2 dozen suspects in cyanide case

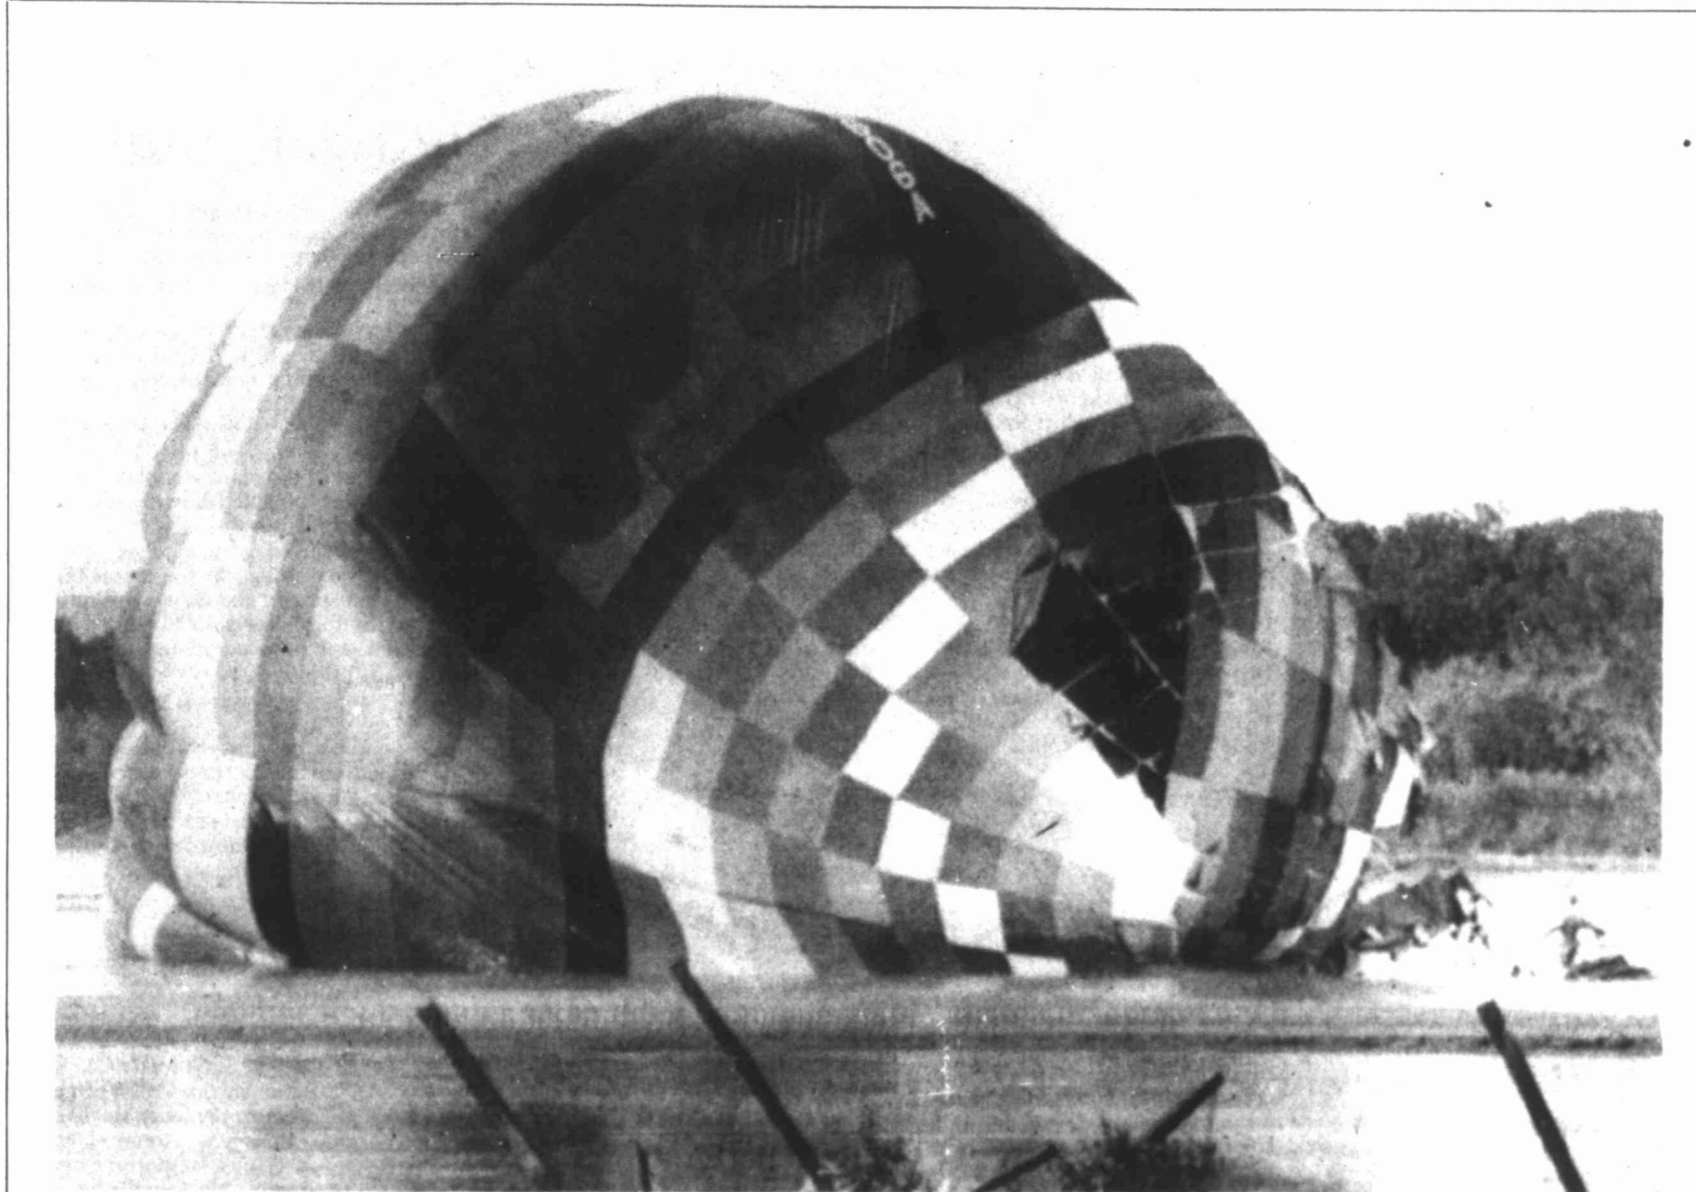

By Associated Press

CHICAGO — A task force has two dozen suspects and several "very substantial" leads in its hunt for a "random murderer" who killed seven people by placing cyanide in Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules, authorities say. The leads include the discovery of Tylenol bottles and capsules in a suburban motel parking lot on Tuesday, one day before the deaths began. The two Kane County sheriff's deputies who found the capsules strewn on the ground got sick the next day with symptoms that one specialist said could have been caused by cyanide. Evidence from the parking lot was being tested. Meanwhile, U.S. Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Arthur Hill Hayes said today that federal and drug-industry experts will look for ways to prevent tampering with over-the-counter drugs in stores. Medicine packages "won't be absolutely foolproof — man is too ingenious when he has evil on his mind — but we think that perhaps there are ways that we could make them more secure ... in a drug or a grocery store," he said on ABC's "Good Morning America." Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner discounted reports that investigators think more than one person is involved in the crimes. "The only thing we have suggesting more than one is involved (is that) some of the tablets were put back together with great care and caution. Others were a messy job." Fahner said at a news conference Sunday night that among the task force's suspects are "malcontents ... and weirdos who don't act right or did something extremely out of the ordinary." "We're trying to understand what kind of person could do these things," said Fahner, the chief of a local, state and federal task force with more than 100 investigators. See Cyanide, page 2-A

DOWN IT GOES — A balloon called the El Globo Grande is seen slowly deflating in the Rio Grande River, where it crashed Sunday. A rescue worker stands in the charred wreckage of the gondola. Four people were killed and five injured after the balloon caught fire above the river and crashed.

4 die after balloon crashes

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Passengers in a hot-air balloon were about to "applaud a good landing" when the craft suddenly exploded in flames and shot skyward, and four people aboard plummeted to their deaths. Five others were injured.

"Jump, it's going to blow!" Thomas Speer, 43, said he shouted to his fellow passengers an instant before the blast Sunday during the 11th annual Albuquerque International Balloon Fiesta.

The five people injured included pilot Joe Gonzales of Albuquerque, who was hurled from the gondola when the fire caused one of the propane tanks aboard to erupt in sizzling flames.

Gonzales was bringing the balloon, called the El Globo Grande, gently to Earth at 9:30 a.m. when leaking propane vapors apparently ignited the wicker gondola.

The balloon, which was carrying nine people, exploded, and four passengers jumped out at or near ground level, witnesses said. The balloon, free of the weight, shot skyward, and four others jumped or fell to their deaths from heights of up to 200 feet.

"I turned around to applaud a good landing," said Speer, 43, of Lakewood, Colo. "When I did, I heard a hissing sound and saw vapors escaping very rapidly. I recognized what was going to happen ..."

Speer and two other survivors leaped from the gondola as it caught fire on the ground and Speer's wife, Ann, jumped into his arms as the suddenly lightened balloon shot into the air.

After Speer saw that his wife was safe, he looked skyward, where the blazing balloon already had climbed to more than 150 feet.

"At that point, a gentleman jumped," Speer said. "He just jumped. He wasn't on fire. He wasn't thrown from the gondola ... When I saw him land, I knew he wasn't alive. I could hear it when he hit. He hit and bounced."

The man was identified as Dick Wirth of London, a balloonist who wrote a book on his craft and was president of Thunder Balloons Ltd. The El Globo Grande was one of 200 balloons launched as part of the nine-day festival that attracted 450 balloonists.

J.W. Nimmo of Albuquerque, part of the balloon's ground crew, said the fire spread too quickly for anyone to escape. "The whole basket around the propane tanks was engulfed in fire," he said.

The others who were killed were identified as Christina Robinson, also of London, and Nick Brainard and his wife, Pamela. Police said the Brainards were believed to have moved to Albuquerque recently. Ages of the dead were not available.

Mrs. Speer was hospitalized with a crushed vertebra and C. Vincent Short, no hometown available, was hospitalized with neck and back injuries. Their conditions were not available.

Speer was treated and released for minor injuries, as was Barbara Marela, 28, of North Canton, Ohio. Gonzales was hospitalized in stable condition with burns.

Intruder wounded during assault

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

A 21-year-old east side woman shot a Big Spring man in the upper left chest Saturday night after the armed man walked into her house while she was bathing, Big Spring police Lt. John Wolf said.

The man, Lee Andrew Cole of 1002 N. Main, was arrested on suspicion of burglary with intent to commit a felony, Lt. Wolf said. Cole remains in stable condition today at Malone-Hogan intensive care unit, according to a hospital spokesman.

Police said the woman was unharmed and that they would not release her name until formal charges have been filed against Cole.

The woman was bathing in her east side home when a man walked through the unlocked front door carrying a pellet gun, police reports said.

"She said 'What do you want?' and he said 'You know what I want.' Then he told her to go to the bedroom and that's where she got the gun," Wolf said.

The woman told police she picked up a pair of jeans and a blouse to cover herself because she had a knife in the jeans pocket. However, she chose not to use the knife, and while the man locked the front door, the woman went to the bedroom and picked up a .22-caliber rifle. Lt. Wolf said she then shot the man one time as he turned from the door.

The man struggled with her, then staggered off to the door, Wolf said. However, the man had bolted the door and couldn't open it at first, Wolf said. The man asked the woman to call an ambulance, but she refused to do so until he left the house, Wolf said.

Apparently, he finally unlocked the door and the woman called a telephone operator, Wolf said. Police officers discovered him lying on his back outside the woman's house with a bullet wound in the upper left chest, Wolf said.

"We're calling it an assault because there was no attempted forced rape. But he had a gun in his hand, that's what constituted the assault ... He had a pellet gun ... that's still a pistol and would kill you," Wolf said.

The woman told police she had seen the man next door, but didn't know if he lived there or not, Wolf said.

"It apparently was an intended rape, but it didn't occur," Wolf said.

Israeli warplanes strike at Syrians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes struck at Syrian positions east of Beirut today and the Voice of Lebanon radio reported that the Israelis also attacked Palestinian forces in the air raid.

The Israeli air strikes were the first in three weeks and followed Sunday's ambush of an Israeli bus in Lebanon in which six Israeli soldiers were killed.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said the warplanes destroyed a SAM-9 anti-aircraft missile battery at Dahr el-Baidar, 20 miles east of Beirut, and returned safely to their bases.

The rightist Voice of Lebanon radio, without elaboration, said Syrian and Palestinian positions in Dahr el-Baidar and two other places, Ein Dara and Dhour Chweir, were hit. All three areas are in the central mountains east of the capital.

The Israeli command said the strikes showed Israel was determined "not to allow the Syrians to bring anti-aircraft batteries into Lebanon."

But the sorties were seen as retaliation for Sunday's ambush of an Israeli troop-carrying bus. Six Israeli soldiers were killed and 22 wounded in a spray of bazooka and automatic weapons fire at Aley, about 10 miles southeast of Beirut. The ambush brought to 357 the total number of Israeli troops reported killed in Lebanon since the Israeli invasion was launched June 6.

The Israeli command in Tel Aviv said it believed Palestinian guerrillas were responsible for the ambush, near the lines separating Israeli forces from Syrian troops and their Palestinian allies in eastern Lebanon. The command did not explain why it believed this.

It was the bloodiest incident reported in this war-torn country since the Sept. 16-18 massacre of Palestinians at the Sabra and Chatilla refugee camps in Beirut by Lebanese Christian militiamen.

Focalpoint

Action/Reaction: Garbage pick-up

Q. Does the Silver Hills addition have any garbage pick-up?
A. No, the addition is located outside of the city limits. Public Works Director Tom Decell said some interest had been expressed in beginning a collection service, but nothing was taking place at the present.

Saudis warn of all-out war on Iran

By Associated Press

Saudi Arabia, conservative guardian of Islam in the Arab world, warned Iran's revolutionary Moslem leaders they face a "no holds barred" war with all Arab states unless they accept mediation to end the war with Iraq.

Arab Moslem Sudan said it was prepared to send troops to aid Iraq in the two-year-old Persian Gulf conflict.

The threats came Sunday as Iran announced its third attack in as many days against Iraqi positions east of Baghdad, the capital, in the central sector of the warfront. Iraq says its forces repulsed all three Iranian assaults.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Saadoun Hammad flew to New York on Saturday to represent his nation at an emergency U.N. Security Council meeting on the war later today, convened at Iraq's request.

Baghdad also called on Arab, Moslem and non-aligned nations and the countries in the Organization of African Unity to sever ties with Iran and provide urgent military and financial support to Iraq.

The Saudi royal palace in Jidda issued a statement Sunday urging the two ancient Persian Gulf foes to end their war through negotiations.

The Saudi peace appeal was followed by a broadcast on Saudi state radio that called for "quick and serious pan-Arab moves" to back Iraq "before it is too late." The broadcast warned Iran it faced foreign intervention that could lead to a "no holds barred" war.

Saudi Arabia and other oil-rich Arab nations already have provided massive amounts of aid to Iraq, fearing an Iranian victory would spread Iran's fundamentalist Islamic revolution to their conservative Moslem governments.

Iran claims Arab aid to Iraq has exceeded $30 billion, and has repeatedly threatened revenge against Iraqi allies.

The Sudanese government announced in Khartoum Sunday that it was prepared to send troops to Iraq.

Pac-Man won't get zapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today shielded the highly successful "Pac-Man" video game from being zapped by similar-looking competitors.

The court let stand a decision barring further sales of a home video game known as a "K.C. Munchkin" that closely resembles Pac-Man.

The lower court ruling was based on federal copyright law.

Both Pac-Man and K.C. Munchkin are maze-chase games employing a player-controlled central character, pursuit characters, dots and power capsules.

Pac-Man features a yellow dot with a V-shaped opening on one side. The "mouth" is visible only when it is open and is otherwise indistinguishable from the rest of the circular character.

K.C. Munchkin features a blue figure with horns and a smile, and its creators claim it has more of a complete character. Its marketing efforts got underway in late 1981.

The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last March barred any further sales of K.C. Munchkin until all the legal issues could be settled in further proceedings. It was the first federal appeals court test of the reach of video game copyrights.

Stalled car kills boy

LAMESA (SC) — A one-year old boy died yesterday after an inoperable car rolled over him in the driveway of his Lamesa home.

According to local police, the youngster's father and another man were pushing the vehicle out of the driveway and apparently did not see the child lying in the driveway.

According to sources, the car would not start and the boy's father wanted to push it into the street to get it started.

Toby Medina III, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Toby Medina, Jr., was pronounced dead at Medical Arts hospital at 11:45 a.m.

Services will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday at St. Margaret Mary's Catholic Church in Lamesa with Rev. Larry Hemp officiating. Burial will be in the Lamesa Cemetery under the direction of Branon Funeral Home.

Survivors include two sisters, Melissa and Angelita, both of Lamesa; a brother, Rafael of Lamesa; and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Flavio Coronado and Mr. and Mrs. Toby Medina, of Lamesa.

Spirit celebration slated by county

This week has been proclaimed "County Spirit Week" by Howard County Commissioners at their last meeting, according to County Judge Bill Tune.

"This week has been set aside so that all county residents will have a chance to get out and show their support for their favorite athletic team," Tune said.

On Tuesday evening, Howard College will host a hamburger supper, bonfire, pep rally and street dance to help citizens get in the spirit.

The hamburger supper will be at 6 p.m. in the Dora Roberts Student Union Building. Tickets for the supper can be purchased from area cheerleaders for $3, or call Howard College for reservations.

Following at 7:30 p.m. cheerleaders, bands, coaches, athletes and fans from Big Spring, Coahoma, Forsan, Sands and the Howard County Junior College District will gather just south of the tennis courts on 11th Place for the pep rally and bonfire.

After the bonfire, a street dance featuring "Sessions" from Odessa will be held on the street adjacent to the tennis courts.

Farm management workshop scheduled

A farm management workshop will be held in Big Spring Wednesday through Friday. The workshop, "Planning for Profit, the Key to Survival in the 80's," is to aid in developing the decision-making skills which are going to be required to survive in the economic climate of the 1980's.

The co-ordinators for the event include Dr. Gary Condra, Texas Agricultural Extension Service Economist from Lubbock and Jim Libben of New Mexico State University from Las Cruces, New Mexico.

The agenda includes "The Role and Functions of Management," "Marginal Analysis and Economic Principles," "Cost Concepts in Economics," "Enterprise and Partial Budgeting," "Whole Farm Planning and Budgeting" and "Cash Flow Budgeting."

The workshop begins noon Oct. 6 and concludes noon Oct. 8. An $85 enrollment will be charged to cover costs of meeting rooms, reference materials, textbooks and other expenses.

Pre-registration begins today in the Howard County extension office in the county courthouse through Tuesday. Registration begins at noon Oct. 6 in Room 202 of the Horace Garrett Building on the Howard College campus.

More information can be had by contacting Don Richardson, county extension agent-agriculture at 267-6671.

National 4-H week honored with Reagan's blessing

The week of Oct. 3rd through Oct. 9th is National 4-H Week 1982 which will be culminated locally by the 4-H Banquet.

President Ronald Reagan has joined Secretary of Agriculture John Block in congratulating the participants of the national 4-H week. Reagan said the week brings recognition to the more than 70 years of 4-H activities encouraging leadership, good citizenship and excellence by young people involved in agriculture.

Reagan credits the theme for 1982 "4-H - Pathways to the Future" as being timely and appropriate in an era when the world has great concern about future food production.

Block noted the contribution of 4-H to the goals of the U.S. Department of Agriculture in areas of food production, marketing, conservation and improved nutrition.

Police Beat

Police release four on bond

Police said they arrested four men this weekend on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. The four were transferred to Howard County jail and released on $1,000 bond set by Peace Justices Bobby West and Lewis Heflin, police said.

Arrested were Johnnie Puga, 42, of 911 W. Fifth; Richard Waters, 19, of 904 Ohio; Timothy Taylor, 23, of 2908 Cactus; and Michael Shaffer, 18, of 708 Johnson.

Police reports also showed the following:

- An undetermined amount of liquor was stolen from Vernon's Liquor Store, 602 S. Gregg. The burglary was discovered yesterday when a patrol officer noticed the store's front door and a large window had been broken.
- Andrea Thomas of 203-B Benton said someone stole a vacuum cleaner, carpet shampooer, spaghetti pot, a pound of sausage, and other items from her residence between Friday and yesterday.

Other reports on the sheriff's log are:

- Sheriff's deputies transferred three prisoners from county jail to the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville today. The following will begin prison sentences: Daniel Marquez Martinez, 25, 610 N.W. 8th, aggravated assault, two years; Juan Marquez, 19, 610 N.W. 8th, two years, revocation of probation on a burglary conviction and Michael Bunn McHugh, 32, Concord, N.C., theft, three years.
- Vincente Casias Casmona, 32, 1405 Bluebird, posted a $1,000 bond after being arrested for suspicion of driving while intoxicated. Bond was set by Justice of the Peace Bobby West.
- Frank Sosa Bustamante, 22, of 1211 S. Main, posted a $1,000 bond to be released after being arraigned before West for suspicion of driving while license suspended.
- Olivia A. Villanueva, 55, of 551 Parkdale, was arraigned before Peace Justice Lewis Heflin for suspicion of DWI. She was released after posting a $1,000 bond.

Sheriff's Log

Two rape complaints investigated

Howard County sheriff's deputies were busy investigating two reports of rape in the county this weekend, according to Sheriff A.N. Standard. Standard said formal complaints were expected to be filed today in both cases.

According to the sheriff, a young woman walking home from work off North Birdwell Lane Saturday at 4 a.m. was accosted by a male subject who attempted to criminally assault her. A party living in the area came to her rescue, the sheriff said. An arrest has been made in connection with the case, but no formal charges have been filed concerning the rape, Standard said.

The second reported rape occurred at 4:45 a.m. Sunday, Standard said. A 17-year-old female told sheriff's deputies she was "riding around" with a male she knows when he attempted to criminally assault her. The assault took place on a dirt road west of the old Howard County airport, Standard said the victim told deputies.

Sheriff's deputies are awaiting a final complaint to be filed by the victim in this case before making an arrest, Standard said.

Other reports on the sheriff's log are:

- Sheriff's deputies transferred three prisoners from county jail to the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville today. The following will begin prison sentences: Daniel Marquez Martinez, 25, 610 N.W. 8th, aggravated assault, two years; Juan Marquez, 19, 610 N.W. 8th, two years, revocation of probation on a burglary conviction and Michael Bunn McHugh, 32, Concord, N.C., theft, three years.
- Vincente Casias Casmona, 32, 1405 Bluebird, posted a $1,000 bond after being arrested for suspicion of driving while intoxicated. Bond was set by Justice of the Peace Bobby West.
- Frank Sosa Bustamante, 22, of 1211 S. Main, posted a $1,000 bond to be released after being arraigned before West for suspicion of driving while license suspended.
- Olivia A. Villanueva, 55, of 551 Parkdale, was arraigned before Peace Justice Lewis Heflin for suspicion of DWI. She was released after posting a $1,000 bond.

Wood trial motions rejected

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions today rejected defense motions and continued trying to select a jury to try three people in connection with the 1979 murder of federal Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Sessions denied a motion from defense attorney Warren Burnett of Galveston to dismiss the jury panel on grounds improper procedure was used to select it, and one from defense attorney Tom Sharpe Jr. of Brownsville renewing his request for a change of venue.

"The court will continue to try to select a jury, if we can," Sessions said in response to Sharpe's motion.

The judge said he would decide later today whether another group of about 50 prospective jurors should be summoned to the federal courthouse on Tuesday. He already had lined up 72 for today's session - 22 left over from last week and a new group of 50 that arrived today.

Sessions indicated he may build a pool of as many as 100 qualified prospective jurors before the random selection of the 12 who will serve, plus three alternates, will begin.

The complicated jury selection process is one of the longest and most elaborate conducted in federal court here.

Charles V. Harrelson, 44, charged with shooting the U.S. district judge in the back for a $250,000 fee; his wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 41, who allegedly purchased the murder weapon; and Elizabeth Chagra, 28, wife of the man who allegedly arranged the "hit," are on trial.

'Dillos on rise through Southeast

AUSTIN (AP) - Texans have been exploiting the armadillo for more than a century for its hide, its meat and its research value, and yet the dull-witted mammal is expanding its population throughout the Southeast, a researcher reports.

"Armadillos have colonized new territory in Oklahoma, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia, and there are no apparent barriers to further range extension in Tennessee and South Carolina," wrote graduate student Larry L. Smith of Weslaco, Texas.

The nine-banded armadillo, a burrowing, raccoon-sized animal which gets its name from the leathery, scale-like coat of "armor" that protects it from the wild, was the subject of Smith's master's thesis at the University of Texas.

He questioned 144 agriculture agents in southeastern states as part of his research to find out how far armadillos have ranged since they first migrated to Texas through the Lower Rio Grande Valley in the 19th century from South and Central America.

Their wanderings have been helped by man. In Florida, a wild breeding colony was established after four armadillos escaped from a zoo near Cocoa in 1925. Today armadillos are found throughout most of that state, Smith said.

The advance of the armadillo, which has a long snout and looks more like a reptile than a mammal, is stopped only by deserts or cold climates, because it neither stores body fat nor hibernates, Smith wrote in his 115-page thesis.

The unusual beast, which insists on eating dirt with its food, refuses to eat out of a dish and does not mind sharing his burrow with other wild animals such as skunks, came to be regarded as a "folk critter" in Texas about 17 years ago.

Cyanide

looking into the string of deaths. "It is an act of a random murderer who filled the capsules with cyanide and then placed them in the stores," he said.

The attorney general declined to reveal any other leads.

All of the deaths occurred between Wednesday and Friday in Chicago or its suburbs among people who had taken Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules, the nation's best-selling pain reliever. Autopsies revealed the deaths were caused by cyanide poisoning.

The cyanide-spiked capsules probably were placed in the stores Tuesday, Fahner said, apparently on the front of the shelves to ensure they would sell quickly, he said.

Investigators already have interviewed and cleared many suspects and now believe someone acting alone obtained bottles of Extra-Strength Tylenol, filled the capsules with cyanide at home and then "salted" store shelves with the deadly poison, Fahner said.

The task force is receiving a steady flow of tips, he said, but, "there's no way of knowing if any of these tips or these leads could break the case."

Investigators were beginning to comb personnel files today of people who might have had access to the capsules, Fahner said. He did not elaborate.

It was disclosed Sunday that Kane County sheriff's deputies found 24 bottles of Tylenol in a motel parking lot about 15 miles north of Winfield, where Mary Reiner, one of the victims, purchased her cyanide-laced medication.

Extra-Strength Tylenol was not linked to the cyanide deaths until Thursday, two days after the find, so the deputies had no reason to keep the capsules. But "one or two" capsules and some powder were recovered and are being tested, Fahner said.

"It was evident they were tampered with," said Deputy Sheriff Martin Cole. "Some of the capsules were empty. They had no powder in them. They (the officers who found the Tylenol) assumed from that there evidently was something going on with drugs."

Iranian hijackers free 79 hostages

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (AP) - Two Iranian hijackers seeking asylum in the United States headed for an unspecified destination today aboard an Iranian military transport after freeing 79 hostages, mostly women and children, during a stop at this Persian Gulf port.

Police here said the two Iranians hijacked the Hercules C-130 over the Persian Gulf Sunday night. The plane landed here after its pilot reported he was low on fuel.

Police said they then learned the plane was in the hands of two hijackers, who were identified as Iranian nationals seeking asylum in the United States. They were not further described.

It was not known where the plane came from in Iran, or why women and children were aboard the military aircraft.

The government refused to act as an intermediary between the hijackers and the U.S. government, and the hijackers "threatened violence against the plane's 79 passengers," the United Arab Emirates news agency said.

"Authorities managed to talk the hijackers into releasing all passengers at 0300 hours Monday (6 p.m. Sunday CDT)," the agency said.

It said "the plane refueled and took off to an unknown destination."

The released passengers were to be flown back to Iran, the report added.

4 charged in Gulf refinery bomb plot

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) - Four people are charged in a $15 million extortion plot against a Gulf Oil Chemicals Co. refinery and a reported deadline for payment expired without the threatened explosion, but the plant remains shut down.

"We wouldn't even consider that (resuming normal operations) until we feel it is safe to," Gulf spokesman Barry Smyth said Sunday, adding that the company was waiting for a go-ahead from the FBI.

The slow process of shutting down the Cedar Bayou plant 30 miles east of Houston was completed Thursday morning. Five bombs found at the plant were neutralized that day, including one that exploded harmlessly while being deactivated, officials said.

Authorities continued searching for more bombs Sunday, five days after receiving an extortion letter threatening to blow up the plant. The Baytown Sun has quoted a source as saying the letter said 10 bombs were hidden in the plant and would be detonated unless the money was turned over by midday Sunday.

All four people charged in the extortion plot are from Durango, Colo.

Bond for John Marvin McBride, 46, and Jill Renee Bird, 36, was set at $1 million each. The pair was arrested Sunday in Durango on warrants charging them with violating the federal extortion statute, the FBI said.

U.S. Magistrate David West scheduled a preliminary hearing for the two at 3 p.m. Friday in Durango.

Deaths

Kelly

Mize Jr.

Kelly (Junior) Mize, 53, of Hamilton and formerly of Big Spring, died 7:45 p.m. Sunday at M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston following a long illness.

Services are pending with Riley Funeral Home in Hamilton.

He was born Feb. 7, 1929 in Big Spring. He grew up here and had attended Big Spring schools. He joined the Navy, serving during World War II and retired after 20 years of service.

He was preceded in death by one brother, Robert Lee Mize, who died in 1947, and one sister, Mrs. Gene (Zenuia) Haston, who died Feb. 2, 1982.

He is survived by his wife Jerry; two sons, Mike Mize and Carl Mize; one daughter, Sharon Benton; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Mize Sr. of Big Spring; three brothers, A.C. (Cotton) Mize and Herman Mize, both of Big Spring and Joe H. Mize of Stillwater, Okla.; two sisters, Mrs. B.A. (Jane) Patton of Mount Pleasant and Mrs. Jim (Shirley) Holland of Brownwood; five grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Lujan, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Santos Lujan Jr. of Raymondville, died Saturday in Valley Baptist Medical Center in Harlingen.

Rosary was today at 8 p.m. at Trinity Memorial Funeral Home. Mass will be said Tuesday at 11 a.m. by Father Demelo at Immaculate Heart of Mary Church. Burial will follow in Trinity Memorial Park under the direction of Trinity Memorial Funeral Home.

Survivors include the parents Mary Lou Billalba Lujan and Santos Lopez Lujan Jr. of Raymondville; paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Santos Lujan Sr. of Big Spring; and maternal grandmother, Mrs. Rosalia Billalba of Big Spring.

Family requests memorials be made to Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church building fund in Raymondville or Pediatrics Intensive Care Unit of Valley Baptist Medical Center in Harlingen.

Supreme Court to tackle sensitive issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is tackling some of the most sensitive issues it has faced in years as it opens its 1982-1983 term.

In the next nine months, the court has agreed to study cases involving abortion regulation, tax breaks for racially discriminatory private schools, and the balance of power between the executive branch and Congress.

The nine justices were to open the session today, immediately acting on nearly 1,000 cases. Of the 5,000 disputes they are expected to consider by July, 150 will be examined in detail.

About two-thirds of those special cases have already been selected; the remaining 50 or 60 cases to receive full review will be chosen after the term begins.

Most of the 5,000 cases will be denied review, leaving intact lower court rulings.

Although the Supreme Court legalized abortion in 1973, several lingering questions remain. Three of those questions before the court are:

- Can states or communities require that all abortions on women more than three months pregnant be performed in a hospital, not a less expensive abortion clinic?
- Can any unmarried girl under 15 be required to have the consent of a parent or a judge before obtaining an abortion?
- Must doctors inform patients seeking abortions about the risks and the condition of the fetus?

When the Reagan administration announced its intention to lift an 11-year ban on tax exemptions for discriminatory private schools earlier this year, it sparked an angry outcry from civil rights groups and created a new legal battle.

The two Christian schools involved in the case base their racial discrimination on religious beliefs.

Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C., bars interracial dating and interracial marriage. Goldsboro Christian Schools refuse to enroll black students.

The high court must also consider the constitutionality of the one-house veto, a method used by Congress to kill bills it doesn't like without having to go through the usual legislative process.

Essentially, the one-house veto works like this: Congress passes a law allowing the president or an executive-branch agency to issue regulations having the effect of law.

Those regulations are sent to Congress for approval. They become law unless vetoed within 30 days by a majority vote of either the House or Senate. If a proposed regulation is vetoed, the president or agency has no recourse.

Under conventional procedure, proposed laws have to pass through both houses of Congress and be signed by the president. If the president vetoes the legislation, a two-thirds vote in each house is needed to override the veto.

Amerasians settle in their new homes

With nametags, weary smiles but little English for introductions, 11 Vietnamese children of mixed heritage were scattered across the United States today to begin new lives with their American families.

"I'm not going to do much talking for the next few days. My Vietnamese is not very good," said Luis Carlos Villegas of San Diego, who greeted his Vietnamese wife and their three children with a limousine. "But I'm going to do a lot of hugging."

The youngsters — born of Vietnamese mothers and American fathers during the Vietnam War — savored orange juice, grapes and coloring books while flying to Los Angeles on Sunday. Some were accompanied by Vietnamese relatives.

The seven boys and four girls, aged 7 to 15, are the largest group of children allowed to leave Vietnam to join their American fathers under a program established in 1979 by eight U.S. volunteer organizations.

From Los Angeles they join separate families in Washington, D.C.; Seattle; Atlanta; Portland, Ore.; San Diego; Sacramento, Calif.; Tucson, Ariz., and Dallas. Twenty-six more children and 21 Vietnamese relatives are to leave Vietnam for the United States on Oct. 7.

One of the first reunions came Sunday at San Diego's Lindbergh Field, where Villegas, 62, greeted his 47-year-old Vietnamese wife with an exuberant "Mama Mia!" as she and their children stepped off a flight from Los Angeles.

"I'm a family man again," beamed Villegas, a civilian construction worker

Shultz, Gromyko meet to ease tension

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Armed with a new NATO agreement to study East-west economic relations, Secretary of State George P. Shultz today prepared to meet Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko to seek ways of easing tensions.

It was their second scheduled meeting in a week and like the first, U.S. officials warned against expecting any major breakthroughs in the troubled relations between the two superpowers.

One official said several subjects not discussed in the first Shultz-Gromyko meeting were likely to be raised, including Soviet interest in a meeting between President Reagan and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, and recent events in the Middle East.

Gromyko's harsh denunciation of the United States in speech to the General Assembly on Friday created a cool atmosphere for today's meeting, scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. CDT at the Soviet U.N. Mission here.

The second meeting comes one day after Shultz concluded a weekend conference with his counterparts in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Canada. They decided to undertake a comprehensive study to ensure that the alliance's defenses are not weakened by economic relations with Soviet-bloc countries.

Shultz and Gromyko met for three hours last Tuesday at the U.S. mission in a session that a senior U.S. official called "serious" and "non-polemical."

While no agreements were reached, he said Shultz and Gromyko conducted themselves as "two serious people talking about serious subjects. There was no yelling."

However on Friday, Gromyko used the podium of the General Assembly to accuse the Reagan administration of approaching the possibility of nuclear war with the "cold-blooded composure of gravediggers."

The 73-year-old foreign minister also charged the Reagan administration was whipping up an "atmosphere of lies, hysteria and chauvinistic intoxication" to get its military budgets approved.

Shultz, who was not in the assembly hall when Gromyko spoke, has decided against commenting on Gromyko's speech, and has instructed other officials not to characterize it either.

But sources close to Shultz said it would be surprising if he were pleased at the Soviet leader's remarks, especially since Shultz only mildly criticized the Soviet Union in his speech to the General Assembly on Thursday.

He even complimented the Soviets by saying they appeared to be making a serious effort in the U.S.-Soviet arms control talks underway in Geneva. He repeated that assessment at the meeting of NATO foreign ministers in Val David, Quebec.

Spanish officers arrested for planning coup

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Three army officers arrested over the weekend were planning a rightist coup on the eve of the Oct. 28 national election expected to give Spain a Socialist government, the newspaper El Pais reported.

The Defense Ministry said the three officers — Col. Luis Munoz Gutierrez, Col. Jesus Crespo Cuspineda and his brother, Lt. Col. Jose Crespo Cuspineda — were arrested Saturday for "activities against the security of the state."

The ministry gave no other details, but El Pais, quoting Interior Ministry sources, said Sunday that the three were planning the election eve coup.

Another newspaper, Diario 16, said the planned coup was code-named "Operation Cervantes" and was backed by other right-wing military officers involved in a failed coup attempt on Feb. 23, 1981.

Defense Ministry sources said some of the officers sentenced to long prison terms for their roles in last year's coup attempt were being held incommunicado following Saturday's arrests.

King Juan Carlos cut short a visit to the northern city of Oviedo and returned to Madrid a day ahead of schedule Saturday after the announcement of the arrests, officials said. The king was credited with thwarting the 1981 coup attempt by refusing to back it.

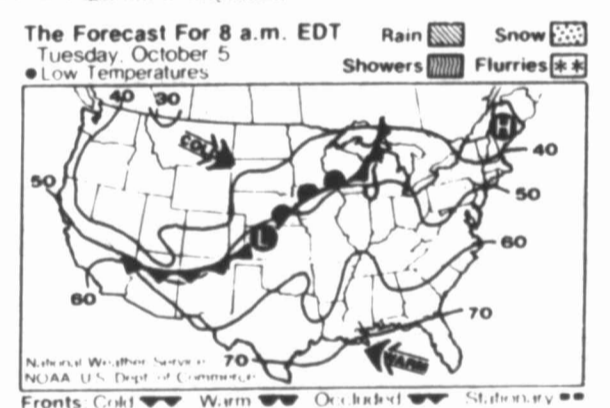

Asked about the arrests, Socialist Party leader Felipe Gonzalez said, "There cannot be a single military man who has the right to speak for the will of our people."

Opinion polls indicate Gonzalez will win the election, the third to be held since Spain became a democracy after the death in 1975 of rightist dictator Gen. Francisco Franco.

Spain's two previous elections in 1977 and 1979 were won by the ruling Democratic Center Union, led by former Premier Adolfo Suarez.

Suarez is to take part in the upcoming elections leading the newly formed Democratic and Social Center Party. But the Popular Alliance, a conservative party, is considered the Socialists' main rival at the polls.

West Texas weak front

By Associated Press

A weak front stretched early this morning across West Texas from near Wichita Falls, southeast to Lubbock and into the Marfa area of the Big Bend while skies across most of Texas were fair.

The weak cold front that pushed into the central part of Texas Sunday retreated back to the northwest as a warm front.

A few isolated showers were charted off the coast south of Brownsville. In the Houston area, patchy fog reduced morning visibility.

Winds were light and variable over much of Texas. In the Panhandle and South Plains, south winds of 5 to 15 mph were recorded.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in 60s and 70s, dropping to a chilly 57 in the Panhandle city of Amarillo and reaching a pleasant high of 77 at Brownsville.

Justices feel overworked

The U.S. Supreme Court is often criticized for its decisions, and often its defense is that its caseload is too great — justices say they cannot do the job properly.

The court's case has been stated often. The appeals docket of the last term, which ended in July, contained more than 5,000 cases. Compare that to 2,000 cases filed in 1961.

Five justices are comparing. Justices John Paul Stevens, Byron White, Lewis Powell, William Brennan and Thurgood Marshall have agreed they are overworked, but they disagree as to what should be done about it.

THE PROCESS OF screening requests for review is the main issue. Justice Stevens says that because of the load, he delegates many of the selection chores to his law staff.

He admits he should be involved in all the selections. As an answer, he suggests the creation of a new court that would determine which cases merit review.

Justice Brennan argued that wouldn't solve anything, it would take even more power away from the court. Justice White called it "plastic surgery."

THERE IS ROOM for change in the court's system. The society is growing more complex, and so are challenges to the society's laws. Those challenges are of greater number and scope than those received by the court when the current system was devised. The number of justices has not changed.

One idea would make the court more specialized — enlarge it and divide it into sections. That would require a lot of work and revision, and it no doubt would meet with disapproval from the justices. Of course, none of the justices have suggested they would get more done if they gave up part of their three-month vacation.

Any change will take a long time to implement. Meanwhile, the justices could help themselves by not assigning so many cases. The schedule for the term just beginning is almost full. That means it will be almost a year before any appeal filed in the coming months can be heard.

It is easy to understand the court's problem, however. With so many vital questions needing to be heard, who can make the choice of which goes first and when?

Those vital questions cannot be answered by a court that is — or thinks it is — overworked.

Around the Rim

Time to dodge

Caution: Watch out for flying mud. I cannot remember an election in Texas when name-calling and mudslinging were more prevalent than this year.

Maybe it's because Texas is more a two-party state these days and Republicans now are serious candidates. Before, the GOP candidate on the ballot was merely academic, but now he has a chance in every race in Texas. So more conventional politics have entered the arena. And it's natural for politicians of both parties to attack one another.

However, this year it seems personal attacks are the norm. Call someone a name or bring up some meaningless personal flaw and exploit it, causing your opponent to scramble for a rebuttal. Attempt to establish a negative image in the voter's mind until people get suspicious enough not to vote your opponent — that's the way to win an election, not by a firm, honest stand on contemporary issues.

THE GUBERNATORIAL race is as good an example as any, although the elements of this battle seem to carry down through the ranks of all the races. Gov. Clements and hopeful Mark White have spent most of their campaigns personally attacking one another, while the issues have sat quietly in the corner gathering dust.

While both these men would tell you they are good businessmen and would run Texas efficiently, I think it's hilarious they would waste megabucks of their supporters' money on useless campaigns talking about personalities. White talks about Clements' stubbornness, while Clements dredges up White's past driving record. Voters shouldn't have to choose a candidate on personality, but all too often, it's all they have.

It's really no surprise no one votes. People are tired of rhetoric, hollow promises and flag waving. When their quality of life is unraveling people want answers, not pomp. But they aren't getting anything but two grown men arguing over something that really doesn't matter — their egos.

PERSONALLY, I haven't heard candidates discussing too many of the issues which are looming in the future.

Mailbag

Fair official says thanks

Dear Editor,
The 1982 Howard County Fair was the biggest and best in its history. It was a success because of the involvement of many people. On half of the Board of Directors, I would like to thank the citizens of Big Spring and Howard County for their participation in this year's fair.

The spirit of cooperation was in evidence at this year's fair. It is my hope that this spirit of community involvement will continue throughout of Texas. Oh, they may say whether they're for or against something, but they never get into the meat of the subject.

What are the candidates going to do to improve the quality of education in Texas schools? Most of them are in favor of giving teachers a raise, which is fine, but after that they don't have much to say.

I know teachers who tell me the students we're turning out today are lacking something. The old assembly line of education is getting tired and we need new ideas on how to instill basic skills in kids so they'll want to keep learning which, in turn, will make them healthy contributors to society.

The voters aren't hearing much on that subject from the candidates.

The state's water problem is getting the silent treatment also, although to Gov. Clements' credit, he does have a task force studying the problem. However, one does get the feeling that the issue of an adequate water supply for agriculture, industry and the people is getting glossed over. There seems to be no firm leadership or any abundance of ideas toward a solution.

Prison overcrowding is another problem which has been hidden beneath all the personality conflicts. Texas prisons have one of the more severe overcrowding problems in the U.S. — a situation which will continue to get worse as the crime rate rises.

In a special session recently the Legislature did appropriate some badly needed funds for the prison system, but the problem of too many prisoners and not enough prisons is apparent still.

THERE ARE other issues — such as crime, highway funding, penalties for driving while intoxicated, alternate ideas for industry when the oil runs out — which should be addressed. And they need more attention than just a paragraph on a campaign pamphlet.

Maybe one day the issues will become severe enough to debate and work on, but for the time being it appears the candidates are going to plod on through the muck. Much luck to those voters who try to dodge the mud long enough to try and separate image from reality.

Joseph Kraft

An unrepentant liberal

WASHINGTON — "If I go again I won't make the mistake I made last time. I won't announce and then try to organize. I'll organize and then announce."

That was Ted Kennedy talking at lunch the other day about his presidential intentions for 1984. His convictions that his mistake last time was organizational makes it plain that whatever happens he is not changing his political stance. He remains an unrepentant liberal.

The lunch was a shirt-sleeves affair in Kennedy's Senate office. He looked extremely well — easy smile, good color, girly and jowls under control. "Whatever my fighting weight is," he joked, "I'm always a little over it."

The 1984 presidential race was front and center, and Kennedy was not coy. He said he would take his time about making up his mind, and I suppose there is a possibility he will decide not to run. But several considerations suggest he is keenly interested, and very apt to go.

One is the Kennedy travel schedule. Though he is up for re-election in Massachusetts this year, the Senator has recently been campaigning for other Democrats in California, New Mexico, Texas, Delaware, New Hampshire, Kentucky and New Jersey. His future plans include visits to Florida, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa and New York.

In New York, he will be touting Mario Cuomo, the candidate for governor who recently upset Mayor Edward Koch in the Democratic primary. Cuomo has close ties to an active Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1984 — former Vice President Walter Mondale. But at lunch Kennedy staked a claim, "A lot of people close to me," he said, "helped Cuomo in the primary."

AN ARRESTING feature of Kennedy's campaign in Massachusetts is a set of television spots which feature him as a good, solid family man. Kennedy said they were being aired to counteract the negative personal campaign being waged against him in his home state. But he did not dispute the widespread impression that they were also a kind of test run for un-saying Chappaquiddick in a national campaign.

In blocking out his policies, Kennedy hewed closely to the positions he had taken in 1960. He said the country needs government programs to revitalize industry and save a very weak financial structure from collapse. He spoke of loans to firms and localities, and emphasized the need to rebuild roads, streets, bridges and other infrastructure.

Lower interest rates were also a part of his prescription. He said that in keeping rates high, Chairman Paul Volcker of the Federal Reserve Board was doing "exactly what Reagan wants." He said that as president he would force a lowering of rates by bringing political pressures to bear on the Fed.

Big cuts in social spending were not on his agenda. He said there was very little available for trimming except Social Security. He intimated that Social Security could be saved, at least in the short run, by a number of small accounting changes.

NEW TAXES ON energy were something he was disposed to consider as a means to cut budget deficits, and increase this country's independence. But he wanted to be sure there was some mechanism for aiding individuals and institutions — notably schools and hospitals in New England — that would be hit by any rise in energy costs.

Immigration policy was a subject he raised himself. He said that he was one of 19 senators who had recently voted against a bill that would restrict flows by requiring identity cards and imposing fines on employers who hired illegals. Kennedy indicated a main reason for his opposition was that the bill opened the way to discrimination against Asians and Hispanics. He said: "The record shows that whenever immigration laws give officials an opportunity to discriminate, then they discriminate."

I asked him whether he believed a majority of the country supported such a liberal program. He said: "The recession and unemployment have brought the country back to the point where it doesn't believe tax cuts will solve everything."

I asked him whether even so it would be politic for him to reach out for a broader coalition. He said: "I believe in coalition politics." I asked for some examples. He mentioned cooperation with various Republican senators on a job-training bill, and a freeze on nuclear weapons.

Later, I remarked to a Kennedy aide that at least the Senator wasn't changing his position all the time. "He won't do a Koch, and suddenly come out for the death penalty," I said. "Maybe," the aide said, "Koch is sorry he did a Koch."

Billy Graham

Can abortion be forgiven?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I recently had an abortion, and now I know it was the wrong thing to do. I feel so guilty I can't even sleep at night sometimes. How can I know God's forgiveness? — C.W.G.

DEAR C.W.G.: I believe God is at work in your life right now, convicting you of your sins and showing you that you need God's grace and forgiveness in your life. I pray that you will not turn your back on him, but that you will discover and accept his love and forgiveness.

I know that you want God's forgiveness very much. But there is something I want to stress: God wants to forgive you even more than you want to be forgiven! The reason for this is that he wants you to be his child, having a close and everlasting personal relationship with him as your heavenly Father. But sin separates you from God, and before you can be a child of God that sin has to be taken away. How can it be taken away? You can't cleanse yourself of sin — only God can do that. And the wonderful truth of the Bible is that God has made it possible for you to be forgiven — not just to feel forgiven, but actually to be cleansed of your sins completely and thoroughly!

This is possible because Jesus Christ made it possible through his death on the cross. Incredible as it may seem, Jesus Christ the innocent Son of God took your sins upon himself when he died on the cross. You deserved to die, but he died in your place. "God made him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God" (2 Corinthians 5:21).

In other words, you can be forgiven because Christ has died as a sacrifice for your sins. He has taken them away, and all you need to do is accept him by faith and trust him for your forgiveness. "As far as the east is from the west, so far has he removed our transgressions from us" (Psalm 103:12). Confess your sins to God, accept Jesus Christ into your heart as your Savior and Lord, and then thank God that he loves you and has forgiven you — not only for this sin, but for every sin you have done.

Thoughts

There are certain people whom one almost feels inclined to urge to hurry up and die so that their letters can be published.

Christopher Morley

Jack Anderson

An odd choice indeed

WASHINGTON — G. Ray Arnett is a towering hulk of a man, a rough-spoken Great White Hunter and sport fisherman of the Ernest Hemingway school of machismo. So, by the curious logic of the Reagan administration, he is now the assistant secretary of Interior for fish and wildlife — the man responsible for protecting endangered species.

A onetime oil-company geologist and life member of the National Rifle Association, Arnett was named head of the California Fish and Game Department by Gov. Ronald Reagan. In that capacity, he successfully kept the sea otter off the endangered-species list.

Now, as the federal arbiter of life and death for the animal kingdom, Arnett has allowed fellow bwans to bring back their African leopard kills as trophies and has permitted manufacturers of jogging shoes to import Australian kangaroo hides. He also favors turning over the world's only winter refuge for whooping cranes to the tender mercies of the state of Texas, which wants to develop part of the rare birds' habitat for commercial purposes.

ARNETT HAS turned his Interior job into a series of safaris. At government expense, he has gone fishing off New Zealand and in Virginia. He has been heard to boast of his on-the-job game expeditions.

Recently Arnett combined a lot of pleasure with a little business on a four-day junket to the Cayman Islands in the sunny Caribbean. The ostensible point of the trip was to see whether an import exemption might safely be granted for green sea turtles raised in captivity. The reptiles, now on the threatened-species list, are coveted for their meat and their shells.

Arnett's hosts were the Cayman Islands government and the proprietors of a green sea-turtle farm, and they set out to entertain the wildlife protector in grand style. Here's how the trip went:

Arnett and his party flew down on a Saturday and checked into a plush resort hotel. Sunday was spent scuba diving and fishing for marlin.

On Monday, the group went hunting. The quarry was supposed to be pigeons and doves. But upon their return, one member of the hunting party was heard to remark that he had "winged a couple of parrots." As it happens, the only such bird on the island is the Grand Cayman Amazon, which is on the endangered-species list.

On Tuesday, along with more scuba diving, Arnett finally squeezed in a tour of the turtle farm. The assistant secretary was reportedly impressed with the operation, though he had neglected to take a turtle expert along to make an appraisal.

The point at issue is whether the turtle farm is self-sufficient or still depends on wild turtles. The top scientist on the farm told my associate Peter Grant that, contrary to the turtle farmers' prediction five years ago, not a single turtle hatched from an egg laid in captivity has been able to produce offspring.

In short, there is a suspicion that if the turtle farmers were to be granted an exemption to the federal prohibition on importing turtle products, they would have to use wild turtles to satisfy their customers' demands. The Cayman Islands entrepreneurs obviously hoped for Arnett's support in their petition for an exemption.

The turtle question will be the subject of a hearing today before the House wildlife subcommittee, whose chairman, Rep. John Breaux, D-La., joined the Arnett expedition.

The rugged Arnett is expected to endorse the turtle farmer's exemption request, leaving the question: Where next for the peripatetic assistant Interior secretary? Labrador at baby-sitter clubbing time?

Footnote: Arnett refuses to talk to reporters "as a matter of principle." His press spokesman did not respond to several inquiries.

A WRITER IN CHAINS: The name Adem Demaci means nothing to most Americans. But to Yugoslavia's 1.75 million Albanian minority, Demaci is a living legend. And to the communist government of Yugoslavia, he is so dangerously eloquent that he must be silenced behind prison walls.

Born 46 years ago in Kosovo, where most of the Albanian minority lives, Demaci gained recognition at 22 with his first novel, "The Serpents of Blood." A year later, however, the young Marxist intellectual was arrested and sentenced to three years in prison for his Albanian nationalist fervor.

Released in 1962, Demaci stubbornly continued his agitation for greater Albanian autonomy in Yugoslavia. Rearrested, he was sentenced to 15 years. He was released 10 years later, but was at liberty for a year or less before being arrested again. He drew another 15-year sentence, which still has eight years to run.

Demaci's chief crime has been to demand a referendum in the Albanian area of Yugoslavia to decide whether it should become part of Albania. Authorities in Belgrade don't want to risk a plebiscite. They claim that Demaci has done more than just write and speak out for Albanian rights; they say he has organized groups trying to overthrow the Yugoslav government.

Dear C.W.G.: I believe God is at work in your life right now, convicting you of your sins and showing you that you need God's grace and forgiveness in your life. I pray that you will not turn your back on him, but that you will discover and accept his love and forgiveness.

I know that you want God's forgiveness very much. But there is something I want to stress: God wants to forgive you even more than you want to be forgiven! The reason for this is that he wants you to be his child, having a close and everlasting personal relationship with him as your heavenly Father. But sin separates you from God, and before you can be a child of God that sin has to be taken away. How can it be taken away? You can't cleanse yourself of sin — only God can do that. And the wonderful truth of the Bible is that God has made it possible for you to be forgiven — not just to feel forgiven, but actually to be cleansed of your sins completely and thoroughly!

This is possible because Jesus Christ made it possible through his death on the cross. Incredible as it may seem, Jesus Christ the innocent Son of God took your sins upon himself when he died on the cross. You deserved to die, but he died in your place. "God made him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God" (2 Corinthians 5:21).

In other words, you can be forgiven because Christ has died as a sacrifice for your sins. He has taken them away, and all you need to do is accept him by faith and trust him for your forgiveness. "As far as the east is from the west, so far has he removed our transgressions from us" (Psalm 103:12). Confess your sins to God, accept Jesus Christ into your heart as your Savior and Lord, and then thank God that he loves you and has forgiven you — not only for this sin, but for every sin you have done.

Dr. Donohue

Recurrent attacks less severe

Dear Dr. Donohue: Exactly what does herpes infection look like in the female? Does it resemble boils? Do the symptoms appear obvious only to women? I mean does a man get it and not know it? Would it show on a Pap test, and is there always a cloudy discharge? Does it go and then come back? Were doctors aware of this disease, say, 20 years ago, or is it new? — Mrs. S.S.

Herpes can begin as a crop of small red patches on the outside of the genitalia. They form tiny blisters, which eventually sooth off and form ulcers. The ulcers heal. When the inner part of the vagina is affected, the ulcers may be quite large, with a grayish covering. There may be discharge, and it can be either cloudy or clear.

The infection in a male looks much the same, with the same small red patches eventually forming ulcers. The symptoms in the male would be as obvious to him as they would be to a woman.

You ask about Pap tests. Active herpes may show up on that smear, and another method, the Tzanck test, detects it well also. It is like the Pap, but is taken directly from the base of the ulcer. The infected cells are readily recognized.

In the initial herpes attack, the symptoms (burning, pain on urination, painful intercourse) are quite severe. There may be fever and lymph-node enlargement. Since the virus can remain dormant in the body following an attack, it can be reactivated to cause the symptoms again. However, second and subsequent attacks are less painful, and there are fewer sores.

Yes, doctors have known about herpes for much longer than 20 years. Its widespread publicity today stems from its increased incidence, which in turn may reflect greater sexual promiscuity that prevails today.

But, besides the fact that doctors were not seeing so many cases 20 years ago, the dangers posed to a baby delivered by a mother with the active disease were not known. Today we know that the baby can, indeed, pick up the infection under such circumstances, so there is a major effort to test for it today.

While we do not have a cure for herpes, a new medicine, acyclovir, is being used in initial attacks. It does help promote more rapid healing.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Last winter I read in your column an answer to a writer who was complaining about headaches. She was an elderly woman who lived alone, and in your answer you referred to furnace fumes. I meant to clip it, but forgot to. My question concerns your statement to the effect that she could suspect the carbon monoxide fumes if her headaches were worse in the morning and then went away during the day. Will you please explain the reason for the morning versus daytime thing? — E.G.G.

I was referring to the fact that a person probably would be up and about during the day, perhaps open a window or leave the house. That removes the person from the fume (carbon monoxide) atmosphere. Breathing normal air for a brief period results in 50 percent clearance of the carbon monoxide in about five hours.

Of course, if the person were to remain in the same fume atmosphere throughout the day, the headache would linger on. Since the carbon monoxide cannot be smelled, it is wise to assure that persons immobilized within a home, especially alone, are not breathing these gases from leaking furnaces.

FOR MRS. M.R.: — An undescended testicle occurs in about four of every 100 births, so it is quite common. The testicle does not descend from the abdomen to the scrotum. In about one half of those cases, the testicle does descend on its own during the first month of life.

There are two reasons for bringing the testicle down. One is to avoid any possibility of a malignancy developing, and the other is to try to retain its sperm-producing capacity.

Some doctors try injections of the hormone chorionic gonadotropin to see if that helps the testicle descend on its own. If that doesn't work, it can be anchored into position surgically. If only one testicle is undescended, as in your child's case, he would remain fertile. I hope this eases your mind somewhat.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Don't feel bad. My Webster's New World Dictionary shows the word "physical" as an adjective, also as a noun (for examination). Come out of the doghouse. There are always those who "try to swallow a camel and choke on a gnat." — Mrs. M.W.

Vaginitis can strike any woman at any time in her life. You can read about the causes — and cures — for this troublesome complaint in the booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." To get a copy, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Man thinks of forsaking monogamy

DEAR ABBY: I am a married man, age 31. My wife, now 30, is totally disabled due to two heart attacks. Since age 25, she has been very sickly and cannot have children. Our sex life has been reduced to never. I am not complaining, Abby. I don't ask anything of her that she cannot do.

But Abby, I am the only grandson on my father's side of the family, and it is up to me to carry on the family name. Under mutual agreement with my wife, I am looking for a permanent wife-mother and partner to be a member of this family — to have my kids for me. I don't mean anything kinky or weird, Abby. I mean I want a mother for my kids who will live in our home.

Where can I find a woman who would be interested in this kind of arrangement? What are the legal ramifications of me doing something like this? Kids mean so much to me, and I want some of my own before I get much older.

G. IN SOUTH CAROLINA
DEAR G.: You could investigate the possibility of having a surrogate mother artificially impregnated with your sperm to bear your child (or children), but you cannot take a woman into your home to be a "wife-mother-partner" and raise your kids, assuming you could find one who is willing. A man is legally entitled to only one wife at a time, and you already have your quota.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend was a virgin when I met him. I wasn't, and now he's trying to make me feel guilty. We are both the same age (20), but I am much more mature than he is.

He keeps asking me questions about the guys I've been with before him. He wants to know who, how many, how many times and all the details. If I don't tell him, he gets mad and calls me names. There really weren't all that many (only six), but according to him I was practically a prostitute.

He knows I love him. I really do, and it shouldn't matter to him how many guys I had because I didn't know him at the time.

Now he tells me he wants to even the score before he marries me. Should I stay engaged to him or tell him to buzz off?

THIRD DEGREE IN LAUDERDALE
DEAR THIRD: Tell him to buzz off. He has a lot of growing up to do.

DEAR ABBY: "Confused in Pasadena" asked, "What is the correct name for the heaviest meal of the day if it is served at noon? And what would you call the lightest meal of the day if it is served at night?"

You replied: "Dinner" is the principal meal of the day. "Lunch" is a light meal — usually eaten at noon.

"If I'm in error, I'll eat my Webster's dictionary for supper," because I've already had dinner.

Abby, where I grew up, we ate dinner at noon, supper at night, and lunch was what we carried to school or work in tin boxes.

SUPPER LOVER IN OMAHA
DEAR ABBY: People who like to put on the dog always say "dinner" instead of "supper". A young woman who worked in the same office with me called her mother and said, "Ma, I won't be home for supper tonight — I'm invited out for dinner."

If you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Alcoholic parents treatment target

NEW YORK (AP) — A report issued here on abuses suffered by perhaps as many as 500,000 children of alcoholic parents has recommended legislation to compel an alcoholic parent to undergo treatment as a condition of retaining custody of children.

The report also suggested the alcoholic beverage industry finance research on alcoholics' children.

Among findings of the state-sponsored report were that alcoholic parents are most likely to produce alcoholic children. Approximately 58 percent of adult alcoholics in 13 state treatment centers were the children of alcoholic parents.

"At an early age, these children are trapped in a self-destructive cycle of despair and failure that ruins their lives and harms the society of which they are a part," said Gov. Hugh L. Carey in releasing the report prepared under the auspices of the state Division of Alcoholism and Alcohol Abuse.

Couple reveals birth of baby boy recently

Rebekahs hear details of New York visit

The Big Spring Rebekah Lodge 284 met recently with Mabel Morrison, noble grand, presiding.

Sherri Wilson, secretary, read a letter from Sherri Bordofsky of the United Way. Mrs. Bordofsky requested permission to discuss the United Way drive with members of the Rebekahs.

Serving on the refreshment committee were June Wiggins, Margi Norwood, Timmie McCormick, Agnes White, Fay Gill and Frances Powell. It was announced that October birthdays will be celebrated Tuesday after the regular meeting.

The Stanton Rebekah Lodge 287 invited District Deputy President, Myrtle Gring, and local members to attend a meeting in Stanton Oct. 11. Plans were made to attend.

Mrs. Wiggins, lodge deputy, gave a school of instruction.

At a recent meeting, members of the Rebekahs heard Diana Johnson and George Bancroft discuss a visit to the United Nations in New York, Washington D.C., and Niagra Falls. The Rebekahs supported the two on the trip.

Study: keeping kids out of jail doesn't cut re-arrests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Counseling and home placement programs can substantially reduce the number of juveniles locked up for status offenses, but they don't cut down on re-arrest rates, according to a federally funded study released Sunday.

Status offenders are young people whose acts would not be criminal if committed by adults. The acts include such behavior as incorrigibility, truancy and running away from home.

The study, done by University of Southern California researchers, evaluates a program undertaken at eight sites where efforts were specifically made to help juveniles stay out of detention facilities. The study and the evaluation were funded by the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, an agency of the Justice Department.

The office is directed by law to encourage programs to discontinue the use of juvenile detention or correctional facilities for youths charged with status offenses.

To that end, the office funded experimental programs aimed at deinstitutionalization of status offenders (DSO) in Spokane and Clark Counties in Washington, Alameda County in California, Pima County in Arizona and the states of Delaware, Connecticut, Illinois and South Carolina. Total cost of the DSO project: $16.2 million.

The Southern California researchers reported there was a reduction of 43 percent from preprogram levels in the total number of juvenile status offenders placed in detention at the eight sites.

Their evaluation added: "Although this does not constitute proof that the program caused the reduction, since such reductions were part of the larger national trend in any case, knowledge of particular program activities makes us confident that a substantial portion of the reductions can be attributed to the DSO program."

The evaluation also concluded that subsequent arrest rates of status offenders, after participation in the program "were approximately equal to a match comparison group that had received traditional court treatment."

Solomon Korbin, one of the researchers, said: "This finding constitutes evidence in support of the view that traditional court confinement offers no delinquency prevention advantage over the use of community-based treatment without secure confinement."

The study reported that some jurisdictions were more or less routinely locking up status offenders on the assumption this was the only way they could be sure the juvenile would show up for court hearings. The DSO program, it said, showed this was not necessary and that the youths could be released with few problems.

Korbin said such programs must guard against excessive narrowness in their treatment approach. He said DSO made almost exclusive use of psychological counseling, while educational and employment counseling and job training were virtually excluded.

Slump dries up U.S. thirst for wine

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The recession has taken the edge off America's palate for wine.

Shipments of wine increased only 2.8 percent in the first six months of 1982, down from a 5.6 percent rate of growth in 1981, according to Marvin Shanken, editor and publisher of "Impact," an industry newsletter on the wine and liquor business.

"The economy is really taking its toll right now," said Shanken.

The bad news for the industry may have a bright side for the consumer, however.

Shanken said domestic winemakers are trying to boost business by cutting prices. When sales were booming, he said, they increased their prices. "Now, all of a sudden, with the softness and the reversal of the economy, they're in a very awkward situation... and for the first time all of these wineries are backing off their prices and offering substantial discounts to the consumer."

Shanken said individual price cuts for U.S. wines range from 5 percent to 20 percent, depending on the market.

"It's wine on sale," he said. "You see it in every other business and wine is now at the point where it's price competitive."

Shipments of wine have been growing rapidly since the early part of the last decade, as Americans developed a taste for lighter beverages with lower alcoholic content than the traditional drinks. From 1970 through 1980, for example, shipments of imported and domestic wine went from 267 million gallons to 478.2 million gallons. In 1980, shipments of wine outpaced shipments of distilled liquor for the first time and the trend has continued.

Associated Press graphic

Shipments of table wines — as opposed to things like vermouth, champagne or sweet dessert wines — have increased even more than shipments of wine in general, going from 133 million gallons in 1970 to 361.6 million gallons 10 years later. Table wine accounted for only 50 percent of the wine market in 1970; today, it accounts for almost 80 percent.

Even table wine, however, has been hit by the recession. The growth rate during the first six months of 1982 was only 4.6 percent, Shanken said, down from 7.6 percent in 1981 and an annual rate of 11.2 percent from 1975 through 1980.

U.S.-produced wines are suffering more than imports, Shanken said. Shipments of American table wines were up only 3.2 percent during the first half of this year, while shipments of imports in the same category rose 8.9 percent.

He cited several reasons for the relative success of the imports.

"Part of it relates to the fact that there are a few brands which dominate the imported wine market... (These brands are) well positioned and getting tremendous advertising support... really carry the market with them."

Shanken also said that the big growth has been in two categories of imports. The Italian wines, he said, "are inexpensive wines in general so they are the wines people would turn to in terms of a squeeze or pinch on the pocketbook." French winemakers, meanwhile, also have been introducing less expensive wines — in the range of $3 to $5 a bottle for larger-size bottles. "So Italy and France are both addressing the economy in terms of wine."

Congressman held for DUI

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Ike F. Andrews, D-N.C., was arrested after a high-speed chase and charged with driving under the influence, speeding and failing to stop for a police car with flashing lights, police said Sunday.

Andrews said he was neither drinking nor speeding.

Police Lt. C.G. Diedrich said Andrews failed to stop when officers turned on their flashing blue lights and siren and he drove almost 3 miles before a patrol car pulled in front of his car to stop him.

After refusing to submit to a Breathalyzer test to determine his sobriety, Andrews, 57, was released on $200 bond and a court appearance was scheduled for Oct. 18, Diedrich said.

Quake shakes Alaska island

PALMER, Alaska (AP) — An earthquake shook Adak Island in Alaska's Aleutian Island chain but caused no damage or injuries, the Alaska Tsunami Warning Center reported today.

Preliminary measurements indicate the quake occurred Sunday at 10:47 p.m. Alaska Daylight Time (2:47 a.m. CDT today) centered about 35 miles southwest of the island. It measured 5.1 on the Richter scale, said John Sindorf, a geophysicist at the center in Palmer.

Sindorf said the quake was felt "lightly" on Adak, about 1,200 miles southwest of Anchorage, and did not generate a tsunami, or tidal wave.

The U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo., said the earthquake measured 5.7 on the Richter scale.

An earthquake of 5 on the Richter scale can cause considerable damage, but quakes of that magnitude often occur in Alaska without damage because of sparse population, quake-resistant construction methods and the type of ground movement in the quakes, Sindorf said.

HAPPINESS IS WINNING A DIVISION — Milwaukee Brewers manager Harvey Kuenn hugs winning pitcher Don Sutton on the Memorial Stadium field after the Brewers defeated Baltimore 10-3 Sunday to win the American League East title.

'Birds manager says goodbye

BALTIMORE (AP) — Winning 33 of 44 games wasn't bad, but it wasn't good enough. Yet, after the Baltimore Orioles were demolished 10-2 by the Milwaukee Brewers and lost the American League East championship on the final day of the season, their fans stayed around to cheer.

They wanted to say one final farewell to Manager Earl Weaver, who retired after the Orioles bowed out, ending a 14½-year stint with the club.

Responding to the cheers of, "We want Earl," Weaver came out of the clubhouse to wave goodbye and throw kisses to his followers.

Then Weaver sent word for the players whose stretch drive fell just short to come out for a curtain call. Most of them responded, in various stages of undress.

Weaver later reappeared and helped self-appointed cheerleader Wild Bill Hagy lead the fans one last time to spell out: "O-R-I-O-L-E-S." It was an emotional scene.

Manager Harvey Kuenn of the Brewers came across the field to greet Weaver, and Baltimore owner Edward Bennett Williams came out of the stands to add his good wishes.

"I congratulated Earl on a fine job and told him it was a shame he's retiring," Kuenn said. "He's been a credit to baseball."

Weaver, who has signed on for the next two years as a consultant with the Orioles, said he didn't know what to expect in retirement.

"I don't know if boredom will set in," he said. "Retirement is only a word I've heard. I don't know what it holds."

But he contended that he didn't think he could face another long spring training session followed by a 162-game schedule.

Weaver's final game provided an ironic twist when he went to the mound for one last time to replace pitcher Jim Palmer, his longtime antagonist.

Asked what words were exchanged at final summit meeting, Weaver recalled Palmer saying, "I wish I could have done better, or words to that effect."

Palmer, noting that he and Weaver will be teammates as analysts for ABC-TV for some of the post-season games, joked: "Earl thought he had gotten away from me."

Then he added of his future sidekick in the announcing booth: "Now maybe he'll learn something about the game."

WELL, GUYS, I TIRED — Retiring Baltimore Orioles manager Earl Weaver reflects on his final season after his team lost the American League East title to the Milwaukee Brewers Sunday. The Orioles won 33 of their final 44 games to pull even with the Brewers on the final day but dream burst when Milwaukee won 10-3.

Robin outflies Orioles as Brewers win AL East

It took a Robin to finally bring down the Orioles.

"I knew this club would come back, and it did," said Milwaukee Manager Harvey Kuenn after Robin Yount's slugging helped the Brewers beat Baltimore 10-2 on the final day of the regular season Sunday, giving them their first American League East title.

"They were relaxed for every game here." The Orioles were doing all the winning before Sunday. They had taken the first three games of the big series and pulled even in the race, threatening to take the division championship in dramatic fashion for departing Manager Earl Weaver.

However, the Brewers got a quick 3-0 lead Sunday — thanks in part to two solo home runs by Yount — and virtually took charge from the beginning. Yount also blasted a triple in his big day.

"This has been a club of character right along," Yount said. "We were loose throughout this series. We approached every game with the same attitude, with a positive feeling. Today was no different."

Both of Yount's homers came against Baltimore ace Jim Palmer. The first one, in the first inning, was on an outside fastball which Yount hit to the opposite field.

"That's the sign of a good hitter," said Palmer.

Catcher Rick Dempsey then suggested pitching Yount in, Palmer said.

"So the next time, he hits it over the left-field wall."

Cecil Cooper and Ted Simmons also hit home runs to boost the Brewers' major league-leading total to 216, and Don Sutton, the National League expatriate, pitched eight gutsy innings, scattering eight hits.

"I knew all along this club would win, with or without me," Sutton said. "This is the best collection of talent I ever played with. I'm glad to go along for the ride."

The Brewers advanced to the AL championship series against California starting Tuesday night in Anaheim.

Braves lose-um game but win-um division

And so, on the final day of the regular season, the Atlanta Braves found victory in defeat. They won the National League West because the Los Angeles Dodgers lost it.

Perhaps that's not entirely fair to the Braves, who began the season like they would never lose, winning a record 13 straight games. But then they faltered in midseason, only to win the West title in spine-tingling fashion, backing in on the coattails of the Dodger defeat to San Francisco.

Texas Rangers drop their final contest to American League West champions California 7-4 while Houston Astros close their campaign with Joe Niekro's 3-0 shutout of the Cincinnati Reds. Roundups on page 5-B.

nesday afternoon against the Cardinals, the NL East champions, in St. Louis. The Cardinals ended their season with a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs in 14 innings.

Although the Braves didn't close the season on a winning note, they didn't complain.

"I don't care how we did it, it's done," said Braves' slugger Dale Murphy. "We've just taken the longest and toughest step."

The Braves took a one-run lead on Terry Harper's leadoff homer in the top of the fifth off San Diego left-hander Tim Lollar, 16-9, who had scored the previous 10 batters and had not given up a hit.

The Padres, however, scored five runs in the bottom of the inning, highlighted by Alan Wiggins' bases-loaded triple.

Rick Camp, 11-13, was the loser.

Up the coast, Morgan knew the Giants wouldn't hear the end of it from hometown fans if they hadn't beat the archrival Dodgers.

"All that people would have been talking about, if we hadn't won this game, was how we folded and lost the last three games to the Dodgers," said Morgan, 39.

Reliever Greg Minton, 10-4, was the winning pitcher. Tom Niedenfuer, 3-4, was the loser after leaving with runners on second and third before giving way to Terry Forster in the seventh.

Fernando Valenzuela, failing in his third and last opportunity for his 20th season victory, pitched the first six innings for the Dodgers, allowing only two hits and striking out nine. But he was removed in the top of the seventh for a pinch hitter. Ron Cey hit his 24th homer, a two-run shot in the second.

Wilson wins AL title

By The Associated Press
Willie Wilson was a wallflower, while Robin Yount danced every dance. But it was Wilson who waltzed away with the American League batting championship.

Wilson, a fleet-footed outfielder for the Kansas City Royals, went into the final day of the regular season with a narrow lead over Yount in the race for the batting title. He chose to sit out Sunday's finale against the Oakland A's, safeguarding his .332 average.

But, while Wilson adorned the Royals' bench, Yount, Milwaukee's shortstop, teed

Theismann may not play as all-star

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Theismann of the Washington Redskins, touted by the National Football League Players Association as one of the quarterbacks of its all-star teams, says he may not play next Sunday after all.

Theismann said he was not contacted until noon on Sunday, barely an hour before the union released its roster of 80 players for the scheduled opener of the 20-game series.

"I'm still in the process of thinking about it," said Theismann. "I'm leaning toward not playing, but maybe after I talk to enough guys, I'll change my mind and play. But right now, I don't think I will."

Theismann was a rookie in the NFL in 1974 when the league was last struck, during training camp. The rights to his services has been acquired by Washington from Miami, and the Redskins induced him to leave the Canadian Football League. During the preseason strike he crossed the picket line set up by the union and worked out while the Redskins' regular quarterbacks, Sonny Jurgensen and Billy Kilmer, stayed out of camp.

Brig Owens, a former Theismann teammate, said Theismann had done a turnaround since the '74 strike. "He's explained the trials and tribulations he's gone through since then," said Owens. "Now he's assumed a strong leadership role, he's been right out in front."

The 28 club owners, through their negotiating unit, the Management Council, said Sunday they intend to take legal action to prevent the union from staging the so-called all-star series, whose opener is scheduled for RFK Stadium here.

In Buffalo, the Bills said it had obtained a temporary restraining order, signed by state Supreme Court Justice Joseph P. Kuszynski, prohibiting its players from "practicing or playing in the game." The judge will hear arguments on the order Wednesday.

One of the Buffalo players, nose tackle Fred Smerlas, said he was served a copy of the court order Sunday night and turned the matter over to his lawyers. "I'm not going to jump into it," Smerlas said. "They are checking to see what waves this will cause. Until I get the go sign from them, I'm not going to go."

Among the other stars whom the union said were committed to playing the game are quarterback Richard Todd of the New York Jets, linebacker Lawrence Taylor of the New York Giants, running back Wilbert Montgomery and wide receiver Harold Carmichael of the Philadelphia Eagles and guard John Hannah of the New England Patriots.

"When we first started out, we hoped we would never get to this point," said Brig Owens, the assistant executive director of the union and former defensive back for the Redskins. "We hoped we would never have to play this game. We said that from the start. We even waited until the last minute to organize it. Now we're here because they (the owners' representatives) have failed to negotiate."

As soon as the roster became public, the Management Council, the owners' bargaining unit, swung into action. "We are taking all necessary steps to enjoin as many players as possible from participating in any games," said Sarge Karch, the chief counsel to the Management Council.

Last week, eight teams filed suit in New York State in an attempt to block the Turner Broadcasting System, Ted Turner's Atlanta-based cable network which is bankrolling the games, from televising them.

The union intends to seek a temporary restraining order in federal court to block the league's efforts to halt Sunday's game.

The 80 all-star players for the game were selected in a union poll of the 1,500 players who have been on strike since Sept. 21. They are to represent the Eastern Divisions of the NFL's American and National Conferences. Future matchups are to involve teams from different divisions.

The Eagles, with 12 players, and the Giants,

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try not to argue over a silly matter with one you really like. Not a good day to study a new outlet that appeals to you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Contact the right people for suggestions to improve your social life. Seek company of trusted friends in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Listen to advice of experts in your line of endeavor, and then follow it. Don't be too extravagant with money today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get in touch with business experts who can help you advance in career activities. Be thoughtful of loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Analyze the practical affairs that have to be attended to and gain the approval of higher-ups. Relax at home tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be careful not to make any radical changes now that could lead you in the wrong direction. Strive for true happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to be more efficient in your line of work. Be less demanding of close ties. Avoid one who could be troublesome.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be alert to what an ally may advise since it could help you in a business deal. More camaraderie with friends is wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have some annoying business matters to handle now so attend to them without delay. Learn to exercise more.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to please those you love and be happier. More affection for loved one will bring good results. Use care in motion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Remove whatever is obsolete and not needed in the home. Strive for that streamlined look. Be poised.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put an element of courtesy in any communications with others, whether by telephone, letter or in person.

NFL season still remains in limbo with 11, dominate the "National East" squad. The Jets and Buffalo Bills each have 11 on the "American East" team.

Quarterbacks Neil Lomax of St. Louis and Steve Grogan of New England also were chosen, as were linebackers Frank Lemaster and Jerry Robinson of the Eagles and Harry Carson and Brad Van Pelt of the Giants, punter Dave Jennings of the Giants and two Washington specialists, place-kicker Mark Moseley and kicker-turner Mike Nelms; running backs John Riggins of the Redskins and St. Louis' O.J. Anderson, Miami's Tony Nathan and Andre Franklin and the Jets' Freeman McNeil; wide receivers Nat Moore of Miami, Ray Butler of Baltimore and the Jets' Wesley Walker and two members of the Jets' "Sack Exchange," defensive end Mark Gastineau and defensive tackle Abdul Salaam.

Angels hold off Rangers, 7-6
ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The California Angels have completed the finest season record-wise in their 22-year history. However, they hope their 1982 success story has only just begun.
The Angels finished the regular season with a 7-6 victory over Texas on Sunday, giving them a 93-69 record. More important was the fact that they won the American League West championship, clinching the title with a 6-4 triumph over the Rangers on Saturday.
That made Sunday's game no more than an exercise. And that's how the Angels played it as Manager Gene Mauch employed seven pitchers among a total of 24 players.
Now, California will attempt to make its first World Series appearance ever. The Angels open the best-of-five AL Championship Series at Anaheim Stadium against the Milwaukee Brewers on Tuesday night at 5:25 p.m., PDT.
California will be making its second AL Championship Series appearance. The Angels won the Western Division title in 1979 but were beaten by the Orioles 3-1 in the Championship Series.
Mauch said that left-hander Tommy John, 41-12 in the season and 4-2 since being acquired by the Angels from the New York Yankees on Aug. 31, will pitch against the Brewers Tuesday night. John started against the Rangers on Sunday, allowing two hits and no runs in one inning of work.
The Angels built a 6-0 lead over the Rangers after four innings Sunday, but Texas chipped away at the advantage and finally tied the score on a two-run homer by Pete O'Brien in the top of the eighth. O'Brien had lined a two-run double two innings earlier as the Rangers scored three times to make it 6-4.
Rookie Gary Pettis blasted a 1-2 pitch from Danny Darwin, 10-8, over the left-center field fence with one in the bottom of the ninth to give California its victory. It was the first major league hit for Pettis in his fifth at-bat and made a winner of Mickey Mahler, 2-0, who blanked the Rangers in the top of the ninth.
Reggie Jackson drove in four runs for the Angels, giving him 101 RBIs for the season. His 39th homer with two runners aboard highlighted a five-run first inning and he added a run-scoring double in the fourth.
The homer enabled Jackson to tie Milwaukee's Gorman

American League
Thomas for the major league home run lead and to reach the 100-RBI mark for the sixth time in his career.
The Rangers finished the campaign with a dismal 64-98 record and a sixth-place finish in the AL West.
A's 6, Royals 3
Joe Rudi and Dave McKay drove in two runs apiece to lead Oakland over Kansas City.
The A's broke a 3-3 tie when Mike Heath singled with one out in the fourth and Rudi clubbed his fifth homer to put the A's up 5-3. Loser Larry Gura, 18-12, also gave up a two-run homer to McKay in the second.
Red Sox 5, Yankees 3
Dwight Evans and Jim Rice belted consecutive home runs in the first inning and Rick Miller snapped a 3-3 tie with a run-scoring single in the 11th as Boston defeated New York.
Mike Brown earned his first major league victory with four innings of four-hit, scoreless relief. He struck out one and walked one.
Blue Jays 5, Mariners 2
Willie Upshaw's two-run triple snapped a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning and Jim Tracy fired a five-hitter as Toronto completed the best season in its six-year history.
Tigers 9, Indians 1
Alan Trammell homered and singled to drive in three runs and Jerry Ujdr scattered seven hits in eight innings as Detroit beat Cleveland.
Ujdr, 10-10, struck out four and walked one before getting relief help in the ninth from Howard Bailey.
White Sox 6, Twins 1
Tom Paciorek and Harold Baines hit home runs and Marc Hill drove in three runs as Chicago whipped Minnesota behind LaMarr Hoyt's seven-hit performance.
Hoyt, 19-15, struck out six and walked two for his 14th complete game of the season. Brad Havens, 10-14, took the loss.

Astros close with 3-0 victory
HOUSTON (AP) — A season-ending, three-hit shutout should be enough to satisfy any pitcher, but Joe Niekro still wanted more.
"My mind was on a lot of games today," Niekro said after Sunday's 3-0 win over the Cincinnati Reds. "I was a scoreboard junkie."
Niekro, 17-12, was looking out for himself in an intense National League ERA battle as well as displaying brotherly love for brother Phil, who pitches for the Atlanta Braves.
Joe finished second in the ERA department, but Phil's Braves finished first in the NL Western Division after Los Angeles fell to San Francisco, 5-3.
Niekro watched the scoreboard and saw his bid for the ERA title fall short of Montreal's Steve Rogers, who defeated Pittsburgh 6-1. Rogers concluded the season at 2-40, while Niekro's whitewash effort improved his figure from 2.55 to 2.466.
The Astros pitcher posted four strikeouts that brought his season total to a record 130, eclipsing his 1980 previous best of 127.
Houston interim manager Bob Lillis, who took over for Bill Virdon on Aug. 10 and posted a 28-23 record, said, "The pitching aspect is the most difficult adjustment to make when you go from coaching to managing."
Cardinals 5, Cubs 4
St. Louis ended the season on a high note by snapping a four-game losing streak with the extra-inning victory over Chicago. The Cards hadn't won since clinching their division title last Monday.
Julio Gonzalez provided the big hit of the game when he led off the 14th inning with a home run, his first of the season. He had four hits in the game.

National League
Eric Rasmussen, 1-2, was the winning pitcher and Ken Kravec, 1-1 was the loser.
Phillies 4, Mets 1
Steve Carlton, 23-11 and the major leagues' only 20-game winner, stopped the Mets on four hits and one walk, while striking out 12. He also won his fourth NL strikeout title with 296.
Mike Schmidt stroked his 35th homer of the season, a two-run shot in the fifth to give the Phillies a 4-1 lead. New York's lone run came in the first on Ron Gardenhire's homer, his third of the season.
Ed Lynch, 4-8, was the losing pitcher.
Expos 6, Pirates 1
Willie Stargell closed his 21-season career with a single in the bottom of the first. He left the game later in the inning for a pinch runner to a standing ovation from the 14,948 hometown fans.
Jim Famin also stepped down as manager of Montreal, to take another post with the Expos. He had been under fire by the fans most of the season for team's failure to repeat as NL East champions.
Tim Wallach cracked a three-run homer in the sixth and Andre Dawson a solo shot in the fourth to support the five-hit performance of Steve Rogers, 19-8. It was Wallach's 28th homer of the season and Dawson's 23rd.
Pittsburgh's Al Oliver, who had two singles in three at bats, won his first batting title with a .331 average and second baseman Johnny Ray became the second rookie in NL history to appear in all 162 of his team's games.
Don Robinson, 15-13, was tagged with the loss.

'Bare Essence': splash it on and it washes right off

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — There's good trash and bad trash. "Bare Essence," a two-part miniseries tonight and Tuesday about the perfume industry, is bad trash.

CBS rounded up a collection of TV actors, including soap opera star Genie Francis, Linda Evans of "Dynasty" and Bruce Boxleitner of "Bring 'Em Back Alive," and managed to make those epic themes of wealth, power and romance a superficial bore.

Splash it on, and it washes right off. To attract large audiences, television often trumps up already trumped-up "steambooks" from the likes of Harold Robbins and Jacqueline Susann. Even with a high meaningless quotient, these tales can be a bit of a frolic. Not everything has to be "Masterpiece Theater."

In the privacy of your home, there's nothing shameful about using mindless pulp for a cuddly fantasy trip. When ABC hyped and sensationalized John Steinbeck's "East of Eden," nobody got hurt.

But "Bare Essence" is two wasted nights. Nothing much happens, and the characters utter tripe that people never say but TV writers think they do:

"I believe in seduction, not rape."
"Maybe I'm hopelessly middle class."
"The absolute best time to catch a husband is when you still have one."

And, while we're dressing down this program's bumper-sticker philosophy, let's hear it for cliché humor, conventional melodrama and what passes for dynamic dialogue:

"Bare Essence" offers the standard spoof line on TV news, "film at 11;" it substitutes slaps in the face for legitimate confrontation, and its major characters constantly shout "bull!" to express dissatisfaction.

Miss Francis, Laura from "General Hospital" making her prime-time debut, plays Tyger Hayes, a naive beach bum who turns into a savvy wheeler-dealer by Tuesday night. In the opening scene, her father — a TV movie producer known for "Sorority Halloween Massacre" and "The Wolfman of Tucson" — has just died.

Tyger travels to New York to convince the conglomerate backing her father's current production to keep the funds flowing. Because she has "spunk," and because she plays poker, talks to Teamsters and has a strong handshake, she's immediately hired by the big boss to create her own job.

Bad trash treats businessmen as buffoons, and it also acts under the notion that all decisions and deals are made in bed. Before long, Tyger is in various sacks and comes to the boardroom realization that perfume has a 1,000-percent markup and is the future of the conglomerate.

We're then supposed to get an inside look at the conflicts and pressures of the competitive perfume industry, but the script, based on the novel by Meredith Rich, never gets out of the bottle. Even the sets that might provide some lavish gloss fall flat.

TV Tonight

"Bare Essence" was supposed to be the start of Miss Francis' new career, leaving daytime bed-hopping for sophisticated parts and stardom. It's not her triumph. Her technique of contorting her mouth to display emotion doesn't wear well. It's sham acting, particularly when the camera lingers, and she's forced to bury her head.

The cardboard Boxleitner, as Tyger's love-hate subject, doesn't fare better. Only Lee Grant, as the insincere stepmother, manages to pull daggers and venom out of her role.

One line from "Bare Essence" sums up the essence of bare trash: "Make no mistake. We're not selling perfume, we're selling sex."

No. 21: Carson re-signs with NBC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Within hours of celebrating his 20th anniversary as host of "The Tonight Show," Johnny Carson announced a new contract with NBC, silencing speculation that his association with the network would not reach the 21st year.

Carson made the announcement at a party Sunday night after a nostalgic television special marking his two decades with the late-night show.

The length of the new contract and its financial terms were not announced. Network officials said Carson signed the contract in September and it went into effect immediately, replacing a previous three-year contract that still had one year to run.

In announcing the new contract, he told his staff, "I talked with Grant Tinker two weeks ago and said, 'As long as we're doing the show as well as we are doing, I want to continue. Even though we still have another year to run (on the current contract) we will continue beyond that.'"

The staff broke into applause, and Carson added: "Besides, if I stay at home, Joanna (his wife) would kill me."

There had been speculation that Carson would not stay with NBC because of declining ratings for the show. Carson has dismissed the reports, saying that while his show may lose to the competition on a given night, his overall ratings are the highest for the time slot.

On the TV special, Carson, 56, marked his 20 years with a two-hour retrospective of favorite clips from past shows. The audience at NBC's Burbank studios gave Carson a standing ovation when he stepped on stage Sunday night.

"Twenty years ago in New York the audience stood up and I thought they were leaving," he said, smiling. Carson took over the show from host Jack Paar on Oct. 1, 1962, after several years as host of the ABC game show "Who Do You Trust?"

Backstage, before the anniversary show began, announcer Ed McMahon said, "I figured at the most we'd go five years. But it's been 5,120 shows since then, counting Johnny and all of substitute hosts."

McMahon said, "Twenty years ago, I went to Carson and asked him what my role would be. Johnny said, 'I don't even know what my role is.'"

The signing of the new pact was in marked contrast to that of Carson's last contract on May 6, 1980. It appeared almost certain Carson would quit the show until NBC agreed to cut the 90-minute show to one hour and his appearances to four a week. His annual salary was reportedly raised to substantially more than $5 million. At the time the show netted an estimated $30 million for the network.

Ray Parker Jr. seeks creativity

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Ray Parker Jr., having made four albums and had all four sell gold, says his next album will be "just more creative."

He says, "I guess I'm at a point where everything has to be more creative. Technically, they've got everything pretty much figured out now. You can punch the drums up electronically. You can feed a synthesizer and plug it in. Pretty soon the engineers will be out of business and studio time will go down to a minimum. You can program things at home, go down to the studio, push buttons and all this stuff comes out."

"But like everything in life, the important thing has always been the idea."

A story draws in the popular song listener more than the tune, Parker thinks. As a song writer, he says, "People connect me with a romantic story or who's fooling around with whom."

"I get some ideas from 'General Hospital' on TV. It's a lot easier to write about people slipping around than to write a love song."

Parker also is known, by those who know his career, as a person who makes his own decisions and has his own ideas.

He started playing with backup bands, live and in recording studios, in his native Detroit, when he was 14. He had taken music lessons as a youngster in school because it was either that or dance with girls.

When Stevie Wonder was organizing a group to tour with the Rolling Stones in 1972, he called Parker and asked him to play guitar.

"Usually he had auditions," Parker says. "But he'd heard enough about me and he called me up and said, 'Join the band. It was quite a surprise.'"

Parker didn't stay through the whole tour. "I wanted to do my thing and he wanted to do his thing. They kept bribing me to stay. I left in Corpus Christi, Texas. One night I slept at the airport, so nobody could find me to offer me money to stay. Then I caught a train home to Detroit."

But Motown had left Detroit and Invictus, for which Parker had done most of session work, was gone. So he moved to Los Angeles.

Now, he's riding on a hit album, "The Other Woman," on Arista Records, and a hit single, "Let Me Go."

Then, nobody knew him. He'd played on a lot of record sessions so he had experience. But usually his name hadn't been listed so, in the record business outside Detroit, people didn't know what his experience was.

He says, "I had a theory that if you're at the right place at the right time, it'll happen. I was at all the studios all the time. I used to hang around and bug everybody. It was called being pushy."

"I went in when Barry White was recording 'Love's Theme' and pushed stop on the tape machine and told him the song wasn't happening." White received this brush intrusion graciously and Parker did do some work on the arrangement of "Love's Theme." Parker remembers White as one person who was always considerate of everybody.

He says, "Some guys, if the camera is on them, they'll be nice. As soon as you close the door, they're chewing everybody out over nothing. You would really be surprised at the number of artists who are totally inhuman. They come up to session musicians and say things you wouldn't believe."

Parker's first effort at song writing was "You Got the Love."

The previous owners weren't so lucky... this is their story!
