Mercury Minus 11

The temperature may have gone lower here in years past, but most folks in the Olton area last weekend weren't in the mood to even think about when it might have been colder.

The mercury dropped to a low of 11 degrees below zero here Saturday morning. It was so chilly that day that thermometers rose to a "high" of zero.

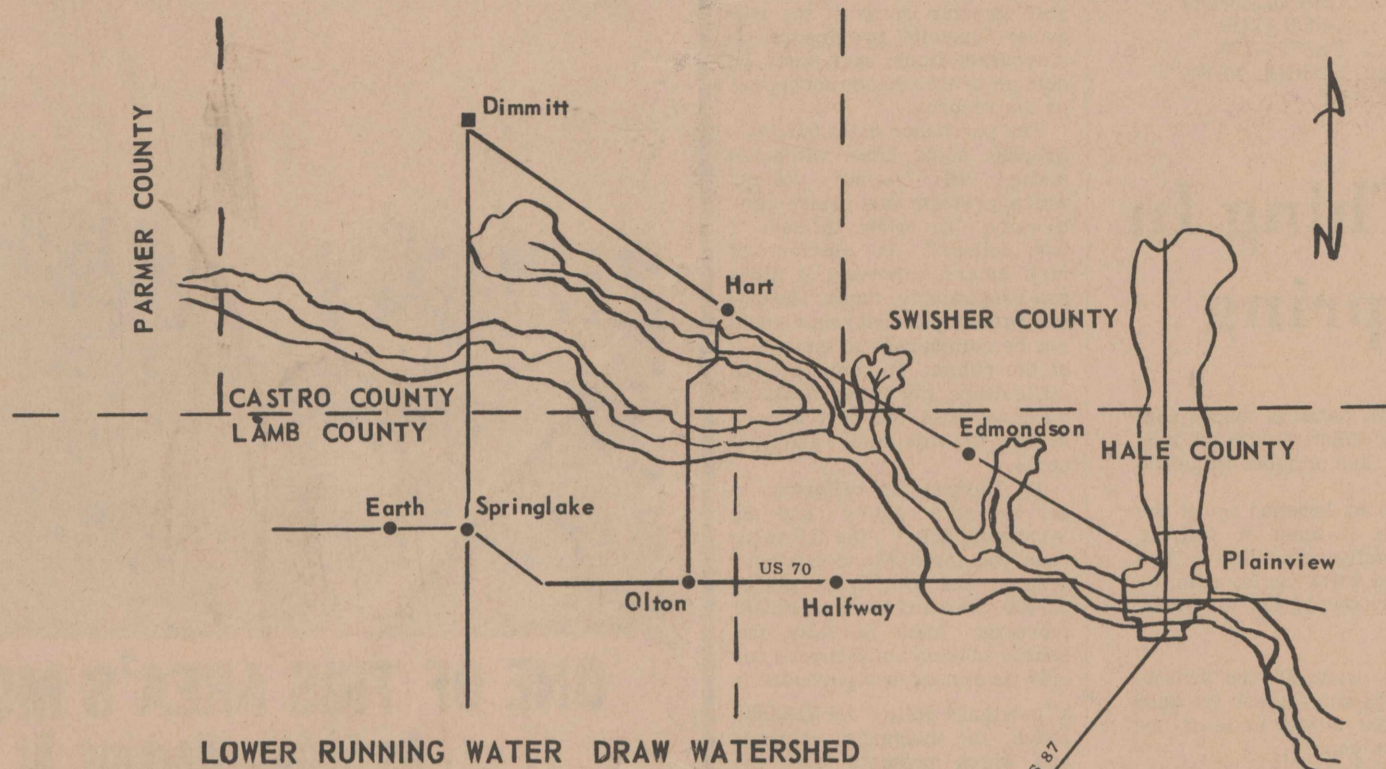

"It was the first time in 38 years that water has frozen in our house and well house," said Mrs. L. A. George. "About all my husband did last weekend was thaw out pressure pumps for people," said Mrs. Howard Buchenau. "This was the coldest spell I can remember," said Morris Gene Brown. "Some say it has been colder here, but I'm not that old."

"Our livestock stood the cold just fine," Mrs. Vernon Britton commented.

"It was colder in 1933," said Mrs. George Brown. "The feet on our cattle froze that year."

Southwestern Public Service reported no troubles during the cold spell, but Pioneer Natural Gas said its employees were kept on the job round-the-clock. There were no failures of a critical nature, the company reported.

The cold front blew in last Thursday night, dropping the mercury to 6 degrees Friday and -11 Saturday. A warming trend came Wednesday.

LOWER RUNNING WATER DRAW WATERSHED

Nobody's Running

If you thought city politics were running smoothly, without problems, better think again. There's a problem brewing.

It's summed up in this question: "Who's going to run for city council?"

Mayor M. T. James Jr. says he won't run for re-election. Councilman Bob Duncan says the same thing.

Councilman Fred Thompson resigned a few weeks ago after moving out of the city limits. The post is still vacant and will be until after the April city election. That is, it'll be filled if somebody runs.

"I'm tired," says Mayor James, after six years on the council. "I think somebody else ought to have a crack at it."

"It is someone else's turn," says Councilman Duncan, who has served the past four years.

Both say they've "definitely" made up their minds not to run.

Olton has run into such problems before. One one occasion only a few years ago, not a single soul filed for election and every body had to write in their choice.

So the situation stands: a mayor and two councilmen will be elected in April, and right now, the field is open.

The council will get around to officially calling the April election at its next meeting. At that time a filing deadline also will be established.

Muleshoe Next For Cagers

Olton's Fillies entertain Muleshoe here Friday night at 7 in a clash that will be "do or die" for the local girls.

The Fillies now stand 1-2 in district play and a third loss would sent their chances for top honors down the drain. They're 15-3 for the season.

The Mustangs, already out of championship running, will be seeking their first district victory in their game with the Mules.

After the Friday night games, Olton teams will travel to Morton next Tuesday night for a doubleheader with the Indians.

The Fillies split their last two games, losing to Friona there, 58-47, and winning over Dimmitt there, 47-44.

Gayle Nicholas was top scorer with 34 points in the Friona game, but the Frionians had too much balance and pulled out an 11-point win.

Miss Nicholas again led scorers in the Dimmitt game, hitting for 28 points. Tommy Witten had 13 and Cheryl Poet six.

Gladys Thomas led in rebounds with 10, while Deanna Farrar had eight and Maxine Schaefer each had seven.

The Mustangs dropped their game to Friona, 67-31, and lost to Dimmitt, 79-51. George Jones led Olton with nine against Friona and paced the scoring against Dimmitt with 19. Ronnie Parsons tossed in 14 against Dimmitt, while Joe Priest had 10 and Darrel Glover 8.

FFA Boys Getting Set For Amarillo

Running Water Draw Project Awaits Developments In Lamb And Castro

EDITOR'S NOTE---This is the first of a series of articles dealing with details of the Running Water Draw Project, which could provide both flood prevention and a recreation spot near the Olton area.

No worries about floods when a gully-washer strikes.

A fishing hole just "up the road a piece."

A spot for school, church or club outings. Conservation of our water resources.

Those are just a few of the benefits which could come from a project on Running Water Draw, now under consideration.

The project would place a series of 10 to 12 flood prevention dams along the watershed.

Things now are at a critical stage--co-sponsorships must be obtained along with easements from farmers.

Efforts are being made now in Lamb and Castro counties along this line. Hale and Parmer counties already have completed this work and are awaiting developments in Lamb and Castro.

Although individual Soil Conservation Districts earlier recognized the need of some type of flood protection on the Running Water Draw Watershed they had never felt that Public Law 566 was applicable until Sept. 1961.

This was when all the SCD's along Running Water Draw went together in a joint application for assistance. No one District had enough damage to be feasible to treat but altogether the project was considered economical and feasible. So they made an application for assistance under the Upper Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act (Public Law 566).

This application, as finally revised, takes in portions of Lamb, Hale, Swisher, Palmer counties of Texas and Curry County of New Mexico in the watershed of Running Water Draw.

In February of 1962 a preliminary survey of the watershed was completed and from it came a very favorable report to the Districts. For every dollar spent on this project, it was figured that from $1.25 to $1.50 would be returned in 50 years.

The basic proposal is for flood control to halt damages in both rural and urban areas. In this case, the investigators felt that damage was about 50 percent each way, the right proportion.

Tentative plans are for three structures in New Mexico, three in Parmer County, two in Castro, one in Lamb County and three in Hale County. It will be a project of about $2,500,000.

Actual sites have not been chosen because planning has not advanced that far.

The entire plan calls for 10 to 12 structures having a maximum capacity each of 5,000 acre feet of water for flood control. (Example: a lake a square mile in size with average depth of 8 ft.) These lakes would catch water during rains and it would be drained slowly down the draw within 20 to 30 days.

Each structure would also have a sediment pool which would contain about 200 acre ft. of water when full. These pools would be permanent and expected to collect the sediment for 50 or more years.

These permanent pools would be excellent recreation lakes for fishing and limited water skiing.

Landowners giving easements for the structures would retain control of access to the lakes and regulate their use. For instance a landowner could irrigate from this pool if he had water-rights or he could charge for recreation.

The recreation income alone might be much greater than from any other use.

If owners of property give easements for the lakes they can pretty much do as they like with the lakes. If local sponsoring organizations must buy, lease or rent the land the structure must be open to the public. A planned structure could be enlarged if local people wanted to do so and the site is adequate.

For instance, a city might enlarge the permanent lake for water or recreation. Such a multi-purpose structure would have to be enlarged at local expense and the easements would have to be obtained by the local government.

However, Farmers Home Administration now has expanded loans available for land purchase, structure enlargement, and development of the shore facilities to include park improvements, roads, etc. In most cases some percent of the enlargement also would be borne by the Federal Government.

If the project is approved the Federal Government through the Soil Conservation Service would bear the entire cost of construction. Local people or government would let contracts, provide easements or purchase land, and maintain structures

Underground Water Rule Set

What may be one of the biggest economic boons the South Plains has ever received was announced this week by the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District.

Ground water used for irrigation of agricultural crops in the Southern High Plains of Texas is a depletable natural deposit and is tax deductible.

This is the ruling handed down by U. S. Dist. Judge Joseph B. Dooley in a closely followed test case filed by Marvin Shurbert, a Floyd County farmer.

If the ruling holds up through appeals, it could mean millions of dollars in tax savings for farmers in the South Plains area.

It is expected that the case will be taken to the Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans and then to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The ruling only involves the South Plains area and, even if holds, does not mean that irrigation water throughout the United States will suddenly become tax deductible.

It does open up new possibilities. Farmers in other areas would have to prove similar circumstances.

One of the important points of the trial was the definition of water as a mineral.

In his case, Shurbert sought a cost depletion allowance on his income tax for water used to irrigate his farm land. The case was several years in preparation and got to court last year.

He asked for approximately $300 back on his 1959 income tax.

Shurbert claimed water was a mineral, was being used up and could not be replenished in his lifetime.

The board of directors of the High Plains Water District first authorized the District's staff to seek a depletion allowance on ground water in 1954.

The board felt that if such a program were allowed on ground water by the Internal Revenue Service, then a great many more persons would realize first-hand that their supply of water is truly exhaustible and would then become conscious that "water conservation" is a necessity for continued prosperity.

'Belle' Look Is Latest Thing In New Hairstyles For Spring

Frankly feminine and romantic is the way the new hair fashions for spring and summer are being described.

The 'Belle' look is supposed to be the thing according to local beauty operators. The new hair fashions have a free and easy down line of bouncing waves and curls for day time wear. This converts dramatically into a rising 'up' line of brushed waves for evening wear.

For both daytime and evening, the love-lock will be seen adorning milady's head. Tucked in here, there or almost anywhere, the lock is perfumed in the best traditions of beaus and belles in the days of Elizabeth I.

Hair length will be short and close around the nape of the neck. It will be worn rounded on top of the head forming the top of the bell.

In the down line, especially with the free and easy silhouettes in clothes, 'The Belle' has a highly understood look of easy care and simple elegance with bouncing waves curls flowing softly down to frame the face and hug the head.

For evening elegance, the hair is brushed gently into rising wave patterns topped with love locks, especially effective with the long and fluid silhouettes and empire influence in clothing.

The hair may also be brushed up at the crown so that, when it turns to fall, it comes down in gracefully controlled layers of looped and brushed wave curls, reminiscent of cadogans worn during the Victorian eras.

For a particularly dramatic and sensational effect, little wigs and wiglets are used at the crown but always with at least one love-lock...perfumed, of course.

Makeup will also take on the light and feminine look. Eye makeup will still be much in evidence but it will emphasize the natural.

Hemlines, that unstable item that races up and down faster than you can thread a needle, will not change much this spring for Oltonites.

The hemlines on Paris fashions will drop slightly. However, most of these fashions have been much shorter than the ones seen locally.

The fashionable length this spring will be just covering the knee.

Owners of higher-priced homes usually take out both title policies. Thus, they purchase peace of mind on their substantial equity instead of trying to 'save' a few dollars, a false economy which may later invite trouble.

Title insurance took on greater significance after World War II. It is a requisite today by many banks and lending institutions for those applying for mortgage loans, and is for the lender's protection. A defective title, it was shown, may cost the 'owner' not only the price of the home but considerably greater sums if the new owner 'inherits' previously undiscovered liens, back taxes, or defects of title that do not appear on the records.

The purchaser of the $11,000-$15,000 home often withholds taking the 'owner's policy,' which protects his equity continually, 'in order to save a few dollars.' An element of risk enters, however, if flaws are subsequently found. The owner without title insurance would not be reimbursed to the extent of the defect. To compound his difficulties, the owner would be burdened with the cost of correcting the title defect and legal costs.

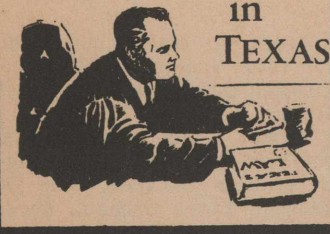

To illustrate the difference in an 'owner's policy' and the 'mortgage policy,' the following case was cited: Mr. Smith buys a home for $15,000. He places $2,000 down and takes a $13,000 mortgage loan. Pursuing the course of many home buyers, his only title insurance purchase is a 'mortgage policy' for $13,000, which the mortgage demands and which protects only the lending institution. Each year Mr. Smith's equity increases as his mortgage decreases. Nevertheless, knowingly or not, Mr. Smith is not carrying any title insurance which protect Mr. Smith.

If a faulty or fraudulent title should be discovered, or if previously-unknown liens against the property were to be established during the life of the mortgage, or after it was paid, Mr. Smith would have no protection.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Sir:
 I couldn't do without the Olton news, even though it has been 22 years since I lived there. The paper, as well as Olton, has come a long way since I left and I'm sure both will continue to grow and improve. Best wishes,
 Katherine Nafzger Sjogren

It's the Law in TEXAS

Three out of four families who buy houses in the $11,000 to $15,000 price range jeopardize their investment because they do not protect their cash and ownership with commensurate title insurance. These financial risks result from insufficient knowledge of the difference between an 'owner's policy' and a 'mortgage policy,' and lack of information about title insurance.

The main point is that the usual title insurance taken out by the purchaser of a home in the up-to-$15,000 bracket serves only to protect the bank or lending institution. It is often compulsory for the buyer to purchase this insurance, known as the 'mortgage policy,' since some mortgagees insist upon this particular safeguard as one of the loan conditions. The mortgagee policy, however never protects the home owner's equity. This is so even after the mortgage is fully paid.

A course remains open for the purchaser who wants to cover himself for the entire price of the home. He should, at the time of application for the required 'mortgage policy,' check with his attorney about simultaneously obtaining an 'owner's policy.' The 'owner's policy,' in contrast to the 'mortgage policy,' protects the home buyer as long as he owns the property. In many instances, it also protects an owner even after he sells, if he has a warranted title.

By Elaine Averitt And Bobbye Tollett

WE HAVE A GUESS WHO this week, and if you like it, let us know, and we will continue it. Our subject this time is a freshman boy who always has a smile for everyone. He is active in ag and was on the freshman football team this year, and he likes to dance and give parties. Know who he is? We'll tell you next week.

SEVERAL PEOPLE from Olton were in Plainview this week end to see the gruesome thriller, "What Ever Happened to Baby Jane". Those attending were Sue Mitchell and Roy Moss; Charlie Burrus and Tommy Witten; Dana Speer and Ced Drake; Bobbye Tollett and Ronnie Parsons; and Frankie Miller and Johnny Schenck. Several others were not brave enough to go out in the sub-zero weather, so they stayed home and watched the late movie Saturday night, "Pinky".

CAN YOU IMAGINE: RICHARD HALL losing an argument?

TANYA BRYANT being dumb? DANA SPEER being still? CLYDE GALLAWAY being stuck-up?

DEANA SCRUGGS and CAROLYN CARLISLE not being together? GAYLE NICHOLAS being a guard?

HAPPY BIRTHDAY Eugene. We know it is not until April 24, but we wanted to be the first to wish you greetings.

Cotton Trailers To Disappear

By BOB HAMILTON
Plains Farmer

The end of the cotton trailer is very near.

That is, cotton trailers as we know them today. Those expensive, fast-depreciating, slow-pulling, most-of-the-year-useless vehicles that cause more trouble than any other piece of farm equipment will soon give way to modern, less expensive and long-lasting baskets.

First publicity on the High Plains on baskets for cotton harvesting was written in The Plains Farmer, page 8, Feb. 1, 1961. This was a story on baskets developed at the Southeastern Cotton Ginning Research Laboratory in South Carolina.

These baskets, however, were not at that time practical for our area's fast stripping harvesting methods.

Then on Aug. 15, 1962, The Plains Farmer carried a story about basket storage on the gin yard, as introduced in the area by the Mayfield Co-Op Gin.

But these baskets allowed only temporary relief of trailers, because the trailers had to first be unloaded at the gin by suction. Then the trailers had to be handled four times or more before emptied. This was costly to the gin and detained trailers waiting to be unloaded.

Now baskets can be filled in the fields, transported to the gin yard, and left without delay to harvesting or in manhours.

Advancement in the procedure was brought about by the simple development of overhead baskets for cotton strippers. The baskets can be dumped into high-sided baskets on the turnrows and here, the problem is solved.

These overhead baskets are not new. They have been used for mechanical pickers for years. But only recently have they been developed for strippers. Most of these units built on the High Plains have come from a machine shop at Abernathy, in Hale County. However, several other home-made units have been sighted this year also.

The problem with the earlier publicized basket was the loading, but the overhead stripper basket has taken care of this. There are hundreds of reasons why baskets are more desirable than the old style trailers for cotton harvesting.

First of all, they are far less expensive. Baskets, 4x6x7 feet made of wood or iron frame and covered with 3/4 inch hardware cloth or chicken wire, can be made on the farm during slack seasons. There will be little or no depreciation to the baskets, with repairs very simple. They will be light, also.

The baskets can be transported by sturdy, well-constructed flat bed trailers. Optional size can handle two or three of the one-hale baskets. At least two of these trailers will be needed per stripper, so that one can be enroute while the other is being loaded. Because of the lower costs, these trailers can be precision-built for faster hauling and can be equipped with heavy tires instead of the cheap used tires now sought by the multi-trailer farmer.

The trailers, if not used for hauling equipment or bundles of season, can be easily stored because there will be fewer of them. The tires can be removed if inside storage facilities are lacking, and put up, insuring years of use.

Metal baskets will depreciate far slower than wooden trailers now used, when left outside while idle. Repairs require only a touch of the welding torch.

Also, because of fewer trailers, cost of licensing is lowered.

What happens when the farmer doesn't have enough baskets for his entire crop? The cotton can be dumped at any desirable spot in the field or on the turnrow, and picked up when baskets are available. Picking up the cotton is a simple matter, by merely detaching the suction tube from the stripper, swinging it over to the pile of cotton, and letting the suction fan pick it up and carry it into the overhead basket, then dumped into the transport basket when available.

Another advantage to the over-head stripper basket is the fact that forced air carries it from the stripper to the basket, and this allows much of the dirt picked up to be blown away from the load, possibly raising the grade some.

Ownership of the baskets is something to be determined between the ginners and the farmers. Obviously, ginners who furnish cotton trailers now would welcome something far less expensive as the baskets.

Also from the ginners point of view, there would be little or no breakdowns occurring on their gin yards, as now takes place with rickety, worn out trailers. There would be no flat tires to fill before the trailer could be taken to the suction stands.

The baskets would require gins to equip themselves with fork lifts. They would also have to set up permanent stands for the baskets. But gin yards would hold more cotton since less turning space for vehicles would be required.

Other benefits for the ginner would be found during bad weather, if they were able to do such things as hard surface paths for the fork lifts and build open side sheds to cover the loaded baskets.

Building baskets would be a good way for gins to employ desirable crews the year around, rather than seeking new personnel.

Arrest Made In Connection With Forgery

Rueben Luna was arrested here Saturday in connection with a forged check given at J. C. Jones Co.

Luna, under a four-year probation sentence for burglary and forgery, was taken to Littlefield after his arrest.

AMBULANCE CALL

J. T. Grant was taken to Lubbock Osteopathic Hospital Friday by an ambulance from Parsons Funeral Home for surgery.

Corn Varieties Are Evaluated

Eighteen varieties of corn were evaluated at the High Plains Research Foundation in 1962. The yield ranged from 145 to 92.5 bushels per acre. The corn variety tests were conducted by Barry Love, assistant agronomist, and Paul M. Belcher, laboratory assistant at the Foundation.

The 18 varieties were planted April 24 in four row plots 50 feet long. There were four plots for each variety in randomized blocks. They were harvested Sept. 18 and 19. All plots were fertilized at planting time with 218 pounds of 13-39-0 per acre.

This fertilizer was applied four inches to the side and four inches below the seed. All plots were fertilized with a sidedressing of 150 pounds anhydrous ammonia June 26.

The highest corn yields for the last four years have been 94 bushels in 1959; 172 bushels in 1960; 165 bushels in 1961; and 145 bushels in 1962.

Safflower Is Tested At HPRF

Six varieties of safflower were tested at the High Plains Research Foundation in 1962. The high yield was 1,070 pounds per acre. This was higher than in previous years but lower than would be required to make safflower a suitable crop for this area. A date of planting test will be included in the 1963 research program for safflower to determine if this factor would affect the yield.

The six varieties were planted April 4 and harvested Aug. 18. All plots received a two inch preplant irrigation Feb. 20 and received no further irrigation throughout the growing season. Rainfall measured 15.45 between planting date and the date of harvest. The varieties received a 60 pound application of anhydrous ammonia per acre.

Foundation Report No. 51 on Safflower by Barry Love and Paul M. Belcher included data on Early Vigor, Bloom Date, Rust Damage, Plant Height, Plants per Foot of Double Row, Seeds per Head, Weight of Seeds, and Yield in Pounds Per Acre.

Clayton Lands Top Assignments

Bill Clayton of Springlake, newly-elected state representative from the 91st District, landed in a bowl of cherries when House committee assignments were announced Friday. Clayton drew one of the heaviest and most important committee assignments of any of the 60 freshman legislators.

He was one of four freshmen to be chosen for the important appropriation committee, headed by fellow West Texan, Bill Headley of Paducah. Clayton was also asked to serve on the Conservation and Reclamation Committee, which is important to this district.

In addition, he was named to the Committees on the Municipal and Private Corporations, Public Lands and Buildings and Labor.

The new representative made his first appearance on the floor of the House and first address to its 150 members Wednesday when he sponsored Charles Duval, Jr., of Littlefield, for the elective office of assistant reading clerk, which resulted in Duval's election to the post.
