Midland Reporter-Telegram

Daily 35¢, Sunday $1 | WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29, 1988 | Vol. 63, No. 119

George Wolf/Reporter-Telegram

Attorney Tom Sealy stands at the intersection of Harvard Avenue and D Street, where the city plans to install a four-way stop. The popular shortcut for Midland High School students also has been the scene of numerous accidents over the years.

Sign should put a stop to traveling in the fast lane

By CHRIS VAN WAGENEN
Staff Writer

Over the years they've struck everything from retaining walls to homes. But on D Street in Midland, the joy of traveling in the fast lane is coming to an end — at least at the intersection of Harvard Avenue.

Come next month, the city has every intention of making this thoroughfare anything, but popular.

"I've had several (motorists) blow out their tires on that retaining wall," said Margaret Frasier, whose home is one of several situated along this unlikely stretch for traffic.

Certainly, Traffic Engineer Fred McGary would agree. In an area that should boast no more than 300 vehicles per day, D Street is Main Street to about 1,000 motorists — many of which travel at excessive speeds.

"There's a good reason behind it (the stop sign)," said McGary. "What's happening is they're (motorists) using it as a short cut to avoid the school zone on A Street.

D Street is also popular with Midland High students, who scoot through this plush neighborhood, sometimes with disasterous results. In the Frasiers' case, one vehicle came through their living room at 2 a.m.

While that particular incident occurred about 10 years ago, it has hardly been the last.

Two months ago, a jeep traveling at a high rate of speed flipped over in her neighbor's yard, at a corner house across the street. Another accident in that same area occurred two hours later.

And that prompted residents in the area to seek relief from the city. About 250 people signed a petition asking the council for help.

McGary said a combination of speed and roadway water has contributed to the problem. Council members agreed.

"We finally decided we just couldn't live with this anymore," said attorney Tom Sealy, whose own home sits at the intersection.

McGary said the two new signs at D Street — which are expected to be installed sometime in July — also will eliminate the blind corner challenge that residents face when turning from Harvard onto D Street.

City officials indicated that police will be monitoring the area once signs are installed.

Baressi proposes pay hike

Tax rate may also be increased

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

■ MISD board structures bond sale — 1B

The good news is that local teachers may get a 5.2 percent pay hike next year. The bad news is that citizens may pay almost three times that percentage in a tax rate increase next year.

According to a preliminary budget study, the Midland Independent School District would need to raise its current maintenance and operations (MO) tax rate of 70.2 cents per $100 valuation by 4.6 cents — or 6.55 percent — to garner the same amount of tax revenues it received last year.

To make ends meet this next school year, however, an additional 6 cents — 8 percent — would need to be added to the MO tax rate, according to the budget study explained at Tuesday night's board meeting.

The 15 percent actual MO tax increase would not neccessitate a "rollback" election for the district.

The current MO tax rate of 70.2 cents per $100 of valuation plus the debt service tax rate of 9.7 cents per $100 of valuation equals the district's overall current tax rate of 79.9 cents per $100 of valuation.

The hike would reflect a new tax rate of 90.5 cents per $100 valuation — containing an MO tax rate of 80.8 cents per $100 of valuation and a debt service tax rate of 9.7 cents per $100 of valuation.

As promised by trustees, the debt service portion of the tax rate will remain the same next year despite the sale of $11.8 million in bonds needed to finance the district's elementary expansion plans.

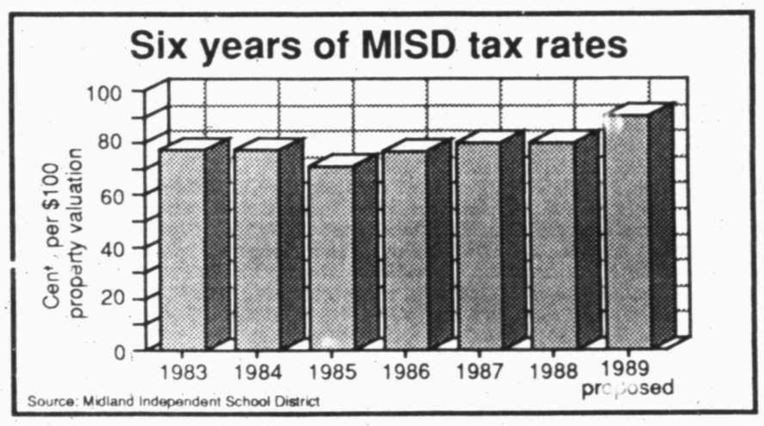

Taxes last year on a $75,000 house were $599.25. With the 15 percent actual MO tax rate increase, a taxpayer would pay $678.75 in school district taxes on a $75,000 house.

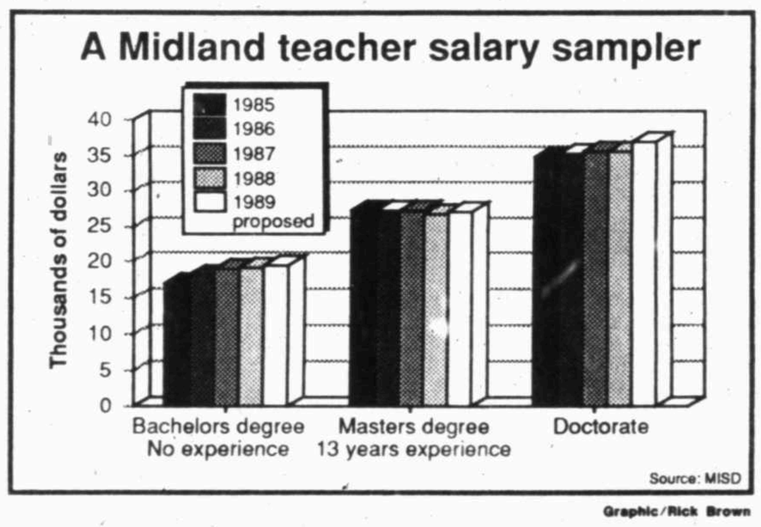

Factored into the proposed tax hike are the dwindling county tax bases and the costs of items such as new employees and personnel pay raises, Superintendent Joe Baressi said.

The overall expenditures for the 1988-89 school year are tentatively set at $63,206,329.

That figure is a 7.15 percent increase over last year's budget, but still more than $1 million over the district's anticipated revenues next year, the report stated.

Board abolishes 24-hour policy

Trustees call for panel to study alternatives

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

Seven new school board members kept campaign promises Tuesday night to seriously consider citizens' views on controversial issues.

After hearing a stream of parents oppose the district's 24-hour extracurricular no-drug policy, trustees voted on first reading to abolish the plan created under fire in 1986.

But in ending the 24-hour policy, trustees maintained it was a privilege for students to represent the district in outside activities and that an anti-drug and tobacco policy of some sort was needed.

School district trustees called for the establishment of a community panel to find alternatives to the policy that had called for peer- and teacher-monitoring of students involved in extracurricular activities.

A student participating in such activities was prohibited from using or possessing tobacco, drugs or alcohol at any time of the year day or night. He faced serious penalties including removal from his extracurricular activities should he have been found guilty of an infraction.

Parents said at the board meeting Tuesday it was their responsibility — not the school board's — to monitor the activities of their children when they were not in school.

Furthermore, the policy was enforced differently at the seven secondary campuses and was therefore unenforceable, parents said.

Parent Judy Ferris told the board Tuesday night she thought it strange that a student charged with auto theft was not in danger of being removed from extracurricular activities — as was the case with a Midland High School boy earlier this year — while a student caught smoking a cigarette was.

"I started thinking about how unfair this policy was," 15-year-old C.J. Garibay, a MHS band member, told the board. "In the opinion of the school board, it looks like kids not involved in extracurricular activities aren't as important.

"In the past 15 years I think my parents have done an excellent job of raising me without the school board's help," the boy said as the room broke into applause and laughter.

"When you (school board trustees) were kids you didn't have a policy and look where you are. You're not in jail or anything," C.J. said.

Trustees and parents were in agreement that a policy relating to the prohibition of the three substances was definitely needed.

But Superintendent Joe Baressi admitted: "If a majority of folks aren't going to support it (the 24-hour policy), then it's no better than the speed limit.

"But we're sending a message we don't care if we drop a policy altogether. Beating Permian (High School) is not what this school system is all about. Caring about our children is what we are about," the superintendent maintained.

Trustees said a panel of PTA presidents and parents from the district's seven secondary school campuses along with extracurricular activity sponsors will meet to hash out plans for an alternative drug, alcohol and tobacco policy.

Marcum: Water possibly polluted

By CHRIS VAN WAGENEN
Staff Writer

Concerns over possible fresh water contamination as well as suspected illegal use of city-owned property has prompted an investigation into permits issued to operators at its 22,000-acre T-Bar Ranch.

The land — located between Winkler and Loving counties — is an untapped water reservoir that was purchased by Midland in the late 1960s. However, over the years, the land has been opened to oil drilling activity.

While the city has no mineral rights, it does control the vast fresh water supply — a supply that may or may not be contaminated.

Council said it intends to look into the activities of Austin-based Texas Vanguard Oil Co., which from documentation, apparently has neglected certain wells in the area.

Councilman Bob Monaghan, who visited the site last week, said he found indications of surface damage to the area, where ponds of oil and brine were found around the wells.

Monaghan returned from his trip armed with photos as well as other information that suggest Vanguard may not be alone — that other companies may be drilling without permits on the vast ranchland.

"Anytime you have a situation where there's the potential of your water source being polluted, it's a concern," said Councilman Gordon Marcum II. "We want to become more familiar with their (Vanguard's) operation."

Council indicated its intent to hire a hydrologist to determine whether or not groundwater contamination to the fresh water supply has, indeed, occurred. City Manager Fred Poe said Joe Reed & Associates will be conducting tests in the area.

"I doubt if any damage has been done at this time," said Poe. "But if it continued over a period of years, it could be significant."

Marcum said open disposal water tanks appear to have triggered the problem at the Vanguard sites in question, where a faulty separator apparently couldn't do the job.

The city said that in addition to tests, Reed will be examining Texas Railroad Commission records to identifiy just how many permits have been issued and to whom.

Monaghan told council there also was some evidence that the city's freshwater source had been tapped by some operators for use in their drilling operations.

Poe said that while the city has sold water on occasions, at no time were operators given authorization to use it in conjunction with drilling activities.

Poe said he had every intention of instructing John Lowe, the city's director of utilities, to begin sifting through city files to determine just how many permits have been issued.

He also said that the Railroad Commission was aware of the problem and that the state's regulatory arm had given some indication that Vanguard had possibly violated some regulations.

City officials said at least three other companies are operating on the ranch, including ARCO Oil & Gas Co. While their activities also will be looked at, officials said they are not aware of any problems at those sites.

While the area of concern is small, Marcum said the city plans to make certain that Vanguard cleans it up. "We just want to make sure our water sands are protected from pollution."

Health officials alert West Texans to rabies cases

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

The largest number of animal rabies cases reported in 36 West Texas counties — including one case in Midland County — since 1979-80 has prompted state officials to issue an unofficial health alert.

Dr. Evret Newman, regional veterinarian for the Texas Department of Health in El Paso, said Tuesday that 67 cases of animal rabies have been reported during the first six months of the year in the 36-county region, which extends from San Angelo to El Paso.

Of the total number of positive diagnosis, Newman reported 28 cases were discovered in the Concho Valley, while the remainder of the cases were detected in the Permian Basin.

"What we're seeing from the Permian Basin and to the east is a marked increase from what we've seen in the past," said Newman, noting that so far this year, rabies has been detected in seven different species of animals: cattle, horses, skunks, cats, foxes, racoons and goats.

Midland County reported it's first confirmed case of animal rabies Tuesday.

The infected animal — a female cat — was destroyed and tested for the virus after a Midland boy reportedly had been exposed to the feline last week near County Roads 715 South and 120 East, said Constable Ron Rice, who learned of the diagnosis Monday.

As it turned out, the boy received the scratch several months ago and "is in no danger," Rice said.

Rabies is a virus which lives in saliva and is most difficult to treat in humans, said Newman, observing that a vaccine is usually administered after exposure occurs and before it reaches the body's central nervous system.

Guy Moore, zoonosis control specialist for Public Health Region 3, attributed the large rabies outbreak this year to the growth in the area's wildlife population and the recent drought.

WEATHER SUMMARY

From Staff and Wire Reports

Partly cloudy skies and a 30 percent chance of thundershowers are in the forecast for tonight, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport. The low will reach near 70 and winds will be southeasterly 5-10 mph.

Thursday is expected to be much the same with a continued 30 percent chance of thundershowers. The high will be in the upper 90s and southerly winds will gust from 10-20 mph.

Tuesday's high of 94 was 11 degrees cooler than the record high of 105 set for that date in 1980. The overnight low of 67 was 10 degrees warmer than the record low of 57 set for that date in 1985.

STATE

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast for most of North Texas and West Texas through Thursday.

And forecasters warn that some of the thunderstorms may produce locally heavy rainfall over the area of West Texas east of the mountains.

It will remain partly cloudy, hot and humid statewide through Thursday.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were reported during the night over western portions of the High Plains, but forecasters said msot of the precipitation had died out or weakened by 5 a.m. today.

The showers and thunderstorms are being triggered by the combination of a tropical air mass and a trough of low pressure over West Texas. But a ridge of high pressure over the state extending northward from the Gulf of Mexico is weakening some of the system.

NATION

Thunderstorms and cooler weather soothed parts of the drought-parched central United States early today, after setting at least one record for rainfall.

Madison, Wis., received 1.67 inches of rain on Tuesday, breaking a 60-year-old mark of 1.62 inches.

Despite a break in the 100-degree temperatures, health officials in St. Louis reported another death Tuesday from Saturday's torrid heat. An 87-year-old woman died of heat stroke, bringing to nine the number of weather-related deaths there in a recent heat wave.

In Colorado, a flash flood warning was issued Tuesday night for parts of Gunnison County as the Ohio Creek flooded its banks and water up to 4 feet deep surrounded homes north of Gunnison.

Other heavy rainfall totals early today included 3.1 inches at Oklahoma City, 2.14 inches at La Crosse, Wis., and 1.19 inches at Laramie, Wyo.

Severe weather accompanied the rain in some areas. Thunderstorms in northwestern Oklahoma produced gusts to 62 mph that downed trees. Strong thunderstorm winds also downed tree limbs and damaged a mobile home and a barn.

A thunderstorm in eastern Nebraska hurled gusts to 65 mph, while thunderstorms in Montana dropped golf ball-size hail.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms extended from the high Plains to the middle Mississippi Valley early today, with thunderstorms most numerous in eastern Nebraska and western Iowa, two of the states worst hit by the drought.

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms also dampened the Rocky Mountain region, the Northeast and the Florida peninsula.

The forecast for today called for widespread showers and thunderstorms from the northern Rockies through the Missouri Valley into the middle Mississippi Valley and Florida; showers and a few thunderstorms scattered over much of New England; and mostly sunny skies over the rest of the rest of the nation.

Court upholds prosecutor law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a setback to the Reagan administration and some of its key former officials, today upheld a law that allows independent prosecutors to investigate alleged crimes by high-ranking government officials.

The 7-1 decision dispels crucial doubts about the convictions of former Reagan aides Michael K. Deaver and Lyn C. Nofziger and clears away a possible stumbling block in the prosecution of ex-White House aides Oliver North, John M. Poindexter and two others indicted in the Iran-Contra affair.

The decision also allows an investigation to continue into the activities of Attorney General Edwin Meese III, accused of financial improprieties and conflicts of interest.

The court, in a momentous constitutional decision, said the special prosecutor law does not violate the separation of powers between the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government guaranteed by the Constitution.

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, in his opinion for the court, said, "We observe first that this case does not involve an attempt by Congress to increase its own powers at the expense of the executive branch.

"Similarly, we do not think that the act works any judicial usurpation of properly executive functions."

Rehnquist continued, "Finally, we do not think that the act impermissibly undermines the powers of the executive branch or disrupts the proper balance between the coordinate branches."

Lawrence E. Walsh, the independent counsel investigating the Iran-Contra affair, said in a statement moments after the decision was announced:

"The independent counsel statute provides a workable solution to a difficult problem. We are gratified that the Supreme Court has upheld the constitutionality of that statute."

The chief justice acknowledged that the law limits presidential power to investigate and prosecute some alleged crimes.

But he said there are adequate safeguards to protect against abuses.

For example, Rehnquist said, the law permits the attorney general to decide when a special prosecutor is warranted and allows the attorney general to fire a special prosecutor for "good cause."

"Notwithstanding the fact that the counsel is to some degree 'independent' and free from executive supervision to a greater extent than other federal prosecutors, in our view...the act gives the executive branch sufficient control over the independent counsel to ensure that the president is able to perform his constitutionally assigned duties," Rehnquist said.

The chief justice read parts of his 38-page opinion from the bench, speaking for five minutes.

Underscoring the importance of the case, Justice Antonin Scalia read a portion of his lone dissent for nine minutes.

Scalia said the balance of powers and the separation of powers are what make the U.S. Constitution a unique and enduring document.

"In dictatorships of the modern world, bills of rights are a dime a dozen," he said.

The decision was the last to be handed down by the high court on its last day of the 1987-88 term.

Justice Anthony M. Kennedy, the newest member of the court and one of three justices appointed by President Reagan, did not take part in the independent prosecutor decision. Kennedy disqualified himself without giving an explanation.

The court overturned a 2-1 federal appeals court ruling last Jan. 22 that declared the Watergate-era special prosecutor law unconstitutional.

Congress passed the law after the scandal that led to President Nixon's resignation to provide an independent mechanism for investigating alleged high-level government wrongdoing.

Opponents and supporters of the law, a key portion of the Ethics in Government Act, cited the Watergate case to buttress their position.

The law's advocates said it was essential to assure the nation that crimes in high places would not be covered up.

But opponents pointed out that Nixon was forced out of office because of public opinion and the threat of impeachment, without any need for an independent investigation.

The law empowers a special federal court to appoint independent counsels, or special prosecutors, at the request of the attorney general. The attorney general first conducts a preliminary probe, generally lasting up to 90 days, to determine whether charges against a government official warrant appointment of the outside counsel.

The law was challenged by Theodore B. Olson, a former assistant attorney general accused of lying to Congress in 1983 during a dispute over the Environmental Protection Agency's cleanup program for toxic waste sites.

Alexia Morrison, a Washington lawyer, is the special prosecutor investigating the case.

The Reagan administration supported Olson's challenge, arguing that the independent counsels violate constitutionally mandated separation of powers between the three branches of government.

Among the defenders of the law are the Senate and the Democratic leadership in the House.

Ten-year-old boy admits he killed playmate

ROCKWALL, Texas (AP) — A 10-year-old boy who shot a playmate hid the body beneath his bedroom closet and helped police in a week-long search before admitting that he accidentally killed him in an argument, authorities said.

"He put his body down in the scuttle hole and then he came back out and cleaned up the blood," said police Sgt. Mark Chamberlain said Tuesday. "He even told his mother later that he had spilled some Kool-Aid."

The June 20 disappearance of Jason Daniel Powell, 10, drew together hundreds of residents of this community of about 10,000. Police had searched the other boy's house where Jason's body was found, but were unaware of the crawl space beneath the flooring.

"At the time we were searching with the idea that he was still alive somewhere. We thought maybe he was hiding out and that his friends were protecting him," Chamberlain said. "We were looking for a boy, not a body."

The youth moved his friend's bicycle to a field two blocks away from his home and joined in searches in the area, Chamberlain said.

The search ended Monday when Carol Cade found Jason's badly decomposed body beneath a closet in her home after smelling a stench.

After the discovery, the 10-year-old admitted to authorities that he had shot Jason, but said he did not know the gun was loaded, authorities said. The Dallas County Medical Examiner said Jason suffered a single .22-caliber gunshot wound to the head.

The boy, whose name was withheld by authorities, was questioned and released to his mother, police said. The case has been turned over to the district attorney's office, Police Chief Bruce Beaty said.

Officials would not elaborate on Mrs. Cade's relationship to the boy, but friends said he was her son.

"They were in the living room playing video games and he wanted to go outside and play but Jason said, no, that he wanted to stay inside," said Jason's 18-year-old brother, Sean Powell, in an account confirmed by police.

"He went into another room and came back with a pistol where Jason was lying on the floor and said, 'If you don't go outside to the playhouse I'm going to shoot you,'" Sean said. "And he shot him once in the head. He died instantly."

Tuesday night, the single-story brick home where authorities removed Jason's body after cutting away a section of flooring was empty. Mrs. Cade had permission to return Tuesday afternoon, but stayed away, Chamberlain said.

Ambulances told to drive by when emergency rooms full

HOUSTON (AP) — Hermann Hospital officials asked city ambulances to drive by its emergency room with severely injured patients and women in labor after the institution put into effect a policy that allows its administrators to limit admissions when units are full.

Many such patients will have to go to Ben Taub and Jefferson Davis hospitals, where Harris County Hospital District Administrator Richard Durbin is keeping close tabs on the number of people admitted and beds filled.

"If this is a forerunner of the future, it's not too bright," Durbin said Tuesday.

Earlier this month, the Hermann Trust board approved the drive-by plan, which allows administrators to call a halt to emergency admissions when units fill up.

The plan started Tuesday, and by 10:30 a.m., Durbin got the first call that Hermann needed to ask the ambulances to drive by.

Three units at Hermann were full, said spokeswoman Rickie Rosenberg: the surgical intensive care unit, the neurosurgical intensive care unit and the labor and delivery department. Hospital administrators requested that severely injured patients, those with head injuries and women in labor be taken elsewhere.

Hermann and Ben Taub operate the only major trauma centers in the city with specialists in the hospital at all times. Most severely injured patients would be taken to Ben Taub.

Dr. Paul Pepe, medical director of the Houston Fire Department's emergency medical services, said ambulances are involved in as many as 350 incidents per day, but no more than two to three patients would be affected by the Hermann problem. At present, Ben Taub can easily absorb that, he said.

However, should both Ben Taub and Hermann ask that ambulances bypass their emergency room, Pepe said he would have to request cooperation from other city hospitals, perhaps placing them on standby.

When the hospital district's new facility in northeast Houston opens, that emergency room will take some of the load off the Texas Medical Center facilities, Durbin said.

PAY

Therefore, as was the case last year, the board likely will have to dip into the district's $12.8 million reserve kitty to cover the difference, trustees said.

Dipping into the reserves, however, will not bring its balance down to an amount that would prevent the district from having on hand about 2½ months' worth of operating money, figures showed.

Teacher group representatives generally were pleased with the district's show of support. Salaries account for 80 percent of the district's operating budget.

However, concern arose from the educators that teachers with less experience were actually getting more in raises than were those with higher degrees and more years of experience.

The 5.2 percent pay raise proposed Tuesday by Baressi translates into $1,250 for every teaching professional.

As well, MISD's non-teaching employees were recommended for the 5 percent pay hike as well, Baressi said. (The 5.2 percent teacher pay hike was 5 percent of the midpoint in teacher salary schedules.)

The salary proposal would bring Midland teachers to an average of 17.4 percent above the established state base, but still below the national average in some cases.

The cost of the pay rate proposal is about $2 million. In the 1986-87 school year, the average raise was 4.1 percent, while the next year it dropped to 2.6 percent.

"I feel the pay raise is important. Teachers have maintained quality programs and at the same time we have lowered the cost (for education) per student," Baressi said.

"If we had $30 a barrel oil, they'd deserve more," the superintendent said.

A Texas State Teachers Association representative in Midland said she was happy the board proposed the hikes, but was worried the board's move was more advantageous to teachers with fewer years of experience.

"All over Texas people have to bite the educational bullet," explained TSTA Representative Alma Marshall. "If you think education is expensive, try ignorance."

Trustees are scheduled to vote on the pay increases next month and on the tax hike in August.

POLICY

A plan whereby "training rules" could be established pertaining to students in extracurricular activities "in season" was an alternative suggested by Baressi, as was an "honors pledge" whereby students would promise their parents they will not engage in the use of the three substances.

Trustees in a prior motion to liberalize their tobacco policy for all students allowed a third infraction to occur before a student is assigned to the Alternative Education Center.

It is against state law for students to smoke on school-related property, Baressi said.

STOP

In addition to D Street, council approved new stop signs at the intersections of Storey Avenue and Stonybrook Drive; Madison at Wall streets; and Taylor Avenue at Marshall Street.

In other business, the council:

- deferred action on a resolution to authorize bids on demolition and cleanup of the Wild River Canyon site. The city is examining alternatives that would preserve existing trees and roads on the property.
- agreed to share in the paving costs of a portion of Bluebird Lane with developer Bill Black of W.R. Black Inc. The city said it would reimburse Black for his share of the paving that will amount to about $25,000.
- authorized the city engineer to take core samples along Wadley Avenue, between Ward Street and Whitney Drive. The city said concrete poured along certain portions of that stretch may not have met specifications.
- held its first reading on granting a permit to David Nolan who wants to establish a nightclub at the corner of Wall and North Baird streets.

RABIES

"What happens when we have dry weather is that the wild animals start looking for food and water and come into areas where humans are," Moore said. "We're going to start picking up our positive animals because we'll have interaction between wild animals and domestic animals."

On a different front, Newman said Tuesday that a plague outbreak noted earlier this year seems to have abated.

"It's real quiet," said Newman, noting that the El Paso health department office has received no reports of plague nor found samples of the disease in department field trips for 1½ months.

"I'm sure the disease is still there," he said, "but as far as the big outbreak, it's over."

Over the almost six months that the department was concerned about plague, large rodent and rabbit dieoffs were noted across West Texas and one Fort Stockton man contracted the disease, but later recovered.

Memo: Pentagon purchasing chief trying to stop contractor searches

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department's chief purchasing official sought last month to give top Pentagon political appointees the power to veto searches of the private contractors who supply military equipment.

Robert Costello, the undersecretary of defense for acquisition, proposed the search warrant review in a May 5 memo, written before the public ever learned of a two-year nationwide investigation into allegedly corrupt Pentagon contracting. The Associated Press obtained the memo Tuesday.

Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci rejected the proposal, perceiving it as "interference in the conduct of criminal investigations," Air Force Col. David J. Shea, a Pentagon spokesman, said Tuesday.

The plan could have curtailed a crucial tool for investigators seeking evidence that top-secret Pentagon information was sold to private consultants, who then sold it to contractors. About three dozen searches have been conducted so far.

The Costello-to-Carlucci memo complained that Defense Department investigators had executed a search last February in a "sensational" manner by using some two dozen law enforcement officers and failing to give the company prior notice. That particular search was part of a fraud investigation, but was apparently unrelated to the nationwide probe.

Initially, Carlucci sent Costello a note saying, "This is a good idea," Shea said.

But Shea insisted Tuesday the note referred only to Costello's suggestion that Pentagon investigators be trained to obtain evidence "in the least forceful and sensational manner."

Shea said Carlucci "doesn't want to be associated with" Costello's proposal that a "review and approval" system be established for search warrants.

"The appropriate level of review and-or approval should at least be (Deputy Secretary of Defense) Will Taft or myself, and quite possibly yourself," Costello wrote.

Costello was testifying today before the House Armed Services Committee, in the first congressional hearing into contracting practices since the investigation became public.

On Tuesday, a Justice Department official confirmed that Attorney General Edwin Meese III has removed himself from the investigation, because his own lawyers represent figures in the Pentagon case.

Earlier in the day, Meese had spoken about the case at length during a news conference, but never mentioned that he had withdrawn from it.

Meese spokesman Patrick Korten later confirmed that the attorney general had recused himself. Korten said Meese didn't mention it because "there wasn't any particular reason to mention it."

At the news conference, Meese said he thinks Congress is to blame for creating an atmosphere conducive to scandal at the Pentagon. He said Congress puts "layers of requirements" on Pentagon officials and ignores budget planning cycles, leading contractors to say, "We've got to get ours now."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said he agrees there are too many regulations, but many came from within the Pentagon rather than from Congress. In any event, he said, that is no excuse for "pure old fraud, waste and greed."

Meese fails to mention withdrawal from probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III spoke at length at a news conference about the Pentagon bribery investigation, but never mentioned that he had removed himself from decisions in the case a day earlier because his own lawyers represent clients in the probe.

The burgeoning Defense Department contract fraud investigation was the dominant topic at Meese's news conference Tuesday afternoon, generating nine questions. Meese told reporters that earlier Tuesday he had briefed Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci, who is trying to determine whether to take administrative action against any contractors or Pentagon employees.

Meese

At the same news conference, Meese volunteered that he was recused from a Justice Department civil suit against the Teamsters union, because they were the main union that endorsed President Reagan in 1980 and Meese was a top campaign official.

But he said not a word about stepping aside in the Pentagon probe.

In response to questions Tuesday night from The Associated Press, Justice Department spokesman Patrick Korten said Meese's recusal was relayed to top top Justice officials in a memo sent Monday by Edward Dennis, acting assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division.

Korten said Meese did not mention his recusal at the news conference because "there wasn't any particular reason to mention it."

Korten said the attorney general's law firm, Miller, Cassidy, Larroca & Lewin, "keeps him informed of what clients they have that may have business pending before the department and in those cases, Meese recuses himself to be safe."

"Miller, Cassidy has two clients with some connection with the defense investigation," Korten said. He said he did not know who the clients were.

The law firm represents Meese in the year-old investigation by independent counsel James McKay into whether Meese used public office to favor friends or companies which may have, in turn, rewarded him or his family.

Prosecutors seek to break alleged Mafia domination of Teamsters

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal prosecutors launched a "surgical" strike against the nation's largest labor union, announcing a racketeering lawsuit to break the Mafia's alleged domination of the Teamsters.

Spokesmen for the 1.6 million-member union called the civil racketeering suit "a vicious anti-labor attack" and said allegations of ties to organized crime were "pure myth."

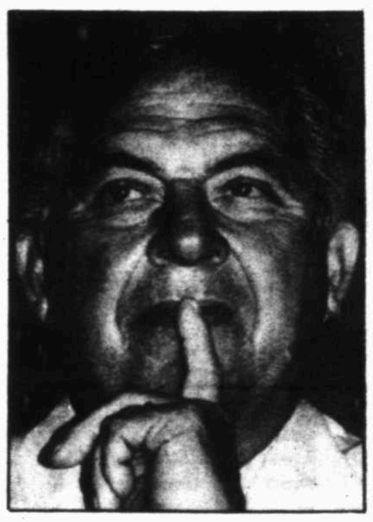

Hours after the lawsuit was filed Tuesday here, Teamsters president Jackie Presser was readmitted to a Cleveland hospital, where he was in serious condition today. Presser suffers from brain tumors.

U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani stressed that "this lawsuit is not in any sense an attack on trade unionism or on the many, many Teamsters who are honest, hard-working people."

"We are not seeking overall control of the Teamsters union," Giuliani said. "This is a use of the racketeering statute in a surgical way to attempt to take back from the Mafia the Teamsters union."

The U.S. District Court lawsuit charged that Teamsters leaders made "a devil's pact" with the Mafia, insuring the elections of top officers, including Presser and his predecessor, Roy Williams.

Organized crime "has deprived union members of their rights through a pattern of racketeering that includes 20 murders, a number of shootings, bombings, beatings, a campaign of fear, extortion and theft and misuses of union funds," Giuliani said.

Weldon Mathis

Court papers noted that four of the last five Teamsters presidents have faced federal felony charges and three were convicted: David Beck for embezzlement; James "Jimmy" Hoffa for obstructing justice and mail fraud, and Williams for trying to bribe a U.S. senator.

The government wants a federal judge to remove from office any Teamsters officers found to have violated federal racketeering laws. It also seeks appointment of a union trustee to ensure fair union elections.

Named as defendants were: the International Brotherhood of Teamsters; its general executive board as a group; the executive board's 18 members and one former member as individuals; 26 alleged members or associates of the Mafia; and the mob's ruling "Commission" as a group.

Twenty-five of those 26 defendants have been convicted of Teamsters-related crimes such as labor peace extortion, embezzling union funds or taking labor payoffs. The board consists of Presser; Weldon Mathis, the secretary-treasurer and acting president; and 16 vice presidents.

Judge David N. Edelstein granted the government a temporary restraining order that bars the board from making large expenditures of union funds or destroying union records. The order also banned the 25 previously convicted mob defendants from participating in union affairs.

A hearing is scheduled for Tuesday.

AMA delegates oppose mercy killing

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association rejected a ban on publishing articles about euthanasia, but the nation's largest doctors' group held firm against mercy killing.

The AMA's House of Delegates on Tuesday also called for bans on toy guns that can be mistaken for the real thing and on real, non-metallic firearms that can slip through metal detectors and other screening devices.

The policy-making arm of the 295,000-member group voted to urge the federal government to end price supports for tobacco and help tobacco farmers begin growing other crops, but postponed action on a proposal for doubling the federal tobacco tax.

The 420 delegates were to vote today on proposals urging a shift in the war on drugs from busting traffickers to treating abusers, an overhaul of the Medicaid insurance system and creation of a new class of hospital worker.

The delegates reiterated their opposition to mercy killing in the wake of an uproar over the Journal of the American Medical Association's publication earlier this year of an article by a doctor describing how he ended a cancer patient's life at her request.

The article, "It's Over Debbie," touched off widespread criticism of the journal for not publishing the author's name and for not including a clear statement of the AMA's opposition to mercy killing.

Police believe others may be endangered by cult dispute

HOUSTON (AP) — Police investigating the shooting deaths of four people slain in what is believed to be part of an ongoing polygamist cult dispute say others connected with the feud also may be in danger.

Shooting suspect

An 8-year-old girl and three one-time followers of the late polygamist patriarch Ervil LeBaron were killed in three separate attacks.

The girl, her father and his brother were shot execution-style Monday afternoon at two different sites in Houston, while the third man was ambushed in the Dallas suburb of Irving.

No arrests had been made in the shootings Tuesday, but Houston Homicide Lt. Richard Holland said investigators want to talk to several people about the case.

"We would like to talk to all of the LeBaron brothers," he said, adding he knew of at least three brothers. "We are seeking a number of persons for questioning in this case, one of which is Mr. Heber LeBaron."

Heber LeBaron is believed to be Roger Samuel Harrison, who is wanted on a warrant issued for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution on a bank robbery charge in Richardson, Holland said.

Duane Chynoweth, 31, and his daughter, Jennifer, were slain about 4 p.m. Monday in a pickup truck parked outside a vacant house in Houston. Chynoweth was shot several times in the head while the girl was shot once in the face, police said.

Chynoweth apparently was delivering an appliance to the house. Police were trying to determine who arranged for the delivery. A witness saw two men in a dark-colored pickup approach Chynoweth and exchange words with him before gunfire erupted.

About the same time, Chynoweth's brother, Mark, 36, was found shot to death at an appliance business a few miles away. Mark Chynoweth was Ervil LeBaron's son-in-law.

The three were shot with large caliber handguns, Holland said.

In Irving, Eddie Marston, 32, one of LeBaron's stepsons, also was found shot to death shortly after 4 p.m. Monday.

"We're in contact with Irving officials and there does appear to be a strong possibility that they are connected," Houston police spokesman Al Baker said.

Police Tuesday released a composite drawing of one of the suspects in those two shootings. The suspect had a dark beard and hair and was dressed in a suit and tie.

Houston police had also been talking with the FBI and officials in Utah, and the U.S. Border Patrol issued a bulletin to stop any black pickup truck carrying two male passengers heading toward Mexico.

Holland said others may be in danger.

"Our concern is that there may be other individuals who may be in danger in the future. As far as any physical (hit) list that we have — no," Holland said.

"It is our understanding that there are names of persons who may be in danger in the future," he said when asked if there was an acknowledged list of people targeted, if not a physical list.

Holland said he could not say how many people might be in danger, but added the number probably was less than 12. He would not say if anyone was in protective custody, although Baker had said earlier police were making arrangements to ensure that other Chynoweth family members are safe.

"We have had prior dealings with this situation," Holland said, noting that it was in March but refusing to elaborate.

LeBaron's Church of the Lamb of God split into several groups after he died in prison in 1981. Polygamist sects broke off from the Mormon Church when it outlawed multiple marriages in 1890.

A neighbor of the Chynoweth family, who did not want his name used, said Mark Chynoweth's wife, Lillian, talked to the neighbor's wife after the killings.

"Apparently, Lillian told my wife they tried to break away from a cult, and there was a death list."

LeBaron, who is buried in a Houston cemetery, died of a heart attack while serving a sentence in Utah for the 1977 murder of rival polygamist leader Rulin Allred.

Marston and Mark Chynoweth were acquitted in Allred's slaying. Marston also was acquitted in the 1975 slaying of another polygamist leader.

Lillian Chynoweth told The Salt Lake City Tribune last October she was worried LeBaron left a "Book of New Covenants," written while in prison, which his sons are using as a blueprint for vengeance.

She said the writings included a "list of people my father thought needed to be killed."

Jail funds will be used to improve prison system

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The state's corrections experts have agreed that any money spent to ease overcrowded county jails will not go directly to the counties, one participant in a three-hour planning meeting said Tuesday.

Instead, the as-yet-undetermined amount of money will go towards improving "the entire criminal justice system," said Glenn Smith, an aide to Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Those who attended the meeting said the group made little progress toward a solution to the overcrowding problem that plagues county jails around the state. Much of the backlog in county jails consists of inmates waiting to be transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections, which is too crowded to accept more than 150 new prisoners per day.

Gov. Bill Clements favors creating new detention centers to hold parolees who violate the conditions of their release. Hobby wants to expand probation programs to handle more convicts before they're sent to prison. The Texas Association of Counties has pleaded with the state to take some action, and Clements promised June 2 that he would release a plan quickly.

Several counties have asked the state to pay them on a per-prisoner, per-day basis for holding inmates that belong in TDC. Hobby aide Smith said the group rejected that plan outright Tuesday because it could bring the jails into the long-running prison reform lawsuit and because it would not help solve the overcrowding problem.

But Clements spokesman Reggie Bashur said all options are still on the table. "The meetings are going on," Bashur said, "the discussions continue."

In other prison news, TDC Board Chairman Charles Terrell said prison officials may delay building a 1,000-bed, medium-security prison in East Texas if construction bids on other projects continue to exceed estimates.

"It could be close," Terrell said. "The point is we just don't know how close yet."

The possible delay in building the 1,000-bed prison at Woodville follows the June 21 discovery that bids for a similar unit to be built at Snyder came in about $4 million over the original $15 million estimates. That increase — multiplied by four to cover medium-security prisons at Woodville, Dayton and Marlin — could place the Texas Department of Corrections' massive building program over its $275 million maximum appropriation.

Terrell said TDC will watch as the bids come in on the other projects this summer.

Could minister be 'Village Rapist'?

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Police are attempting to determine if a man identified as a Baptist minister might be the so-called "Village Rapist," who is believed to be responsible for a series of nine sexual assaults in an apartment complex.

The man, 28, was arrested late Monday after an apartment resident saw someone attempting to break into an apartment. A private security guard, aided by several other people, chased the man down and held him for police.

AT&T ANNOUNCES UPCOMING PRICE CHANGES FOR SOME TEXAS INTRASTATE SERVICES

AT&T announces the following price changes for some of its Texas intrastate services. These changes, which more closely reflect the actual costs incurred by AT&T in providing these services, will become effective on August 1, 1988.

- SDN (Software Defined Network) Schedule A prices will be reduced 1.5% during the initial 30-second period. Schedule B prices will be reduced 16.4% overall. Schedule C prices will be reduced 4.2% overall.
- WATS 80 service prices for both the initial 80-hour usage period and the additional usage period will increase 5%.
- The monthly prices for some of AT&T's Analog Channel Services will increase between $7.05 and $25 per channel termination for Analog services.
- The monthly prices for some Dataphone Digital Service (DDS) will decrease up to $9.65. Other DDS monthly prices will increase up to $18.35. Overall, AT&T's DDS monthly prices will increase less than 1%.

The combined effect of these price changes is expected to produce approximately $3.4 million in annual revenue, which is approximately 0.3% of AT&T's annual revenue for all Texas intrastate services.

If you have questions regarding these price changes, please call your AT&T Account Executive, or our business consultants toll-free at 1-800-222-0400. AT&T's tariffs reflecting these changes will be filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas on July 1, 1988, with an effective date of August 1, 1988.

Persons who have questions regarding this tariff filing may also contact the Public Utility Commission of Texas in writing, at 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or by calling the Public Information Office at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 for teletypewriter for the deaf.

National parks are our heritage

This summer if your vacation takes you to one of the nation's 341 national park areas, take a moment to consider how truly valuable those parklands are and how serious is the duty we all share to keep them intact and safe for future generations.

The National Park System encompasses some of the most spectacular and pristine features of America — roaring waterfalls, awe-inspiring mountains, glaciers, deserts, rain forests and much more. It was the thought of the various creators of the National Park System to not only glorify these natural wonders and to preserve them for future generations, but also to protect them from public abuse and misuse. Accomplishing those goals is not inexpensive.

Recently, the Reagan administration proposed a $724 million operating budget for the National Park Service for the next fiscal year. That's a lot of money when compared with the $391 million that was spent in 1980. What's more, the General Accounting Office notes that many millions of dollars need to be spent on the parks for maintenance and capital improvements. If so, it should be spent if at all possible. After all, the parks are used; last year alone 287 million visitors from around the world enjoyed the national parks.

The parklands are a national heritage. It is not only the solemn duty but the responsibility of every American to continue to work toward the fulfillment of what the creators of the park system envisioned: national areas and wonders that will be as beautiful and unscarred by man two centuries from now as they are today.

Accomplishing that will not be easy. There are endless pressures to "develop" national park areas — and to carry out logging, mining and oil drilling operations on or near these sites. While some such operations are acceptable, they must be performed with the utmost care and with an eye to protecting these valuable lands. The pressures to exploit the national parks will continue to grow as the population expands and as the need for natural resources increases.

But we must keep those areas and our needs in perspective. No doubt there have been times in the past when it would have been easy to allow commercialization at the expense of our national heritage. Fortunately, our forefathers did not give in to those pressures.

Neither should we today. A national heritage cannot be bought or sold. It must be held in reverence for future generations.

Another View:

Economic forecast better than expected

The nation's economy continues to grow in this sixth consecutive year of recovery, defying the foul weather forecasts of those who consistently preach gloom and doom. The steady expansion also can bring happy surprises to forecasters on the favorable side, as it did the other day.

The Reagan administration, which had previously predicted the gross national product would grow at a 2.9 percent clip in 1988, revised that figure upward to 3.5 percent. Mr. Beryl Sprinkel, chairman of the President's Council of Advisers, took understandable pleasure in explaining the reasons for the revision.

"Our rosy forecast wasn't rosy enough," he said. "The economy is doing better than even we expected." The expansion, he added. "gives every indication of continuing . . . on into next year."

A constant flow of good news about the economy this June supports Mr. Sprinkel's optimism. The Commerce Department reported that manufacturers' profits rose 6.3 percent in the first quarter, up from 4.4 percent in the fourth quarter of last year. Machine tool orders zoomed 28.4 percent in May to the highest point in 7 years.

Sales of North Amerecan-made cars, always a key barometer in testing the economie winds, sped foward in mid-June 11.9 percent faster than in the same period last year. Consumer spending and personal income have been positive in recent weeks, and inflataion has been kept in check.

Employment figures since the recovery started in November of 1982 speak volumes for what has been happening. In subsequent years a total of 16,800,000 new jobs have been created, and that is a truly historic figure.

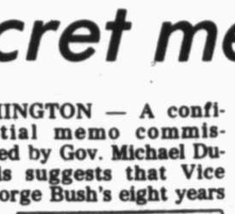

These growth figures demonstrate why a GNP forecast by the Reagan administration "wasn't rosy enough," and why as we approach the 68th month of progress Americans can look foward to an economic picture marked by more rosy hues.

WASHINGTON — A confidential memo commissioned by Gov. Michael Dukakis suggests that Vice President George Bush's eight years as drug czar of the Reagan administration were window dressing.

Jack Anderson

The 16-page memo was secretly prepared for Dukakis by one of Congress' top oversight experts on anti-drug programs, Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla. It cites example after example in which the rhetoric of Bush and the administration was never backed up by results.

Reagan repeatedly created anti-drug programs for Bush to oversee, but English's investigation found little substantive action.

For example, in a speech on Feb. 16, 1982, Bush urged greater cooperation with the government of the Bahamas to combat drug-smuggling activities there. One year later, English's oversight subcommittee asked the State Department a simple question about the cooperation promised by Bush: What had happened?

A bit sheepishly, the State Department was forced to report that the cooperation included the following equipment provided to the Bahamian government:

■ Twelve radios that dated back to the Korean War. Only one worked.

■ A 40-year-old plane to which the Bahamians said, "Thanks, but no thanks."

■ Three boats that were too slow for chasing drug smugglers and couldn't be used on the open water between islands.

■ Two Huey helicopters that could not be flown over water, were too slow for a chase and had an inadequate fuel capability.

Other promises were broken or produced disappointing results. The Defense Department promised in May 1982 to give drug enforcement units radar data from a facility on Cudjoe Key, Fla., and to build another radar facility for the drug war. But by August, according to English's report, the Pentagon had to admit it was woefully behind schedule. It took until January for the Air Force to begin passing radar data to the Customs Service from Cudjoe Key — seven months late, at a low reliability rate. And that was only after English's subcommittee called a hearing to find out if the promised radar coverage was being delivered, the memo says.

English and his investigators were unimpressed with another Bush project, the National Narcotics Border Interdiction System (NNBIS), which began in March 1983. NNBIS was supposed to coordinate anti-drug efforts with many agencies, but its actions were redundant. NNBIS apparently had to take credit for the work of others to prove its own importance.

The memo refers to a non-partisan report by the General Accounting Office, which investigated NNBIS' claims about the role it played in 11 cases where airborne drug smugglers were caught. The GAO reported that:

■ In one case, the only job of NNBIS was to move the narcotics that were seized.

■ NNBIS took credit for another operation that had been planned months before NNBIS existed.

■ Customs and Drug Enforcement Agency people did the bulk of the work for two drug seizures that NNBIS included in its portfolio of wins.

■ One seizure for which NNBIS claimed credit came about because of a tip from an informant six months before Bush announced the formation of NNBIS.

■ Two cases for which NNBIS took credit resulted from routine Customs Service patrols.

■ Another dealer was caught because of a radar facility that predated NNBIS.

English concluded that NNBIS had "accomplished some good (but) in practice (appeared) to have some difficulty living up to its mission."

Dukakis is certain to use English's report to make mincemeat of Bush's mission as drug czar.

THREAT TO JORDAN — The real casualty of the Palestinian uprising in Israel may not be Israel at all. Intelligence reports warn that the fired-up Palestinians may mount an all-out rebellion not against Israel, but against neighboring Jordan.

Sixty percent of Jordan's people are Palestinians, and they have chafed under the rule of the Hashemite royal family. King Hussein has taken pains to court Palestinians, and he probably has the support of the majority. But a militant minority would prefer to be ruled by their own Palestine Liberation Organization.

The PLO commanders know they would have a hard time overthrowing Israel, but feel they could spark an uprising in Jordan. Our intelligence sources say King Hussein, aware of the danger, has put his security forces on the alert and has locked up dozens of PLO activists.

MINI-EDITORIAL — The average American frequently feels powerless to change international events. That isn't true, however, as long as money talks. Tourism is the third largest industry in Israel. Recent press reports indicate that American tourists have curtailed travel to Israel since the brutal skirmishes in the occupied territories became nightly television fare. Specifically, American Jews are scratching Israel off their summer vacation itineraries. Middle East tourism has suffered in the past, but usually the tourists are driven away by fear. This time, they are being driven away by embarrassment. Israel, the spiritual mecca, has dirt around its edges. Israel, the rich cultural and historical mecca, is showing signs of barbarism. Although Americans are withholding verbal judgment, their money is speaking loud and clear.

ART BUCHWALD

'One-downsmanship' part of Bush strategy

If George Bush hopes to win the election in November, he must persuade the electorate that while he is truly a man of the people, Mike Dukakis is a born elitist.

Art Buchwald

The Vice President got off to a good start recently by pointing out that Dukakis attended Harvard, which specializes in boutique foreign policy education, while Bush went to Yale, a poverty-stricken land-grant school in the heart of the New Haven ghetto. Bush told reporters that Yale had no symbolism, while Harvard represented elitism of the worst kind.

It was obvious to all that Bush was playing down his upper-class background as a means of persuading the electorate that he is really for the little guy.

It's one thing for a candidate to decide what his political strategy is going to be, and another to execute it. So every spare moment they have, Bush's campaign managers are briefing the Vice President on how best to demonstrate the common touch.

"OK, sir, let's start where we left off yesterday. You don't go into a Jewish restaurant and ask for quiche."

"Look, Dan, I know that. I should order a tuna fish salad on white bread."

"My name isn't Dan. It's Ted. You ask for tuna fish at the Burning Tree Country Club. In a Jewish delicatessen you ask for pastrami on rye with sauerkraut and a kosher pickle."

"I know that, Artie."

"My name isn't Artie. It's Tom. Why did you order a bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwich from the street vendor who was selling hot dogs yesterday?"

"I was in the mood for a change. I'm getting tired of hot dogs. Doesn't the man in the street eat anything else?"

"No, and you didn't win too many votes when you had lunch with Army recruits at Fort Dix, and asked them if they missed their mom's key lime pie."

"I just wanted them to think I was one of the boys, Al."

"My name isn't Al. It's Irving. If you insist on wearing that blazer with the New York Yacht Club crest on the pocket, Mr. Vice President, nobody is going to be convinced that you are one of the people. And don't keep opening Teamster prayer breakfasts by saying, 'Give us this day our daily croissant.'"

"I only did it once, Sam."

"My name is not Sam. It's Gerard. The thrust of the campaign, sir, is to ensure that the American people identify with you. They won't do that if you talk to farmers about the need to subsidize polo matches at Palm Beach."

"I was kidding. I know that farmers have more important things on their minds than polo. But, golly, I have to get their attention somehow."

"Our next stop, Mr. Vice President, is Newark."

"I know Newark. It's not far from Princeton where they have those neat eating clubs."

"Newark may be located near Princeton, but it is far, far away in every other respect."

"Do they get their elitists from a Harvard boutique?"

"Possibly, but that isn't what is disturbing them at the moment. The city is falling apart. Can you imagine what that must be like?"

"You don't have to be poor to know what it is like to live in Newark, Sidney."

"My name isn't Sidney. It's David Logan III."

"Gee whiz. Did your father ever row for Yale at Henley?"

TOM WICKER

Cohen urges exploration of rare opportunity

NEW YORK — The United States is confronting a new but perhaps final "moment of opportunity" to meet the Soviet Union halfway in putting an end to an arms race and a cold war that hamper the security and prosperity of both.

Wicker

One step toward seizing that moment might be a forthcoming response from the Reagan administration and the European allies to new Soviet proposals for asymmetrical reductions in NATO and Warsaw Pact forces. The Soviets say their goal is military parity and a defensive posture for both sides in western Europe.

The moment of opportunity for the United States is new and different, in the opinion of Stephen F. Cohen, the Princeton University Soviet scholar, mainly because Mikhail Gorbachev has reversed "70 years of cold war dogma." Where his predecessors insisted that the nature of capitalism and the United States made Soviet-American conflict inevitable, Gorbachev at considerable political risk has preached that that's not true.

But the "moment" thus created might also be the last. The fast pace and the wizardry of weapons technology means that both nations may be "running out of time" in which their ever-developing war machines can be controlled. And though Gorbachev's reform efforts are genuine and derive from the desperate Soviet need for economic regeneration, he faces strong internal opposition and may not survive politically.

If, instead of working with him to stop or slow the arms race, the United States should "try to kick the Soviets while they're down," the Gorbachev reform movement could be destroyed and with it the moment of opportunity for ending the arms race.

Cohen talked last weekend with a group of reporters in Washington, where he and other authorities in various fields, under the auspices of the Democracy Project, were working on proposals for the man who'll enter the White House next year.

They hoped that man would be Michael Dukakis. But Cohen pointed out that President Reagan already had met Gorbachev "15 to 20 percent of the way" in reaching the INF Treaty; and that experience with Richard Nixon and Reagan had persuaded Soviet leaders that they could best work with conservative Presidents invulnerable to "soft on Communism" charges. So the "moment of opportunity" would be there for George Bush, too.

Gorbachev has made the major arms control concessions, in Cohen's view; so if the Soviet leader is to survive, he soon will have to "deliver more" from his dealings with the United States to his government and military leaders. Thus, the next president should be prepared to meet Gorbachev "fifty-fifty" in relieving the economic pressures of the arms race on both sides.

The new Soviet proposals for asymmetrical cuts in Europe were foreshadowed by Gorbachev's remark in Prague last April that dangerous force imbalances should be rectified "not through a buildup by the one who lags behind but through reductions by the one who turned out to be ahead."

Last week, a Soviet Disarmament Directorate official gave more details on the three-stage plan Moscow has in mind: first, an exchange of accurate information to identify imbalances, and their removal through reductions by the side with the most strength; second, removal by each side of a substantial number of troops from Europe; third, reshaping remaining forces to remove their offensive capacities.

The Warsaw Pact, he said, was prepared to make deeper cuts than NATO, where Pact forces were larger — as they are, for example, in main battle tanks. NATO would be expected to do the same where its strength is greater, as it is in helicopters and aircraft that can deliver nuclear weapons on the Soviet Union.

That may be the rub. Too many in the West seem to want the Pact to do all the reducing. The East bloc probably would have to make the most numerical cuts. But the Russians surely must expect NATO's greater nonnumerical assets — such as its technological superiority and its higher state of battle readiness — somehow to be factored into the asymmetrical reductions. That won't be easy.

Reagan apparently gave a cool shoulder to the Soviet plan when he first heard it at the Moscow summit meeting. Some allied officials and defense experts believe it's propaganda, or a trap to weaken NATO forces, particularly their nuclear elements.

The way to find out — and perhaps to seize a rare and important moment of opportunity — is to explore seriously the possibility that these proposals might lead to desirable force reductions and greater stability in Europe, hence to economic relief and political gains for both sides.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, June 29, the 181st day of 1988. There are 185 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On June 29, 1767, the British Parliament approved the Townshend Revenue Acts, which imposed import duties on glass, lead, paint, paper and tea shipped to America. Colonists bitterly protested the Acts, which were repealed in 1770.

On this date:

In 1776, the Virginia state constitution was adopted, and Patrick Henry was made governor.

In 1941, Polish statesman, pianist and composer Ignace Paderewski died in New York at age 80. He received a state burial at Arlington National Cemetery.

In 1946, British authorities arrested more than 2,700 Jews in Palestine in an attempt to stamp out alleged terrorism.

In 1949, the government of South Africa began to implement its policy of racial segregation known as apartheid with a ban on racially-mixed marriages.

In 1954, the Atomic Energy Commission voted against reinstating Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer's access to classified information.

In 1966, the United States bombed fuel storage facilities near the North Vietnamese cities of Hanoi and Haiphong.

In 1967, Jerusalem was re-unified as Israel removed barricades separating the Old City from the Israeli sector.

In 1970, the United States ended a two-month military offensive into Cambodia.

In 1972, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the way the death penalty was usually enforced constituted "cruel and unusual punishment."

In 1982, in a White House ceremony, President Reagan signed into law an extension of the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

In 1984, the Soviet Union offered to begin negotiations with the United States on banning weapons from outer space. The U.S. said such talks would have to include curbs on all missile systems.

Ten years ago: Vice President Walter F. Mondale began a trip to the Middle East, carrying letters from President Jimmy Carter to the leaders of Israel and Egypt urging a resumption of peace talks.

Five years ago: NASA officials completed a three-month operation to nudge a communications satellite into its proper orbit using the satellite's steering jets. The satellite had gone into a useless, elliptical orbit after it was launched from the space shuttle Challenger on April 4.

Woman still frightened three months after gang rape, she tells newspaper

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Three months after she reported being abducted and gang raped, a shy, 19-year-old woman said she is learning to live again, although she is still frightened at times.

In an interview in a copyright story in the Corpus Christi Caller-Times, the woman said her children, ages 7 months and 19 months, help her to forget the incident she said occurred March 26 on a ranch near San Diego in Duval County.

She said an outpouring of support from the area also has helped her.

"I'd like to tell them, 'Thank you,' " she said of those who have donated money and letters of support.

The woman and her family have moved away from harassment in San Diego to a location in the Corpus Christi area.

"It's better than San Diego," she told the Caller-Times.

Dot Barnette, executive director of Crisis Services, said the non-profit organization is providing counseling and teaching the woman how to read, write, make grocery lists and drive.

Born the ninth of 12 children of an overworked mother and alcoholic father, she said she learned to survive by seeking obscurity, where she could live unnoticed.

Since reporting the incident, the woman has been silent about it, except for an appearance before a grand jury April 10. She said she was encouraged by recent features in the Caller-Times about the 12-year-old boy who said he witnessed the incident, and she felt it was time to share her story with readers who have sent and offered help.

Some public places still frighten her, the woman told the newspaper.

"There're men washing in the washateria. I start shaking," she said. "Forgetting about it. That's the toughest," she said, referring to the March 26 ordeal. "But I ignore it. I just play with the kids and stuff."

She said she and her family have been harassed and threatened since she went to authorities.

Two of the 10 men who were indicted in the case lived in the same neighborhood, a family relative has said.

"They were always passing and passing, saying all sorts of things," the woman said.

The woman said she is a Roman Catholic, but the family does not attend Mass because the children are too young to keep quiet in church.

"Before we moved, the church (in San Diego) gave me $200, a pretty rosary and a Bible," she said. "So (her husband) reads it to me about every night. "And I'm trying to get (her husband) to teach me" how to pray the rosary.

Until she dropped out of school in the eighth grade, she wanted so much not to call attention to herself that she refused to wear new clothes to school.

"I had two friends and that's it," she said.

"Every class I'd go to, there would be somebody making fun of me...I'd put a desk in the back and sit by myself."

Eventually, she said, she decided that the social pressure of school was too much, walked out and never returned.

"That day, I was shaking. I'm the nervous type of person, and I start shaking," she told the Caller-Times.

After meeting the young man she would marry at a school basketball game, she left the ranch. They later moved in with his mother in San Diego.

Ad campaign touting smokers' clout launched

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's biggest tobacco maker is touting the economic muscle of smokers in a multimillion-dollar advertising campaign, but a longtime critic faults the ads for failing to mention smoking's costs.

The campaign is being sponsored by Philip Morris Magazine, published by Philip Morris USA, which makes Marlboro, Virginia Slims and Merit cigarettes.

The first ad, placed Tuesday in 19 daily newspapers across the country, carried the headline "$1 trillion is too much financial power to ignore."

The figure is based on findings from the polling concern Roper Organization, which said it reflects the combined household income of the 55.8 million American smokers.

Roper interviewed a nationally representative sample of 2,000 people about many issues, including smoking habits, for Philip Morris.

But Irving Rimer of the American Cancer Society said the campaign "left out the other half of the story and that is smoking's costs to the economy."

Rimer said smoking costs the economy an estimated $65 billion annually in terms of lost productivity and treatment of smoking-related diseases.

The campaign comes amid widening efforts to ban smoking in public places.

Central America plans postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's spokesman concedes that efforts to pry concessions from Nicaragua's Sandinista government have stalled, and the administration's next step won't be decided until Secretary of State George Shultz returns from Central America.

Amid increasing reports that Contra rebel troops are returning to base camps, and with no new peace talks scheduled, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater was asked Tuesday whether Reagan had decided to submit a new aid package to Congress.

"We will not have any judgment on the package until sometime after" Shultz returns from the region on Friday, Fitzwater said, "and we don't have a specific schedule, even on that."

Shultz was leaving today on a trip that will take him to Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras.

Shultz told congressional leaders on Tuesday that his trip has the primary purpose of "shoring up" the four democracies in the region by demonstrating long-term U.S. support, according to participants in the meeting.

Republican congressional leaders met with Reagan, but House GOP Leader Bob Michel of Illinois said the president gave no hint of his plans. He said the issue of another Contra aid package did not come up.

Towns to settle dispute

ASHFORD, Conn. (AP) — Instead of spending thousands of dollars for a surveyor to settle a longstanding border dispute, the towns of Ashford and Willington plan to resort to an old New England tradition: walking the line.

After local officials balked at the $40,000 cost for a survey, an arbitration panel suggested they resort to the methodused for centuries by New England farmers to re-establish property lines each spring after winter weather demolished sections of the stone fences dividing their fields.

The three selectmen from each town tentatively plan to walk about 20 acres of disputed land on July 6 and decide among themselves where the border should be, Ashford First Selectwoman Paula Faulkner said Tuesday.

Ashford, which measures 40 square miles, was incorporated in 1714 and has 3,400 residents. Willington, a town of 35 square miles with 5,000 residents, was incorporated 13 years later.

At issue is an 8-mile-long, 1-mile-wide strip that the General Assembly took from Ashford when Willington was incorporated.

Swaggart's ratings fall

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The television ratings of evangelist Jimmy Swaggart's ministry have dropped by more than half since allegations surfaced that Swaggart had sexual encounters with a prostitute, according to new ratings.

Swaggart stepped down from the pulpit in February after disclosures that he was seen with a prostitute.

At that time he publicly confessed that he had sinned against his family and announced he would not preach for an indefinite period of time.

Swaggart refused to abide by a one-year suspension ordered by the Assemblies of God and was dismissed from the Assemblies of God. He returned to the pulpit in May.

Figures released Monday by Arbitron, a television rating service, showed that Swaggart's weekly show fell to 923,000 viewers in 187 markets in May from 1.961 million viewers in 191 markets in February.

Kuwait disputes purchase

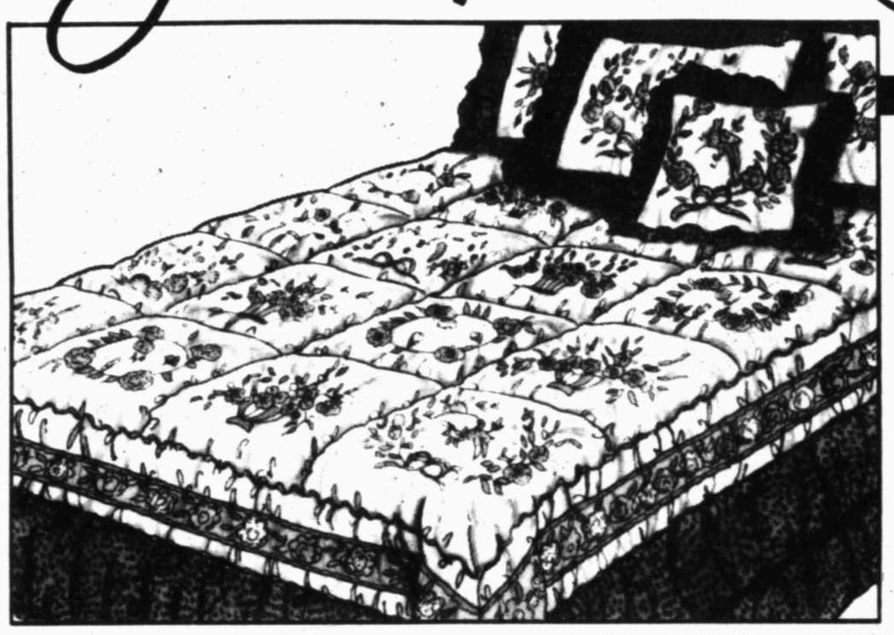

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kuwait's ambassador to the United States says 40 sophisticated F-A-18 fighter-bombers his country plans to purchase would be "worthless" if Congress refuses to include air-to-ground missiles in the sale.

"This weapon is not a luxury, it is a necessity," ambassador Saud N. Al-Sabah said in an interview. "It's like buying a car without all the equipment that goes with it."

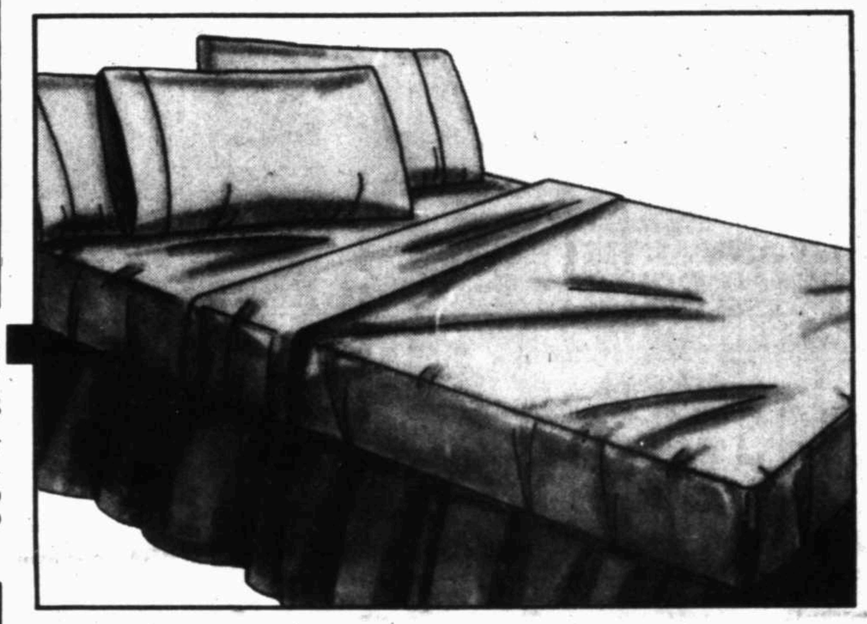

Congress is reviewing the administration plan to sell $1.9 billion worth of F-A-18s and armaments to Kuwait, which says it needs the equipment to defend against attacks by participants in the nearly 8-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

Three U.S. allies have been authorized to buy F-A-18s, the Navy's newest and fastest combination interceptor-bomber, but Kuwait would be the first Arab nation to receive them.

Monahans golfer wins WT Junior

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

Some golfers play 30 years without shooting par for 18 holes.

But Jayson Garduno shot par-71 in the West Texas Junior PGA Tour stop Tuesday at Hogan Park. And he's only been playing 18 months.

The Monahans teenager continued to dominate the 12-13-year-old age group in the 40-stop tour with what he characterized as a better-than-average round.

"I usually shoot around 75," Garduno said. "Today, I kept the ball down the middle of the fairway. When I do that, I play pretty good."

Garduno, 13, had the day's best round though there were 18-year-olds also playing in the tournament jointly sponsored by the West Texas PGA and the Independent Insurance Agents of America.

While Garduno rolled to an eight-stroke win over Miguel Hernandez of Andrews, the other age divisions were more competitive at the top.

BOTH AMANDA Koen of Midland and Brad Roberson of Odessa needed sudden-death playoffs to win their 16-17 division in girls and boys play, respectively. Koen bested Kelli Glaspie of Stanton, while Roberson knocked off Jeff Deitiker of Pecos on the extra hole.

Stephen Ward of Monahans edged Ryan Thompson of Midland by two strokes in boys 14-15, while Christi Callison only beat Valarie Brown by three strokes in girls 12-13.

Lisa McCuatters of Andrews was unopposed in girls 14-15, but still shot a 93 for the best girls round of the day.

THE TOP two golfers in each age group qualify for the West Texas Junior PGA Championships Aug. 9-10 at Ranchland Hills Country Club, if they hadn't already made it in one of the earlier tour events.

Manning Clippers' hope

KU star goes quicker than Spinks

By SAM GOLDAPER
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — It took the Los Angeles Clippers 28 seconds Tuesday to make Danny Manning of Kansas the first choice in the National Basketball Association draft.

Manning

The Indiana Pacers then used their full allotment of five minutes before they selected Rik Smits, the 7-foot-4 center from Marist.

What took place next had required several hours of intrigue on the eve of the draft. The planning was followed by long hours of crossed fingers that all the pieces to the plan, conceived by Bernie Bickerstaff, the Seattle SuperSonic coach, and Bob Whitsitt, the club's president, would fall into place.

Bickerstaff and Whitsitt wanted to obtain Michael Cage of the Clippers, the league's top rebounder, as protection against the possible loss of Tom Chambers, an unrestricted free agent, and Dale Ellis, another free agent.

This was their plan, worked out Monday night with the Clippers and the Philadelphia 76ers:

First, the 76ers, who had the third pick, had to take Charles Smith, the 6-10 forward from Pittsburgh. Then, either Mitch Richmond of Kansas State or Hersey Hawkins of Bradley, the nation's leading scorer, had to be available for the Clippers when they picked again in the sixth spot.

THE NETS could have stymied the plan if they had taken either Richmond or Hawkins with the fourth pick. When they chose Chris Morris of Auburn, there were sighs of relief everywhere.

After the Golden State Warriors took Richmond, as they had hoped to do, with the fifth pick, the Clippers selected Hawkins as planned.

Then, after the SuperSonics picked Gary Grant, the playmaker from Michigan, with the 15th pick, David Stern, the NBA commissioner, officially announced the trades.

In order to get Cage, the Sonics sent Grant and the middle of the three first-round picks they have for next year to the Clippers. Los Angeles, in turn, sent Hawkins and the pick to the 76ers for Smith.

In Manning, Smith and Grant, the Clippers, who have missed the playoffs the last 12 seasons, the longest such drought in NBA history, wound up with three of the first 15 players selected in the draft.

"This has been sensational for our team," said Gene Shue, the Clippers' coach. "We hated to lose a player like Michael Cage, but we are building our team around speed and quickness. This will be a different Clipper team because of its versatility. We will be able to run an offense that will utilize the abilities of these players. Christmas is definitely here. This was a fantastic day."

As part of the deal Monday in which the Knicks acquired Charles Oakley from the Chicago Bulls for Bill Cartwright, the teams also exchanged their draft picks. The Bulls used the 11th choice to select 7-foot Will Perdue of Vanderbilt to back up Cartwright.

WHEN IT came time for the Knicks to use the 19th pick, the jampacked Felt Forum, the site of the draft, became very vocal as Al Bianchi, the Knick general manager, and his staff were deciding on the selection at their Madison Square Garden offices.

The crowd was divided in the five minutes it took for the Knicks to decide, The loudest chants were for Shelton Jones, the St. John's forward. Others rooted for Rod Strickland, who attended Truman High School in the Bronx before going to DePaul, and Jerome Lane, the Pittsburgh power forward. There was some mild support for Mark Bryant, Seton Hall's power forward.

Mark Jackson, the Knicks' point guard and the rookie of the year, was there to lend support to Jones, his former St. John's teammate. They sat together in the first row.

When it was announced that the Knicks had chosen Strickland, who was said by many experts to be the best point guard available, Jackson tapped Jones on the knee and said, "That's all right."

Jones was selected early in the second round (27th pick) by the San Antonio Spurs.

Giamatti backs umpire's decision reversal

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — A scoreboard replay was just an ill-timed sideshow in the normal process of umpire Paul Runge's call reversal that cost the Pittsburgh Pirates a run, National League President Bart Giamatti says.

"If you take the scoreboard out of the situation, he did exactly what he's done before and he will do again in terms of getting the play right," Giamatti said during a news conference Tuesday night prior to addressing the National High School Athletic Coaches' Association.

"National League policy is that umpires should not take their cue from a scoreboard. Runge saw the scoreboard but he did not change his mind because of the replay. He changed his mind because of the conference (with the other umpires) and, therefore, did the right thing," Giamatti said.

Pittsburgh manager Jim Leyland protested the game with the New York Mets Monday night on grounds that the scoreboard replay influenced Runge to change a wild-pitch to an inconsequential foul tip.

It cost the Pirates a run but, they came back to win the game 2-1 and Leyland's protest was withdrawn.

Runge said after the game that "it became a moral issue" after he saw he was wrong on the replay and that he was concerned he might be reprimanded by the "powers that be."

But Giamatti said he spoke with Runge at length about the play Tuesday and concluded that, although Runge saw the scoreboard, his reversal was based primarily on his discussion with the other umpires.

"One of the other umpires said, yes, in fact, the direction of the ball changed and they talked about it," according to Giamatti. "That's exactly what they're supposed to do, talk about it and get the play right. In the long run, they got the play right.

"There are no grounds for reprimanding a guy for trying to do his job right. My God, I commend him for it."

Rangers blank Mariners; Tigers rip Yanks

SEATTLE (AP) — Jose Guzman pitched a four-hitter for his first major-league shutout and Larry Parrish and Steve Buechele hit solo home runs as the Texas Rangers defeated the Seattle Mariners 6-0 Tuesday night to snap a three-game losing streak.

Guzman, 7-6, in his 80th career start, struck out six and walked three for his fifth complete game of the season.

Scott Fletcher and Bob Brower each had three hits. Brower is 6-for-6 lifetime against Seattle starter Steve Trout, 3-4.

Brower led off the game with a double, advanced to third on Fletcher's sacrifice bunt and scored as Ruben Sierra singled to extend his hitting streak to 10 games.

Parrish opened the second with his seventh and the Rangers' first homer in six games.

Buechele's 10th homer opened the fifth. Brower singled with two outs, reached second on a balk and scored on Fletcher's double. Pete O'Brien had an RBI double in the eighth.

Tigers 6, Yanks 1

NEW YORK — Frank Tanana, 10-4, allowed five hits in 8 1-3 innings and Pat Sheridan drove in four runs as Detroit won its fifth straight over the Yankees.

this year.

Tanana allowed only three hits after the second inning as the Tigers moved three games ahead of the Yankees in the AL East. Gary Pettis got two hits and scored twice. Pettis, batting only .215 entering this week, went 3-for-3 and scored four runs in Detroit's 6-3 victory over New York on Monday night.

Brewers 4, Athletics 1

OAKLAND, Calif. — Rob Deer broke up a scoreless tie with a two-out, two-run homer in the seventh inning and Don August pitched a four-hitter.

Jeffrey Leonard singled with two out in the seventh and Deer, breaking an 0-for-12 slump, lined into the left-field for his 12th homer.

Orioles 7, Blue Jays 0

BALTIMORE — Jay Tibbs, 3-4, and Mark Thurmond combined on a seven-hitter and Fred Lynn and Eddie Murray each drove in three runs for Baltimore. Lynn hit his 13th homer in the third inning.

In the seventh, Toronto's Jim Clancy, 4-10, gave up a one-out double to Billy Ripken and walked Pete Stanicek. Lynn greeted David Wells with a two-run double and after an intentional walk to Cal Ripken, Murray hit his 11th homer.

Red Sox 6, Indians 1

BOSTON — Wes Gardner, 2-1, allowed only three hits over seven innings in his first start of the year and the Boston scored five unearned runs for its fourth straight victory.

Gardner retired the first 10 batters in order before Mel Hall hit a pop-fly double to shallow right. Cory Snyder drove in Cleveland's only run with his 17th homer in the fifth. The Indians' other hit off Gardner was a one-out double by Snyder in the seventh.

White Sox 4, Royals 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Dan Pasqua homered twice and Greg Walker hit a towering solo shot with two outs in the eighth inning to back the four-hit pitching of Bill Long and Bobby Thigpen.

Walker's fourth home run carried deep into the right-field water display and came off Kansas City reliever Gene Garber, 0-4. Pasqua hit solo homers in the fourth and sixth innings, his second two-homer game of the year and the fourth of his career.

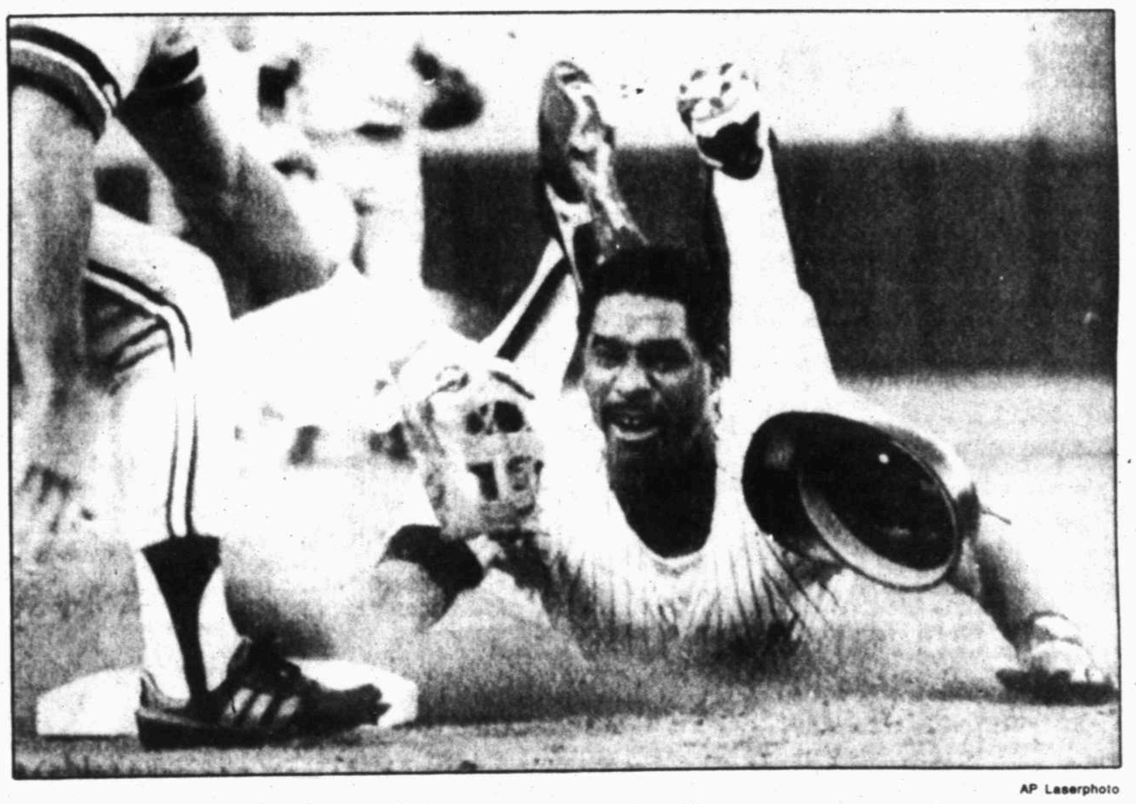

Long, 3-3, allowed four hits in seven innings, walking two and striking out one. Thigpen pitched two perfect innings to earn his 15th save in 18 opportunities as Chicago retired the last 16 batters in order.

In the fourth, Pasqua lined his first home run of the night and seventh of the season.

Twins 8, Angels 2

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Bert Blyleven, 7-6, notched his fourth straight win to improve his lifetime record against California to 28-14. It was his fourth complete game of the season and 228th of his career.

Gene Larkin had three hits, including his second homer, and drove in three runs. Kirby Puckett and Kent Hrbek also had three hits.

TED BATTLES

St. Louis and without a pitch fork

Battles

A moonlight ride on a Riverboat in what natives apologetically refer to as the Mississippi; across the street an historic courthouse framed by the famed Gateway Arch; a restored Union Station with an opulence that would make rail travelers from the past blink in disbelief....

All this and a sauna bath two blocks from the hotel.

Of course, it's an outdoor sauna and it's public. However, it's unique in that you can cleanse the pores and watch a baseball game below on a green griddle more suitable for eggs or waffles.

ST. LOUIS is a nice place to visit, but to be in the one-time home of the Browns last week was not as much of a treat as a treatment.

At Thursday night's Phils-Cards game, a reported 30 were overcome by the heat. Sunday's paper reported five deaths attributable to the heat and three more were pending.

Friday, APSE night at the ball park, one grizzled veteran fan lasted five innings at Busch before surrendering. I've never left a game early and this was a helluva a good game.

Once at Ebbets Field I made the Mrs. sit through a game with the Reds. Two out in the eighth, 3-2 game and the Jackie Robinson, Roy Campanella, Duke Snider Dodgers began scoring runs.

The Mrs. tugged on my arm. "Can't we go now." I told her. "We might miss something."

If we'd left, we'd have missed the 13-run two-out rally....still a record.

LEAVING after five...I'm either getting old or was overcome by the heat.

Phils' manager Lee Elia claims during batting practice one afternoon a thermometer eight inches off the game read 124 degrees. The one on the turf said 160. Sunday fielders were standing on their gloves in the field and icing their legs off the field.

Midland fans don't realize how lucky they are. No matter how hot it is at night, it cools off when the sun goes down and Angel Stadium is a delightful place to be.

Even a hot West Texas breeze would be a relief at completely enclosed Busch, a beautiful, well-managed stadium. If I was a modern stadium fan, Busch one be one of my favorites.

Midland fans have one other big luxury. The action is so close you could reach out and touch it if it weren't for the screen. In a big stadium like Busch, until you get used to it, it's like watching TV on a 1946 screen. At that distance, it takes a while to get into a game.

IF YOU ever go to St. Louis, the Arch will require a wait, but a tour of the underground museum, below the Arch, with its thumbnail history of the U.S. and the West will make the time pass in a hurry.

Dinner and a ride on a Mississippi Riverboat is a must and it must really be something when they aren't referring to the river as a draw.

Whatever, don't miss Union Station, city buses will take you there free, as they will anywhere in a 16-block downtown area. Forget the shopping mall. The station and its waiting room area are the attraction. It took $6 1/2 million to build the station at the turn of the century and $160 million to restore it a few years back.

You can get a suite in the hotel above for $900 a night.

Astros' Knepper too good for LA

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Knepper was good. Too good, he thought.

"My curve seemed to have such a sharp break that it was breaking too low," Knepper said. "But the thing that was important tonight was getting a victory. A two-hitter doesn't mean a thing."

Knepper allowed two hits in 8 1-3 innings and equalled his 1987 victory total as the Astros beat Los Angeles 4-3, ending the Dodgers' four-game winning streak.

"'Crucial' would be pretty close to the right word for us to win tonight," said Knepper, who was 8-17 in 1987. "We'd have been five and one-half games out if we lost."

Instead, Houston closed to within 3½ games of Los Angeles.

Knepper, 8-1, was relieved by Larry Andersen in the ninth and allowed an RBI single to John Shelby. Juan Agosto got the final out.

Billy Hatcher ended an 0-for-23 slump with a second-inning single and got his eighth game-winning RBI with a sacrifice fly in the sixth off Brian Holton, 3-2. Hatcher drove in Buddy Bell, who had tripled.

Bill Doran hit his third home run of the season in the eighth.

Mike Marshall put the Dodgers ahead in the second with his ninth home run.

Cubs 6, Phils 4

CHICAGO — Shawon Dunston singled home two runs with a two-out, bases-loaded single, capping a four-run eighth inning as Chicago rallied to win its fourth straight victory and 10 of its last 13.

Dunston's single off Steve Bedrosian, 1-3, came after the Phillies had elected to walk pinch hitter Jerry Mumphrey, who had been hitting just .125.

Dave Martinez's two-run double tied the score 4-4. Les Lancaster pitched the ninth for his third save.

Mets 5, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH — Sid Fernandez beat Pittsburgh for the eighth straight time and Darryl Strawberry and Kevin Elster hit two-run homers as New York ended Pittsburgh's five-game winning streak.

Strawberry snapped 1-1 fifth-inning tie with his 18th homer.

Fernandez, 4-6, who had lost five of his previous seven decisions, allowed three hits in eight innings and Roger McDowell got his eighth save.

Brian Fisher, 4-6, lost his sixth straight since May 21.

Reds 4, Padres 3

CINCINNATI — Danny Jackson pitched a six-hitter and Lance McCullers walked home the winning run in the ninth as Cincinnati ended a six-game losing streak.

Eric Davis opened the ninth with a single off Mark Grant, 1-6, and went to third on Leon Durham's single. Dave Concepcion was intentionally walked to load the bases and, out out later, Tracy Jones walked on a 3-2 pitch after fouling off fourth consecutive pitches.

Jackson, 8-4, pitched his sixth complete game in 15 starts.

Giants 13, Braves 7

ATLANTA — Candy Maldonado had four hits, scored three runs and drove in two as San Francisco got 19 hits for the second straight night. Will Clark had a pair of hits, drove in three runs and scored twice while Mike Aldrete, Kevin Mitchell and Robbie Thompson drove in two runs each.

Kelly Downs, 6-7, worked six innings and Craig Lefferts last three for his sixth save.

Cardinals 5, Cardinals 4

ST. LOUIS — Tom Brunansky's ninth-inning grounder bounced through the legs of third baseman Tim Wallach and allowed the winning run to score.

Vince Coleman singled off Joe Hesketh, 1-1, to open the ninth but was thrown out stretching by right fielder Hubie Brooks. Ozzie Smith and Willie McGee singled to put runners on the corners and Tim Burke relieved.

Smith scored when McGee stole second and catcher Nelson Santovenia's throw bounced into the outfield, tying the score.

Comanche Trail holds tourney for duffers only

From Staff Reports

BIG SPRING— A Best-of-the-Rest two-man team tournament is scheduled for the Comanche Trail Golf Course July 16-17. Entry fee is $100 per team.

"It's a tournament for the forgotten golfer, the one who usually never wins anything," says Comanche Pro Al Patterson. "You've got to have a handicap of 18, or worse, to qualify."

The weekend will begin with a social hour Friday night, when team evaluations will be made, and Saturday's first round will be capped by a dinner.

Prizes will include irons, woods, and other golf equipment.

Pilots ground Halos

From Staff Reports

WICHITA, Kan.— Brian Wood, 1-1, and Rusty Ford, fourth save, combined for a four-hitter as the Wichita Pilots brought Midland's Texas League West leading Angels back among the mortals 6-1 here Tuesday night.

In other TL action, Jackson defeated Tulsa, 7-3, San Antonio beat El Paso, 6-1, and Shreveport slipped past Arkansas, 5-4, in 12 innings.

Wood struck out eight in 7 2/3 innings and allowed only the only run. Ford pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth inning to pick up his fourth save of the season.

Chris Knabenshue opened the scoring for Wichita in the second inning with a solo homer. The Pilots put the game out of reach with a four-run outburst in the third, highlighted by RBI doubles by Thomas Howard and Carlos Baerga.

Wichita's final run came in the seventh inning on Craig Wiley's second home run of the year. Midland scored its lone run in the eighth inning on a bases-loaded walk.

Wood is now 1-1. The losing pitcher was Todd Eggersten, 4-7.

Ford has three of his four saves against Midland.

Midland's Jim McCollom stretched his latest hitting streak to 10 games with a hit in the eighth while Erik Pappas has an eight-game streak going, during which he has hit at a .548 clip.

KURT DeLuca led the Mets with a solo homer in the fourth and an eighth inning groundout.

Jackson scored in the third on RBI doubles by Felix Perdomo and Joaquin Contreras, and on a single by Craig Shipley.

Gary Alexander hit a two-run homer in the third for Tulsa.

Kyle Hartshorn, 9-5, won and Kenny Rogers, 0-2, lost.

Mike Batesole drove in the game-winning RBI to lead San Antonio.

John Wetteland, 8-3, was the winning pitcher.

Baseball Today

SCOREBOARD

Los Angeles at Houston (1:25 p.m.). Orel Hershiser (11-3) opposes the Astros' Nolan Ryan (5-5). Ryan has not won since May 29.

STREAKS

Boston's Mike Greenwell extended his hitting streak to 18 games Monday with a triple in the fifth inning OF THE Red Sox' 9-5 victory over Cleveland.

STATS

Pittsburgh is the only NL team with two players with more than 50 runs batted in apiece — Bobby Bonilla and Andy Van Slyke. The Pirates also are the only NL team with three players — Bonilla, Van Slyke and Barry Bonds — in double figures in home runs. ... St. Louis' Willie McGee reached the 100-hit mark Monday. ... Kansas City holds a 86-51 lead over Chicago at Royals Stadium.

SLUMPS

Gary Pettis, who entered Monday's game with two hits in his last 25 at-bats and a .215 average, doubled and singled twice in Detroit's 6-3 victory over New York.

STARTERS

Dwight Gooden lost to Pittsburgh for only the second time in 10 career decisions as the Pirates beat the New York Mets 2-1 Monday night.

SHUTOUTS

Minnesota's double shutout over Oakland Sunday marked the second time in club history they have blanked the opposition in a doubleheader. The last occasion was July 24, 1963 at Cleveland when they were the Kansas City Athletics and beat the Indians 9-0 and 5-0. The pitchers were Dick Stigman with a seven-hitter in the opener and Jim Kaat with a six-hitter and a home run in the nightcap.

SAVES

Houston's Dave Smith has converted 98-of-116 save opportunities in his career.

STANDINGS

Los Angeles extended its lead over Houston to 4½ games in the NL West Monday, the Dodgers' biggest margin of the season.

SEATING

Monday's crowd of 41,489 at Three Rivers Stadium was the Pirates' largest at home, excluding season openers, since 44,481 saw them play the Cincinnati Reds on Aug. 20, 1983.

SOUNDWAVES

Until Monday night's game against New York, the Pittsburgh Pirates had not played in a game televised nationally by ABC since September 1985.

SIGNINGS

Pitcher Mario Soto, released last week by Cincinnati, signed a contract for the remainder of the season with Los Angeles on Monday. Soto, 31, will join the Dodgers in Houston Tuesday for the second game of a series with the Houston Astros. Soto had a 3-7 record and 4.66 ERA with the Reds this season.

STATUS

—Cincinnati second baseman Ron Oester will have a 20-day rehabilitation period at Class AA Chattanooga. Oester has been working out with the Reds following an injury to a thigh muscle that disabled him from the minor-league team. Oester is trying to come back from reconstructive knee surgery last summer.

SCOUTING

John Mitchell pitched a perfect game as Tidewater (Mets) defeated Indianapolis (Expos) 4-0 in the first game of a Triple A Alliance doubleheader Monday night. Mitchell, 5-6, struck out five and allowed no walks in the seven-inning game. It was the first perfect game ever by a pitcher for Tidewater.

SPEAKING

"I had no idea what was going on. But after you see them confer like that, I took the card and looked at it and said, 'We're in trouble.'" — Cincinnati manager Pete Rose. Rose handed in an incorrect lineup card Monday that came back to haunt the Reds a half-inning later. The card didn't reflect a late lineup change, so the Reds were caught batting out of order in the middle of a first-inning rally.

This Date In Baseball

June 29

1916 — The Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds played a nine-inning game with just one baseball.

1923 — Brooklyn's Jacques Fournier went 6-for-6 with a home run, two doubles and three triples as the Dodgers beat the Philadelphia Phillies 14-5.

1937 — Chicago Cubs first baseman Rip Collins played an entire game without a putout or an assist.

1941 — In a doubleheader against the Washington Senators, Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees tied and broke the American League record of hitting safely in 41 consecutive games. DiMaggio doubled in four at-bats in the opener and singled in five at-bats in the nightcap to break the record held by George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns in 1922.

1950 — Nine Red Sox players scored two or more runs as Boston pounded the Philadelphia Athletics 22-14.

1968 — Jim Northrup of the Detroit Tigers hit his third grand slam in a week. Detroit beat the Chicago White Sox 5-2.

1984 — Andre David of the Minnesota Twins hit the first major league pitch he saw for a home run off Detroit's Jack Morris. The Tigers held on for a 7-5 victory.

1986 — The Detroit Tigers beat the Milwaukee Brewers 9-5 to give Manager Sparky Anderson his 600th victory in the American League. Anderson became the first manager to win 600 or more games in both leagues. He had won 863 games with the Cincinnati Reds.

Western stuns Eastern

From Staff Reports

The Western Rangers upset the Eastern Optimists 14-2 Tuesday night in loser's bracket action of the Joe Mowles Memorial A Division Little League Tournament at Sparks Field.

The Rangers, led by grand slam homers from Jamie Willingham and Scott McCloud, advance now to the loser's bracket finals against North Central, tonight at 6 p.m., also at Sparks, located on Golf Course Road, east of Lamesa Road.

Robert Settles picked up the win for the Rangers; Cory Watson, who also had a home run for the Optimists, was the losing pitcher.

In Tuesday night's other contest, the Mid City Angels downed the North Central Cubs 5-1. Mid City will be idle tonight, awaiting the outcome of the Western/North Central matchup. Mid City will face one of those two squads Thursday night in the finals of the double elimination tournament.

The Angels were led by the pitching of Joseph Golding. Rob Lawson added a triple for the winners; the Cubs pounded out more extra base hits than the Angels, as Brian Henderson, Alex Hale and David Stark each had doubles. Hale suffered the loss for the Cubs.

Chicago, White Sox agree on major points

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The city and the Chicago White Sox have agreed on all major points of a lease, including a pledge that the Sox will move here if Illinois lawmakers fail to approve legislation to keep the team in Chicago, a city official said.

The agreement was reached during telephone conversations with team officials, said assistant city manager Rick Dodge, St. Petersburg's chief negotiator with the Sox. Team officials are expected to have a formal contract drawn by the end of the week, Dodge said.

"Basically, it takes the 'may' out of the equation," Dodge said Tuesday. "If the deal in Illinois doesn't work out, the Sox will move to St. Petersburg."

The Illinois Legislature is scheduled to adjourn Thursday and had yet to consider the measure.

Among the provisions of the agreement with St. Petersburg:

— a 15-year renewable lease on the Florida Suncoast Dome, with rent tied to attendance figures; the better the attendance, the more the Sox pay to the city.

— a guarantee that if the Illinois Legislature does not approve a package during the current session to keep the team in Chicago, the team will move to St. Petersburg.

Dodge would not reveal the remaining provisions, saying they would be made public when a formal document is drawn up.

White Sox spokesman Paul Jensen refused to comment on the agreement.

"I don't feel it's appropriate, considering the state of negotiations in the (Illinois) Legislature," he said.

Dodge said the renewable lease is "basically a 30-year deal." He called the rent provision a "partnership arrangement," that means more money for both parties as attendance rises. Based on the proposed scale, he estimated that the Sox would pay between $15 million and $30 million in rent over 15 years, or between $1 million and $2 million annually.

Word of the agreement nearly coincided with an announcement by Illinois officials that they had reached a lease agreement with the Sox for a new stadium in Chicago.

Under the Illinois proposal, the Sox would get a new $150 million stadium, a $2 million annual operating subsidy, plus free rent if the team draws less than 1.2 million fans.

Even if the Illinois measure passes, another provision in the St. Petersburg agreement could mean a Sox move later.

Ponce paces Whales

TOKYO (AP) — Carlos Ponce, formerly of the Milwaukee Brewers, hit a three-run homer, his 16th of the Japanese baseball season, to lead the Yokohama Taiyo Whales to a 6-5 victory over the Yakult Swallows Tuesday.

Mike Easler, formerly of the New York Yankees, drove in the game's only run with a single in the first inning as the Nippon Ham Fighters edged the Kintetsu Buffaloes 1-0.

COUNTING THE FIGHT SWAG— Initial reports indicate the Mike Tyson-Michael Spinks fight may reach the $70 million overall gross predicted for it. Shelly Finkel, who promoted the closed-circuit and pay-per-view broadcasts, said if the $70 million figure is realized, Tyson will make $22 million for the 91-second fight. "More people watched this fight than any other on closed-circuit or pay-per-view," Finkel said.

Operators of Trump Plaza also had reason to be happy, with record casino revenues the day before and day of the fight, with gamblers betting $8.5 million Sunday, breaking the one-day casino drop record at Trump Plaza of $8.4 million, set the day Tyson beat Larry Holmes in January. The new record was topped Monday when the casino grossed more than $10 million.

TYSON SUES— Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson says in a lawsuit that he never would have signed a contract allowing Bill Cayton to take over his affairs if he had known his late manager, Jimmy Jacobs, was dying. Cayton, who now manages Tyson, revealed that he had been served with papers for the lawsuit just minutes before Tyson's successful title defense Monday. The suit seeks to dissolve Tyson's contract with Cayton, who currently gets one third of all of Tyson's boxing earnings.

NBA STEALS RATINGS — The deciding game of the NBA Championship series between Los Angeles and Detroit was a runaway winner last week in the A.C. Nielsen Co. television ratings, ringing up a 21.2 average rating. The next-best program, "Night Court," on NBC, was far behind at 17.1. A rating point equals 886,000 homes with television.

LOU VS. LEO— Lou Boudreau and Leo Durocher will manage the third annual Old-Timers All-Star Game July 10 at Cincinnati. Boudreau, Hall of Fame shortstop and playing manager of the World Series champion Cleveland Indians 40 years ago, will manage the American League All-Stars. Durocher, 82, who managed the Dodgers, Giants, Cubs and Astros, will lead the NL...

GAMECOCK GRIDDER CLEARED— University of South Carolina's Ryan Bethea was cleared of drug charges after prosecutors said the informant who prompted the charges was not the person who called the tip into police. Solicitor James Anders asked for dismissal of the charges of marijuana and cocaine possession as the trial was getting under way.

PENGUINS PICK COACH— Gene Ubriaco, saying his goal is to develop "a high-tech team in a high-tech city," was named the 11th coach in the Pittsburgh Penguins' 21-year history, succeeding Pierre Creamer, who was fired after the Penguins missed the playoffs for the sixth straight season, despite a 36-35-9 record that was their best in nine years.

Connors ushered from Wimbledon

By ANDREW WARSHAW

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The fight finally went out of the toughest fighter of them all.

Jimmy Connors, the street-wise veteran of Wimbledon, ran out of comebacks Tuesday against a blonde-haired West German with a rocket serve and nerves of steel.

He wasn't named Boris Becker.

Patrick Kuhnen, unseeded, unheralded and unsuccessful at any previous major tournament, upset the 35-year-old American on Court No. 2 in a match that lasted 4½ hours but spanned almost a day.

"He's the biggest fighter of them all, he never gives up," Kuhnen said after his 5-7, 7-6, 7-6, 6-7, 6-3 fourth-round victory that was interrupted by rain on Monday.

"When I had him there, I had to finish it," the West German, who won 14 of the last 15 points, said. "I played perfect tennis for the last three games."

Kuhnen, a 22-year-old right-hander from the same part of West Germany as Becker, was in action again today in the quarterfinals against Stefan Edberg, the No. 3 seed from Sweden. They opened the program on Court No. 1, followed by Ivan Lendl's meeting with Tim Mayotte, the last American left in the men's event.

The Centre Court schedule began with Mats Wilander pursuing his bid for the third leg of the Grand Slam against Miloslav Mecir. Then came the eagerly awaited showdown between the men who have dominated Wimbledon for the past three years, Becker and defending champion Pat Cash.

Martina Navratilova, one match behind in the women's program because of rain delays, faced unseeded Roz Fairbank in the quarterfinals.

The winner meets Chris Evert Thursday in the women's semifinals when Steffi Graf, also on the third leg of a Grand Slam bid after winning the Australian and French titles, takes on Pam Shriver.

Navratilova, the defending champion bidding for a record ninth women's singles crown at Wimbledon, quickly got out of trouble Tuesday when her match against Larissa Savchenko resumed.

The 31-year-old American, who trailed 4-2 in the first set when play was halted Monday because of rain and poor light, lost only two more games as she triumphed 6-4, 6-2.

Evert, playing in her 17th Wimbledon, had to negotiate a couple of tough three-setters on the way to the last eight. But once she got there, her big-match expertise pulled her through against Helena Sukova 6-3, 7-6.

Graf, who has dropped just 14 games in five matches, was on and off court in less than an hour as she demolished France's Pascale Paradis 6-3, 6-1.

As a final night APSE banquet speaker noted, "St. Louis is a great town and great host, but they need a dome over it."

Looking forward to nice, dry 97 degree WT heat upon leaving St. Louis, the 70-degree greeting... it was almost as though we'd gotten on the wrong plane at Dallas and were in Hawaii.

You've got to go away for a few days to fully appreciate a Midland summer...and no snide remarks or you'll be sentenced to St. Louis.

Wimbledon at a Glance

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A recap of Tuesday's action at the 102nd Wimbledon tennis championships, and what's scheduled for Wednesday:

Attendance—27,741, 9,623 less than the second Tuesday a year ago and 10,836 less than the record for the date set in 1985. Total attendence for the first eight days, 271,827.

Weather—Drizzle delayed the start of play for almost five hours. The main matches were played on showcourts.

Results—Steffi Graf, Pam Shriver and Chris Evert gained semifinal berths with straight-set victories. Graf beat Pascale Paradis of France 6-4, 6-1; Shriver beat Zina Garrison 6-4, 6-4; and Evert beat Helena Sukova 6-3, 7-6. Martina Navratilova won a rain-interrupted fourth-round match over Larisa Savchenko 6-4, 6-2. In the men's draw, two-time champion Boris Becker reached the quarterfinals with a 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 victory over Paul Annacone, while Tim Mayotte became the lone U.S. man in the quarters with a 6-4, 7-6, 4-6, 6-2 victory over Henri Leconte.

Upsets—Jimmy Connors ran out of comebacks. The 35-year-old fifth seed lost to Patrick Kuhnen of West Germany 5-7, 7-6, 7-6, 6-7, 6-3. It was the first Wimbledon loss in a five-setter for Connors since he lost to Bjorn Borg in 1981.

Wednesday's matches—The men's quarterfinals are scheduled, with Becker meeting defending champion Pat Cash is an eagerly awaited match. Top-seeded Ivan Lendl plays Mayotte, second-seeded Mats Wilander plays Miloslav Mecir and third-seeded Stefan Edberg plays Kuhnen. Navratilova plays Roz Fairbank in the last women's quarterfinal.

Quote of the day—"I'm on a mission against all Russians. That's my idea of glasnost." Martina Navrtilova, a Czechoslovak defector a decade ago, after beating Larisa Savchenko of the Soviet Union. Navratilova was eliminated in the fourth round of the French Open by another Soviet player, Natalia Zvereva.

Colleges honor Tech's Davis

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The man who created the national letter of intent for prospective collegiate athletes has been tapped for the College Commissioners Association Award of Special Merit, officials said.

Dr. J. William Davis of Lubbock was scheduled to receive the honor Thursday in Napa, Calif., and will be the fourth recipient of the award honoring service to collegiate athletics.

Retired Texas Tech faculty representative and president of the Southwest Conference from 1968-71, Davis spearheaded the national letter of intent program toward adoption in 1964.

The program, administered by the CCA, began with seven conferences and eight independent institution participating. It has grown into a program for both men and women that includes 400 NCAA Division I and Division II schools with 15,000 signings a year.

Tyson-Spinks fight not mismatch, it was a non-match

Murray

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Well, the train won the wreck. The tank won the war. The rope won the hanging. The river won the flood. The cannon beat the spear. The battleship sank the canoe. The mugger got the watch. The flood got Johnstown. The bank got the money.

Brute strength conquered in the end. It usually does.

A creature so awesome you wondered what they did with the tusks of what surfaced in the Convention Hall here Monday night and squashed a 212-pound fighter who thought he was the heavyweight champion of the world as if he were something he found crawling up his leg.

The last time anyone saw anything this ferocious it had a horn on its nose and it lived in a river and charged land rovers. It walked through Michael Spinks as if he wasn't there.

It wasn't a fight, it was a felony. It was a fight only if you consider the iceberg and the Titanic a toss-up. They should have blindfolded Michael Spinks. Or, better yet, Mike Tyson.

THEY SAID Michael Spinks' very awkwardness would work for him. Well, he wasn't all that awkward. He fell straight down like everybody else. It was just as well gravity was working. He got hit so hard, if he went straight up, he wouldn't have come down yet. The ground broke his fall. Tyson almost broke his back.

At least Tyson didn't eat him.

Never have so many paid so much for so little. The "fight" lasted 1 minute 31 seconds. Tyson probably could have knocked him out on the way out of the locker room. Or on the way in.

The public paid in excess of $70 million for this insult to the intelligence. Barnum must be crying some place today. The public has a taste for catastrophes. This one was as one-sided as an orphanage fire. If you missed it, get some films of the German Army going through Belgium or those baby seals getting clubbed on a rock in the St. Lawrence river.

MICHAEL SPINKS said he liked to put a little terror in his life. For an encore he should go find a castle whose owner sleeps in a coffin and turns into a wolf. Mike Tyson said he could "see the fear in his eyes " right away. I'll bet. Anybody who wouldn't be afraid of Mike Tyson coming at him with clenched fists just doesn't understand the situation. A live lion would have fear in its eyes.

Mike Tyson is 218 pounds of pure menace. Michael Spinks climbed in the ring with a robe brocaded and bejeweled and an entourage of tuxedoed hangers-on. Tyson had no robe, no towel, no socks, and no pity. They should have put a hood over his head. It wasn't a bout, it was an execution.

Spinks prayed in his corner before the bell. He must have thought he was about to meet his Maker.

He had a very bad fight plan. He got up the first time he got knocked down. He tried to the second time. Fortunately, he couldn't make it. Or we might have had a homicide instead of a knockout. This time, Michael Spinks stayed down till the count reached 11. He wasn't taking any chances.

MICHAEL SPINKS is a nice man. He's good to his mother, he helps little old ladies across streets, he's got a nice sense of humor. He just can't fight. He got $13.5 million for making the fourth briefest appearance in heavyweight title history. He goes down in the record books. I emphasize down. Tyson won't be able to recognize him if he meets him on the street. Unless he falls down. You get a picture of Tyson looking puzzled if he comes up to him, then saying "Wait a minute. The shoes look familiar. Would you mind lying down?"

What can you say about a fight that died 91 seconds after it started? You couldn't even call it a mismatch. It was a non-match.

Tyson has this 20-inch — or maybe it's 80-inch — neck. Spinks has this kind of pencil neck. Spinks has this kind of junk pitcher's game plan, he tries to tap you to death. Tyson fights you 3 minutes of every round and throws rocks. It was almost as if they untied a hungry leopard and pointed him at a live steak.

THEY THOUGHT Tyson's merry marital madcaps might have dis-focused him, might have made him vulnerable. Tyson throws them off easier than he did Spinks. The press got him so angry, he took it out on poor Spinks. If they don't let up on him, New York City may be next.

"You tried to embarrass me, you tried to disgrace me and my family," he chided the press bitterly in a shambles of a press conference. "All my life has been chaos, the only way you could get to me was through my family because basically I'm an OK person," he said.

"This might be my last fight," he threatened.

At $22.5 million for a little over a minute and a half's work, it's not likely he'll join a monastery no matter what the press writes about his home life.

The problem is finding a worthy opponent. How about the Penn Central Metroliner? Or a shark in a tank.

And, the top three finishers in each group advance to the IIA state tourney July 13-14 at The Woodlands near Houston in hopes of qualifying for the National IIA meet Aug. 9-10, also at The Woodlands.

Garduno didn't need the Hogan Park meet to qualify for anything. The stocky Monahans Junior High School student has won three tour stops and finished second in his other two appearances.

"I'm just consistent, I guess," Garduno said. "My goal is always to place in the top five."

GARDUNO started playing just 18 months ago when his father took him to a driving range near Big Spring. He said he shows his inexperience on approach shots — the weakest part of his game.

"I usually either hit not enough club, or too much club," Garduno said. "I don't pick my clubs very well yet."

For Roberson and Deitiker, it was same song, different verse. The two had played off for a tour title in 1986 at McCamey, but Deitiker had won that one.

Roberson, an Odessa Permian senior-to-be, started off strong with an eagle on the second regular hole.

"But from there, I didn't have any putts fall for me," he said.

Economic forecasting gauge dips

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today that its chief economic forecasting gauge edged down 0.1 percent in May, but analysts said the slight dip did not signal economic troubles ahead.

The Commerce Department said the decline in its Index of Leading Economic Indicators was the first setback since a 0.2 percent drop in January.

While reporting the decline for May, however, the government revised its estimate of April economic activity upward to show an increase of 0.5 percent in the leading index, instead of the 0.2 percent gain originally reported.

Analysts said even with the slight setback in May, which had been expected, the forecasting gauge is still flashing signals that the economy is on an upward trend.

The economists said there was ample, widespread evidence that the economy is maintaining its forward momentum.

The Reagan administration last week boosted its economic forecast to predict growth, as measured by the gross national product, of 3 percent this year, a significant revision from a February forecast that put growth at a 2.4 percent rate.

In May, the biggest single factor holding the leading index back was a decline in stock prices. Without a 2.5 percent decline in the value of the Standard & Poor 500 stock compilation, the leading index would have registered a 0.1 percent increase for the month.

Four other business barometers also showed weakness during the month. Following stock prices, the biggest negative factors were a drop in plant and equipment orders, a rise in weekly unemployment claims, a drop in the length of the average workweek and a fall in building permits.

Four of the available nine indicators made positive contributions to the index. The biggest positive force was a slowdown in business deliveries from suppliers. This is seen as a sign of rising demand and is thus viewed as a good sign for future economic activity.

Other positive forces were a rise in manufacturers' orders for consumer goods, a rise in raw materials prices, also viewed as a positive by the index, and an increase in the money supply.

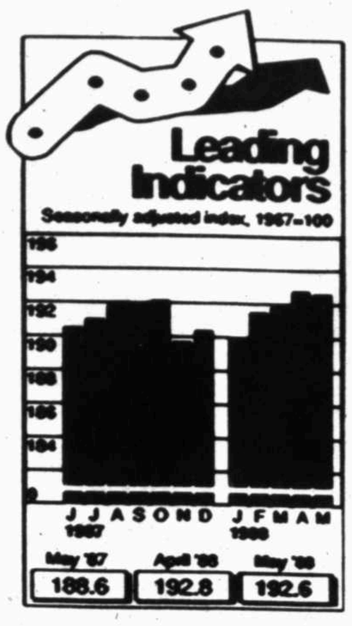

The various changes left the index at 192.6 percent of its 1967 base of 100.

Michael Evans, head of a Washington economic consulting firm, said the economy is really doing better than the leading index would suggest because much of the growth this year has come from a surge in export sales, which the index does not track very well.

"Exports are moving us along and will continue to move us along for the rest of the year," he said.

Some economists have begun to express concerns that the drought in the Midwest will boost inflation this year because of higher food prices.

But Beryl Sprinkel, the president's chief economist, said last week the administration was sticking by its forecast that consumer prices would rise only 4.5 percent this year, little changed from last year's inflation rate.

Oil rebounds after mixed trading

Oil futures rebounded 18 cents today following mixed trading Tuesday, with gasoline posting gains in a fashion typical of the summer driving season.

While contracts for other oil futures fell, the July contract for unleaded gasoline rose 0.48 cent to close at 51.53 cents a gallon. Most longer-term contracts were lower, however.

The August contract for West Texas Intermediate fell 8 cents to finish at $15.78 per 42-gallon barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Among other refined products traded on the exchange, the July contract for home heating oil slipped 0.28 cent to 42.31 cents a gallon.

Traders said activity was somewhat dull. "There's not a whole lot going on," said William Byers of futures research at Bear Stearns & Co.

The gains posted in near-term contracts for unleaded gasoline are typical of the summer driving season, particularly ahead of the long Independence Day weekend, traders said.

Dollar tops 133 yen at 7-month high

LONDON (AP) — The dollar was higher in early European trading today despite expectations of intervention by European central banks to keep its rise under control.

Gold prices, which began falling sharply in New York on Tuesday, continued dropping in quiet European trading, hitting their lowest levels in Europe since March.

In Tokyo, the dollar broke the 133-yen level for the first time in nearly seven months before falling back to close at 132.40 yen, up 1.45 yen from Tuesday. Later, in London, it topped 133-yen again and was quoted at 133.22 yen.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Tuesday's rates:

—1.8235 West German marks, up from 1.8070

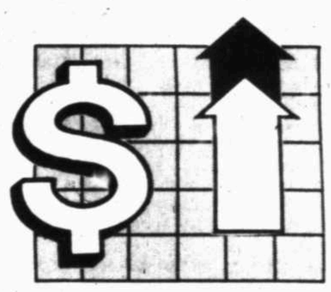

—1.5080 Swiss francs, up from 1.4960

—6.1415 French francs, up from 6.0885

—2.0515 Dutch guilders, up from 2.0210

—1,349.00 Italian lire, up from 1,337.00

—1.2165 Canadian dollars, up from 1.2105

In London, the dollar rose against British pound. It cost $1.7105 to buy one pound, compared with $1.7200 late Tuesday.

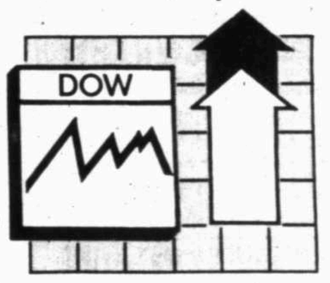

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $437.85 a troy ounce, down from late Tuesday's $443.20. At midmorning today, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a lower recommended price of $434.90.

Stocks rebound more than 22 points

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a rally in subdued trading Tuesday, recovering much of Monday's losses.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 34.50 points on Monday, rebounded 22.41 to 2,130.87.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 9 to 5 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 965 up, 530 down and 478 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 152.37 million shares, down from 264.41 million in the previous session, when the total was inflated by dividend-related activity in several high-yielding stocks.

Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 175.25 million shares.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Latest insider scandal prompts questions

NEW YORK (AP) — Securities pros say the latest insider trading scheme alleged by the government against a Morgan Stanley & Co. analyst and a client raises big questions about whether Wall Street has been properly policing itself in the aftermath of the Ivan Boesky scandal.

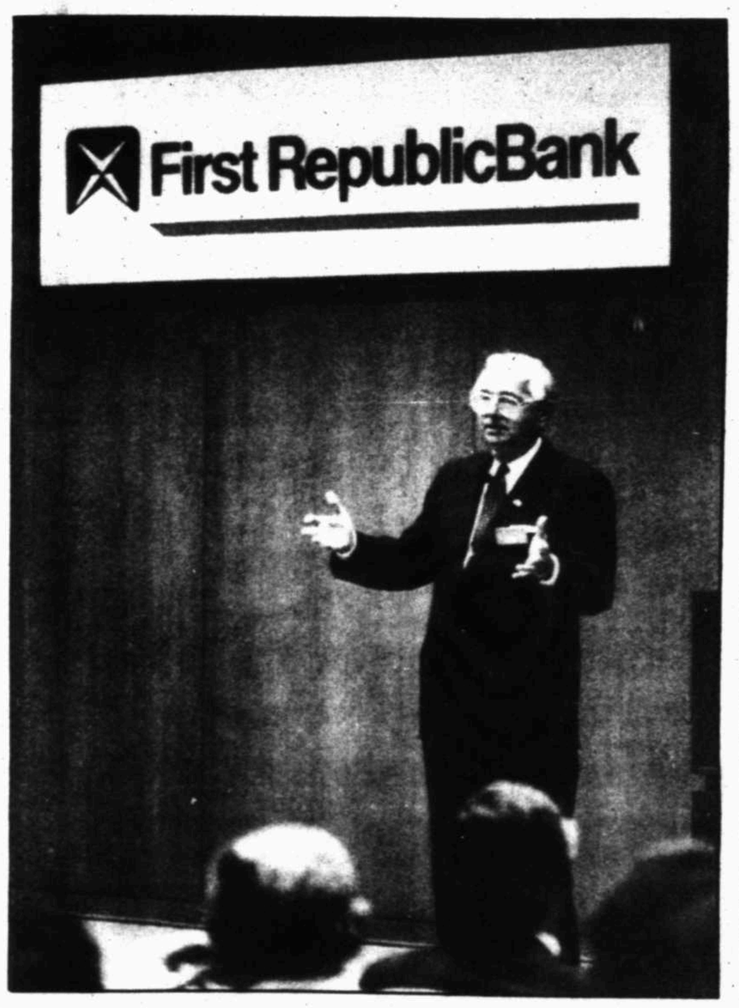

Securities lawyers and professionals say they are shocked that Morgan trainee Stephen Wang Jr. could have obtained access to secrets about corporate takeovers and systematically misused them.

Washington attorney Paul Fischer said Tuesday that the scheme "seems to suggest that even the real threat of criminal prosecution and jail sentences isn't enough to eradicate insider trading."

Corn, soybean future prices do back flip

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn and soybean futures prices plummeted by their daily limits on the Chicago Board of Trade in a wild reversal based on concerns that rain may fall across the Midwest and bring relief to drought-stricken crops.

Victor Lespinasse, an analyst with Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., said Tuesday that talk of rain "caused massive liquidation" among buyers in the corn and soybean pits who had been anticipating the drought would continue to damage crops and tighten supplies.

First RepublicBank chairman Albert V. Casey faces shareholders during the firm's annual meeting in Dallas Tuesday.

First RepublicBank head touts restructuring plan

DALLAS (AP) — Shareholders of First RepublicBank Corp. have been told that the company will suffer another "substantial" loss in the current quarter because the Texas real estate market has not bottomed out.

But chairman Albert Casey said Tuesday after the stockholder's meeting that the company's restructuring plan could beat a competing plan from Citicorp.

"Citicorp won't tell me if they're going to submit a proposal," Casey said. Casey said he knows of only Citicorp as a possible competitor with First RepublicBank for submitting bank restructuring plans with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Officials of Citicorp have declined to comment on whether they plan to purchase Dallas-based First RepublicBank, the state's largest bank holding company.

One stockholder expressed strong reservations about the possible deal with Citicorp.

"We don't want the Yankees coming in," one shareholder told the meeting. "We need an independent institution."

Pointed and occasionally angry remarks came from stockholders following Casey's presentation of the annual report.

NYMEX experts defend energy futures trading

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Assistant Business/Oil Editor

Like it or not, energy futures trading is here to stay. That was the message hammered home at a Permian Basin Petroleum Association seminar Tuesday at Midland's Petroleum Club.

Peter Wishart, marketing manager of energy futures, and Robert Levin, director of research, for the New York Mercantile Exchange explained and defended the exchange before a sometimes contentious crowd of about 30 local oilmen.

NYMEX provides "price transparency" that allows all interested parties to know market prices within moments of trading on the floor, Wishart said.

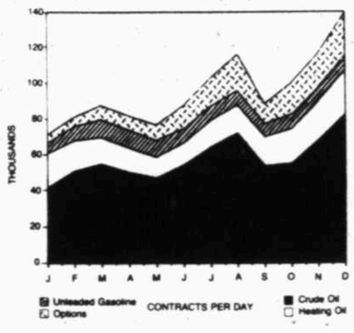

Although today's pace of information drives prices up and down faster than previously possible, Wishart said that without NYMEX "the major reference point for buyers and sellers would be 'reported prices' from the North Sea" and elsewhere throughout the world.

And the same supply and demand dynamics determine oil prices, with or without futures trading, he said.

The pair noted that NYMEX's penalty power is limited to demanding liquidation of positions by any market participant and that the exchange takes concerns about market manipulation very seriously.

Because the exchange is regulated by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, any violation of its trading rules is a federal crime.

Among the rules in place to keep any participant from taking an "inordinate position" in the market is a limit of 5,000 total option contracts in any single energy commodity — crude oil, heating oil, gasoline or propane — for all months combined. "Hedge exemptions" are granted for some larger players in the market who can prove a bona fide need for greater volume, but Levin noted that the largest such exemption are "not for Middle Eastern producers."

Total trading volume of all energy commodities on the New York Mercantile Exchange expanded widely late last year.

Oil producers looking for something from the market "to keep from getting run over" by large producers and purchasers weren't offered much by the exchange officials. "We try to make ours a fair and competitive exchange for all," Levin said.

Businessman to fight insider trading charges

NEW YORK (AP) — The attorney for a Hong Kong businessman accused of participating in a multimillion-dollar insider trading scheme says his client intends to fight the charges.

"They want to make him out to be another Ivan Boesky, but he's far from that," Michael F. Perlis, the attorney for businessman Fred C. Lee, told the New York Times in an interview published today.

Lee and Stephen Wang Jr., 24, a junior analyst for the investment firm Morgan Stanley & Co., have been accused in a civil complaint by the Securities and Exchange Commission of engaging in an insider trading scheme that netted Lee $19 million in illegal profits.

The SEC has accused Wang of selling information to Lee, a Morgan customer, on at least 25 corporate takeovers in which Morgan played a role over the past year. Lee allegedly profited by using that information in trading stocks and stock options. Wang was paid $200,000 for the tips, the SEC said.

Westwood Village gets new tenants

By MELLA McEWEN

McEwen

Expected to open in 10 days to two weeks in the old Chinese Kitchen location at Westwood Village Shopping Center, Illinois and Midkiff, is LA POSA, serving Mexican cuisine.

Louie Caraveo, whose brother Octavio owns La Posa and La Fiesta in Artesia, N.M., said the restaurant will feature dishes common to southern New Mexico, San Antonio or El Paso-Juarez. He noted the dishes will be lighter than the Tex-Mex fare Midlanders are more familiar with. Among the menu items will be chile rellenos, chili (made as hot or mild as the customer wants), tamales, and mole. He feels a special favorite will be empanadas, fruit pies made with sweet tortillas.

According to Caraveo, there will be a luncheon buffet from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday — all you can eat for $4.95, and he emphasized that all La Posa's menu items will be on the buffet. The restaurant will also be open for dinner from 5 to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The Caraveos intend the restaurant to appeal to families, and so will not serve alcoholic beverages.

•••

One of La Posa's neighbors will be SONSHINE CORNER, which relocated from 350 Midland Drive to a location near Weight Watchers and Colortyme.

Owner Lanna Callender said her Christian bookstore's new location has better parking and facilities.

MANPOWER, INC. has moved to larger quarters at 4500 W. Illinois, Suite 200.

The nationwide temporary services firm, which has had a Midland office for approximately 15 years, provides clerical and industrial help and long and short-term assignments.

•••

The newest tenant in Fairmont Park Shopping Center, 3323 N. Midland Drive, is NORTH MIDLAND DRIVE ANIMAL HOSPITAL.

Drs. Jack and Melissa Vallee offer surgery, vaccinations and other medical treatment. The practice is limited to small animals.

Now open on the 24th floor of the First RepublicBank building, in the former Pinnacle Club location is KARENS, owned and operated by Karen Hilliard, who also owns Peaches Eighth Street Cafe in Odessa.

The restaurant is open for lunch and happy hour, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday. There is free parking for patrons, who should use the Missouri St. entrance.

KELI-FM, an easy listening radio station based in San Angelo, can now be heard in Midland at 95.9 on the FM dial.

KELI added translator stations, also called repeater radio stations, in Midland and Abilene. Its broadcast covers 33,000 square miles and can reach over 600,000 West Texans.

Beginning June 29, motorists who visit participating Exxon stations can play "Performance Payoff," a new game promotion. The game offers more than $6 million in prizes, including 50 high-performance Chevrolet cars and trucks as well as cash prizes totalling more than $5 million.

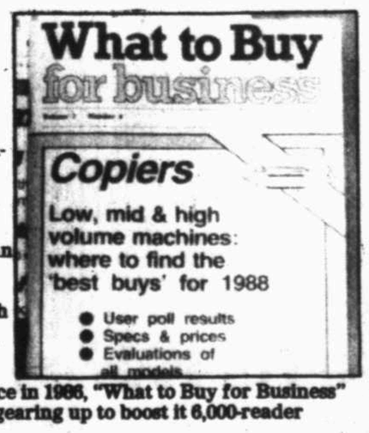

Game tickets are free to eligible licensed drivers who visit participating Exxon retailers. No purchase is necessary, and there is one game ticket per visit, per day.

There are two ways to play and win. First, an Instant Win feature allows a participant to win up to $5,000 in cash by scratching off the portion of the game ticket that reveals cash prize amounts. If any three revealed amounts match, the participant wins that prize. Second, a Collect and Win feature allows a participant to win up to $1,000 cash or one of 50 high-performance Chevrolet cars and trucks by collecting the three stamps needed to complete any prize section in the Collector Booklet.

BUSINESS TRENDS

Businesses are consumers too

In 1985, a pair of young British publishers notiuced there was nothing like "Consumer Reports" in the United States covering office products.

"It was an amazing gap in the world's largest market," recalls John Derrick, one of the duo.

"It's the sort of thing a growing business dreams of: an opening with vast potential and no direct competition."

Since the first U.S. edition was published from their Rye, N.Y. office in 1986, "What to Buy for Business" has kept a fairly low profile, but is gearing up to boost it 6,000-reader circulation.

Subscribers who pay the $95 per 10 monthly issue rate receive a report on a different type of office product each month. Subjects covered include copiers, typewriters, facsimile machines, personal computers, word processing, desktop publishing, telephone systems, computer printers and mailing equipment.

FUTURES

But as for charges that international schemes exist between major producers and foreign countries to manipulate inventories and control NYMEX prices, the officials said that those forces and their self-knowledge of their own future moves falls outside the realm of the New York market and that the futures price reflects those forces working on all world markets, not solely NYMEX.

While not able to quell the apprehension of many of the attendees about the extraordinary influence of NYMEX in reflecting world prices, Wishart went on to explain how producers can hedge against future price movements to "manage a company's internal price volatility."

By taking a position based on its view of future price movements, a company can lock in prices or gamble on rising prices through futures and options contracts.

If a company wants to develop a futures trading program, Wishart recommended four steps toward doing so:

- study the market closely to develop a thorough understanding;
- analyze the use of futures and possible personal applications;
- identify the internal organization and controls necessary to monitor the program; and
- select a broker or brokers to open one or more accounts.

Wishart suggested considering more than one broker because expertise varies from brokerage to brokerage.

After more than four years of work, the exchange is optimistic it will gain approval of natural gas futures by the end of the year, Levin said.

An application to exclude gas within the so-called "Katy interchange service area" from individual transportation tariffs is pending before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Gas could then be transferred between any of the pipelines in the interchange area for a flat rate, proposed at 3.18 cents per 10,000 MMBtu (million British thermal units) contract, Levin said. The four pipelines which form "the bulwark of the interchange" are Trunkline Gas Co., Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp., Coronado Transmission Co. and Access Pipeline (formerly Yankee Pipeline Co.).

NYMEX is hopeful of gaining FERC approval of the proposed delivery mechanism by September, at which point the exchange will reopen its inactive application with the CFTC for gas futures trading within three months of the approval.

"Price transparency is even more of a problem in gas than in oil," Levin said. "We hear many reports of two or more prices being paid in the same field, but producers have no way of knowing what prices are available.

"I don't see how this lack of transparency helps anybody," he said.

Another mechanism under study at NYMEX is a longer term — probably three years — instrument designed to add greater stability to crude oil prices.

"It would likely be a 'two-sided' option that would cover a price range over a longer period of time," Levin said, adding that he hopes a prototype of the longer term contract can be completed by year-end.

The new instrument would serve a different market than currently served by up to 18-month futures, he said.

Drillers, bankers and others with long-term needs for price stability would be the likely participants in the longer market and independents have expressed interest in the concept, he added.

The newspaper also reported that the SEC is looking into securities trading records at five other brokerage firms in its investigation. Sources who were not identified told the newspaper that the SEC was examining trading done by accounts controlled by Lee at Goldman Sachs, First Boston, Merrill Lynch, Shearson Lehman Hutton and Charles Schwab.

In a complaint filed Monday in Manhattan federal court, the SEC obtained an order freezing the assets of both men and requested they repay the $19 million plus triple the amount in damages for a total of $76 million.

The amount is the second-largest sought by the SEC in an insider-trading case after the record $100 million in illicit profits and penalties seized in November 1986 from Boesky, once Wall Street's best-known speculator.

Wang's whereabouts remain unclear. On Tuesday, his lawyer, Ira L. Sorkin, said, "The only thing I can say is we're studying out options."

Perlis, a San Francisco attorney who represents Lee, did not return two telephone calls from The Associated Press for comment. Lee, 38, was believed to be in Hong Kong. He also has a home in the Washington suburb of McLean, Va.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

'Basis' is market value at time of giver's death

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I inherited 203 shares of bank stock. On the date of death of the relative who left it to me, the stock's price was listed in the newspapers as $34 per share.

Some years later, the stock was split three-for-two, giving me 101 1/2 more shares. I purchased a half share to round out, but I can find no record of the price I paid for the half share. As a result of my inheritance, the stock split and the half share purchase, I now own 305 shares.

The bank is being merged and I will receive cash for my shares. What figure do I show for my "basis" — cost for tax purposes — when I report the capital gain by filing Schedule D with my 1988 Form 1040 federal income tax return?

Doyle

A. Your basis most likely is $6,902 plus the price you paid for that half share. If you can't come up with a confirmation statement or other receipt of that price, go to a public library and look up the stock's price at the time you bought the half share.

In almost all cases, the basis for inherited property — including stock — is the market value on the date the person who left it died. The exception to this general rule is when an alternative valuation date is used to settle the estate.

At $34 each, the 203 shares you inherited had a basis of $6,902. The three-for-two split gave you 101 1/2 additional shares but didn't change that basis. Your basis remained at $6,902 on 304 1/2 shares. You have to add the cost of the half share you bought to $6,902 to have an absolutely accurate basis on the 305 shares.

Q. In 1959, I bought 30 shares of stock at 50 1/2. The stock has split four times, bringing my holdings to 600 shares. I gave my daughter 180 shares. If she sells, what is her basis?

A. That depends on whether she sells at a profit or a loss. On gift stock sold at a profit, the basis for the recipient — your daughter — is the same as the basis of the donor — you. On gift stock sold at a loss, the recipient's basis is either the donor's basis or the market value on the date of the gift — whichever is lower.

Your total basis was $1,515 — the price you paid. The splits did not change your total basis but reduce your basis per share. On 600 shares, your per share basis became $2.52 1/2. That's arrived at by dividing your $1,515 total basis by 600.

Q. I'm told the Internal Revenue Service has no records of the prices at which stocks are bought, inherited, received by gift or otherwise acquired. True or False?

A. True. However, the IRS does get copies of all Forms 1099-B, listing the prices at which stocks are sold. That information is fed into computers to catch folks who "forget" to report sales and taxable profits. And the revenooers' computers do "go tilt" when reported sales show losses or suspiciously low profits.

PLAN—

First RepublicBank lost $1.5 billion in the first quarter, prompting a $1 billion bailout earlier this year from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The meeting came just two days before the FDIC's deadline to submit a restructuring proposal for First RepublicBank. First RepublicBank submitted its own proposal June 9.

Casey said the FDIC should select a plan shortly after July 8.

If accepted by the FDIC, the merger of Citicorp and First RepublicBank would create the largest holding company in U.S. history and one of the 10 largest in the world.

Employees of the French Railways National Company examine the wreckage of a commuter train Tuesday that was sliced apart in order to clear the platform and prepare for normal traffic after Monday's train collision at the Paris Gare de Lyon station.

Brake problems found 40 minutes before crash

PARIS (AP) — Investigators tried today to reconstruct the 40 minutes between the discovery of brake problems on a Paris-bound commuter train and its collision with a crowded train, which killed 59 people.

The state-run rail company, SNCF, said the engineer realized his brakes weren't working when he was more than a mile away from the busy Gare de Lyon station and warned passengers to get to the back of the train.

The brake trouble on the eight-car train began five miles outside the station after a passenger pulled the emergency cord at Vert de Maisons, an unscheduled stop, at about 6:30 p.m. Monday, the company said. It wasn't known why the passenger pulled the cord.

After a 26-minute delay there, the train continued on toward Paris. But the brake problems continued, and a mile from the station engineer Daniel Saulin appeared unable to stop the train.

Saulin, 42, alerted the station controller and then his passengers as the train rushed at 40-50 mph through a stop signal 600 yards from impact.

Rail officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the station controller did not have time to reroute the train and it slammed into the stationary four-car train at 7:10 p.m.

Normal procedure would have been for the arriving train to stop at the 600- yard signal and get directions to the appropriate track.

Through the night and into Tuesday morning, 250 rescue workers struggled to free the injured. The number of bodies grew steadily and the crash became Paris' worst train disaster.

SNCF reported 59 dead.

Ousted Chinese leader back in political limelight

CANTON, China (AP) — An official disgraced three years ago for alleged corruption is back in the limelight as one of Canton's rising stars, yet another example of China's penchant for reviving its politically dead.

Lei Yu, 54, earned nationwide notoriety in 1985 when, official media accounts said, he and other top-ranking officials on southern Hainan island were accused of abusing power by importing vehicles and consumer goods and reselling them at high profits to the rest of China.

Lei was demoted from his leading party and government posts on the undeveloped, tropical island between Vietnam and the Philippines and become a county-level party deputy secretary in southern Guangdong province.

But on March 31, the official Xinhua News Agency announced that he had been promoted to vice mayor of Canton in charge of foreign economic relations and trade. Assisting economic growth in two counties, Lei had learned, among other things, "never to loaf on the job," the report said.

On Monday, the Canton People's Congress voted Lei one of six vice mayors of the Guangdong capital, a leading city in China's economic reform program.

He received the second most votes of the nine candidates, newspaper reports appearing in the nearby British colony of Hong Kong said Tuesday.

Four days earlier, the congress chose Yang Ziyuan as mayor by a 318-153 tally over Lei, according to newspaper reports in Hong Kong. Before the vote, Lei reportedly reminded the congress of his mistakes in the Hainan affair in a well-received speech and threw his support Yang.

In an interview at Canton's municipal offices two weeks ago, it was clear why Lei is back. He displayed an agile no-nonsense mind and enthusiastically espoused the market-oriented economic reforms of senior leader Deng Xiaoping.

Wearing a well-tailored Western suit and exuding confidence, Lei seemed cut in the mold of Communist Party leader Zhao Ziyang, who has taken the lead in promoting Deng's reforms.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Church leaders speak out before elections

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church is taking a new and more vocal role in providing political guidance to its faithful, ignoring legal restrictions that date back to early this century.

In pastoral letters and statements to the news media, bishops and priests have begun to attack government corruption and demand clean and honest elections.

Other letters openly urge Mexicans to "reason through" their votes in July 6 national elections and not to feel themselves tied to a political party.

"The violation, by means of fraud or repression, of the right to to vote is more serious and harmful than any economic fraud," the bishops of the northern city of Monterrey recently said in a letter urging Catholics to participate more actively in politics.

Similar pastoral letters, especially in northern Mexico, have been issued by other bishops.

No names need be mentioned.

The church claims 90 per cent of all Mexicans are Catholics.

Terrorists claim killing

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A Greek terrorist organization blamed for previous assassinations of American diplomats claimed responsibility today for a car-bomb blast that killed the U.S. military attache as he drove to work.

In a five page statement published in the left wing Athens afternoon daily Ethnos, November 17 said it would attack more Americans "until the last Turkish soldier leaves Cyprus and the last American soldier leaves our country."

U.S. Navy Capt. William Nordeen, 51, was killed Tuesday when a booby-trapped car blew up next to his armor-plated automobile just 100 yards from his suburban Athens home.

The blast ripped off the car's roof and flung Nordeen's decapitated body into the yard of an unoccupied house.

Many Greeks blame the United States for failing to prevent Turkey's 1974 invasion of Cyprus after an Athens-inspired coup there.

High command meeting

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (AP) — The Defense Ministry said its high command was meeting with army officers to discuss potential actions once a truce with Nicaraguan rebels expires Thursday night.

The end of the government-declared truce coincides with a series of consulations between Secretary of State George Shultz and U.S. allies in Central America.

The ministry called the meetings between Defense Minister Humberto Ortega and his commanders "extremely important," but provided no details. It said such meetings were held only in extraordinary circumstances.

The Sandinista government did not announce whether it would extend its unilateral truce. The U.S.-supported Contra rebels said they would continue to abide by the cease-fire indefinitely, but rejected a government offer to resume peace talks this week.

Soviet farmers may get more rights over land

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev's plan to lease out state farmland could give Soviet farmers the most control over their produce since Josef V. Stalin forced the nation's peasants to join collective farms nearly 60 years ago.

In a sweeping 3½-hour televised speech Tuesday, the Soviet leader said it was essential to extend as quickly as possible successful experiments in leasing land to individuals or family farming teams.

The result, he said, would be to make the farmers the "masters of the land."

This, he suggested, would be the quickest way to ease food shortages that he called "the most painful and most acute problem in the life of our society."

Gorbachev also proposed to spend $124 billion through 1995 to improve the processing, storage and transportation of food.

"If we manage to reap, transport, store and process the harvest promptly, and to deliver to the consumer in good time, we will increase food production by 20 to 30 percent" without increasing the productivity of the land itself, he said.

The son of a Russian peasant, Gorbachev began his political career in an agricultural region and oversaw Soviet agriculture from 1978 to late 1984, giving him many years of experience with the problems of tilling land in the huge state and collective farms created by Stalin.

Since taking over as Soviet leader in March 1985, Gorbachev has signaled his willingness to break down those big units as the only way to improve supplies in a nation where meat and milk are rationed in many regions.

Addressing a national congress of collective farmers last March, Gorbachev called for broader freedoms in the farming industry.

On a collective farm, members of a cooperative jointly own farm buildings and machinery and share in the farm's earnings. But those organizations have dwindled in recent decades in favor of state farms, where workers farm the land in brigades and receive a basic wage, like employees in a factory.

In 1970, there were 33,000 "kolkhozes," or collective farms, in the Soviet Union. By 1986, the number of such farms had dropped to 26,300 and the number of collective farmers from 16.7 million in 1970 to 12.6 million.

Gorbachev has tried to persuade Soviets to return to cooperative farms, encouraging the system to provide incentives to increase production and alleviate the chronic food shortage in the Soviet Union.

Now, he wants to expand a system that permits families to lease land from their collectives and farm it themselves.

To make the system work, however, the Soviet Union must revamp its state pricing structure to enable people to reap a fair return for their efforts, Gorbachev said Tuesday.

One delegate to the conference pointed out the general secretary's proposal to expand the leasing system is hampered by a deeply ingrained conservatism in Soviet society.

"The problem...is that our people have forgotten how to take risks," said Mikhail Bronstein, a leading economist from Tartu University in the Baltic republic of Estonia.

He said that older people in Estonia still remember the democracy that existed there until Soviet troops seized the three Baltic republics in 1940.

Politburo member Alexander N. Yakovlev said Tuesday at a news conference that food shortages cannot be eased if the "attitude of dependency" on instructions and handouts continues to dominate state farming.

Protesters arrested after free speech demanded

MOSCOW (AP) — Hours after Mikhail S. Gorbachev said citizens should be able to freely express their opinions, police broke up two demonstrations in Moscow in a scene reminiscent of traditional Soviet intolerance.

"Homeland" was what protesters shouted Tuesday as 200 Crimean Tatars gathered to demand they be allowed to return to their homeland.

Police moved in twice to drag off members of the disgruntled ethnic group, carting them away in buses.

On Pushkin Square, police arrested seven members of a group called the Democratic Union, witnesses said. The group advocates a multiparty system and an end to the Soviet military presence in Eastern Europe.

Today, participants in the demonstrations said the seven had either been fined, jailed or summoned to court. The fate of the arrested Tatars was unknown.

In the Kremlin on Tuesday, Gorbachev told the first nationwide Communist Party conference in 47 years that the civil rights of Soviet citizes need to be better respected.

"I would like to dwell particularly on the political freedoms that enable a person to express his opinion on any matter," he said in his keynote address. "The implementation of these freedoms is a real guarantee that any problem of public interest will be discussed from every angle."

But the Soviet leader warned that activities such as redrawing borders and establishing political parties to challenge the Communists' political monopoly would not be tolerated.

He also said the Soviet legal system should "guarantee strict observance of the citizens' rights to the inviolability of private life and the home, privacy of correspondence, postal and telegraph messages."

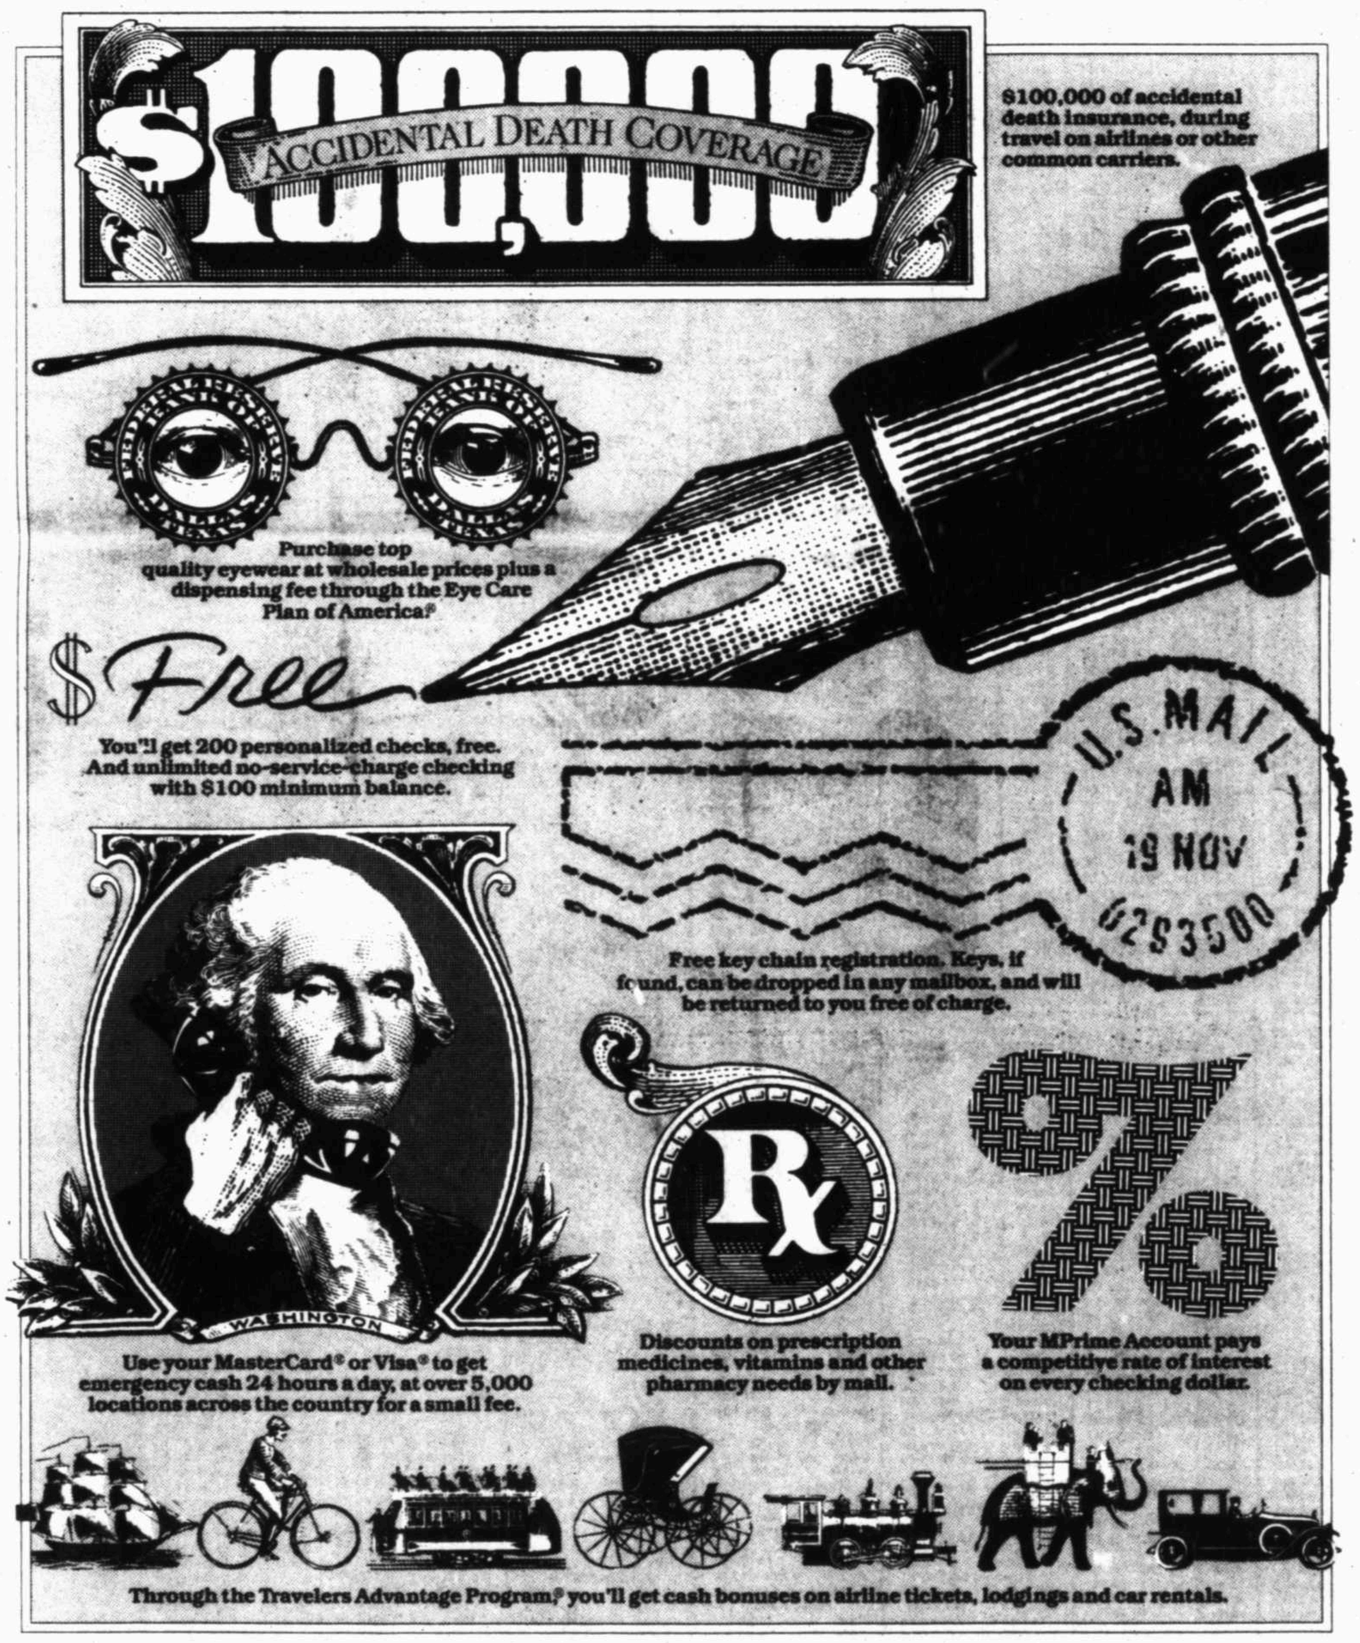

The system must also ensure, he said, that a person is innocent until proven guilty and that all people get equal treatment before the law.

Those rights and the right to speak out on the issues before Soviet society have been violated since the time of dictator Josef Stalin and must be restored, he said.

After police carried away about 200 demonstrating Crimean Tatars on Tuesday, a sobbing woman said: "They took my husband!"

The woman, in her 20s, was arrested a few minutes later.

Two officers told a reporter the protesters were not being arrested or taken to a jail, but merely removed from the area because they were "violating public order."

Celebrate Good Weather With COUNTRY FOODS

Country is a frame of mind. As the weather gets milder and warmer, we think of fresh air and green grass. Even if we don't live near a meadow and stream, we can create old-fashioned country food and a rustic atmosphere anywhere.

Start, for example, with the idea of simple food that can be prepared ahead of time and taken to the patio or local park or even served at home in an airy place by the windows. What's more down-home than crispy fried chicken, in this case, Honey Mustard Chicken? Using frozen plump and juicy chicken saves time and work. The chicken pieces can be heated in a conventional oven in 35 minutes. Add the glaze and heat it just 10 minutes more. If you want to serve it cold, let the chicken parts cool for a half hour, then cover loosely and refrigerate.

Potato-base salads are an ideal complement to fried chicken. The Idaho potato, grown in rich volcanic soil, works marvelously in salads. These potatoes have a lower moisture content so they're lighter, and bring forward flavor, not weight. The Country Slaw, for one, combines the rich, hearty flavor of hash browns with fresh shredded cabbage, carrots, and Country Classic sweet chunky relish. The colorful relish adds a unique crunch and a touch of old-fashioned country flavor.

A warm German-style Potato Salad is a good contrast to the cool, crisp slaw. Idaho frozen potatoes are heated in just enough bacon drippings to coat and lightly brown them. The cooked potatoes are tossed gently with a little vinegar and sweet garden mix of cauliflower, carrots and pickle chunks. An alternative to the warm salad, if you are serving country-style at home, is a platter of Idaho Potato Pancakes.

Serve this basic country meal with country sweet gherkins and chips plus corn bread or whole wheat rolls. Dessert can be refreshing make-ahead poached pears or an old fashioned rice pudding.

Country food is hard to beat for flavor and sheer satisfaction especially when it can be prepared so quickly and easily.

HONEY MUSTARD CHICKEN

1 package (32 ounces) plump & juicy fried chicken
3 tablespoons honey
3 tablespoons spicy brown mustard
1/8 teaspoon curry powder

1. In shallow baking pan, arrange chicken in single layer. Bake at 375°F. for 35 minutes.
2. Meanwhile, in small bowl, stir together honey, mustard and curry. Brush honey mixture on chicken pieces, covering completely.
3. Bake 10 minutes more, turning once during baking. Makes 8 servings.

GERMAN-STYLE POTATO SALAD

2 slices bacon
4 cups frozen potatoes
1 cup sweet garden mix
1/4 cup juice from sweet garden mix
1 tablespoon cider vinegar, optional
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

1. In 10-inch skillet over medium heat, cook bacon until crisp. Remove to paper towels to drain. Crumble; set aside.
2. In hot drippings, spread potatoes in single layer. Cover; cook over medium heat 8 minutes or until potatoes are tender and lightly browned, stirring occasionally.
3. In large bowl, combine potatoes, sweet garden mix, juice from sweet garden mix, salt and pepper; toss to coat well. Serve warm. Makes 4 cups or 6 servings.

POTATO PANCAKES

1/2 cup water
1/2 cup milk
4 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/3 cups instant mashed potato flakes
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons sliced green onion
Dash hot pepper sauce

1. In 1-quart saucepan, combine water, milk, 2 tablespoons of the butter and salt. Over medium heat, heat to boiling. Remove from heat. Add potato flakes, stir just until moistened. Let stand 30 seconds.
2. With fork, whip potatoes until well blended and smooth. Spoon potatoes into small bowl, stir in egg, onion and hot pepper sauce until well blended.
3. Cover; refrigerate at least 3 hours or until firm.
4. With floured hands, shape about 1/4 cup of the potato mixture into a patty. Repeat with remaining mixture.
5. In 10-inch skillet, in 1 tablespoon hot butter, cook 4 patties until lightly browned on both sides, turning once. Repeat with remaining 1 tablespoon butter and remaining patties. Makes 4 servings.

COUNTRY SLAW

1 package (6 ounces) hash brown potatoes
1 3/4 cups boiling water
2 cups shredded cabbage
1 medium carrot, shredded
1 cup sweet chunky relish
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup juice from sweet chunky relish
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
1/8 teaspoon pepper

1. In large bowl, stir together potatoes and water; let stand 10 minutes or until water is absorbed. Add cabbage, carrot and relish.
2. In small bowl, stir together mayonnaise, relish juice, vinegar and pepper. Pour over potato mixture; toss to coat well.
3. Cover; refrigerate until serving time, at least 2 hours. Makes 6 cups or 8 servings.

BARBECUE-STYLE CHICKEN

1 package (32 ounces) plump & juicy fried chicken
1/4 cup ketchup
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

1. In shallow baking pan, arrange chicken in single layer. Bake at 375°F. for 35 minutes.
2. Meanwhile, in small bowl, stir together ketchup, horseradish, vinegar and Worcestershire. Brush ketchup mixture on chicken pieces, covering completely.
3. Bake 10 minutes more, turning once during baking. Makes 8 servings.

Soups of summer sumptuous

By MARIAN BURROS
New York Times News Service

Soups can help the dieter lose weight and keep it off. It takes more time to eat a bowl of soup than to eat a hamburger or a plate of french fries, and the slower you eat, the less you eat.

A study completed in 1980 by the Wharton Applied Research Center of the University of Pennsylvania, with support from the Campbell Soup Co., showed that among more than 500 overweight test subjects, those who ate soup as an appetizer consumed fewer calories in subsequent courses than those who were served other appetizers.

Yet refreshing summer soups hardly appear to fill the diet prescription, since so many seem inextricably linked with cream. Three that immediately come to mind are Senegalese soup, made with chicken, curry and cream; vichyssoise, with its potatoes, leeks and cream; and Billi Bi, which calls for mussels in a base of egg yolks and cream.

They are wonderful for moments of indulgence, because, after all, it's no challenge to make things taste good if they contain lots of butter and cream. But most of us no longer want to indulge on a regular basis. At the same time, we think we should not be punished for eschewing the fat and calories these classics contain. There must be some middle path, something other than gazpacho.

Not that gazpacho, with its piquant mix of flavors, should be discarded. When properly prepared, it is one of the most refreshing and nutritious cold soups. Just beware gazpacho with a thick film of oil on top.

Just as there are dozens of methods for making gazpacho, there are many ways to turn very rich soups into more refreshing, more healthful versions of their former selves. One of the simplest techniques is to substitute yogurt or a beef, chicken or vegetable stock for the cream in a soup recipe.

MIDDLE EASTERN CUCUMBER SOUP

3 cups plain low-fat yogurt
1½ cups grated cucumber
½ cup seedless raisins
¾ cup cold water
¾ cup finely chopped walnuts
1 clove garlic, minced
Salt and white pepper to taste

Put yogurt in bowl and beat with rotary beater or whisk until smooth. Add cucumber and raisins. Blend in cold water.

Add walnuts, garlic, salt and pepper. Blend well and chill thoroughly.

CURRIED ZUCCHINI SOUP

1 medium-size zucchini, thickly sliced
2 tablespoons snipped fresh dill
10 sprigs watercress, including stems
3 ounces cream cheese
1 cup low-fat milk
1 tablespoon olive oil
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 small clove garlic, minced
¾ to 1 teaspoon curry powder
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
Additional sprigs of watercress for garnish

Combine all ingredients except watercress in blender, and blend until smooth.

Chill soup thoroughly. Garnished with sprigs of watercress.

COLD SPINACH SOUP

2 (10-ounce) packages fresh spinach or 2 pounds loose spinach, washed, drained and tough stems removed ½ cup minced onion
2 cups low-fat yogurt
2 cups chicken stock
¼ cup vermouth
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ teaspoon mace

Cook spinach in its own moisture with onion until spinach has wilted but is still bright green. Drain. Place spinach and onion in blender with 1 cup yogurt; blend until smooth.

In pot, combine spinach mixture, remaining 1 cup yogurt and stock. Cook just until flavors are blended. Do not boil, or yogurt will separate.

SWEET AND SPICY TOMATO SOUP

(Adapted from "The Complete Book of Soups and Stews" by Bernard Clayton Jr.; Simon & Schuster, 1984)

2 tablespoons olive oil
2 ribs celery, coarsely chopped
1 small onion, coarsely chopped
1 medium-size green pepper, chopped
1 teaspoon minced hot pepper
1 large clove garlic, minced
5 to 6 large, ripe tomatoes, peeled, cored and chopped
1 tablespoon brown sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon allspice
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup plain, low-fat yogurt for garnish

In large saucepan, heat olive oil; add celery, onion, green pepper, hot pepper and garlic. Cover pan and cook over medium-low heat until vegetables are tender, 8 to 10 minutes. Stir frequently. Do not overcook or burn.

Add tomatoes, brown sugar, cinnamon and allspice. Bring to boil. Reduce heat. Add salt and pepper to taste. Cover saucepan, and allow soup to simmer until tomato pieces are tender, about 10 minutes. Chill soup and serve garnished with yogurt.

On May 15th, the town of Midland, Texas was battered by a hailstorm that shattered more than windows. Thousands of homes and cars were damaged. Thousands of lives disrupted.

But the people of Midland were not undone. And when the Allstate Catastrophe Team arrived just hours later, we found a community already pulling together. Ready to help us help you.

Together with local officials and volunteers, we were able to write checks for damages and emergency relief. On the spot. And give over 1000 families protected by Allstate something more than hope to hold on to.

So hats off to you. For your help and patience. For while we were first on the scene, we know that in times of need, one can never answer the call fast enough.

WHAT'S COOKING

Cook promotes cookbook

Darlean Brazell

Darlean Brazell, a Midlander for three years, said that "thanks to volunteer work" she is "enjoying" the city she choose to retire in. One reason Mrs. Brazell and her husband, Alvin, moved to Midland was to be near one of their daughters.

A previous resident of Duncanville, Mrs. Brazell said she missed living there until she became involved with Midland organizations through the Senior Center and Fairmont Park Church of Christ.

Mrs. Brazell is a strong supporter of the Midland Suburban Lioness Club and one of her goals is the help sell the club's remaining cookbooks they recently published.

"When these cookbooks are gone, we can get on with the next one," Mrs. Brazell said. She said purchasers of the cookbook benefit in several ways. "First of all, you get excellent recipes which have all been kitchen tested," she said. And secondly, cookbook purchasers "help people who are visually handicapped or otherwise handicapped," since proceeds are filtered into Lions Club community services.

Mrs. Brazell, who is blind, said she knows the value of Lions Club services. Her seeing eye dog was purchased through the aid of the Lions Club. Mrs. Brazell also supports the works of Insight, a social organization for the visually impaired and Visual Aids Newsmobile, which provides services for the visually and physically handicapped.

"And of course, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is another organization I appreciate since I would need their services if I lost my dog," Mrs. Brazell said.

Although the Brazells have retired, Mrs. Brazell works part-time in sales for Dimension Cable. She said she was "very grateful" to Dimension Cable for hiring her. "It is one of the few companies in town who gave me a chance," she said.

Since she is retired and living on a fixed income, Mrs. Brazell said she makes many of the gifts for her two daughters, their husbands and two grandchildren. "I do a lot of handwork in my spare time, especially knitting," Mrs. Brazell said. "I like to make pot-holders, wash cloths and baby wraps, though I prefer 'bought' sweaters to handmade," she said, laughing.

Her other hobbies include exercising 2½ miles daily with her dog. She also enjoys collecting antiques, as is evident by her dining room table which is over 100 years old and her dish and glass collection that she received when she was married 35 years ago.

Brazell said she and her husband work as a team in the kitchen. Her cooking habits are those of a "Down-to-earth West Texan — nothing fancy." She said she likes to keep party foods simple and prefers to grill chicken, turkey or lean meats. One of her favorite party foods is Oven-Fried Chicken, a recipe that is included in the Midland Suburban Lioness Club Kitchen Tested Recipes cookbook.

Another family favorite is Mama's Salad — a cream cheese, pineapple, pecan and cherry mixture which Mrs. Brazell devised herself. Although many have asked Mrs. Brazell for the recipe to Mama's Salad, she said, "I am holding out for the next Suburban Lioness cookbook edition. The recipe will be in that cookbook."

Mrs. Brazell has the recent Suburban Lioness cookbook available for $5. They can be obtained by calling her at 689-7022.

"We (club members) really need to sell these cookbooks," Mrs. Brazell said. "We do everything honest and above board to raise funds for the handicapped and those in need. We will even deliver the cookbooks to those who can't pick them up," she said.

Mrs. Brazell included some of her favorite recipes.

PUMPKIN NUT BREAD
(Makes 2 loaves)
3 cups flour
3 teaspoons cinnamon
2 cups pumpkin
1¼ cups oil
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
4 eggs
½ cup pecans

Place all dry ingredients in a bowl, except pecans, and mix together. Mix all other ingredients, except pecans, in another bowl and stir. Add dry ingredients to pumpkin, oil and eggs.

Mix in pecans. Pour into two well greased 9x5-inch pans. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour or until done. Let stand ten minutes. Remove from pans to cool.

BUTTERMILK REFRIGERATOR ROLLS
(Serves 24)
1 tablespoon yeast
½ cup vegetable oil
4½ cups flour
¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon of baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
2 cups buttermilk
½ cup water

Combine dry ingredients in large bowl. Stir in water and melted shortening (105-115 degrees). Add buttermilk; mix well with dough hooks. Shape into ball; place into a well-greased bowl, turning to coat top with grease. Cover dough and refrigerate until needed. (Dough will keep one week).

Shape dough into rolls as desired; place on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake at 400 degrees for 8-10 minutes or until lightly browned.

Yield: About two dozen.

CREAM PECAN PIE
(Makes one)
2 cups sugar
⅔ cup water
¼ cup butter
5 egg yolks
3 teaspoons all-purpose flour
1 cup of half-and-half
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1½ cups chopped pecans
1 9-inch pie shell

Combine sugar, water and butter in a saucepan; cook over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat and partially cool.

Beat egg yolks; stir in flour and half-and-half. Gradually add yolk mixture to cooked mixture. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thick. Remove from heat; add vanilla and pecans. Spoon mixture into baked pie shell. Top with pecans.

EASY OVEN CHICKEN
1 chicken or chicken pieces
1 small can evaporated milk
Crispy rice cereal
Salt and Pepper
Barbecue sauce
Chopped onion

Skin chicken pieces. Dip into milk. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and coat with crushed crispy rice cereal. Place in oiled pan. Melted margarine may be poured over chicken. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for 50-60 minutes, or until done.

Polenta dish reheated in microwave oven

By NANCY BYAL
Associated Press

Polenta, made from cornmeal, is generally made a day ahead and reheated at serving time. This version of polenta is cooked and reheated in the microwave oven.

POLENTA WITH CHUNKY MEAT SAUCE

3 cups water
1 cup yellow cornmeal
1 cup cold water
1 teaspoon salt
1 pound lean ground beef or ground Italian-style turkey sausage
2 green onions, sliced
1 (17-ounce) can cream-style corn
1 small green pepper, cut into thin strips
1 teaspoon dried Italian seasoning, crushed
Dash pepper
1 (2-ounce) jar diced pimiento, drained

In a 4-cup microwave-safe measure cook the 3 cups water on 100 percent power (high) 4 to 6 minutes or until boiling. Meanwhile, in a 2-quart microwave-safe casserole stir together cornmeal, cold water and salt. Slowly pour boiling water into cornmeal mixture, stirring constantly until mixture is well blended. Cook, uncovered, on high 6 to 8 minutes or until mixture is very thick, stirring after every minute.

Spread mixture in a greased 12x7½x2-inch baking dish or 8x4x2-inch loaf pan. Set dish aside to cool 45 minutes or chill mixture overnight.

At serving time, for sauce, crumble meat into 2-quart microwave-safe casserole. Add green onions. Cook, covered, on high 5 to 7 minutes or until no pink remains, stirring once. Drain meat in colander; set aside. Combine corn, green pepper, Italian seasoning and pepper in casserole. Cook, covered, on high 5 to 6 minutes or until green pepper is crisp-tender. Stir in meat and pimiento. Set aside.

Cut chilled polenta into 24 squares (or into slices if using loaf pan); arrange on microwave-safe platter. Cover with wax paper and cook on 70 percent power (medium-high) 4 to 5 minutes or until heated through. Transfer to plates. Cook sauce, covered, on 100 percent power for 1½ to 2½ minutes or until hot. Serve sauce over polenta slices. Makes 6 servings.

Pointers provide perfect picnics

By NANCY BYAL
Associated Press

Pack your basket and head for the beach or your favorite park. A picnic is the perfect way to enjoy a summer meal. Here are some tips to make preparations easier and your picnic more fun.

■ Choose foods that are least likely to spoil, including breads, hard cheese, chilled hard-cooked eggs in the shell, canned meats, baked beans, packaged luncheon meats, fresh fruits and fresh vegetables.

■ Stir bottled mayonnaise into salads and sandwich fillings at home rather than at the picnic spot; the acid in commercial mayonnaise helps prevent spoilage.

■ Chill foods well before packing.

■ Pack well-chilled perishable foods in an insulated cooler with ice; use block ice or ice packs because they last longer than ice cubes. At the picnic site, place the cooler in a shady spot to help do the best cooling job.

■ Pack your cooler so that food to be eaten first is on top. This way you avoid unpacking and repacking the food outdoors.

■ Put tightly wrapped and well-chilled fried chicken, baked ham and raw meats for grilling in the bottom of the cooler where temperatures are coldest.

■ Don't forget a small lightweight first aid kit: insect repellent, sunscreen, aspirin, adhesive bandages and prescription medicines family members may require.

■ For evening picnics or when bugs are pesky, take along citronella candles. They'll add atmosphere and help ward off insects.

■ Don't carry home leftovers; discard them. Any food that has been exposed to sunshine or warm temperatures for hours can be harmful, even though it still may look and smell appetizing.

■ Keep an extra roll of plastic bags in your picnic gear to collect or throw away trash, or to take home wet swimsuits, muddy shoes and souvenir rocks or leaves.

Fourth of July celebration includes typically American feast

By MELANIE BARNARD
and BROOKE DOJNY
Copley News Service

Among the wonderful traditions throughout the year, Americans can truly call some of them their own.

While we borrow from others the culinary traditions of Christmas, New Year's and Easter, in our short history we in the United States have developed a lore and a menu quite unique for several holidays. But true to our "melting pot" nature, each region of the country has personalized the foods of national holidays. If the adage of "you are what you eat" is true, then with American holiday menus, "you are from what you eat."

In a recent survey done to prove this point, people were asked specifically what was on the table at the Fourth of July meal. Salmon with egg sauce and green peas was a dead giveaway as a typical New England feast. Fried chicken and cream gravy might well have labeled you from Maryland. Grilled hamburgers with sliced avocado and sprouts shouted California.

Certainly, as we have become an increasingly mobile and integrated society, the waters have become muddied and the distinctions fewer, but each of us has cherished memories of July 4th celebrations of our childhoods. This time we focus on a tasty Midwestern tradition — barbecued ribs and creamy coleslaw.

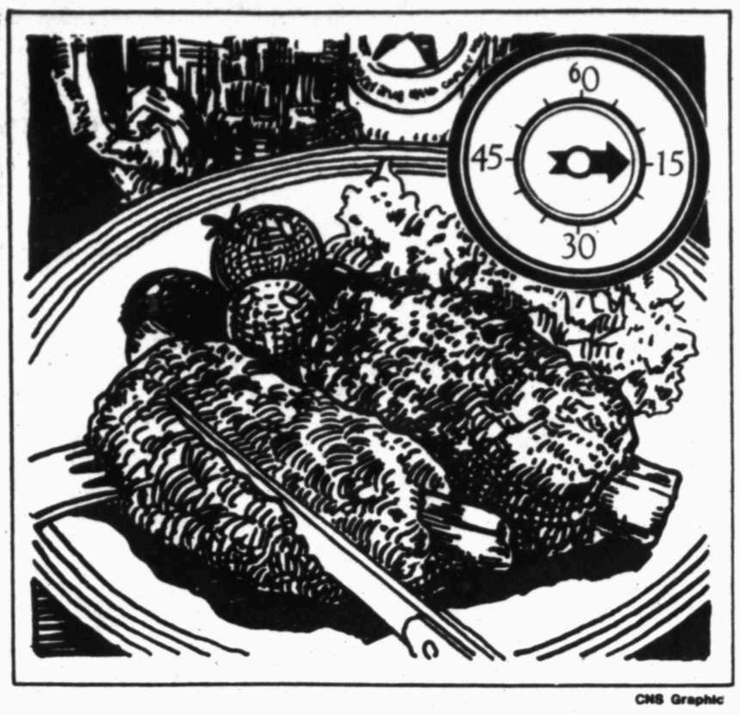

Recipes for barbecued pork spareribs are often complicated by requiring a preliminary marinating, parboiling or oven baking to keep the grill time to a minimum, thus preventing the drying out that sometimes happens in the 45 minutes to one hour usually needed to cook raw pork to a safe temperature. This precooking usually means advance planning and eliminates the fun of an impromptu holiday get-together.

To avoid the extra step, we have devised a method of "sloshing" the ribs with seasoned water to keep them moist when they grill over medium coals. When the meat is half done, we then begin to apply the spicy sauce (which can conveniently be made during the "sloshing" stage of cooking). Nearly hassle-free, this also results in moist, juicy meat with a rich mahogany-colored, flavored crusty outside.

Traditional coleslaw needs to sit for at least an hour in the dressing to tenderize the tough, sharp cabbage. Our version also plays to the cook who wants to enjoy the holiday and have the freedom to issue last-minute invitations.

Savoy cabbage, now widely available, has attractively rippled leaves and is also milder and softer than the common head cabbage . Our Savoy Slaw is ready to eat in minutes, but is equally good hours later.

Since Midwestern corn is usually "knee high by the Fourth of July," we suggest cornbread squares to add a wonderfully corny taste to the meal. Finish with blueberry pie if you are a baker or know one who is. But if your party is to be truly instant, just serve some big crosswise watermelon slices sprinkled with blueberries and accompanied by giant paper napkins.

CNS Graphic

RED-HOT RIBS

Ribs:
4 pounds pork spareribs
2 cups water
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
1 clove garlic, halved
Sauce:
1 (12 ounce) bottle chili sauce (about 1¼ cups)
¼ cup ketchup
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
3 tablespoons dark brown sugar
1½ tablespoons soy sauce
1½ tablespoons sherry
1 teaspoon powdered ginger
½ teaspoon red pepper flakes
1 large clove garlic, minced

Build charcoal barbecue fire or preheat gas grill. Cut meat into large pieces, each about 4 ribs.

Combine water, vinegar and halved garlic clove in saucepan and bring to simmer. Remove from heat and place saucepan near edge of grill to keep warm.

Grill ribs over medium coals for 30 minutes, turning every 10 minutes and brushing liberally with flavored water each time meat is turned.

Meanwhile make sauce. Combine chili sauce, ketchup, vinegar, brown sugar, soy sauce, sherry, ginger, pepper flakes and garlic in a non-reactive saucepan. Simmer gently for 10 minutes.

After ribs have grilled for 30 minutes, brush wih sauce. Continue to grill, turning every 10 minutes and brushing with sauce for another 20-30 minutes until ribs are cooked through, but not dried out. (The total cooking time for meat is 50-60 minutes.)

SAVOY SLAW

⅓ cup mayonnaise
1½ tablespoons cider vinegar
1 tablespoon grated onion
2 teaspoons sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon pepper
5 cups thinly sliced Savoy cabbage (about 10 ounces)
1 carrot, coarsely shredded

In mixing bowl, whisk together mayonnaise, vinegar, onion, sugar, salt, mustard and pepper.

Add cabbage and carrot to mixing bowl and toss to coat with dressing.

Refrigerate coleslaw for at least 15 minutes or up to 6 hours before serving.

Salad makes summer entertaining more colorful

NEW YORK (AP) — Summer entertaining. And the Fourth of July.

Malabar Hornblower presents 50 menus for successful entertaining in her "Do-Ahead Dining" (The Globe Pequot Press). The menus are organized by season and the recipes include the approximate preparation time — an often-crucial tidbit to know when preparing for a party.

Hornblower says the Fourth of July is one of her favorite holidays, because, to her, it heralds the start of summer. Her menu for a "Fourth of July Brunch for Twelve" includes a fruity rum punch, a cold fruit soup, baked eggs nested on sausage-vegetable mounds and light citron cheesecake for dessert.

Another idea, taken from Hornblower's summer entertaining section: Red, White, and "Blue" Salad, made with red kidney beans, radishes, cherry tomatoes, rice and ham, and topped with a vinegar-mustard dressing — perfect for the Fourth of July!

The following is her recipe for Red, White and "Blue" Salad. The salad and the dressing may be prepared up to 24 hours in advance.

RED, WHITE AND "BLUE" SALAD

Dressing:
⅓ cup white tarragon vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
Freshly ground black pepper
1 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard
1 teaspoon minced garlic
1 teaspoon oregano
1 cup salad oil

To make the dressing: In 2- to 3-cup bottle with tight-fitting lid, place vinegar, salt, pepper and mustard, and stir until salt is dissolved and mustard well blended. Add garlic, oregano and oil. Cover bottle with lid, and shake vigorously for 30 seconds. Open, taste for seasoning, and adjust if necessary. Cover and reserve in a cool spot until ready to use.

Salad:
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups rice
1 cup thinly sliced scallions, including 2 inches green leaves
2 (16-ounce) cans red kidney beans, rinsed and drained
1 green pepper, stem and seeds discarded, finely chopped
2 cups thinly sliced radishes
1 cup unpeeled cucumber cut into ¼-inch dice
1 cup minced fresh parsley
1 (10-ounce) package frozen peas, thawed
8 ounces ham, cut into ¼-inch dice
Freshly ground black pepper
8 ounces cherry tomatoes, sliced in half

To make the salad: Fill 2- to 4-quart saucepan with water, add salt, and bring to boil. When rolling, add rice slowly, stir to separate grains and bring to boil again. Lower heat to medium-low and cook, uncovered, 20 minutes. Drain. Rinse well under cold water; drain for 10 minutes, tossing occasionally to let rice dry out.

Transfer rice to large salad bowl. Add scallions, beans, pepper, radishes, cucumber, parsley, peas and ham. Toss to mix thoroughly. Refrigerate, covered with plastic wrap, until ready to add dressing.

JEANE DIXON'S your horoscope

© 1988, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

THURSDAY, JUNE 30, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: The focus should be on building savings and learning new skills. Remembering the lessons of the past will give you a big advantage in business. Do not delegate tasks you should handle personally. Leave financial decisions to the experts, but protect your interests at all times. Travel and reading bring great pleasure. Certain family obligations are a joy. A romantic alliance puts much more affection into your life.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: pitcher Bud Black, actress Nancy Dussault, actress Susan Hayward, singer Lena Horne, actor Martin Landau, drummer Buddy Rich, singer June Valli, slugger Ron Swoboda.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): New lines of communication open. You gain access to information that must be handled in a sensitive way. You will locate a lost treasure. Bright ideas are plentiful. "Follow-through" counts!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You could strike it rich if you stick to your current course. Loyalty works in your favor. A diet helps you feel better. Check the resources of those making lavish promises.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): An emotional pall will be lifted if you cooperate with partner. Think positive! Small business ventures are less risky than playing the market. Legal matters and public relations questions demand prompt attention.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A romantic relationship builds up a full head of steam. Be sure of your feelings. Business may be in the doldrums, but some creativity on your part will get things going again.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An emotional involvement deepens. Listen to parental advice but make your own decisions. Do not let stubborn pride stand in the way of career progress. Admit past mistakes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A good day to buy and sell real estate. Purchase things that will increase in value with time. An older person makes romantic overtures. You may not be interested. Try to be diplomatic.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Artistic and creative endeavors capture your attention. Sprucing up your house or apartment will increase its property value. A flexible approach will help you change loved one's mind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Loved one needs attention but is reluctant to say so. Be on the lookout for telltale behavior. A small gift brings great joy. Be careful not to buy too much on credit.

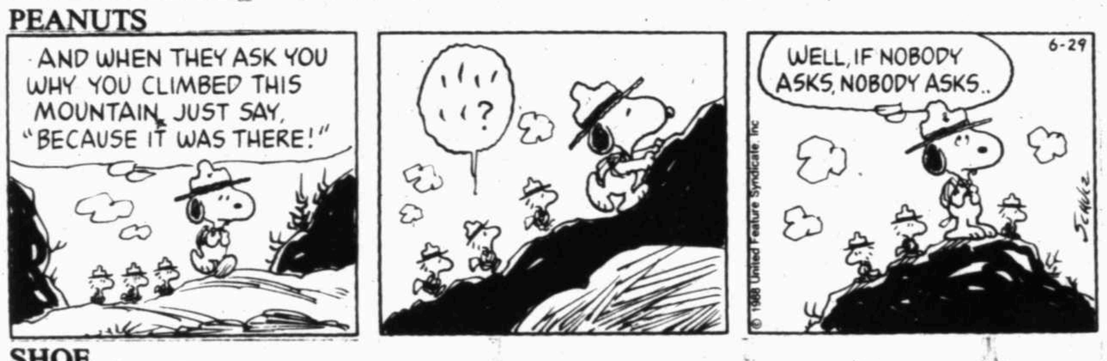

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friends prove their loyalty in a unique way. Do not ask for loans. You can be very creative when you work independently. Friends could interfere in a family matter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Selling unwanted items could bring you extra cash. Consult experts for investment advice. Self-improvement activities are favored. Keep your diet and exercise resolutions. Others admire your determination to succeed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Bargain hunters make some real finds today. New ideas add sparkle to a romantic relationship. Make certain a prospective spouse shares your high ideals. Tackle a special project together.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Give more thought to your future financial security. See people and situations as they really are. Children need individual attention. Boost your earning power. Sign up for a special course or seminar.

The late Sonny Moyse was an avid proponent of the power of a 4-3 major-suit fit, so much so that that trump holding has become known in the trade as a Moysian fit. This hand would have warmed the cockles of his heart.

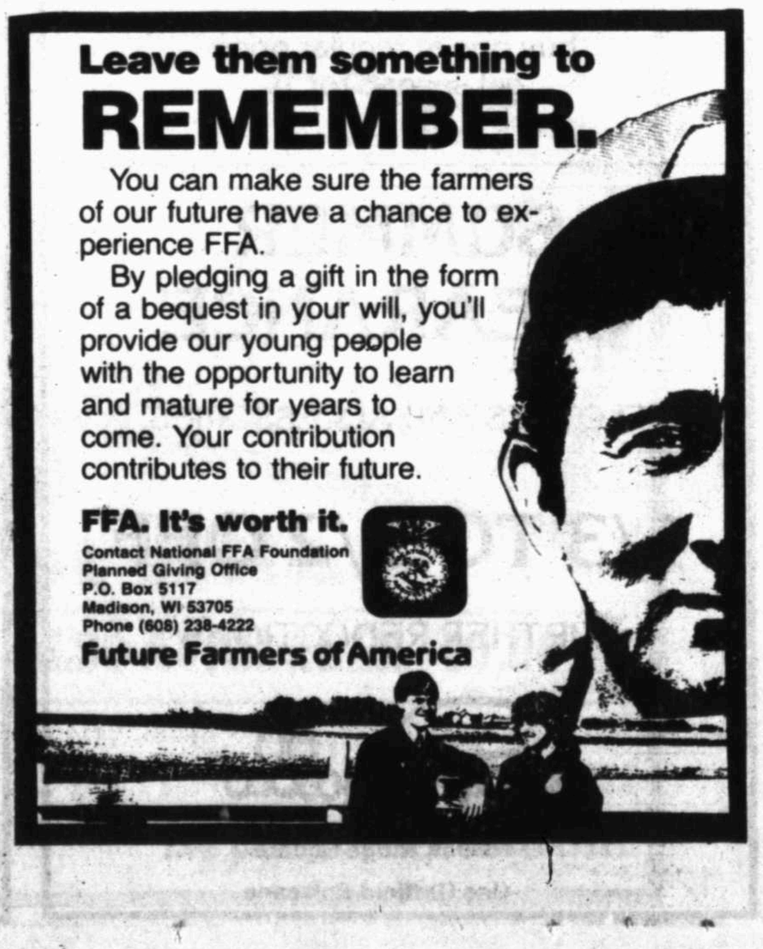

Once North showed that his jump shift was based on heart support, South correctly judged that his excellent four-card holding was at least the equivalent of a five-card suit. He showed a better-than-minimum hand with his diamond cue-bid, and North wasted no time in getting to slam.

After the lead of the queen of diamonds, declarer had 10 fast tricks. An 11th would come from a diamond ruff, and the obvious place to develop a 12th was in the spade suit. Since declarer could expect a 4-2 trump break, he could not afford to extract all the trumps before he had set up a long spade. To extricate himself from this dilemma, declarer found a most elegant solution.

The first trick was won in hand with the king of diamonds, and at trick two declarer ducked a spade! East won the trick cheaply, but declarer was in control. He won the club return with the ace, cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond with the ten. After drawing trumps, he reverted to spades, and the contract was secure once both defenders followed to the second spade.

Declarer chose an excellent line of play. He would be defeated only if diamonds broke 6-1, or if either major suit split 5-1.

Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg gives birth to baby daughter

NEW YORK (AP) — Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg has become a mother, and she and her husband, Edwin Schlossberg, have named their daughter after the 97-year-old Kennedy-clan matriarch, Rose Kennedy.

Rose Kennedy Schlossberg was born at 3:30 a.m. Saturday at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, and weighed in at 7 pounds, 12 ounces, said Nancy Tuckerman, a family spokeswoman.

Schlossberg

Mother and baby are doing fine, Ms. Tuckerman said Tuesday. It's the first grandchild for Ms. Kennedy's mother, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

Earlier this year, Ms. Kennedy, the 30-year-old daughter of the late President Kennedy and granddaughter of Rose Kennedy, graduated from the Columbia University School of Law.

NEW YORK (AP) — David Letterman went back on the air without his writers, but didn't leave any doubts about his sympathies regarding the 4-month-old scriptwriters' strike, and grabbed a few laughs.

The host of NBC-TV's "Late Night With David Letterman" blamed the strike on producers, whom he repeatedly called "money-grubbing scum" and "jerks."

Letterman

"I certainly have a bright future, don't I?" he asked his audience, which responded with laughter.

Normally, the show has 13 writers, including Letterman. After months of reruns, the show resumed Tuesday with only Letterman, who wrote his own material, said Peter Spivey, a spokesman for NBC.

Last week, members of the Writers Guild of America voted to continue their strike by a 75-25 percent margin.

• • •

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Stacy Keach says he enjoyed going to seven foreign countries to film his television miniseries portrayal of Ernest Hemingway, but the best thing about it was that the writer's son liked his performance.

Keach said he read a tremendous amount of material, including letters, biographies and fiction, to prepare for the title role in "Hemingway," which is currently in syndication.

Keach

"I had to carry a footlocker around with me from country to country," Keach said recently.

"For me, the most gratifying experience with the result of 'Hemingway' was Jack Hemingway's comment that he liked it."

Jack Hemingway, the son of the writer, is also the father of actresses Mariel and Margaux Hemingway.

• • •

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — There are big barriers in the way of little people who want to get into show business, says actor Billy Barty, a 3-foot-9 entertainer who co-stars in the movie "Willow."

"How many little people do commercials?" he asked Monday during the opening of a Billy Barty Foundation branch here. "We don't do commercials: But we can squeeze the Charmin. We use soap. We use toothpaste," he said.

Barty, 63, has used his size as the basis of his jokes for years.

During his appearance Monday, he picked up a telephone and asked for the "short distance" operator. When he talked about his 4-foot-3 wife, Shirley, he joked that he had married "a tall girl."

The non-profit Billy Barty Foundation, based in North Hollywood, provides money for medical research, provides family counseling and helps short people find jobs and live independently.

• • •

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III, in a glancing comment on his legal difficulties, joked that the young bicycle messenger who tried to enter the Justice Department wearing a "Meese is a Pig" T-shirt didn't bother him a bit.

Meese

"I have no interest, by the way, in any company that manufactures T-shirts," the attorney general quipped to reporters Tuesday.

The messenger, Christopher Stalvey, was barred at the door when he made the attempt recently, but Meese recalled, "As soon as the matter came to me, I said, 'Let him come in'...I thought it was pretty funny myself."

The attorney general has been the target of an investigation into whether he lobbied for a defense contractor, but has not been charged.

• • •

LONDON (AP) — American mezzo-soprano Grace Bumbry lost her valiant battle to sing the title role in "Aida" before Prince Charles and Princess Diana, defeated by hay fever and tonsillitis.

She had vowed to go on Tuesday night "even if my nose drips like the Nile."

The organizers of the opera spectacular at Earl's Court indoor arena said the singer was resting and was "very disappointed" at not being able to appear before the heir to the British throne and 14,500 other people.

Miss Bumbry sang on the opening night Sunday but couldn't complete the second act and was replaced by Ghena Dimitrova of Bulgaria.

The $2.5 million production of Giuseppe Verdi's music-drama of ancient Egypt, with a cast of 600, is believed to be the largest opera staged in Britain.

• • •

LONDON (AP) — Claude Monet's Impressionist painting of his wife in a meadow became the third highest priced work at auction Tuesday, going for $24.59 million to an anonymous telephone bidder, Sotheby's said.

The price for "Dans La Prairie" ("In the Meadow") broke the record for a Monet set 24 hours earlier at Christie's, which sold his painting of a blue house for $6.55 million, also to an anonymous telephone bidder.

The two sales of Impressionist and modern paintings and sculpture by the rival firms totaled nearly $123.5 million.

Sotheby's also sold a Monet landscape for $2 million and set a record price for Pierre Bonnard, whose painting of a woman in her bath fetched $3.78 million.

A picture of two women musicians by Henri Matisse sold for $2.83 million.

DEAR ABBY

'Esquire' matter of rank in England, law in U.S.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I feel sure that you often run letters containing information you know to be incorrect just to stimulate mail. After all, responses to such items do serve to demonstrate that your column has a large readership.

For example, in today's column, some guy by the name of Dale Evan Rogers said that no female could sign her name "Esq." Perhaps neither you nor Mr. Rogers ever employed an attorney. Surely you are aware that all the attorneys in the United States, male and female, are addressed in writing as "Esq." I cannot imagine that you did not know that. — CHARLES IRVIN ODELL, WESTMONT, ILL.

DEAR MR. ODELL: (Any relation to "Digger"? You're pretty adept with "digs.")

I make enough "legitimate" mistakes without knowingly publishing incorrect statements in order to stimulate mail.

Mr. Rogers is an Englishman. In his country, "Esq." signifies rank. In the United States, it means attorney-at-law and applies to either gender.

I was not aware that "Esq." applied to women as well as men. I was wrong. So sue me.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but I read you faithfully and have never seen a problem like mine printed.

I am a 19-year-old female who, like many other women, is suspected to be gay because I don't wear makeup, worry about a hairdo or fashion like most women do. I like myself the way I am.

Most people think I'm a lesbian because I am not feminine. Some ask, "Do you like men?" Or, "How come you never wear makeup?"

Abby, what am I supposed to say to these people? I am not a lesbian; I am just a woman who prefers to be natural and comfortable, and I am not particularly style-conscious. — BUGGED IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR BUGGED: You answered that question very well: "I like myself the way I am." You do not have to disclose your sexual orientation.

DEAR ABBY: I sent away for your booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," and it arrived today. I started to read it and didn't put it down until I finished the last word, believe me.

I am being very honest when I say I learned a lot from it and I'll soon be 65 years old. I've been married twice. Both my husbands are deceased and I'm still looking!

I sent for your booklet on weddings because Greg, my youngest grandson, is getting married to a local girl from a very nice family and I thought maybe there would be some good information for both sides of the family. I was right. This will answer a lot of questions about wedding etiquette. I promise you it will be read by all concerned and I'm sure they will be just as pleased with it as I. I recommend it for all future brides, grooms and their families.

If you want to publish this, you have my permission, and you may use my name. I've been a Dear Abby reader most of my adult life. — MRS. LORENA M. BLACKWELL, HANFORD, CALIF.

DEAR MRS. BLACKWELL: Thanks for the kind words about my wedding booklet. I am presently in the process of updating and expanding it. With so many more blended families, times (and some of the rules) have changed.

Celebrate with sparkling drinks

By NANCY BYAL
Associated Press

On special occasions, toast the honoree or event with champagne.

Here are some tips for handling and serving champagne and other sparkling wines:

CHILLING

■ To chill, place an unopened bottle in an ice bucket. Fill the bucket with equal amounts of ice and water and let the bottle chill for 30 minutes. Rotate the bottle occasionally to chill evenly.

■ To chill several bottles at a time, use a kettle, tub or even the sink as your ice bucket.

■ The ideal serving temperature is 42 to 48 degrees.

UNCORKING

■ Slowly peel the foil from the neck of the bottle, being careful not to shake it. Then, keeping a finger on the cork, remove the wire harness.

■ Slant the bottle at a 45-degree angle away from you — and your guests. Tilting the bottle this way puts the pressure on the side of the bottle and helps keep the cork from popping off.

■ Grip the cork and slowly rotate the bottle. The cork should ease out making only a gentle pop.

■ Never use a corkscrew to open bottles of sparkling wine. If you have trouble opening bottles by hand, special pliers are available.

SERVING

■ Plan on eight glasses from a 750-milliliter bottle, 12 glasses from a 1-liter bottle.

■ Select a 7-ounce tulip-shaped or V-shaped glass. These shapes keep the bubbles rising, intensifying the flavor and bouquet. Wide, shallow glasses, on the other hand, let the bubbles disperse rapidly, making the wine taste flat.

■ Pour a small amount of wine into the first glass and let bubbles subside. Repeat this procedure with remaining glasses. Then go back and fill the first glass. Continue filling other glasses until each glass holds 3 to 4 ounces.

STORING

■ Opened bottles of sparkling wine lose their bubbles rapidly. Store them only one or two days. Don't discard sparkling wine that's lost its bubbles; it can be used in cooking as you would any other wine.

School board decides bond-sale structure

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

School board members Tuesday night voted to sell $11.8 million worth of bonds in a manner that will not affect the district's tax rate.

The bonds will be used to finance the Midland Independent School District's elementary school expansion plan slated to begin this fall.

Under the terms of the proposal submitted by ClayDesta National Bank President David Jones, chairman of the board's community bond sale committee, MISD will restructure a portion of its present bond debt to maintain the current 9.7-cent debt service tax rate and proceed with a sale of the full amount of bond money.

Jones' scenario — approved by trustees — calls for a 15-year bond payout and allows for a portion of the bonds to be called after eight years.

The $12.8 million existing bond debt plus the $11.8 million in bonds to be sold will equal total payments over 15 years of $41,426,000 based upon interest rates of 7.5 percent, explained Mel Schonhorst, MISD's financial consultant.

The district also approved the purchase of insurance Tuesday night to guarantee a AAA bond rating.

According to a bond committee report presented by Jones, the consensus was reached after looking at several key issues.

Voters passed the bond referendum May 7 believing there would not be a tax increase, the report stated.

The taxpayer could bear the brunt of the district's need for additional monies should it try to pay off the bond debt quickly, Jones explained.

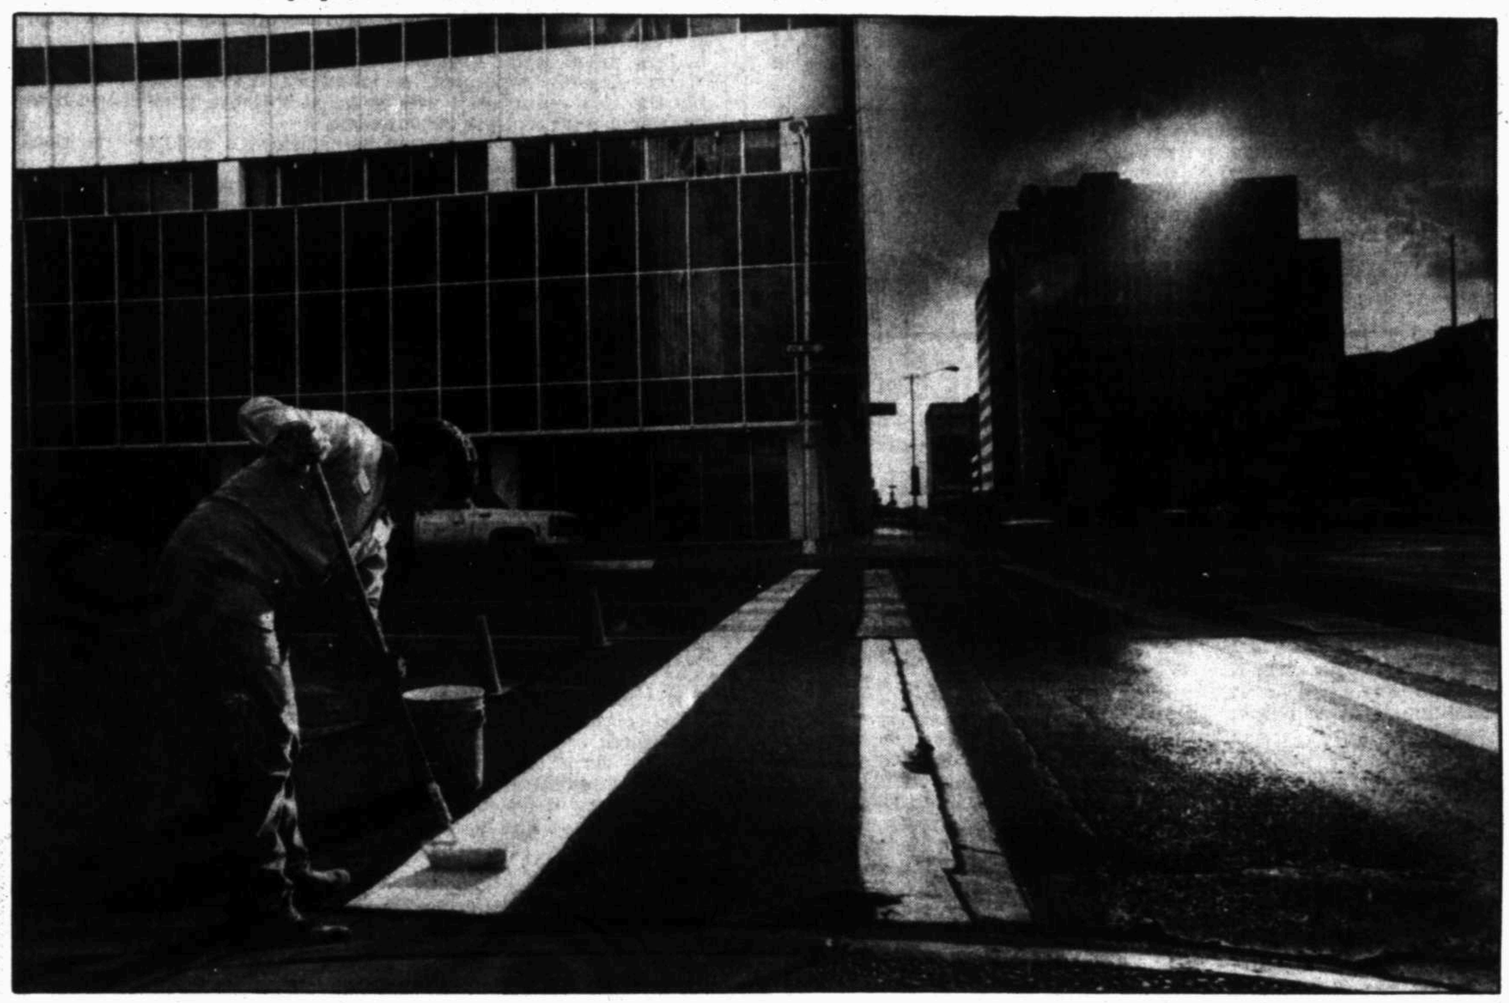

Thus, raising the debt service portion of the tax rate would come back to haunt the district when voters were next asked to pass a bond referendum sometime in the mid-1990s, the committee said.

The bond structuring allows trustees maximum flexibility to deal with the economy, future building programs and additional pressure on the tax rate, the report said.

The scenario also allows for the sale of additional bonds in 1993 with the absorption of some of the repayment by the existing tax rate, the report stated.

"Demands placed upon school districts by House Bill 72 and the future building needs of our ever-increasing student enrollment are key concerns" of the bond structuring, said MISD Board President Bob Rich.

Other committee members included Wayne Merritt of United Bank, Gary Willis of Eddins-Walcher and Joe Liberty of Rauscher Pierce, Refsnes Inc., acting as an ex-officio member.

CAP still searching for missing pilot

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

The search for Midland businessman John Wilson, who disappeared early Monday while flying his single-engine airplane home from New Mexico, intensified today as more than a dozen planes from all over the state took to the skies to scan an estimated 30,000-square-mile area.

"So far we haven't found anything," Civil Air Patrol Lt. Paula Kolas said this morning from the CAP mission base at Odessa's Schlemeyer Field. "Yesterday, we had nine planes and 45 people. Today, we will have more than that. People are calling from all over the state to tell us they are on their way."

By this afternoon, Lt. Kolas said 15 planes and 50 CAP members from as far away as Dallas, Fort Worth and Austin would be involved in the search for the 59-year-old Midlander and experienced pilot.

Wilson, owner and president of Wilson Energy, took off from Santa Fe Airport at 9:50 a.m. MDT Monday in his light blue Piper Cherokee Arrow turbo, Lt. Kolas said. She discounted some reports that said Wilson stopped in Roswell, N.M., before taking off for Midland.

"He did not land in Roswell at all," she said.

Wilson — who did not file a flight plan for the three-hour flight — had at least five hours' fuel on board, she added.

Texas CAP pilots were searching an area of southwest New Mexico between Clovis and Roswell, while the New Mexico CAP searched the route from Santa Fe through Clovis.

The New Mexico CAP moved their headquarters to Roswell late Tuesday, a spokeswoman said.

CAP members were systematically searching the estimated 30,000-square-mile area. Tuesday, the pilots — who during searches fly at an altitude of 500 feet — flew over 10 grids of mostly flat terrain, Lt. Kolas said.

The weather, which was cloudy Tuesday, cleared in both states, which should aid the search effort, she said.

"We will search until the Air Force tells us to stop," Lt. Kolas said. "But we will search and re-search until we find him."

An employee at Wilson Energy who declined to be named said Wilson made the flight frequently.

"He goes up there a lot, and usually comes back Sunday evening," the employee said. "But he waited until Monday morning because of the weather. He is always very cautious."

The first flight from Schlemeyer left about 10:40 a.m., and the second was airborne by noon, CAP Officer Anthony Flores said.

Madge Harrah, CAP spokeswoman in Santa Fe who identified Wilson as the pilot, said Tuesday the search there was proceeding.

"We have seven planes in the air, and have been flying an intensive route search between Santa Fe and Roswell," Ms. Harrah said. "The Texas CAP are checking between Clovis and Roswell."

Ms. Harrah speculated weather may have caused the problem.

"There was marginal weather (Monday morning)," she said. "But he was an experienced pilot."

"We will continue to search throughout the rest of the day," she said.

The terrain is "quite varied. It goes from flat with no vegetation to places with a lot of vegetation."

Odessan gets 8-year-prison sentence for drug conviction

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A 33-year-old Odessa man — convicted in a federal jury trial of conspiracy to possess and possession of the stimulant amphetamine while on state probation for possessing marijuana — was sentenced to eight years in prison Tuesday by United States Circuit Court Judge Henry A. Politz of New Orleans.

Politz had presided over the jury trial in Midland last May in the court of U.S. District Court Chief Judge Lucius D. Bunton.

Politz sentenced Larry Booe, also known as Larry Dale Willingham, to five years in prison for conspiracy to possess the stimulant on April 29, 1987, and to an additional three years for possessing the drug.

Booe told the judge that "most of what was said" by two adverse witnesses who were connected to the drug deal "was not true."

Booe said he really was not actually selling the drug.

"I did make a little money off of the deal" by setting up the exchange of money for the drug.

"I have been to the penitentiary," Booe admitted to the judge. "I didn't enjoy it. I learned a lot."

Booe was sentenced to the Texas Department of Corrections last year after he had violated his probation for possession of marijuana in Andrews after he had been charged with driving while intoxicated.

Booe, who was pleading for leniency, told Politz that he was a "steady worker," and that he was in a recovery program for alcoholism and was undergoing drug counseling. Further, Booe said he hoped the judge would continue him on parole and not commit him to federal prison.

"He is doing well on parole," Booe's defense attorney, John Smith of Odessa, told Politz. "Mr. Booe works and works hard." Smith said the prosecution had wrongly tainted Booe as "making and peddling" methamphetamine.

"That simply is not true" despite the jury's finding, Smith said. "To this minute, Larry Booe does not think he sold drugs to anybody. In his words, he 'put the deal together.'"

In levying the eight-year sentence, Politz said that the drug crime is a "serious offense against society" and that he took "no pleasure" in sentencing Booe.

But Politz noted that the jury had found Booe guilty. "I'm not sure that I would have made the same call," the judge said, "but they (jurors) made it."

The jury had found Booe guilty on three counts — conspiracy to possess amphetamine, possessing the drug, and possessing the drug with intent to distributed the stimulant. Politz said that the last two counts — possession and possession with intent to distribute — overlapped and essentially were redundant. As a result, he granted an acquittal on the possession to distribute count and upheld the first two counts.

Andrews man awarded probation in copyright case

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Andrews television-video store owner Lonnie Fred "Doc" Rogers told the federal judge Tuesday he was "sorry" he had pirated copyrighted movies on videocassettes.

And United States District Court Chief Judge Lucius D. Bunton promptly placed the 56-year-old businessman on probation for five years, fined him $10,000 and ordered him to serve 200 hours of community service for unlawfully copying the movies on videotapes and then renting them out for profit.

Rogers, who could have been sentenced up to two years in prison and fined $250,000 for the felony offense, said the last few months have been "agonizing" for him in wake of the charge against him .

"I just pray for mercy from the court," he said.

Rogers last month pleaded guilty to reproducing and renting such movies as "La Bamba," "No Way Out," "Return of the Jedi," "Spies Like Us," "Raw Deal," "Lady Beware," "Dragnet," and "Steele Justice" in February 1988 for his own commercial and competitive advantage and "financial gain."

Bunton called the acts theft.

"I do think we need to get your attention and the attention of others who think it's 'fun and games' to make copies" of films that are protected by United States copyright laws and then make a profit off of the pirated tapes.

Bunton had sentenced Rogers to eight months in prison but suspended that sentence and placed him on probation for five years and levied the $10,000 fine, which will begin drawing interest and penalty if it is not paid within 15 days.

Hazardous waste lawsuit moved to federal court

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — A multimillion-dollar lawsuit against a hazardous-toxic waste disposal company that began June 21 and lasted more than six days in 358th District Court has been moved to federal court as attorneys prepared to argue the case before a jury of eight women and four men.

"This is a first time for me," said plaintiff's attorney Michael McLeaish of the surprise move by defense attorneys Tuesday.

McLeaish's client, Paul Farek, 31, of San Angelo, is seeking $1.5 million in actual damages and $5 million in punitive damages from CECOS Inc., district manager Ray Sonnenberg and KEDA Inc. (formerly Ken Davis Associates Inc.)

Farek was a rig supervisor for WellTech Inc. in February 1985 and was working with two other WellTech employees when he alleges they were exposed to sprayed hazardous waste and toxic fumes while doing a brine workover of the CECOS hazardous waste injection well.

The $6.5 million is asked by Farek if the jury finds CECOS negligent. If the jury holds CECOS "grossly negligent," then Farek is seeking an award of $50 million in punitive damages.

McLeaish said he had conferred with co-counsel Cliff Hardwick and Farek and decided to "non-suit Sonnenberg" because any judgment awarded by jurors against him "would be meaningless due to the potential amount."

The action removing Sonnenberg created the situation that allowed Midland attorney Charles Tighe and other attorneys representing defendants in the lawsuit to remove the case from state to federal court because of "the diversity of citizenship" of the remaining defendant companies that are chartered in other states.

Tighe said this morning he informed CECOS officials Monday of the action taken by the plaintiff (Farek) which opened the door to seek removal of the case to federal court because "the diversity of citizenship" now existed. CECOS is a New York-based company and Farek resides in Texas.

Tighe said a decision then was made to file a motion for removal of the trial to federal court.

McLeaish said the charge to the jury, detailing points of law that must be considered during deliberations, had been prepared and he and Hardwick were ready to begin their jury arguments when Tighe and the other defense attorneys filed a motion with Judge Bill McCoy. Under the law, McCoy had no option but to grant the motion, since the case had not yet gone to the jury.

ECISD trustees approve small salary increases

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Ector County school trustees Tuesday approved salary increases for teachers and other district employees that will average 5.5 percent.

The approval came despite pleas from teacher organizations, individual teachers and supporters to recognize experience and dedication and increase the amount of teacher raises.

The salary schedule approved will cost about $3.1 million, with actual pay hikes ranging from a low of 4.1 percent to a high of 10.9 percent, according to Dr. Bill Walker, associate superintendent for business affairs.

Jim Spencer, a former Ector County Independent School District principal who is now a building contractor, was the lone dissenting vote. Spencer explained that he favors raises for teachers but opposes the percentage concept that grants administrators more dollars than teachers get.

Following the vote Tuesday evening, Dr. Lee Buice, a former teacher who is now an administrator at Odessa College, said she felt bad last year when she had to vote against teacher pay raises.

Ms. Buice noted she felt better this year because the district was able to provide pay increases. However, after listening to pleas for higher pay raises, Ms. Buice said she was beginning to feel bad again because the amount — although all the district could afford — was so small.

Board member Tommy Salmon said he fully understood the pleas for more money and also wished higher pay raises could be approved. But no one knows what's in the future, he said.

"A lot of people are fighting for their (economic) lives."

Salmon noted that many businesses actually have had to cut salaries and it will take several years for them to return to previous levels.

Board President Jim Nelson, noting the board will be able to honor its pledge not to raise taxes this year (except for the 2.5 cent hike for debt service on voter-approved bonds), said there is no way it will be able to avoid "a hefty tax increase" for the 1989-90 fiscal year.

According to Walker, pay increases would have required a tax hike this year were it not for a $3.1 million increase in state aid.

Odessa College facing $500,000 budget shortfall

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The proposed 1988-89 budget for Odessa College is only one percent higher than the current fiscal year, but available revenues will be about $500,000 short of meeting bare bones needs, according to OC administrators.

The blame for the shortage, according to OC President Phill Speegle and Business Manager Roger Coomer, rests solely with Gov. Bill Clements, who they said broke a promise and cut funding for community colleges.

Information provided OC trustees showed the governor vetoed a proposal that would have provided $541,000 to cover employee health benefits for community college employees.

The proposed 1988-89 budget, at slightly more than $15.2 million, would be only $200,000 higher than last year.

Bill Masterson, OC board chairman, noted the finance committee had held "a marathon session," trying to develop the budget but had arrived at "no conclusion" as to how to meet the $500,000 shortfall. The options, he told board members, include raising the tax rate and/or tuition.

Speegle noted health insurance alone had an increase from $700,000 to $850,000. Coomer said the only solution found for this is to pass the increase on to OC employees.

Board member Bob Clark said the problem centers on the fact the college is faced with "a decreasing revenue base and a growing institution."

Speegle noted summer enrollment this year reached an all time high, but the school can't afford to hire the number of instructors needed to meet growing needs.

The OC president said capital improvement expenditures have been severely curtailed for the coming fiscal year.

"You can get away with this for one year," he said, "but you can't do it two years in a row."

The proposed budget currently includes a two percent increase in salary schedules, a $200,000 increase for additional staff to accommodate enrollment growth, as well as $200,000 for health insurance.

As presented for consideration to OC trustees, the 1988-89 budget would include a tax rate hike ranging from 1.23 cents to 1.92 cents per $100 of taxable valuation. The 1987-88 tax rate is 14.4 cents per $100 of valuation.

DEATHS

Beverly Johnson

Services for Beverly Johnson, 38, of Midland will be at 1 p.m. Thursday at the Ellis Funeral Home chapel, with Alfred Johnson, pastor of the Main Street Church of Christ, officiating. Burial will be at 2 p.m. Friday at Westlawn Cemetery in Fritch.

Ms. Johnson died Tuesday at a local hospital.

She was born Aug. 8, 1949, in Shamrock and was reared in the Shamrock and Fritch areas. She graduated from Sanford-Fritch High School in 1967.

She moved to Midland in 1970 and had worked as an accountant for several oil companies. She was employed with the John Hendrix Corp. at the time of her death.

Survivors include her parents, Fred and Charleen Farmer of Fritch; two sisters, Fredda Smith of Shamrock, and Mayda King of Great Bend, Kan.

The family requests that memorials be directed to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Midland Chapter, c/o 15 Kerry Road, Midland, Texas, 79701.

Mary Bledsoe Hague

Services for Mary Bledsoe Hague, 83, of Splendora and formerly of Midland, were to be at 4 p.m. today at the Ellis Funeral Home chapel, with F. Ray Riddle, chaplain of Hospice of Midland, officiating. Burial was to follow at Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Hague died Monday at her residence.

She was born Aug. 8, 1904, in Goldthwaite and had lived in Colorado City and Lamesa. She and her husband, William F. "Bill" Hague, moved to Midland in 1972 where he worked as an accountant for Gandy's until his death in 1973. Mrs. Hague resided at Trinity Towers, where she was active in social activities, and later moved to Richardson and then to Splendora two years ago. She was a member of the United Methodist Church and the Order of Eastern Star of Colorado City.

In addition to her husband, she was preceded in death by a grandson, Stephen Robert Wood.

Joy King

Services for Joy King, 81, of Ruidoso, N.M., formerly of Midland, will be at 11 a.m. Thursday at the Ellis Funeral Home chapel, with the Rev. J.B. Stewart, associate pastor of the First United Methodist Church, officiating. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. King died Tuesday in Ruidoso following a sudden illness.

She was born July 5, 1906, in Wellington and was reared in Hollis. She and her husband, Cecil King, moved to Midland in 1937 from Wichita Falls.

The couple owned a Midland restaurant for several years and she established an antique-interior decorating business in both Midland and Ruidoso. She was preceded in death by a son, Billy Bob King, and was a member of the First United Methodist Church.

Survivors include her husband, Cecil King of Midland; a sister, Lura Elkins of Ruidoso, N.M.; and five grandchildren.

Joseph Webb

Services for Joseph Webb of Midland are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

Webb died today at his residence.

"The court is convinced that there was only one possession with intent to distribute, from which flowed what arguably might be said to be two separate acts of distribution," Politz said.

The judge denied Booe bond while his conviction is appealed by Smith and ordered him jailed.

"The court wishes you good luck," Politz told Booe.

Following sentencing, Smith said the government's case against Booe was "just a weak case."

But when it comes to drug cases, West Texas jurors seem to require the defendant to substantiate his innocence by proving he is "not guilty beyond a reasonable doubt" rather than by the government's lawful burden to prove guilt "beyond a reasonably doubt" to win a conviction.

"These West Texas jurors are tough," Smith said.

Assistant United States Attorney Steve Jurecky, who prosecuted Booe, said that West Texas jurors "are not as Mr. Smith described" — demanding reversal of the reasonable-doubt requirement to win a conviction.

"Otherwise," Jurecky said, "they (jurors) would not find anyone 'not guilty,' and they do."

Jurecky said Booe was "financing the laboratory" for manufacturing amphetamine and that 30-year-old Rosie Lee Alvarez, a co-conspirator with the Booe, had testified that Booe was dealing in drugs. Ms. Alvarez earlier this year pleaded guilty to conspiracy to possess amphetamine, was sentenced to three years in prison and was ordered by the court to undergo drug- and alcohol-abuse treatment.

"I agree with your lawyer (Steven Clack of Andrews)," Bunton said. "I don't think we will ever see you again in this courtroom. If we do, you're looking at five years" to serve in prison.

Assistant United States Attorney Tom Beery said the FBI had seized 380 pirated movie videotapes and reproducing equipment from Rogers' A-1 TV Video store.

"It was quite a haul," Beery said.

Joining the FBI in the investigation was Ed Romanoff, a retired FBI agent who, until his recent death, did investigative work for the Motion Picture Association of America to protect copyrights and rightful profits.

Beery said legitimate videos are laser-stamped and bear heat-treated labels. Rogers' pirated videos were not similarly marked.

Beery noted that people who pirate material, such as movies, deny others, such as writers, producers, directors, actors and actresses, of their rightful profits.

The copyright laws are to ensure that the "blood, sweat and tears" that went into a production are rewarded, the prosecutor said.

"The FBI did a great job of investigating this case," said Beery, who cited the investigative work of FBI Special Agent Keith Hicks of Midland.

The illegality of copying movies on videocassettes comes into play when pirated films are used for profit — making money, said Joyce White, office supervisor for Dimension Cable Services in Midland.

"That is perfectly legal," she said of copying material at home via a television set, for example. "It is only against the law if it is sold for profit or tickets are charged," she said.

"If you do (copying) so to build up a personal library, it is perfectly legal. You just can't set up chairs (as in selling tickets to view pirated films) or make copies to sell. That's when it becomes illegal."

Ms. White said The Movie Channel "encourages taping as long as you don't sell it for profit or (otherwise) make money off of it."

"You can build as big a library as you want. It's illegal to sell but not to tape it," she said. "I don't think they can control what a person does at home."

Woman takes steps for her own defense

HOUSTON (AP) — A topless dancer, charged with public lewdness for allegedly rubbing her buttocks against an undercover officer, demonstrated her techniques before a jury, but she wore her clothes.

Bonnie Marie Trahan, 25, who works under the stage name "Princess," flung her shoulder-length brown hair and twirled her body around to the music of Prince before jurors in Harris County Court-at-Law Judge Jim Barkley's court.

Sheriff's vice officer J.P. Baker had testified that Ms. Trahan rubbed her buttocks on his genital area Jan. 13 as she performed a personalized "table dance" at his request in The Executive Sweet, a dance club.

Jurors are expected to hear final arguments today. If convicted, Ms. Trahan faces a maximum punishment for public lewdness is one year in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Ms. Trahan's attorney, E.J. Van Buren, said Baker may have been affected by up to three alcoholic beverages he had consumed in the two hours prior to the dance.

Baker said the dancer was wearing what appeared to be a black leather G-string with metal studs that also had straps wrapping around her shoulders.

Mexican mother claims hearing-impaired boy

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — A mysterious hearing-impaired boy found walking the streets of this border city nearly eight months ago is finally going home after a tearful reunion with his mother.

"He's very excited, and he has already packed his things and is ready to go," Olivia Espinosa Bermudez, director of a child welfare agency here, said following Tuesday night's reunion between the boy, known to the world as Sabat, and his mother.

Authorities said it would take three days to officially confirm through medical records that the little boy is 9-year-old Jose de Jesus Garcia Aguilera, but said he and Micaela Aguilera de Garcia appeared to be mother and son.

Ms. Aguilera said she plans to take the boy back to his Gulf Coast hometown of Tampico, Mexico, where his grandmother and four siblings live.

However, she said she might later send Jose back to the child welfare agency, where he has been staying the past seven months, so he can learn to speak and use sign language.

"I work, and if I take him, he'll run away again," Ms. Aguilera, 32, told reporters as she hugged the tearyeyed boy nicknamed Chuy. "I know that (here) my boy is safe because he's been here all this time."

She said she might allow a Juarez couple to adopt her boy, "but just if they give me permission to see him."

Ms. Aguilera has described Jose as a chronic runaway, and said he last ran away while visiting his father in October in Monterrey, 750 miles southeast of Juarez.

He was found Nov. 7 roaming the streets of Juarez, across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Texas.

Workers at the welfare agency, the center for the Development of the Integrated Family, were stumped as to the boy's origins because he can only speak a few words and communicates mostly through gestures and drawings. They named him Sabath, pronounced "Sabat," because he was found on a Saturday — sabado in Spanish.

Reporters on Tuesday night watched as mother and son communicated through an impromptu sign language Ms. Aguilera obviously was familiar with. The boy is deaf in his right ear and has some hearing in the other.

"Why do I think this is my son?" Ms. Aguilera asked. "Because of his scars — on his leg, his head and his left arm."

She pointed to a scar below Jose's left knee and said it was from a dog bite. "Bad dog," she said in English. "Bad dog," the boy answered in a deep voice, and the two laughed and hugged.

Court rules statistics valid to prove discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today made it easier for workers to prove their bosses are guilty of illegal discrimination.

In their most important civil rights decision of the year, the justices expanded the way employees can use statistical evidence to prove bias.

The court, by a 8-0 vote, ruled that Clara Watson, a former bank employee in Fort Worth, Texas, improperly was barred from using statistics in trying to prove she was discriminated against because she is black.

Today's decision, although involving a complicated aspect of federal anti-bias law, carries a significant, direct impact on numerous lawsuits filed by women and members of racial minority members who say they have been treated unfairly.

The part of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 known as Title VII bars on-the-job discrimination based on race, gender and other factors.

In a key 1971 decision, the Supreme Court ruled that Title VII violations can be proved by using statistics to show that some practice or policy, although not intended to be discriminatory, unduly hurts minorities or women.

The court in 1971 said a company's use in hiring of written aptitude tests and its requiring high school diplomas, although intended to be racially neutral, was illegal because the practices "disproportionately excluded blacks from employment."

The court in that case said the tests and diploma requirement had no "demonstrable relationship to successful performance on the jobs" for which the tests were used.

In most cases, such "disparate impact" is far easier to prove than showing "disparate treatment" or intentional discrimination.

But the 1971 ruling dealt with so-called objective practices such as examinations and diploma requirements.

Ms. Watson's lawsuit challenged her employer's subjective decision-making regarding promotions.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that people who challenge an employer's subjective practices must prove "disparate treatment," not "disparate impact" — and so Ms. Watson could not rely on statistics to prove her case.

Today, the justices said the 5th Circuit court was wrong.

Ms. Watson's lawsuit now will return to a federal trial court.

WEST TEXAS IN BRIEF

Two remain hospitalized after separate accidents

From Staff Reports

Two persons remained in Midland Memorial Hospital today following two separate traffic accidents on Tuesday, the Department of Public Safety reported.

Kenneth Wayne Ridgeway, 45, of Midland was listed in satisfactory condition today, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Ridgeway was injured about 11 p.m. Tuesday when he apparently lost control of the motorcycle he was riding, DPS reports said.

Ridgeway was riding a 1981 Honda three miles south of Midland on County Road 140 when he approached the intersection with FM 715 and failed to stop at a stop sign, the report said. The motorcycle then became airborne, reports said.

The report did not note if Ridgeway wore a helmet.

A 39-year-old Brenham man remained hospitalized in serious condition at MMH today, a day after he was involved in a two-vehicle accident on U.S. Highway 80 west of Midland, the DPS reported.

James Ging was injured just before 9 a.m. when the four-door sedan he was driving collided with a truck seven miles west of Midland on Highway 80.

According to the DPS, Ging was traveling on the north service road of the highway, and exited but failed to yield the right of way. He then struck a truck driven by Marvin Lamprecht of Lubbock, the report said.

Ging suffered broken ribs and a collapsed lung. Lamprecht was not injured in the accident, according to the report.

Ging was wearing a seat belt when the accident occurred, the report said.

Three charged in TI probe

From Staff Reports

Three persons face drug charges after they were arrested this week following an internal investigation at the Texas Instruments Midland plant, a Department of Public Safety officer confirmed this morning.

DPS narcotics Sgt. W.G. Bradford said today the probe took several months. TI hired a private, out-of-town security firm to conduct the investigation, and DPS was notified only when actual narcotics buys were made, he said.

"DPS assisted in the investigation, but not in the undercover capacity," Bradford said. "I don't know how the investigation came about."

TI spokesman Keith Thomas could not be reached for comment on the investigation, and an employee in the personnel office declined to comment.

Arrested Monday were Herman Coffield, 1612 E. Pecan Ave., and Danny Joe Bayless, 26, 702 Global, according to Midland County records. Each man was charged with a count of delivery of marijuana, and both were released on $5,000 bond, according to the records.

James Earl Allen, 33, 1902 N. Midland Dr., was arrested Tuesday and charged with two counts of delivery of cocaine, the records said. Bond on each count was set at $10,000, and today he was still in the county jail, the records showed.

Tech band camp still open

From Staff Reports

LUBBOCK — A few places are still left at the 55th annual Texas Tech Band/Orchestra Camp set for July 10-22.

Those students interested in participating who do not have an application need to call the school at 1-806-742-2225 and speak to Anna Whitlock, coordinator of the event. Those who have an application need to mail it as soon as possible.

Any junior or senior high school student, with at least one year of music training, can participate in this two-week event.

Students attending the band camp are grouped according to their abilities into one of the 10 bands or three orchestras organized for the camp.

More than 1,000 students participate in the music camp each year and are involved in musical instruction daily and in recreational activities nightly.

Along with the musical instruction, flag corps and twirler instruction is offered.

Fees vary according to whether the student is housed on or off campus. The on-campus fee of $335 includes tuition, meals and housing in a dormitory. The off campus fee of $140 includes tuition only.

The camp is sponsored by the Texas Tech University Music Department.

Banquet honors volunteers

From Staff Reports

Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Midland Tuesday recognized a geologist and a savings and loan employee as its Big Brother and Big Sister of the Year before 150 guests attending a year-end banquet at the American Legion.

John Bourke, senior geologist for Arco Oil & Gas, and Brenda Hoisager, a BancHome Savings & Loan employee, walked away with the honors after being selected by a Big Brothers-Big Sisters screening committee.

Both have worked as Big Brothers-Big Sisters for the past two years.

Attending the Tuesday night banquet were volunteers, caseworkers and those children who benefit from the organization's work in the community. The affair was sponsored by Southwestern Bell Corp. and the Southwestern Bell Mobile System.

Gray joins Foreign Service

From Staff Reports

Jane Gray, daughter of Mrs. Alyne Gray of Midland, has been sworn in as an officer in the United States Foreign Service.

Ms. Gray, who has extensive experience in bilingual and language curriculum and program development, is serving her first assignment in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Ms. Gray received a bachelor's degree from the University of New Mexico and a master's degree from the University of Arizona. She was previously employed with with Pima County College for 10 years and Flowing High School for three years, where she taught Spanish.

Sand donated to city parks

From Staff Reports

The Midland District Office of Dowell Schlumberger has donated approximately 70 cubic yards of sand to the City of Midland's Parks & Recreation Department for use in its city playgrounds.

According to Stewart Gerhart, assistant parks superintendent, the sand has an appraised value of $1,000 and already has been used in Dennis the Menace, Garrett Brown, Hogan and House parks.

"The donated sand is being used to provide safety and enjoyment for children in the City of Midland," Gerhart said.

Store's burglary probed

From Staff Reports

Midland police are investigating the burglary of a local appliance store.

According to a preliminary report, Merriman TV and Appliance World, 3001 W. Wall Ave., was burglarized about 11 p.m. Burglars entered the building through an east side bay door, and removed appliances valued at $2,500, the report said.

Police were notified of the break-in by an automatic alarm, according to the report.

CECOS

Hardwick later said the move caught him and McLeaish completely by surprise.

"We realized it was possible to do this," he said, "but we didn't think they would do it." The reason they didn't, he said, is because of the time and money already invested in the trial.

McLeaish said about noon Tuesday he had been notified by U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton's office that the judge has set Sept. 12 to hear the case in Midland.

Pilot of crashed jet denies he flew too low

MULHOUSE, France (AP) — The pilot of an Airbus A320 jetliner that crashed during an air show and killed three people denied today that he was flying too low and said the plane didn't respond when he tried to gain altitude.

State prosecutor Jean Voiff said that Michel Hasseline and his co-pilot, Pierre Mazieres, told police that "the instruments on board the plane indicated an altitude of 100 feet above the ground at the time of passing over the aerodrome."

Hasseline made the same statement immediately after the crash Sunday, which occurred before a crowd of 1,000 at a show near this eastern French city.

Transport ministry officials said the flight recorder on the jet indicated that Hasseline, a veteran pilot, was flying at only 30 feet at the time of the crash, and they said that was too low to be safe.

*SR-1 Qualifies for GI/FHA financing or VA will repair to qualifying condition.
SR-2 No repairs by VA. Strictly "AS IS" condition.
SR-3 VA will make no repairs to swimming pool or related equipment.
SR-4 Foundation settlement - no warranty from VA on foundation.
SR-5 Flood insurance required.
SR-6 Water serviced by well. VA does not warrant water or well equipment.
SR-7 Sewer service - septic tank. VA does not warrant system.
SR-8 Liquefied petroleum gas service. VA does not warrant system.
SR-9 Property is condemned and does not meet city code. Property must be repaired to code or demolished.
SR-10 Maintenance assessment to be paid to homeowners' association, not included in mortgage payments. (Information in listing)
SR-11 Water service is by community system. Purchaser must pay all fees, deposits, etc.
SR-12 ________________ will be reinstalled at sales closing.
SR-13 ________________ will be repaired/replaced at sales closing.
SR-14 On term sales only, for owner occupied properties, seller will contribute 5% down payment on behalf of buyer if offer is submitted at or above listed term price.
B A bonus will be paid to broker by VA at closing.

The offer which best serves the interest of VA will be processed for acceptance. The name of the successful offeror and sales broker will appear in subsequent publications. VA will accept cash offers up to 10 percent below the advertised term sales price. VA also will pay reasonable loan discount points and buyers' closing costs on cash offers. However, the combined loan discount points and buyers' closing costs may not exceed 10 percent of the advertised term sales price. Offers must be submitted at term listed price when buyers request a new GI loan with $1.00 move-in. Interest rate of available financing is 10 percent (APR 10.1 percent). VA has properties for sale statewide. If you desire to purchase properties in other areas, please contact any sales broker located in the area in which you are interested.

FORFEITURE OF EARNEST MONEY DEPOSIT

Prior to signing the offer, broker must deposit in broker's trust account at least $500 earnest money. Once a purchase offer has been accepted for processing by VA and is subsequently cancelled at the request of the purchaser, the Earnest Money Deposit WILL NOT be refunded and the broker will be required to forward the Earnest Money to the VA as liquidation expenses. There will be no exception to this policy. Therefore, the VA suggests that all brokers interview their buyers to assure they want the property, prior to submission of an offer to purchase.
VA pays 5% sales commission. Offers are subject to the provisions of VA Form 26-6705, Credit Statement of Prospective Purchaser and Contract of Sale, on which all offers must be submitted. VA Form 26-6705 must be submitted in duplicate to:

VA Property Management Section
1400 North Valley Mills Drive
Waco, Texas 76799

Acceptable offers have been received on the following properties:

PM NUMBER	ADDRESS/CITY	PRICE	DOWN PMT	BED/ BATH/GAR	OFFEROR/ BROKER

SPECIAL NOTICE

Effective June 8, 1988, all credit underwriting for purchase offers requesting VA vendee financing is being referred to Shanks & Butler. All brokers are reminded to refer to PM letter #17-88 dated May 25, 1988, outlining these new procedures. Purchase offers not accompanied by the required employment/income verification WILL RESULT IN REJECTION OF THE PURCHASE OFFER. All sales personnel should be advised of this change.

SPECIAL NOTICE

The VA Property Management Section will conduct weekly training seminars regarding the sale of VA acquired properties. These sessions will begin promptly at 9:00 and will last approximately two hours. They will be held at the VA Regional Office, Main Training Room, 1400 North Valley Mills Drive, Waco, Texas 76799.
There is limited space available and reservations will have to be made by writing the Property Management Section (263). Brokers will be contacted one week in advance of the training session they are scheduled to attend.
Your participation in these seminars will be appreciated.
