Two videos omitted from AIDS curriculum

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

■ Related story, photos — 1B

Two instructional videos which trustees said sent "mixed messages" to students were scratched from the school district's AIDS curriculum slated to be taught to 900 high school health class students within the next week, trustees decided Tuesday.

In a five-to-one vote, trustees mandated that a written text of the AIDS curriculum be taught to students currently in high school health classes before finals are finished Jan. 19.

The videos will not be shown during the five-day-unit, but in the spring semester other instructional videos may be included in the AIDS study, trustees said.

During the summer, it will be mandatory that the AIDS curriculum be brought before the board — a newly elected board of seven single member district representatives — for another study and vote, trustees voted.

A majority of Midland Independent School District trustees said the two videos — one a winner of several national awards and one produced by the Walt Disney Corporation — sent students confusing messages in connection with the district's written curriculum.

Officials said the message of the written curriculum was abstention from premarital sex, and drug use, and claimed the films contradicted that theme at times in acknowledging the use of drugs or engaging in premarital sex.

Trustee Mike Conaway said the district's AIDS written curriculum — to be taught over a five-day-span in the high school health classes' sexually transmitted disease unit — "carried the desire of the community more so than these films."

The films, trustees said, sent confusing messages to students via allusions they said the films made toward methods of having sexual relations or engaging in intravenous drug abuse "safely."

The films also asked students to not share needles if they are users of intravenous drugs.

The mother of two MISD students, Becky Lofton, objected at the meeting Tuesday to information given in the videos about transmission of AIDS through oral and anal sex.

Saudi action may signal price war

NEW YORK — Oil giant Saudi Arabia, strapped for money and weary of cheating by other OPEC members, may be taking steps to distance itself from the cartel in what could signal a new price war, some petroleum analysts suggest.

Although the Saudis still insist on unity in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, they have watched their oil income tumble while other OPEC members cheat and sell more oil in violation of production-sharing pact.

Reports that the Saudis are now cheating on their own and foresee $15-a-barrel oil soon, $3 lower than OPEC's official selling price, sent oil prices falling for a second day Tuesday in volatile trading. There also were reports of discounting by Kuwait, another key proponent of OPEC discipline.

Although prices partly recovered and ended the trading session with only a modest loss, a number of analysts said the overall trend is down.

"The Saudis have cut back production. Will they keep doing that? Not when their buddies are undercutting them," said Dennis Eklof, a director of Cambridge Energy Research Associates in Cambridge, Mass.

Saudi Arabia, the most important OPEC producer, reportedly is producing about 3.8 million barrels a day but has stated intentions to raise output to the kingdom's OPEC allotment of 4.3 million barrels a day.

Judge Barbara Culver of the 318th Judicial District estimates her Texas Supreme Court Justice swearing-in ceremony will take place "around the first of February," after she cleans up her Midland office and finds an Austin residence.

Culver to spend 11 months on court before balloting

By RICK BROWN
Assistant City Editor

Midland District Judge Barbara Culver will sit almost 11 months on the Texas Supreme Court before the state's voters decide whether she should continue in that position in a November general election.

As voters weigh her qualifications, "the best recommendation will be the quality of work I perform on the court," The 61-year-old 318th Judicial District Court judge said Tuesday.

Culver was Gov. Bill Clements' surprise choice to fill a Supreme Court seat vacated last week by Justice Robert Campbell.

As late as last Thursday night, Culver had been informed she was not the governor's final preference to fill the post, even though she had made the "short list" of finalists.

But "The governor called me about 1:10 (p.m.) Friday and said, 'I want you to file for this vacancy'," she said.

"I couldn't understand what he was talking about," she said. "Why would I do that?"

"Well, I'm appointing you," was the governor's reply, she said. Because the filing deadline was that afternoon, Clements' office already had made flight reservations for Culver's trip to Austin, she said.

"When the opportunity presented itself, I felt, 'Well, how could you refuse?' " she said, adding that she is "honored to serve."

Culver is only the second woman to fill a high court seat and the first to run for office as an incumbent.

But she is unconcerned that her appointment fills a political void — both women and West Texans having no position on the court as it now stands.

No westerner has sat on the court for at least 10 years, she said. Her appointment falls in line with Clements' stated desire for more geographical balance in his choices.

Several interested in position

By PATRICK CRIMMINS

Several local attorneys, including the current head of the county Republican party, have their sights set on replacing Judge Barbara Culver on the 318th State District Court bench, they said this morning.

Dean Rucker, the county GOP chairman, Municipal Court Judge Robin Smith, former Midland County District Attorney Vern Martin, and Midland attorney Matt Blair said they are interested in filling the bench, which will be vacated by Culver by around Feb. 1.

Culver was appointed last week to the Texas Supreme Court by Gov. Bill Clements.

"I have provided the governor with a letter of intent to let him know I am interested in the position," Rucker said. "I believe I possess a sufficient degree of knowledge of the operations of the court, and feel I can be fair."

Smith said the governor's office has his resume "in hand," and he said he wants to continue his public service.

"Well sure, I'm interested," Martin said. "I feel like it would be a great honor to serve as a judge, and I don't have any doubt about my qualifications."

Blair said the judgeship would be an easy transition for him, since he currently serves in Culver's court as a master, a monitor of certain specific cases.

"I am a judge, in effect, in that court already," Blair said.

The interest in the vacancy is not surprising, since "it is rare that an opportunity for an appointed judgeship comes up in this town," Blair added.

Charges won't be filed in girl's fall down well

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

County Attorney Mark Dettman said Tuesday night he would not consider filing criminal charges against Cissy McClure or her sister, Jamie Moore, for 21-month-old Jessica McClure's fall down an abandoned water well Oct. 14.

Dettman said he has received no recommendation of that kind from the Texas Department of Human Services officials who wrote a letter to Ms. Moore criticizing her and her sister for negligence in the matter.

"To me it looks like a tragic accident...not some grossly criminal act," the county attorney said.

"If the facts appear as they have on the news and in the paper, I just can't see that there is any criminal violation."

An official with the TDHS' regional office in El Paso said today he would not recommend charges be filed against the two women.

"The letter was the end of the matter for us, as well," said Joe Tarin, assistant regional manager at the TDHS El Paso office.

Midland attorney Darrell Smith, legal advisor to Chip and Cissy McClure, said this morning, "It is unfortunate that the letter which has been released by one division of the Texas Department of Human Services apparently contains the view of an employee in the child care licensing division without benefit of a more complete investigation by the department.

"Remember that the letter in question is dated Oct. 30, 1987, which is only a short time after the tragic event," the attorney said.

"Cissy and Chip McClure are and have been aware of the responsibilities of the TDHS to fully and properly investigate and review all reports and rumors relating to Jessica and the accident and they have voluntarily made themselves fully available to any and all such inquiries by the department.

"Cissy and Chip are still traumatized by the freak accident which almost claimed the life of their baby daughter, Jessica," the attorney said.

Tuesday night, Chip McClure deferred comments about the matter to Smith.

Year's 31 airline accidents put death toll near highest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three major airline crashes including one that claimed 156 lives gave 1987 one of the highest death tolls during the past decade from commercial U.S. aviation accidents, according to figures from the National Transportation Safety Board.

The safety board said more deaths occurred in commercial airline crashes last year than in seven of the previous nine years. The commuter airlines also posted their worst safety record since 1979.

The major airlines flying large jet aircraft had 31 accidents during the year including four involving fatalities. The crashes resulted in 231 deaths, the highest number since 1982.

Commuter lines had 35 accidents, 10 involving fatalities. Fifty-eight people died, the most in commuter crashes since 66 were killed in 1979.

The figure of 31 airliner accidents was the highest number since 1974 when there were 42, according to the safety board. The agency counts an accident whenever there is significant injury or damage.

The 231 deaths were eclipsed over the past decade only in 1979 when 351 people were killed in aviation crashes involving major U.S. airlines, and in 1982 when 233 people were killed.

Airline industry officials suggest, however, that the total accident and fatality figures are misleading when trying to make comparisons because they do not take into account changes in traffic volume. Furthermore, a single accident involving a large aircraft could cause the total figures to soar.

Industry spokesmen said a better indicator is the rate of fatal accidents per 100,000 departures. It climbed in 1987 compared to the previous year, but still was lower than normal.

"Taken over the long term (1987) was one of the better years for airline safety," maintained Bill Jackman, a spokesman for the Air Transport Association, which represents the majr air carriers.

The rate of accidents involving fatalities — 0.43 per 100,000 departures — was lower in 1987 than the rate in seven of the previous nine years, according to the NTSB.

Chiang Ching-kuo's death ends Taiwan's nationalist dynasty

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — President Chiang Ching-kuo, son of nationalist Chinese leader Chiang Kai-shek, died today and ended the dynasty that led the nationalists to victory and defeat in China and prosperity in Taiwan. He was 77.

Chiang, president since 1978, died of a heart attack at the Veterans General Hospital at 3:55 p.m. Vice President Lee Teng-hui was sworn in as president three hours later.

"We have lost a capable leader.... Every one of us felt a deep sorrow. This was an unredeemable loss," Premier Yu Kuo-hwa, fighting back tears, said as he announced Chiang's death on national television at 9 p.m.

Lee urged all Nationalist Party members to "fulfill the mission Mr. Chiang was unable to finish." That mission was uniting Taiwan with mainland China under a nationalist government.

The Defense Ministry ordered all military personnel to cancel leaves and vacations and to reinforce the defense of this island of 19.5 million people.

Chiang, a diabetic, used a wheelchair and wore a heart pacemaker in his later years. He had been expected to step down when his term ended in 1990, and had promised no relative would succeed him.

Chiang Kai-shek, who came to power on the mainland in 1926, died in Taiwan in 1975. He led the nationalists in victory over Japan in China in World War II but was forced to retreat to Taiwan in 1949 when his troops were defeated by communist forces led by Mao Tse-tung. About 2 million Chinese followed him, settling on the island of Taiwan.

Chiang Ching-kuo spent much of his life in the shadow of his father. But he left his own legacies.

In 1987, during his second six-year presidential term, he ended 38 years of martial law on Taiwan and approved sentimental journeys to the Chinese mainland for Taiwanese for family reunions.

Chiang presided over the most spectacular period of economic progress in Taiwan's history. He also witnessed its worst diplomatic setbacks: the United States and many other nations switched their diplomatic recognition from the nationalists on Taiwan to the communists on the mainland.

Japanese leader could take conciliatory approach

By MIKE CONNOLLY
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Japanese Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita, under pressure from the U.S. Congress to open his nation's markets to American construction companies, is expected to adopt a conciliatory approach when he meets with President Reagan this week.

A handful of California construction firms (including San Francisco's Bechtel Corp.), many of which have expressed an interest in bidding on public works projects in Japan, can be expected to benefit if the current tight controls are loosened or lifted.

But while Takeshita is signalling his willingness to make concessions to American construction companies, there appears to be no middle ground when it comes to his position on other trade issues affecting California and the rest of the nation.

According to Reagan administration officials, issues that are unlikely to see much improvement include the increased sale of American citrus, beef and rice in the Japanese market.

Takeshita arrives here on Tuesday for three days of talks with U.S. leaders. He is scheduled to meet with President Reagan on Wednesday.

At a press conference before his departure from Tokyo, Takeshita indicated he was ready to make concessions when he acknowledged that the construction market in Japan is not fully open to foreign companies.

"With regard to the Japanese public works market, there is the principle of nondiscrimination between Japanese and non-Japanese companies," Takeshita said. "In reality, however, there do exist some difficult problems vis-a-vis foreign companies' entry."

For Takeshita, a former construction minister whose in-laws direct some of Japan's largest construction companies, such a remark shows an increased sensitivity to U.S. complaints. American companies say they are being unfairly shut out of the lucrative Japanese market that may amount to as much as $300 billion in public works projects during the next decade.

Reagan administration officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, were cautiously optimistic about prospects for progress but were unwilling to go so far as to say an agreement between the two leaders was expected this week.

According to one official, the admistration is pursuing a plan that would allow U.S. firms to compete for Japanese construction projects using guidelines worked out for American participation in the massive $8 billion Kansei International Airport project in Osaka.

It was the alleged refusal of Japan to allow U.S. companies to bid on such big construction projects such as the Kansei that provoked Congress late last year to ban Japanese firms from participating in federally funded public works projects here.

When Congress reconvenes later this month, lawmakers including Rep. Fortney (Pete) Stark, D-Oakland, are expected to introduce even tougher legislation that would bar Japanese firms from projects built with state and local money as well.

"In 1986, Japan did $2.3 billion worth of construction work in the United States," said design and construction industry spokesman Mark Chalpin. "In Japan, the only thing American firms were allowed to build was one Mrs. Fields cookie stand."

Other issues to be discussed by the two leaders this week:

Beef and citrus: A four-year agreement spelling out Japanese quotas on imports of beef and citrus products from the United States expires in March. Japan has expressed a willingness to allow U.S. producers a larger quota. But the U.S. wants the quotas dropped entirely.

"I think the issue will come up but I don't think anything will be resolved," said Rich Schroeter, deputy assistant administrator for international trade.

President Reagan's schedule adjusted after stomach upset

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan canceled his plans to attend the funeral of a former White House aide today after suffering an upset stomach in the early morning hours, the White House said.

Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan, 76, would go ahead with plans to greet Japanese Prime Minister Noboro Takeshita. Fitzwater said Reagan would be unable to attend funeral services for Edward Hickey, 52, formerly the head of the White House security office and more recently chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission, who died last week.

"The president's schedule...is being changed to reflect a mild episode of gastroenteritis experienced during the night," said a statement by Fitzwater. "Dr. John Hutton, the president's physician, examined the president this morning and found him to be in good health except for the stated complaint."

"Despite the discomfort during the night, including nausea and vomiting, the president this morning had no fever, and all vital signs were normal," the statement said. "No medication was prescribed. There were no findings to suggest anything other than gastroenteritis."

"He doesn't have any suggestions as to why" Reagan got sick, Fitzwater said of Hutton. "There are several people on the staff who have hasimilar problems. We have had no specific diagnosis."

Fitzwater said Reagan's advisers changed the president's morning schedule so that Reagan could seep later than normal as he had been up during the night.

"The president didn't feel it (the stomach problem) was serious enough to warrant (immediate) medical attention," the spokesman told reporters, saying that Reagan was examined by Hutton at 7 a.m. EST.

Fitzwater said that Hutton said "there were no indications of anything other than an upset stomach." The spokesman said he could not say what caused Reagan's nausea, and said, "They may alter the lunch somewhat...but no special diet or anything like that."

Besides canceling plans to attend Hickey's funeral, Reagan postponed his regular morning meeting with White House chief of staff Howard H. Baker Jr., and moved back his regular briefing from national security adviser Colin D. Powell.

CULVER

"There are people in West Texas who are grateful that he picked me," she commented. As well, "I think there are people who are grateful he picked me because I'm a woman," she said.

She acknowledged parallels between her appointment and President Reagan's choice of Sandra Day O'Conner for the U.S. Supreme Court.

But those parallels go further than a preference for skirts instead of slacks.

Both judges are "more interested in being a judge than making law," said Culver.

In her judicial philosophy, Culver calls herself "a strict constructionist."

"Philosophically, I am not an activist," she said. "I would be hopefully a pragmatist in interpreting the Constitution, laws and precedents of the state of Texas."

Neither does she think much of large campaign contributions that some judges have been accused of accepting in Texas Monthly magazine and CBS' 60 Minutes program.

"Texans, from what I hear out west, want reform and a return of integrity and credibility," she told the Austin press after her appointment announcement.

For the high position that the Midland judge has attained, she remains plain-spoken, she said.

"If you communicate with litigants, you need to do it with words they can understand," she said, recalling her 25 years as a trial judge.

In simple terms, she explained her view of law: "It's what the Legislature enacts by way of a statute," she said. "It's the rules that society lives by."

A graduate of the Southern Methodist University School of Law, Culver came to Midland with her late husband, John, in 1951 after both graduated from the law school.

Midland at that time was "a small boomtown," she said.

Her election as county judge in 1962 was "a breakthrough — to finally get a Republican elected to the courthouse," she said.

She served in that office for 15 years — also wearing the hat of county court-at-law judge because county civil, criminal, probate and appeal cases were then handled solely by the county judge.

She continued her activity in Republican Party politics, serving as a delegate to state conventions from 1963 to 1986. In 1976, she was elected permanent chairman of the state GOP convention.

Nationally, she served as a Reagan delegate to the 1976 GOP convention in Kansas City, where she served on the Resolutions Committee.

"I feel I have worked as hard as I could with the Republican Party," she said. "I'm grateful that that work was recognized."

Such strong GOP ties didn't stop then-Gov. Dolph Brisco from appointing Culver to the 318th Judicial District judgeship in 1978.

The 318th is a family court, hearing cases dealing mainly with divorce, custody, abuse, she said.

That experience should be an asset to the judge in her service on the Supreme Court, as the Legislature this year made family court matters applicable to the high court, she said.

A survey conducted by the Eighth Court of Appeals in El Paso indicated that only two of Culver's decisions were appealed since 1983, when the appeals court began keeping computerized records.

Jim Carter, the courts staff attorney, said that of those two decisions — both divorce cases — one was reversed and the other was upheld.

Carter added that the court generally hears six to eight cases yearly on family matters from the 22 counties that it serves.

Her interest in family matters has gone beyond courtroom decisions. She has supported numerous community activities to help youth through the years, and feels honored that the county youth detention facility was named in her honor upon its dedication in 1988.

"Midland has always been very concerned about young people," she said. "Whatever someone wanted to do for young people got a lot of support."

Culver acknowledged that moving from Midland District Court to the state's court of last resort "is a big jump."

"After being a trial judge for 25 years, I'm excited about moving to another plateau of work within the judicial system," she said.

She estimated her swearing-in ceremony could take place around Feb. 1, but no firm date has been set as yet.

The November general election pits Culver against former Congressman Jack Hightower of Vernon, a Democrat. Neither candidate faces opposition in March primary elections.

Should she lose the race, Culver would be content returning to Midland and acting as a visiting judge, a position that is in demand across the state, she said.

But of immediate concern is "cleaning up" her current office and locating a residence in Austin, she said.

"I'll serve there from now until January no matter what," she said.

REPLACE

Culver said this morning she will be sworn in about the first of February. After that, a visiting judge will be brought in to handle the caseload in the family court until the governor makes the appointment, she said.

The newest member of the high court also said she will not recommend a successor.

"I think it would be nicer if I didn't try to pick my successor," Culver said. "I've heard some names mentioned, and I'm sure they can all do the job, so I'm not worried about that."

The appointment process will rely heavily on local input, especially from members of the local bar association, Barry McBee, the deputy director for appointments for the governor's office, said this morning.

"We have received indications of interest, or recommendations, with respect to a number of people in the Midland area," McBee said. "We have not yet begun any formal process. Part of the timing of that will be determining with Judge Culver when she decides to vacate the bench."

The bench will be filled "as soon as possible," he added.

"Our intent would be not to have the bench vacant for any significant period of time," McBee said. "I don't know if I can say for sure that we will have a replacement by the time she leaves, but it will be shortly after that."

The interest in the post in Midland is so great that a pool of qualified candidates is likely to emerge, McBee said.

"In terms of finding those people who are interested in the post, there is a sufficient level of interest in Midland that we will not have to go into Midland and do any recruiting," he said.

"The governor's highest charge to us is that they be qualified," he said. "We have to assure that.

"We take very seriously the comments of people in the community, and especially fellow members of the bar there."

AIDS

Not only did Ms. Lofton not want her children to hear about those activities — as others in the crowd agreed — she said if they had to be mentioned it should be "in the context of deviant and inappropriate" behavior.

Editing sound out of the films when talking about "safe sex" — defined in the films as the use of condoms during sexual activity with a mutually exclusive partner — was a move trustee Betsy Robinson, the only trustee to vote against the policy, advocated.

Asserted trustee Bill Jackson: "I hope my daughter thinks and believes if she has sex, she'll get AIDS."

"We are being very naive here," countered trustee Ron Britton. "We can't forget the purpose of what we're doing here. You can't perpetuate a lie. You must teach them the truth."

"You can't sit here and say, 'If you have sex you will get AIDS' because you won't," Britton said. "We tried to teach people if they smoked a marijuana cigarette, they'd turn green.

"Well, they didn't.

"We are running out of daylight on this thing, folks. We have to get something done. Kids are a lot more educated than we give them credit for," Britton continued.

Charlie Dodd, youth minister at Midland's First Baptist Church, said he "knew the names of students who were currently 'sharing needles' and having sex."

"I know they are doing it. I know it may sound like a mixed message, but I don't know how else to get a message across to someone about to make a bad decision," Dodd said emphatically.

Changes in the written text itself were made before the curriculum was approved in the wordings on several key areas, said Director of Secondary Education Maridell Fryar.

While the curriculum maintains AIDS cannot be transmitted via casual relations — such as through the air, from dishes, drinking fountains or swimming pools or through normal skin contact — it states that evidence on AIDS changes constantly, so students are urged to use "common sense" in the matter, Mrs. Fryar said.

The written text will also teach that the use of condoms as a preventative measure to getting AIDS during sex can have a failure rate of up to 50 percent and should be equated with "playing Russian Roulette," the director continued.

Omitting the videos "omits a leg" from the AIDS curriculum, Mrs. Fryar said after the trustee vote.

Not only were the two videos a way of holding the childrens' attention, they were "the next best thing" to having AIDS patients as guest speakers in the classroom.

"What never got brought up was that there would be a trained, caring teacher in the classroom while the videos were on," the director said.

The children will miss "another voice" saying the same thing the written curriculum does, miss a "factor of interest" and miss another modality or method of learning about AIDS because of the video deletions, she summarized.

MISD policy states that any parent wishing his child participate in the AIDS unit may ask for an alternative plan which usually, however, is conducted outside of the classroom, Mrs. Fryar said.

Trustees later will address a 7th grade AIDS curriculum which will eventually be taught in their life science classes which last an entire school year, they said.

Cold temperatures gripping Plains, Midwest

Associated Press

Bone-chilling temperatures blew into the nothern Plains and upper Midwest today, after a storm dropped more than a foot of snow, stranding hundreds of travelers and forcing one presidential hopeful to cancel campaign appearnces.

The snow, however, eased early today, said Dan McCarthy, a meteorologist at the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo.

The storm was caused by a cold front pushing across the Ohio Valley. "Behind it are strong, gusty winds and very cold temperatures," he said. "Wind chills are ranging between 20 and 40 degrees below zero."

The wind at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., made it feel like 33 degrees below zero early today, and wind gusting to near 35 mph at Mason City, Iowa, produced a wind chill of minus 51.

On Tuesday, the storm dumped up 14 inches of snow at Grand Rapids, Minn., and a foot or more on parts of Wisconsin and North Dakota. Eight inches fell over upper Michigan, where 4 inches more was expected today.

Blizzard conditions in South Dakota on Tuesday disrupted traffic and sent wind chills to 40 below zero. While snowfall was generally light, winds gusting to 50 mph reduced visibility to zero at times.

McCLURE

Chip's father, Harold McClure, said this morning that "the kids" were truly upset by the letter.

"With all that had been going on ...and all the good...and things were settling down...and then this happens," the elder McClure said.

"You know I think of all the people all over the world who called...why I sat here for three days and answered the calls," the father remembered.

"They are just 18 years old. I'm an old man and tears were coming down my face" throughout the ordeal, he said.

"I just talked to the kids for a minute or two last night, but I told them that whatever happens that I and their mother were behind them all the way," the father said.

"They said the state wasn't going to prosecute them. I was glad to hear that," McClure added.

The younger McClure, Chip, said this morning, "We shall be eternally grateful to everyone who made Jessica's rescue and recovery possible.

"She is continuing to do well. The cast has been removed from her foot and doctors have placed a stocking brace on the foot," McClure added.

"We want to thank everyone for the countless prayers and good things which have been provided Jessica," he said.

OIL

This means the Saudis will almost certainly have to discount the additional oil to sell it, which would effectively scrap the country's effort to defend the $18 OPEC price and mark a significant blow to the cartel, already frayed by internal feuding and duplicity in price and production decrees.

Although OPEC ministers have pledged to hold production at 15.06 million barrels a day, the 13-member cartel's output remains at least 2 million barrels a day above that level at a time when supplies already are outstripping demand.

"The reason behind the price decline is this OPEC crowd has not been able to get its act together," said John O'Dea, manager of international energy futures at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. in New York.

Some analysts said Saudi abandonment of production restraints would be understandable considering the financial pressure faced by the kingdom, not only because of lower oil prices but the dollar's weakness.

Indecent TV movie faces FCC action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Owners of a Kansas City television station possibly facing the first federal action for showing an allegedly indecent movie during prime-time viewing hours say the station violated company guidelines when it aired the sex comedy "Private Lessons."

Morton Kent, chairman of the board of Media Central Inc. in Chattanooga, Tenn., general partner of KZKC-TV, added, however, that the station violated no laws.

"The people at the station are allowed some basic freedoms of choice on programming in accordance with community standards," Kent said Tuesday. "However, we have company guidelines, and the particular movie violated our standards."

"We did not violate any laws, nor are we censors," he said, adding, "We don't know why we were chosen on something that is almost a year old."

The Federal Communications Commission on Tuesday began an enforcement action of its indecency standards against KZKC-TV for airing the movie, a sex-oriented comedy featuring "Emmanuelle" star Sylvia Kristel, during the 8-11 p.m. time period known as prime time.

The agency said the broadcast may have violated the law because it contained explicit sex and was aired at a time when children may have been in the audience.

The action was the first the commission has taken to enforce tough new indecency standards it adopted last April, and the first time the agency has targeted the programming of a TV station.

"The law prohibits the broadcast of certain sexually explicit programming to children on radio and television," FCC Chairman Dennis Patrick said, promising "full enforcement of the law in accordance with the guidelines provided by the Supreme Court."

"Private Lessons" was broadcast by the independent UHF station on May 26 beginning at 8 p.m., according to a complaint investigated by the FCC.

The movie, a comedy, concerns a wealthy 15-year-old boy, played by Eric Brown, who is left for a summer in the care of a chauffeur, Howard Hesseman, and who is seduced by a maid played by Miss Kristel.

The film, made in 1980 by Barry & Enright Productions, carried an R rating, which means that in movie theaters no one under 17 was admitted without a parent or guardian, according to the Motion Picture Association of America.

FCC spokesman John Kamp said the movie has "nudity in a sexual context."

The version allegedly broadcast by the TV station, however, may not have been the same version that was shown in theaters. Movies often are edited for television broadcast.

The FCC detailed the complaint against KZKC in a letter to the station. Kent said neither the station nor Media Central had received the letter.

Kent noted the movie was broadcast about a month after the FCC revised its indecency standards last April and "they were so uncertain that the FCC had to come out with new explanatory regulations," which were adopted in November and officially issued Dec. 29.

The FCC's letter, addressed to station licensee Kansas City Television Ltd., did not specify any scenes or language that may be considered indecent, but Kamp said the commission decided to begin the action "based on explicit depictions of sex that they thought may be patently offensive."

He added that the FCC "has not made a decision that it's indecent, only that the complainant has made out a case that indicates all the necessary elements."

The FCC has refused to identify the complainant or release the letter that prompted the investigation. It says the letter also contained a complaint about another program on another channel, and that complaint is under investigation.

The FCC decided last April to apply the wording of a 1978 Supreme Court decision that said indecent material is "language or material that depicts or describes, in terms patently offensive as measured by contemporary community standards for the broadcast medium, sexual or excretory activities or organs."

The commission said indecent material may be aired only when there is a reasonable risk that children are not in the audience. In its ruling last November, the FCC said it would consider that children were not likely to be in the audience after midnight.

The FCC gave the station 30 days to respond to the complaint.

If a violation is found, the agency could impose sanctions ranging from a letter of reprimand to a fine of up to $10,000, Kamp said.

Nation's first-born 'test-tube' quints doing well; Parents of eight happy

DETROIT (AP) — The mother of babies believed to be the nation's first "test-tube" quintuplets says she's ecstatic about the five new additions to her family but "a nervous wreck" about raising eight children.

The four girls and one boy, who ranged in weight from 1 pound, 14.5 ounces to 3 pounds, 2.5 ounces when they were born Monday two months prematurely, were doing well today, their father, Raymond L'Esperance of Clarkston, said on CBS-TV's "This Morning."

Two of the babies were on respirators this morning, said a spokeswoman at William Beaumont Hospital in suburban Royal Oak. But she said it is usual for premature infants to need a respirator.

"A full recovery is expected," said the spokeswoman, who did not give her name.

Daniel Batton, a neonatologist, said the babies have a 90 percent to 95 percent chance of survival.

Michele L'Esperance, 34, delivered the babies by Caesarean section late Monday within four minutes.

"They're beautiful," said Mrs. L'Esperance, who with her husband has three sons from previous marriages.

"I don't know that I can say anything and I don't know how I'm going to deal with it but we're going to take it a day at a time and see what happens. ...I'm excited. I'm a nervous wreck. I'm sore."

A London woman gave birth to five test-tube babies in March 1986.

Raymond and Michele L'Esperance of Clarkston, Mich., gave birth Monday to Quintuplets conceived through in vitro fertilization at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. All are doing well according to a hospital spokeswoman. The parents have chosen the names Veronica, Erica, Alexandria, Danielle and Raymond.

Mrs. L'Esperance was unable to conceive because her Fallopian tubes had been removed. Her eggs were fertilized in a culture dish with the father's sperm, and implanted in her womb.

"We were just hoping she'd get pregnant with one. When we found out there were five, we were shocked," L'Esperance, 27, said.

Scientists, residents await predicted quake

PARKFIELD, Calif. (AP) — A few miles north of this tiny town, scientist Tom McEvilly and his colleagues have placed 114 seismometers in a mile-deep hole, waiting for movement that may signal a long-predicted severe earthquake.

At the one-room school in Parkfield, population 34, teacher Duane Hamann abruptly orders his students to drop to their knees and cover their heads three or four times a week, a drill meant to prepare the children for the temblor.

And 17 miles to the south in Cholame, Aggie's Cafe owner Agnes Bayus declares: "I truly believe we are going to have a big earthquake. God help us, because people will not be prepared for it."

Life just hasn't been the same in the oak-dotted pastures of the Cholame Valley since 1985, when the U.S. Geological Survey issued the nation's first official long-term earthquake prediction.

The forecast for a severe quake measuring about 6 on the Richter scale has spurred what the agency calls the nation's premier experiment aimed at predicting temblors.

The USGS said it was 95 percent sure the quake would rupture a 20-mile stretch of the San Andreas Fault, which runs smack through Parkfield, sometime during a 10-year period centered around this month, which means no later than January 1993.

The prediction was based on the fact that the Parkfield segment of the San Andreas has ruptured in quakes measuring 5.5 to 6.3 on the Richter scale roughly every 22 years since 1857, most recently in 1966.

"We're in the final years of the process that is going to result in a magnitude-6 earthquake right here," McEvilly, a seismologist at the University of California, Berkeley, said Tuesday as reporters toured the seismic California valley halfway between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The seismometers McEvilly installed in the mile-deep abandoned oil well are among scores of monitoring devices placed in the valley. Researchers want to learn what kind of smaller quakes and other changes in the ground occur before the predicted major quake, hoping to learn how to predict other temblors.

They also hope to issue a warning 72 hours before the Parkfield quake.

Such an "A-level" alert will be issued by the USGS and then relayed to California's Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento, which in turn will notify officials in Fresno, San Luis Obispo, Kings, Kern, Monterey and San Benito counties. County officials will alert local residents.

The alert will be issued if one magnitude-4.5 quake, two magnitude-3.5 quakes or combinations of certain lesser warning signs occur near Parkfield.

William Bakun, chief scientist of the earthquake prediction experiment, said one or two A-level alerts likely will be false alarms.

"People tell us we can afford to have one or two (false alarms) before the public gets fed up," Bakun said.

While this month is in the center of the prediction "window," the quake is no more likely now than in a few years, he added.

The predicted quake should not cause any significant damage beyond the immediate area of Parkfield, said Richard Andrews, the Office of Emergency Services' assistant director for Southern California.

But Bakun said there is a 2 percent to 10 percent chance the Parkfield quake could grow into or trigger a quake as large as magnitude 7. Officials have said that could severely damage or destroy unreinforced masonry buildings in nearby towns.

National Geographic is 100; Gift aimed at geographic illiteracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Geographic Society celebrated its 100th birthday today by announcing its centennial gift to the nation: $20 million to help teach kids about the planet Earth.

"Our kids don't know where they are. And if you don't know where you are, you're nowhere," said Gilbert M. Grosvenor, the society's president.

The money will go into a new foundation, and the society promised to kick in $20 million more if it can raise an equal amount in outside contributions for its cause of combating geographic illiteracy.

Grosvenor, interviewed on the NBC-TV "Today" show, said the foundation will direct most of its resources toward training teachers. "We believe that the future of geography in the schools is through the teachers. We want to train these teachers to teach geography," he said.

"This foundation will form a basis for all of America to participate. We've not only put $20 million into this foundation, but we've also challenged the private sector and foundations to contribute another $20 million, which we will match."

The president of the 10.5 million-member society said in remarks prepared for a news conference later in the day that "there is no more fitting way to begin our second century than by providing a permanent base of support for our geography activities.

"The society's concern about the untenable consequences of geographic illiteracy compel us to take an even larger role in education, and we are in it for the long haul," said Grosvenor, the great-grandson of Alexander Graham Bell, the telephone inventor and the society's second president.

The society is best known for its yellow-bordered monthly magazine, National Geographic, with richly illustrated articles about explorations, adventures and exotic ports of call, as well as its widely watched television specials about nature and the environment.

Its dues-paying membership has boomed in recent decades, even while the study of geography has gone into eclipse in America's schools. According to one recent survey, 25 percent of high school students surveyed in Dallas could not name Mexico as the southern neighbor of the United States. Nearly half the college students in a California poll could not locate Japan.

The non-profit society, which has revenues of $350 million a year from its magazines, television specials and sales of its maps, books and other materials, launched a $4 million-a-year geography education program in 1985 to try to improve geography teaching in public schools.

Creation of the National Geographic Society Education Foundation will give that effort a permanent base. The foundation will finance summer institutes for geography instructors and will continue to fund the Geography Alliance Network, consisting of 22 alliances in 20 states and the District of Columbia.

Lloyd H. Elliott, retiring president of George Washington University, will serve as the foundation's president. He said its aim is to "focus public attention on the critical lack of geographic literacy in this country, bring together the resources needed to remedy the situation and target those funds where they can make a real difference — in the hands of classroom teachers and students."

Remark lands Mecham in trouble again

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A day after admitting his style has gotten him into trouble, Gov. Evan Mecham is in hot water again — this time for saying a group of Japanese "got round eyes" while talking about their favorite sport.

The remark sparked immediate criticism of the Republican governor, who in the past has angered blacks, Jews, homosexuals and women.

"You'd almost think a person would have to work awfully hard to offend that many people with this regularity," said House Minority Leader Art Hamilton, a Democrat. "I find no humor in it."

Mecham, who faces a recall campaign and an indictment, told the Phoenix Kiwanis Club on Tuesday that during a trip to the Far East last fall, he gave a golf club to the head of a major Japanese bank.

"And Japanese like to play golf," Mecham said. "And their eyes really light up when you say we've got over 200 golf courses in Arizona.

"My goodness, golf courses. Suddenly they got round eyes," Mecham said. As some in the crowd began to titter, the governor added, "I hope that wasn't anything out of line."

On Monday, Mecham admitted in his State of the State address to having made mistakes during his first year in office. In what many viewed as a conciliatory speech, he said he realized that "style is sometimes as important as substance. How things are said is sometimes as important as what is said."

Tom Kadomoto, honorary Japanese consul general in Phoenix, said he did not want to comment on Mecham's remark. "I don't know that he had any malicious intent," he said.

But Hamilton said, "I find the idea of disparaging comments about other folks because of their race, color, creed or in this case, in his judgment, the shape of their eyes, to be an affront to right-thinking folks."

In past months, the governor has said working women cause divorce, homosexuality is an unacceptable lifestyle, and defended use of the word "pickaninny" in textbooks. He also opposed a holiday honoring the Rev. Martin Luther King for state workers.

In December, Mecham angered Jews by defending an earlier statement that the United States is a "great Christian nation."

"The next thing we're going to hear is 'some of my best friends are Japanese,'" said Rep. Cindy Resnick, a Democrat.

Oil spill brings back memories

WEST ELIZABETH, Pa. (AP) — Twenty years ago, before federal clean water standards checked pollution, the Monongahela River was a dumping ground for acid mine drainage, industrial wastes, raw sewage and other filth.

Old-timers derided its discolored waters, saying without too much hyberbole that it was too thick to drink but too thin to plow.

Thanks to federal pollution laws, the river gradually cleansed itself starting in the 1960s to the point that the fish returned.

Today, however, some fear the progress has been jeopardized. The Jan. 2 spill of 1 million gallons of diesel fuel into the Monongahela from an Ashland Oil Co. tank here has brought back bad memories.

"The first thing I thought was the river would be ruined again," said Pete Leventopoulos, who runs a bait and tackle shop near the site of the spill, 27 miles south of Pittsburgh.

The foul-smelling diesel fuel has killed hundreds of fish, and the Pennsylvania Game Commission estimated Tuesday that at least 2,000 waterfowl also died.

"The waterfowl on the river have been hurt really bad. It's been pretty nasty," said Fred Rimmel of the Audubon Society. "We probably lost the most birds in the first 24 to 48 hours. A lot of them were so soaked with oil they froze to death."

Experts say that despite the damage, the river hasn't been wrecked, though the exact magnitude of the problem won't be known until studies are done in the spring.

"There's a difference between a chronic pollution source and an acute, short-term one. I don't believe we can expect the oil spill to represent a return in time to conditions prior to the Clean Water Act," said Edward Smith, a biologist with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Pittsburgh.

"An incident of this size is bound to have some measurable impact. But this was a shock-load of a pollutant with a definite beginning and a definite ending," Smith said.

The spill nonetheless led some longtime residents to recall the pollution of the past.

"When I was a kid, it looked like you could walk across it," said Max Stanton, 52, of Floreffe.

"I used to swim in it when I was a boy, and we had the Monongahela crawl. That's where you kept one arm out in front of you to push the stuff out of the way. It was an open cesspool," said fisherman Dean Marracini, 47, of Elizabeth.

"The 'Mon' was like a dead river. There wasn't anything living in there," Ray George of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in Wheeling, W.Va., said Tuesday.

All that garbage flowed into the Ohio River, which is formed at Pittsburgh by the junction of the Monongahela and the Allegheny rivers. The upper Ohio suffered its own brand of pollution from steel mills along its banks stretching from Pittsburgh to Steubenville, Ohio, to Wheeling, W.Va.

But the federal Water Quality Control Act of 1965 and the Clean Water Act of 1972 gradually transformed the rivers from stinkholes to prime fishing and recreation areas.

The water improved so much that the Pennsylvania Fish Commission stocked the Monongahela with walleye, muskellunge and bass that flourished in the reborn river. Other fish in the lower Ohio migrated upstream as the water improved.

Blake Weirich, area fisheries manager for the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, also isn't overly concerned about the spill.

"This was a one-shot thing. In the past, the pollution was constant," he said.

"It'll bounce back. It might take two years to get it back to where it was. It'll flush itself out pretty thoroughly," Weirich said. "We know there's a partial kill going on. My best guess is hundreds are dead, instead of thousands and tens of thousands."

Biologists say the timing of the spill helped lessen the impact. In the winter, fish are less active and require less oxygen.

Airline gets accusations of employment discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New Mexico airline accused of discriminating against aliens in its hiring practices is the target of the government's first discrimination suit under the new immigration law.

Two suits filed Tuesday in the executive office for immigration review at the Justice Department accuse Mesa Airlines of maintaining two separate pools of applicants for pilot positions. One pool is for qualified applicants who are U.S. citizens and the other for those who aren't citizens, including authorized aliens who intend to become citizens, said the department.

The suit said the airline refuses to hire anyone from the non-citizen list unless there are no qualified applicants in the U.S. citizen pool.

The government is seeking to bar the airline from what the Justice Department says are discriminatory employment practices and also is seeking a $1,000 penalty for each individual illegally discriminated against.

Attorney's office head quits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the nation's largest federal prosecutor's office is going into private law practice and leaving behind a grand jury investigation of District of Columbia operations that he began last year.

U.S. Attorney Joseph E. diGenova announced his resignation Tuesday. He has led investigations covering matters ranging from national security to corruption in the administration of Mayor Marion Barry Jr.

During his tenure, 12 officials of the Barry administration have been convicted, including two deputy mayors who are serving prison terms for crimes they committed in office.

Among diGenova's highest-profile cases were the obstruction of justice trial of former Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Thayer, the kickback case of former vice chairman of the Postal Service Board of Governors, Peter Voss, and the espionage cases of Jonathan Pollard and Randy Miles Jeffries.

Singlaub claims gold find

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub claims his treasure-hunting ventures in the Philippines last year located caches of gold bullion buried by the Japanese during World War II.

Singlaub said Tuesday that before he abandoned the expeditions, he was involved with treasure-hunting at four sites, adding "Some of the treasure has been located. It's principally gold bullion."

Singlaub is head of the U.S. Council for World Freedom, a group based in Phoenix, Ariz., which raises money for anti-communist rebel groups.

Singlaub said he quit treasure-hunting in early 1987 because of the media's repeated attacks on his activities. He said his presence in the Philippines "created so much controversy that I had to put that activity on hold."

Supporters of flying hogs say opponents 'pigheaded'

CINCINNATI (AP) — A woman cradled a week-old pig named Arnold and city councilmen donned plastic porcine snouts as a bicentennial brouhaha over a sculpture containing winged pigs turned City Hall into hog-lovers' heaven.

More than 200 people crowded the council chambers Tuesday to exchange snorts over the sculpture some referred to as "Pigasus" because it contains 3-foot-high bronze pigs with wings.

Some residents weren't amused when the artwork planned for Sawyer Point Park in commemoration with the city's 200th birthday was publicized. They flooded newspapers and City Council with letters and calls of protest, prompting the hearing.

"This debate has gotten so serious, it's outrageous," said Don Driehaus, part of the pro-pig contingent.

Council members, however, learned Tuesday they are legally powerless to stop the sculpture because the appropriate city boards already approved it. The work is under construction and scheduled to be completed this summer.

The sculpture, by Minnesota artist Andrew Leicester, has 17 elements representing various phases of Cincinnati's history. The pigs symbolize the city's "Porkopolis" days of the 1800s, when it was a pork-packing center.

Some would like to play down Cincinnati's pig connection in the sculpture, worrying about the city's image. But the majority who showed up Tuesday called that hogwash.

"If we're the major-league town we think we are, we need to be able to be a little more self-assured about ourselves and our place in history, and be able to laugh at ourselves," said Councilman Arn Bortz, who wore a pig snout.

A carnival atmosphere prevailed. A woman from a radio station brought Arnold the pig, who squealed softly in her arms. Councilmen donned pig hats — baseball caps sporting pink pig ears, snouts and tails — and one councilman had a large hog shipped in from the Cincinnati Zoo for a pre-hearing appearance. When council members polled the audience, pro-pig forces applauded and cheered loudly for 20 seconds. Pig opponents were much quieter, clapping for half as long.

> "The issue is whether the pig statues will subject our city, our businesses and our people to public scorn, locally or nationally. It has started already."
> — Milton Bortz, cousin to the councilman

The anti-pig forces suggested there was no reason for levity.

"The issue is whether the pig statues will subject our city, our businesses and our people to public scorn, locally or nationally. It has started already," said Milton Bortz, a cousin to the councilman.

"I imagine we're the laughingstock of the country," added Kevin Anneken.

At one point, Milton Bortz was asked a question by one of the snout-hatted councilmen.

"I hope you realize how difficult it is to respond to something like that to someone who's wearing a pig hat," Milton Bortz said.

Others found no reason to object to the flying hogs. They think opponents are being pigheaded.

"Pigs are part of the city's history. Good grief," said Tim Golliher.

Councilman Bortz suggested the city should loosen up and enjoy the bicentennial artwork, winged pigs and all.

Dutchman fears lost dog may now be dead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Dutch tourist who staged a hunger strike after his dog disappeared during an airline flight was called to St. Louis to identify a dog killed in traffic that officials say is probably the missing pet.

"There is not much hope for my dog, but I must go there to be sure," Leo Koewe said Tuesday night as he prepared to leave for St. Louis. "This is very important to me."

Trans World Airlines officials believe the 4-year-old female terrier-poodle mix, named Loekie, escaped during a plane change and was killed on a street near Lambert-St. Louis International Airport.

Don Morrison, a TWA spokesman, said the dog was found Monday.

"We believe that based on the identity we have that it does match the identification as far as this gentleman's dog," Morrison said.

Koewe, whose hunger strike at Los Angeles International Airport drew national attention to a search for his lost dog, said the dead dog's description matched Loekie's.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
PAUL DAVIS WELL FIELD IMPROVEMENTS
3.2 MILLION GALLON PRESTRESSED CONCRETE GROUND STORAGE RESERVOIR

Sealed proposals addressed to the Honorable Mayor and City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, will be received at the office of the City Secretary, City Hall, Midland, Texas, until Tuesday, February 2, 1988, at 2:00 P.M., for furnishing all necessary materials, machinery, equipment, superintendance and labor for constructing a 3.2 million gallon prestressed concrete ground storage reservoir at the Paul Davis Well Field Pump Station for the City of Midland, Texas.

Immediately following the time for receipt of bids, proposals will be publicly opened and read aloud. Any bid received after closing time will be returned unopened.

The work included in this project includes the construction of a 3.2 million gallon prestressed concrete ground storage reservoir, including connections to existing concrete ground storage reservoir, existing supply line and existing pump station, and other related items of work at the Paul Davis Well Field.

A bid proposal guaranty is to accompany the bid, thereby guaranteeing the good faith of the Bidder and that the Bidder will enter into the written contract. The guaranty is to amount to five percent (5%) of the total bid and must be in the form of cash or certified check, issued by a bank satisfactory to the City of Midland, or a bid bond. If in the form of cash or certified check, it is hereby expressly understood and agreed that the City of Midland is given the right to retain such as liquidation damages if such Bidder withdraws its bid anytime after such bid is opened and before official rejection of such bid, or, if successful is securing the award thereof, such bidder fails to enter into the contract and furnish satisfactory performance bond and payment bond. If a bid bond is submitted, it shall be executed on forms contained in these contract documents by a corporate surety authorized to do business in the State of Texas, acceptable to the City of Midland and accepted according to the latest list of companies holding certificates of authority from the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States of America. Proposals submitted without bid guaranty in the form of cash, certified check or bid bond for 5% of the maxium bid will not be considered.

The successful Bidder will be required to furnish a Performance bond and a Payment Bond each in the amount of the contract, written by a responsible Surety Company authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and satisfactory to the Owner, as required by Article 5160, V.A.T.C.S., as amended by H.B. 344, passed by the 56th Legislature, Regular Session, 1959.

All lump sum and unit prices must be stated in both script and figures. The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive formalities, and to accept the bid which seems most advantageous to the City's interest. In case of ambiguity or lack of clearness in stating the prices in the bids, the Owner reserves the right to consider the most advantageous construction thereof, or to reject the bid.

Attention is called to the provisions of the Acts of the 43rd Legislature of the State of Texas, page 91, Chapter 45, (Article 5159A Civil Statutes 1925) concerning the wage scale and payment of prevailing rates of wages as established by the Owner. Said scale of prevailing minimum rates of wages is set forth in the specifications.

Information for Bidders, proposal forms, and specifications are on file in the office of the Director of Utilities, City Hall, 300 N. Loraine, Midland, Texas, 79701 and in the office of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc., Consulting Engineers, 5214 Thomason Drive, Midland, Texas, 79703, phone (915) 697-1447.

Copies of the plans and specifications may be secured at the office of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc., Consulting Engineers, 5214 Thomason Drive, Midland, Texas 79703, (915) 697-1447, upon receipt of a $50.00 deposit as a guarantee of the safe return of the plans and specifications. The full amount of the deposit will be returned if a bona fide bid is submitted and the Plans and Specifications are returned within ten (10) days after receipt of bids, or in case no bid is submitted, if Plans and Specifications are returned on or before date of receipt of bids; otherwise, the deposit will be forfeited.

Flawn's departure no major roadblock

Peter Flawn, the former University of Texas president who guided the state effort to attract the federal Superconducting Super Collider project, tossed a monkey wrench in the works along the path to acquiring the SSC. He stepped down as chairman of the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission, a post he had held since February, 1987.

But no individual on the commission is indispensable, even Flawn, and his resignation, which comes about six months before the final site is announced, actually should not have an adverse impact on the Texas effort. Much work already has been completed on the Texas bid and the state's strategy obviously is in place. Recently Ellis County was announced as the sole remaining Texas site on the Energy Department's list of best-qualified finalist sites.

Besides, as noted by G. Thane Akins, who directed the Garden City SSC Project before it was cut from the federal list in the last round, the selection process is now controlled by the political machinery and the final selection will be made on that basis along with other considerations.

From all indications, the Texas proposal should have a good chance of being selected as the home of the super collider. But as Flawn admonished the other members of the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission:

"We can't just sit back and think that the thing is going to fall in our lap." He went on to urge the commission to choose a new chairman who can "go all out" at least through July when the Energy Department is to name its preferred site.

Flawn's correct. Texas has come too far in too short a period of time to lose its enthusiasm for acquiring the super collider. This is a scientific project that could propel the Lone Star State to the forefront of scientific research and help to build an industrial base for the future.

Flawn should get credit for leading the Texas effort to this point, but now that he has chosen to step aside because of other commitments the other members of the commission should dedicate themselves to choosing a successor who can give undivided attention to convincing the federal government that Texas should be home to the SSC.

Soviet apology for killing unlikely

WASHINGTON — Major Arthur D. Nicholson has been dead for three years. For three years his family and friends have waited for an apology from the Soviet Union, waited for sanctions against the trigger-happy Soviet sentry who gunned him down, waited for a sheepish confession that the shooting was a tragic mistake.

Jack Anderson

They will have to wait a long time. The smiling Mikhail Gorbachev, a product of born-again Soviet marketing skills, has been personally unapologetic about the unprovoked killing of Nicholson in East Germany. Now, we have new evidence that Gorbachev's men were so unfazed by the heinous tragedy that they engaged in bully-boy actions against the United States and Great Britain after the shooting.

Nicholson was part of a 14-member liaison team stationed in East Germany to observe the Soviets. The Soviets have a team in West Germany doing the same thing. The arrangement is sanctioned by a 1947 agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union. Both sides are supposed to stay out of restricted areas.

The Soviets claim Nicholson and his driver, Sgt. Jessie Schatz, were in a restricted area on March 24, 1985, when the Soviet sentry fired a warning shot and then gunned down Nicholson. Schatz said there was no warning, and the United States claims that the area was not restricted.

Here are some of the untold details of that day:

■ After Nicholson was shot, at 3:45 p.m., Schatz was held by the Soviets in his car until midnight. He was berated by Soviet military officials, who accused him of shooting Nicholson. Two Pentagon sources familiar with the details say that Schatz was physically assaulted by the Soviets.

■ Our Pentagon sources say that an American colonel who arrived on the scene within hours of the incident was not allowed to help Nicholson. American officials do not know how long it took Nicholson to die as he lay on the ground with a single gunshot wound in his stomach.

■ The Soviets wouldn't hand over Nicholson's body until the following day. U.S. Army intelligence officials believe the Soviets took Nicholson to East Berlin for an examination by doctors. It was not until 5:30 p.m. on March 25, more than 24 hours after the shooting, that an American doctor was allowed to examine Nicholson's body. Americans did an autopsy on March 26.

■ In a touching move of solidarity, British liaison team members drove to the site of the shooting in Ludwigslust, East Germany, the day after Nicholson was shot and "squatted" in a silent protest. One Pentagon source said the British "sat there for three days on the spot with the Soviets fuming."

That unpublicized show of support may have put the British team members in mortal danger. Two months later, on June 4, two Soviet trucks in a military convoy rammed a British liaison car carrying three men. The incident was on an East German country road three miles from any restricted area, and the British officers were trying to back their car away from the menacing Soviet trucks. Several Soviet soldiers hurled bricks and shovels at the British, who managed to drive their car on tire rims to the nearest village. The Soviet soldiers tailgated them and then held them at gunpoint for five hours.

It was simple luck that the British weren't killed. A year earlier, a heavy-duty East German army truck rammed a French liaison car, killing one French officer and injuring another. Officers of the three liaison teams call that a thinly disguised homicide.

BUSINESS AS USUAL — Richard Godwin has resigned as the undersecretary of defense for acquisition without making a dent in wasteful Pentagon spending patterns. Godwin had the best of intentions to carry out a Pentagon procurement reform program, but the military services wore him down by stonewalling.

Difference in genes

When you think of it, men and women have far more in common than distinguishes the one sex from the other. They are certainly more like each other than they are like any other creature in this world. They even look a lot alike; in fact, there's more variation within each sex — in height, weight and strength, for instance — than between the two.

Yet that's hardly how anyone perceives things. The first question asked about a new baby is, "Is it a boy or a girl?" And from there, all else seems to follow.

And so, while it shouldn't, it still comes as something of a shock to learn that the sex of a human being — and apparently all other mammals, too — is probably determined by just one gene (out of the thousands on each chromosome) on just one chromosome (out of the 46 in each human cell). Researchers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the University of British Columbia and the University of Helsinki in Finland reported the breakthrough discovery the other day in the journal Cell.

They found that genetic material occupying a tiny two-tenths of 1 percent of one chromosome is all it takes to trigger a chain of biological events that turns an undifferentiated embryo into a male. An embryo without this small fragment of gene material — which the researchers have dubbed TDF (testes determining factor) — develops into a female, even when everything else about its chromosomal makeup suggests otherwise.

In fact, every embryo appears to have all the genetic information needed to become both male and female. The TDF, the researchers believe, operates something like a master switch, turning on and off all the other genes that create sexual differentiation. Understanding how that works should keep scientists busy for decades.

Figuring out how significant the difference between men and women is, or ought to be, will keep everyone else busy for much longer, probably forever. For if TDF makes gender seem to be only a drop in the bucket of human characteristics, it could still be a drop of dye — or of poison; choose your metaphor — so intense that nothing is the same without it.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Before picking president, consider Kemp

WASHINGTON — A recent prediction in this space (with the wish admittedly father to the thought) that Rep. Jack Kemp would upset conventional wisdom and emerge as the Republican nominee has drawn the expected hoots of derision.

William Safire

George Bush, with $17 million raised and his name well known, has it in the bag, they say. Should his role in the arms-for-hostages ransom decision cause widening doubts about the vice president's judgment, then Bob Dole of Kansas will be the one to demolish him in the first test in neighboring Iowa.

Maybe. But time and chance happeneth to us all. In the Des Moines debate the other night, Bush angrily made clear he would never reveal his ruinous advice to the president, thereby ensuring continuing coverage of what he is turning into his cover-up. And Bob Dole was curiously ill at ease with his I-came-up-the-hard-way message, aimed at the preppy Bush background.

Of the du Pont-Haig-Robertson subpack, Pete du Pont was the most impressive. I liked his challenge to the Bush-Dole sponsorship of subsidized grain sales to the Soviet Union (in the Bush euphemism, "our export-enhancement program"), and his gutsy assertion that the president was wrong in assuming that Moscow has changed its goal of world domination.

Kemp could not so easily pop the Prez because he is seeking to run as the only legitimate heir to the "Reagan Revolution." That amalgamation of Old Right, New Right, Religious Right and Wrong Right that found movementhood under Ronald Reagan has actually been leaderless for over a year, as the Irangate-wounded Reagan has lurched toward detente and shied from budget cuts. Kemp is finding it hard to disagree with late-Reaganism while being careful not to derogate the popular founder of the feast.

But that's his problem, not mine. Right-wingers like me (I'm a libertarian conservative nationalist hawk, but "right-winger" will do) have to choose one of the three electable Republican candidates (Bush, Dole, Kemp). Who best represents our views?

On economics, the Bush-Dole policy is traditionalist, pragmatist; it will defend the lower tax rates at first, then cave in to cut the deficit without slowing spending by raising sin taxes, then rates. The Kemp supply-side commitment to cut taxes to stimulate growth is sincere; he's done it before with Kemp-Roth; he'd do it again as president. Our deficit problem today has not come from the revenue side, which has risen, but from spending, which has risen faster.

On foreign economic policy, Dole says he doesn't know much about the dollar; Bush says he's against pegging it, but I think he would go with the advice of Treasury Secretary Baker, who is now feeling his way toward a modification of Jack Kemp's plan to attach currency prices to a basket of commodities. The goal is lower long-term interest rates, and the one who understands this best is Kemp.

On compassion, everybody's for it. Dole has personally suffered most. In terms of spending on social welfare, "reordering" budget priorities, there is no telling which candidate would spend most. Kemp would most likely resist defense cuts, but would back-door spend by giving incentives on rebuilding inner cities.

On social issues — abortion, school prayer, gun control — all three candidates toe the Religious Right line, but I think Kemp goes too far to butter up that constituency. Fortunately, a president cannot do much more than exhort in most of these matters.

On foreign policy we see the biggest difference. The Bush-Dole view is Late Reaganist, detente-driven, inclined to accommodate. The Bush arms-for-hostages advice at the time of his public statements to the contrary is disturbing. Of the three, Kemp would be likeliest to preserve "Star Wars" testing, and to put Jeane Kirkpatrick at the head of State. Regarding the Middle East, Bush now says his main "reservation" about sending arms to Iran was doing it through the Israelis. Dole is better on strengthening Israel. Kemp best.

On character. George Bush is nobody's wimp, and Bob Dole has in recent years triumphed over his bitterness, but Jack Kemp strikes me as the most trustworthy in a crisis. He is a man to go to the well with, a man comfortable in his own skin.

The Conservative Movement has already moved on; the GOP's nominee will have to grope for a new grouping, accepting certain losses while reaching for new gains. Who would be best at that? It's not for me to burden anybody with an endorsement, now or later, but before we swallow the conventional scenario — let's consider Kemp.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 13, the 13th day of 1988. There are 353 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Jan. 13, 1982, an Air Florida 737 taking off in a snowstorm crashed into Washington 14th Street Bridge and fell into the Potomac River, killing 78 people.

On this date:

In 1733, James Oglethorpe and some 130 English colonists arrived at Charleston, S.C., planning to settle in present-day Georgia.

In 1864, composer Stephen Foster died in a New York City hospital.

In 1898, Emile Zola's famous defense of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, "J'accuse," was published in Paris.

In 1906, the first advertisement for a radio — a Telimco selling for $7.50 — appeared in Scientific American magazine.

In 1941, novelist James Joyce died in Zurich, Switzerland.

In 1962, television comedian Ernie Kovacs died in a car crash in west Los Angeles.

In 1966, Robert C. Weaver became the first black Cabinet member when he was appointed Secretary of Housing and Urban Development by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Ten years ago: Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, a Democrat who had been in the forefront of American politics for more than three decades, died at his home in Waverly, Minn., at age 66.

Five years ago: U.S. arms control chief Eugene V. Rostow bid an emotional farewell to his embattled disarmament agency, one day after submitting his resignation to President Reagan amid opposition to him from conservative Republican senators.

One year ago: West German police arrested Mohammed Ali Hamadi, a suspect in the 1985 hijacking of a TWA jetliner. Gunmen in Lebanon, abducted French reporter Roger Auque. He was released along with another hostage, Jean-Louis Normandin, the following November.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Robert Stack is 69. Hollywood columnist Army Archerd is 69. Actress-singer-dancer Gwen Verdon is 63. Actress Frances Sternhagen is 58. Actor-director Charles Nelson Reilly is 57.

Thought for Today: "Man is a history-making creature who can neither repeat his past nor leave it behind." — W.H. Auden, British poet (1907-1973).

WHOM TO WRITE

Illusion of administration apparent in speech

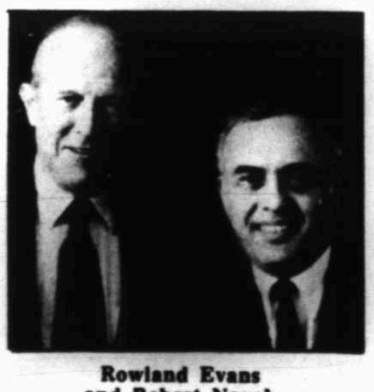

WASHINGTON — The illusion that covers the Reagan Administration as it begins its last year is typified by the crisply conservative early draft of the President's State of the Union message.

The rhetoric on both foreign and domestic issues is so reminiscent of the Administration's early militant spirit that President Reagan's speechwriters who hammered it out wonder whether it can be preserved. It clearly runs counter to the conciliatory and pragmatic White House of the past 10 months under Chief-of-Staff Howard Baker.

Present from the beginning but growing wider during the second term, the gap between rhetoric and reality has created the Reagan illusion. The contrast from irreversible 1987 year-end retreats are supposed to be wiped away by brave words being crafted for Ronald Reagan to begin 1988.

The craftsmen are members of the President's speechwriting team, which has become a right-wing enclave in a centrist White House. The draft by chief speechwriter Tony Dolan invokes the Reagan Revolution. Besides pressing for fiscal integrity, the State of the Union draft stresses family values and basic education.

The draft reaffirms the Reagan Doctrine — helping anti-Communist fighters in Nicaragua, Angola and Afghanistan. That puts a conservative spin on emerging Detente II by claiming this is the first administration aiming to eliminate both nuclear arms and totalitarianism.

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

Yet Friday morning's senior staff meeting discussed the calculated risk of stopping aid to the Afghan fighters in return for promised Soviet troop withdrawal. Indeed, the impending battle over words and phrases in the State of the Union seems irrelevant in view of how the President's seventh year ended.

Not only did Reagan agree to multi-year tax increases but Budget Director James Miller was slapped down when he suggested Gramm-Rudman budget sequestration was preferable to a grab-bag spending bill. If he would not agree to Gramm-Rudman, the President would not shut down the government and veto the catchall measure.

To insiders, the clearer signal of diminished presidential will was Reagan's signature on Dec. 15 of last year of the independent counsel bill authorizing special prosecutions. It was called unconstitutional and a veto recommended by three of the diminishing band of Reaganites who still wear Adam Smith neckties: Atty. Gen. Edwin Meese, presidential aide Ken Cribb and Miller.

No discussion of the bill took place in formal White House sessions. It was widely assumed there that, as a matter of course, it would be vetoed. The President's signature was a shocker, not mitigated by his assertion that the bill probably is unconstitutional.

Nowhere was the gap between rhetoric and reality clearer. The bill was signed as a recognition of Realpolitik. A veto would get bad reviews, reminding everyone that an independent counsel investigating the Wedtech scandal might yet indict Meese; the veto likely would be overridden anyway. Ideological imperatives are wiped away in the present White House climate, with no complaint from the president.

The speech draft's emphasis on a balanced budget amendment and the line-item veto ring hollow in this environment. The most dramatic argument for the line-item veto was last month's catchall spending bill, featuring such outrages as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's act of political vengeance that threatens to close the New York Post.

Here was a classic argument for giving presidents the power to veto individual items in such bills and thereby eliminate this legislative chicanery. But aside from aide Gary Bauer (who compared Kennedy's effort to silence publisher Rupert Murdoch with what happens behind the Iron Curtain), nothing was said at the White House. No interest was shown there in using the incident as an argument for the line-item veto.

In the excitement of renewal beginning the new year, the depression of last autumn has left the White House. The summit's excitement supplanted Iran-Contra melancholy. Trudging to the White House through last Friday's snowstorm, presidential aides were cheered when they learned of another drop in the unemployment rate (before that afternoon's market plunge). The promise of vigorous presidential rhetoric stirs the mood.

But outside the White House, the illusion is wearing thin. One former Reagan appointee told us "the people have gotten sick of Republicans, of seeing the president at Walter Annenberg's on New Year's Eve." In the eighth year of an eventful and even historic administration, it will take more than a peppy State of the Union to change that.

In West Texas, fair and cold tonight. Fair Thursday. Warmer east of mountains Thursday. Lows tonight upper teens Panhandle to near 30 Concho Valley to mid 30s Big Bend. Highs Thursday lower 50s north to mid 50s south except upper 60s along the river in the Big Bend.

In North Texas, fair and cold tonight. Increasing cloudiness and a little warmer Thursday. Lows 24 north and east to 33 southwest. Highs Thursday 47 to 56.

In South Texas, partly cloudy tonight and Thursday except mostly cloudy extreme south. Lows tonight mid 20s Hill Country to low 40s south. Highs Thursday near 50 Hill Country to mid 50s elsewhere.

Fair skies anticipated

From Staff and Wire Reports

Tonight skies are expected to be fair with the low in the middle 20s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport. Winds should blow from the southeast at five to 10 mph.

Thursday's forecast is calling for more fair skies with the high in the middle 50s. South to southwest winds will blow at five to 15 mph.

Tuesday's high of 67 was 10 degrees cooler than the record high of 77 set for that date in 1957. Today's low of 14 was seven degrees warmer than the record low of seven set for this date in 1964.

STATE

The cold front that swept across Texas Tuesday had moved offshore into the Gulf of Mexico early this morning, leaving cool temperatures and generally clear skies as high pressure filled in behind it.

But Gulf moisture flowing across the cold front allowed low level clouds to form over the coastal plains and in the lower Rio Grande Valley, the National Weather Service said. Patches of light rain and drizzle also formed and sprinkled portions of the upper coast and lower Valley.

Temperatures were mainly in the 20s and 30s in North and West Texas before dawn, while readings in the 40s and 50s were common in the south. The 4 a.m. extremes were 18 degrees at Amarillo and 59 at Brownsville.

Other pre-dawn temperatures around the state included 26 at Fort Worth, 21 at Wichita Falls and Abilene, 22 at Lubbock, 23 at Midland, 35 at El Paso and Austin, 26 at San Angelo, 54 at Corpus Christi, 42 at San Antonio, 47 at Houston and 30 at Waco.

NATION

A cold front moved east across the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley today, bringing the return to subzero temperatures to the northern Plains and upper Mississippi Valley.

Snow was scattered across northern and western Lower Michigan and in Upper Michigan, where a winter storm warning was in effect overnight and more than a foot of snow was expected along the Lake Superior shores by this morning.

Gusty winds of 30 to 40 mph have been reported across parts of Lower Michigan, plunging the temperature at Sault Ste. Marie 30 degrees in six hours and creating a wind chill of minus 33 degrees.

Dangerous wind chills also were occurring across much of the upper half of the Mississippi Valley.

Trustees told MISD needs new classrooms

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

Coupling projected student population gains with the school district's need to comply with state-mandated lower class size ratios means there will be a need for an additional 45 classrooms by 1992, trustees learned Tuesday.

Independent consultant James Mailey gave trustees Tuesday the results of his enrollment projection studies which showed the need for the 45 new third and fourth grade classrooms.

In passing House Bill 72 in 1985, the Texas Education Agency mandated that — beginning in the 1988 school year — a district may not enroll more than 22 students in a third or fourth grade class.

Midland Independent School District officials have already met TEA requirements calling for an identical situation by the 1985 school year for kindergarten, first and second grade classroom sizes, said Director of Secondary Education Maridell Fryar.

However, Mrs. Fryar said the district has applied for a waiver from the TEA to postpone compliance with the third and fourth grade rule because it is unclear at this time how they plan to go about expansion procedures.

Waivers are granted when a district lacks the proper facilities because it is unable to get them built or doesn't have the time to get them built, Mrs. Fryar said.

In the case of MISD there is not enough time to get them built, she said.

"We will need a bond issue and given it passes then we would have to go into the architectural planning stages, then the bidding process and then the construction," Mrs. Fryar explained.

If a bond election to construct additional schools didn't pass, the director said she didn't know what the district would do.

Kindergarteners, first and second graders are housed in temporary buildings currently to comply with the rule, she said.

However, because of aesthetic and energy efficiency reasonings, Mrs. Fryar said the district wants to build permanent structures to comply with the third and fourth grade mandates.

Former secretary wins $150,000 in discrimination suit

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — City council members Tuesday averted a court battle by agreeing to an out-of-court $150,000 settlement in an age discrimination lawsuit filed by former City Secretary Tena Walker.

The resolution approved by council members calls for the City of Odessa to pay Ms. Walker $75,000 with the remaining $75,000 to be paid by the Texas Municipal League. The action came following a closed door session late Tuesday morning.

City Attorney Joel Roberts told council members TML agreed to participate in the settlement only if the lawsuit was settled before it went to court. TML advised that it would not accept any liability if the city decided to pursue litigation in court, which would mean the city would be solely responsible for paying any amount that might be awarded as the result of a court trial, Roberts said.

In her federal court lawsuit, Ms. Walker sought reinstatement to her job, payment of at least $67,000 in back wages and benefits, plus unspecified damages.

The former city secretary contended she was forced to resign from her job May 14, 1985 because of her age. She was 58 at the time of her resignation and had been a city employee nearly 18 years and city secretary for 10 years.

The lawsuit was initially scheduled to be heard in federal court in Midland Monday but was not called on U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton's court docket apparently because of ongoing efforts to settle the case out-of-court.

The resolution approved by council members calls for the City of Odessa to pay (Tena) Walker $75,000 with the remaining $75,000 to be paid by the Texas Municipal League.

In addition to alleging she was the victim of age discrimination, Ms. Walker contended she was forced to resign because she "exercised her constitutional right of free speech" and criticized some of the city's policies, publicly and in closed sessions.

Former Odessa Mayor John Minor criticized the council action that resulted in Ms. Walker's resignation, contending council members acted illegally in closed session by voting to eliminate the city secretary department and then telling the city secretary she had the option of resigning or having her department disbanded.

Following her resignation Ms. Walker filed a complaint with the Texas Employment Commission, which forwarded it to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The federal agency investigated the complaint and, in October 1986, ruled the complaint had merit. However, the EEOC stepped out of the case when Ms. Walker filed her lawsuit against the City of Odessa in federal court in Abilene. The case was transfered to Midland on a change of venue motion filed by attorneys representing the city.

Residents can't afford costs of paving

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

Several Midland residents hoping to improve the quality of their neighborhood with a paved street discovered at Tuesday's City Council meeting that the city doesn't always foot the total bill for road improvements.

Four homeowners, who would like to see a block of Truman Street paved from Kessler Avenue south to Mariana Avenue, appeared before the council Tuesday hoping to eliminate the dust and mud holes their dirt street creates, they said.

The group said they wanted to participate in an assessment paving program — where the city would pay a portion of road construction costs and the homeowners a part — but they couldn't afford their share.

Under the project, the four homeowners in the one-block area of Truman would each pay $2,365 and the city would pay the remaining $12,446 needed to lay asphalt and curbs and gutters, said Traffic Engineer Harvey Hanson.

The City Council deferred action on the Truman assessment paving project and proposed paving for another block on Ridglea Drive until the next council meeting Jan. 26.

Annual livestock show this weekend

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County youngsters who enjoy a penchant for farm animals this week are readying their calves, lambs, pigs, chickens, rabbits and goats for the 39th annual Midland County Livestock Show this Saturday, Sunday and Monday in the Midland County Exhibit Building.

Livestock will be judged Saturday and Sunday.

And the sale of premium steers, lambs, swine, chickens and rabbits will be held in the 7 p.m. Monday auction in the Midland County Exhibit Building.

"We'll have about the same number of buyers," noted Charlie Green, president of the Midland County Livestock Association, which sponsors the annual show for 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America (FFA) youngsters. "The amount may vary."

Green said that indicators suggest that some buyers from past years are dropping out of the 1988 sale and others intend to cut back on their auction bids. But, he said, "We usually pick up some new ones," including grandparents and relatives who often pick up the slack.

The "magic number" of premium show animals in the auction traditionally has been 117, noted Green.

Curt Wilcott/Reporter-Telegram

Jason Gray, 16, grooms his polled Hereford calf Spot in preparing for the Midland County Livestock Association show and auction this weekend and Monday night in the Midland County Exhibit Building.

Last year's auction brought in about $69,000 for the 4-H Club and FFA boys and girls. But the record-setting year was 1985, final sales totaled $105,000 under the leverage of Snyder auctioneer Tommy Marricle.

"The year we broke the record was kind of a surprise," said Green, who noted that the bidding usually reflects the state of the economy.

In 1985, the grand champion calf was auctioned off for $5.25 a pound.

Last year, the grand champion steer, a 1,210-pound Brahman-cross steer exhibited by Scott Driver, brought $2.65 a pound. In 1986, the price got up to $4.80 a pound. And 10 years ago, in 1978, the show's top steer was sold for $1.49 a pound.

The 1987 grand champion swine, a Hampshire exhibited by Jennifer Dryden, was sold for $3.25 a pound.

Top prices on champion lambs were $6.50 a pound for Scott Driver's fine-wool lamb, $6.25 for Julie Driver's crossbred lamb, and $5 for Eric Simpson's medium-wool lamb.

The 7 p.m. Monday auction will be preceded by a 5 p.m. barbecue supper in honor of the buyers and by the 6:30 p.m. presentation of livestock show awards.

Show judges will include Rex Stultz, who will judge lambs; Gary Harkey, steers; Seth Ralston, swine, and Bob Berry, small animals. Stultz of Paint Rock is the Concho County agricultural agent. Harkey is on the staff at Texas A&M University. Ralston of Dimmitt is the Castro County agricultural agent. Berry of Lubbock is a retired Texas Agricultural Extension Service specialist.

Defendant testifies family friend tried to sexually assault her

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

A 70-year-old woman testified Tuesday she prayed over a 31-year-old father of three who was "like a grandson" to her, after the man allegedly tried to sexually assault her last August.

The testimony came in the first day of the trial of Calvin Barron of Midland, who is charged with burglary of a residence with the intent to commit sexual assault.

Closing arguments and jury deliberations are expected to begin late today following the trial before 142nd State District Judge Pat Baskin.

The woman, who appeared calm before the six-man, six-woman jury, testified that at first she could not believe it was the defendant who attacked her.

Last Aug. 16, after she went to bed at her southside residence, a man appeared at the door, and she said she recognized the defendant as a long-time family friend, she testified.

"Someone said 'Do you remember me,' and I said 'Calvin'? He said 'yes', and I told him I had to get a dress on," she told the jury. She went to the bedroom to dress, and when she turned around, the defendant was standing there.

"He grabbed my shoulders, pushed me toward the bed," she said. "I said, 'You're not Calvin, Calvin wouldn't do this to me'. I started screaming."

The defendant held a knife, threatened her, and "when he let me up, my dress was over my head...he had pulled it up."

After the attack, the woman told jurors she kissed the defendant on the cheek, then "I put my hands on his head and I prayed for him," she said.

Later, the defendant, a lifelong Midland resident who is currently on parole for a burglary conviction, told the jury that he had not attacked the woman, who he said he had known as a family friend "ever since I can remember."

Defense attorney Tom Morgan questioned him about life at the Texas Department of Corrections, and he said "in prison, there is a code of honor," he said. "If you abuse children, or elderly people, you will probably wind up dead."

50 Plus Aerobics, typing among MC short courses

From Staff Reports

The Midland College Department of Continuing Education will offer 14 short courses beginning the week of Jan. 18. Courses are as follows:

50 Plus Aerobics will be taught by Betty Murrah on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 9-10 a.m. Jan. 18 through April 29. The purpose of this course is to present a low impact aerobic exercise program for the sedentary person over 50. This will be supplemented with basic endurance and flexibility exercises, to promote your total well-being. Course fee is $35.

Calculating Machines will be taught in two sections as follows: Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 11-11:50 p.m., Jan. 18 through May 13 or on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7-8:20 p.m., Jan. 19 through May 12. This course provides technique familiarization in the operation of electronic calculating machines. The student will gain skill in dealing with computations, calculations, speed drills, percentages, discounts, net values, chain discounts and business forms. Text available at Midland College Bookstore. Course fee is $66.

Keyboarding will be taught Monday through Thursday from 8:30-9:50 p.m., Jan. 18 through Feb. 18. The student will learn the alphabetic keyboard, figure and symbol keys for use in typing, word processing, computer science, data processsing, accounting or any occupation that uses a keyboard to input information. Text available at the MC Bookstore. Course fee is $61.

Beginning Typing will be taught in six different sections as follows: Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 8-8:50 a.m., Jan. 18 through May 13; Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9-9:50 a.m., Jan. 18 through May 13; Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 10-10:50 a.m., Jan. 18 through May 13; Mondays and Wednesdays from 5:30-6:50 p.m., Jan. 18 through May 11; Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5:30-6:50 p.m., Jan. 19 through May 12; and Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8:30-9:50 p.m., Jan. 19 through May 12. This course is designed to teach the keyboard, machine parts, basic letter forms, copy placement, and tabulation. Students are given timed drills during class meetings to encourage speed and build accuracy. Textbooks and typing paper are needed at the first class meeting and are available at the MC Bookstore. Enrollment is limited to five students per section. Course fee is $66.

Intermediate Typing will be taught in two different sections as follows: Tuesdays and Thursdays from 11 a.m.-12:20 p.m., Jan. 19 through May 12; or Mondays and Wednesdays from 7-8:20 p.m., Jan. 18 through May 11. The student will further develop skills and techniques acquired in beginning typewriting. This course is designed to give students actual training on a word processor. The student will keyboard, edit, store, retrieve, and print information. Prerequisite is completion of Beginning Typing or equivalent. Text available at MC Bookstore. Enrollment is limited to 10 students per section. Course fee is $71.

The Midland College Learning Center, OT 132, will prepare students to take the GED examination. Study is individualized and self paced; you may begin at any time. Students will work with a teacher to develop a plan of study in the five tested subject areas — writing skills, reading skills, social studies, science, and mathematics.

GED Preparation open lab hours are as follows: Mondays and Wednesdays from 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Jan. 18 through June 29 or on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., Jan. 19 through June 30. Instruction is offered free of charge.

Basic Drawing will be taught by Judy Morrison-Griffin on Tuesdays from 6:30-9 p.m., Jan. 19 through Feb. 9. Basic drawing is designed for the beginner. Perspective and how to draw what you see is stressed through demonstration. Materials used include pencil, charcoal, pen and ink, and conte. Materials are explained and supplied for the first night. Course fee is $19.

Small Business Management will be taught on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8-9:20 a.m., Jan. 19 through May 12. The student will become familiar with an in-depth overview emphasizing those aspects of management that are uniquely important to small business firms. The student will develop an understanding of the environments within which small concerns function. The student will explore a complete coverage of business functions and business operations with a proper balance between business functions and managerial functions; and emphasis is given to the importance of strategic planning in the small firm and the changing environment with emphasis on methods of formulating strategy. Also, the student will become familiar with environmentalism, consumerism and other issues of social responsibility. Text available at MC Bookstore. Course fee is $58.

Perot to make donation to medical center

DALLAS (AP) — Billionaire H. Ross Perot will pledge a multimillion-dollar donation for research at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center here, officials said.

The medical center planned to conduct a briefing "of major importance to the center's education of medical scientists" at 2 p.m. Thursday, said officials.

Charles C. Sprague, the center's president emeritus, said talks with Perot had developed in the last six months or so.

The donation, which could be as large as $20 million in one estimate, was expected to help attract a select number of out-of-state and foreign medical-research students to the prestigious Medical Scientist Training Program.

Officials say the six-year program is for students getting both medical and doctoral degrees.

"The idea is that they will be fully trained as medical doctors but will also then have the Ph.D., which is a research degree," said Kathy Costello, vice president for public affairs at the medical center.

"For the people who are what we like to think of as the highest caliber of medical scientist, the Ph.D. is additional grounding in science," she said.

The MacArthur Foundation last month gave the college 30 acres of land.

Astronomers think Pluto, its moon double planet in single atmosphere

By JOHN NOBLE WILFORD
New York Times News Service

AUSTIN — Observations of Pluto and its moon Charon, which can now be seen eclipsing each other every few days, are providing astronomers evidence that the two may be a double planet apparently enveloped in a single atmosphere.

If confirmed by more telescopic studies, such a bizarre phenomenon would further set the distant Pluto apart as not only the smallest planet but also the most enigmatic.

New and more precise measurements of the diameter, mass and density of Pluto and Charon were reported here Tuesday at a meeting of the American Astronomical Society. Pluto's diameter is about 1,400 miles, smaller than the Earth's Moon, which is 2,160 miles wide. Charon's diameter is 745 miles.

The large size of Charon relative to Pluto, and the closeness of its orbit — only some 12,000 miles away from Pluto — had suggested to astronomers that the two were more like a double planet than the usual planet and satellite.

An analysis of these and other recent findings led a team of astronomers to predict that molecules from Pluto's tenuous methane atmosphere extend out to Charon, reaching it at supersonic velocities. Although most of the molecules then escape into space, the astronomers said, some form a gaseous cloud of methane surrounding the entire Pluto-Charon system.

The hypothesis was developed by Laurence H. Trafton of the University of Texas at Austin, S. Alan Stern of the University of Colorado at Boulder and Arthur L. Whipple of the U.S. Naval Observatory in Washington.

In reporting their analysis, the scientists said, "These results are considered to be significant because the Pluto-Charon system appears to be the only example in the solar system of a double planet with an atmosphere interacting with both bodies."

Other planets have atmospheres, as do a few of the larger satellites, notably Saturn's Titan. But these other moons are too far to share atmospheres or to know any other influences, except the gravity of their neighboring planet and sometimes its magnetic fields.

Trafton, a professor of astronomy, said recent telescopic observations established that Pluto's atmosphere was expanding out from the planet, probably as far as Charon. Pluto's surface is covered mostly with methane ice and frost. Sunlight on the ice causes some of the methane to vaporize, producing an atmosphere about one-one millionth the density of Earth's.

Because Pluto is nearing its closest approach to the sun, about 2.8 billion miles away, the planet's atmosphere is presumably the densest it ever gets in its 248-year circuit of the sun. When Pluto is farther from the sun, astronomers said, nearly all of its atmosphere probably returns to an icy state on the planet's surface.

The astronomers are attempting to determine the shape and density of the atmospheric cloud they predict to be enveloping the Pluto-Charon system. They said it would probably take the Hubble Space Telescope, scheduled to be launched next year from a space shuttle, to fill in the picture of conditions on Pluto.

Pluto is coming into clearer focus for astronomers because of a viewing opportunity that occurs every 124 years. Ordinarily, at such distances, Pluto and Charon appear in telescopes merged as one fuzzy blob, making it next to impossible to distinguish the size and properties.

But soon after Charon was discovered in 1978, astronomers determined that, beginning in 1987 and lasting until 1989, the planet and its moon would be in a rare alignment with the Earth. It would then be possible for astronomers to watch Charon pass directly in front of and behind Pluto.

These eclipses, occurring every 3.2 days, have enabled astronomers to make more precise measurements of the sizes of the two bodies and determine their individual surface features and light reflectivity.

PAVING

Whether the Truman Street residents receive paving will depend on their willingness to pay the city's assessment.

District 4 council member Robert Rendall told the group that the city is unable to fund the total paving costs on side streets.

"There are a lot of side streets in the city not paved. If we agree to pave yours, we'd have to pave all the side streets, which the city can't afford," Rendall said.

Planning and Development Director Richard Hennessy explained that many older city streets are unpaved because years ago developers were not required to asphalt streets.

Shirley Harmon-Lay, 2701 Kessler Ave., said the group needs paving to eliminate almost constant dust and mud holes on Truman.

Ms. Harmon-Lay asked the council why federal community development funds were not allocated to pay for the street's paving.

The homeowners' council representative, Kelly Fish of District 3, explained that the city tends to funnel Community Development Block Grants to high traffic areas.

"I can't see all the taxpayers paying 100 percent of a side street," Fish said.

In a separate assessment paving project considered on Ridglea running one block south of Douglas Avenue, Midland County Commissioner Win Brown told the council Tuesday that the county could shave $5,387 off the projected $13,466 construction cost estimated by South Texas Construction Co.

If the city can withdraw from its contract with South Texas, several Ridglea area residents said at Tuesday's meeting that they would rather have the county pave their street at the reduced cost.

If the county paves Ridglea, the three property owners along the one-block area together would pay the county $2,617 and the city would credit the county $5,462 through a joint operating agreement the two governmental entities have, Brown said.

The county would pave this section of Ridglea because it is adjacent to the county's Fairview Cemetery, Brown said.

However, engineer Hanson warned the council that the costs of maintaining Ridglea would be higher if the county paved the street.

In other action Tuesday the council

— scheduled a public hearing on proposed changes for the traffic light at I Street and Wadley Avenue for 10:30 a.m. Jan. 26 in City Council Chambers.

— approved on first reading reducing the St. Ann's school zone on Illinois Street between M and N streets from all day to 7:30 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

— approved an ordinance on second reading forbidding open wells within the city.

— approved the Midland Emergency Communications District's 1988 budget of about $92,000 to set up an emergency 911 system.

Police search for robbery supsect

From Staff Reports

Midland police are looking for a man they say robbed a local convenience store Tuesday night.

According to reports, a man walked into the Friends' Convenience Store, 2110 W. Front St., just before 9 p.m., and asked the 22-year-old clerk for change. The man then walked to a pay phone, walked back, and told the clerk to put all of the money in a bag.

When the clerk looked up, the man was holding a switchblade knife with a six-inch blade, police said.

The man then grabbed the bag and ran out of the store. The clerk was uninjured in the incident, police said.

The robber was described as a Hispanic man, in his late 20s or early 30s, about 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing 130 pounds with short black hair and brown eyes. He had long sideburns, and was wearing a blue flannel long sleeve shirt and faded blue jeans.

STOCK

Judging of lambs, steers and swine will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday. Judging of small animals will be at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Midland County Agricultural Agents Earnest Kiker and Shane Lowrie foresee a good, solid show this year in which about 100 FFA and 4-H Club youths will exhibit more than 300 animals.

"What we are trying to do is develop quality youth," said Kiker. "And the livestock is a tool or an instrument to do this. It teaches youth livestock production. It teaches them showmanship. It teaches them leadership."

"We are looking forward to a good show," Lowrie said. "We have got some good animals. But primarily, we have got some good kids. Instead of chasing after blue-ribbon calves, we are trying to concentrate on blue-ribbon kids."

TRIAL

Prosecutor Randall Fluke objected "strenuously" to the question, which he said was meant to "inflame" the jury, but Baskin overruled.

On the day of the incident, after he organized and supervised a church-run BMX bicycle race at Ulmer Park, the defendant said he went to a cousin's house, then a friend's house.

Speaking in quiet, even tones, Barron, a sheet metal mechanic, said he had "no reason" to attack the woman, and he told jurors that he was "shocked" he was even arrested and charged in the case.

Under cross-examination from Fluke, the defendant said he had not seen the victim since Oct. 1986. He also told the prosecutor he did not know why the victim would lie about the identity of her attacker.

If Barron is convicted of the first-degree felony, he will be sentenced by Baskin. If found guilty, he faces a penalty of five to 99 years in state prison.

Retired pilot recalls flying for Johnson

By EDDIE VELA

DUNCANVILLE, Texas (AP) — Jay Davis knows things about U.S. presidents and vice presidents one could only learn from years as their personal aerial chauffeur in the Air Force VIP squadron.

As the tall, lean, 64-year-old former pilot reclined in the study of his home in the Dallas suburb of Duncanville, memories and anecdotes of former presidents and vice presidents sprang from pictures, models and a piston from an engine that blew in flight.

Davis, a retired lieutenant colonel, recalls a particularly fussy passenger: Lyndon Baines Johnson.

"Working for him is probably the most gut-wrenching thing anyone ever did," Davis said of his 1955-62 duty in the VIP squadron. "Johnson's rule was the rule of whim."

For example, Johnson, as president, ordered Air Force One into the air from Andrews Air Force Base and headed west on an unscheduled global circumnavigation. Davis' friends, pilot Jim Cross and navigator Charlie Johnson, manned the craft on the December 1967 trip, he said.

"He went around the world. He went to Tokyo," Davis recalled. "He dropped in and said, 'Hello' to the pope completely and utterly unprogrammed and unplanned. This is the guy who is president, where everything is planned.

"The entire time, he had an extra navigator on board. One would navigate and the other would compute the possibilities as they went because they never did know where they were going to go next. None of (the crew) got any sleep for more than 48 hours.

"At the time, people read it in the newspaper, I don't know what they thought about it. But I know what the crew thought about it. They thought, 'Where in the hell are we going?'

Davis flew with Johnson most when he was vice president from 1961-63, he said. Until Johnson's vice presidency, only the president had a specially selected crew and aircraft, the Air Force One. Others flew with whichever crew and aircraft of the VIP squadron was on duty, Davis said. Air Force Two was added to handle Johnson's frequent flying demands, he said.

"He was very intimidating at all times," Davis said. "But when he got to vice president he was even more intimidating because he didn't have any job."

But one man whom Johnson failed to cow was airman Paul Glenn, then assigned to Davis' craft as a steward. The confrontation between Johnson and Glenn on one flight created a life-long friendship, Davis said.

Glenn went back to a dressing area where Johnson was changing his trousers, Davis recalled. Johnson dropped the worn pair of pants on the floor and put on the fresh ones.

"Well, the kid (Glenn) reaches down there and gets the old pants and grabs them by the pants leg and shakes them out so he can put them on a hangar, and these coins and stuff fall out of the pockets.

"Mr. Johnson said, 'Well, that's about the stupidest thing I ever saw in my life.' And (Glenn) said, 'Mr. Johnson, if I'm going to be flying with you, you're going to have to treat me like a human being.'

"And then Mr. Johnson did his classic 'you're hired' thing. He said, 'You're my boy.' When he said, 'You're my boy,' it means you're hired. He stayed with him until he died. (Glenn) was the only one who could go back and talk to him and get anything out of him."

The 125 men of the VIP squadron also marvelled that Johnson seemed immune to bad press coverage, Davis said. Often, the Texas native would insist on being flown to his Austin ranch airstrip, a paved runway lacking lights or instrument landing equipment. Johnson complained bitterly to Chief of Staff Curtis LeMay when a VIP squadron pilot refused to land the craft at his ranch in the dark during bad weather. LeMay backed the pilot, Davis said.

Then there was the time Davis and his crew were awakened to search their craft for a Johnson aide's makeup kit, which, if found, was to be flown to New York from Washington.

BEE SMART

The Reporter-Telegram will sponsor the 1988 Regional Spelling Bee March 26 at Midland College.

School spelling champions from Midland, Martin, Glasscock and Upton counties will compete for the top prize of an all-expenses-paid trip to the National Spelling Bee in Washington, D.C.

This daily column on words, their spellings, meanings and origins will be published through March 25. These words are typical of those used in bees but may not necessarily be used in competition.

mi'gran'

migraine — (noun) Don't get a migraine studying for the spelling bee. A "migraine" is a condition marked by recurrent severe headaches, usually restricted to one side of the head, and often accompanied by nausea. The word "migraine" originated in France and was based on the ancient Greek word "hemikrania," which meant "half of the skull."

Verification process begins on candidates' petitions

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican presidential candidates whose petitions do not include 5,000 signatures confirmed by the party will be left on the ballot, but treated as if dead or withdrawn from the race, officials say.

The confirmation process began Tuesday night after recent published reports of phony signatures on ballots submitted by Republican presidential candidates Sen. Robert Dole, Pete du Pont, Jack Kemp and Alexander Haig.

Meanwhile, published reports today said a partner in Houston-based Southern Political Consultants apparently collected questionable signatures for du Pont and a Dole campaign official in Texas had ties to another company involved in collecting the signatures.

GOP Chairman George Strake said a statistical spot check would be made on petitions submitted by candidates Vice President George Bush and Pat Robertson, although there have been no allegations of forgery on their petitions.

"It is my sincere hope that our telephone verification will indeed verify all six candidates are qualified to be on the ballot and earn delegates in Texas," Strake said.

But if the party cannot verify 5,000 signatures each for Dole, du Pont, Kemp and Haig, they will not be eligible to earn Texas delegates to the Republican National Convention. The delegates will be allocated after the March 8 Texas primary.

The deadline for removing candidates for the ballot has passed, but state party rules for candidates who die or withdraw after the filing deadline say any votes for them go toward uncommitted delegates.

Strake said the goal is to know by Feb. 1 if any of the candidates are not qualified.

The verification process began Tuesday with calls to people whose signatures were on Robertson petitions, said to GOP spokeswoman Karen Parfitt Hughes.

"We didn't create the problem, but we have to fix it," said John Weaver, the GOP's Texas director, adding the effort will cost $20,000.

The confirmation process was initiated in response to newspaper reports that petitions for Dole and Haig carried faked signatures. The probe widened when a Houston Chronicle reporter found the signature of her deceased father on former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont's Texas petitions.

The Dallas Morning News reported in a copyright story today that four people whose names appear on the du Pont petition denied signing the document, which lists Rocky Mountain, a partner in Southern Political Consulting, as the signature collector.

Southern Political Consulting has acknowledged hiring temporary workers to collect signatures for the campaigns of Dole and Haig. Company president Kevin Burnette has denied any wrongdoing by the company, blaming the problems on "sloppy work" by the temporary workers.

Mountain said Tuesday he did collect some signatures, but he was unaware of any forgeries.

"All I can say is God knows how many thousands of petitions have been in our office over a month-long period," he said. "I don't know how the signatures got there."

Du Pont's press secretary, Fred Stern, said campaign officials had no knowledge of any irregularities and were investigating reports of alleged forged documents. He said the du Pont campaign would have at least 5,000 valid signatures.

The News said a random check of 36 people on du Pont petitions found that 35 denied signing the documents.

The Dallas Times Herald reported today that Tom Pauken of Dallas, one of Dole's five Texas co-campaign chairmen, is listed in state incorporation papers as a vice president and registered agent of U.S. Voter Data Inc., linked to Southern Political Consulting.

"The company has come to light as one involved in the petition drive as well as Southern Political Consulting," said FBI agent Byron Sage.

Sage would not say whether Pauken is a target of the investigation.

"I hope the FBI will investigate all the people who are trying to get me," Pauken said Tuesday. "I am very upset there are people out there involved in a smear campaign against me."

Pauken said U.S. Voter Data was nothing more than a voter list company and blamed the campaign of Vice President George Bush and his Texas supporters for the FBI investigation.

New York Rep. Jack Kemp's petitions came into question Tuesday when The News reported that a random check of signatures on Kemp petitions indicated possible forgeries.

A Kemp campaign consultant, Richard McBride, said the faulty signatures may have been the work of one "overzealous" petition collector. Of the 11 questionable signatures, seven were obtained by the same person, The News said.

The Houston Chronicle reported that a woman who worked for the firm was listed as notarizing at least 30 pages of du Pont petitions containing questionable signatures.

Bush filed 35,000 names. Weaver said the totals of the others were Robertson, 9,000; Dole, 8,100; Kemp, 6,500; du Pont, 6,000; and Haig, 5,900.

DA may probe alleged forgeries

Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — Harris County District Attorney John B. Holmes Jr. said Tuesday that his office may join the investigation of forged signatures on petitions submitted to qualify some Republican presidential candidates for Texas' March 8 primary.

Holmes said he has asked his assistants to determine what prosecution, if any, could result from an investigation by the U.S. attorney's office and FBI into the forgeries on petitions submitted on behalf of Sen. Bob Dole (Kan.), former Gov. Pierre S. "Pete" du Pont of Delaware, and former Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

The candidates were required to submit by Jan. 4 the names of 5,000 registered voters in order to qualify for the primary.

The FBI and U.S. attorney's office seized the petitions submitted for Dole, Haig and du Pont after it was learned that the names of a number of Houston residents listed as signing were forged and at least two purported signers were deceased.

"If what has been reported is true, there has been a criminal offense," said Holmes. "The next question is who is going to baby-sit that offense. The present answer is I don't know."

U.S. Attorney Helen Eversberg of San Antonio has said she is unsure what, if any, federal laws have been violated.

Some forgeries of names of Dallas residents were also reported on the petitions of U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp (NY), but those had not been turned over to federal investigators late Tuesday.

Laser light can destroy AIDS virus in donated blood, research shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — A number of infectious agents including the deadly AIDS virus can be eradicated from donated blood by using laser light, according to research by medical researchers in Texas.

The findings, outlined Tuesday in the scientific journal Transfusion, are based on small-scale laboratory experiments conducted over the past three years, said Dr. James L. "Les" Matthews, a researcher affiliated with the Baylor University Medical Center.

The team was from the staff of the Baylor University Medical Center and Baylor Research Foundation in Dallas. Biologists from Southern Methodist University and Southwest Foundation for Biomedical Research in San Antonio also participated in the research.

With proper follow-up work, Matthews said, it appears the procedure could be used to cleanse blood at a "flow rate" of about a pint every 15 minutes — sufficient to allow its use by blood banks.

That, in turn, could offer blood banks a virtual foolproof means of guaranteeing the safety of their donated supplies.

The work by Matthews and seven colleagues, financed in part by the Pentagon's Star Wars anti-missile program, was first disclosed by defense officials three months ago. At the time, however, Matthews declined to discuss the experiments pending publication of the paper in Transfusion, a journal of the American Association of Blood Banks.

The work to date has shown that the combination of a non-toxic dye and laser light can destroy a number of viruses in blood — including the AIDS virus — without harming the blood itself, Matthews said in a telephone interview.

The procedure so far has been tested on flowing blood containing the herpes simplex virus and on a flowing culture medium containing the AIDS virus. In those tests, measurements have been completed demonstrating the viral agents were completely destroyed.

Blood containing the AIDS virus also has been put through the system, but no measurements have been made after that type of experiment to confirm the AIDS virus was completely killed.

"But we are confident now the (laser) exposure system does kill the AIDS virus (in the growth culture) and also that the presence of blood doesn't interfere with the effectiveness of the system," Matthews said.

"However, we have additional tests to perform. We regard this as a model system that we propose to develop further. Our guess is that it will take at least three years, and maybe up to five years at the most, to refine."

The new procedure, under development since 1984, takes advantage of the fact that tumors and certain viral cells absorb or retain dyes to a greater extent than surrounding tissue or cells.

If the dye-laden tumors or cells are then irradiated with laser light, a little-understood chemical process is set off that destroys the viral cells, the researcher said.

AIDS — acquired immune deficiency syndrome — is a fatal disease that cripples the body's ability to protect itself against infection. No cure has been found.

The disease can be transmitted through tainted blood donations and for that reason, the Red Cross and other blood-collection organizations now routinely screen all donated blood for the virus. Recent medical research indicates, however, it is possible for a donor to show no sign of the disease for some months after he is first exposed.

"The possibility that transfusion-associated AIDS may result from a blood unit...that tested negative makes it imperative that a safe and effective means of viral killing be developed," Matthews' paper said.

"The system reported here offers promise as an effective approach to this problem."

Matthews said the Pentagon's Strategic Defense Initiative Organization is providing Baylor roughly $500,000 a year for work on the blood-cleansing study and several other projects involving the peaceful application of laser technologies that also are being explored for weapons.

The Star Wars funding will prove crucial in the effort to refine the new blood-cleansing system because it will allow the researchers to work with a device known as a free electron laser, Matthews said. Such a laser can be tuned to produce beams of concentrated light at different wavelengths and power, vastly simplifying experiments, he said.

Conrad's new series a family affair

By JERRY BUCK

Conrad

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Robert Conrad's eighth television series is "High Mountain Rangers" on CBS, but it could be subtitled "All in the Family."

Conrad stars in the midseason replacement as a retired and somewhat cantankerous ranger named Jesse Hawkes. His sons are played by Christian and Shane Conrad, the actor's real-life sons, probably the first time that's happened on TV since "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet," when Ricky and David Nelson played themselves.

But there's more. Conrad's daughter Joan is the executive producer. Another daughter, Nancy, and her husband, Norton Flynn, are the caterers. Conrad's 10-month-old daughter, Chelsea, made an appearance in the pilot last year. Conrad has eight children, and it's possible others might appear in the show.

Christian, 23, plays a ranger who uses high-tech methods in his work. Shane, 16, plays the son who still lives with Hawkes and has become something of a recluse. Most of the action revolves around rescues.

"No one gets shot, there are no car chases, no good cop-bad cop," said Conrad. "I think it's an alternative."

The show is filmed along the Sierra Nevada near Lake Tahoe, which isn't too far from Conrad's home in Bear Valley — except when it snows. Then it's easier to get to Los Angeles.

"We shot the movie pilot in Bear Valley, but it couldn't accommodate all the people we'd need for a series," said Conrad. "So we moved to Tahoe. Good for them, bad for me. I have to lease a house."

Conrad has lived in Bear Valley full-time since 1980 and off-and-on since 1972. In 1972-74, when he was considering quitting the film business, he worked there as a deputy sheriff.

The idea for the series came to him, Conrad said, "When my drinking buddy and construction coordinator, Tom Hazlett, complained to me one day that there was nothing good to watch. I said, 'You watch "Cheers.' And he said back to me, 'Why don't you do something again?' "

Later, Conrad said, on a walk from his home to the country store, he saw a new house and commented that it looked like a ranger station. "My friend Dick Olsen said it was a search-and-rescue station," he said. "As soon as I got to the store, I called Kim LeMasters at CBS on the phone and told him the idea for the show."

LeMasters, who has since been promoted to president of CBS Entertainment, asked Conrad to meet him that weekend. Steve Mills, head of CBS' movie department, was there, too, and Conrad got a go-ahead for a movie pilot.

Conrad's own company is making the series, and he has surrounded himself with friends and family. Roger Bacon, his long-time press agent, is producing.

Conrad has been in seven series, but his recent shows have not succeeded. Both "The Duke" in 1979 and "A Man Called Sloane" in 1979-80 came and went quickly. Several pilots, at least one using his sons, were not picked up by the networks.

He said he had also turned down such series as "Dynasty," "Airwolf," "Casablanca" and "The A-Team."

Since "Baa Baa Black Sheep" in 1976-78, his last successful series, Conrad has worked mostly in television movies. In 1978 he played Pasquinel, the French-Canadian trapper in the miniseries "Centennial," undoubtedly the best performance of his career.

Last year, Conrad starred in "The Fifth Missile" in a role that played against his macho image. He played a naval officer who was secretly taking drugs for an illness so that he could stay on duty.

A mention of his image as a two-fisted tough guy drew a laugh.

"I established that macho image in 'Wild Wild West,' " he said. "I did all the dangerous stunts myself. The medium can perpetuate that image. I did a battery commercial that was a great put-on. And off camera I have been known to brawl occasionally.

"I've done some good, sensitive roles. 'The Confessions of a Married Man,' 'Centennial,' 'Will.' So, I think it's more image than reality. After 52 years I hope I have more substance than just an image."

TV strides made in 1927

The first successful, long-distance transmission of television took place April 7, 1927, in the United States with the sending of the image of Commerce Secretary Herbert Hoover from Washington to New York.

Cindi's Seafood Tips

This cold weather brings out the desire for some meals to really warm up the family. I can't think of a better way than over a pot of gumbo or creole soup. Creole soup was originally prepared by fishermen's wives from unsold portions of the days catch. The recipes have changed some, but the idea of using a variety of seafood has not changed.

Make a big pot of seafood soup or gumbo. We still have the gumbo stock right here at Southpoint Seafood Market to give you a head start.

Cindi's Creole Bouillabaise

In a large boiler pot over medium heat, melt ½ cup margarine, butter or cooking oil. To prepare roux, slowly blend in ¾ cup of flour and stir constantly until mixture is light brown. Add 1 cup chopped onion ½ cup chopped celery, and 1 clove minced garlic and continue stirring until vegetables are tender. Gradually stir in 2 (13 oz.) cans chicken broth. Add 1 can (1 pound 12 oz.) tomatoes, undrained, cut up; ½ cup dry white wine, 2 tbls chopped parsley, 1 Tbl lemon juice, 1 bay leaf, ½ tsp salt, ¼ tsp cayenne pepper, ¼ tsp saffron (optional). Bring to a boil, then simmer for 10 min utes. Add 1 pound fresh fish fillets, cut in 1½ inch chunks and ½ pint oysters and simmer for 5 minutes. Add ½ pound shrimp, peeled and deveined and cook for 5 minutes or until all seafood is done. You may substitute scallops, crab or anything else you might prefer to the seafoods listed. Serves 8. Serve with crusty French bread and a salad for a healthy, hearty meal. If you have any questions about fish or seafood, or a recipe you'd like to share, please write to Cindi's Seafood Tips, 2800 North Big Spring, Midland, Tx 79701.

Texas Ranger honored for rescuing hostage

BELTON (AP) — A Texas Ranger whose partner and longtime friend was gunned down during a shootout with a kidnapper was honored for his bravery during the rescue of the 2-year-old hostage.

Ranger Stan Guffey was shot to death on the night of Jan. 22, 1987, during the kidnapping attempt at Lake Lyndon B. Johnson near Austin.

His partner, John Aycock of Bell County, was given a special Commendation of Merit Award from Attorney General Jim Mattox' Blue Ribbon Committee, a 15-member panel of Texas law enforcement officers.

Aycock was honored last September for his bravery and heroism during the rescue of a 2-year-old girl from Brent Albert Beeler, 23, of Houston. Aycock killed Beeler after the two Rangers tried to ambush the convicted felon in a getaway car.

Mattox' committee also presented a special award to the 40-year-old Guffey posthumously.

"We had no idea who we were dealing with," Aycock said Monday about the shooting. "But you always expect a kidnapper to be violent.

"We both knew what we were doing. It was just another assignment," he said. "I don't know why it was him (Guffey) and not me. It's a little hard to sleep sometimes."

Authorities said Beeler had earlier killed Denise Johnson, a housemaid for the Bill Whitehead family in the resort community of Horseshoe Bay. Beeler broke into the family's home and abducted Kara Leigh Johnson, demanding a $30,000 ransom.

When Beeler emerged from the house with the child after 18 hours of negotiations with FBI agents, Aycock and Guffey had hidden beneath a blanket in the back of the getaway car.

The rangers ordered Beeler to surrender, but Beeler shot Guffey once in the head with a .44-caliber handgun. Aycock returned fire with his 9mm pistol, striking Beeler several times.

Guffey and Beeler died instantly. Guffey, an 18-year DPS veteran and a Ranger for eight years, was the first Ranger killed in the line of duty since 1978.

Briscoe thinks Gore will carry state

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe, one of 63 Texas Democrats to endorse presidential hopeful Al Gore, says he believes the Tennessee senator could reclaim voters lost to Republicans in recent elections.

"Sen. Gore can, while holding the mainstream of the Democratic Party organization in this state, appeal to those and will bring back those who have been lost in elections in the past," Briscoe said.

"That, in my opinion, will make the difference here and make it possible for him as the Democratic nominee to carry this state," said Briscoe, governor from 1973 to 1978.

Gore predicted that he would win more Texas delegates to the Democratic National Convention in the March 8 primary and be one of the top two finishers in the "Super Tuesday" Southern regional primary. Texas will send 198 delegates to the convention, the third-largest delegation.

Downplaying the importance of the first-in-the-nation Iowa precinct caucuses, Gore said that contest has lost significance when compared with the multi-state Super Tuesday primary.

"This (Super Tuesday) contest has revolutionized the process to an extent that many have not yet been realized," he said. "There's a tendency on the part of many other campaigns to fight the last war and bet all their chips on Iowa and just assume that 3 percent of the people in one state that has gone Republican for the last 24 years will have the sole voice in determining who the Democratic nominee is."

The comments came during a news conference Tuesday in which Gore and Briscoe were joined by Dallas financier Jess Hay and other Democratic civic and business leaders who endorsed Gore.

Democrats must recapture support among middle-class voters if they hope to win the White House this year, Hay said.

"The Democratic Party has lost four of the last five presidential elections," he said. "It has done so in part because its candidates in those elections failed to relate their policies and programs effectively to the mainstream of American society.

"We have evaluated the seven people now seeking the Democratic nomination...It is our considered judgment that Sen. Al Gore is the one whose policies are most reflective of these broadly stated objectives," Hay said.

Among others endorsing Gore were former Attorney General John Ben Sheppard, former Railroad Commission members Buddy Temple and Jon Newton, former state Sen. Peyton McKnight and former U.S. ambassador Edward Clark.

Constable convicted of abusing power plans to run for JP

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A constable convicted of abusing his power as a law enforcement officer by forcing three women to accompany him to a motel room said he plans to clear his name and run for justice of the peace.

"I feel like I got injustice. I'm going to appeal," Albert Tovar, of La Feria, said after his trial. "Even if it has to go to the Supreme Court, we'll see justice done."

Tovar, 32, was found guilty of four counts of official oppression stemming from a July 24 incident in which he said he was investigating a prostitution ring and under-age drinking at a bar in the lower Rio Grande Valley city of Santa Rosa.

Three women who worked at El Tenampa bar said the Cameron County constable forced them to go to a motel where they said he raped one of them.

He also was accused of unlawfully arresting the bar's bouncer for alleged disorderly conduct.

Tovar testified that he and a friend were approached at the bar several times by barmaids offering sex for money, and that he called other law enforcement agencies for assistance and detained 18 illegal alien women. Fifteen of the women were turned over to police, who then delivered them to U.S. Border Patrol agents.

The three other women testified Tovar took them against their will to a motel in the Hidalgo County city of Mercedes.

Tovar took the Fifth Amendment when questioned about his actions at the motel.

A state district court jury on Monday recommended one year of probation and a $1,000 fine on each of the four counts. Judge Gilberto Hinojosa set sentencing for Jan. 22.

"Once I clean up this I intend to run for justice of the peace in Precinct 7, in 1990," Tovar said after the trial.

He said, however, he is not running for re-election as constable of the same precinct.

Tovar was re-arrested Monday as he left the Brownsville courtroom, and was charged with retaliation for allegedly threatening bodily harm to the deputy sheriff who investigated the case.

The complaint was filed by Cameron County Lt. S.R. Garcia, who said Tovar threatened him Monday outside the courtroom while the jury was deliberating Tovar's punishment.

Tovar has been indicted in Hidalgo County on charges of aggravated kidnapping and aggravated sexual assault in connection with the July 24 incident.

STATE IN BRIEF

District judge eliminated as juror

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A judge who promised to be fair and impartial is wondering which attorney eliminated her as a potential juror in the case of a man accused of resisting arrest.

State District Judge Sarah Garrahan was called for jury duty Monday, but says she knew she would not be selected to hear the case against 32-year-old Rogelio Salinas of San Antonio.

She says she is wondering if defense attorney Henry Beltran or Bexar County prosecutors Mike Ramos and Carlos Lopez struck her from the panel.

"Nobody wants a judge or an attorney on their panel, but there was no exemption or cause to remove me from the panel," she said.

The only way Ms. Garrahan could have been eliminated automatically were if she believed she could not be fair and impartial, but "that's what we are supposed to be every day," she said.

Ms. Garrahan's elimination from the jury, however, brought a sigh of relief to Bexar County Court-at-Law Judge Timothy Johnson, who is scheduled to hear the case.

Donor heart replaces artificial one

HOUSTON (AP) — An artificial heart was removed from a Texas man and replaced with a donor human heart in a successful operation at Houston's Methodist Hospital.

The 52-year-old patient, who had been suffering from progressive heart disease, remained in critical condition Tuesday night following the Tuesday morning operation, spokeswoman Brenda Blake said.

The totally implantable artificial heart a Symbion-7-70 (formerly the Jarvik-7) was put in place Saturday when the patient's condition deteriorated and a donor heart could not be found, Ms. Blake said.

"We look at the artificial heart as a bridge design which will keep the patients alive until we find the apparent donor heart," said Dr. Hartwell Whisennand, lead surgeon for the transplant procedure. "The artificial heart worked perfectally for two days which allowed us to locate a suitable donor heart for the patient," Whisennand said.

Order amended against atheist

AUSTIN (AP) — A judge has modified his contempt of court order against atheist Robin Murray-O'Hair, who was jailed briefly last month for refusing to take the jurors' oath.

County Court-at-Law Judge Guy Herman on Monday signed an order changing Ms. Murray-O'Hair's punishment to the time she already had spent in jail, about six hours following her arrest Dec. 15.

Ms. Murray-O'Hair, granddaughter of atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair, refused to take an oath issued to all perspective jurors because the oath contained the phrase, "so help me God." She also refused to take a non-religious affirmation Herman offered, claiming it also was religious.

PUC asked to order rate cuts

AUSTIN (AP) — The Office of Public Utility Counsel has asked the Public Utility Commission to order utility companies to cut rates to reflect changes in federal tax laws.

Under the Tax Reform Act of 1986, the corporate income tax rate was cut last July from 46 percent to 34 percent. Public Utility Counsel Geoffrey Gay said electric and telephone rates now in effect in Texas were based on the 46 percent rate.

"The state's regulatory act clearly mandates that ratepayers and not the utility companies receive the benefits of reductions in the cost of providing utility services," said Gay, whose agency represents residential and small business ratepayers.

Gay said the total amount of the overcharges cannot be calculated until the PUC initiates a hearing on the issue.

Judge rules Beaumont man insane at time he shot parents to death

BEAUMONT (AP) — A man accused of fatally shooting his parents was cleared of murder charges after a judge ruled the man was insane at the time of the shootings.

During a brief hearing Monday, State District Judge Larry Gist ordered Andrew Weller, 37, to be committed to Rusk State Hospital for psychiatric exmaninations. Another hearing in the case was scheuled for Feb. 8.

Prosecutor Bruce Smith said he had not found contradicting evidence to three medical experts' determination that Weller was insane April 25, 1986, when his parents, retired lawyer George Weller Sr. and Eleanor Weller, were shot to death in their Beaumont home.

A fourth medical expert, Beaumont psychologist Ray Coxe, who was hired by Smith, reviewed the three medical experts' work and confirmed their methods and findings.

Should medical experts determine Weller is mentally ill, the law allows Gist to commit Weller indefinitely to the maximum security unit of a state hospital until medical experts determine he no longer is mentally ill.

Weller's attorney, Joseph Hawthorn, and Smith waived their rights to a trial by jury, instead consenting to try the case before Gist.

"I think the tragic thing is that Andrew Weller has been mentally ill and a danger to himself and others for years," Hawthorn said. "He should have been committed long before this. Had he been committed before this occurred, this probably would not have occurred."

Smith said after reviewing medical experts' opinions he was satisfied with the resolution of the case.

Rumor-driven trading pushes oil below $16

NEW YORK (NYT) — Energy futures prices closed moderately lower Tuesday after being whipsawed by rumors throughout the trading session.

Early in the day, crude oil futures broke below the $16-a-barrel level on rumors that Kuwait was joining Saudi Arabia in offering buyers discounts of as much as $2 under posted prices.

But no sooner had the spot, or nearest, crude oil futures contract, February, traded down 80 cents a barrel, at $15.95, than other rumors swept the floor of the New York Mercantile Exchange that the Saudis were not dumping crude at cut-rate prices.

By the close of the Merc, the spot February crude oil delivery was off 12 cents a barrel, at $16.63, while the March contract stood at $16.47, off 16 cents. As usual, heating oil futures rode up and down with crude before the spot contract finished at 51.27 cents a gallon, down 0.49 cent on the day. The spot unleaded gasoline futures closed at 44.07 cents a gallon, down 0.61 cent.

"What we witnessed today was simply a rumor-driven market," said Joel Faber, a leading floor trader at the Merc. "The only hard facts we had were that crude prices were softer in Tokyo and London before we opened. This caused the market to head south throughout the morning."

Just before the New York Merc's crude oil market closed at 3 p.m., fresh rumors of strong Saudi denials of any price cutting swept the floor. While these were met with the same skepticism as the early rumors of a price war among Middle East exporters, prudence dictated that some of the contracts that had been sold short previously, and that showed sizable profits, be covered overnight by offsetting purchases.

"But when the shorts sought sellers, they found a vacuum," Faber said, noting that sellers had joined buyers on the sidelines. "This brief phenomenon happens in every market when it suddenly changes course."

Sale of 50,000-acre Loving ranch finaled

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

The biggest sale of surface and minerals in recent West Texas history was concluded Tuesday with the sale of the 50,000 Johnson Ranch in Loving County.

The historic ranch founded 70 years ago by W.D. Johnson was sold, for an undisclosed sum, to Johnson Ranch Partners by the Trust Department of Centerre Bank of Kansas City, Missouri, acting as trustees for the heirs of W.D. Johnson.

Johnson was a Kansas City banker who financed many of the ranchers in Loving County and later formed the Johnson ranch properties when he took over a number of ranches, including the Slash ranch, by default on loans. Centerre Bank has been involved with the ranch since 1929.

Summit Partners Management Co. of Dallas, headed by Don V. Ingram and Merrill Lynch Energy Group are the principals of Johnson Ranch Partners, according to John R. Archer, vice president and trust officer of Centerre Bank.

Ingram will act as managing general partner for the ranch partnership, and Archer of Centerre Bank, who has been managing the property for the Johnson family, will continue direct managment of the properties. Ingram said there would be no change in management philosophy for the ranch which has significant oil and gas production and potential.

Icahn seeks to nullify Texaco-Pennzoil deal

NEW YORK (AP) — An agreement between Texaco Inc. and Pennzoil Co. to support the Texaco bankruptcy reorganization plan has been challenged in federal Bankruptcy Court by financier Carl C. Icahn.

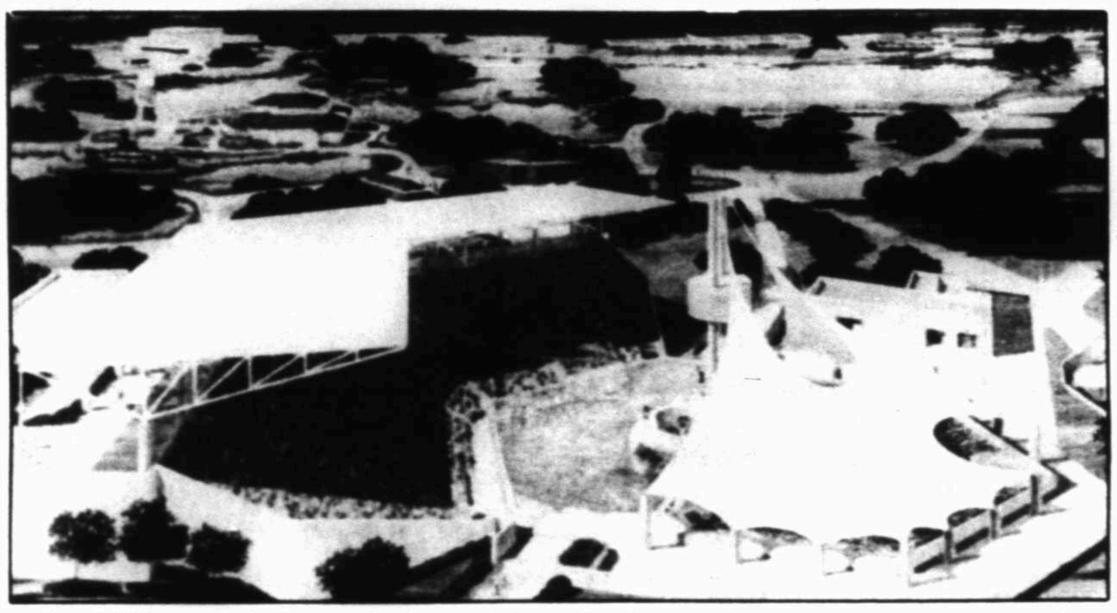

Texaco's president, meanwhile, called Icahn's action "frivolous," accusing the company's largest shareholder of putting its interests — and those of other Texaco shareholders — at risk in order to "reap short-term profits."

Attorneys for Icahn filed the action at the court in White Plains, N.Y. on Tuesday.

Mark Weitzen, an Icahn attorney, said they asked Judge Howard Schwartzberg to nullify the mutual pledge on the grounds that it is illegal because it has not been filed with the court.

Officials of both companies disputed that interpretation.

The 3,000-seat Multi-Species Stadium will be the focal point for Sea World's "New Friends" show when the 250-acre park opens in April. Southwest Airlines is jointly promoting many of the park's attractions in hopes of boosting tourism and air travel in Texas.

Sea World sets Texas tourism splash

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

Sea World, a 250-acre theme park set to open in April could have indirect benefits for the Midland/Odessa area, according to Charlotte Goddard, spokesman for Southwest Airlines, which has formed a marketing partnership with the park.

Goddard said Southwest's flights between San Antonio and Midland International Airport will allow Permian Basin passengers easy access to a new vacation spot within in the state and would keep Texas money within Texas. The state as a whole is also expected to benefit from through increased intrastate tourism and tourism from nearby states.

She said Southwest is developing fly-drive packages at special rates, which will include airfare, hotel accommodations, optional car rental and tickets to Sea World.

The state's economy will be bolstered by higher revenues from increased intrastate tourism, Goddard noted. "We think this is going to be good for San Antonio, and this is going to be good for Texas," she stated. "This is going to generate a lot of travel within Texas, and will benefit the state by keeping tourism dollars within the state."

A recent study by the Texas Department of Commerce found that every travel dollar spent in Texas generates 22 cents in wage and salary income, totaling nearly $3.8 billion a year in earnings for Texans. Tourism provides more than $17 billion a year to the state's economy, making it the second leading source of income for the state.

Locally, Midland Chamber of Commerce president John Fowler said that visitors spent $136 million in Midland County last year, accounting for over 2,400 jobs.

Sea World — with a gala grand opening set for May 28 — is expected to not only increase intrastate tourism, but to draw visitors from neighboring states and the Midwest, said Goddard. Southwest and Sea World plan to market the attraction heavily in the region, particularly in the cities Southwest serves, and will share many of the marketing costs incurred.

The state, including Midland-Odessa, will also benefit from the expected draw of international visitors as well, according to Goddard. "International visitors will come to see San Antonio and Sea World, but they will also want to see other parts of the state," she explained., adding that Texas is very popular with European travelers.

Also as part of the agreement, Southwest will sponsor a show in the 3,000-seat Multi-Species Stadium, called "New Friends." The show will feature several species of whales and dolphins.

Wright fights creation of giant thrifts

DALLAS (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright said Tuesday he opposes federal regulators using savings and loan insurance funds to merge small community institutions and create giant thrifts.

"I believe I can see a conscious government policy to concentrate wealth in fewer and fewer hands," Wright, D-Fort Worth, told the Dallas Times Herald in an interview published Tuesday. "That's not America."

In a statement given to The Associated Press Tuesday, Wright tempered his earlier comments, saying "I was just expressing my preference for small, close-to-home institutions dedicated to helping people instead of giant, impersonal institutions that don't care about people."

Wright last year supported a bill that will pump $10.8 billion into the ailing Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. But he wanted Congress to impose restrictions on regulators and the Reagan administration to assure a management shakeup at the agency.

Texas' 281 savings and loans lost $5.12 billion in the first 10 months of 1987, the Federal Home Loan Bank said. Industry experts estimate that $50 billion in extra funds ultimately will be needed to complete a thrift industry cleanup.

However, Wright said regulators must do a good job with the money they've got before he will consider requests for additional funds.

"I'm not eager to turn enormous amounts of money over to (regulators) bent on foreclosing and driving people out of business," he said.

Wright said it is better to give regulators enough money to close the most troubled institutions and give other ailing savings and loans "a chance to save themselves."

Texas officials are awaiting a plan from the FHLB Board to rescue the badly battered thrift industry.

Japanese denial punishes dollar

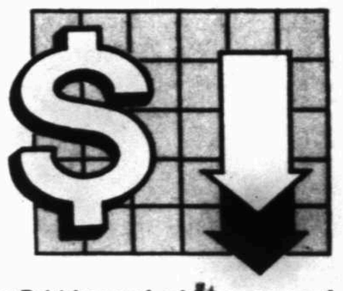

LONDON (AP) — The dollar fell in light trading today following news reports that Japanese Finance Minister Kiichi Miyazawa denied the existence of dollar-yen target ranges.

Gold prices were narrowly mixed.

The dollar is under pressure this week from fear of a further deterioration in the U.S. trade deficit, dealers said. The Commerce Department is scheduled to publish November trade figures Friday, and some analysts are expecting a widening of the deficit from the already staggering $17.6 billion gap in October.

A Japanese news report that Miyazawa said the Group of Seven industrialized countries did not agree on a target range for the dollar between 125 yen and 140 yen triggered a sell-off in Japanese trading, which was only slightly curbed by Bank of Japan intervention, dealers said.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 126.30 yen, down 1.70 yen. Later, in London, it was quoted lower at 125.70 yen.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late rates Tuesday:

—1.6265 West German marks, down from 1.6360

—1.3255 Swiss francs, down from 1.3365

—5.4910 French francs, down from 5.5275

—1.8295 Dutch guilders, down from 1.8390

—1,197.00 Italian lire, down from 1,203.50

—1.2910 Canadian dollars, up from 1.2847

In London, the dollar fell against the British pound, which was quoted at $1.8335, compared with $1.8220 Tuesday.

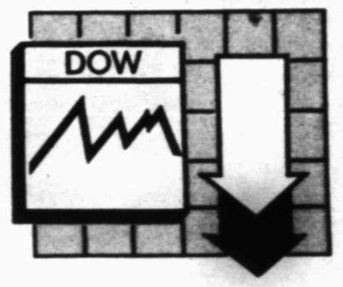

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $481.30 a troy ounce, compared with late Tuesday's $481. At midmorning, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $481.40.

In Zurich, the bid price was $481.10, down from $481.50 late Tuesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell 85 cents to close at $482.41.

Silver was quoted in London at a bid price of $6.77 a troy ounce, down from Tuesday's $6.84.

Stocks rally late, close off 16 points

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices fell moderately on Tuesday, in a broad decline that analysts said stemmed more from computerized trading programs than from a widespread selling rush by investors.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 50 points at one time, closed down 16.58 at 1,928.55.

Broader market indicators also declined, but finished off their lows. Decliners out-numbered gainers on the New York Stock Exchange by nearly 2 to 1, with 538 up, 1,001 down and 430 unchanged.

Big Board volume totaled 165.73 million shares, against 158.98 million in the previous session.

Also curbing buying interest were worries about program trading linked to stock index futures — cited as a major factor in Friday's downturn — and uneasiness about the government trade report due out this Friday, analysts said.

The trade figures were expected to trigger near-term trends for the dollar and interest rates, both of which have dictated the stock market's per-formance in recent weeks. A larger-than-expected deficit could spark another sharp fall in the dollar, which could mean another big selloff in the stock market.

"No one wants to stick their chin out, be a hero, until they see the actual trade figures," said Charles Jensen, a technical analyst for MKI Securities Corp.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 188.84 million shares.

The NYSE's composite index fell 1.07 to 137.74.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials fell 2.82 to 283.23, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 2.07 to 245.42.

Replacing Eskimo logo angers Alaskans

SEATTLE (AP) — A proposal to replace a smiling Eskimo face with a new emblem on the tail of Alaska Airlines planes is drawing criticism.

Alaska Airlines

The Seattle-based airline is considering junking the colorful logo for one featuring a stylized mountain in part to show the airline serves areas outside Alaska. But many Alaskans have opposed the change.

Bruce Kennedy, chairman of Alaska Air Group, said Tuesday he plans to make a decision soon.

Santa Fe announces 66 percent staff cut

CHICAGO (AP) — Santa Fe Southern Pacific Corp., a railroad-and-energy conglomerate, plans to eliminate up to 246 corporate jobs as it finishes selling off fringe businesses in a restructuring move.

Santa Fe's restructuring program, begun last June, may result in a corporate staff reduction from the current 371 positions to 125, the company said in a statement.

Most of the reductions will by made by April 1, the company said.

Santa Fe also was nearing agreements to sell three of its four pipeline companies, Black Mesa Pipeline, Gulf Central Pipeline Co. and Chaparral Pipeline.

After restructuring, the company's major holdings will be the Santa Fe Railway, based in Chicago; Santa Fe Pacific Realty Corp., based in San Francisco; Santa Fe Energy Co., based in Houston; Santa Fe Pacific Minerals Corp., based in Albuquerque, N.M.; and Santa Fe Pacific Pipelines Inc., based in Los Angeles, Hall said.

Reagan rejects delaying Canada trade pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has rejected a request by congressional leaders that it wait until June before submitting to lawmakers the recently signed free-trade agreement with Canada.

Such an election-year delay might jeopardize passage of the pact, according to a letter, released Tuesday, from Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III and Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter.

The pact would eliminate all tariffs between the two countries by 1999.

American Express writes off Latin loans

NEW YORK (AP) — American Express Co. says it will reduce its 1987 earnings by about $146 million because of reserve additions at its banking unit, which were offset partly by accounting changes in other areas.

The financial services company said Tuesday it was writing off all of its outstanding Latin American corporate loans under its strategy of withdrawing from that business and pumping $200 million in capital into the bank.

American Express' 1987 earnings already were pressured by earlier charges stemming from additions to the bank's loan-loss reserve, plus a drop in income from the company's 60-percent-owned Shearson Lehman Brothers investment unit due to the turmoil in the financial markets.

GM unveils $400-$1,000 rebate program

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. has announced rebates on a wide variety of cars and light trucks, and analysts say the move could spark a new incentive war among automakers.

The rebates, announced Tuesday on selected vehicles in every division except Cadillac, range from $400 to $1,000. Unlike past campaigns, the new program leaves out some slow-selling models and includes some popular ones in an attempt to increase the automaker's market share.

GM's two primary competitors, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp., probably will be forced to respond to GM's campaign by offering more incentives of their own, analysts said.

Permian Basin air waves gained a new voice Monday as the area's newest station, KRIL, went on the air.

Located at 1410 AM, the station will emphasize new coverage, with six hours of national, state and local news, according to owner-general manager Clyde Butter. He added that other air time will be devoted to a broad spectrum of music, including a schedule of classical music on the weekends.

KRIL took over the frequency once held by KRIG, and occupies the former KRIG station on Crane Highway in Odessa.

RANCH

Archer said the sale was made because most of the heirs of W.D. Johnson are now in their sixties and seventies and that the next generation would have seen the ranch divided among 30 family members. The sale also represents part of the family plan for diversification of investments.

While the sale price of the ranch was undisclosed, it had been rumored that the asking price was in the range of $72 to $80 million. The ranch has substantial shallow oil production and deep gas production, with potential for additional production. The sale concluded a long period of negotiations in which the ranch had been under option to the purchasers.

ICAHN

Pennzoil spokesman Robert Harper said there was "no need" for a court filing of the mutual agreement to support the plan, because "it was just an agreement between two parties."

Texaco said in a statement that it was not filed "because it does not deal with the substantive elements of the plan or the settlement."

In a letter released to the press Tuesday evening, Texaco President James F. Kinnear denounced Icahn's actions while rebutting a sharply critical letter from Icahn on Jan. 5. In that letter, Icahn outlined the alternative reorganization plan he had submitted to the court that day.

"Your actions, including the frivolous motion which you filed in the bankruptcy court today, risk sabotaging the very reorganization plan that you pushed for in your quest for short-term gains," Kinnear wrote.

Judge Howard Schwartzberg, who is overseeing the case, could rule on Icahn's filings at a Jan. 20 hearing.

On Jan. 5, Icahn asked the court to allow shareholders to vote on a second reorganization plan that would strip away Texaco's anti-takeover defenses.

SHARE THE FUN WITH A COOPERATIVE PARTY

As contemporary lifestyles become increasingly hectic, a favorite custom of the past is back in style. Once called potluck, this savvy twist on an old tradition is now termed a cooperative dinner party and offers friends the opportunity to showcase their best culinary efforts. Everyone shares in the preparation, making it easier for friends to get together.

With friends, you're likely to find this suggestion has broad appeal because it means they can enjoy each others' company with a minimum of hassle.

Let the host or hostess — who'll provide the setting, dishes and perhaps one of the simpler courses — set the tone and plan the menu to be sure the foods are complementary. Picking a theme or a regional cuisine can make menu planning easier and more interesting.

Since examples speak louder than words, here's a flexible, colorful menu for a modern bring-a-dish dinner that showcases recipes drawn from Mexico and Spain, blending them into a compatible buffet.

The focus is on a simplified Molé-Style Beef Stew, made with beef chuck, a flavorful cut perfect for that big one-dish entree. Long, slow cooking blends flavors and makes it succulent, but actual hands-on preparation time is less than 30 minutes — a boon to the busy cook!

Complementing this hearty stew are Savory Potato Wedges. Baked Washington Russet potatoes are cut into serving-sized portions and marinated in a savory olive oil vinaigrette. Browned and crisped just before serving, these superior potatoes retain their fluffy texture.

Italian olive oil also seasons the full-flavored Zesty Marinated Vegetable Salad, mellowing and marrying other ingredients. This highly versatile 100% pure olive oil has a light, delicate, yet distinctive taste and subtle fragrance.

Convenient canned U.S.A. Bartlett pears crown a spectacular — yet surprisingly simple to prepare — dessert, Quick Pear Savarin. This adaptable fruit is perfectly ripened, peeled, poached and ready to use just as it comes from the can.

All the recipes serve eight, an ideal number for a shared dinner. Note that each dish can be partially made ahead of time, then finished off quickly before enjoying with friends.

Tortilla Chips and Cheese Appetizers

(NOT SHOWN)
Preparation time: less than 30 minutes

1 package (1 dozen) 6-inch corn tortillas
Olive oil for frying
1-1/2 to 2 cups (6 to 8 oz.) shredded Jalapeno Jack cheese*
Bottled salsa (optional)

Cut each tortilla into 4 triangles. Fry in 3/4 to 1-inch olive oil at 375° F. 30 to 45 seconds or until crisp. Drain on paper towels. Just before serving, top each triangle with 1 to 2 teaspoons cheese. Bake at 400° F. 4 to 5 minutes or until cheese melts. Makes 48 appetizers.

*Shredded Cheddar cheese may be substituted; top with pickled jalapeno pepper slices if desired.

Savory Potato Wedges

Preparation time: less than 15 minutes
Bake time: 1 hour for whole baked potatoes
30 minutes for wedges

3 pounds (about 8 medium) Washington Russet potatoes
1/4 cup Olive Oil
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 to 1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 cloves garlic, finely minced

Scrub potatoes; pierce with fork. Bake at 400° F. 50 to 60 minutes or until tender. Cool slightly. Cut each potato in half lengthwise. Place potatoes cut-side down and cut each half into 1-inch diagonal slices. Arrange potatoes in single layer in greased glass baking dish. Combine oil, vinegar, salt, pepper and garlic; mix well. Brush potatoes with mixture. Cover and refrigerate up to 24 hours. Let stand at room temperature 30 minutes before baking. Bake, uncovered, at 425° F. 30 minutes or until lightly browned on edges. Makes 8 servings.

Molé-Style Beef Stew

Preparation time: 25 minutes
Cooking time: 2 hours to 2 hours 15 minutes

2-1/2 pounds well-trimmed boneless beef chuck, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 large onion, coarsely chopped
3 large garlic cloves, halved
1/4 cup olive oil, divided
3 tablespoons chili powder
1/3 cup flour
2 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder
1-1/4 teaspoon dried oregano leaves
3/4 teaspoon each salt and ground cinnamon
1 cup water, divided
2 cans (10 ounces each) whole tomatoes and green chilies*
2 medium red bell peppers, seeded
1/2 cup sliced ripe olives
2 tablespoons chopped cilantro or parsley

Cook onion and garlic in 2 tablespoons oil in large frying pan over medium heat until tender. Reduce heat to low; add chili powder and cook 3 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from heat. Stir in flour, cocoa powder, oregano, salt and cinnamon. Gradually stir in 1/2 cup water. Place mixture in food processor bowl fitted with steel blade or in blender container. Cover and process until mixture is smooth. Add remaining water and tomatoes; process until smooth and blended. Meanwhile brown beef chuck pieces (half at a time) in remaining oil in Dutch oven. Pour off drippings. Add sauce, stirring to combine. Bring to a boil; reduce heat, cover tightly and simmer 1 hour 40 minutes or until meat is tender, stirring occasionally. Meanwhile chop red peppers into 3/4-inch pieces. Chop enough of the pieces into 1/4-inch cubes to measure 1/2 cup; reserve for garnish. Add larger red pepper pieces and continue cooking 10 minutes. Garnish with red pepper, olives and cilantro. Makes 8 servings.

*One can (16 ounces) whole peeled tomatoes and one can (4 ounces) chopped green chilies may be substituted for the whole tomatoes and green chilies.

Zesty Marinated Vegetable Salad

Preparation time: 30 minutes (less with a food processor)

1 jar (6 oz.) marinated artichoke hearts
1-1/2 cups broccoli flowerets
1 can (12 oz.) hearts of palm*, drained and cut lengthwise into eighths
1 small cucumber, sliced
1 cup frozen peas, thawed, or fresh peas
3/4 cup each julienne-cut celery and carrots
1 small red onion, sliced and separated into rings
1/2 cup Olive Oil
2 tablespoons Balsamic or red wine vinegar
1/2 teaspoon each basil and thyme, crushed, and salt
1-1/2 cups (6 oz.) cubed mild Cheddar cheese

Drain artichoke hearts and reserve liquid. In bowl, combine artichokes with remaining vegetables. Blend reserved liquid with olive oil, vinegar and seasonings. Pour over vegetables; toss to blend. Cover and refrigerate at least two hours or until ready to serve. Add cheese and mix well. Arrange on serving platter. Makes 8 generous servings.

*Two jars (6 oz. each) marinated artichoke hearts may be substituted for hearts of palm.

Quick Pear Savarin

Preparation time: less than 30 minutes for cake about 15 minutes for syrup
Bake time: 40 minutes

1 can (29 oz.) Bartlett pear halves in syrup
1 package (18-1/4 oz.) yellow cake mix
4 eggs
1 cup milk
1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened to room temperature
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
Orange Syrup

Drain pears; reserve syrup. Arrange pears in bottom of greased and floured 11-cup ring mold or Bundt pan. Combine cake mix, eggs, milk, butter and orange peel until blended. Beat at high speed 2 minutes. Pour batter over pears. Bake at 350° F. 35 to 40 minutes or until wooden pick inserted near center comes out clean. Cool in pan on wire rack 20 minutes. Remove cake; cool. Return cake to pan; prick cake with skewer several times. Drizzle with Orange Syrup. Allow to stand 2 to 3 hours. Invert cake onto serving platter. Makes 12 to 15 servings.

Orange Syrup: Combine pear syrup, 1 cup water and 1/2 cup sugar in saucepan; bring to boil. Stir in 1 teaspoon grated orange peel and boil 5 minutes or to consistency of thin syrup; cool. Stir in 1/2 cup orange-flavored liqueur if desired. Makes 2 cups syrup (2-1/2 cups with liqueur).

Oats not 'yucky' combined in recipes

By DIANE SAVAGE
Copley News Service

Oatmeal is enjoying a new-found popularity, and rightly so. Along with other high-fiber foods, oats have been found to reduce a body's chances for certain forms of cancer.

Oats can add flavor, texture and healthful fiber to a number of dishes, like muffins, cookies, breads, casseroles and vegetarian "meat" loaves. When baking, you may substitute one and one-third cups rolled oats for 1 cup wheat flour (or replace up to one-third the total amount of flour called for in recipe).

Oats have traditionally been a staple food in Scotland. Steel-cut oats contain more bran than rolled oats, and form the basis of the traditional Scots porridge.

To prepare a basic Scottish oat porridge, soak ½ cup steel-cut oats overnight in 2 cups water. Next morning, bring to a boil, then reduce heat and simmer 15 to 20 minutes. This humble but hearty dish can be livened up with the addition of chopped nuts or apples, raisins, a little ground cinnamon or flaked coconut.

The fiber in oat bran is a soluble fiber, which carries cholesterol with it through the digestive system before it has a chance to build up in the body. And your stomach will feel full longer after eating soluble fiber, so if you're watching your weight, be sure to include oat bran in your diet.

Store oats in an airtight container in a cool, dry place — they'll stay fresh almost indefinitely.

Your reaction to oatmeal may be different from this little girl's if you try incorporating the versatile grain into recipes.

APPLESAUCE-OAT COOKIES

½ cup butter or margarine, at room temperature
½ cup brown sugar
1 egg
¼ cup honey
2 cups whole wheat flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
1½ cups quick rolled oats
1 cup applesauce
½ cup chopped walnuts

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Cream together butter or margarine and brown sugar. Beat in egg and honey. Combine flour, baking powder and spices in separate bowl. Add to creamed mixture, blending well. Stir in oats, applesauce and nuts.

Drop by rounded teaspoons onto lightly buttered baking sheet. Bake in preheated oven 15 minutes.

Makes 3 dozen.

RAISIN PECAN GRANOLA

1 cup coarsely chopped pecans
2½ cups rolled oats
1 cup flaked dried coconut
½ cup raisins
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ cup honey
¼ cup safflower oil

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Spread pecans on baking sheet. Bake in preheated oven 10 minutes, stirring once or twice; cool.

In large mixing bowl combine pecans with oats, coconut, raisins and cinnamon; toss to mix well. Blend honey with oil in small bowl. Beat with whisk until thoroughly blended, then drizzle over oat mixture; toss to coat evenly.

Bake in preheated oven 30 minutes, stirring every 10 minutes. Let cool in pan 5 minutes, then break up with fork. Let cool completely before storing in airtight container.

Makes about 6 cups.

HEALTH NUT CRUST

¾ cup rolled oats
½ cup wheat germ
¼ cup whole wheat flour
¼ cup finely chopped nuts (walnuts, pecans or almonds)
⅛ teaspoon each ground nutmeg and cinnamon
One-third cup honey
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In large mixing bowl combine oats, wheat germ, flour, chopped nuts and spices. Toss to combine thoroughly.

Combine butter and honey in small saucepan. Cook over medium-low heat until butter is melted; stir to blend well. Let cool for 1 minute, then blend in vanilla. Stir hot liquid into oat mixture, blending well. Turn into a lightly oiled 9-inch round pie plate; press mixture evenly over bottom and sides of plate. Bake in preheated oven 8 to 12 minutes, or until lightly browned.

Makes one 9-inch pie shell.

Ice harvests improved nutrition, storage

Associated Press

Ice has been around since the beginning of time, but its usefulness has been a fairly recent discovery.

As a food preserver, tool of the medical practitioner, and a refreshing summertime treat, ice only came to prominence about 200 years ago. Back then, early experimenters were proving ice to be effective in slowing the deterioration of stored meats, dairy products and medical supplies. Ice would at first be harvested on farms and in rural communities for use in the home, but enterprising Americans would soon turn the use of this common commodity into an enormous global industry.

According to Country Home magazine, ice harvesting began when snow was scraped off the harvesting pond with shovels or homemade scraping rigs pulled by horses. Holes were then punched through the ice with axes and huge crosscut saws were used to cut the ice into squares that could weigh 200 pounds or more. Each cake had to be grappled from the freezing water with iron hooks and skidded up planks onto the beds of sturdy horse-drawn sleighs. Then the load was hauled miles to an icehouse in someone's backyard.

The grand ice harvest meant little if stores of ice couldn't be preserved until the summer months when perishables needed protection. Thus, much down-home ingenuity went into the construction of icehouses.

The icehouses of the late 1700s and early 1800s were often crude affairs. Wooden shacks, usually built partially underground like root cellars, were poorly drained and uninsulated.

It soon became general knowledge that drainage was vital to improving the life span of stores of ice. A bed of gravel or an elevated floor of timbers served to keep the ice away from the eroding effects of water. A covering of straw was said to help protect the mass of ice from hot weather, and eventually sawdust was proclaimed even better. Sawdust was also used between layers of ice to make it easier to separate the cakes. In the early 1800s, insulated icehouses were known as refrigerators.

Frederic Tudor was a merchant living in Boston around 1800. He saw an opportunity in the harvesting of ice. A naturally formed substance, it was cheap and bountifully available. The demand for ice was increasing, especially in the southern regions. All he had to do was adapt simple farm harvesting techniques to a grand scale and then deliver the goods to the marketplace.

Tudor's first goal was to improve the techniques of harvesting ice. He helped develop a horse-pulled ice plane that scraped the surface of the harvesting pond to a uniform smoothness. Another important tool of mass production was the ice plow, a large sleigh with toothed iron runners that could cut uniform blocks of ice from ponds simply by running back and forth a number of times.

Tudor secured the rights to harvesting ice from a great number of New England's lakes and ponds, then he built enormous ice storage warehouses right on their shores.

Markets stood ready to buy Tudor's ice. All he had to do was get it there. He purchased a fleet of ships, equipped them with insulated compartments and was soon shipping vast quantities of ice to southern cities.

Ice allowed fruits, meats and vegetables to be stored longer than ever before. Ice would improve the diet and the health of much of the world's population and forever change the way Americans lived.

By the early 1900s, electric compressors had been developed that were capable of producing below-freezing temperatures. It was a development that spelled the end of the great natural ice harvests. Soon, many homes would have small mechanical iceboxes known, once again, as refrigerators.

Light cuisine pioneer says eat potatoes, cake

By MARY MacVEAN
Associated Press

NEW YORK — On a diet? Watching cholesterol? Try French onion soup, blue cheese dressing, scalloped potatoes or rocky road cake.

Seriously.

"Deprivation has no place in my cooking vocabulary," Jeanne Jones says in the introduction to her 18th cookbook, "Cook It Light" (Macmillan).

A pioneer of light cuisine, Jones takes a you-can-have-it-all approach, making many old favorites healthier and less caloric.

Among the more than 190 recipes in the book are cheesecake and enchiladas that are lower in cholesterol, sodium, fat and calories than their usual versions.

Not every recipe is low-calorie, but for each there is nutritional information — calories, sodium, fat, cholesterol and calcium.

There are suggestions for menus, and for how to serve dishes. Much attention is paid to the appearance of foods, to pretty sauces made from vegetables, attractive arrangements on plates.

At the heart of it, Jones encourages creativity with food.

"Food is fun, and coming from an art background, food for me also must be beautiful," she said in a recent telephone interview from her home in La Jolla, Calif.

Jones was working as a fashion designer when, at age 30, she learned she had diabetes and suddenly faced almost no choice about what she could eat. She set about revising recipes to fit diabetic restrictions. She returned to school, hired a nutritionist, and discovered that what she was doing for herself might be good for other people as well.

"Then I moved to Mexico City, where I could afford a kitchen full of help and wrote my first book," she said. The book: "The Calculating Cook."

In addition to the 17 books that followed, Jones develops recipes and menus for spas, hotels and restaurants; works as a consultant to food manufacterers; and writes a syndicated column, also called "Cook It Light," that appears in 350 newspapers in this country and Canada.

Her latest book includes recipes from the column, but also explains how to make almost any recipe "light."

But despite all a cook can do to make satisfying, healthy food, Jones cautions. "There is no magic. I can't wave a wand and take the calories out."

And there are foods that just don't come light, such as bacon. Or that "deep Southern frying, where they save their bacon fat in coffee cans. These are childhood tastes for many people, a memory."

But the most important notion is common sense, and for most people, it's OK to occasionally give in, Jones said.

"One ice cream never made anyone fat or caused a coronary," she said. "People ask what I do when I really want an ice cream. It's simple. I have one."

Here are some recipes from "Cook It Light" by Jeanne Jones.

FRENCH ONION SOUP

4 pieces French bread, thinly sliced (¼ inch thick, 4 inches in diameter)
1 teaspoon corn oil margarine
1 medium onion, sliced very thin vertically (2 cups)
2 tablespoons dry white wine
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon salt (omit if using salted stock)
2 cups defatted chicken stock or beef stock
2 ounces Swiss cheese, grated (½ cup)

Place the bread on a cookie sheet in a preheated 300-degree oven for 5 minutes. Let it dry out but not brown.

Melt the margarine in a skillet. Add the onion and cook, covered, over very low heat until soft, about 10 minutes. Remove the lid, turn up the heat and brown the onion, stirring constantly; do not allow it to burn. When brown, reduce the heat and add the wine. Cook until most of the wine has been absorbed. Add the pepper, salt and stock and mix well. Simmer for 5 minutes.

Pour ¾ cup soup into each of four oven-proof bowls. Place a slice of French bread in the top of each bowl and allow to stand until the bread is saturated with soup and has expanded. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons of the cheese over each serving.

Place in a preheated 325-degree oven for 30 to 40 minutes or until the cheese is lightly browned.

Makes 4 servings.

Each serving contains approximately 155 calories-60 calories in fat; 15 mg cholesterol, 290 mg sodium and 150 mg calcium.

CHICKEN STOCK

3 to 5 pounds chicken bones, parts and giblets, excluding the liver
2 carrots, scraped and chopped
2 celery ribs, without leaves, chopped
1 onion, unpeeled, quartered
3 parsley sprigs
2 to 4 garlic cloves, halved
1 bay leaf
12 peppercorns
¼ cup vinegar
Cold water to cover

Buy chicken parts for stock from a butcher or save chicken carcasses in the freezer until ready to make stock.

Put all the ingredients in a large pot with a lid. Add cold water to cover and bring slowly to a boil (about 5 minutes). Reduce the heat, cover, leaving the lid ajar, and simmer for 3 hours or more. Remove from heat and allow to stand until cool enough to handle. Remove the chicken parts and vegetables and discard. Strain the stock and cool to room temperature (about 5 minutes). Refrigerate, uncovered, overnight or until the fat has congealed on top.

Remove the fat and store the stock in the freezer.

BEEF STOCK

3 pounds beef or veal bones
1 pound beef or veal, any cut (optional)
1 tomato, halved
3 carrots, scraped and chopped
2 celery ribs, without leaves, chopped
1 large unpeeled onion, quartered
3 parsley sprigs
3 garlic cloves, halved
¼ teaspoon dried thyme, crushed in a mortar and pestle
¼ teaspoon dried marjoram, crushed in a mortar and pestle
1 bay leaf
12 peppercorns
¼ cup vinegar
Cold water to cover

Place the bones, meat and vegetables in a roasting pan in a 400-degree oven until well-browned, about 40 minutes, turning frequently to brown evenly.

Remove from the roasting pan and place in a large pot with a lid. Add all the other ingredients and cover with cold water by 1 inch. Bring slowly to a boil. Simmer slowly for 5 minutes and remove any scum on the surface. Reduce the heat, cover, leaving the lid ajar, and simmer for 2 to 6 hours. Cooking longer makes the stock more flavorful.

Remove from the heat and allow to stand until cool enough to handle. Remove the bones, meat and vegetables and discard. Strain the stock and cool to room temperature.

Refrigerate, uncovered, overnight or until the fat has congealed on top. Remove the fat and store the stock in the freezer in the size containers you most often use.

WHAT'S COOKING

Hunter supplies, cooks wild game for family

EDITORS NOTE: This series of "What's Cooking" interviews will feature non-profit organizations that have published cookbooks. This is the first article in a series of interviews with members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

Tom H. Heller of Midland and his wife, Cheryl, have an arrangement many wives only dream about — Heller, who enjoys cooking, takes some of the daily household chores off his wife's shoulders by preparing meals for the family, especially on weekends and when he has time during the week. "I've been cooking ever since we were married, so it's been over 20 years," he said.

Heller learned to cook from his father. "The policy at their house was to try a new recipe every week," he said, including "some really exotic stuff like roast octopus."

Heller said that although the new recipes weren't always a success, he, his brother and sister ate the dishes anyway. "I think the most exotic thing he ever tried was squid."

Heller also is handy at supplying his own family with new and different dishes to taste because Heller also is an avid hunter. When Heller was 10 years old, he successfully hunted his first deer, and since has collected elk, moose, goat, antelope and deer trophies, and is nearing the completion of the Grand Slam of Wild Sheep. He has collected Bighorn, Dall and Stone sheep trophies, and lacks only the Desert Bighorn.

He has hunted in Alaska, Canada, British Columbia, Wyoming, Montana and all the other Western states, he said. "I just went to British Columbia and shot a Stone sheep, a moose and a goat."

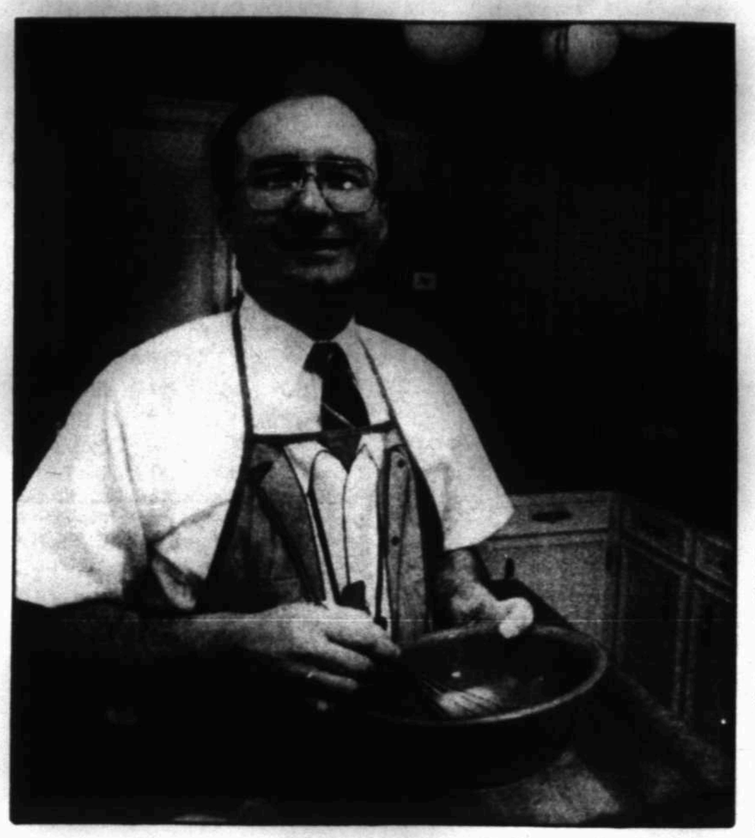

The meat he brings home is put to good use, he said. "We will have a deer gone in a week in this family — with five children."

Heller, who currently serves on the High Council of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and the planning committee for the recent open house of the church's new chapel, is an enthusiastic backpacker and an expert dried jerky cook who always has a supply of backpacking foods and dried foods in storage for his family.

Heller is especially proud of his own Wild Game Jerky recipe, which he said took him 10 years to develop and perfect. Beef can be substituted for game meat in the recipe, he added.

Both Wild Game Jerky and Beef Roll can "turn any bad (or gamey-tasing) meat into delicious meat," he said, because the preparations help remove the wild game flavor from the meat.

These two recipes, as well as some other Heller family favorites, follow:

Jerry Mennenga/Reporter-Telegram

Tom Heller

WILD GAME JERKY

Cut game meat (or beef) into ¼-inch strips against the grain.

In large mixing bowl, heavily salt and pepper (use coarse-ground pepper only) meat. Mix well and place in refrigerator overnight to allow salt to penetrate meat. Meat should be salty to the tongue; if not, re-salt and return to refrigerator for 12 hours.

Smoke for 8-10 hours on low heat in smoker with hickory or mesquite wood.

Dry in dehydrator or over on low heat (150 degrees) with door cracked until meat bends but does not break. Meat should be dried, not cooked, which requires low heat at all times.

Heller added that "tough, sinuous meat will make even tougher, sinuous jerky. Good jerky requires good meat. My five children will eat an entire jerked deer in a month, if prepared as above."

BEEF ROLL

5 pounds hamburger or 2½ pounds hamburger and 2½ pounds wild game meat such as venison or elk
2½ teaspoons garlic salt
2½ teaspoons whole mustard seed
2½ teaspoons coarse ground pepper
2½ teaspoons liquid smoke
4 to 5 tablespoons Mortons quick tender cure (available at feed stores)

Mix all ingredients well. Set in refrigerator three days, mixing each day for 5 minutes. Shape into two rolls, about three inches thick. Bake 9 hours at 160 degrees. Turn after 4½ hours of cooking.

When removed from oven, wipe with paper towel to absorb as much grease as possible. Bake on rack or cookie sheet so beef roll will be out of drippings.

Heller said this dish "tastes like a good-quality luncheon meat and is sliced and eaten for sandwiches."

MINESTRONE MAIN-DISH SOUP

3 slices bacon, finely chopped
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
2 large cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon basil leaves, crushed
1 can beef broth soup
1 can bean with bacon soup
1½ soup cans water
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes, undrained
½ cup uncooked small macaroni
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup cabbage, cut in long thin shreds
1 cup cubed zucchini squash

In large saucepan brown bacon and cook onion and celery with garlic and basil until tender. Stir in soups, water, tomatoes, macaroni and salt. Bring to boil; cover. Reduce heat; simmer 15 minutes. Add cabbage and zucchini. Cook 10 minutes or until done. Stir occasionally.

PARTY CHEESE BALL

2 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
2 teaspoons Worchestershire sauce
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Dash cayenne
Dash salt
Finely chopped pecans

Combine softened cream cheese and Cheddar cheese, mixing until well blended. Add remaining ingredients except nuts; mix well. Chill. Shape into one large ball or two smaller balls. Roll in nuts to coat surface. Serve with crackers.

HOT CHOCOLATE MIX

6 cups dry milk
2 cups instant chocolate mix
1 cup sugar
1 cup dry coffee creamer
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix well. Use 2 heaping tablespoons per 1 cup hot water.

MUFFIN TIN BREAKFAST

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Line 6 muffin cups with round slice of ham about size and thickness of slice of bologna. Break egg into each piece of ham. Salt and pepper egg.

Line 6 more muffin cups with paper liners or grease. Fill each ⅔ full with muffin batter. Bake 15-20 minutes or until eggs are desired firmness and muffins are golden brown.

CREATE-A-MUFFIN

¾ cup milk
¾ cup bran cereal (any variety)
1 egg
⅓ cup vegetable oil
¼ cup molasses or honey or corn syrup
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 cup quick old-fashioned oats
⅔ cups flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt

Combine milk and bran cereal. Add egg, oil, molasses and brown sugar; mix well. Add combined remaining ingredients, mixing well. Fill 12 greased or paper-lined medium-sized muffin cups ⅔ full. Bake in preheated oven (375 degrees) for 20 minutes.

Variations: Add ½ cup raisins, blueberries, chopped dates, apple or nuts. Add leftover cooked corn for dinner muffin, or substitute chocolate milk for whole milk for a flavor twist.

Game meat brings new flavor to old recipes

By BETTY WILSON
Hearst News Service

MIDLAND, Mich. — Hunting season provides the opportunity to add a little variety to family meals with fresh venison.

Venison or elk or moose can be prepared nearly the same as the beef you typically buy at the grocery.

Game animals are not as well-fed as domestic stock, and therefore are much less fatty. Seventy-five percent of the meat from large game is less tender than domestic beef, and is best cooked slowly with moist heat or ground for quick cooking. Loin chops and steaks are tender and may be sauteed or boiled to serve medium rare.

BUDGET STEAKS

2½ pounds shoulder steaks — beef, pork or venison
Garlic salt
Pepper
1 cup ketchup
½ cup chili sauce
½ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
1 tablespoon liquid smoke
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Sprinkle steaks with garlic salt and pepper. Arrange in 9x13-inch pan.

Combine remaining ingredients in saucepan and bring to boil, stirring occasionally. Spoon over meat. Bake for 1½ hours, turning and basting with sauce every 30 minutes. Cut into serving size portions. Serve sauce with steaks.

STROGANOFF

2 pounds boneless beef or venison, cut in strips ½-inch wide
2 tablespoons oil
2 tablespoons flour
1 envelope (2½-cup serving size) onion soup mix
1 cup water
1 can (10½-ounce) cream of mushroom soup
1 cup sour cream or yogurt
Hot noodles, rice or mashed potatoes

Heat oil in large skillet. Coat meat with flour. Saute meat until browned. Add soup mix and water. Simmer until meat is tender, 45 minutes to 1 hour. Add soup and sour cream. Stir and heat through. Serve over noodles, rice or potatoes.

RAGOUT

2 pounds boneless meat, cubed
½ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons oil
½ cup onion, chopped
½ pound mushrooms, sliced
2½ cups beef broth
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons flour blended with ¼ cup cold water

Dredge meat by shaking in bag with flour, salt and pepper. Brown in oil in large, heavy skillet or kettle. Remove and set aside.

Stir-fry onion and mushroom in drippings 3 to 5 minutes. Add meat and all ingredients with exception of blended flour and water. Stir well, cover and simmer 1½ hours or until meat is fork tender. Add flour paste and heat, stirring until thickened and bubbling. Serve with rice or noodles.

SIMMERED SURPRISE

1 pound ground venison, beef or turkey
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1 can (10½-ounce) tomato soup
½ cup water
1 cup chopped apple
½ cup chopped raisins
¼ cup toasted, sliced almonds
1 tablespoon vinegar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cumin
2 cups cooked rice

Brown meat in skillet, adding small amount of oil for ground venison or turkey. Add onion and garlic and cook until tender. Pour off fat. Add soup, water, apple, raisins, almonds, vinegar and seasonings. Cover and cook over low heat 25 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve over rice.

Oriental Rice Salad made with wild rice, almonds, pea pods

By NANCY BYAL
Associated Press

Wild rice is expensive, but a little goes a long way. One cup expands to 4 cups of cooked rice. Store uncooked wild rice in a cool, dry place or in the refrigerator; it will keep indefinitely.

ORIENTAL RICE SALAD

½ cup wild rice
1¾ cups water
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup long grain rice
2 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons rice wine vinegar or vinegar
2 teaspoons soy sauce
2 teaspoons honey
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ cup slivered almonds, toasted
6-ounce package frozen pea pods

Rinse wild rice under cold water about 1 minute. In a small saucepan bring wild rice, water and salt to boiling. Reduce heat. Cover and simmer 30 minutes. Stir in long grain rice. Return to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer 15 to 20 minutes more or until water is absorbed and rice is done. Remove from heat. Let stand, covered, for 10 minutes.

For dressing, in a screw-top jar combine oil, vinegar, soy sauce, honey and ginger. Cover and shake well. Transfer rice to a bowl. Pour dressing over rice mixture. Toss to coat. Cover and chill 3 to 24 hours. Before serving, place pea pods in a colander. Rinse pea pods under warm water to thaw. Add pea pods and toasted almonds to salad; toss to coat. Makes 6 servings.

Organization publishes cookbook

Copley News Service

Many an organization publishes a cookbook to raise funds, but few have done so with more success than the Junior League of San Francisco. The group's "San Francisco a la Carte" appeared in 1979 to instant acclaim, received the prestigious Tastemaker Award and has continued as the publisher's best-seller in its class.

Now the group has followed up that triumph with "San Francisco Encore," a collection of some 500 recipes. The focus emphasizes fresh ingredients and easy preparation and each entry comes with a convenient tally giving the number of portions, preparation time and cooking time.

Because San Francisco stands more or less in the geographic center of the nation's principal wine-growing areas, the book is interspersed with pages on the nearby vinicultural regions, together with a few suggestions on wine-recipe combinations.

Our sampler shows the same eclecticism: ribs from the island of Maui with an interesting wild rice and pine nut side dish, plus pancakes that are offered for breakfast but might do as well for a filling dessert after a light supper.

CNS Photo

WILD RICE WITH PINE NUTS

3 slices bacon, cut into ⅛-inch strips
½ cup chopped onion
1 celery stalk, cut into ¼-inch cubes
1 clove garlic
1 cup wild rice
3 cups water
Salt
½ cup pine nuts
4 tablespoons butter

Saute bacon in skillet until almost cooked. Add onion, celery and garlic. Cook for 3 minutes or until onion is soft. Add rice and water. Season to taste with salt. Cover and simmer over medium heat for 45 minutes, or until rice has absorbed water. Uncover and set aside to cool and dry. Discard garlic.

Just prior to serving, saute pine nuts in butter. Add to rice. Toss to mix well. Cook until heated through.

MAUI RIBS

4 to 6 pounds lean, well-trimmed baby back ribs
Boiling water
1 cup dry sherry
½ cup soy sauce
2 cloves garlic, crushed
2 tablespoons dry mustard
3 tablespoons grated fresh ginger root
1 cup orange marmalade
¼ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons drained horseradish

Place ribs in large pot and cover with boiling water. Let sit for 5 minutes and drain. This will remove excess fat. Combine sherry, soy sauce, garlic, mustard and ginger root and mix well. Pour over ribs and marinate at least 4 hours (preferably overnight), turning and brushing occasionally with marinade.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Place in shallow roasting pan and brush with marinade. Bake for 30 to 40 minutes, basting with marinade or more sherry and turning occasionally.

Prepare sauce by combining orange marmalade, lemon juice, soy sauce and horseradish. Place in saucepan and bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 5 minutes. Spoon sauce over ribs and return to oven for 5 minutes to glaze. Pass additional sauce on side.

To barbecue: Heat coals until hot. Grill ribs, basting with marinade, until tender, about 20 to 30 minutes. Baste with sauce last 5 minutes of cooking.

BANANA SURPRISE PANCAKES

1 cup cottage cheese
1 cup sour cream
2½ tablespoons honey
½ teaspoon vanilla
Dash of salt
4 eggs at room temperature
1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 medium firm bananas, cut diagonally into ¼-inch slices
Flour
Vegetable oil or butter

Blend cottage cheese, sour cream, honey, vanilla and salt in processor or blender until smooth. Add eggs, one at a time. Sift together flour and baking powder. Slowly stir egg mixture into flour. Stir out lumps but do not overmix.

Lightly dust banana slices with flour. Brush griddle with oil or butter. Drop batter by tablespoon onto griddle. Top each with a banana slice. Spoon more batter on top of, to cover, each banana slice. Cook until bubbles form on top surface. Flip over and cook on other side until golden brown. Serve with warmed maple syrup.

Cookies great for entertaining

By BETTY WILSON
Hearst News Service

An assortment of homemade cookies goes a long way when entertaining at home.

Cookies can be made ahead to serve to unexpected guests. Leftovers are no problem, since they can be returned to their containers to serve another time.

Bar and drop cookies are quick and easy, and look festive when a piece of nut or candy is placed on top for decoration.

To bake in batches, assemble the ingredients in advance. Line the cookie sheets with foil to save time and clean-up. While one pan of cookies bakes, arrange the next batch on a spare sheet of foil, ready to slide onto the pan.

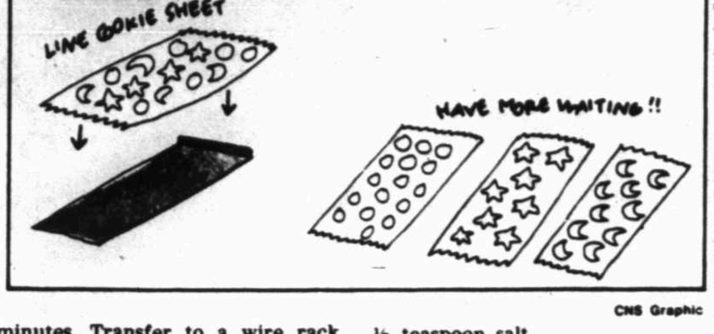

When cool, store thin, crisp cookies in a container with a loose-fitting cover. Soft cookies are best stored in a container with a tight-fitting lid.

Extra cookie sheets

When making lots of cookies, there are never enough baking sheets.

Here's how to create more:

1. Line cookie sheet with aluminum foil and bake cookies on it. While baking first batch, prepare next on another sheet of foil.
2. Remove foil with baked cookies. Cool baking sheet a few minutes.
3. Transfer foil sheet with unbaked cookies to baking sheet; continue as needed.

PFEFFERNUSSE

½ cup honey
¾ cup corn syrup
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons margarine
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon allspice

Preheat the oven to 400 degrees. In a heavy saucepan, combine the honey and syrup and bring to a boil. Remove from the stove; add the sugar and stir to dissolve. Add the margarine. Sift the remaining ingredients together. Gradually beat the flour mixture into the honey mixture, a little at a time. Continue beating until the batter is thick and smooth.

Drop teaspoonfuls of the mixture onto generously greased baking sheets. Bake about 15 minutes or until the cookies are light brown and firm to the touch. Cool on the baking sheet 2 to 3 minutes before transferring to a wire rack to cool. Store in an airtight container.

SNICKERDOODLES

½ cup margarine
¾ cup sugar
1 whole egg
1 egg yolk
1⅔ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
½ cup raisins
Sugar and nutmeg for sprinkling

Cream the first four ingredients together. Sift the flour, soda and nutmeg into the sugar mixture. Mix and fold in the nuts and raisins. Drop from a teaspoon 2 inches apart onto a greased cookie sheet. Sprinkle with the nutmeg and sugar. Bake in preheated 375 degrees oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Transfer to a wire rack. Cool and store in an airtight container.

CARROT COOKIES

½ cup margarine
1 cup sugar
1 cup mashed cooked carrots
1 egg
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon allspice
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Cream the first five ingredients together. Sift the remaining ingredients onto a square of waxed paper and add to the creamed mixture. Mix to combine. Drop from a teaspoon 1½ inches apart onto lightly greased baking sheets and bake 12 to 15 minues until firm but not brown. Cool on baking sheets 1 minute and transfer to a wire rack.

APPLESAUCE COOKIES

2 tablespoons margarine
½ cup sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup baking mix
½ cup applesauce
1 teaspoon finely grated lemon rind
1½ teaspoons caraway seeds (optional)

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Cream the first three ingredients together. Add the remaining ingredients and mix until smooth. Drop from a teaspoon 2 inches apart on well-greased baking sheets and bake 8 minutes until golden brown around the edges. Transfer at once to wire racks to cool.

OATMEAL ICEBOX COOKIES

¾ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ cup margarine
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup granulated sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups oatmeal
½ cup chopped nuts

Sift the first three ingredients onto a square of waxed paper. Cream the margarine, sugars and egg. Add the vanilla and remaining ingredients. Mix well. Divide the dough in half. Turn onto a lightly floured board and shape into two rolls about 10 inches long and 1½ inches in diameter. Wrap in plastic and chill or freeze.

About 10 minutes before the cookies are to be baked, preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Slice the rolls ¼-inch thick and arrange cookies 2 inches apart on lightly greased baking sheets. Bake about 10 minutes until tan. Cool 5 minutes on the baking sheet, then transfer to a wire rack to cool completely.

Scalloped corn has Tex-Mex twist

Associated Press

Give scalloped corn a Tex-Mex twist and your family will call for more.

FIESTA CORN

¼ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon margarine or butter
½ teaspoon chili powder
1 (8¾-ounce) can cream-style corn
1 (8¾-ounce) can whole kernel corn, drained
½ cup coarsely crushed taco-flavored tortilla chips
1 (4-ounce) can chopped green chili peppers, drained
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
½ cup broken taco-flavored tortilla chips

In a 1-quart microwave-safe casserole combine onion, margarine and chili powder. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) 2 to 3 minutes or until onion is tender, stirring once. Stir in cream-style corn, whole kernel corn, crushed tortilla chips, chili peppers and pimiento. Mix well. Cook, covered, on high 4 to 6 minutes or until heated through, stirring once. Sprinkle broken tortilla chips around edges of the casserole. Makes 4 servings.

DEAR ABBY: Shortly after I was married, I learned that my husband is a habitual marijuana smoker and has been for the last 20 years. I'm 25 and he's 41 — a product of the '60s. Had I known this beforehand, I never would have married him. Unfortunately, I didn't find out until after I became pregnant, and now that we have a 3-month-old son, it's not easy to leave.

I asked him why the subject of pot never came up while we were dating, and he said he knew that I was "straight" so he never smoked in front of me. Even now, he never smokes in front of me, but I can smell it on him quite often. He says he doesn't "need" it, but I don't believe him because every time I step out — even for 20 minutes — I'll come back to the smell of pot.

He's a good husband and father, but we argue about this constantly. More and more I notice that his eyes are constantly bloodshot and he seems drowsy and lethargic and has to be reminded several times to do something. I'm concerned.

Am I making a mountain out of a molehill? How serious is this? Could he really quit if he wanted to? Please help me. I love him, but I can't live this way. — TORN

DEAR TORN: If your husband smokes pot "every time you step out," he's hooked. A 20-year habit is no "molehill," and you are wise to be concerned. Marijuana affects different people in different ways, but a habitual user will usually suffer from impaired vision, inability to respond quickly in emergency situations, diminished memory and lack of motivation. He shouldn't drive, and you should refuse to allow him to drive you and the baby.

Tell him that if he doesn't seek professional help to kick the habit, you are leaving. Contact the National Institute on Drug Abuse hot-line: (800) 662-HELP. They can put you in touch with drug-rehabilitation facilities in your area. Pot smokers don't just fade away — they go up in smoke!

DEAR ABBY: For "California Girl" whose Prince Charming has bad breath: There is a simple remedy to eliminate bad breath. Use a soft toothbrush and brush the tongue well. — TORONTO SUN READER

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "Reluctant Gift Collector," the schoolteacher who resented receiving such "useless gimcracks" as mugs, plaques and pins that say "No. 1 Teacher."

She (and you) missed the point: It was not a "self-proclaiming" item, but an expression of love and respect for the teacher.

I have taught school for eight years and I drink my tea from a No. 1 Teacher cup, and I have a No. 1 Teacher pin in my jewelry box. — NANCY LAWRENCE

DEAR NANCY: I heard from hundreds of schoolteachers who wanted to teach "Reluctant Gift Collector" (and me) a lesson. They succeeded. Here's one from a teacher with a sense of humor:

DEAR ABBY: As a teacher in a major metropolitan area, I have a suggestion for "Reluctant Gift Collector." Be thankful for the gift, but next time suggest lottery tickets.

You have a better chance of winning the sweepstakes than having the school board give you a raise. — BROKE IN COLORADO

DEAR ABBY: I need your help, as do thousands of other nuns. Years ago, we worked for small salaries or none at all — in hospitals and parochial schools. Donations helped supplement our small salaries, and we nuns were able to survive.

Today these same communities are in serious financial difficulty because we have more and more elderly members and fewer younger members to support them. Many of us now send out begging letters requesting donations. Why? Because most people think that the Catholic Church totally supports us. That is not true. While many dioceses do what they can to help offset some of our financial difficulties, they are not able to fully provide for us. Abby, we need funds for food, utilities, upkeep of buildings, health care and funds for education in order to continue to help the sick, the abused, the homeless, etc.

The real problem then is: How can we let people know that Catholic nuns need their help and support? — A NUN IN NEED

DEAR SISTER: I, too, was unaware of your situation, and if this letter alerts members of your faith to offer more support, then your prayers have been answered.

Recipe converted to crockery cooking

By NANCY BYAL
Associated Press

Polish cooks make a potato-sauerkraut soup that traditionally uses potatoes, sauerkraut, smoked sausage and vinegar. Gene Orlowski, the Chicago reader who shared the recipe with us, converted it for crockery cooking and added other ingredients for more color and flavor. Put the ingredients in the pot in the morning; the cooker makes homemade soup for you all day while you attend to work or other activities.

HEARTY POTATO-SAUERKRAUT SOUP

4 cups chicken broth
1 (10¾-ounce) can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 (16-ounce) can sauerkraut, rinsed and drained
8 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 medium potato, cut into small cubes
2 medium carrots, chopped
1 medium onion, chopped
2 stalks celery, chopped
¾ pound smoked Polish sausage, cubed
½ cup chopped cooked chicken
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 teaspoons dried dillweed
½ teaspoon pepper

Combine all ingredients in a 3½- to 4-quart electric slow crockery cooker. Cover and cook on low-heat setting for 10 to 12 hours or until vegetables are tender. If necessary, skim off fat before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 346 cal., 18 g pro., 17 g carbo., 23 g fat, 51 mg chol., 1,839 mg sodium.

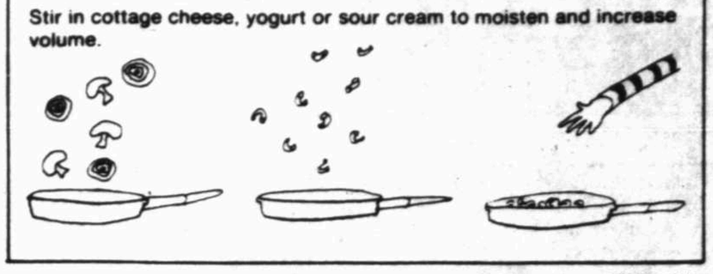

Tasty treats from leftover starches

Leftover rice, noodles or macaroni can become quick, tasty inexpensive dishes.

Here's how to cook them:

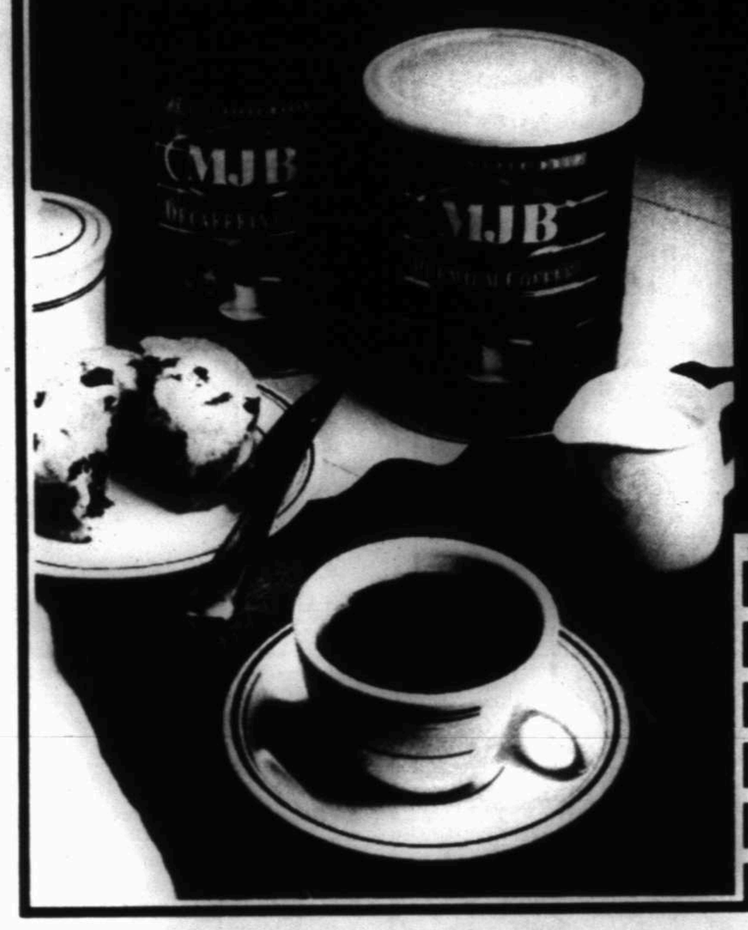

1. Saute some sliced onions (mushrooms optional) until soft. Add leftover pasta.
2. Fry over medium heat, turning often to brown leftovers. Season with salt, pepper, nutmeg.
3. At last minute sprinkle with grated cheese.

Stir in cottage cheese, yogurt or sour cream to moisten and increase volume.

"Give the Gift of Love"

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women in the United States will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as the result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate.

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, ● even before it can be felt

Appointments may be made by calling 561-9999

The Mobile Breast Cancer Detection Unit from Odessa Women's & Children's Appointments may be made by calling 561-9999

Hospital will be in Midland on the Old Gibsons parking lot on Cuthbert Street.

The American Cancer Society has established guidelines for mammography in asymptomatic women. (Women who have no symptons of disease). Those guidelines have been adopted by the American Academy of Family Physicians, American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, and The American College of Radiology. Those guidelines are:

I. 35-40 years of age-One baseline mammogram.

II. 40-50 years of age-A mammogram every 1-2 years depending on breast type and risk factor.

III. 50 years of age and over An annual physical examination and annual mammogram.

IV. Asymptomatic women under years of age with significant high risk factors should be examined at appropriate intervals. These risk factors include previous breast cancer and family history of cancer.

V. A symptomatic woman should have a mammogram at any age when she experiences a mass, nipple discharge, skin changes or unexplained breast pain.

A screening mammogram is an x-ray of the breast using extremely low dosages of radiation (usually comparable to dental x-rays) and is designed to find very early cancers.

A female technologist who is highly trained in mammography will perform the examination.

The charge for the screening mammogram is $50.00. The Unit accepts cash, check, Visa, Mastercard and American Express.

Approved by the American Cancer Society.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 14, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Continue to stand up for your principles and you will not go wrong. Make sure subordinates work up to their potential. You will only accomplish your goals if you accept help from others. Clear up a mystery about your past. Once you get rid of those guilty feelings, you can build a relationship that is truly meaningful. You must take care of your own needs for a change. Be candid with a family member who expects too much.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: humorist Andy Rooney, actress Faye Dunaway, politician Julian Bond, pitcher Terry Forster, Albert Schweitzer, actors Marjoe Gortner and William Bendix, author Tom Tryon.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Recent problems fade when you change your attitude. Deal with financial details early in the day. A sudden need to travel may upset your social plans. Explain the situation to those who count.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Quit stewing over something you can do nothing about. It is time for action! Ignore a shady character who is lurking in the background and do what you know is right.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Put a child's needs at the top of your priority list today. New honors and awards are possible if you steer a steady course. A sweet tooth could be affecting your physical fitness.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It is a whole new ball game when it comes to romance. You feel as free as a bird! Upbeat people seek your company. Study institutions before deciding whether to invest in them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Center social activities in the kitchen and have a ball cooking for your friends! Romance takes a backseat to career while you catch up on your work. Ask for understanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Bright clothes give you a lift and cheer others. A telephone call brings welcome financial news from afar. A good day to sign contracts. Mate shares a happy secret. Be a good listener.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your optimism helps you move ahead even when wading through troubled waters. Do not crowd too many projects into the day. Children could add a special dimension to your busy life. Reach out to others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Who you know will play a big role in your success today. Follow up a hunch and you could reap a bonanza in the stock market! Family matters require more of your time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not be afraid to examine your feelings for someone. You need to give priority to work projects that will bring immediate gains. Short trips prove very productive. Repay all favors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Showcase a special talent. Significant progress results from a change in attitude. Member of opposite sex makes a lasting impression. Budget your time more carefully. It is vital you meet a deadline!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friendly influences should give you an advantage over your competitors. Increased harmony may mark your domestic affairs. Joint financial matters come up for discussion. Avoid bringing up past mistakes. Focus on mutual benefits.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finish what you start. Contact influential person if you have a special problem. A money-making business proposition may be part of the picture. Parents find special joy in their offspring.

Opening lead: Three of

It is bad enough to be punished for your errors at the bridge table. But sometimes it seems that there is no justice—you might also get punished for an act that is beyond reproach.

No one can fault West's one heart opening bid. Once South responded to the double with one no trump, showing not only a stopper in the enemy suit but some 8-10 points, North wasted no time in reaching his optimum spot.

Since he had no sure re-entry, West made the perfectly reasonable lead of his fourth-best heart, and had he not opened the bidding, the contract would surely have been defeated. Declarer had only eight fast tricks, and with nothing to guide him, the obvious way to develop the ninth was via a club finesse. A winning hook or a 4-3 heart split would have assured the contract. Here, however, West could not have an opening bid without the club king and he was also marked with five hearts, so declarer had to engineer an end play to bring home his contract.

He won the heart lead in hand, then cashed four rounds of spades and the ace-king of diamonds, stripping all the cards he could from the West hand. He now needed some luck—West had to have started with no more than two diamonds.

With the groundwork laid, declarer could only hope for the best. He exited with a heart and sat back to see what would happen. West cashed his four heart tricks, and then, fortunately, he was down to nothing but clubs. He was forced to lead away from his king into declarer's combined tenace, allowing declarer to score two club tricks and his contract.

World's oldest person dies at 114

Knapp

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Florence Knapp lived to be 114 years and 94 days because she had "good genes," according to researchers. But the woman who had been the world's oldest person once said it was God's way of punishing her.

Miss Knapp, who lived in the same suburban house for 110 years, died Monday just two weeks after she officially became the world's oldest person.

"She lived so long we never knew when to expect it," said Ross Oberholtzer, husband of Miss Knapp's niece Ruth. "It was quite a shock to us, because she was getting weaker, but she wasn't sick. ...She just slipped away."

Miss Knapp was a schoolteacher from 1893 to 1935, when she retired. She marched for women's suffrage in 1919 and was a staunch Democrat who voted until she was past 100.

Ulysses S. Grant was president when Miss Knapp was born. She lived through 22 presidents.

"I think she could never understand why she was allowed to live so long," Ruth Oberholtzer said. "One time she said that she feels like she might have been bad and this was God's way of punishing her."

The daughter of Charles S. and Elizabeth Johnson Knapp, Miss Knapp grew up along with 10 brothers and sisters in the stone farmhouse in Montgomery Square where she was born on Oct. 10, 1873.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sonny Bono — singer, restaurateur and Palm Springs mayoral candidate — says it took about 10 years to get over his split with Cher and get on with his new careers.

"Up until then, in the back of your mind you always have that picture of 'This would be real good if I could do that with Cher,' or whatever," Bono told Vanity Fair in its February issue. "But to move forward you really do have to disconnect. If you don't, you can't go on."

Bono, who hopes to be elected mayor in April, said his career went down after the split. "It's depressing. You become part of a circuit...you guest-star on 'Love Boat' and 'Fantasy Island' and that's your career."

Rather

WASHINGTON (AP) — CBS anchorman Dan Rather acknowledges 1987 "wasn't my best year," but was a comeback year for him and the news division.

"We had a year, and I had a year, in which, yeah, we got knocked down a few times, more than one would like," Rather said, interviewed in Tuesday's editions of The Washington Post. "But when you can get up and come back, that's a good year."

The "CBS Evening News," which spent weeks at the bottom of the ratings earlier in the year, has been in first place for the past 16 weeks.

The news division underwent layoffs and budget cuts, but won back the morning news time period, kept "West 57th" on the air and is embarking on a prime-time documentary series, "48 Hours," next week.

• • •

NEW YORK (AP) — Fashion designer Ralph Lauren doesn't want to buy the southwest Colorado town that houses his ranch — he just wants to redesign it.

Lauren says in February's Vanity Fair that he has approached the town fathers of Ridgway, where he and his wife have a 13,000-acre ranch, with an offer to redesign the town — at his expense.

There's just one small trade-off, Lauren says in jest: "I've always had an ambition to be the sheriff."

Queen Elizabeth

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, will tour Australia from April 19 to May 10 to mark the country's bicentennial celebrations, Buckingham Palace said.

The three-week visit is expected to cover Western Australia, Victoria, Queensland, New South Wales and Tasmania, the palace said Tuesday.

Australia is celebrating the 200th anniversary of the voyage of the first British colonials to settle the island-continent.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Entertainer Barbara Mandrell will be among the co-hosts of the 15th annual American Music Awards on Jan. 25.

Others will be Smokey Robinson, Whitney Houston, Mick Fleetwood and the Bee Gees.

The awards will be presented during a live ABC-TV broadcast.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mr. Blackwell, the self-appointed fashion arbiter of best and worst, has declared actress Lisa Bonet to be the worst-dressed woman of the year.

At a news conference Tuesday, he described Miss Bonet's wardrobe as "Dracula's idea of a good time."

This year's 28th-annual list of 10 ten worst-dressed women had 12 names because of two ties.

No. 2 was Diane Keaton ("a bag lady") No. 3 actress Justine Bateman ("stuffed sausage") and tied at No 4, "Minsky's rejects" Cher and Cyndi Lauper.

Also listed were: 5, Monaco's Princess Stephanie; 6, Shelley Long; 7, Joan Collins; 8, Sally Kellerman; 9, Meg Ryan; 10, Sonia Braga and Susan Sullivan.

• • •

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Guitarist Les Paul, whose invention of the solid-body electric guitar helped start it all, says there's something missing in today's rock 'n' roll.

"What we're missing is something that we can hum, something that is romantic, that has some heart and soul to it," said Paul, who earned 36 gold records with former wife, Mary Ford, with such hits as "How High the Moon."

Paul, 72, is credited with the 1940s inventions of the solid-body electric guitar, multitrack recording and the electronic echo sound.

Paul, who lives in Mahwah, N.J., and was in Wisconsin recently, said he came out of retirement a few years ago and plays dates in New York City.

Gardner

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actress Ava Gardner has been hospitalized for a week because of a recurring respiratory problem but is in good condition and will likely be released in a week, a hospital official said.

The 66-year-old actress flew here from her home in London and was admitted to St. John's Hospital on Jan. 6, spokesman Armen Markarian said Tuesday.

She was admitted "for a general checkup and treatment of a recurrring respiratory condition relating to a previous admission for pneumonia," Markarian said.

"Miss Gardner is in good condition, is resting comfortably and should be discharged in about a week," he said.

Stargell to Cooperstown in 1st year of eligibility

By MICHAEL MARTINEZ
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Willie Stargell, the longtime Pittsburgh Pirate slugger who struck a formidable pose at the plate and in the clubhouse, gained admission to the Baseball Hall of Fame Wednesday night in his first year of eligibility.

Stargell, who had a career .282 average and hit 475 home runs in 21 years for the Pirates before he retired after the 1982 season, was named on 352, or 82.4 percent, of the 427 ballots that were returned by eligible members of the Baseball Writers Association of America. A player had to be selected on at least 75 percent of the ballots, which equaled 321 this year.

Stargell's big day, however, was just another long one for Jim Bunning, the former pitcher. He missed by only 4 votes of being voted in and now has been listed 12 years in a row without totaling the necessary ballots. Bunning, a congressman from Kentucky who won a total of 224 games in both leagues during 17 seasons, earned 74.2 percent of the votes. A year ago, he was 21 votes short.

After 15 years, a player is removed from the ballot and must wait three years before he can be considered by the veterans committee.

The 47-year-old Stargell, currently a coach with the Atlanta Braves, became only the 17th player to be voted into the hall in his first year of eligibility, not counting the original five who were selected in 1936. The last player elected in his first year was Willie McCovey in 1986, the only player selected that year.

No other player among the 45 who were listed this year had more than 50 percent of the votes. Tony Oliva was third with 202 votes, followed by Orlando Cepeda, 199; Roger Maris, 184; Harvey Kuenn, 168; Bill Mazeroski, 143; Luis Tiant, 132, and Maury Wills, 127.

Maris and Don Larsen, both former Yankees, were in their final years of eligibility. Larsen, the only pitcher to throw a perfect game in the World Series, had just 31 votes this year.

Stargell was considered the cornerstone and spiritual leader of the Pirates for most of his 21 seasons. Although his most notable statistical achievement was the home runs, he was regarded by many teammates and coaches as a powerful and imposing figure in the clubhouse, a man known by the affectionate nickname, Pops.

Stargell, in fact, was the primary presence during the Pirates' surge to the 1979 World Series championship, helping to bring his team back from a 3-1 deficit in games to defeat the Baltimore Orioles in seven. Stargell, at 38, hit three home runs in the Series and finished with seven extra-base hits and a record 25 total bases. He shared the National League most valuable player award with Keith Hernandez that year and was voted MVP of both the league championship series and the World Series.

Stargell, who played his entire career in the Pittsburgh organization, broke in with the Pirates in 1962 after spending four seasons in the minors, hitting such outposts as Roswell, Grand Forks and Asheville. During his big-league career, he totaled 2,232 hits and 1,540 runs batted in and won National League home run titles in 1971, when he hit 48, and in 1973, when he finished with 44. He had 30 or more home runs six times and drove in 100 or more runs five times.

Some of his homers were clearly memorable. Four landed in the upper deck in right field at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh, and seven others cleared the right-field roof at old Forbes Field. Stargell is the only player ever to hit a ball completely out of Dodger Stadium, and he did it twice.

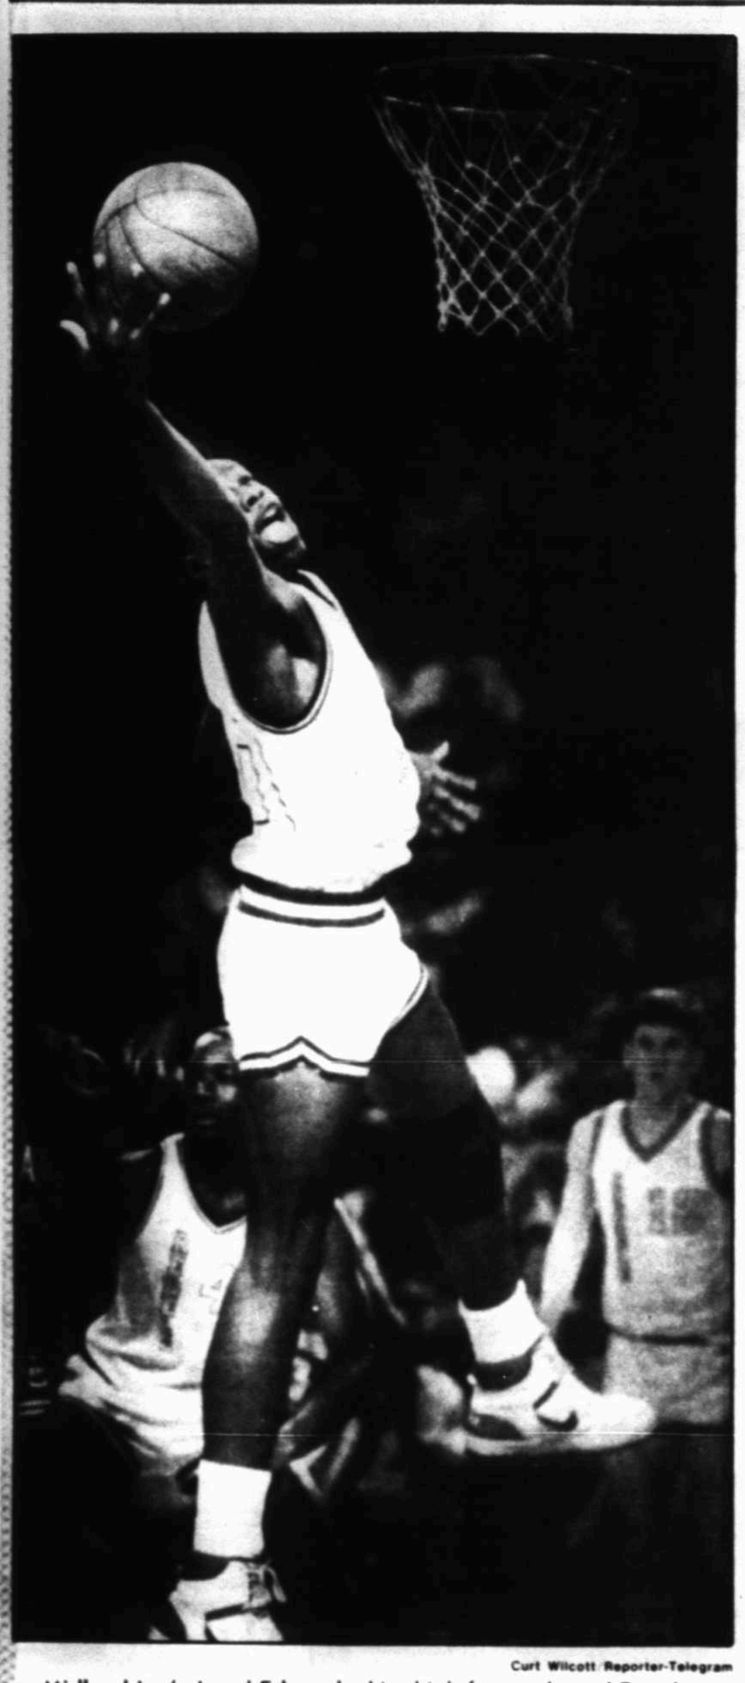

Stargell played in six league championship series, two World Series and seven All-Star Games.

He joined the Braves and his former Pittsburgh manager, Chuck Tanner, in 1986 as a coach after 27 years wearing a Pirates uniform. Next season, he will become Atlanta's third-base coach in his effort to become a major-league manager one day.

Stargell is on the national advisory council on sickle cell anemia and was one of the founders of the Baseball Network, a coalition of minority-group members helping baseball with its affirmative action program.

Midland Lee's Jared Edwards skies high for a rebound Tuesday at Chaparral Center as the Rebels were on the way to a 53-45 victory over Abilene Cooper.

Rebels polish off Cooper

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland Lee was in search of some good news Tuesday night and not having much luck in that quest against lowly rated Abilene Cooper at Chaparral Center in a "must" District 4-5A basketball game.

The Rebels had learned earlier in the day that leading scorer Damon Clay would undergo scope surgery on a twisted knee today. That's not news that warms the heart.

Then the Rebels got off to a horrible start against the Cougars, trailing in the second period by nine points with a two of 11 shooting eye in the period.

Guard Nicky Sanchez (1-of-6 from the field) and post Darren Dortch (1-of-9), who had been giving the Rebels their scoring punch in the first two district games, couldn't find the touch.

But good news finally came to coach Paul Stueckler from his bench as Calvin Gary and Torval Crisp shed the warmups to ignite a 53-45 come-from-behind victory over the upstart Cougars.

Gary, who didn't play at all in the first half, pumped in 10 of his game high 15 points in the third period to give the Rebs a 36-34 lead and Crisp combined with Gary for 11 fourth quarter points to put the Cougars away. Crisp ended the game with 11 points. Lee also got 12 points from starter Jared Edwards.

"To tell you the truth, I don't know if we have any real starters on this team," said Stueckler. "Both Crisp and Gary have started for us during the season. With Damon out of the lineup, we're in a period of adjustment. I'm just glad they got those shots to go in because we had zero offense out there."

The victory lifted Lee to a 1-2 district record and a 11-10 season mark while Cooper fell to 4-16, 0-2. It was a critical victory for Lee without Clay.

"We don't know how long Damon will be out, but there is a chance he will return before the season is over," said Stueckler, who has an open date Friday that has to be at just the right time. "We need the open date right now and sort things out."

With an offense patterned after the Titanic, Lee used its press and man-to-man defense to get back into the game.

"Our press and man defense generated what offense we had," said Stueckler. "In that first half, both teams looked like a bunch of snails out there."

Gary sat out the first half, but it took him only one shot to warm to his needed task in the third period. Gary missed his first field goal try, then connected on five straight in the third period.

"I was getting some good feeds from Jared and Nicky," said Gary. "When you don't play in the first half, you have to come out and get warm quick for the second half."

Crisp, who scored a season high, added, "At the half, we talked about picking up the pace and playing tough defense. That's what we had to do to win the game and that's what we did. Those were the key things because we didn't look very good in the first half."

San Angelo girls beat MHS, 66-48

By PETE HERNDON
MRT Correspondent

The San Angelo Lady Bobcats invaded the Midland High gymnasium Tuesday night for a battle between last season's District 4-5A playoff representatives with most of their 1987 district runners-up team intact.

With former MHS star Amy Cummings, the 1987 Most Valuable Player in District 4-5A girls basketball, returning from Texas A&M's volleyball team to watch from the sidelines, the Lady Bulldogs squad started a pair of juniors and a pair of sophomores.

But even if the Bulldogs could have found a way to suit up the Aggie freshman, it may not have been enough to stop the powerful Lady Bobcats.

The experience paid off for the Bobcats as returning All-District wing Terri Washington poured in 10 first quarter points, fueled by 15 MHS turnovers, enroute to leading San Angelo to a 66-48 win.

With the victory, the 15-4 'Cats remain unbeaten in four districts starts while MHS falls to 7-13, 1-3.

While the final score was lopsided, the Bulldogs regrouped from an early 12-2 deficit to keep the contest close through three quarters. With the Bobcats one-three-one zone creating opportunities, Washington scored six of her game-high 19 in the opening four minutes.

Then coach Jane Young made some substitutions, which included post Tracy Lee, and MHS found a seam in the San Angelo press via diagonal passes for a pair of easy Lee layups to stop the Lady 'Cats momentum.

With the changes, the Midland held San Angelo through the rest of the period to go into the second stanza trailing 23-13.

"They were working the press breaker better than anyone has against us all year," San Angelo coach Doug Snowden said after the game. "We had to make some adjustments. Normally we don't drop our off-side wing as far back as we had to tonight."

He also praised the sharp-shooting Lady Bulldogs' ability to get the ball in the basket. Snowden, whose team had a structure of underclassmen several years ago, added that the Lady Bulldogs have a bright future.

"That's the best shooting ballclub we've faced all year," he said, referring to Midland's 60 per cent shooting performance in the first half. "In a couple of years, Midland is going to be like ours is now. They're a good young team."

Young was enthusiastic about her team's efforts after the first four minutes of the game.

"When we got the right combination into the game to break the press, we did a lot better," Young said. "I thought overall we played a good game. This is the best my kids have played in a long time. Hopefully, it will give them some confidence in the long-run."

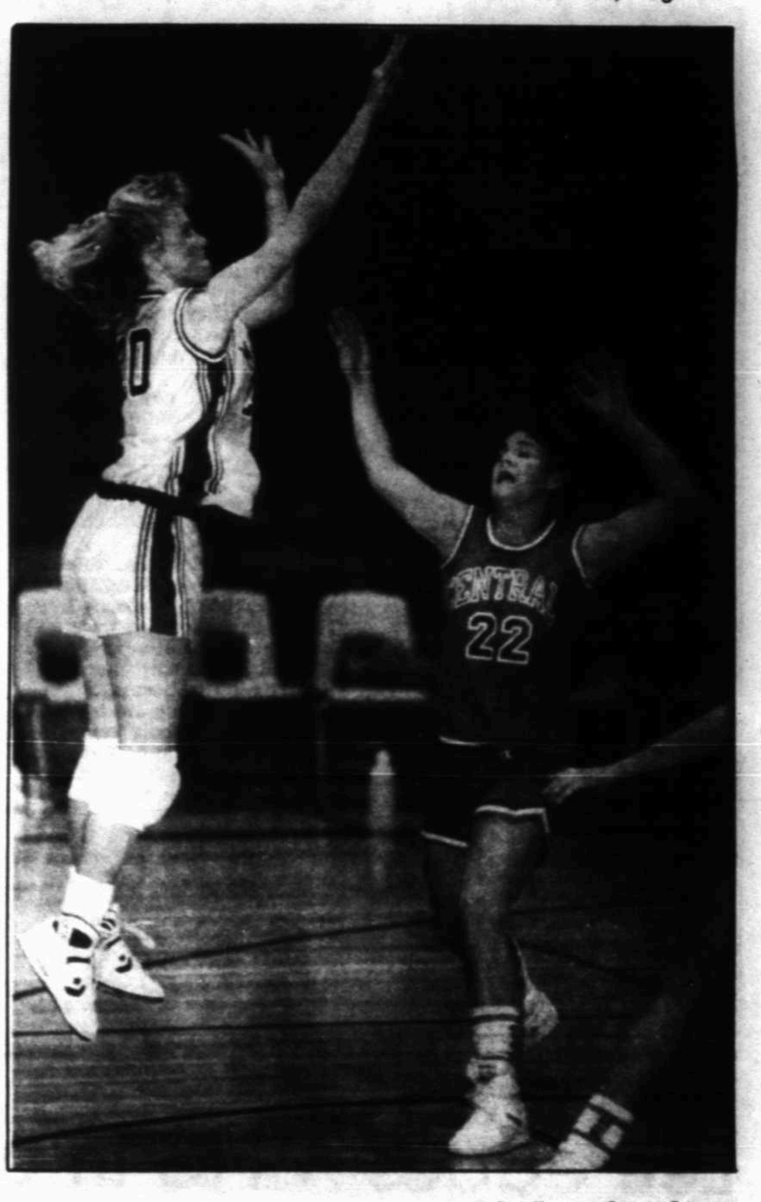

With San Angelo's press held in check, MHS began showing that confidence in the second quarter.

MHS, behind two more buckets from Lee and a pair of jumpers from guard Patricia McMaryion, trimmed San Angelo's advantage to 36-28 going into intermission.

In the end, though, it was SA's ability to call on fire power from anywhere on the floor that determined the final outcome.

Washington collected seven more points in the third quarter while Garlanda Freeze and Angela Kelly each added a pair of buckets as San Angelo extended its lead to 53-42 going into the final period.

Tors maul Tigers in 2-4A contest

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

LAMESA — And it was said this was going to be a down year for the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes.

But after dismantling previously unbeaten Snyder 78-57 in District 2-4A play Tuesday, the seventh-ranked Tors just may be on their way to one of their more successful seasons instead.

In a battle of 2-4A unbeatens, it looked as if only one side brought the artillery — the Tornadoes. And the 7-0 Tors brandished their gunnery in a variety of forms, long-range missiles, quick-hitting drives, short-striking jumpers and finally, most significantly, suffocating, deadly full-court defensive pressure.

The lopsided win left the Tors all alone in their customary spot atop the 2-4A playoff race at 7-0, 17-5. Snyder fell to 5-1.

"We felt the key for us to win was to put the pressure on their guards and cause turnovers with our press," said Lamesa Coach Wayne Roberts. "We sometimes let them get some easy baskets, but then we'd get three or four quick ones. I guess we'll have to live with that."

Lamesa not only lived with it, they romped with it. Snyder came in hoping to break the stranglehold Lamesa has had on the district in recent years, but left realizing they still had a long way to go.

"I expected them to press us really hard the the whole game," said seventh-year Snyder Coach Larry Scott. "What I didn't expect was to turn the ball over so frequently all night. Our press offense broke down and we panicked when things didn't go our way."

Scott shouldn't feel alone. Coaches have been panicking at the sight of the Lamesa coming for years. The Tors had a 61-game District 2-4A winning streak snapped just last season by Andrews but still managed their fifth straight playoff appearance.

But this year Roberts' team was expected to take a step back toward reality with two sophomores and a junior in the starting lineup and a freshman as the first man off the bench.

In '88, you can bet me...

You can bet me....

The team in the Super Bowl will have outstanding quarterbacks. Their running backs you won't be so sure of.

The golf tour will have 26 different winners, 10 of whom you will never have heard of.

Larry Holmes will not pull a Sugar Ray Leonard but will revive the old adage "They never come back."

Someone will notice that, although 5 of the 10 teams in the playoffs in the NFL this year play in domed stadiums, there are only 6 domed stadiums, period. Home-noise advantage will creep into the language. Also the spread.

The Dodgers will continue to get free agents nobody else wants but will be outbid for anybody who can really help.

— The batting titles will be won by Wade Boggs and Tony Gwynn. Again.

— The truce between George Steinbrenner and Billy Martin will last till the Yankees lose a game. It may survive a rain-out.

— Dave Winfield will continue to be the most underrated player in the big leagues.

— Don Mattingly will continue to be the best player in the game and the best left-handed hitter since Stan Musial.

— Bo Jackson will hit 35 home runs, put the Kansas City Royals in the World Series and, by the time he joins the Raiders, they'll be 0-6 and won't care.

— Rodney Peete will win the Heisman Trophy.

— Maury Wills won't make the Hall of Fame again, even though he deserves it as much as some who might and more than some who have.

— Kareem Abdul-Jabbar will turn out to be from another planet.

— The Cardinals will win the pennant, proving again that the home run in baseball, like the long drive in golf, is nice but not necessary.

— Houston will get into the Super Bowl — but not necessarily this year.

— Mike Tyson, like Alexander the Great, will run out of people to fight by his 24th birthday. Unless there's another Depression.

— What's the difference between Tony Tubbs and Tony Tucker? That's what I say, what's the difference?

— The Dallas Cowboys will stage a dramatic comeback. Tom Landry will square his hat and not change expression.

— The Rams will be rumored returning to L.A. if the Raider shift is allowed.

— The San Francisco 49ers will try to win the Super Bowl without getting their uniforms dirty.

— The Rams will find draft choices to be like IOUs from your brother-in-law. They look better than they are. The Colts gave up something they don't have for Eric Dickerson, the Bills gave up something they don't want for Cornelius Bennett and the Rams have a whole bunch of 25th draft choices.

— John McEnroe will announce his retirement from tennis. "You guys won't have John McEnroe to kick around anymore," he will warn, but the reality will be that John McEnroe won't have tennis to kick around anymore. Which may be bad news for his cat.

— The guy who wins the Masters won't win another tournament all year, maybe all century.

— The guy who wins the U.S. Open will announce that God picked his clubs and read the breaks for him. The USGA will hold up his purse to determine whether that was a violation of the rule that says you have to use local caddies.

— Michael Jordan will go up for a flying layup some night and never come down. The refs will decide it's a three-second violation, no basket.

— Bobby Knight will eat a chair.

— Lots of countries want the Olympics now that L.A. has shown there's big bucks in them but if there had been any other bidders for '84, the IOC would have jerked the games out of here.

— Anthony Carter is the best football player, inch for inch, in the NFL.

— The USFL struck out in its lawsuit against the NFL but it ought to get some recompense for the number of fully trained All-Star players it turned over to the Establishment.

— The Raiders will go someplace unless the Coliseum Commission turns over the facility to them and lets them run it. They could do worse. And probably will.

— The Boston Red Sox are really America's team. Don't ask me why, but everybody likes them.

— George Steinbrenner buying a first baseman, Jack Clark, is like North Africa buying sand. What's he going to do? Platoon Don Mattingly?

— If the NFL is going to expand, why doesn't it put a team in Atlanta?

— If a football team doesn't get a good coach, it doesn't matter what else it gets.

— If Magic Johnson isn't the best player in basketball, I'll give you the guy you think is and 10 points.

— Gary Gaetti must hate the Dodgers, all right. He gave up half a million dollars to stay in Minneapolis. He must hate sunshine, too.

— If Chuck Knox ever got a quarterback who was even average, he'd not only get in the Super Bowl, he'd win it. Twice.

— Tim Brown won the Heisman but UCLA will miss Gaston Green more than Notre Dame will miss Tim.

— Never bet against the spread or on the "unders" in the Super Bowl. Or against anything that deals.

— That you'll get a toothache on Saturday night or in a Holiday Inn in Arkansas — or both.

— That the way to make a line move faster is to join the other one.

— That the Olympic Games will turn out more baseball prospects than the Dodgers' farm system. If you don't think so, check the big league rosters for 1984 Olympians. Start with Mark McGwire.

Tech's Hill recalls forgotten day they set NCAA punting record

CLEBURNE (AP) — Milton D. Hill was already a wizened 22-year-old of few illusions or fears by the time he snapped on a leather helmet for the first time for the legendary Pete Cawthon at Texas Tech in 1937.

He'd slipped off the farm in Lexington, Ala., at a tender age in the early 1930s to join the Marines and see the world.

A 5-foot-9, 165-pound scatback, he had spent most of four years in California, where he played for a memorable service football team that opposed, among others, Amos Alonzo Stagg's College of the Pacific powerhouse.

He couldn't have known exactly what he was getting into when he joined forces with the late Cawthon — a stern taskmaster whose difficult training camps were admired by Paul (Bear) Bryant — but at least he knew he'd be prepared.

The Marines have a way of preparing young men.

Of course, even the Marines are capable of missing a trick every now and then.

They couldn't possibly have prepared Hill, Cawthon and the rest of the Red Raiders for one gray, depressing afternoon in Shreveport, La., on Nov. 11, 1939, when Texas Tech and host Centenary played to a 0-0 tie and combined to establish an NCAA record.

On a day when it rained, rained, and rained some more, it also rained with footballs. Punted footballs. Seventy-five punted footballs, to be exact.

Cornell and Penn combined for 51 punts in a game in 1942. The NCAA thought that was a record and carried it on the books as a record until last summer. It's now an ex-record, thanks to Tech and Centenary.

"The NCAA called one day and asked if I'd heard about a Texas Tech-Centenary game in 1939," said Texas Tech sports information director Joe Hornaday. "I said no. they asked me to look it up. They thought there might be some sort of record involved. What I found absolutely amazed me."

It amazed Hill, now a 72-year-old Cleburne resident, even more, because he was one of the Tech punters. He shared kicking duties with Charles Calhoun.

Hill's recollections of that long-ago day are remarkably clear.

"We must have left Lubbock on Friday by train," said Hill, a halfback at Tech from 1937-40. "The game in Shreveport was on Saturday afternoon.

"It had rained hard there for several days. The morning of the game, it was raining. During the game, the rain would come in surges. There would be a deluge of showers, and then the storm would pass through, but it would still rain.

"It rained so hard at times that you couldn't see the stands. There weren't but about 50 people up there. There was water all over the field. Water up to your ankles in spots. It wasn't a field you could run real fast on," he said.

"I fielded most of the punts. I guess I let about a half-dozen go," said Hill.

"Cawthon told me to use my judgment on fielding punts. I was always glad to field punts, but that day the ball was so heavy with water and caked with mud. The officials would wipe it off after ever play, but when it landed in the water on a punt, it was like an egg in a nest. It just sat."

It was not a good day for the passing game. You can't catch what you can't see, he said. It wasn't a particulary good day for the ground game, either. The Gents' Billy (Weenie) Bynum was the leading rusher with most of his team's 31 yards. The Raiders lost eight on the ground as a team.

Many oldtimers claim they enjoyed playing football in the rain. There was no fun to be had in Shreveport, said Hill.

"It's not much fun when you're trying to hold the ball and it's covered with mud," he said.

His and the rest of the Raiders' accomplishments in one very bizarre game in 1939 will be remembered for a very long time.

"I think it's safe to say," said Hornaday, "that 75 punts will stand as a record forever."

CORNER KICK

Lee edges MHS in opener

By PAUL BREITZMAN

The short version of the story is that the Midland Lee soccer team came from behind to defeat Midland High, 3-2, in the season's opener, but the short version does not do justice to a game that saw two changes of the lead and nearly even play for the full 90 minutes.

For the first 15 minutes, the pace was frantic with frequent but badly missed long shots. In the 20th minute, the Bulldogs' first good scoring opportunity came on Shane Barden's breakway, but Lee goalie Scott Johnson's dive at the top of the 18 ended the threat. Four minutes later, a Rebel corner kick was blocked, but not cleared, and, after several minutes, Lee's Sammy Jaso tapped the ball in for a 1-0 lead.

The Bulldogs tied it in the 41st minute when Brian Conaway converted Jeff Fry's low cross with a quick shot from the right corner of the six. Conaway nearly gave Midland the lead 20 seconds before half, but Johnson made the save on his 20-yard rocket.

Lee controlled the first half pace with a simple but effective pressure game that left MHS playing tentatively on defense and hurriedly on offense.

Lee ipcreased the pressure to start the second half, catching the Bulldogs disorganized in transition severa times. In the 48th minute, Arthur Donnelly's breakaway nearly regained the lead for Lee, but centerback Mike Savas was able to run down Donelly to end the threat.

Two minutes later, Donnelly again came close to scoring, but goalkeeper Mike Oliver's charge to the top of 18 ended with a dive to take the ball off Donnelly's feet. In the 62nd minute, Midland took a 2-1 lead when Barden's decoy move on a low corner kick seemed to cause Lee second half goalkeeper Chad Skipper to lose sight of the ball, which deflected off Skipper into the Rebel's own net.

Five minutes later, the Bulldogs returned the favor when Savas, Oliver and the ball collided on Rebel Mike Daugherty's shot, which bounced off Savas into the empty net.

A minute later, Lee's Jody Dunn nailed a hard cross, which just missed one Bulldog defender and the hands of a diving Oliver, but did connect with David Clark, whose open shot from the back post gave Lee a 3-2 lead.

The two quick goals appeared to break a young Bulldog midfield, which for the final 22 minutes of play was consistently caught too far up or too far back.

While Savas and Donnelly entertained a crowd of more than 100 (including a San Angelo scout) with a series of fierce one-on-one duels in the Bulldog end of the field, MHS could not advance from their own end, except by the long ball. Lee central defenders Brian Wojcik and Johnson handled the Bulldogs' unsupported attack and the game ended 3-2.

Player of the game honors went to Lee's Scott Johnson. An effective goal-scoring forward the last two years. Johnson played in goal during the first half, making two spectacular saves, while playing centerback in the second half, helping to settle Lee's defense.

Lee travels to Big Spring Saturday while Midland High hosts the Steers Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Windlands.

FOOTBALL FACTS

STUCK IN A RUT

By finishing 4-12 in 1986, the Green Bay Packers broke their string of three straight 8-8 seasons, which tied the National Football League/American Football League record. This year four teams have a chance to post the same record for the third straight year — Denver (11-5 the last two seasons), New England (11-5), Houston (5-11) and Tampa Bay (2-14).

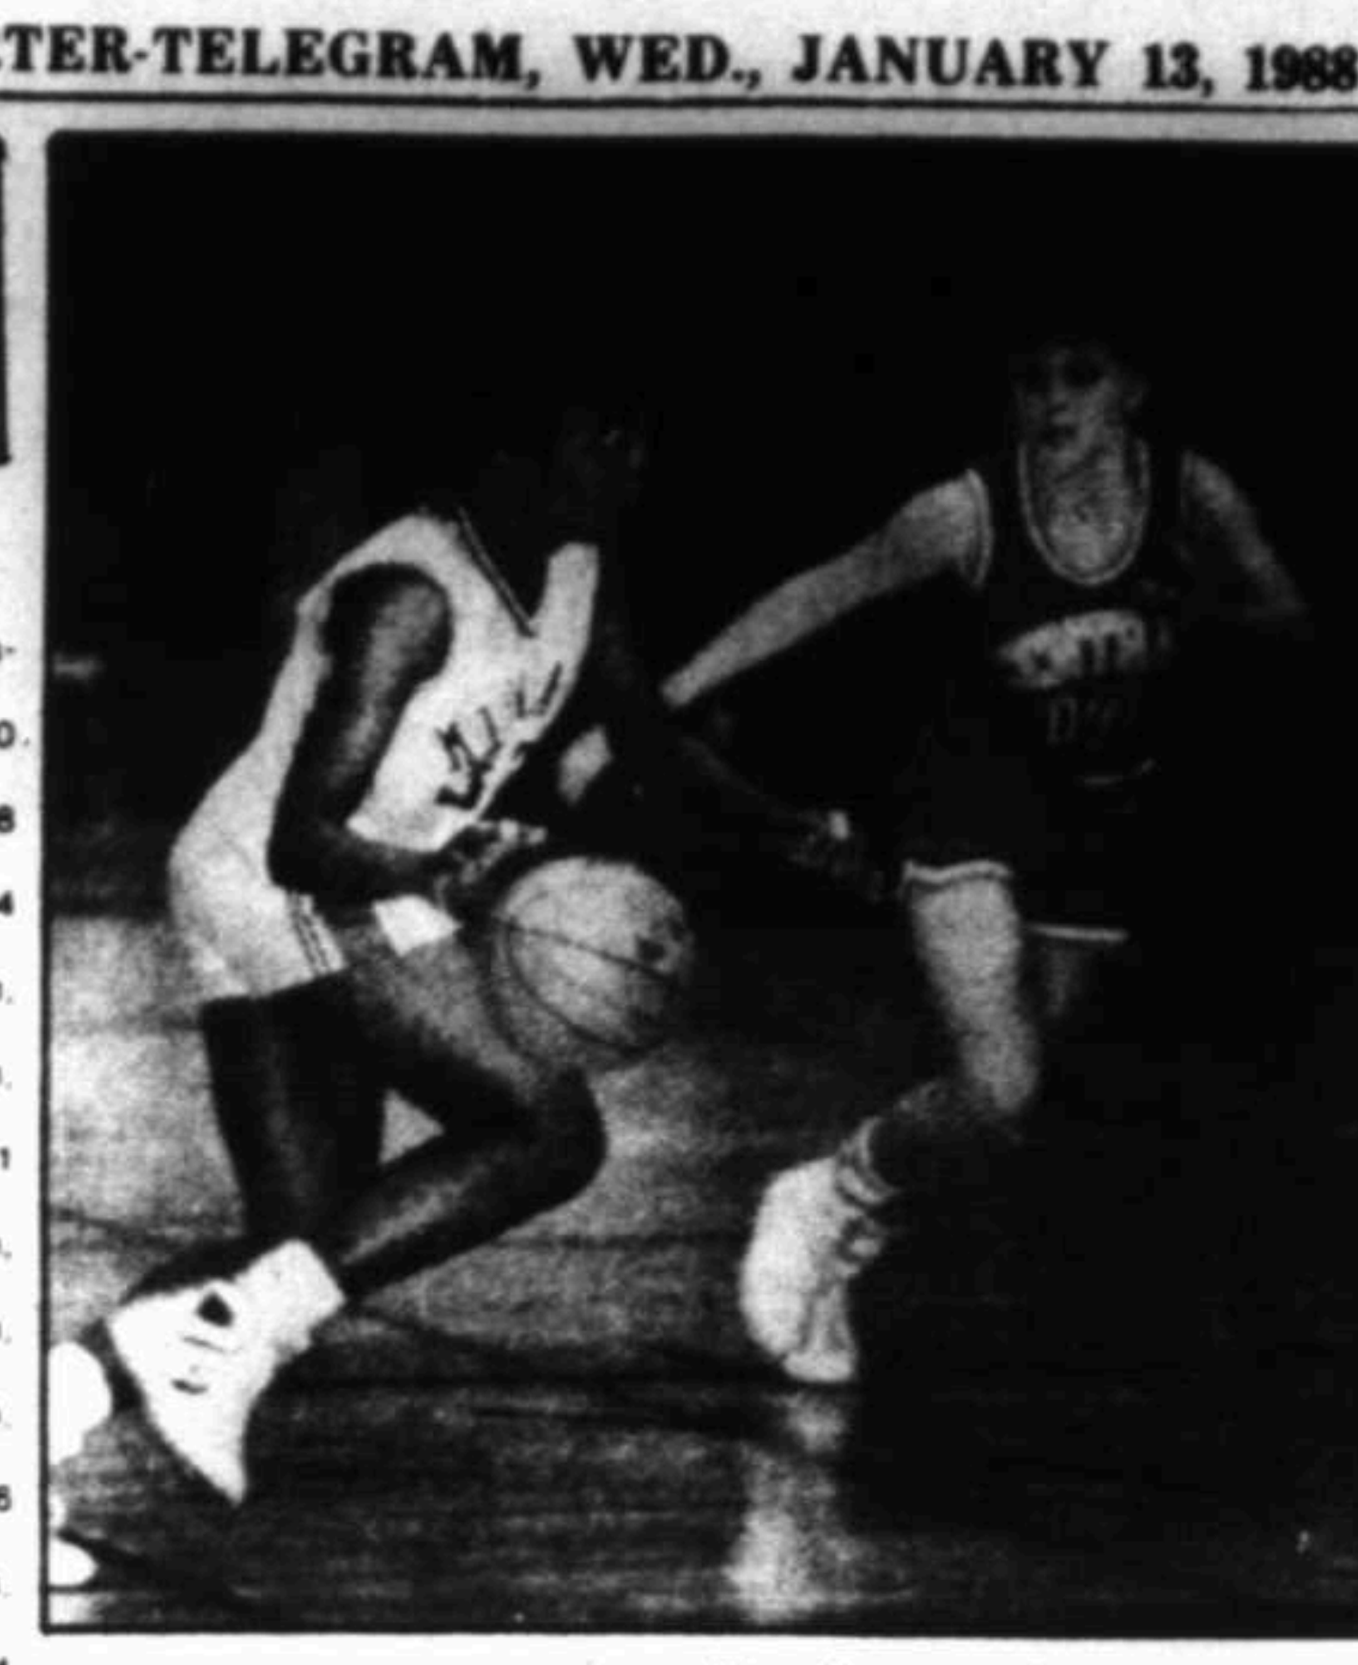

No team in NFL/AFL history can match the New York Jets for wheel-spinning. The Jets went 3-11 in 1975, '76 and '77, 8-8 in '78 and '79 and 7-9 in '83 and '84. Consistency can be overrated.

TEAMS WITH THE SAME RECORD THREE STRAIGHT SEASONS

Scratchpad

OOPS— AP erroneously reported Monday that SWC officials had voted to reverse an earlier decision and allow SMU to keep its 1988 football revenue. But SMU will not receive any 1988 football revenue because the school elected not to compete in 1988 after the NCAA banned the program from competing in 1987 because of a pay-for-play scandal.

MARAVICH AUTOPSY — That Pete Maravich lived to 40 was a surprise, according to a sudden death expert who says the heart ailment that killed the former basketball star usually takes its victims much earlier. An enlarged and weakened heart encumbered with a continuous lack of oxygen to the heart muscle caused the death of Maravich, the Los Angeles County Coroner's Office said Monday. The rare, natural defect usually kills victims before they turn 20, doctors said.

PHOENIX NO — A Phoenix group seeking an expansion franchise since 1980 says it will lobby NFL owners to disapprove any effort by the St. Louis Cardinals to relocate their team in the Phoenix area. "We have spent eight years and over $2 million trying to bring an expansion team to Arizona," said John Colbrunn, a spokesman for NFL Expansion Ltd., which includes Hall of Fame quarterback Bart Starr and ex-American Football League Commissioner Joe Foss. "We feel from now to March 15, we are going to do our best to convince at least eight owners that we and the NFL can be better served by a new, fresh expansion team than a team that has been unsucessful in two other cities."...

BALTIMORE YES? — The Maryland Stadium Authority would guarantee up to 60,000 tickets sold per game under a proposal resubmitted to St. Louis Cardinals owner William V. Bidwill. The Baltimore Sun, quoting sources close to the negotiations, reported that Maryland officials have also agreed to at least 60 skyboxes at the new football-only stadium that would be built at Camden Yards in downtown Baltimore.

DORSETT TRADE— Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry says he'll try to trade Tony Dorsett at the 11-year veteran running back's request, and Dorsett says he'd like to play for San Francisco, Denver or the Rams.

SCRATCH GRID PLAYOFF — A proposed national championship football playoff was overwhelmingly rejected by the nation's major football schools, 98-13. The NCAA's Division I-A football schools and conferences passed a resolution ordering the Postseason Football Subcommittee, which had proposed a one-game playoff on a trial basis, to "discontinue its consideration" of a possible playoff format. "This means we will not discuss a I-A championship in the immediate future," said DeLoss Dodds, AD Texas and chairman of the subcommittee.

Instead, the Tors have won 15 of their last 16 games, and are gelling as the district race hits full stride.

Again, the Masons, cousins Cedric and Dwight, led the Lamesa charge, scoring 50 points between them. Cedric, the senior, landed 28 and grabbed 11 rebounds, while Dwight, the sophomore, hit for 22 points.

But it was the entire Lamesa line-up that put the blitz on the aspiring Tigers of Snyder. Right from the start, the Tors' pressure forced the bigger, slower Tigers into slews of turnovers and an early seven-point lead.

More pressure, more steals and a bigger lead marked the second quarter.

In the third quarter, the Lamesa press really kicked in. Snyder would go two, sometimes three possessions before they got the ball past midcourt and the Tors rolled the lead up well into double-digits.

"We really were expecting a close game all the way," Roberts said. "And we would have had it if Snyder had handled the defensive pressure better. They've got some very talented players in the front court — you have to try to keep them from beating you."

Snyder got its usual offensive games from its frontcourt, including 21 points from Terry Garza, 13 from Tracy Braziel and 17 from Trey Tippens, the 6-5 post who is also considered one of the state's blue chip linebacking prospects.

But on the hardcourt, it's Lamesa where the prospects are coming from like Cedric Mason, brother of Texas Tech guard Jerry Mason and Angelo State's Chris Mason.

Roberts has loads of talent in his underclassmen as well. Dwight Mason and 6-1 post Lavert Hawkins are sophomores.

Odessa takes over first in 4-5A race

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Odessa High took over sole possession of first place in the District 4-5A basketball race here Tuesday night with a 60-39 trouncing of the Odessa Permian Panthers.

OHS now owns a perfect 3-0 loop record and is the only unbeaten team in the league, following Midland High's loss to San Angelo Tuesday night. Permian fell to 1-2 with the loss.

The Bronchos pumped in seven three-pointers and held Permian to a meager nine points in the entire second half of play.

Derrick Ellis led OHS with 20 points while Lester White had 19. Ronald Walton and Chris Enriquez each had 11 points for Permian.

Odessa High now hosts San Angelo in a key district game Friday while Permian travels to Abilene Cooper.

Bobcats beat Bulldogs

From Staff Reports

SAN ANGELO — Collin Burdine sank a three-pointer near the end of the third quarter to spur a 19-8 run and help San Angelo hand Midland High its first loss of the 4-5A season, 76-69 Tuesday.

Burdine's three-pointer gave the Bobcats, 1-1, a 56-47 lead at the end of three quarters and cracked open a two-point ballgame. San Angelo pulled away to a 13-point lead before MHS made an 8-0 run to get within five, 62-57, but could never erase that margin.

Despite the loss, the Bulldogs, 2-1, are still alone in second place behind unbeaten Odessa High, 3-0.

Greg Lewis of MHS led all scorers with 19 points while Eric Boyt and Varrick McDonald each added 11 for the Bulldogs. Tom Englert scored 18 for San Angelo while Burdine tossed in 15. Three of Burdine's six buckets were three-pointers.

The Bronchos maintained their grip on first place in the district with a 60-39 win over crosstown rival Odessa Permian Tuesday. Midland Lee was also a winner with a 53-45 win over Abilene Cooper.

Midland High will host Abilene High Friday in a game with early front-runner ramifications in District 4-5A while Lee will take its open date.

Cooper girls beat Lee, 69-42

From Staff Reports

ABILENE — Midland Lee's Lady Rebels suffered a key District 4-5A basketball blow here Tuesday night in a 69-42 loss to the Abilene Cooper Cougars.

The loss dropped Lee to 3-2 in district play while Cooper and San Angelo have moved to the front of the league standings with 4-0 marks.

Cooper hit Lee from every direction as Kelly Huff led the way with 19 points. The Cougars also got 14 points from Wendy Hill and 13 each from Liz Greer and Paula Scott.

The Lady Rebs had little to counter with as Monica Ramirez was the only Rebel to hit in double figures with 17 points.

Odessa High defeated Permian 53-43 Tuesday as the Lady Bronchos captured their first district win of the year. Abilene High was open.

With Midland's defense extended to stop Washington, Freeze and Kelly, the passing lanes opened up for San Angelo early in the fourth period.

SA post Michelle Manning became the benefactor of the open floor, continually finding room in the paint enroute to collecting nine points in the stanza.

Manning's effort provided San Angelo with a 66-46 lead at the 2:02 mark, prompting both coaches to clear their benches and allow the reserves to finish the game.

Manning finished the game with 14 points to follow Washington in the scoring column while Kelly and Freeze also recorded double-digits with 12 and 11, respectively.

Lee led the Lady Bulldogs with 12 while McMaryion managed 11.

MHS returns to District 4-5A action Friday, travelling to Abilene to face the 3-13, 1-3 Abilene High Lady Eagles in a battle for fifth-place at the midway point of the district season.

Midland then takes a break from district action Monday to travel to New Mexico for a game against Carlsbad.

LEE

Cooper held a 24-15 lead with 32 seconds left before the half as Tom Toney scored all nine of his points, but it could have been worse. In the first period, the Cougars hit only three of 18 points, losing a chance to take advantage of a huge rebound margin in the period.

Mitch Royals was the only Cooper player to hit double digits with 14 points. Cooper is playing this season without junior star Scotty Pugh, who was forced to give up the season with a football injury.

"We play a team that has won only four games this year and they are still taller than we are," said Stueckler. "I don't guess we're going to face anyone smaller than us."

Lee will now have some extra time to prepare for a road game against Odessa Permian next Tuesday.

More than 260 passengers and crew members were safely evacuated from this Canadian Airlines DC-10.

Canadian jet lands safely after written bomb threat

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — A Canadian jumbo jet bound from Amsterdam to Vancouver with 263 people aboard landed safely after a written bomb threat was found on board, and a search turned up no explosives.

Authorities questioned the 250 passengers on the Canadian Airlines International DC-10 and took fingerprints from them before they were allowed to proceed to their destinations Tuesday night.

Sgt. John Metcalfe of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police said one of the flight's 13 crew members found the note in a washroom and gave it to the pilot when Flight 43 was about 30 minutes from a scheduled stop at Edmonton.

Duncan Fischer, western vice president of the airline, said the letter warned that the plane would be blown up unless a large sum of money was paid. He wouldn't say how much money was demanded.

The note demanded that the flight proceed directly to Vancouver and said the bomb would be detonated if the plane flew below 15,000 feet, Fischer said.

He said airline officials now believe it was a hoax, but at the time, "you just have to take these things seriously."

The plane landed and all 250 passengers were taken to a holding area for questioning.

They weren't told of the threatening note until they landed. The first hint of trouble was when the pilot's voice cut into the in-flight movie to ask if the person leaving a note wanted to come forward. No one did.

Police formed a cordon around the plane more than a mile from the terminal. Passengers descended to the runway and police searched both the aircraft and the luggage on board. Trained dogs sniffed for explosives.

No explosives were found and no suspects were detained, according to police and officials of the federal transportation department, known as Transport Canada. Passengers continuing on to Vancouver were diverted to a different aircraft.

Canadian Airlines International, a private company formerly called CP Air, is Canada's second largest air carrier after state-owned Air Canada. It operates scheduled services to 15 countries.

Gorbachev guiding reforms to June party conference

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev said he is steering his reforms between radicals on one side and conservatives on the other to a June party conference that will consider electoral and judical reforms, Tass reported.

The party conference, a rare gathering of leaders between the congresses held every five years, is expected to give Gorbachev a chance to put his stamp on the leadership and its program.

The Soviet leader told writers and artists Friday in a meeting at the Communist Party Central Committee that proponents of "ultra-perestroika" such as Boris N. Yeltsin proved incapable of leadership. Perestroika signifies Gorbachev's attempts to restructure Soviet economy and politics.

In comments released Tuesday by the official Tass news agency, he said conservative opponents were against greater democracy in Soviet life.

Gorbachev credited his policies with improving the international climate through signing of an agreement with President Reagan to ban medium-range nuclear weapons, but added "no breakthrough has as yet taken place."

He chided unidentified journalists for sensationalism and personal ambition that turned some publications into "private shops."

In an apparent reference to Josef Stalin, however, he stoutly defended revelations about Soviet history. Gorbachev accused Stalin of "enormous and unforgivable" crimes in a Nov. 2 speech reviewing Soviet history.

Yeltsin, a proponent of Gorbachev's effort to restructure and open up Soviet society, was fired as Moscow party leader in mid-November after he criticized the party leadership and the pace of reform at a Central Committee meeting in October.

Referring to that session, Gorbachev said "the ultra-perestroika phraseology proved to be helpless. Representatives of the 'revolutionary' phrase have neither composure, nor readiness to assume responsibility, the onus of stubborn and lengthy work in order to move our society to new frontiers."

Turning to critics who say his reforms undermine the foundations of Soviet socialism, Gorbachev asked: "By what are they being undermined? By people's movement, by their activity aimed at handling more confidently the affairs in the country where they are the masters?"

The Soviet leader said, "Already now we see that questions of democracy in Soviet society will be the main, central problems. We shall cover everything here, including the electoral system, judicial reform, the perfection of control organs in the country, etc."

It was not clear if his reference to "control organs" meant police and state security organizations or party groups that enforce discipline.

In June 1987, voters were given a choice of candidates in several thousand of the Soviet Union's 52,000 local electoral districts.

In an interview published in Prague, Czechoslovakia, last week, Soviet propagandist Nikolai Shishlin said multicandidate elections should be held even for senior party posts and no party official should be kept in office for life.

Vladimir Terebilov, chairman of the Soviet Supreme Court, said last month in an interview with the Communist Party newspaper Pravda that judicial reforms should include stronger legal defense for citizens and less pretrial detention.

Gorbachev said his restructuring drive still was in its early phases.

Commission says prisoners often mistreated until Korean protests

GENEVA (AP) — The International Commission of Jurists said mistreatment of political prisoners was widespread in South Korea until the torture death of a student stirred massive anti-government protests there last year.

A detailed study on the human rights situation in South Korea cited reports that violations of prisoners' rights "have almost disappeared" since the death in South Korea of student Park Chong-chul on Jan. 14, 1987. But the report also pointed to doubts that this change is permanent.

The 95-page report was compiled by a three-man International Commission of Jurists mission after a 19-day visit to South Korea in April.

The Foreign Ministry in Seoul had no immediate response to the report, which was released Tuesday.

Its publication was delayed "as it was not its purpose to influence" last month's presidential elections in South Korea, the commission said.

On Dec. 19, South Korea held its first direct presidential elections in 16 years, and Roh Tae-woo, the governing party candidate, won.

The government agreed to hold the election after weeks of anti-government protests that occurred nationwide after the student's killing.

"For instance, the fact that several interrogation rooms have a bathtub appears to support the accusation that water torture is used systematically by some sections of the investigating police," they added.

"There is reliable evidence that until January 1987, about nine out every 10 persons detained by the police for politically motivated activities were beaten," the report said.

The authors of the report sacd'that while the government presented the killing of Park as an isolated incident, the use of torture and other maltreatment seemed "in fact quite usual and practiced at least with the silent toleration of high- ranking officers in the government."

Troops kill knife-wielding Moslem

JERUSALEM (AP) — Troops killed a Moslem fundamentalist who charged them with a knife, and four Palestinians ordered expelled from the occupied lands dropped their appeals, calling the military review of their cases a sham.

In another development, a top U.N. official, in Israel to investigate conditions in the occupied lands, was turned away Tuesday from refugee camps in the Gaza Strip by Israeli troops and Arab rioters. The incident drew expressions of concern from the White House and the State Department.

As violence again plagued the troubled Gaza Strip on Tuesday, authorities clamped a curfew on all but one of the area's eight refugee camps, news reports said. The army confirmed curfews were imposed on at least five camps.

Scattered disturbances were reported in Gaza, although strict curfews and heavy rains appeared to reduce the size and intensity of protests.

In the day's most violent incident, Israeli troops shot and killed a knife-wielding Palestinian who attacked a soldier, wounding him slightly, an army spokesman said.

The spokesman said the man, Muhammed Yusuf El Yazouri, 30, a member of the Moslem fundamentalist Islamic Jihad organization, was suspected of trying to force an Israeli bus off a cliff by attacking its driver.

The shooting in the southern Gaza town of Rafah brought to 32 the official death toll in five weeks of riots and unrest in the occupied Gaza Strip and West Bank, which Israel seized in the 1967 Middle East War.

About 2,000 Arabs have been arrested since violent riots erupted in the West Bank and Gaza Strip Dec. 8. Authorities have defied fierce international protest by ordering nine Arabs deported for allegedly leading the rioting.

Four of the nine Palestinians said Tuesday they had dropped their appeals because the military review of their cases was an "illegal charade."

Jawwad Boulos, an attorney for the prisoners, said they made their decisions after the army refused to reveal major portions of the evidence against them and barred family members from the hearings.

"They have an absolute lack of confidence that they will receive any justice under this system," Boulos told a news conference in east Jerusalem. "They said they cannot lend legitimacy to what has clearly become an illegal charade by participating in this game."

Boulos said the appeals were withdrawn during a closed-door session Monday at Juneid prison in the West Bank.

An army spokesman said a military review board in Gaza had upheld orders against four Palestinians there, but did not elaborate.

According to Israeli law, the deportees have the right to appeal to the country's Supreme Court if the military review board denies their appeals.

Israel has provoked sharp criticism from many countries, including the United States, over its decision to deport the nine Arabs. A U.N. Security Council resolution called on Israel to cancel the deportation order.

Officials in Washington again expressed concern Tuesday, this time over reports that Marrack Goulding, the U.N. undersecretary general for special political affairs, was shut out of Gaza's Jabliya and Shati refugee camps by soldiers who told him the areas were closed.

When authorities impose a closure order on an area, entries and exits are barred but life inside remains normal. When an area is placed under curfew, soldiers are empowered to shoot any resident who leaves his home.

"We hope the Israeli government will allow Mr. Goulding...to do the job for which he was sent," Charles Redman, State Department spokesman, said.

Marlin Fitzwater, White House spokesman, told reporters: "We hope they (the Israelis) will be able to work that out and he'll be able to visit."

Goulding later tried to enter the Mughazi camp in Gaza, but left after a crowd of Palestinians blocked the entrance with burning barrels and pelted his white U.N. car with rocks.

Fighting for life 'routine' at refugee clinic

By KARIN LAUB

JABALIYA, Occupied Gaza Strip (AP) — Doctors at a U.N. clinic in this Arab refugee camp frantically tried to revive a 19-year-old pregnant woman they said fell unconscious after Israeli soldiers fired tear gas into her home.

Elsewhere in the clinic, medics set fractures, bandaged bullet wounds and attended to coughing tear gas victims, all injured in clashes between camp residents and Israeli soldiers.

Outside, the violence raged.

Shots rang in the distance. Near the clinic, a dozen angry, rain-soaked Palestinian women pelted two army jeeps with rocks and shouted curses.

"Every day it's like this. For us, this is just a routine morning," said a doctor who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Jabaliya, the largest Gaza Strip refugee camp with 60,000 residents, has become a center of resistance to Israeli occupation. Since the riots began Dec. 8, the army has clamped several curfews on the camp.

Marrack Goulding, a U.N. undersecretary general on a fact-finding mission, was turned away by soldiers when he tried to enter Jabaliya on Tuesday. The soldiers said the camp was a military area closed to civilians. Another curfew at night kept residents inside their homes.

At the clinic, chaos reigned through the morning as a stream of ambulances and private cars delivered casualties, and doctors tried to keep shouting relatives out of the crowded emergency room.

Israel's army presents a show of force at the Askar Refugee Camp, north of Nablus on the Israeli-occupied West Bank.

Miriam Haw, 45, cried as doctors tried to resuscitate her daughter Attaf, 19. Attaf, who is two months pregnant, was transferred to a Gaza City hospital after doctors stabilized her pulse.

"Every day for the last four days, the soldiers have attacked my house because it's right on the main road," said Mrs. Haw.

People living on Jabaliya's main road, where clashes are frequent, say soldiers often burst into their homes chasing protesters.

As Mrs. Haw spoke, a doctor attended to another daughter, 18-year-old Awatef, who said she was beaten with clubs when soldiers stormed the house. Caked blood smeared her neck and deep cuts were visible on her head.

Army officials denied reports of brutality by soldiers against women, and said complaints of beatings are investigated immediately.

"It is hard to comment on such accusations," said an army official, speaking on condition of anonymity in keeping with army regulations.

"I don't know exactly what happens at the site, but soldiers are warned not to go near Moslem women," he said. "But if the women are holding a hand grenade or a stick, and the soldier is in great danger, he may act like a man was in front of him."

During a four-hour period Tuesday, doctors said they treated 23 casualties, including two gunshot wounds, three fractures, and the remainder victims of beatings and people overcome by tear gas.

Many residents said they are running low on food, mainly because most of the men no longer bring in money from jobs as day laborers in Israel. The men stay home either because of strikes enforced by roving bands of stone-throwing youths or curfews.

"I haven't had food in the house for nine days," said Mrs. Haw. She said she had not eaten breakfast. The day before, Mrs. Haw said, she and her eight children ate once, a meal of cooked corn washed down with tea.

Mrs. Haw said her 17-year-old son, the family's sole breadwinner, hadn't reported to his job at an Israeli flour factory since Dec. 9.

The U.N. Relief and Works Agency, which provides services to refugees, on Monday expanded its supplementary feeding program for children, said the agency's acting director in Gaza, Angela Williams.

Previously, only 3- to 6-year-olds were eligible, but now children are covered until age 10.

About 300 children clutching green ration cards waited in lines outside the center Tuesday.

Car bomb kills two in Colombian town

MEDELLIN, Colombia (AP) — A car bomb exploded early today, killing two people, wounding five others and leaving a 16-foot-deep crater in front of an apartment building frequented by a reputed cocaine baron, officials said.

Mayor William Jaramillo Gomez said the bomb blew up in front of the Monaco apartment building in fashionable El Poblado neighborhood. The building is owned by a relative of Pablo Escobar Gaviria.

U.S. federal authorities have charged that Escobar Gaviria heads the Medellin Cartel, a drug smuggling ring blamed for as much as 80 percent of all the cocaine entering the United States.

The blast left a hole in the street 16 feet deep and 23 feet wide, tore open water mains and caused damage within a half-mile.

Haitian strike called

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Opposition leaders called for a general strike on Thursday to protest next week's election, and said the junta-run balloting would only aggravate Haiti's political crisis.

Mark Bazin, a strike organizer, said it had the support of a broad-based coalition of trade unions, human rights associations, and student, peasant and labor groups, in addition to the backing of the four front-runners from the aborted November presidential election.

Bazin was one of four leading presidential candidates in the Nov. 29 election, which was canceled hours after it began when thugs killed at least 34 people in machete and rifle attacks at polling places.

The military run junta dismissed the independent Electoral Council that ran the election, appointed a new council and scheduled a new election for Sunday.

Peace could take time

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — A panel monitoring compliance with the Central American peace plan on Friday will tell the presidents who signed the accord they should have more time to end the area's three civil wars, sources said.

The International Verification and Follow-Up Commission also will recommend that a new verification system be adopted for the peace plan, said the sources.

The sources, familiar with the panel's closed-door meeting in Panama City, said the recommendations are contained in a report to be presented to the presidents of Nicaragua, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras.

NOTICE OF BOND ELECTION

THE STATE OF TEXAS

COUNTY OF MIDLAND

TO THE RESIDENT QUALIFIED ELECTORS OF MIDLAND COUNTY, TEXAS:

TAKE NOTICE that an election will be held in Midland County, Texas, on the 30th day of January, 1988, in accordance with an order adopted by the Commissioners' Court which is a part of this notice for all purposes and reads as follows:

AN ORDER by the Commissioners' Court of Midland County, Texas calling a bond election to be held within said County, making provision for the conduct of the election and resolving other matters incident and related to the holding of such election.

WHEREAS, the Commissioners' Court of Midland County, Texas, hereby finds that an election should be held to determine whether said governing body shall be authorized to issue bonds of said County in the amount and for the purpose hereinafter identified and that it is in the public interest to hold the election on a date that is not a uniform election date; therefore,

BE IT ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED BY THE COMMISSIONERS' COURT OF MIDLAND COUNTY, TEXAS:

SECTION 1: An election shall be held on the 30th day of January, 1988, in Midland County, Texas, which date is not less than fifteen (15) nor more than ninety (90) days from the date of the adoption hereof, for the purpose of submitting the following measure:

"SHALL the Commissioners' Court of Midland County, Texas, be authorized to issue bonds of said County in the principal amount of $3,800,000 for the purpose of purchasing, constructing, and providing county jail facilities and acquiring the necessary site therfore; such bonds to mature serially or otherwise over a period not to exceed FORTY (40) years from their date, to be issued in one or more series at any price or prices and to bear interest at any rate or rates (fixed, floating, variable or otherwise and not exceed the maximum rate prescribed by law) as shall be determined within the discretion of the Commissioners' Court at the time of issuance or sale of the bonds; and whether ad valorem taxes shall be levied upon all taxable property in the County sufficient to pay the annual interest and provide a sinking fund to pay the bonds at maturity?"

SECTION 2: Voting machines shall be used at the polling place(s) on the day of the election and for absentee voting by personal appearance. Paper ballots shall be used for absentee voting by mail. The voting machines shall be arranged and the paper ballots prepared in accordance with V.A.T.S., Election Code, and permit electors to vote "FOR" or "AGAINST" the aforesaid measure(s) which shall appear on the ballot substantially as follows:

"THE ISSUANCE OF $3,800,000 GENERAL OBLIGATION BONDS FOR COUNTY JAIL FACILITIES"

SECTION 3: The County shall be divided into thirty-six (36) election precincts for this election and the polling places designated for each election precinct and the persons hereby appointed to serve as Presiding Judge and Alternate Presiding Judge for each polling place are shown in Exhibit "A", which is attached hereto and incorporated herein by reference as a part hereof for all purposes.

Each Presiding Judge shall appoint not less than two (2) nor more than five (5) qualified clerks to serve and assist in holding said election; provided that if the Presiding Judge herein appointed actually serves, the Alternate Presiding Judge shall be one of the clerks.

On election day, the polls shall be open from 7:00 A.M. to 7:00 P.M.

Absentee voting shall be conducted at the Geunty Election Administrator's Office at 709 West Washington Avenue, Midland, Texas 79701 (the main absentee polling place), in accordance with the provisions of V.A.T.S. Election Code.

For purposes of processing absentee voting results, the following persons are appointed to the Absentee Ballot Board for this election: Robert J. Paxton, Presiding Judge and Evelyn Gould, Clerk.

SECTION 4: All resident qualified electors of the County shall be permitted to vote at said election, and on the day of the election, such electors shall vote at the polling place designated for the County Election Precinct in which they reside. This election shall be held and conducted in accordance with the Texas Election Code and Chapter 1 of Title 22, V.A.T.C.S., and as may be required by law, all election materials and proceedings shall be printed in both English and Spanish.

SECION 5: A substantial copy of this order shall serve as proper notice of said election. Said notice, including a Spanish translation thereof, shall be posted at three (3) public places within the County and at the County Courthouse not less than fourteen (14) full days prior to the date on which said election is to be held, and be published on the same day in each of two successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in said County, the first of said publications to appear in said newspaper not more than thirty (30) days and not less than fourteen (14) days prior to the day of the election.

PASSED AND APPROVED, this the 14th day of December, 1987.

William B. Ahders
County Judge
Midland County, Texas
