet; still circulating.

ARCO No. 1 Hall; td 20,088 feet; shut in for pressure build up.

Union Texas No. 4 West Caprito Unit; td 6,800 feet; pumped 550 barrels of water in 24 hours, through perforations at 6,001-6,207 feet.

Cities Service No. 1-12-18 University; td 18,832 feet; pb 13,170 feet; fishing.

WINKLER — HNG No. 1-1 Lineberry; drilling 8,556 feet in sand, shale and lime.

Big board continues quiet drop

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted lower today in a continuation of Monday's quiet decline.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 1.47 at 989.36 after Monday's 2.38-point drop. Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the decline in the growth rate of the Gross National Product for the second quarter reported by the government this morning had been pretty well anticipated on Wall Street. But they said it nevertheless served to inhibit a market that was already in a cautious mood over the interest rate outlook.

Colgate-Palmolive was the most active NYSE issue, up ⅛ at 27½. A 108,500-share block traded in the over-the-counter market at 27⅜.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .22 to 55.53. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .42 at 104.78.

Volume on the NYSE remained fairly quiet, totalling 7.88 million shares over the first two hours against 7.10 million in the comparable period on Monday.

Gold stocks extended their recent losses with bullion prices falling steeply in Europe. Homestake dropped 2 to 30⅝ and ASA was off ⅞ at 19.

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 turned lower in midday dealings today.

Profit taking and selling influenced by price chart signals and grain and soybean markets depressed the futures.

The average spot price declined 170 points to 77.82 cents a pound Friday.

Midday prices today were $3.50 to $10 a bale lower: Oct. 80.43, Dec. 77.70, March 77.25.

Coastal area mobile homes due rate hike

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The owner of a $10,000 mobile home in a coastal county would have to pay $500 a year for windstorm insurance if the State Insurance Board approves rates proposed by the Texas hurricane pool.

The pool also wants to require a 10 per cent deductible when a loss occurs.

If an owner also wanted coverage against fires, explosions, vandalism or other hazards, that would take another policy, with an additional premium.

Agents immediately opposed the request of the Texas Catastrophe Property Insurance Association—partly because it also would cut their commissions on all pool business from 20 per cent to 15 per cent of standard (and lower) rates.

THE STATE Insurance Board, which heard the testimony Monday, cannot legally make its decision until August—dangerously near the start of the hurricane season.

Atty. Gen. John Hill held in a recent opinion that the pool must cover mobile homes in coastal counties. The two companies that provided most of their coverage became insolvent and went out of business last year. Since then, windstorm coverage on mobile homes has been virtually unobtainable along the coast.

The $5 per $100 rate proposed by the pool applies on the inland side of the Intracoastal Canal. Mobile home owners living east of the canal would have a $10 rate.

Coverage would be limited to $15,000 on a mobile home and $6,000 on its contents—subject to the 10 per cent deductible.

The pool's written proposal called the proposed rates "eminently fair."

BAXTER JACKSON, representing the Independent Insurance Agents of Corpus Christi, said the pool's proposal compares unfavorably with the $1.60 per $100 rate now prescribed by the board for mobile home policies—if an owner can find one.

"A 10 per cent deductible on a $10,000 home is $1,000, and I don't think people living in a $10,000 home can stand a $1,000 deductible," Jackson told the board.

He also objected because the pool's proposal would not provide money to repaint a home after a hurricane or hailstorm.

"PAINT IS TAKEN off the homes (by a hurricane). That is one reason the homeowner is buying windstorm insurance. It would be most difficult to explain to a customer that the paint on his house is not covered," Jackson said.

Joseph C. Boggins of Austin, executive director of the Independent Insurance Agents of Texas, predicted that the cut in commissions would not be passed on to policyholders but would be "a hidden rate increase."

Hector DeLeon, the board's chief counsel, said the Florida hurricane pool charges only 83.5 cents per $100 of coverage, with no deductible when a loss occurs.

TOM LEE, manager of the pool, said Texas differs from Florida in the number of mobile homes that would be at risk in a hurricane.

"We think Texas is probably the leading state in the selling and use of mobile homes," with more of them located in coastal areas than one would find along the Gulf of Mexico in other states, Lee said.

The legislature created the pool several years ago to provide insurance for homes and other buildings in the hurricane-prone areas of the coast. Risks are distributed among all the companies writing such policies in Texas.

Big Spring fire cause unknown

BIG SPRING, Tex. (AP) — Damage estimates of the explosions and fire that rocked the Cosden Oil Co. refinery here should soon be released, plant officials say.

The cause of the Sunday night fire is not yet known and officials are not even sure where the fire began, company spokesman Ed Dennis said Monday.

Boiler unit usage and processing operations were partially resumed Monday after the fire that raged for two hours had shut down the entire operation the previous night, Dennis said.

Seven firefighters were injured, primarily from smoke inhalation, as men from three Air Force bases and more than six municipal fire stations worked Sunday night to extinguish flames that leaped to 400 feet. All injured persons were treated and released within 24 hours.

Several small processing and asphalt tanks were totally destroyed and some gasoline processing units were damaged in the fire at the southeast corner of the plant, Dennis said.

"There was no major damage to the processing unit with the exception of the alkylization unit which is not essential to the overall operation." Dennis said. "Much electrical power was lost in the process area."

Cosden, owned by American Petrofina in Dallas, employes about 2,000 persons at the refinery and processes 60,000 barrels of crude oil a day.

Dennis said employes reported to their regular shift during the fire and through Monday.

Committee to hear witness via TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — A San Diego cable television executive is going to testify before Congress. His heart's in it, but his body will be absent.

Donald Williams will be 3,000 miles from Capitol Hill when a House communications subcommittee takes his testimony today.

Williams will be sitting in a television studio near Los Angeles and his image will be relayed cross-country via satellite.

His appearance will mark the first use of communications satellites in a congressional hearing. The congressmen will hear Williams and question him by telephone.

An industry group, the National Cable Television Association, is sponsoring the demonstration to show that high quality television pictures can be transmitted via satellite to small antenna receivers.

It is also intended to depict the potential for expanding the public's access to diverse programming through cable television and satellite technology, the association said.

Williams, president of Mission Cable TV of San Diego, will be in the Santa Monica studio of Theta Cable Television. He will testify on the effect of Federal Communications Commission cable regulations in the San Diego market, where cable TV is widely used.

With enough rope, good things happen

When you have length in the enemy's trump suit, don't be in a hurry to take your only trump trick. If you give declarer enough rope he may find a way to hang himself.

When today's hand was played a few weeks ago in the bridge Olympics, Canadian expert Sammy Kehela dutifully led the seven of spades. Eric Murray took the king of spades and returned a trump, on which South played low. (The ten would have been better, but if your opponents always choose the right card you're playing in a tough game.)

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: S2 H95 DAQ108632 CK85. What do you say?

ANSWER: The books tell you to pass, but in the recent bridge Olympics most of the experts opened with one diamond. You pays your money and you takes your choice.

Kehela could have taken the king of hearts, but then declarer would make all the tricks he needed in the red suits. Kehela therefore played a low trump and awaited developments.

MISSES CHANCE

Declarer won in dummy with the nine of hearts and led a club to the queen, losing to the ace. (A finesse with the ten of clubs would have assured the contract, but nobody tells you these things when you're playing a hand.)

Kehela returned a club to dummy's king, and South ruffed a club to lead the jack of diamonds, covered by the king and ace. Declarer then led a trump, hoping for a normal 3-2 trump break.

When the trumps broke badly, South was down two. If you happen to run into South, don't say anything about rope or hanging.

National Air, Space Museum has 'most exciting show in town'

By WOLF VON ECKARDT
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — If you are curious about the conquest of gravity, you will surely find the National Air and Space Museum displays the most exciting show in town. Luckily, the building's exterior does not reflect this excitement.

Which may be a negative way of praising the very praiseworthy fact that architect Gyo Obata has resisted all temptation to give us a space age flight of fancy. He has given us a dignified, handsome work of architecture — an appropriate and harmonious finale to the grand architectural concert on the Mall.

Or, rather, the semi-finale. There is one more big building to come. The final bang will be I. M. Pei's addition to the National Gallery of Art, which now is rising, much too high it seems to me, on the north side of the Mall.

There is an irony here. One would have thought that the art gallery annex, on a triangular sliver of a site, would be delicate elegance in marble. The compelling geometry of Pei's models and drawings reinforced this hope.

One would also have thought that an airplane and rocket hangar on an expansive site along Independence Avenue would, of necessity, yield us a clumsy, alien structure.

As it turnedout, the hangar shows the calm restraint of Classic architecture and will surely rank as an equal to John Russell Pope's Beaux Arts gallery. The new annex, looking bigger than its parent, shows disturbing signs of appearing as a Brabdingnagian from outer space. But let us reserve judgment until it is completed.

The key to the Air and Space Museum's success, at any rate, seems to me the decision by its director, astronaut Michael Collins, that this was to be a museum rather than a hangar or exhibition hall for flying hardware.

It was to be a place where people would look upon machines as a human creation, as their often useful, almost amusing toys.

For Obata, this meant designing a variety of spaces that would provide a natural, or at least plausible setting in which to see, understand and enjoy a variety of objects.

You best see, understand and enjoy airplanes when they are suspended in air, where they belong, with the sky as backdrop. It takes an intimate gallery, on the other hand, to enjoy 18th-century sketchings showing balloons carrying crinolined ladies and champagne popping gentlemen up into the clouds.

And it takes a good architect to unify a variety of settings into a building which, in turn, fits into its setting — in this case the Mall.

Obata's solution is simplicity itself. He organized the enclosed and transparent spaces into alternating cubes, the glazed ones being somewhat recessed to make them less prominent. The bays give the building a nice, simple rhythm.

The proportions and the geometry — the way the third-story office floor aligns with the height of the lower glass cubes, for instance — show the refined disipline of a Mies van der Rohe. But Obata's building is in no way defiantly "modern." It has a modest timelessness about it.

It also seems to belong where it is, in part because the glass is tinted bronze so that it doesn't look glassy, in part because the opaque cubes are enclosed with the same Tennessee marble as used for the National Gallery across the Mall. Obata's marble, however, is rough cut, which gives it a beautiful, natural quality.

What is more, this relationship to the Mall is deeply felt. The glass walls and roof let it all in. The lawn, the trees, the National Gallery, the Archives and Capitol become part of the display, much as all this machinery is part of the nation's accomplishment.

Among the gains of modern architecture is a new "indoor-outdoor" relationship. Modern buildings bring nature into our buildings and extend buildings into nature as was never done before. Obata has taken this concept to the Mall in a most delightful way. His attractively furnished cafeteria on the museum's third floor, for instance, lets us eat in the imposing presence of Capitol Hill. It makes up for some of the sins of the Smithsonian's basement feeding stations and their contempt for humanity. Let's hope the Air-Space food will live up to the setting.

The building's engineering is as simple as the design. Obata constructed a steel cage and used the marble, like the glass, as a mere "curtain" enclosure. The design, engineering and advanced construction management combined, resulted in a miracle just about as rare and impressive as landing a man on the moon: The building was completed on time and within the budget.

Collins expects about 50,000 visitors a day, but don't let that discourage you. Next to bringing his building in harmony with the Mall, Obata's greatest concern was the movement of people inside. As he did with his other problems, he worked it through to the simplest possible solution.

On both the ground floor and the second-level exhibition space, people move parallel to the Mall on a wide walkway past the exhibits. This way they can choose and branch off to what they want to see in more detail.

The amount of things to see is, of course,overwhelming. The designers, however, have done well to combat museum fatigue. An astounding variety of experiences and constant change of pace keep us alert. Galleries alternate from wide open and spacious to low-ceilinged and intimate, from bright and colorful to dark and spotlighted.

The greatest and most pleasant surprise to me, however, is the museum's emphasis on art — the murals, paintings and sculptures that balance all this intimidating technology and keep the place human.

After passing and admiring Richard Lippold's gold and silver space needle on the Mall side of the building, the murals in the entrance hall, to be sure, are somewhat of a letdown.

But the Art Gallery, directed by curator James P. Dean, which displays 200 paintings and other artworks, is architecturally and artistically among the most inspired art galleries in Washington. Although everything here is obviously "modern," the art is not confined to one school or Weltanschauung. From Rauschenberg to Norman Rockwell, the collection shows us the richness of contemporary creativity.

Nor is the art confined to this gallery. Surprisingly, perhaps, the entire museum is a work of art apt to restore one's faith in our time.

10,000 pairs of glasses donated by Lions Clubs

A group of Midland Lions Club members, representing District 2-A1, Lions International, have returned from El Paso and Juarez, Mexico, where they delivered 10,000 pairs of used eye glasses.

Paul Bozeman, immediate past governor of District 2-A1, who headed the delegation, said the glasses were collected by members of clubs throughout this West Texas district during the club year just ended.

He said the glasses were delivered to Dr. George Gonzalez of Juarez, who will sort and grade them for later distribution in the interior of Mexico.

The Midland Lions also attended the annual officer installation banquet of the Juarez Lions Club Saturday night.

Accompanying Gov. Bozeman on the weekend trip were Mrs. Bozeman and their daughter, Vicki; Mr.and Mrs. Leonard Hanson, Mr.and Mrs. C.E. McCain and Leo Scoggins. Hanson is the executive director oF the Lions Eye Bank and McCain is the district's director of the Texas Lions Camp for Crippled Children.

Jack Fiveash of Eola, a Lions zone chairman, also was in the party.

Court upholds sentence

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Court of Criminal Appeals Monday affirmed the conviction and life sentence for sale of heroin assessed Joe Munoz by an Ector County jury.

Munoz was arrested on information from a Department of Public Safety undercover agent working in Odesaa at a cafe which, the court said, was "well-known as a place where addicts and pushers and people like that hang out."

The undercover agent, Hector Sanchez, testified that he had given money to a companion at the cafe to purchase the heroin, and that the drug had been delivered to that man and later to him.

The court dismissed Munoz's petition that a sale to Sanchez had not been shown, saying that the necessary "chain of custody" linking Munoz with the sale had been shown. The court added that Munoz had been "within several feet" of Sanchez when the sale was made, with Sanchez watching from a window or doorway.

The court also rejected Munoz's petition that the charge to the jury regarding the sale was improper.

SPCA fees show rise

Shelterings and fees and the SPCA shelter were up last month from figures for June, 1975, according to the city progress report.

A total of 533 dogs and 251 cats were sheltered last month, compared to 358 dogs and 232 cats during last June. Twenty-three dogs and 13 cats were adopted at the SPCA shelter last month.

Adoptions for 1976 so far stand at 255 for dogs and 104 for cats, while shelterings for the year are 3,731 for dogs and 1,093 for cats.

Fees collected last month totaled $1,062, compared to the $569 collected during June a year ago. Fees for the year so far are $12,928.

PBGC to offer two seminars

The Permian Basin Graduate Center will offer in August short courses designed for women and non-financial managers.

"Starting and Managing Your Own Independent Business" is the title of a one-day seminar Aug. 14 in the Midland Hilton. The program will center around decisions that must be made in starting a new business.

Fee for the seminar is $65, including luncheon and materials.

"Profit and Cash Flow Management for Non-Financial Managers," a two-day seminar Aug. 12 and 13, is designed for non-financia l executives. What cash flow management is, why it is important and how to communicate effectively with financial experts will be the thrust of the program.

Fee for the course is $250, including luncheon and materials.

Further information about these courses may be obtained from the Permian Basin Graduate Center.

Zoners approve altered plan

By DEBBIE PIERCE

A request for an amended planned district to a planned district on 155.32 acres at FM 868 and Midkiff Road will be recommended for approval to the Midland City Council by the city Planning and Zoning Commission.

City planners Monday heard Morris Shaw of Odessa present the request on behalf of Paul Rochester for the additional acreage to construct a regional shopping center.

Shaw said the area originally was platted for 40 acres with a deadline of Sept. 10, 1978, imposed by the city council for completion of the center. He said the center hopefully would be started by next year, "if not by late this year."

City planning director Richard Hennessy expressed concern on the availability of access at the area and suggested that community shopping centers should be constructed in residential areas.

A petition bearing about 50 names against the request was presented by Mrs. Linda Carson of 3208 Rio Drive. She said most of the residents who'd signed the petition were against the zoning of a shopping center at all.

Commission chairman Mrs. Van Howbert said the area has already been zoned for a shopping center — the applicant was simply seeking additional acreage for the proposed facility.

Other residents opposed the request because, they said, it would block further residential development. They contend also the Odessa developers do not care about the quality of shopping in Midland and that the project could cause drainage in the area to get worse.

City planners, however, agreed to recommend the request and its preliminary plat to the council, stating that four blocks of the area could not be sold until substantial construction had begun on another block.

The commission also approved a request by William Hickey for an amended planned district from a planned district at 2300 Wadley Ave.

Hickey said he needed an addition of 12 feet to the west side of his office building and an adjustment from 25 feet to 12 feet in the sideyard setback requirement.

The request was approved with no opposition.

In other action, the planning commission:

— Approved a request by Lee R. Johnson for a specific use permit at the San Souci club, 106 S. A St., for on-premises consumption of alcoholic beverages, but not opening the club to the public;

— Approved a final plat of the Frances Addition in the 3500 block of Shell and Humble streets;

— Approved a corrected plat of Emerson Heights Addition east of Emerson Elementary School and north of Moss Street between Ward and Whitney streets;

— Approved a two-year temporary trailer permit requested by Phillip Sorrell at 3108 Marianna Ave.;

— Tabled consideration of a preliminary plat of .46 acre in the Gamblin Addition Subdivision at 1100 Midland Drive because the applicant was not present; and,

— Tabled consideration of a preliminary plat of 11 acres in the Office Plaza at U.S. 80 west as requested by John Bushman since a revised plat was presented but the group needed additional time to study it.

LEONARD WOODCOCK, left, United Auto Workers president, and Ken Bannon, UAW vice president Ford division, sit down at Ford headquarters in Dearborn, Mich., today to begin talks on a new contract. The meeting follows opening of talks at General Motors Monday. Woodcock will call on Chrysler Wednesday and American Motors Thursday.

President vows he'll rescue swine flu vaccine program

By STUART AUERBACH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Ford pledged Monday to rescue his swine flu program, on the rocks because drug companies have been unable to get the liability insurance they say they need.

Mr. Ford speaking at a news conference, offered no details on how he hopes to get around the impasse between the insurance companies and the four vaccine manufacturers.

But he said, "We're going to find a way, either with or without the support of Congress, to carry out this program, which is essential." Congress has balked at legislation that would provide government insurance for the manufacturers.

"We'll eventually do it," the President continued, "and I expect the full cooperation of industry and all other parties involved."

David Mathews, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, had been scheduled to discuss the problem with Mr. Ford at the White House on Monday. But the session was canceled, and HEW officials said Mathews hopes to meet with the President Tuesday.

Mathews said time is running out on the program to provide protection for 200 million Americans against a possible swine flu epidemic next winter.

Even if the insurance problem is settled this week, the HEW secretary said, the immunization program won't be able to start until mid-September — one month later than originally scheduled.

President Ford announced the swine flu program — the nation's largest mass immunization campaign ever — at a White House press conference in March.

He acted after viruses of this new strain of flu, believed related to viruses that caused the 1918 epidemic that killed 500,000 Americans and 20 million people around the world was found among Army recruits at Ft. Dix, N.J.

In trouble almost from the start, the program met its biggest roadblock when the vaccine makers said they cannot get insurance for the product.

"Without this protection," said Mathews, "they cannot sign contracts to sell vaccine to the Public Health Service for use in the program."

Insurance companies said they fear that, in a program as large as the government's plan to immunize every American, baseless suits alone would bankruptnthe9. Even a baseless suit, the companies say, costs them between $2,000 and $2,500 to defend.

A negotiation session last Tuesday involving Mathews, the insurance companies and the drug makers failed to break the impasse, and Monday the drug companies told Mathews they cannot get insurance coverage.

"They have emphasized to us," Mathews said in a statement, "that the refusal of their insurers to underwrite their participation in the program has nothing to do with the quality of the vaccine, which is among the safest vaccines ever developed."

Sparks said 'best'

Bobby Sparks was voted the best speaker at this morning's meeting of the Pop-Up Toastmasters. Jerry Bodine finished second. Dallas Smith and Clem Ware tied for best evaluator honors.

Building donated to MCAA

The Howell United Methodist Church Monday night donated a building to the Midland Community Action Agency (MCAA).

MCAA Executive Director Carol Burns announced the donation to the board and was directed to prepare a report on the condition of the building by next month's meeting.

After considerable discussion concerning MCAA finances, the board created an audit committee. Named to the group were Mrs. Fran Henderson, Charlie Welch and Geraldyn Sweeny.

Mrs. Burns told the committee the agency's books are currently in the hands on an auditor, Bill Burnham.

In other action, the board:

—After much argument, the board first approved, then invalidated, the minutes from two previous meetings and elected a new slate of officers.

Dewey Williams was elected chairman of the board and Al Hernandez was elected president.

——A budget report showing total spending for June to be $22,986.76 was accepted, despite the assertion by Ricardo Torres, a board member, that the bank's figure was closer to $29,000.

——The community food and nutrition program was okayed over the objection of board member Fran Henderson that the operation is also conducted in Odessa.

——The senior citizens committee report was approved. It was noted all $33,000 per year in this grant is spent in Midland.

——The board agreed to hold some sessions in another location, where meeting facilities are superior.

Area's lawmen back in school

Seventeen area officers from five agencies have attended the police management in-service school at the Permian Basin Law Enforcement Academy, 310 N. Colorado St.

The 40-hour course, taught by special agents Gene Crickenberger and Robert Keadle of the FBI Academy at Quantico, Va., ran July 12 through 16.

Area officers who took the course are: Joe Brownlee, Roger Meurer, Phillip Diltz, Gayle Reeves, Linnon Burney, Elbert Green, David Wilks and Herman Wicker, of the Midland Police Department; Robert Kevil, Terry Ahrendt, George Pina, Quinton Miller and Darrell Gillis of the Odessa police; Mickey Clark and Stephan Chilian of the Midland County Sheriff's Department; Jack Wilder, chief of police at The University of Texas at Permian Basin; and Jack Jones, of the Big Spring Police Department.

Ford claims more Reagan delegates

(Earlier Story, Page 4B)

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's campaign claimed 16 more Republican National Convention delegates today, including two plucked from Ronald Reagan's total in Virginia and seven from Suffolk County, N.Y.

The latest announcement from Ford headquarters came less than 24 hours after the Reagan camp named three new converts from the uncommitted ranks and contended the former California governor would have 1,140 votes on the first ballot.

James Baker, Ford's chief delegate hunter, said the President now has 1,119 of the 1,130 delegates necessary to secure the GOP nomination at Kansas City Aug. 18.

The Associated Press count of legally bound and publicly declared candidates now stands at 1,081 for Ford, 1,023 for Reagan, 154 uncommitted and 1 for Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee.

In addition to the seven New Yorkers, the new Ford claims list five delegates from Virginia and one each from Illinois, Delaware, Louisiana and South Carolina.

Edwin M. Schwenk, Suffolk County GOP chairman, said his group of seven decided to switch to the President last Friday. Earlier, said Schwenk, he had met for about 10 minutes with Ford to discuss the county's need for federal help on a major sewer project.

But Schwenk denied that the sewer project help would be any quid pro quo for the seven votes in Kansas City. "We're just asking fair consideration," he told a news conference at Ford campaign headquarters.
