English Probe International Bombings

SOUTHAMPTON, England (UPI) — Police investigating possible international links to a 400-pound cache of arms have sealed off Southampton's eastern docks and begun a stem-to-stern search of ships, including the Queen Elizabeth II.

Police sealed off Southampton's eastern docks today in an effort to determine if the IRA was using transatlantic ships to smuggle in arms for distribution elsewhere in England.

Police sources speculated that the liner may have been used as a major carrier of smuggled IRA arms and explosives from the United States.

Two kitchen porters aboard the vessel were arrested and jailed three years ago for smuggling guns and hand grenades into Britain for the IRA.

Forensic tests will be conducted to determine if the explosives were part of the same batch used in a series of London bombings that have killed six persons and injured more than 90 since August.

Police have pointed to Southampton as the IRA's explosives center since an IRA bomb factory was discovered here last December. The six persons inside the factory escaped after shooting a policeman in the stomach.

Under the anti-IRA prevention of terrorism laws, suspects can be held without charge for up to seven days.

The amount of explosives discovered was enough to manufacture 80 bombs similar to those used in London, police said.

To Bolster World Economy

RAMBOUILLET, France (UPI) — President Ford said today he and the leaders of five allied industrial nations have agreed on measures to bolster the world's sagging economy and are confident of "full recovery" from the worst recession in 40 years.

Winding up three days of economic summit talks in the historic Rambouillet castle, Ford and the leaders of France, West Germany, Britain, Japan and Italy agreed that the twin ills of recession and inflation are being cured.

Several days has been our recognition that the objective of sustained, stable economic growth will be facilitated by our common effort," Ford said.

Similar closing statements were made at the ceremony by his summit partners, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and Prime Ministers Harold Wilson of Britain, Takeo Miki of Japan and Aldo Moro of Italy.

Issues of concern to the industrialized world and challenging to our democratic society," he said.

The menu for the lunch served President Ford and other participants in the economic summit today.

Brioche d'oeufs brouilles aux truffes (eggs with truffles in pastry).

Poularde de Bresse sautee a l'Indienne (curried chicken). Riz nature (boiled rice). Pommes en l'air (potato puffs). Salade panachee (mixed salad). Charlotte aux pommes (crumbled apple tart).

May Debate Land Tax Shelters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional liberals are squaring off with the House Rules Committee on a multimillion-dollar decision whether to toughen provisions of a major tax reform bill.

The crucial decision before the Rules Committee is: Will liberals be allowed to offer a series of amendments to increase the tax bite on the well-to-do?

Capital loss carryback that could provide Texas millionaire H. Ross Perot with a $15 million tax refund.

Liberal opponents of the bill are expected to offer amendments to increase the tax bite on the well-to-do.

Recess starting after the close of business Thursday.

The tax reform battle is unlikely to affect passage of the tax cut provision. It already is a foregone conclusion the Senate Finance Committee will split the bill into two parts so the tax cut may be passed quickly and sent to President Ford.

The rest of the bill would be considered next year.

The bill, as approved by Ways and Means, also would continue the 1975 personal income tax cuts but does not contain the spending ceiling demanded by President Ford as his price for approving the tax reductions.

Carter Beats Wallace

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter calls his lopsided victory over George Wallace in the Florida presidential preference straw poll "an obvious test of strength."

Appear at the convention, was second with 60 votes. Wallace was third with 57.

Contacted at his Plains, Ga., home, Carter said he was "very pleased" with the results of the poll, which he called "an obvious test of strength."

The Carter bandwagon at the state Democratic convention Sunday polled 697 votes or 66.4 per cent of the 1,035 delegates at the convention.

The liberals also want to restore a withholding tax on U.S. investments of foreigners, speed the tightening of social tax breaks for exporters and eliminate a special, three-year

ABA recommendations have no binding effect on President Ford, who may select someone not on the list. But the Senate will seek an ABA recommendation on whoever is nominated.

ABA committee chairman Warren Christopher, a former deputy attorney general now practicing law in Los Angeles, refused to speculate on how the committee would view any individual candidate.

Political experience is highly valuable, but it is no substitute for professional experience," Christopher said Sunday.

Seminar Set For Tonight

The estate planning seminar scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday has been changed to 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Gray County Courthouse Annex.

He said those voting in the straw poll were "working people from all over Florida, even the Panhandle (northwest Florida), and not party professionals."

The right to a fair and impartial trial is what it is all about," he emphasized.

Penalty upon conviction, can range from 2 to 20 years in the penitentiary, and a fine not to exceed $10,000.

McPherson explained that if a defendant has never been convicted of a proper crime he is eligible for probation. He said Smith has filed an application for probation.

McPherson said the trial was expected to require at least a day.

USDA Okays Ag Loans For Emergencies Here

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has authorized Gray County as an area from which loan applications can be filed.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe notified Gray County Judge Don Cain today the authorization for Gray county came as a result of a request by the Gray County Commissioners Court in August.

The request was accompanied by statements in regard to the need from other county governmental officials.

James A. Bostic Jr., acting assistant secretary for rural development in Washington said loan applications may be received through Dec. 22, 1975, for physical losses and July 23, 1976, for production losses from eligible farmers in both Gray and Armstrong counties.

Bostic said the action was taken "because of hailstorms May 22 and 28 and June 16 and 23, 1975, excessive rainfall with flooding May 28, 1975, excessive rainfall, July 7 and 9, 1975, and a windstorm and sandstorm June 18, 1975 in Armstrong County and hailstorms March 27, May 12, and 28, June 19, and July 13, 1975, excessive rainfall, May 28 to June 23, 1975, flooding May 28, 1975, tornados May 28, 1975, and windstorms June 16, 18, and 19, 1975 in Gray County."

Officials here said in August that emergency credit would be essential to keep many Gray County farmers operating.

Their statements forwarded to Briscoe pointed to the thousands of acres of farmland damaged by hails, floods, windstorms, excessive rains and tornados.

The report showed that 55 per cent of 209,000 acres of farmland in this county were affected by the disasters.

An estimated 80 per cent of the county was affected by hailstorms, while 20 per cent received damage on several occasions from excessive rainfall.

Judge Cain enclosed statements from Robert A. Keown, county supervisor with the USDA, Rex McNalley, former president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, Foster Whaley, county extension agent, and J.D. Skaggs, farmer and chairman of the Extension program building committee.

McPherson said the trial was expected to require at least a day.

Spanish Prince Reveals New Language Reforms

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco's battle against death reached the one-month mark today. Doctors said he was in improved but "very grave" condition and noted slow progress in his recovery from a third emergency operation.

The language decree, which took effect immediately, legalized the use of regional languages in newspapers, broadcasts, meetings and provincial and municipal councils.

In his 36 years of authoritarian rule, Franco had forbidden official use of such languages, creating widespread dissension among Spain's regional populations.

The medical prognosis came as Franco's successor, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, appeared to have set in motion his own program for post-Franco change in Spain by removing the generalissimo's restriction of the use of regional languages.

It was clearly a move to win popular support and ease national tensions in preparation for the post-Franco period.

The newspaper Nuevo Diario praised the prince and the decree in an editorial containing the words "democracy, freedom, justice" in various regional languages.

A 1:30 p.m. (7:30 a.m. EST) medical bulletin said Franco's postoperative course after Friday's stomach surgery "progresses without incident," with signs that the inflammation of his abdominal lining was "receding slowly."

La Paz Hospital announced the 82-year-old Franco had improved from "the gravest" to "very grave" condition. His withered body was kept alive only by machines, touching off growing debate on the ethics of such artificial life support.

It said the new law "will do more for the unity of the nation than all the pompous speeches of past years."

The Roman Catholic newspaper Ya asked in a front page editorial Sunday if "it was really necessary to stretch to that point the scientific possibilities of fighting death and causing new traumas for the chief of state."

The decree was Juan Carlos' second attempt in two weeks to defuse minority unrest. Last week he called for a commission to study ways to return a measure of economic autonomy to the Basques of northern Spain.

Aid To Vietnam?

Even the most insensitive of statesmen could recognize the invitation that North and South Vietnam are issuing to the United States of America. The communists have taken great pains in recent months to let the United States know they are eager to implement Chapter 8 of the agreement which ended our role in the Indochina war — the provision which says the United States will contribute to the postwar reconstruction of both Vietnams if other promises are kept.

As early as last June Pham Van Dong himself took the initiative, with an announcement that North Vietnam was "ready to pursue a resumption in relations with the United States" provided we gave them aid North Vietnam, the premier said, in return would live up to its promise of 1973 to furnish a prompt accounting of the Americans missing in action in Indochina.

Once stung, twice shy. When the United States reacted coolly, North and South Vietnam took a number of other steps to exhibit their eagerness to do business with us. Among other things, Shell Oil Company was approached to see if it is interested in a resumption of exploratory drilling in the South Tidelands. Dr. Roger Shields, who is in charge of repatriation of prisoners of war at the Pentagon, received a message from Hanoi that North Vietnam was ready to ship the remains of three more American servicemen. And finally, this month Nguyen Van Lau and Dinh Ba Thi, observers at the United Nations for North and South Vietnam, again declared that their countries were ready to resume "normal relations" with the United States if we extended aid.

The eagerness of the communists, North and South Vietnam, to tap American capital and technology for the reconstruction of Southeast Asia is hardly surprising. Both Russia and China are having their own reconstruction problems and would be delighted to have us relieve them of the financial burdens of such backward client states as the Vietnams and Cuba. For the Kremlin this would constitute a brilliant execution of policy along the classic lines dictated by Stalin, who said that capitalist countries would furnish the rope to hang themselves.

The U.S. official policy on aid to North and South Vietnam, is honest and straight - forward. Private U.S. firms and organizations would violate provisions of the Trading with the Enemy Act if they tried to assist North Vietnam with technology or reconstruction. The attitude of the State Department itself is particularly charitable. In a speech to the Japan Society of New York, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said that although the communists have flouted accepted standards of conduct, "we are prepared to look to the future. Our attitude towards them will be influenced by their conduct toward their neighbors and their attitude towards us."

Nothing in their attitude to date suggests that the communists have the faintest intention to live up to the binding agreement that they signed to end the war in Indochina, to account for all Americans missing in action, or to permit international assurances that self-determination must dictate the future of Indochina. Like so many other nations in history, and particularly in recent guerrilla history, the communists of Vietnam are learning that winning a war is one thing. Building a viable nation is quite another.

Question Box

QUESTION: A Freedom Newspaper ran a listing of "Welfare Benefits Analyzed" above a news story headed "Survey Indicates NYC Welfare Pays Twice Average." It showed how much more is paid to a woman with two children and no means of support in New York than in any other major city. But it said the benefits are paid by the federal government, the state government, or the city or county government. But nothing is said about the taxpayers, who you claim pay all costs. What are you trying to do — mislead our readers?

ANSWER: We are not trying to mislead, and are mortified that someone would gain that impression. The chart was prepared by the wire news service to illustrate the article about the survey. It is unfortunate that many persons, including writers, illustrators and editors associated with the communications services are confused about the source of funds, or that they adopt the commonly used terms rather than to clarify.

Readers of this page are not likely to be confused about the fact that governments have no money other than what they take from the people, directly or indirectly. For many years we have attempted to clarify that point. The query above demonstrates our point.

So when the chart says a welfare recipient is given $394 a month in New York, and that 50 per cent comes from the federal government, it actually means that half the money comes from those who pay taxes to the national government. The other listings mean that 25 per cent comes from New York State taxpayers, and 25 per cent comes from the New York City taxpayers. Even that may be misleading with the present practice of "revenue sharing" by federal and state governments, who usually have no money, but borrow against the credit of future taxpayers.

We wish that all individuals were able to recognize the simple facts that no government has any money to give away.

As long as governments retain the power to tax and borrow, they are able to fool enough of the people in order to maintain the fiction that politicians can give something to someone without hurting the ordinary taxpayers. And most of our editorial readers know the facts of life and will not be followed by such tabulations.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Enter Reagan and Wallace

BY WILLIAM RUSHER

With the declaration of George Wallace's candidacy for the Democratic nomination and Ronald Reagan's (forthcoming) announcement that he is tossing his hat into the GOP ring, the 1976 run for the presidential roses may at last fairly be said to be under way.

Up till now, the whole affair — on both sides of the political fence — has had a faintly unreal quality, as if the actors in a play were ad-libbing until an essential character, delayed by traffic, could arrive. Now, at last, the real action of the plot can begin.

Interestingly, and perhaps significantly, both of these new players step onto their respective stages "from the right," as it were. Wallace confronts an array of Democratic aspirants who are divided among themselves largely over how the doctrines of liberalism can best be applied to the realities of 1975 and 1976. Wallace alone, at the Democratic convention, will presume to suggest that they do not apply at all.

Reagan took seeks his party's nomination as an avowed opponent of liberal dogmas, though in President Ford he has a rival far less wedded to them than Carter, Bayh, or Udall. Apparently the 1976 "action" is going to center, not on whether the status quo in both parties is liberal enough, but on whether it is altogether too liberal already. When one looks at the wreckage of New York City, it is not hard to see why.

Gone (by the way), along with the zephyrs and flowers of last spring, are all those historical pressures on Ronald Reagan to declare his candidacy prematurely. Do you remember the myriad reporters and politicians who were just plain citizens who were jumping up and down in May and June, insisting that Reagan must declare forthwith or it would forever be "too-late"? All they were really doing, whether they realized it or not, was trying to spice their lives by accelerating a process that (as Reagan well knew) could not be accelerated. Now, in the fullness of time, not 45 days earlier than the date projected almost two years ago, he steps forward — in plenty of time.

The Reagan and Wallace candidacies underline a growing feeling, among both observers and participants in the 1976 race, that we are coming up to an unusually significant, perhaps a decisive year. Pretty plainly, the classic liberal solution to our national difficulties — "throwing dollars at problems," as Richard Nixon once felicitously put it — no longer works, if it ever did. New York City is just the first of a whole series of municipalities and states, that, lacking the sovereign power to print money, printed bonds instead, and are now being callously called upon to redeem their promises in the currency — they are forbidden to manufacture.

Worse yet, from the standpoint of the demagogues, the voting public itself is beginning to turn on these sleight-of-hand artists who insist that two and two can be made to equal twenty-two. The average voter is no lily, and he did indeed put in office the architects of disaster; but he never promised to keep them there forever. He can change his mind, and now he has done so — not, perhaps, too late.

Reagan and Wallace, therefore, despite their sharply different personal styles, both appeal most powerfully to those elements in their respective parties that want a sharp break with the profligates and catastrophic liberal policies of the past. Each, if nominated, would lead his party to the right: toward a concept of reality that has been out of fashion in Washington for over forty years. No doubt their emphases and priorities would be different; but, equally without doubt, their direction would be essentially the same.

All very well; but what if — as usually happens — the status quo prevails? What if the Democratic liberals, a national minority that nonetheless dominates the majority party, casts Wallace into the outer darkness, and the GOP convention decides that Gerald Ford, if not perfect, is "conservative enough"? Who then will speak for those Americans who have had it up to here with the status quo? (Copyright, 1975)

Canal Menace More Red Than Panamanian

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 — Secretary Kissinger is getting very jittery over the steadily mounting storm of opposition to his Panama Canal giveaway policy.

At his orders, the State Department is vigorously counterattacking — with a high-powered propaganda and pressure campaign aimed at the public in general and Congress in particular.

Key motif of this drive is an array of dire "dangers" and "risks" confronting the U.S. if Kissinger's giveaway plan is rejected.

Foremost among these reputed perils are: sabotage of the strategic waterway, guerrilla terrorism, mass march by Panamanians into the Canal Zone, riots and violent student demonstrations.

Carefully not mentioned in the State Department's fearsome litany is that Panama, with a population of 1.6 million is ruled by an iron-fisted pro-Soviet military dictator, and any forays and attacks against the Canal and Zone are possible only with his connivance and support.

There is abundant evidence that Gen. Omar Torrijos and his leftist clique, with close ties to Fidel Castro, have resorted to such tactics in the past.

Latest instance was in September when a mob of so-called "students" assailed the U.S. embassy shouting invectives and breaking windows with rocks and other missiles. Although armed policemen were nearby, they made no move to protect the embassy.

Some days later, after the State Department protested, the Torrijos regime went through the motions of apologizing.

What They're Doing
To whip up public backing for the "new Panama Canal treaty" (as the giveaway is alluringly labeled) the State Department is organizing a "Citizens Committee" prominent business and professional people.

One meeting of representatives of large corporations and banks already has been held at the State Department. Invitations were sent out in the name of Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., chairman of the Western Hemisphere Affairs Subcommittee and foremost congressional supporter of the giveaway plan.

The session tentatively named a "sterning committee" and decided to raise a $500,000 budget for its operations — the money to come from corporate and financial sources.

Addressing this gathering, Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, who is negotiating the giveaway treaty, made no bones it's in serious trouble.

"We greatly need your help," he told the businessmen and bankers. "Our problem is that the Canal has a great constituency in the U.S. and the new treaty has none. The public is ignorant of what we are trying to do. They don't realize that our objective is to keep the Canal open, safe and neutral, and a new treaty is the best way to achieve that."

Pressure is also being brought by the State Department to the military and universities. The prestigious Army War College has heard spels in favor of the "new treaty," and seminars are being conducted at universities, among them Georgetown in Washington, and Arizona State.

At all these gatherings, principal emphasis is placed on the contention the U.S. must make concessions on retaining sovereignty over the Canal or violence and havoc are inevitable. Argued one State Department spokesman, "We've got to give a little ground to avoid losing a lot."

Red Plot Fully aware of what the State

Department is saying and doing, opponents of the giveaway are countering headon with bombshell charges of their own. They are flatly asserting "surrender" of the Canal would play directly into the hands of Russia, and that the pro-Soviet Torrijos dictatorship is not to be trusted on any basis.

Also that the claim that the Canal is vulnerable to Panamanian violence is bosh.

Forcefully voicing this view, retired Adm. T.G.W. Settle says, "The Canal and Zone are defendable. It is unthinkable that any U.S. President and Congress would surrender sovereignty over these strategic possessions under the fallacious premise that they are not defendable."

The inescapable likelihood that the crucial water would come under Russian domination under the giveaway plan is bluntly raised by two leading congressional opponents — Reps. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., member of the Armed Services Committee, and Robert Lagomarsino, R-Calif., of the International Affairs Committee.

"The Canal issue is not a local problem," says Lagomarsino. "It's part of the world struggle for control by the Soviets of all strategic waterways. With bases near both ends of the Suez Canal - Red Sea route to the Indian Ocean, the Kremlin can dominate that artery of transportation. Withdrawal of U.S. forces from Southeast Asia, control of the Strait of Malacca can be expected by the U.S.S.R. and its allies. The situation in Portugal threatens the control of the Strait of Gibraltar, leaving the Panama Canal the only strategic waterway still free — and it must so remain."

Rep. McDonald turns the State Department's argument of the danger of violence and sabotage squarely back on the Department. Bluntly he questions whether the Department isn't covertly playing footsie with Torrijos.

"By starkly suggesting that the Canal might be sabotaged by disgruntled Panamanians, or that Panama may become another Vietnam," says McDonald, "the State Department in effect is collaborating with Torrijos if attempting to intimidate Congress — and the American people. We should not succumb to such tactics."

"What ever risks are involved in maintaining control of the Panama Canal, they are less serious than the risks involved in turning it over to the Torrijos regime. The evidence is indisputable that Torrijos has sought and received the support of Moscow's puppet Fidel Castro."

Note: Terrorists and revolutionaries of four Latin American countries are organizing a guerrilla front. Representatives of these extremist elements have held at least several meetings. Taking part are Che Guevara's band in Bolivia known as the Army of National Liberation (ELN), the Chilean "Revolutionary Left Movement" (MIR), Tupamaros of Uruguay, and People's Revolutionary Army (ERP) of Argentina. One of the meetings was held in Mendoza, in western Argentina, where a name was tentatively agreed on — Coordinadora Revolucionaria (CJR).

Dear Abby

Wife Hopes Salt Peter Will Put Out Flame

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Where can a person buy salt peter? Do I need a doctor's prescription to get it? Is it tasteless? And does it do what they say it does to a man's sex urge?

You can't send me a personal reply because my husband opens all the mail. Please answer in your column as soon as possible as I don't know how much longer I can put up with this. Thank you.

ALL WORE OUT IN L.A.

DEAR ALL: Salt peter can be purchased at a pharmacy. It is technically termed "potassium nitrate," and I am informed that no prescription is required. But because it's used in making explosives, some pharmacists refuse to sell it to minors.

It tastes like table salt, but if you expect it to reduce a man's sexual appetite, you could be disappointed.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, and around holiday time someone always asks, "Should we go to HIS mother's or to MY mother's for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner?" And your answer is always, "Why not alternate?"

Abby, my husband and I struggled with that problem for years, and we resolved it according to your suggestion. Both sets of parents lived nearby, and it seemed the only fair thing to do. So for 22 years, we spent Thanksgiving and Christmas in parents' homes instead of our own.

It never dawned on us until this year — as our children are ready to strike out on their own — that we never developed our own holiday traditions. We always went to Grandma's for the holidays. She insisted on doing all the cooking herself — and then she complained for months about how much work it was and how tired she got. When we, her daughters and daughters-in-law, asked if we could bring something for the dinner, she wouldn't hear of it. When we brought food without asking her, she refused to serve it, so we finally gave up.

I realize now what a high price I've paid over the years for peace in the family. I wish I hadn't. Abby, please urge young marrieds to dare to have their own holiday celebrations in their own homes. Suggest that they invite their parents and grandparents, who might even be relieved to be finally free of the burden of entertaining three generations.

DOING MY OWN THING

DEAR DOING: Thank you for an excellent letter. Perhaps it will inspire others to "do their own thing," too. It makes a lot of sense.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is 20. Roger attends a local college but doesn't live at home. The problem is the hair hassle.

Last summer my husband asked Roger several times to please get a haircut. Let me stress that we don't object to long hair if it's kept neat, but it seems that every time Roger came home he needed a haircut. His excuse last time was, "Haircuts are too expensive." So his father gave him $100 and said, "That should take care of your haircuts for a year!"

Roger accepted the money.

Well, Roger was home last weekend and nothing had changed. He still needed a haircut! My husband says if that kid shows up for Thanksgiving needing a haircut he is going to demand the return of $100. Would this be fair?

ROGER'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If Roger accepted the money with the understanding that he'd keep his hair cut, he should either uphold his end of the bargain or return the money.

Supporting Hightower

A group of Pampa citizens presented Congressman Jack Hightower with a $1,000 check during an appreciation reception Saturday evening at the Quality Inn in Amarillo. Jerry Sims and Blake Laramore of Pampa made the presentation. "I do appreciate this so much. It is a long way to filing time, but we do appreciate this assurance of support," Hightower said. An estimated 1,000 residents from the area attended the event, including approximately 100 from Gray County. (Pampa News photo)

Crime Sets Another Record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Serious crime rose more last year than in any previous year on record, the FBI said today. The FBI's 293-page 1974 Uniform Crime Report said 10.1 million serious crimes occurred in 1974, about 1.5 million more than in 1973 — an increase of 18 per cent. Serious crime includes murder, rape, robbery, assault, burglary, theft and auto theft. The increase is the biggest shown in the 14 years records have been kept in the present form and probably was the biggest in history, an FBI spokesman said. There were 4,821 serious crimes per 100,000 population, nearly one crime for every 20 persons. There was a sharper increase in crimes against property than for crimes of violence. When a preliminary 1974 report in March showed an increase of nearly 17 per cent, Attorney General Edward Levi said the figures "represent a tragic failure on the part of our present system of criminal justice." The report showed percentages of increase were lowest — 12 per cent — in cities of more than 250,000 population compared to 20 per cent increases in suburban and rural areas. Crime rates remained much higher in the urban centers, however. The rate per 100,000 inhabitants was 5,621 for metropolitan areas, 4,027 for other cities and 1,746 for rural areas. Thefts showed the biggest increase, 21 per cent, followed by burglaries 18.5 per cent, robberies 15.1 per cent, rapes 7.8 per cent, assaults 8.5 per cent, murders 5.5 per cent and auto thefts 5.2 per cent. Preliminary 1975 estimates show the high rate of crime has continued this year. A report for the first quarter showed another 18 per cent gain, but by June 30 it had dropped to 13 per cent. Youth contributed heavily to the big general increase, the report showed. Arrests of persons under 18 years old increased 9 per cent. For those over 18 the increase was 1 per cent. Women have become involved in serious crimes in far greater numbers than ever, the report showed. Arrests of women increased 8.6 per cent, compared to 1.9 per cent for males. Arrests of women since 1960 increased 108.8 per cent; arrests of males in the same period rose 23.7 per cent.

NY Plan Faces Problems

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey's plan for the financial rescue of New York City and the state still faces its biggest problem in the state legislature, whose members must consider more than $1 billion in new state and city taxes. President Ford reportedly is satisfied with the Democratic governor's plan to balance the state budget and has dropped his opposition to federal aid to keep the city solvent. But the mammoth tax package has drawn opposition from Republicans in the legislature. Before they recessed their emergency session for the weekend, the lawmakers approved a plan to allow New York City to delay repayment of $1.6

$4 billion in loan guarantees, with a vote expected Tuesday. A weekend compromise reached by Banking Committee chairman Henry Reuss, D-Wis., and House Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona was expected to expedite passage and may remove whatever remains of a veto threat. Carey's fiscal advisers say failure to raise state taxes will push the state $1.7 billion into the red within 17 months. Even with the taxes, they say, it will be necessary to trim state spending by $400 million. In New York, Mayor Abraham Beame Sunday named John Zuccotti, 37, chairman of the City Planning Commission and one of Beame's closest advisers, to the No. 2 job of First Deputy Mayor. James E. Cavanagh, a 37-year city employee who announced his retirement from the post during the weekend, had been reported under strong pressure to step down from officials overseeing the city's fiscal reorganization.

Farm Folk Should Learn About City Folk Problems

KANSAS CITY Mo. (UPI) — Rural residents should make an effort to understand the financial problems of New York and other big cities the retiring president of the National Association of Farm Broadcasters said Sunday. "If farm folk want city folk to understand and sympathize with their problems it is high time that rural America demonstrates positive concern for the plight of its city cousins," said Bill Mason at the closing session of the NAFB meeting. Mason associate farm director of WGN Chicago, said rural and urban residents have no shown enough active concern for each other's economic problems. "I want to help the farmer, if that means he should help city people because life is not a one way street," Mason said. In other action the broadcasters confirmed the elevation of Royce Bodiford farm director of KGNC, Amarillo Tex. to the presidency to the organization for 1976. Mavin Vines farm director of KAAV Little Rock Ark., was named president elect. Rich Hull farm director of WIBW, Topeka Kan., was elected to succeed Vines as vice president.

Moore Could Be Exception

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The case of Sara Jane Moore, 45, a former FBI informer accused of trying to kill President Ford, could become the first exception to the new federal speedy trial law. Miss Moore, mother of a 9-year-old boy, was arrested Sept. 22 after firing a pistol at Ford as he emerged from a downtown San Francisco hotel. The bullet missed the President. A judge had set Dec. 15 for her trial. But her attorneys said the law's requirement that suspects be tried within 90 days of arrest did not take into consideration mental evaluations. The statute went into effect Sept. 29. Miss Moore recently underwent two months of psychiatric examinations at a federal correctional facility in San Diego to determine whether she is mentally able to stand trial. Her attorneys successfully appealed to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that they be given an additional two months to prepare their case because their client was in southern California. U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti was to rule today on whether Miss Moore is mentally competent. Defense lawyers said that if Conti rules she is competent, they will file their motion for a delay of trial — backed by the appellate court decision. On setting her trial for Dec. 15, Conti said he was compelled to proceed because of the 90 day requirement of Congress' new Speedy Trial Act. After she fired the one shot at Ford, Oliver Sipple, a disabled former Marine, knocked the gun from her hand. Miss Moore was quickly subdued by police and Secret Service agents. Secret Service agents, acting on a tip by San Francisco police, had questioned Miss Moore before the incident but decided she was not a threat to Ford.

Weekend News Summary

By United Press International
STRIKE PUTOFF
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four rail shop craft unions agreed Sunday to delay the strike they threatened for Tuesday. The delay will allow President Ford to reconvene a special board to clarify its position on subcontracting work to nonunion workers and issue disputed by the unions. The deadline for the strike which could shut down the nation's railroads was pushed back to Dec. 4.
OLYMPIC SECURITY
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government sources say a proposed U.S. project to help safeguard next year's Olympic Games at Montreal from terrorism may be scrapped because of the administration's budget squeeze. A $23 million appropriation request by the Customs Bureau to set up an electronic security system for the games July 17, Aug. 1 has been slashed to $2.7 million by the Office of Management and Budget sources told UPI. The project was the creation of a special Olympics Task Force within the Customs Bureau to prevent a repetition of the terrorist disruption of the 1972 Munich games which resulted in the slaying of 11 members of the Israeli team.
LINKED TO MOB
 NEW YORK (UPI) — The Teamsters Union is still in close contact with the underworld and is being investigated by the Labor Department Newsweek magazine says. In its current issue, Newsweek says the underworld has as strong a hold on the union and its finances as it did 18 years ago during the McClellan investigation. It says Teamsters president Frank Fitzsimmons has been criticized for his personal and professional relationships with mobster President Ford, the magazine reports has been cautioned to keep the Teamsters at arm's length unlike former President Richard Nixon who is a friend of Fitzsimmons.
KENNEDY: NO PLOT
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy D-Mas. says no new facts have convinced him that Lee Harvey Oswald was part of a conspiracy to kill his brother in Dallas in 1963. Kennedy in an interview in Time Magazine's current issue says he endorses the conclusions of the Warren Commission which investigated the assassination of President John Kennedy. But the senator said he is not entirely pleased with the commission.
ITALIAN QUAKES
 MILAN, ITALY (UPI) — A series of earthquakes Sunday caused brief panic in Milan, Genoa, Parma, and smaller communities. No injuries were reported from the shocks which ranged from severe to mild. Police and fire stations were flooded with calls and panicky crowds fled into the streets. Officials said calm was restored when it became apparent there was no serious damage.
KILL AGENCIES
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Joseph Biden D-Del. has proposed a bill that would abolish nine federal regulatory agencies within one year unless Congress can justify their existence. Biden said his bill is aimed at the Civil Aeronautics and the Federal Communications Commission, the Federal Maritime Commission, the Federal Power Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Securities, and Exchange Commission, the Consumer Product Safety Commission and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Trustees Appoint Textbook Committee

In accordance with Texas statute, the Pampa Independent School District board of trustees has appointed a 15-member textbook selection committee made up of professional employees of the district with the superintendent serving as chairman. The committee, appointed during the Thursday school board meeting, will study textbooks up for adoption and present their recommendations to the trustees in February. If the board rejects a textbook, the committee must submit another name. The process must be complete and names of textbooks selected must be sent to Texas Education Agency no later than March 1, 1976. The committee members will include Dr. Dan Long, superintendent, chairman; Beth Duggan and Helen Burns of Austin Elementary; Vera Mae Eubank and Dorothy Weigel of Baker; Janetta Maloney and Jan Morris of Lamar; Sondra Sue Lindsey and Bernice Ward of Mann; Stella Kiser and Irene Sanders of Travis; Ann Triplehorn and Marlene Kyle of Wilson; Betty Tom Graham and of Pampa Junior High; and Marjorie Gaut of Carver Center. Advisors for the committee will be the six elementary school principals and all teachers who teach in the curriculum area for which books are to be selected. Sample textbooks will be placed in each school for teacher evaluation.

SWC Board Set Meeting On Wednesday

The Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District board of directors will meet Wednesday to review conservation plans on Tommy Stanton, Maul Brothers, Ken Burger, Mary Ruthart, Earl Smith, Abe Lewis, George Ingram, Mary Dwyer and Mrs. Homer Abbott. Great Plains Conservation Program contracts on Craig Morris and A.C. Harris also will be reviewed. Other items on the agenda include discussing the status of McClellan Creek and Red Deer Creek Watersheds, selecting 1975 conservation award winners and discussing the essay contest for local schools. The board also will discuss bicentennial year participation by the District.

John Wayne Visits Dying Kansas Lad

SALINA, Kan. (UPI) — Carl Hart, a 10-year-old boy dying from leukemia, returned home late Sunday tired, but with two dreams fulfilled — a trip to Disneyland and a meeting with movie star John Wayne.

Carl's weekend trip was arranged by businessmen and neighbors in Salina after doctors told the hearts the youth had as little as three months to live.

Mrs. Cecil Hart said her son was too tired for sightseeing on Sunday, but that he had enjoyed himself so much in southern California he wanted to stay.

"We'll have to push him onto the plane," said Mrs. Hart shortly before four members of her family boarded the private Coleman Co. jet that brought them to California.

Four other members of the family followed on a commercial flight.

John Wayne invited Carl to his home in Newport Beach Friday, after hearing he was the boy's favorite movie star.

"Thanks for breaking away from Disneyland and coming to see me," Wayne told Carl. "I think it's a awfully nice of a young man like you coming to see an old man like me."

Wayne, who won his own battle against cancer in 1964, said he gets two or three letters a week from the parents of terminally ill children. "You never get used to it," he said.

Carl's sister said he has listened to a tape recording of his visit to Wayne's house so often that he has worn out the batteries in the cassette.

Carl made two trips to Disneyland. On his first visit, he was hugged by a life-sized Donald Duck who threw his arms around the boy and poked him in the chest and stomach. Carl grinned and poked him back.

Back in Kansas, Carl must now return to a hospital for treatment in his ongoing battle against leukemia.

Israel To Talk Peace If . . .

By United Press International
Israel says it will agree to reopen the Geneva peace talks if Syria renews the soon-to-expire mandate of U.N. forces on the Golan Heights.

But Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin emphasized at a cabinet meeting in Jerusalem Sunday that Israel would boycott any talks attended by the Palestine Liberation Organization.

In the Sinai Desert, Egypt took possession of the Ras Sudar oil fields Sunday under terms of the interim peace agreement with Israel.

Israel pulled out of the small oil complex 28 miles south of Suez City Friday, temporarily handing over control to the United Nations.

The official transfer to Egypt marked the first part of an Israeli withdrawal from 2,500 square miles of the western Sinai.

Rabin said Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko asked Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to find out Israel's response to a Russian request to reconvene the Geneva talks with the PLO present.

Rabin said Israel told Kissinger it was willing to reconvene the talks after Syria renews the mandate for 1,250 U.N. troops patrolling the cease-fire lines on the Golan Heights. The mandate expires Nov. 30.

"In our answer we repeated and emphasized that Israel will not conduct any negotiations with the Palestine Liberation Organization," Rabin said in a communique.

The newspaper Ma'ariv reported in a dispatch from the United Nations that staff sources there said Syria was ready to extend the mandate for two to three months if Secretary General Kurt Waldheim went to Damascus to suggest the move.

At the United Nations, a spokesman for Waldheim said Sunday the secretary general was considering a Middle East trip to discuss renewing the agreement.

The Israeli communique also said a U.S. State Department position paper on the Palestinian question was inaccurate and showed "extensive bias."

The target of the Israeli displeasure was a paper delivered to a congressional committee last week by Harold Saunders, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Near Eastern Affairs.

The communique said Saunders' testimony "includes mistakes and extensive distortion from a factual and political point of view which cannot be disregarded."

Israeli political sources said the government was disturbed by Saunders' suggestion there were moderate elements in the PLO, arguing instead that the entire group was extremist.

The sources said Israeli leaders also objected to Saunders' reference to the Palestinian question as the heart of the problem. They consider refusal by the Arab nations to recognize Israel as the major stumbling block to peace.

'Big D' Columnist Dies of Cancer

DALLAS (UPI) — Paul Crume, whose front page column in the Dallas Morning News entertained readers for more than two decades, died of cancer Sunday.

Funeral services were scheduled today for Crume, 63.

Crume joined the News as a reporter in 1936 and began writing his front page humor column, "Big D," in 1952.

Crume had known of his terminal illness for almost a year but continued to write his daily columns until four days before his death.

His final column Thursday talked lightheartedly of death.

"The courts continue their gradual enslavement of the people. The judge who has been trying the Karen Quinlan case

Starting Construction Work

Work started today on the remodeling of the Senior Citizens Center, 500 W. Francis, with White House Lumber Company serving as general contractor. Kicking off the work are Robert R. Jones, left, Wanda Talley, center director; Jerry Holmes with White House and Johnny Quarles of Quarles Electric. The center will provide a multi-purpose meeting place for Pampans age 55 and over. Plans call for two arts and crafts rooms, game rooms, a general meeting area, kitchen facilities, and a large area for club and organization meetings. About $43,000 has been received in gifts and pledges for the center and remaining funds needed to begin the remodeling program have been borrowed.

Wallace Backs Legal Segregation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gov. George Wallace, his views on legal segregation changed over the years, says that as president he would propose a constitutional amendment to allow parents to choose where their children would go to school.

Wallace, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, was asked Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" if he has changed his views on racial segregation.

He replied, "Well, my views have changed in this respect. We never did have any segregation except in the schools. I never was against people because of color, but I was against big governments."

Court rulings, Wallace said, have made legal segregation a "moot" issue. He said that if elected president, "I would recommend a freedom of choice amendment to the Constitution . . . to let people in Boston and Alabama choose what school they want to go to, whether they are black or white."

Asked if he would seek a third party candidacy if he is rejected by the Democrats, Wallace said, "I've learned not to rule out anything."

He defended his decision to take for personal use 20 per cent of royalties from Wallace watches and medallions sold for campaign purposes. He said the money is needed for hospital expenses incurred by the 1972 assassination attempt that crippled him.

"The campaign did not pay my hospital expenses. And finally we decided, well, why not take something that's legitimately yours. I ought to take all of it," Wallace said.

"I don't have any apologies to make at all. I'm going to keep doing it."

He added, "But naturally as president, of course, I naturally feel like maybe I won't. The pension that's paid the president will look after me when I get out."

AFL-CIO President George Meany, appearing on ABC's "Issues and Answers," said he was opposed to Wallace's becoming president. But he added the union federation would not actively oppose him as it did before because he is a Democratic candidate and the AFL-CIO does not get involved in primary campaigns.

Tax Seminar Slated For Wednesday

The annual income tax seminar, sponsored by the county extension program building committee and the county extension service, is scheduled at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the courthouse annex.

Topics to be discussed include the tax reduction act of 1975 and the income tax management and savings tips.

Speaker will be Norman Brints, agriculture economist of Vernon.

The public is invited.

Jim Dee Harrison

Jim Dee Harrison, 67, of Alaneed died Monday in his home following a long illness.

Services will be 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Alaneed Baptist Church with the Rev. M.D. Smith, pastor of Pampa's Hi-land Baptist Church, officiating. Burial by Lamb Funeral Home will be in Alaneed Cemetery.

Mr. Harrison was born in Runnels County and moved to Alaneed from Hopkins in 1960. He was a member of the Alaneed Baptist Church and the 100F Pampa Lodge. He was a retired pumper for Phillips Petroleum. Mr. Harrison married Imelda Marshall in 1935.

He is survived by his wife, two sons, James W. of Lubbock and Robert D. of Houston; three daughters, Mrs. Nancy Eargle of Cleveland, Ohio, Mrs. Fay Eckstrom of El Paso and Mrs. Jeanie Cummings of Amarillo; a brother, Jessie Harrison of Nevada; and one sister, Mrs. Ollie Dell Cadalbert of Cookeville.

Hearst Expects Delay

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The attorneys for Patricia Hearst are confident the odds favor them — because of an appellate court decision in another case — in their attempts to get a two-month extension of her Dec. 15 trial date.

The defense legal team has said the newspaper heiress' mind is still tangled because of the "brainwashing" she underwent while with the Symbionese Liberation Army. The lawyers say they need more time to prepare their case.

Attorneys for the defense and prosecution have a closed-door meeting scheduled today with U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter to discuss the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision in the case of Sara Jane Moore, accused of trying to kill President Ford.

The court said a judge could decide time spent on psychiatric examinations could be deducted from provisions of the new federal Speedy Trial Act, which says a defendant must be brought to trial within 90 days of arrest.

Miss Moore was sent to San Diego for a two-month psychiatric evaluation.

Miss Hearst, 21, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph Hearst, underwent a similar evaluation in San Mateo County Jail in nearby Redwood City, where she is being held without bail on bank robbery charges.

Faces Desertion Charge

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (UPI) — A 21-year-old medic has surrendered to try and straighten out a Navy paperwork snafu that he says began with his cooperation in a drug arrest and eventually involved his being charged with desertion.

PO J.C. John Sweeney Jr. of Dallas surrendered Sunday and was sent to a base dormitory at Camp Johnson, a training facility for corporals that is a part of this sprawling military base.

Sweeney said his problems began about two months ago at a Norfolk, Va., base, where he helped the Naval Investigative Service with a narcotics raid. Prior to the raid, Sweeney said the NIS implied he was under investigation for drug law violations, but that the investigation would be halted if he cooperated.

Sweeney said he made a drug purchase from a sailor and signed a statement for the NIS. He said he was to leave Norfolk and go to his parents home in Dallas to avoid retaliation from the arrested man.

He said his superiors promised orders would be forwarded transferring him to the Dallas Naval Air Station. But the orders never came.

A commander at the Dallas base assigned him to duty at the base pharmacy for two weeks while he waited.

After repeated checks and assurances that he should continue to wait and that there was no danger of desertion charges, Sweeney was told his orders had transferred to Camp Lejeune instead of Dallas and that he was charged as a deserter. Again, he was told not to worry, that the matter would be straightened out.

But Saturday, he received a letter from the chief of Naval personnel, ordering him to surrender at Camp Lejeune to face desertion charges.

"They gave me a total of 10 hours to get there," Sweeney said. "They wouldn't even give me time to get my clothes together and say good-bye to the family."

Man Who Borrowed Millions Falsely Dies

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Ernest Medders, a mechanic's helper from Tennessee who in the 1960s borrowed nearly $3 million on an unfounded claim that he was the heir to the Spindletop oil fortune, died of an apparent heart attack Friday. He was 65.

A family spokesman said funeral arrangements had not been finalized, but that he would be buried in Texas, "the state that he loved."

He had good reason to love it. In 1961, Medders and his wife, Margaret, ended their near-poverty existence in Memphis, Tenn., by filing a claim to the oil rich Spindletop fields, saying they were descendants of Ruben Medders who allegedly had title to the land through an 1830 Mexican land grant.

On the belief they would eventually win court battles over the fortune, they moved to Muenster, Tex., where they found easy credit and lived in opulence.

Their daughters were admitted to exclusive schools and Dallas society welcomed them. They spent monumental sums entertaining the Texas elite and North Texas society fought for invitations to their parties.

It was a heady existence for Medders, who worked as a mechanic's helper in Memphis and could barely read or write, and his wife, a former nurse who had not finished school.

Their post-Memphis extravagance seemed to many local residents like the American dream come true. Local citizens always made a point of saying they were still just "ordinary folks."

Rocky Denounces Red Tape

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — "One message is coming through loud and clear," Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller said. "The American people are fed up with federal bureaucracy and red tape."

Rockefeller was telling the audience of about 700 what he has learned so far at "town meetings" he had held in Denver, Tampa, and here in the Texas state capital. Along with three or four cabinet members, the vice president is holding the six meetings to find out for the Ford Administration what the public wants in terms of domestic policy.

Rockefeller's comment was inspired by statements from Indian chiefs, welfare recipients, public officials and the mayor of a small Colorado town who established a "bureau of red tape cutting" in his municipal government.

"One reason we buy Arab oil, no matter how expensive it is, is because it doesn't require an environmental impact study," said Peter McDonald of Window Rock, Ariz., the chairman of the Navajo Nation. He told Rockefeller of the frustrating government red tape the Indians have to cope with to develop oil reserves on their reservations.

"If the American government responded to Pearl Harbor the way we've responded to this energy crisis, we might all be speaking Japanese today," McDonald said.

The concern for the environment is also on the mind of L.B. Henry, chairman of a rural Louisiana parish, who said "In our area the government says we don't care if you're starving to death, just think of the fine air you're breathing."

Sylvester Tinker, head of the Osage Indian nation in Oklahoma says he's trying to get the government to provide better health services for his people and all the government wants to do is give him better water.

Southern California and Notre Dame, as familiar to the New Year festivities as paper hats and noisemakers, will be conspicuously absent from college football's four major post-season bowl games this season...and so, too, may be second-ranked Nebraska.

Southern Cal and Notre Dame eliminated themselves from the New Year's competition Saturday when they were upset, but the Nebraska situation is intriguing.

The Cornhuskers, who annihilated Iowa State 52-0 last Saturday, are sporting a perfect 10-0 record. But, unless they defeat seventh-ranked Oklahoma next Saturday in the showdown game for the Big Eight Conference title and gain an automatic berth in the Orange Bowl, they are going to be locked out of one of the four major bowl games.

With Georgia (8-2) having been named Sunday as a surprise choice for the Cotton Bowl, it was believed that the Big Eight runnerup would be invited today to meet fifth-ranked Alabama in the Sugar Bowl. But Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne said Sunday he had been informed by Sugar Bowl officials that they were not going to invite a Big Eight team.

Osborne said he expected the Sugar Bowl to invite Alabama and Penn State, and he accused Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant of influencing the decision of the committee.

Harvesters Host Abilene in No. 2

Pampa overcame a seven-point deficit in the fourth quarter as Rayford Young poured in eight points and Donnie Hughes six in the final period and the Harvesters opened their non-conference basketball schedule with a 54-52 win before 1,800 fans in Harvester Fieldhouse Saturday.

Pampa will play its second game of the season against Abilene High Tuesday in Harvester Fieldhouse. Abilene will open its season against Pampa.

The Harvesters trailed at the end of the first three quarters 16-15, 30-26 and 41-36. Ector widened its bulge to seven at 43-36 early in the final quarter before the Harvesters began a surge in the final five minutes.

Hughes, the game's leading scorer with 10 field goals and 21 points, and Young, who finished with 10 points, combined for 14 of Pampa's 18 points in the quarter.

Jewell Landers added 10 points for the winners, while Brian Bailey had nine.

Dwight Randolph was Ector's leading scorer with 23 points. Darvin Robinson added nine.

Ector was last year's District 1-AAA champion and advanced Bryant's teams have gone to seven straight post-season games without winning, and it is Osborne's contention that Bryant wanted to avoid meeting a Big Eight team, unless the game were for the national title. The only team to defeat Alabama this season was a Big Eight club, Missouri, which whipped the Crimson Tide 20-7.

Osborne said he felt the Big Eight was going to be shunned by the Sugar Bowl, and that's why after Saturday's game he had a Sugar Bowl official deliver a message to Bryant which said: "You tell that son-of-a-buck in Alabama not to duck us."

"We were hoping we could get a response—maybe stir things up," said Osborne. "It's time this thing (Bryant's influence on bowl selections) is brought into the open."

Southern Cal accepted a bid Sunday to the Liberty Bowl at Memphis, Tenn., on Dec. 22.

The Trojans had considered the Rose Bowl practically their private domain over the past decade. In the last nine years, Southern California went to the Rose Bowl seven times, including the last three years in a row. However, an 8-7 loss to Washington Saturday—the Trojans' third, straight setback since McKay announced he was leaving after this season to take the head coaching job with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers of the National Football League—eliminated the Trojans from Pacific Eight Conference contention.

J.D. Burns, in a Moo-do-kwon karate demonstration Saturday afternoon in the Pampa Optimist Club building, took on several of his students in a match and disposed of all of them. The match was only part of the exhibition, which also included katas, board-breaking and other self-defense demonstrations. Burns holds weekly karate classes in Pampa and is one of only a few qualified instructors in the Panhandle.

Cards—Sudden Death for Redskins

By JACK SAUNDERS
UPI Sports Writer

The St. Louis Cardinals almost decided to go home early Sunday, then couldn't leave without putting in an overtime form. But, with the aid of a favorable decision by the officials, it turned out to be time well spent.

A six-yard touchdown pass from Jim Hart to Mel Gray, which knotted the score at 17-17 with 20 seconds left in the fourth quarter, put the game into the sudden-death period.

St. Louis won the toss to start the overtime and elected to receive. The Cards lost their second game of the season to Dallas, 37-31, in overtime. But this time their opponent never even got a chance to touch the ball.

Terry Metcalf returned the kick from two yards deep in the end zone to the Cards' 25. Jim Otis rushed for 34 yards in the ensuing drive which moved St. Louis to the Washington 20.

From there, Jim Bakken booted a 37-yard field goal seven minutes into the period and the Cards had their revenge.

Elsewhere Sunday, Pittsburgh clobbered Kansas City 28-3. Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 16-7. Philadelphia edged the New York Giants 13-10. Dallas outlasted New England 34-31. Detroit squeezed by Green Bay 13-10. Minnesota bested New Orleans 20-7. Baltimore overwhelmed the New York Jets 52-19. Houston nipped Miami 20-19. Denver topped San Diego 27-17. San Francisco blasted Chicago 31-3 and Oakland beat Cleveland 38-17.

In the Monday night game,

Cincinnati hosts Buffalo.

Steelers 28, Chiefs 3

Quarterback Terry Bradshaw threw for 203 yards and two touchdowns and Franco Harris rushed for 119 yards to lead Pittsburgh over Kansas City. The victory stretched the Steelers' win string to a club record seven games and put their record at 8-1. Pittsburgh thus assured itself of remaining in no worse than a tie with Cincinnati for the AFC Central lead.

Rams 16, Falcons 7

Los Angeles used three field goals by Tom Dempsey and a 13-yard touchdown pass from James Harris to Ron Jessie to beat Atlanta. The Falcons, who got inside the Los Angeles 35 only once all afternoon, kept the Rams from scoring a touchdown until early in the final period when Harris connected with Jessie for the 10th time in the game on the 13 yard scoring play.

Eagles 13, Giants 10

Horst Muhlmann, who didn't even reach the goalpost on two previous attempts, kicked a 30-yard field goal with 28 seconds to play as Philadelphia ended a five-game losing streak with its victory over the Giants.

Cowboys 34, Patriots 31

Roger Staubach rattled the New England defense for three long scoring passes, two to Drew Pearson, to steer Dallas over the Patriots.

Lions 13, Packers 10

Errol Mann kicked a 23-yard field goal with only 17 seconds left to play to give Detroit its victory over Green Bay.

Vikings 20, Saints 7

Fran Tarkenton threw three touchdown passes to lead unbeaten Minnesota over New Orleans for the Vikings' ninth straight victory. Tarkenton, who completed 25 of 39 passes for 310 yards, hit John Gilliam for scoring strikes of 33 and 13 yards and threw to Ed Marinaro for a four-yard touchdown.

Colts 52, Jets 19

Bert Jones rattled the Jets' secondary for 277 yards and three touchdown passes, one a club-record 90-yarder to Roger Carr, to help Baltimore boost its record to 5-4.

Broncos 27, Chargers 17

Denver stopped San Diego on the one-yard line, then marched 99 yards for the tie-breaking touchdown in the final period and Jim Turner added a 46-yard field goal to spark the Broncos' victory over the winless Chargers.

Dallas Defense Shaky But Offense Nabs Win

By GIL PETERS
UPI Sports Writer

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys are finding the best way to cure a leaky defense is to use an airtight offense.

For the third week in a row, the Cowboys yielded more than 30 points but they rode Roger Staubach's long passes to a 34-31 win Sunday over the New England Patriots.

"The defense must contribute to a game; if it doesn't, you can't win in the National Football League," said coach Tom Landry, whose Cowboys are now 6-3 and one game off the lead in the NFC East. "But I think our defense was a lot better today than it showed in the score. I'd like to think it was their (the Patriots') great plays that beat us and not our defense."

Landry could be kind to his defense because the Cowboy offense was so potent. Staubach needed just 10 completions in 14 attempts to accomplish the victory that was a lot easier than the score indicated.

Staubach fired scoring passes of 33 and 31 yards to Drew Pearson in the first half and clinched the contest with a 41-yarder to Golden Richards early in the final period.

Toni Fritsch, who gave the Cowboys a 3-0 lead with a 43-yard field goal in the first quarter, also kicked the game-winning points 8:28 into the final period. Fritsch's 26-yarder gave Dallas a 34-17 lead at the time but Jim Plunkett closed the gap with a pair of late touchdown tosses of 13 and five yards to Darryl Stingley.

Plunkett also flipped a 37-yard scoring pass to Russ Francis and ran one yard for a fourth touchdown, the first time this season the New England quarterback has thrown or rushed for a TD.

Dallas' reserve running back Doug Dennison got the Cowboys' other score on a six-yard run.

Staubach said the difference in the game was the Cowboys' ability "to make the big plays on their blitzes. When they blitzed, we wound up with man-to-man coverage. I was surprised we were able to go deep on them. We thought we couldn't go long on them but would have to go to a lot of play action."

"Look, the Patriots are a good defensive team; they play well and I honestly think their defense looks as good on film as any we've faced this year. But it was those three big plays that were the key to the game."

The Cowboys took an early 10-0 lead on Fritsch's first field goal and Pearson's 33-yard score on a slant across the middle.

New England got the 10 points back in the second period on John Smith's 29-yard field goal and a dive by Plunkett, who was the subject of boos and catcalls all afternoon. But faced with a third-and-17 situation late in the second period, Staubach dropped back from the 31 and hit Pearson at the left end zone flag, over the head of confused cornerback Ron Bolton.

Staubach read New England's blitz in the third period on a third down, and called an audible resulting in a 39-yard completion to running back Preston Pearson.

Akins, Forte Injured In Conference Games

By MIKE RABUN
UPI Sports Writer

The athletic dorms at the University of Arkansas and the University of Texas will be overloaded with get well mail this week.

At a fairly critical time of the year the Razorbacks and Longhorns have been struck by some key limp-offs.

In Austin everyone has sweaty palms over the condition of quarterback Marty Akins, who will undergo a round of tests to determine the severity of a knee injury.

And if Akins is not ready week after next for the sixth ranked Longhorns crucial confrontation with the third rated Texas Aggies, A&M will have a decided advantage.

In Fayetteville, meanwhile, there are folks biting their fingernails over the condition of Ike Forte, the Razorbacks No. 1 runner who joined the club's No. 2 runner — Jerry Eckwood — on the hurt list.

To have a chance for the Cotton Bowl game on Jan. 1 Arkansas must win its two games remaining — against Texas Tech in Fayetteville this week and against Texas A&M in Little Rock on Dec 6 and hope A&M whips Texas.

But without Forte and Eckwood the Razorbacks' chances are dim.

Through all the injuries last week the favorites all won — Texas suffering through a difficult afternoon without Akins to give TCU its 20th straight loss, 27-11; Arkansas coming up with a fine day of running from quarterback Scott Bull and backup halfback Roland Fuchs to whip SMU, 36-7; Texas A&M overcoming a first half deficit with big defensive plays and the running of fullback George Woodard to beat Rice, 33-14; and Texas Tech seizing on one Baylor fumble after another to deck the Bears, 33-10.

Texas and Texas A&M have this week off to rest up for their day-after-Thanking blast. And other than Arkansas' meeting with Texas Tech the rest of the conference schedule has Baylor hosting SMU and Rice visiting TCU.

It became quickly obvious Saturday that the loss of Akins, whose talents have been praised as all-American caliber all year by Texas coach Darrell Royal, was near disastrous.

Against a more formidable team than TCU it might have meant a loss.

"I think Texas will beat A&M if Akins plays," said Horned Frog defensive back Tim Pulliam. "But without him they will have to fight for their life."

"The big difference without Akins," said another TCU defensive back, Darryl Lowe, "is that it leaves them with only two options (some would say it leaves them with only one option — fullback Earl Campbell).

In Houston, Woodard, the freshman who has put some punch in the Aggie offense, had a slight ankle sprain of his own but finished out the game with 167 yards.

Man Who Solved Clutter Murders Retires

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (UPI) — Ten years ago Alvin Adams Dewey watched an executioner's noose kill convicted murderers Perry Smith and Richard Hickock. Dewey was responsible for putting them on the scaffold but felt no regret at their deaths.

"All I could think about was the victims," said the Kansas Bureau of Investigation agent who retires Monday, ending a law enforcement career that spanned almost 40 years. "I didn't feel the least bit sorry for the murderers."

The victims, Herbert Clutter, his wife, son and daughter, were murdered in their western Kansas farmhouse Nov. 15, 1959. The brutal killings became the basis of Truman Capote's book "In Cold Blood" and brought national attention to Dewey, who broke the case.

"The solution of the Clutter murder case was my most satisfying moment in law enforcement," said Dewey, who became a police dispatcher in the 1930s instead of a teacher because the job paid $10 more a month.

Dewey, tall and lean at 63 with brown eyes and black hair, said he arrived at the prominent Holcomb farmer's house a few hours after the Clutter bodies were found. The victims' hands and feet were bound with tape and sash cord and they had been shot in the head at close range.

"Right at the start we felt there was a very good possibility that the murders were committed by someone local, someone who had a grudge against Mr. Clutter," said Dewey, who had known the Clutter family for years. "We thought that because he was the only one who had his throat cut."

Dewey, who stressed that he did not solve the case alone, arrested Smith and Hickock six weeks later after a tip from Floyd Wells, a former Clutter employee who had served time with Hickock in the Kansas State Penitentiary.

"Wells had told them Herb always kept $10,000 in a safe," Dewey said. "But there never was a safe. He just made it up. He was bragging."

But Smith and Hickock, finding no money, killed the Clutters anyway.

"Hickock and Smith would have killed anybody in that house," Dewey said. "Anybody who saw them had to go. I wondered how two individuals could commit such a hideous crime. I think maybe they had illusions of grandeur. To me, they were trying to be big time operators. But they sure weren't that."

The veteran agent said the Clutter killings were the only case he worked where the state asked for the death penalty. "I have absolutely no regrets about it," Dewey said. "I'm very much in favor of the death penalty, not in all homicide cases, but I think in very brutal murders the death penalty is justified."

The FBI agent said he would like to see every state restore capital punishment for murder.

"The do-gooders say capital punishment is no deterrent to crime. But you can juggle statistics anyway you want," he said. "I do know that since it's been outlawed in Kansas, the number of homicides has increased."

"Ten or 15 years ago out in western Kansas, a homicide was quite a rarity. We'd only have one or two a year. Last year, I was involved in 16 homicide investigations."

Dewey solved every one of those cases except one involving Richard and Clara Ann Anton, prominent wheat farmers in Ensign, Kan., who were shot to death in last August in their home which was then burned.

"I feel bothered that the Anton case is not solved," he said. "But I feel sure that if the case can be solved it will be. It's not one of the 'old dogs' yet. It's only been 16 months, which may seem like a long time, but it's not. This thing could break open any time."

Dewey plans to farm and golf after his retirement. He said he doesn't think he will miss the excitement of the job.

"I know I'll miss the association with fellow employees," he said. "But after almost 40 years of being on call 24-hours a day, I'm going to love the rest."

Farming-A Most Dangerous Industry

By PAMELA REEVES
United Press International
Every morning when Lowell Lenschow leaves the house his wife says, "Just be careful."

Jane Lenschow issues the warning because her husband works in the third most dangerous industry in the United States. He is an American farmer.

Most farm families are acutely aware of the hazards, especially during the fall harvest season when their big machines are in continual use. Almost all know someone who has been maimed or killed by them.

"We had a friend who just lost part of his leg in a combine," Mrs. Lenschow said. "The corn had gotten caught and he climbed up to kick the corn down with his foot, and it got caught."

Several years ago, a neighbor of the Lenschows in rural Hampshire near Elgin, Ill., was killed in a tractor accident. Such incidents are not uncommon.

In 1974, there were 54 work-related deaths on American farms for every 100,000 workers, compared to 15 deaths per 100,000 workers in all industries.

Only mining and construction workers have higher on-the-job death rates, and the statistics don't even include injuries.

Ordie L. Hogsett, an assistant professor at the University of Illinois in Urbana, travels all over the state talking to farm groups about the problem, and telling them what they can do to protect themselves.

"Tractors are the biggest problem, and I tell them in most cases it's the nut that connects the steering wheel to the seat that's responsible—the operator," Hogsett says. "Between 96 and 98 per cent of the accidents are caused by human error."

About one-third of the tractor accidents happen on the open road while farmers are traveling between fields, even though tractors are only on the road an average 4 per cent of their operating time.

"It's because of too much speed," Hogsett says. "Five miles an hour can be too fast, depending on the road's surface. This gets to be a judgment factor which apparently a lot of them (farmers) don't have."

"When they're running down the road, especially this time of year, with two loads of grain behind them and have to stop real quick, they can't with that much weight behind them and they're in trouble," he said.

But Hogsett, who has been preaching safety for 21 years, thinks the situation has improved since he started.

"Farmers now realize accidents can be prevented," he said, "before we had too much of this fatalistic attitude of 'what is will be.' They used this as an excuse."

National Safety Council statistics bear Hogsett out. The 54 work-related deaths per 100,000 workers that occurred last year is down from 58 deaths in 1972, 63 in 1971 and 64 in 1970.

"It is definitely decreasing slowly," says NSC agricultural safety engineer Bill Hanford. "Hopefully, it's because of a little more emphasis on safety education, and they've probably got more safety features on the equipment than in previous years."

Key Brune, a spokesman for John Deere and Company, a major supplier of farm machinery, says most farmers now buy optional safety equipment when they purchase tractors and other big machines.

The U of I's Hogsett said a major factor behind the increased concern for safety is farm women.

"Every spring and fall a tremendous number of farm ladies are pressed into service and are beginning to ask for training in tractor driving skills," he said. "We started a program for them three years ago and we're getting outstanding results."

"Women can swing a big strong ax in this area," he said. "We've got a much safer family if we have them behind us than if we're just trying to educate one man."

Pat Boone's Oldest Marries

Cherry Boone, Pat's oldest daughter, and Dan O'Neill were married in October in an off-the-cuff free-form ceremony in California. The ceremony included four songs, two written by the bride and another written by a family friend for the wedding. Pat Boone sang "Sunrise, Sunset" but was so overcome by emotion he hardly got through it. Debby Boone sang another song.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, NOV. 18
Your birthday today: Normal-maturing processes characterize this year as your talents come more and more into public view. Monetary gains are proportionate to earlier decisions and consistency of work efforts. No relationship remains secret or unscrutinized for even a moment. Today's natives have a strong interest in magic, seek shortcuts to power and wealth or adopt technical vocations that have some element of risk.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Expenses run a bit above normal but are worth it if you check details. Old friends are no more agreeable than rivals, but you learn something if you stay cool and listen.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Your home comes first, even if there are pressures at work. Take on short-term, net-cash deals if you can stick to what you can deliver without assistance. Trade off an old debt.

Gemini [May 21-June 21]: Resist the trend to scatter energy and figure out the best course to follow. It's important to be visible on the job, no matter how tedious it is. Don't take out today's incidents on loved ones.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Emotional expression is always more open at full moon. Today, the seedy side of life is more apparent. Forgive and forget. Everything can be mended in time.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Dividing your attention between vocation and personal life is convenient, but you must try to do so. In many areas it's a time of showdown. Put up or shut up. Drop a long-standing arrangement.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Let others mill about seeking answers. Use fleeting opportunities for all they're worth; tomorrow is crowded with conflicting demands and complicated by a shortage of help.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Wind up enterprises that have been squared away. People in authority are difficult. Keep the local scene peaceful. Evening is easier; skip the shoptalk.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Plans run into resistance, perhaps are unfeasible under present conditions. Have the grace to adjust without complaint. Asking for favors only creates future problems; don't do it.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: You have to work at everything from a point of slight disadvantage and put in greater effort than usual. Less talk and more doing brings better results. No shortcuts are available now.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Decisions made early today are the basis for extended future ventures; be serious and sensible. Spend the rest of the day relaxing and getting rid of built-up tension. Travel with caution.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: People are very convincing about activities of which you lack full understanding. Be a skeptic and stall for more information. There's less to some proposals than meets the eye.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Distant interest seems complex and out of reach. Certain matters of concern can be brought to a final stage. Expect considerable criticism and learn from it.

Give holiday stuffings some extra appeal. Add whole wheat, cracked wheat, or pumpernickel in place of some of the enriched white bread. These variety breads add flavor and texture — making your stuffing something special. As always, day-old bread makes the best stuffing cubes.

University Launches Sexual Health Class

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — There they were, a group of Protestant seminary students and their wives, husbands and fiancées holding hands and rubbing their backs and shoulders together.

Each was learning to touch without feeling guilty about it, to communicate without words, to get in touch with his or her own body.

It was part of a film telling about the controversial "Program in Human Sexuality" at the University of Minnesota Medical School, which includes seminars and explicit or pornographic movies and is designed mainly for professional people counseling on sex matters.

Some Minnesotans have complained about the university displaying movies that show sex acts. The university's board of regents called in medical school officials today to discuss the program.

"The sexual health needs in the United States are immense," said Dr. Richard Chilgren, director of the program.

The seminars, part of the Medical School curriculum for credit, are intended to help meet the need, he said.

Students are seminarians, ministers, doctors, medical students, social worker people who work with the disabled, alcoholic treatment counselors, nurses and pharmacists. They range in age from 21 to 80.

At the filmed seminar, seminary students and their partners lounged on huge pillows to get rid of tensions as they listened to talks about sex. Then they stood and tried communicating through touch.

Financial backers of the program range from Playboy Foundation to church groups. Contributions have grown from $8,700 in 1970 to $21,432 this year.

"For some reason doctors and clergymen have been woefully naive about sex relations," Chilgren said. And yet they are among the main counselors about sex, he said.

About 7,200 persons have taken part in the program. Chilgren said evidence suggests more than 90 per cent have "found it personally beneficial."

To save fuel this winter, check storm windows and doors to make sure they fit tightly. Replace cracked or broken panes of glass and putty.

Club News Las Pampas Garden

Las Pampas Garden Club met Friday in the Robin Gantz home for a program on "Dried Flower Arranging."

Mrs. Per Stubbe spoke on the lines, shapes and forms necessary for developing a sense of design. The tools for proper arranging work were described and members were told to gather plants for drying in late summer or fall. Proper drying procedure was discussed.

Thirteen members were present, including Mrs. Doris Johnson, a new member.

Worthwhile HD
Worthwhile Home Demonstration Club members will take a tour of The Mary Jane needlepoint Shop, 1130 Williston, Nov. 21 before meeting in the Lottie Reynolds home.

A covered dish luncheon will be held Dec. 5 at 11:30 a.m. in the home of Gladys Stone and each member will bring a $2 gift industry, politics, religion and education of the Philippines. Wearing an embroidered native costume made of pineapple fibers, Ms. Noel sang songs in English and Tagala, national language of the Philippines, to a guitar accompaniment.

Twenty-nine members and guests were present for the meeting.

HERESY CHARGED
KANSAS CITY, MO. (UPI) — The Rev. Joseph Hirsch, vicar of the Church of the Redeemer, has announced that he has left the Episcopal Church, taking with him between 25 and 50 parishioners who share his view that the church has not spoken strongly enough against abortion, that it has been permissive on the issue of ordination of women to the priesthood and toward homosexuals and that the denomination is afflicted by a "wave of doctrinal heresy" regarding the doctrines of the virgin birth of Christ, the Trinity and the Resurrection.

FUEL SHORTAGE
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Oil wells in Texas have been pumping at maximum production since April, 1972, because of the fuel shortage. Members of the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates oil and gas production in the state, say it is unlikely the production allowable will ever again drop below full capacity except in select fields where all-out production would result in waste.
