

Rain Keeps Grip on Panhandle

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

An unusual late spring "monsoon" retained its cloudy grip on the local area today as new thunderstorms were building in eastern New Mexico and yet another flash flood watch was in effect for the central and eastern Panhandle and the northeast South Plains.

Heavy thunderstorms, accompanied by extremely active lightning rolled in rapidly from the west again Monday night, and funnel cloud sightings were reported by the public at Clovis, west of Hereford, and near Bushland as the clouds rumbled across the area. None of the sightings were confirmed.

While weather-weary residents in the eastern portion of Deaf Smith County saw more rain falling on already soaked-through fields, farmers in the county's western sector where fields have been hard-hit by drought saw their first appreciable moisture in some time over the weekend, prompting new hope that a dryland sorghum crop may yet go in the ground.

The period of continuous overcast conditions which is now about two weeks old has resulted in rainfall accumulations in excess of a foot in some scattered areas of the county where "young floods" have been the rule.

A spokesman for Pioneer Fertilizer at Milo Center north of Hereford reported that 40 inches of moisture fell there in last night's storm, while the long wet spell has left an accumulation of nearly 14 inches of rainfall in the brief two week period since the waterworks began.

Hereford Grain Corporation's facility at Farmer's Corner north of Hereford reported .70 inches of rain from Monday rains, and a 2.10 inches total from the weekend of downpours. Overall rainfall in that area was near the nine inch mark, according to a spokesman for the facility.

Raymond Schlabs indicated that .50 inches of rain fell at his farm five miles north of Hereford last night, and 1.80 inches fell over the weekend.

"We have had a total of 12.10 inches since the rain started a week ago Thursday. Most of it is runoff now, and you can tell it by the lakes out here. It would be the end of the week at the best before we could get back in the field. We'll have to cultivate and break the crust over some crops and do some replanting. The weeks are really growing and we are way behind on cultivating. The volunteer corn is giving us problems too," Schlabs commented.

Schlabs is among numerous county farmers anxious to get back in their fields and give their remaining crops care to help them grow out of the effects of the heavy storms.

In some, isolated areas of the county where drying had been sufficient, farmers were "tiptoeing" across fields of young corn Sunday with rotary hoes, breaking the crust of rain-packed soil around the young grain plants.

H.L. Hershey 13 miles northeast of Hereford reported an accumulation of .80 inches of moisture last night, and a 7.60 inch rainfall total in the past two weeks.

"This is the most water we've seen in the playa lakes in many years. Some of them are even starting to run together. The roads are getting so you really have to pick your way around on them," Hershey commented.

To the east, the Dawn community was the scene of yet another heavy rainstorm last night as one inch of moisture fell there, upping the weekend moisture total

Collision-Rollover

C.R. Gandy, of 702 Blevins, was expected to be released from Deaf Smith General Hospital today after he was admitted Saturday night for injuries sustained in the rollover of his pickup after it collided with a station wagon at the intersection of U.S. Highway 60 and 15th Street.

Tax Cut May Have $4.5 Billion Trimmed

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's advisers want another $4.5 billion lopped off the administration's tax cut plan as the price Americans must pay for further trimming of the planned budget deficit.

Administration sources, who asked not to be identified, said the advisers want the proposed 1979 tax cut held to about $15 billion, down from a compromise $19.4 billion. Carter originally wanted a nearly $24 billion reduction.

The sources said some of Carter's advisers want to cut an additional $3 billion to $5 billion from the 1979 deficit to demonstrate the administration's commitment to curbing inflation. The deficit now is projected at $54 billion and $55 billion.

The action is in response to widespread criticism from Congress and elsewhere that huge federal budget deficits are a major cause of the nation's inflation, which has been worsening in recent months.

A cut in the deficit of $3 billion to $5 billion is considered important for psychological reasons because it would reduce the 1978 deficit below that of 1978, which is now projected at $53 billion.

With the economy in its fourth year of recovery after the 1974 recession, economists term as worrisome a deficit larger in 1979 than in 1978.

"They want it to be smaller. I wouldn't be surprised if the administration did not oppose another reduction in the tax cut to get it there," said one administration source, who did not want to be identified.

Chairman G. William Miller of the Federal Reserve Board has repeatedly urged the administration to reduce the 1979 deficit to below $50 billion. He has said the administration needs to reduce the deficit to help control inflation.

Miller also said last week that even though the administration has trimmed the proposed tax cut once, from $25 billion to $19.4 billion, any tax cut at all may be inappropriate in the current situation.

Price statistics last week showed inflation has been running at above 10 percent in the past few months. Economists both in and out of government are beginning to worry that a new recession may be inevitable as early as next year if inflation isn't brought under better control.

The administration source, who predicted Carter may agree to yet a smaller tax reduction, said that may be the only way to reduce the deficit because it will be difficult to reduce actual spending for the 1979 fiscal year, which begins on Oct. 1.

Rather than formally announcing another reduction in the proposed cut, this source predicted that the administration may quietly tell Congress that it would agree to the new cut and let Congress do the actual cutting.

It is unclear how Congress would react to that approach, but it is evident there is generally sympathy on Capitol Hill for holding down the deficit and reducing tax cuts.

But the source said Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and James T. McIntyre, director of the Office of Management and Budget, are looking for ways to reduce 1979 spending without additional trimming of the tax cut.

He said Carter has told them to go

Commission Postpones Increase

BY PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

It will cost the City of Hereford approximately 40 cents for each electric meter to participate in a state-wide municipality fight against a Southwestern Public Service's proposed 10 percent rate increase. City Manager Dudley Bayne told commissioners Monday night.

The commission then decided to proceed with plans to study the fairness of the rate hike, voting to postpone any increase for 120 days. Cities have the right to set their own electricity rates, according to the Public Utility Commission, and Hereford commissioners voted in May to schedule hearings to determine a fair rate.

The commission, also in May, decided not to intervene on behalf of rural electric customers, who also would be affected by an increase.

The Public Utility Commission, according to the act which created it in 1973, has jurisdiction over rates for rural customers--those living outside city limits. The PUC has scheduled a July 31 to determine if the increase for rural customers should be allowed. Any decision in that hearing may determine what city customers must pay for electricity.

"It could have some bearing on our case," Bayne said today. "The Public Utility Commission could rule as it did in the Corpus Christi case that all rates, city and rural, would be the same."

"We'll have our hearing and study the rates as they apply to Hereford. If we'd have intervened in the rural, it would have eliminated any chance if the Public Utility Commission ruled in favor of

Wheat Countries Seek Agreement

LONDON (AP) - The world's leading wheat growing and wheat importing countries embarked Monday on a fresh round of talks aimed at setting up a new world wheat agreement.

It will replace the 1971 International Wheat Agreement (IWA) that was scheduled to run for four years but was extended several times because its

Ceiling End May Increase Unleaded Gas

WASHINGTON (AP) - As the Energy Department prepares to end ceilings on the retail price of gasoline, the Environmental Protection Agency says it is worried the move might increase the cost of unleaded gas and prompt motorists to use the dirtier leaded fuel.

Energy Department spokesman Jim Bishop said Monday night the deregulation proposal is expected to be sent to Congress shortly - "as soon as the regulations are prepared" - but no date has been set.

Under law, both the Senate and House must block the move with 15 working days or it automatically goes into effect.

The ceilings, a vestige of the 1973 Arab oil embargo, have been felt unnecessary by the Energy Department, especially with gasoline now abundant. The department says it does not anticipate an immediate across-the-board price increase because most current prices already are well below the cutoff point.

But the EPA and a Ralph Nader consumer group, the Center for Auto Safety, believes deregulation could make more difficult their efforts to convince motorists to use unleaded gasoline.

Late-model autos require unleaded fuel, but motorists have been known to illegally alter the car so unleaded gas can be used.

members could not agree on the main point of a new pact.

Wheat experts say the major difficulties in the new talks arise from the fact that the nine-nation European Economic Community (EEC) has a dual role as both an exporting and importing area.

Complicating matters still further is the Soviet Union, traditionally considered a net exporter. But because of repeated crop failures in recent years, the Soviet Union has in some years been a net importer of the grain.

While the European Community is prepared to accept its special position, the Soviet Union seems reluctant to accept a dual role, say experts who have

5 Arrested In Moro Case

ROME (AP) - In its first major breakthrough in the Aldo Moro case, the Italian government has charged five persons in custody and a sixth still at large with the kidnap-murder of the former premier.

Police are also still searching for nine other suspects.

Enrico Triaca, Teodoro Spadaccini, Giovanni Lugnini, Antonio Marini and Gabriella Mariani, all in maximum security jails to guard against attempts to free them, and fugitive Mario Moretti were charged Monday with abducting and assassinating the president of the Christian Democratic Party and with killing his five police bodyguards during the kidnapping March 16.

All are believed to be members of the Red Brigades, the urban guerrilla army which boasted that it seized Moro in a Rome street ambush and killed him seven weeks later after the government refused to free 13 jailed terrorists.

Triaca, Spadaccini, Lugnini, Marini and Miss Mariani were arrested three weeks ago in a raid on Triaca's print shop in northwest Rome.

Meeting at the London headquarters of the International Wheat Council are the 12 members of an interim committee set up March 12 in Geneva after the failure of a full-fledged 50-nation conference to reach agreement on the main issues.

The interim committee is made up of Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada, Egypt, the EEC, Finland, India, Japan, Kenya, the Soviet Union and the United States.

Its chairman is Arthur Dunker of Switzerland, who also is chairman of the full negotiating conference. He is assisted by Jean Parotte, executive secretary of the Wheat Council.

Its objectives are to prepare a draft international wheat agreement, which will include a world food aid convention, and eventually set up or prepare the ground for an international coarse grain convention, which also could become part of the new wheat pact.

Some of the main difficulties have arisen from differences over the possible establishment of a world wheat reserve on which importing members of the pact can draw in times of work crop failure.

Another main point in the negotiations is the amount of food aid that can be given in any year. In the current agreement it is limited to 4.75 million metric tons a metric ton equals about 2,200 pounds. It is distributed to nations needing relief either in wheat or an equivalent in other grain "fit for human consumption," which could be rice in the case of Asian nations in need.

It is up to the donor nations to decide where to channel this aid. For example, most American food aid goes to Egypt.

There seems to be almost universal agreement to increase food aid to 10 million metric tons, if pledges for that amount will be forthcoming. The United States already stands pledged to 4.47 million metric tons a year, Canada to 750,000 metric tons and Australia is about 400,000 tons.

She's 78, Active Gardener, Bookkeeper

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

What does a 78-year-old woman who lives alone do in the winter when she can't tend to her gardens?

In the case of Mrs. O.G. Hill Sr., she keeps the books for her two sons' ranch and farms.

"I keep busy all the time. It's important for me because I'm constructive busy, not busy to just be doing something. It keeps me out of mischief and from gossiping," said Mrs. Hill, still one of the most active and civic-minded women in Hereford.

"I don't have many plants in the winter, but I don't have time to get bored. I keep books." And she has kept the books for her family since 1938, when she also worked with her late husband in numerous ranching capacities.

During World War II when her sons, O.G. Jr. and Foster, were in the military, Mrs. Hill rode a horse, moving cattle, for her husband. She also vaccinated livestock accompanied her husband as he supervised ranching interests in Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas.

Mrs. Hill is former secretary-treasurer of the Farmers Union in Deaf Smith County and is still a member of the Grain Sorghum Growers Association. She is an active member of the county Democratic party and is a former United Way board member.

And she gardens. "It's good therapy for me--keeps me healthy, keeps me strong."

She is active in the Hereford Garden Club and is chairperson of the Hereford Garden Center, Park Ave. and Main. An active member of First Baptist Church, she maintains the church flowerbeds.

Mrs. Hill also is a life member of Texas State Garden Clubs Inc. and has recently earned the distinction of Golden Gardener from that association.

"I've always liked to garden. I grew up on a farm in New Mexico, and that's where I started. My mother gardened and my father was a farmer. Around here (her house at 801 N. Main), I grow things that are pretty and in the country. I grow things people can eat. We have a big garden out there."

She has worked with the local garden club in landscaping King's Manor Methodist Home, the Deaf Smith County Library, Post Office, Northwest Elemen-

Carter Unveils Policy For Western Water

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is unveiling a new federal water policy designed to give Western governors greater influence over dams and irrigation projects in their states.

"The new policy will bring the states into water policy more so than they have ever been before," said an Interior Department official who asked not to be named.

Under the new policy to be announced today, states will pay 10 percent to 25 percent of the cost of new projects.

This will be the first time states and possibly localities and other users of federal water facilities will share a substantial portion of the cost - now financed almost exclusively by federal taxpayers.

But the policy also will permit governors and legislatures to "vote with their dollars" for projects they favor, an idea the governors themselves have endorsed.

Western governors were consulted extensively during the formation of the new policy and were generally expected to endorse it, with the possible exception of Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm, who is involved in a tough re-election fight.

Immigration Service Clears Officers

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) - The Immigration and Naturalization Service has cleared its officers of wrongdoing in the recent death of a Weslaco woman - but an attorney for the woman's family wants the courts to look into the matter.

INS officials started the investigation after the May 16 death of Maria Contreras, 36. The pregnant woman died of an apparent heart attack after she was stopped at the Progreso International Bridge.

"The investigation has revealed no impropriety or misconduct on the part of the officers," the report, issued Monday by acting district director Perry Steele, said. "The investigation shows that the officers were acting in a normal and routine manner of investigation."

Steele's report states that the Contreras family was stopped for questioning when officers discovered an alien in their van. The alien and one family member were taken into the INS bridge office for questioning.

The family member and the alien "almost immediately admitted" the alien was carrying false identification, according to the report.

Labor Law Advocates Flight Filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate supporters of proposed labor law revisions will make at least two attempts this week to break a Republican-led filibuster against the controversial legislation.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd filed motions setting up votes for Wednesday and Thursday on whether to halt the debate, now 10 days old.

The bill's backers concede they are not likely to stop the filibuster at first, but they are increasingly confident they eventually will succeed and go on to win passage of the measure.

Byrd filed the motions Monday after a White House meeting with President Carter, who reaffirmed his support for the bill. Also at the meeting were Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and the bill's principal sponsors, Sens. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y.

Williams predicted the filibuster would be broken by the end of next week. It takes 60 votes to limit Senate debate, if all 100 senators are present and voting.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker, who is taking part in the filibuster, said the outcome is uncertain. "I think there's no basis for the administration's confidence," he said. "I can count votes as well as they can."

California Voters Decide Tax Issue

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Indicating a California taxpayers' revolt in the making, pre-election polls pointed toward victory today for Proposition 13, the ballot initiative that would cut the average property tax bill by more than half.

Proposition 13 is strongly supported by homeowners, because it would slash the average annual property tax bill from $1,400 to $600. It also would mean enormous tax savings for some of California's biggest landowners, the public utilities. Three companies alone - Pacific Telephone, Pacific Gas & Electric and Southern California Edison - would get a combined tax cut of $280 million.

But because the tax cut would reduce property tax revenue for cities, counties and schools from $12 billion to $5 billion annually, the issue has been criticized by many labor and business leaders.

Among its opponents is Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., running against token opposition in a nine-candidate Democratic gubernatorial primary field. Brown has endorsed Proposition 8, a more moderate tax cut plan.

The tax issue overshadowed other contests on the ballot, which included the Republican primary gubernatorial race between conservative Ed Davis, the former Los Angeles police chief, and GOP moderates Evelle Younger, Ken Maddy and Pete Wilson.

New Lions Club Boss

Robert Lohr, right, was installed Monday night as incoming president of the Hereford Evening Lions Club. Joe Dom Cummings, left, is the secretary-treasurer and has also been appointed as a zone chairman by the district governor of Lions International. Raymond White, former district governor, served as the installing officer at the dinner, held at K-Bob's.

Lohr Named Club President

Robert Lohr was recognized as the new president when the Hereford Evening Lions Club held an officer's installation banquet at K-Bob's Monday night.

Lohr will succeed John Metcalf as the club's leader. Other new officers, effective July 1, are: Lee Drake, first vice president; Gerald Sledge, second VP; Lewis Lea, tail twister; Larry Alley, Lion tamer; Joe D. Cummings, secretary-treasurer; Metcalf and Claude DeBord, directors; and Lisa Drake, sweetheart.

Raymond White, former district governor and current director of the Lion's Crippled Childrens Camp at Kerrville, served as the installing officer. On behalf of the club, Lohr presented a desk pen set to Metcalf for his service the past year, and a jewelry gift was presented to Sonja Hacker, club sweetheart the past year. Perfect attendance pins were awarded to Joe Cummings, Larry Alley, Lewis Lea, Gerald Sledge and Bob Lohr. It was also announced that incoming Dist. Gov. Al Tremble of Dumas has appointed Cummings as a Zone Chairman for next year.

to 1.80 inches. A spokesman at the firm reported that overall rainfall at Dawn is approaching the ten inch mark.

To the south, Easter Grain recorded .50 inches last night and 1.60 inches for Sunday and Monday nights.

KPAN radio logged 1.90 inches of moisture for the weekend and reported a 2.40 inch rainfall total for the month and 7.99 inches for the year.

The Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant reported .65 inches of rainfall last night and a total of 1.92 inches since the first of June.

Despite the fact that rainfall in the city was seemingly less, a lake in the vicinity of Ave. C and 15th Street has filled with runoff from the rains and overflowed, forcing the closing of a northern section of Ave. C.

Heavy rains have also caused flooding at the San Jose community south of Hereford, where a playa lake on the southern edge of that community backed up and flooded several houses.

Deaf Smith County Precinct 2 Commissioner Austin Rose put a floating lake pump in place and began pumping down the swollen lake to alleviate the flooding problem at the community, which ironically, has previously been hampered by a lack of water.

The greatest enthusiasm over the current round of rainstorms was centered in the dryland country to the west of Hereford.

Reports of 3.50 inches of moisture were received from the Walcott community, with the reports covering the period from Saturday to Monday morning.

The Bruce Coleman farm reported .40 inches of rainfall from Monday night, after 3.50 inches fell there over the weekend.

The Bill Page farm at Bootleg Corner also recorded .40 inches last night, with a weekend rainfall total of 1.95 inches.

The Clint Homfeld farm, 47 miles northwest of Hereford, remained in line for the most favorable moisture, as it has done much of the spring.

Mrs. Homfeld indicated that 40 inches of rain fell at her husband's farm last night, with better than four inches falling there for Sunday through Monday.

The current rain brought the rainfall total at the Homfeld farm to nearly seven inches since the beginning of the present wet spell.

Mrs. Homfeld reported that dryland wheat at her husband's farm was still "looking good" and that prospects for planting sorghum are good "when we can get in the field."

Many of the county's dryland farmers were concerned with receiving sufficient moisture to allow them to plant a dryland sorghum crop after their wheat fell victim to an extended drought.

Current rainfall should help them to accomplish the task and get a good stand of grain sorghum.

Yesterday's heavy weather prompted flash flood warnings along the Tierra Blanca and Palo Duro watersheds, and the watches will remain in effect today.

Heavy rains over a week ago sent flood waters swirling down both watersheds.

Although there were reports of three funnel sightings last night, one to the west of Hereford, none of the sightings were confirmed by law enforcement officers, and the heavy weather moved rapidly to the east.

Scattered showers and some very heavy thunderstorms are predicted for tonight, with clearing conditions expected to set in Wednesday, prompting warmer temperatures.

Highs today were expected to be in the 70's, and tonight's low should be in the mid-50's.

fuel, but motorists have been known to illegally alter the car's exhaust-control system so that leaded gasoline can be used.

Critics of the deregulation plan say the cost of unleaded gasoline might go up because it is close to the ceiling price right now, while leaded gas would remain the same, causing the gap between the two to widen.

The gasoline price regulations are based on the retail prices as of May 15, 1973, plus allowances to cover increased costs. The ceiling varies from region to region.

Ben Jackson, an assistant EPA administrator of enforcement, and Clarence Ditlow, of the Nader group, said if the gap increases it might lead to further illegal fuel switching.

EPA studies show about 10 percent of the motorists with cars requiring unleaded gas use the leaded variety because of cost savings. A recent American Automobile Association study said that the average price of unleaded gasoline was nearly 4 cents higher than leaded regular. Other surveys showed the difference in some areas was much as 9 cents a gallon.

"We really don't know which way it would go and nobody has done a detailed analysis to conclude exactly what will happen," said Jackson.

Ditlow, in a letter to Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, criticized the decision to proceed with deregulation without further environmental impact studies.

Bishop said the Energy Department conducted an internal "environmental assessment" and concluded that no further impact study was necessary.

The government for some time has toyed with lifting the gas price ceiling. President Gerald R. Ford sent to Congress a similar decontrol proposal on his last day as president. But President Carter withdrew the proposal and ordered it to be further studied.

Southwestern Public Service."

The same act which created the PUC permits cities to use 120 days, which can be extended to 150 if municipalities need more time, to have hearings on electric rates.

Bayne told the commission that it will cost about 40 cents a meter for Hereford to join in the statewide study of the proposed increase. There were approximately 5,200 meters in the city.

Jake Webb, district manager for SPS, attended Monday's commission meeting along with commissioners Emory Brownlow, Dickie Geries and Ed Coplen.

House Subcommittee Hikes ERA Deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House civil and constitutional rights subcommittee Monday voted 4-3 to give states another seven years in which to decide whether to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., subcommittee chairman, said the full Judiciary Committee, of which the subcommittee is part, would take up the extension within a few weeks. He said supporters of the proposal have 17 votes on the 34-member committee, one short of the required majority, but "I think we'll do it, all right."

Full committee approval would send the proposed seven-year extension to the House floor. An extension proposal has also been introduced in the Senate, but no action has been taken there.

Thirty-five states have ratified the ERA, which would prohibit discrimination on the basis of sex. Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska have completed action to rescind their approval, but the Justice Department says although there is a legal precedent for doing this, the question must ultimately be resolved by Congress.

Approval by three-fourths of the states - 38 in all - is required for the amendment to become part of the Constitution. The original seven-year time limit expires next March 22.

Subcommittee members who attended today's meeting split evenly on the extension. The tie was broken by a proxy vote in favor of the extension by Rep. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Calif., who was absent because of Tuesday's California primary.

Edwards voted for the extension, along with Reps. John Sieberling, D-Ohio, and Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., Reps. Harold L. Volkmer, D-Mo., M. Caldwell Burtler, R.Va., and Robert McClory, R-Ill., voted against.

Phyllis Schlafly, a leader of ERA opponents, said in a telephone interview from Alton, Ill., that the extension "is playing politics with the Constitution, it's changing the rules that everybody has been operating under for the last seven years and it is grievously unfair."

Flight Fares Have Decreased

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board Monday approved low fares that will save travelers about 50 percent on certain Air France midweek flights between Paris and the cities of Chicago, Houston and Los Angeles.

The fares apply only to traffic originating in this country, and the passenger must stay in Europe 14 to 45 days. There is a $50 cancellation penalty.

The round-trip Chicago-Paris ticket will cost $393, compared with the basic economy fare of $804, and will apply on Tuesday and Wednesday flights leaving between 5 p.m. and midnight.

From Houston, the round-trip will cost $451, compared with a normal $850, and will be good on Wednesday and Thursday flights leaving between 9 p.m. and midnight.

The Los Angeles-Paris round-trip will be $516, compared with the regular $996, and will apply on Thursday flights leaving between noon and midnight.

The fares are effective immediately. A similar New York-Paris discount plan already is in effect.

The American Council of Life Insurance says more than 10,000 persons have died in recreational boating mishaps since 1970.

Statistics of boating accidents indicate the heaviest fatalities are usually among boat operators aged 20 to 28 and most often occur on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon in June or July.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Do you know why so many parents are fouled up these days?

Because their children are out working when they should be home helping their parents get in touch with their feelings.

I'm here to tell you I'm a walking casualty of the working child. There was a time when every afternoon when I came home from a hard day shopping, my children would be home to sit and rap with me, find out what kind of a day I had, and hear my problems.

Then they started to get too busy for me. First, it was basketball practice, then a meeting of the student government committee, then one got involved in cheerleading and another in scouting.

One night as I sat in front of the TV watching Gilligan's Island reruns, one of them popped in and yelled, "Hi, Mom!"

"Well, it's about time," I said sullenly. "Where have you been? I've been home since 3 o'clock. There's no snacks and nothing decent on television and all my friends are too busy to play."

"If you have a problem, let's talk about it," said my daughter.

"I don't have a problem!" I snapped. "Is it too much for you kids to come home right after school?"

"You're behaving like a baby," she said. "Besides, you'd better get used to it because I just got a job after school at the dry cleaner's at the shopping center."

"But why?" I whined. "You don't have to work. You'll never be home now."

"Mom, it's not the quantity of time we spend together, but the quality."

"That old chestnut. What'll I do between three and six o'clock each night?"

"You could start dinner."

"How dare you use that tone with your mother? If you don't want a mother just say so. I didn't ask to be a mother, you know."

"Get hold of yourself, Mom. Being on your own will be good for you. It'll teach you self-reliance, independence, and confidence."

"Also, how to cook."

"I've been trying. Heavens knows I've been trying. I haven't had a Tupperware orgy while she's at work, or let the dog run loose or forgotten to set the table for dinner, but the other night, a gang of my friends came by and said, 'Wanna whip up a batch of Brownies and eat the entire pan before dinner?'"

"I don't know how much longer I can stay strong."

Recipes Needed Before Saturday

The Brand will be accepting contributions for its "Treasure Trove of Recipes" through Friday, according to Women's Editor Kerrie Steiert.

Local residents are invited to bring their favorite recipes to the Brand office, 130 W. 4th St., or mail them to The Brand, P.O. Box 673, Hereford. Recipes should be legibly written on or typed on 8" by 10" paper.

Recipes submitted will be published in The Brand's first "Treasure Trove of Recipes," a tabloid to be included in the June 25th edition at no extra charge. The Treasure Trove offers Brand readers to share their tried-and-true recipes with their neighbors by sending recipes to The Brand.

Questions concerning the Treasure Trove should be directed to Mrs. Steiert at The Brand, 364-2030.

Greeting Guests

Mrs. H.E. Richter, grandmother of the honoree, Miss Langley and her future mother-in-law, Mrs. J. Howard Darden. Miss Langley plans to marry Damon Charles Darden July 1 in First United Methodist Church.

Miss Langley Honored In Pete Caviness Home

Miss Carolyn Langley, bride-elect of Damon Charles Darden, was the honoree Saturday morning at a bridal shower in the home of Mrs. Pete Caviness, 142 Nuecos.

The marriage is to be solemnized July 1 in First United Methodist Church.

Miss Langley welcomed guests with her mother, Mrs. Earnest Langley, and her fiancé's mother, Mrs. J. Howard Darden, her grandmother, Mrs. H.E. Richter, and the hostess. Special guests present where the honoree's two sisters, Mrs. Harold Nettles of New Home and Mrs. Steve Pimlott of Aclington, and Miss Langley's aunts, Mrs. Chris Benn and Mrs. W.A. Goeth of Abernathy. Also present was the bride-elect's niece, Amy Pimlott.

Two of the shower hostess, Mrs. G.D. Cason and Mrs. David Hutchins, served refreshments from a table appointed with silver and crystal atop a white tablecloth. Fresh daisies, baby's breath and a large yellow candle nestled inside a hurricane lamp, encircled by matching flowers and accented by miniature parasols, as the centerpiece on the serving table. A similar motif was conveyed in other rooms of the Caviness home.

Greeting guests at the registry table was the honoree's sister, Miss Camille Langley.

Other than those hostesses already mentioned, the shower was given by Meses. Richard Barnard, William C. Bookout, Terry Caviness, Paul Coneway, W.E. Dameron, J.J. Durham, Clint Formby, Kenny Gear, A.E. Hodges, Earl Holt and Bob Josseland.

Also, Meses. J.C. McCracken, Gaylord Newell, O.G. Nieman, Palmer Norton, Richard Ottesen, Gerald Payne, Joe Reinauer Sr., Joe Robinson, Austin Rose, Don Shipley, Henry Solomon and Bill Walden.

Ann Landers Hard Decision

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter that will either make or break our son appeared in your column. The only difference between that boy and ours is that our son wasn't kicked out of college. He quit because he was bored.

After too many sleepless nights and a lot of heartache, my husband and I decided to follow your advice. We told our son, "We've had it. You're on your own." You said it would be the most difficult decision we would ever have to make—and it was. The ache in my heart is still there but we tried everything to straighten the boy out and nothing worked.

Please ask parents who took your advice how it turned out for them. We are in desperate need of reassurance. Our son is now hitchhiking somewhere in the United States and we don't know where. Give us hope, Ann. We are—Also Heartbroken Parents

DEAR PARENTS: I'm going to rerun the original letter and my advice for the benefit of those who may have missed it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son is 21 years old. From the day he entered high school he was in trouble. At 15 he was busted for drugs, and at 17, picked up for shoplifting. Later we was kicked out of three colleges and totaled two cars. He has had counseling and psychiatric treatment, which did not help. This month we had to make good three bum checks—total $150. Our two other children are wonderful. We never had any trouble with them. This boy is driving us crazy and ruining our lives. We've shed a million tears over him and spent a fortune in money. Can you suggest something we haven't tried?—A Mother and Dad

I replied, "Dear Mother and Dad: What I am about to suggest might sound heartless, but it may be the only thing that will work.

"Tell your son that from now on he is responsible for himself. Don't give him any money. Let him live in the house as long as he behaves and abides by your rules. If he doesn't—kick him out. If he breaks the law, let him suffer the consequences. If it means jail, let him go.

"Parents who repeatedly intervene to 'save' their children do them no favor. This young man must be told you have pulled his chestnuts out of the fire for the last time and if he gets into trouble again, the only helping hand he will find is the one at the end of his sleeve."

And now, here is a letter I received a few days ago. I hope it will give you the reassurance you seek.

"Dear Ann: The advice you gave 'Mother and Dad' was exactly what you told us to do with our boy last year.

"He was on drugs, wouldn't accept help and refused to abide by our rules. It was the hardest thing we have ever had to do, but we kicked him out. He left without even saying goodbye. We didn't hear from him for five months.

"One day we came home from church and there he was. He is now off drugs and alcohol, has returned to school, is working parttime and a pleasure to have around. What did it? We didn't ask and we don't care. Bless you for your help."

I received other letters reporting similar results. So have courage and faith, Mom and Dad, and please contact me immediately when you hear from your son. I am deeply interested.

Miss Hughes Recognized As Scholar

FORT WORTH — Shari L. Hughes of Hereford has been recognized at Texas Christian University as a TCU Scholar for the 1978 spring semester.

The award, given for the sixth semester, cites those students who achieve a 4.0 (straight A) grade-point average for a minimum of 12 semester hours.

"While 'A' grades are not the only indication of educational accomplishment, they do mark the attainment of our professors' highest challenge," said Dr. Thomas B. Brewer, vice chancellor and dean of the University. "These students who have achieved excellence in their academic progress worked hard for this honor."

Miss Hughes resides at 335 stadium and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Hughes.

Pre-nuptial Party

Welcoming guest in the E.B. Black Home Friday afternoon were Janet McClousky, [L], bride-elect of David Hicks, Mrs. C.E. Hicks, mother of the future bridegroom, and Mrs. Jim Arney, hostess. Miss McClousky and Hicks will be married July 15 in First Presbyterian Church.

Food Prices Continue Steady Climb in May

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Grocery prices continued their steady climb in May and shoppers today are finding prices that are more than 7 percent higher than they were a year ago, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The increases reflect, in part, smaller supplies of beef and had been predicted by industry and government experts who watched cattlemen cutting the size of their herds last year.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. One item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list at the end of November 1977 because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

Among the highlights of the latest survey:

The average marketbasket bill at the checklist stores was 7.3 percent higher at the start of June than it was a year earlier; the bill was 5.3 percent higher than it was at the start of the year.

During May, the marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in eight cities and declined in five. The average increase was 1.9 percent and the average decline was 1.7 percent. On an overall basis, the bill increased by half a percent during the month.

Meat items were responsible for a disproportionate share of the price boosts. Meats represent 21 percent of the items in the survey; they accounted for 44 percent of the increases during May.

On the bright side, egg and coffee prices went down again. The average price of a dozen, medium Grade-A eggs at the start of June was 65 cents compared to 76 cents at the beginning of January. Coffee prices declined during May at the checklist store in nine cities.

The Agriculture Department had been estimated that food prices alone would rise 6 to 8 percent this year compared to a 6.2 percent boost in 1977. Now, however, the department has revised its forecast to predict an 8 to 10 percent boost. The Labor Department reported Wednesday that the price of food purchased at grocery stores went up 2.4 percent during April, contributing to a 2.4 percent during April, contributing to a ninth-tenths of a percent increase in the Consumer Price

Index.

The AP did not attempt to compare actual prices from city to city - to say, for example, that eggs cost more in one area than another. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease - saying a particular item went up 10 percent in one city and 6 percent in another.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Ga., Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Parks' Usage To Cost More

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Visitors to Texas state parks will pay higher fees for use of most of the facilities after Aug. 31.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission said Monday it has authorized establishment of a new day use fee and raised the user fees for cabins, lodges, campsites and the like.

The commission also raised annual park entrance permits from $12 to $15 and raised the "restricted" permits from $5 to $8. Day users of parks will be required to pay a $1 fee in addition to the park entrance fees.

The method of calculating the fee for a campsite was changed from a per-vehicle to a per-site basis in order to reduce the number of cars and trailers at each campsite.

Parks division director Pal Schlimmer said the changes were needed because many states recover about 50 percent of the cost of operation of the park system through fees. Currently, Texas is recovering only about 31 percent.

Miss McClousky Feted At Shower

Miss Janet McClousky of Eugene, Ore., bride-elect of David Hicks was honored Friday afternoon with a miscellaneous shower in the E.B. Black Home, 508 W. 3rd. Miss McClousky and Hicks plan to be wed July 15 in First Presbyterian Church of Hereford. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven McClousky of Lebanon, Ore.

Receiving guest with the honoree was her fiancé's mother, Mrs. C.E. Hicks. Mrs. Jim Arney greeted guests at the door.

Mrs. F. Michael Carr presided at the guest register.

Mrs. Bruce Barrett and Mrs. Larry Burelsmith served refreshments from a table covered with a crocheted white cloth and centered with a massive arrangement of varied colored garden roses grown and arranged by Mrs. G.W. Newsom. The table was appointed with crystal and the bride's chosen color of peach was used for accent. A spring bouquet corsage with peach accents was presented to the honoree.

The gifts were displayed in the parlor and bridge room of the historical home. Garden flowers decorated tables where gifts were displayed and other areas of the home.

Mrs. Steve Clements played appropriate piano selections in the music room throughout the afternoon.

Hostesses were Mmes. Paul Scott, Richard Ottesen, Carrol Newsom, Frank Barrett, Wesley Fisher, Jim Arney, Robert Josseland, C.E. Rush and Mrs. Steve Clements.

Escapee's Children Helped

CADDO, Okla. (AP)—A church is starting an education fund for the children of a prison escapee, whom authorities believe took part in eight killings before he was shot dead here by state troopers May 26.

Claude Eugene Dennis is survived by a wife and three children, who live in this Bryan County town. The children are: in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

"They are exceptionally bright children," said Pastor Bud Jenkins, of the First Baptist Church of Caddo.

"They do well in school and they make good grades. Their lives ought not to be wasted because of these unfortunate circumstances."

The church congregation voted 200-to-0 Sunday to start the education fund for the children, Jenkins said.

Their mother supports the children with the modest income she earns as a clerk at the local variety store.

Dennis and Michael Lancaster escaped from the state prison at McAlester April 23. Authorities believe the escapees killed four Texas men and an Alabama woman before they killed three Oklahoma state troopers.

Bush-Reese Race Determined GOP Favoritism

EDITOR'S note: The following Associated Press article was sent Friday, the day prior to Saturday's Republican runoff in the U.S. 19th Congressional District race. The Brand was unable to reprint the article in time for the runoff, but its interest to readers in the 19th district make it worthwhile reading.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two Republican contenders for the 1980 presidential nomination - Ronald Reagan and George Bush - got a preview of their power at the polls Saturday as West Texans cast their ballots in a Republican congressional primary runoff.

The candidates are former Odessa Mayor Jim Reese, who has received the Reagan endorsement, and George H.W. Bush of Midland, the 31-year-old son of George H. Bush, the former GOP national committee chairman and a two-time U.S. Senate candidate.

At stake is the 19th District seat held for the last 44 years by Democrat George Mahon, powerful chairman of the House Appropriations Committee who is retiring.

Reese and Bush are battling for the right to oppose State Sen. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, in the November election.

GOP leaders on the state and national level acknowledge the importance of Saturday's vote but have chosen to let the Bush and Reagan forces fight their own fight.

"We haven't put any money into the race yet, basically because it's a primary," said a Republican National Committee spokesman. "But absolutely, it's one of the prime districts we think we can win this year."

The state Republican committee is also waiting for the dust to settle around Lubbock, Midland and Odessa before committing funds to either candidate.

"There's no doubt that the race in the 19th District will be one of the most highly targeted in the country," said Ray Barnhart, the GOP's state chairman. "This is a conservative area and the Republican philosophy is certainly more reflective of the interests out there than the Democratic philosophy."

Republican leaders feel the area's agriculture and oil economy has had its fill of Democratic rule, pointing with glee to Carter's refusal to grant farmers 100 percent parity and his insistence on regulating gas prices for as long as Congress will permit. They say the president's positions are about as popular in West Texas as sand storms and dry wells.

Reagan swept 66 percent of Texas' Republican vote in the 1976 presidential primary. His endorsement of Reese, who ran against Mahon in 1976, was one of the factors credited with getting Reese 45 percent of the vote.

This year, Reese mailed out a letter from Reagan that both Reese and a Reagan spokesman termed a definite endorsement. Candidate Bush, however, branded the letter a note of "best wishes" and has preached to voters the sin of turning the election into a reaffirmation of their faithfulness to Reagan.

"I wasn't going to be drawn into whether Reagan is good or bad," said candidate Bush. "I want the voters to decide who is best for West Texas - George Bush or Jim Reese."

Barnhart noted that the Reagan letter could be construed "several different ways. I'm doing all I can to keep an attitude of peace and calm," he added. "You always have problems and personality differences during the primaries. But we haven't had any more problems in this particular race."

A Reagan spokesman in California said Friday the controversial letter is "definitely an endorsement" but quickly added that "Governor Reagan has talked to George Bush Sr. and told him he had endorsed Mr. Reese in 1976 and would stand by his 1976 endorsement."

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, also said the Reese-Bush race was not being viewed as a Reagan-Bush conflict.

But the California-based, pro-Reagan Citizens for the Republic sent $3,000 to the Reese campaign and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a Reagan supporter, wrote a letter endorsing Reese that was used, like the Reagan letter, as a fund raiser. Another Reagan backer, national committeeman Clarence Warner of Oklahoma, called a recent press conference in the 19th district to announce his support of Reese.

"I haven't met him Reese personally," said Hatch from his Washington office adding that he wrote the letter "basically to help a decent man raise some money. I didn't realize it was a primary. I called George Bush Sr. and apologized."

When asked if Reagan had asked him to write the letter, Hatch replied: "No question that a number of conservative groups asked me to write the letter but I don't know who the governor supports in Texas....I don't normally get into primaries but nevertheless, I think Reese is a tremendous candidate."

Reese said during a telephone interview from his Odessa campaign headquarters that the role taken by national Republican leaders was "not that unusual." Like his opponent, though, he said his "ability to identify with the people of Texas" will carry him to victory and not the Reagan endorsement.

When asked if Saturday's vote could be viewed as a Reagan-Bush showdown, Reese said, "Those are comparisons others will have to draw. I know George Sr. has been in the district twice but I can't speak for his motives."

Candidate Bush said Reese, who has not been able to keep abreast of Bush's fundraising, has resorted to "referring to me as one of those Rockefeller types with all that money and that I'm supported by liberal northeast Republicans."

"I've gotten 95 percent of my contributions from Texas and 82 percent from West Texas. The only northeast contributor is my grandmother and I don't believe she's a Rockefeller type."

Bush also said he was "surprised" when Reagan became involved in the primary and added that Reese had "played the Reagan letter to death. He's had it in all his advertisements and every mailer."

Noting that "sons get in trouble speaking for their fathers," Bush did acknowledge that his father "is keeping his options open for 1980."

"Obviously, I want to win for my own good but it would be a nice dividend for my father...and if I lose, I don't think it will hurt him. He hasn't been out here campaigning on my behalf - at my insistence - because I need to show the people out here that I can campaign on my own."

Supreme Court Sets Limits On Money in Negligence Suits

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Supreme Court Monday set limits on how much money may be awarded in negligence suits to the families of maritime workers who die in accidents in international waters.

By a 6-2 vote, the court held that the families were only entitled to compensation for loss of support but not for so-called non-pecuniary items such as loss of love and affection.

The ruling is at odds with earlier Supreme Court decisions which held that when such accidents occur within three miles of shore, families may be compensated for non-pecuniary items.

In a dissenting opinion, Justice Thurgood Marshall said today's ruling was "patently unfair" because it arbitrarily deprives a seaman's dependents of financial compensation "once the

Airline Hearing Slated

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)-Southwest Airlines' request to add Amarillo and Beaumont-Port Arthur will be considered in a Texas Aeronautics Commission (TAC) hearing Aug. 28.

TAC hearing examiner Robert Cross set the hearing date today during a pre-hearing conference with Southwest and attorneys for Braniff Airways, which opposes its competitor's bid to serve Amarillo.

Braniff attorney W.B. West said his company did not object to Southwest's proposed service to Beaumont.

Southwest is asking for authority to fly between Amarillo and Dallas, Austin, Houston, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Harlingen and Beaumont-Port Arthur.

The intrastate carrier's proposed schedule out of Beaumont would include flights to Dallas, Lubbock, Midland-Odessa and El Paso.

vessel crosses the imaginary three-mile line."

Marshall was joined by Justice Harry A. Blackmun.

The ruling overturns a decision by the 5th U.S. Circuit of Appeals in favor of the families of three men who died in a helicopter crash on Aug. 14, 1967, as they were returning to shore from an oil-drilling platform 100 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico.

The victims were Marshall Higginbotham, James Shinn and James Nation. The award for non-pecuniary damages, which amounted to $155,000 in the case of one family, was challenged by Mobil Oil Corp., the owner of the helicopter.

Justice John Paul Stevens said in the majority opinion that in case of death on the high seas, the court could not overrule Congress which enacted laws in 1920 specifying compensation in such negligence suits.

"It is true that the measure of damages in coastal waters will differ from that on the high seas," Stevens said. "but even if this difference proves significant, a desire for uniformity cannot override the statute....We have no authority to substitute our view for those expressed by Congress in a duly enacted statute."

Justice William J. Brennan Jr. took part in the decision.

New Hampshire Rape Law Struck Down by High Court

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Supreme Court left intact Monday a decision striking down a New Hampshire law because it named only girls, and not boys, as potential victims of statutory rape.

Voting 7-2, the justices refused to review an appeal by state officials that the defunct law was valid in making it a crime for any male to have sexual intercourse with a female not his wife and under 15.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun voted to reverse the decision that struck down the law.

The law did not apply to females who have sexual intercourse with a male not their husbands and under age 15, and two federal courts ruled that the law treated men unfairly.

Today's action carries only limited impact for New Hampshire because the state already has a new, gender-neutral statutory rape law.

But until, if ever, superseded by some future Supreme Court ruling, the lower courts' rulings in the New Hampshire case may call into question gender-based statutory rape laws in many states.

Thomas E. Meloon was 25 when convicted of statutory rape in 1974 for having sexual intercourse with a 14-year-old girl whom he had met in Portsmouth, N.H.

There was no doubt during Meloon's trial that the young girl on three occasions had consented to the sexual relationship.

Meloon was sentenced to prison for seven to 15 years but his sentence was later reduced to a five-to-10-year term. He had served 3½ years before his conviction was overturned and he was freed on bail.

Presumably, if the state had won its appeal, Meloon could have been returned to prison.

In 1975, New Hampshire repealed its gender-based statutory rape law and replaced it with one that applies to both men and women.

In arguments submitted to the high court, Meloon's lawyer said a study of 40 states' statutory rape laws showed that half were gender-based-applying to men only.

Horses, tapirs and rhinoceroses are among the mammals which belong to the Perissodactyla order, which characteristically has either one or three toes on each hindfoot. Sir Richard Owen bestowed this name upon these animals to distinguish them from the even-toed hoofed mammals known as Artiodactyla, which have either two or four toes.

Youth Pleads No Contest

LANSING, Mich. (AP)-When 15-year-old Roger E. Needham showed up at Everett High School wearing a Nazi party pin and talking quietly about Adolf Hitler, his classmates jeered.

On a cold February day, Needham heard one taunt too many. He pulled a .22-caliber, Luger-styled school hallway and shot two teasing classmates. One of the boys died.

Monday, the frail, slender Needham was brought from Ingham County Jail to answer for his no contest plea on a murder charge. Probate Judge Donald Owens ordered him held temporarily at the county Juvenile Home until authorities could complete a nationwide search for an appropriate mental institution where he could receive sophisticated therapy.

Owens, who set another hearing for Aug. 16, also ordered the juvenile home to add a full-time staffer simply to watch over Needham.

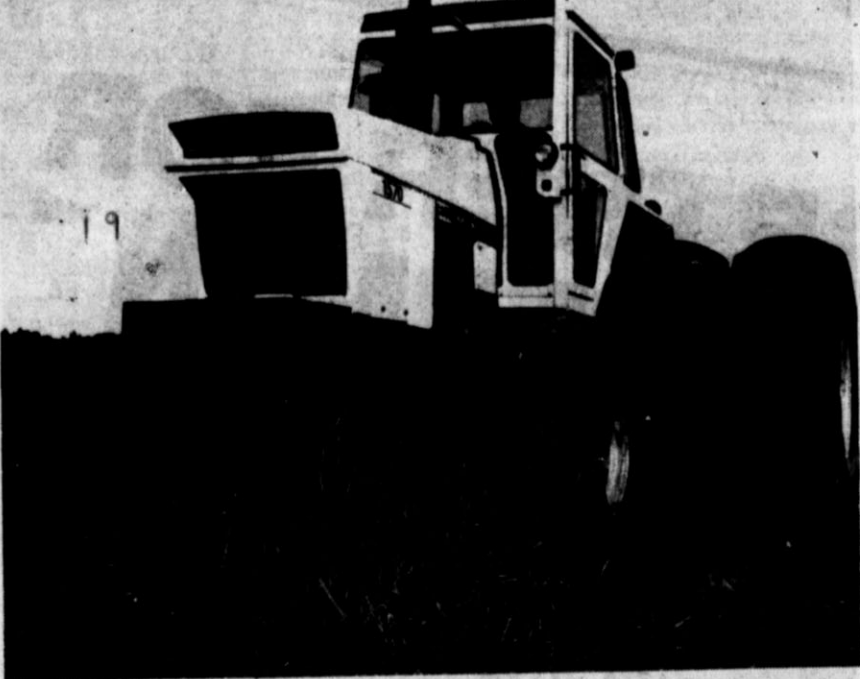

Needham, who is being dealt with as a juvenile and could therefore be released once he turns 19, sat silently in the courtroom, dressed in blue jeans and a red-and-yellow striped T-shirt. His father, sitting next to him, also said nothing.

The court proceedings did nothing to answer the questions asked at Everett High School. Who is Roger Needham? But for this Nazi pin, he looked like just another kid in longish hair, blue jeans and tennis shoes. When exactly did he slip from a perhaps unnatural interest in war into a belief in Nazism that could cause him to kill?

Braves Promise To Be Stronger By Draft

By MEL REISNER
AP Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) - The Buffalo Braves, now seriously contemplating a move to Dallas, are playing a poor hand in the poker game known as the National Basketball Association draft, so the club will draw as many as it can, says its general manager and president.

"Our first two picks are number 38 and number 41 in the second round, and obviously that's not real encouraging," Braves executive Norm Sonju said Monday. "But the draft is not until Friday, so it doesn't preclude any changes."

"We've met in strategy sessions and made our recommendations to Mr. John Y. Brown, and you can count on the fact that we'll be strengthened by Friday."

Sonju declined to say in what areas the Braves were seeking personnel improvement through trades.

Sonju said his involvement in the draft forced him to cancel plans to travel today to Dallas for a personal inspection of the Convention Center arena where he would like the team to play in 1978-79 as the Dallas Express. He had been expected to make an announcement concerning the basketball team.

"I just don't think it's possible," he said. "We are still talking to teams and have a world of things to go through."

The Braves broke their lease on Memorial Auditorium last month. The team is expected to ask the NBA Board of Governors on June 12-14 for permission to plant the franchise somewhere else.

Sonju said he has continued to recommend Dallas to owners Brown and Harry Mangurian. He said last week the city is the best available in fan and growth potential and the television market.

Brown, a 50 percent owner but the controlling partner, will make the final decision.

"We don't want to drag this thing out and I was planning to go to Dallas tomorrow. I'm very embarrassed because I did tell some people I was going to be there. There are several things to take care of that require my physically being there at the arena," he said.

"But it's impossible now because of final preparations for the draft."

Sonju said he doubts there will be an announcement on a new coach until after the draft. The Braves lost Cotton Fitzsimmons to the Kansas City Kings not long after breaking the lease.

He said he had received final figures on leasing the 10,000-seat coliseum, which recently underwent "between $500,000 and $600,000 worth of renovation."

"It's a nice arena and nothing like when the Chaparrals (of the American Basketball Association) were there."

Dallas is building a new 17,000-seat Special Events Center, but the facility will not be ready until 1980. If the franchise move is approved, the Braves would try to play their 1978-79 and 1979-80 games in the convention center, Sonju said.

He said the team's front office and the city had worked out arrangements for housing teams, referees, trainers and special guests and would have storage and other rooms in the building.

USC, Devils In Showdown

By ELLEN HADDOW
Associated Press Writer
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Top-ranked Southern California and defending champion Arizona State, the only two undefeated teams in the College World Series, meet in a showdown tonight, with the winner in good position to take the national baseball championship.

Southern Cal and Arizona State took the day off and watched two exciting loser's bracket games that sent Oral Roberts and Michigan packing.

Miami's Tony Vila dazzled Oral Roberts' heavy hitters to lead the Hurricanes to a 5-3 victory, while North Carolina's Greg Robinson blasted a three-run homer in the eighth to give the Tar Heels a 7-6 victory over Michigan.

North Carolina Coach Mike Roberts, a rookie at the helm who at 27 is the youngest coach in the series, had tears in his eyes during a post-game interview after his young club's come-from-behind victory.

"We were fortunate to win. We gave Michigan several runs and almost beat ourselves. But we came through," Roberts said.

The Wolverines, who dropped behind 4-0 in the early innings, got a solo home run from Vic Ray, his second of the series, and scored four runs in the sixth inning on key singles by Dave Chapman and Rick Leach. Michigan also capitalized on two North Carolina errors.

But when Robinson came to the plate, "I just knew I was going to get a hit."

He did, parking the ball over the left center field fence. "I worked hard today, lots of batting practice this morning, and it paid off," Robinson said.

"We're just so happy just to be in the final four," Roberts said, adding that he'll pitch his ace, Greg Norris, 14-1, against Southern Cal Wednesday night.

Miami, a 9-3 loser to Southern Cal in the first round, sent home the women's third-ranked team in Oral Roberts Monday night.

"We just got beat by a couple of very good teams," said Oral Roberts Coach Larry Cochell. His Titans, coming into their first College World Series with an 18-game winning streak, were edged by Arizona State 7-6 in the second round.

Vila scattered seven Oral Roberts hits in defeating the Titans Monday night. Miami will face Arizona State on Wednesday.

Chicago Hires Costello

CHICAGO (AP) - Larry Costello, whose total of 407 victories as a National Basketball Association coach ranks fifth on the all-time list, is returning to the game to coach the Chicago Bulls.

Costello compiled a 407-249 record in nine seasons with the Milwaukee Bucks before resigning early in the 1976-77 season. He has since served as a scout with the Houston Rockets.

The Bulls announced the selection of Costello Monday and said he would be presented to the press, at a news conference today.

Costello, 47, replaces Ed Badger.

Ludmila Not Envious Of Young Challengers

An AP Sports Analysis
By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Perhaps she lacks the pixie qualities that make Olga Korbut and Nadia Comaneci the darlings of the gymnastics world, but Ludmila Tourischeva isn't jealous. "I have the medals," she says with a touch of pride.

Indeed, she does. In 13 years of competition, Tourischeva accumulated upwards of 130 medals, and about half of them are gold, certifying her as one of the best practitioners of her very difficult art. If Olga and Nadia were the princesses of Olympic gymnasts, then Ludmila was the queen.

She owns nine Olympic medals, four of them gold. There will, however, be no more metal for the graceful Soviet star.

"Everything in the world has a beginning and an end," she says. For Ludmila, the end was in the 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal, her final competition. "It is important to stop at the right time."

So now, Tourischeva's Olympic involvement will be in coaching the Soviet national team which is preparing for the 1980 Games at Moscow. And she promises, it will be a very good squad. That, of course, is no surprise. The Russians have won the women's gymnastics team gold in every Olympics since 1952.

"It is traditional with us," says Ludmila. "Any new generation tries to achieve more than its predecessors to maintain the reputation. All of the girls on the national team are really talented and they have the qualities to grow as good as Olga or I was."

In fact, the Soviet gymnasts she works with are so good, they have kept Tourischeva on the sidelines, even during workouts.

"I rarely work with them," she says. "They don't need me to. They are smart enough to understand my instructions without demonstrations."

But an athlete cannot turn off the competitive juices overnight. And, although she stays off the mats and uneven parallel bars where she made her name, Ludmila does exercise every day. Like so many Americans, she is into running. And she must run fast because her jogging partner is her husband of seven months, Soviet Olympic sprinter Valerie Borzov.

Borzov is the only European ever to win the 100 and 200-meter sprints in the same Olympics and he is looking forward to the 1980 Games at Moscow. So is Ludmila, who remembers the tension of competing, especially at the Games.

"Just making the team is a great honor," she says. "Winning a medal - even one - is very difficult. I remember every competition. Every one of them was difficult. You are not nervous, but there is a certain anxiety that you feel."

Tourischeva is in this country to promote the sale of Olympic stamps commemorating each of the sports on the agenda of the XXII Olympiad at Moscow, July 19-Aug. 3, 1980.

The stamp program to defray costs continues a tradition started at the first modern Olympiad in 1896 at Athens.

Tom Terrific Again for Reds

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Tom's terrific again. "I think he's the older Seaver with improvement," says Cincinnati pitching coach Larry Sheppard of Tom Seaver. "He's been coming on in the last five or six ballgames. He's just been fantastic."

The return to form of the Cincinnati ace has been marked by a five-game winning streak, including Monday night's six-hit, 2-1 beauty over the St. Louis Cardinals.

That improved Seaver's record to 6-4 after a horrendous start that took him until May 6 to gain his first victory.

"My timing was not very good," noted Seaver, ever the perfectionist. "Up until the last two innings, I was struggling."

The classy right-hander finished in style, striking out five of the last six batters.

While Seaver continued to win, the Los Angeles Dodgers were going in an entirely different direction. The defending National League champions lost their fifth straight game, a 9-8 decision to the New York Mets.

The defeat was especially galling for the Dodgers, since they had the Mets by 8-2 at one time. The loss kept them 5 1/2 games behind front-running San Francisco in the NL West.

Mets 9, Dodgers 8

Bill Russell's wild throw on Doug Flynn's grounder with two outs in the ninth inning enabled Tim Foli to score the winning run as New York beat Los Angeles.

Phillies 4, Giants 3

Rookie Jim Morrison hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning and Bob Boone followed with a pinch-hit shot to rout Vida Blue and give Philadelphia its victory over San Francisco.

Blue had pitched a two-hitter until the eighth and led 2-1 in the nationally televised game before the Phillies scored three runs with no out and assumed a 4-2 lead en route to their fourth straight triumph.

Cubs 2, Astros 1

Ivan DeJesus' bases-loaded single in the ninth inning scored Steve Ontiveros from third base as Chicago beat Houston.

DeJesus' hit came off reliever Joe Sambito after home plate umpire Dutch Rennert had ejected starter Mark Lemongello from the game for arguing a fourth ball call.

Braves 5, Pirates 4

Rookie catcher Dale Murphy broke a tie in the ninth with a grand slam home run to boost Atlanta over Pittsburgh. Murphy's drive into the left field seats, his third homer this season, came with none out off reliever Kent Tekulve.

Scots Send Star Home

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) - Scotland's soccer team has saved itself from possible disqualification from the World Cup by sending home Willie Johnston, the star who took forbidden pep pills.

"I don't think we could take any action against Scotland now, since the Scottish football association itself has punished the player," said Helmut Kaeser, secretary general of the International Soccer Federation (FIFA).

"It was an exemplary decision by Scotland, and the most logical that we could have hoped for."

Johnston was ordered home Monday and told he would never be allowed to play for Scotland again. He admitted taking two pills before his team lost to Peru 3-1 in Group 4 of the tournament at Cordoba last Saturday.

Doctors had reported traces of fenefamina, a forbidden drug, in a urine sample taken from Johnston after the match. The World Cup organizing committee had the power to disqualify Scotland. But the Scots jumped in quickly, conducted their own investigation and dismissed Johnston.

Kaeser said that if Scotland had defeated Peru, and the doping offense had been proven, Peru would have been awarded the game.

"Scotland has taken the right measures against a player who could have done much harm to his team," Kaeser said.

The doping discovery occurred after each of the 16 teams had completed one game. Already two Hungarian players had been ordered off the field at the end of a savage match against Argentina, so the image of the tournament is stained before it is one-quarter completed.

Soccer officials came to Argentina worried about possible disruption of the World Cup by terrorists. Instead, the trouble has come from inside the game itself.

The two teams concerned are the ones to suffer. Scotland will miss Johnston's brilliance in attack as it tries to recover from the upset by Peru. Hungary was to face Italy in Group 1 today without Tiber Nyilasi and Andras Torocsik, who were ordered to leave the field against Argentina.

Meanwhile, some lively attacking soccer was expected today as France, Hungary and Mexico sought desperately to win and redeem their bad starts.

All needed victories to have a chance of advancing to the second round.

In Group 1 today, Italy was to play Hungary at Mar del Plata and Argentina was to meet France here.

In Group 2, Poland was scheduled against Tunisia at Rosario, and West Germany was to play Mexico at Cordoba.

"I had pretty good stuff after the early innings," said Stone. "I struggled for awhile, but suddenly it was there."

Waits was annoyed at giving up Bill Nahorodny's two-run double in the fourth inning.

TORONTO (AP) - The Toronto Metros-Croatia of the North American Soccer League have announced the signing of three players from Yugoslavia.

Stone Unsympathetic

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The pitching fraternity is supposed to be a close-knit group, with even opposing hurlers feeling sympathy for counterparts who are performing well but have little to show for it.

"But don't tell that to Steve Stone of the Chicago White Sox. I don't have a drop of sympathy," said Stone after he out-duelled Rick Waits of Cleveland in Chicago's 2-0 victory over the Indians Monday night.

Waits has lost his last four starts although he has hurlled six-hitters in three of them, including Monday's loss to Stone, who surrendered just three singles.

"I've lost my share of well-pitched games, too, so I can't feel for what happened to him."

Chicago Manager Bob Lemon, a former star pitcher with the Cleveland Indians, was a bit kinder to Waits.

"They both had command of their stuff, they're good breaking ball pitchers and they showed it tonight."

Stone, 6-3, struck out six and walked six and never allowed an

Three Students In High School Finals

HHS senior Jim Bob Walden, a four-year qualifier, leads a group of three Hereford High School rodeo performers into the 8th Annual Tri-State High School Rodeo Association (TSHSRA) Finals this Thursday and Friday at the Fairpark Coliseum in Amarillo.

Walden, a qualifier, in the team roping and steer wrestling events, will be joined at the finals by HHS performers Tania Willson (Jr.) and sophomore Cathy Trolinder at the finals.

Willson will compete in both goat tying and poles, while Trolinder will compete in goat tying.

The TSHSRA is a non-profit organization whose membership is open to all high school students, grades nine through 12, who are members of their local high school rodeo club.

There were over 500 members this year from four states including Texas, New Mexico, Kansas, and Oklahoma.

The members had 19 opportunities to earn points toward a berth in the finals, which includes the top 15 point-earners. The performers earned points on a six for first, five for second, and so on to one for sixth at each rodeo, over the season.

Other events to be held at the finals include barrel racing, breakaway roping, and bull riding for the girls, and bareback riding, calf roping, ribbon roping, and bull-riding for the boys.

A special awards banquet will be held Saturday, June 10 with well-known western artist Kenneth Wyatt the featured speaker. The year-end champion and reserve year-end champion will receive trophy saddles and buckles at the banquet. The top three finals average winners will also receive buckles for their efforts.

Rodeo performances will begin at 8 p.m. both Thursday and Friday night.

Monterey To Play CC Moody

Lubbock Monterey, which slipped past Midland Lee with two one-run decisions last Saturday in Lubbock, will carry the District 4-4A banner into the state baseball playoffs Thursday night with a 9 p.m. battle against Corpus Christi Moody.

The Plainsmen (32-5) defeated Lee 5-4 and 7-6 Saturday to earn the state finals trip against Moody (29-5). Lee had gained a 6-4 win in the initial game of the two teams' series last Tuesday.

A Class 3A battle between Brazosport (27-6) and Mount Pleasant (24-4) will open the state finals at 1 p.m. Thursday. The second 3A game pitting Burkburnett (20-10) and Jasper (29-6) will follow at 3 p.m., while Duncanville (34-4) will meet Houston Bellaire (36-8) at 7 p.m. in the other 4A contest.

The 3A championship game will begin at 7 p.m. Friday with the 4A title battle to follow at 9 p.m.

Rain Dampens Tourney

By BOB NICH
Sports Editor

Although she had to battle the wind and rain, Hereford Open Tennis Tournament director Sheila Watley managed to get the bulk of the divisions completed in that annual event last weekend. Still, some of the events had to be cancelled after rain halted play Friday and wiped out a second try Monday.

Amarillo players dominated the tournament this year, winning three singles crowns and five doubles titles. Mary Zinser gave Hereford its single champion with a 7-5, 6-7, 6-4 win over Jenny Cassels of Hereford in womens singles.

C.W. Meyers and Keith Embry of Amarillo emerged double winners at the meet. Meyers won the Mens' over 35 singles title in a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Hereford's Dave Hopper, and then teamed with Hudson of Amarillo to take the over 35 doubles title over Hopper and Butch White, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2.

Embry won the mens' 'B' division singles over Hereford's Bill Hackett 6-2, 6-0, and teamed with Barnard of Amarillo to win the 'B' doubles also.

Only two junior events were completed. Olton's Sandy Koonitz beat Hereford's Karen Compton 6-0, 6-3 in Girls 16 singles, while Youree-Vaughn of Amarillo defeated Scott Simmons-Trent Thomas of Hereford 6-2, 6-1 in Boys 16 doubles.

Rain forced postponement of the local qualifying round for the Insurance Youth Classic Golf Tournament until Monday, June 12. Tourney directors have announced. The round was originally set for Monday, June 5 before weather forced the delay.

Youth golfers may take advantage of the added week to sign up for the IYC round, which will begin at 8:30 a.m. at the Pitman Course here. Golfers will have until just before the round begins to sign up. A $2 entry fee is required as is a signed parental-approval form.

NBA Finals Down To Seventh Game

SEATTLE (AP) - It's a situation the Seattle SuperSonics have faced before in National Basketball Association playoffs - being crushed by a foe on the road and needing a win at home to come back.

They were in a position to oust the 1977 NBA champion Portland Trail Blazers from the playoffs on April 30 in the Portland Coliseum, but lost by 24 points.

They could've finished off Denver in Game 5 of the semi-finals in Denver on May 14-but the Sonics were never in it and trailed by as much as 18 points in that game.

In the cast of Portland and Denver, the Sonics returned home and played near-flawless ball to win the NBA Western Division crown.

On Sunday, the Sonics were beaten badly by Washington, 117-82, to tie the series. The best-of-seven championship series is down to the final game, Wednesday night.

The Sonics consider Sunday's embarrassment a temporary setback, like 24-hour flue, that will go away.

"We'll have the advantage playing at home," said Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkins. "And you can be sure we'll play better than we played Sunday. That was the worst game we've played in a long time and it's not going to happen again. We had nothing, but we were so bad, it's easy to snap out of a game like that."

"They've still got to win one more," said Sonics forward Paul Silas. "And ain't no way in hell they're going to do that."

But Washington forward Elvin Hayes noted the Bullets' big win might have a lingering effect.

"Maybe we needed this to bring out what kind of team we are," Hayes said. "In any case, they'll have to think about it. They'll have to think about a lot of things."

Bullets Coach Dick Motta went into Sunday's game with a last-minute change that helped a lineup of one guard and four front-courtmen. It was a move of necessity because guard Kevin Grayev's sprained wrist.

The strategy confounded the Sonics, who shot 33.7 percent and were outrebounded 69-49.

"We had used their alignment during the regular season," said Motta. "But we didn't practice it for this series. We decided to go with it at the last minute, because Grayev had spent some time in the hospital and his arm was so stiff. We hadn't noticed it before, but we will on Tuesday - and will probably mess it up."

Motta could afford to joke. His Bullets were flying. "That's the real Bullets," Motta said. "We played like that against San Antonio and Philadelphia in earlier playoff rounds and I was wondering when we'd get another good one."

Lacrosse Making Impact in State

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Texas could become the next notch in the nation's Lacrosse Belt if some enthusiastic players, many of them transplanted easterners, have their way.

But tonight the national champions from John Hopkins University will take on the best of region in a test of just how far the Southwest has come.

The John Hopkins stickmen take on a Southwest Lacrosse Association all-star team in Ownby Stadium.

The all-star squad's first practice was two days ago. "We've got a chance for sure. We've got some good players out here," said Russ Bolling of the Dallas club team.

The former Army player added, "Certainly we're the decided underdog."

Organizers of the event don't expect a crowd of Super Bowl size.

"If we get 2,000, we're all right. We'll make all expenses and give the American Heart Association a nice check," said Don Newbury, a former Penn State lacrosse player.

and 30,000 no-shows. Members of the southwest league are strictly amateurs. Many play only when their jobs and professional schedules permit.

They foot their own bills for equipment and travel expenses. "This is the oldest North American competitive sport," Newbury explained. Indians played it, and French Jesuits named it.

The modern sport looks something like hockey on a soccer field, using a ball that is slightly smaller than a tennis ball. Each player on the ten-man team can handle the ball only in the webbing at the end of his lacrosse stick.

"It's a rough sport," Newbury said.

"I don't know what our percentage of injuries are, but they're the usual. Lacrosse players in general don't seem to mind the licks."

Lacrosse enthusiasts are most often found on the East Coast. Popularity has grown in the Midwest.

"All those little schools in Ohio are really playing good ball," Newbury said. "Then they're a void all the way out to Arizona. That's our aim is to make it grow and close this gap in the middle of the country."

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Lyndell Williams

AUSTIN—A state Senate committee has launched a long range study of feasibility of a multi-billion-dollar refinery tax.

The committee, headed by Sen. Peyton McKnight of Tyler, held an organization meeting at the capitol last week. McKnight declared it can and probably will "look into the whole picture of state tax sources and requirements," with a view to eventual replacement of some revenue from oil, gas and land taxes.

Meanwhile, McKnight said he considers Seadock, a proposed offshore oil unloading terminal along the Texas coast, a "dead duck in the water." McKnight and other senators on the committee expressed doubt the terminal can be revived with financing guaranteed by the state.

"Twenty to 25 percent of the cost of state government has been financed by severance taxes on oil and gas," said McKnight. "When the goose that laid the golden egg dies, what do we do? This committee would be derelict if it didn't take a look into alternative taxes. . . . And the wealthiest states can't any longer be judged strictly in terms of their land values. The courts are going to rule that we have to look at all classes of property for tax purposes—and that includes stocks and bonds."

McKnight said he is convinced 60 to 70 percent of a tax on oil processed through refineries could be passed along to out-of-state purchasers.

Acknowledging that both Republican and Democratic candidates for governor are committed against new taxes, McKnight said the committee might be able to come up with a proposal to substitute a new type major levy for an existing one.

Slow Count

Nearly three weeks after the Democratic primary, State Party Chairman Calvin Guest finally announced a referendum on legalizing horse race wagering had failed 692,307 to 724,584.

But that didn't put an end to the controversy over the slow count and alleged errors in reporting returns. Horse racing proponents continued to charge irregularities in the returns leave the issue in doubt.

The State Democratic Executive Committee will meet here June 13 to announce results officially, and more changes in the total are likely.

Guest also announced a referendum issue on whether the legislature should authorize higher interest rates on loans under $5,000 had failed 146,510 to 1,209,840.

Money Freed

In a legal interpretation of potentially far-reaching political significance, Secretary of State Steve Oaks said Texas laws prohibiting corporations and labor unions from spending money to support or defeat measures on the ballot are invalid.

Oaks cited an April 26 ruling of the U.S. Supreme Court in a Massachusetts case, holding unconstitutional a state law barring the corporate and labor contributions to aid or fight ballot propositions, including constitutional amendments and referendum issues.

Oaks' staff said the opinion has no bearing on prohibitions against corporate contributions to candidates for public office.

However, some attorneys quickly questioned whether future litigation will successfully attack that ban.

Others speculated the decision will encourage corporations to spend heavily on ballot propositions of particular interest to them.

Labor officials took a dim view of the ruling, stating they don't have the funds to compete with corporations on issue campaigns.

Courts Speak

The Court of Criminal Appeals affirmed the death penalty assessed a San Antonio man in the fatal stabbing of a nurse.

At the same time, the court, in a divided verdict, upheld a 50-year sentence given a Texas City man for slaying his wife.

The State Supreme Court took under study a case involving the issue of whether the state equal rights amendment allows wives the right to sue for loss of "consortium" (affection, comfort and assistance of their husbands). A Dallas wife asserted an auto accident injured her husband and deprived her of that benefit.

In other action, the Supreme Court:

—Held an Amarillo lawyer who refused to pay a $24 lawnmower repair bill now must fork over more than $1,000 to the repairman, as a result of their long-standing dispute.

—Upheld the practice of property tax reappraisals on the basis of rotation in various parts of a city.

DNC Choices

Three Texans vacated places on the Democratic National Committee, and successors were due to be named at a special meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee meeting June 1.

Jess Hay of Dallas resigned immediately after the May 6 primary in which he backed Gov. Dolph Briscoe over John Hill. With Hill the victor, Hay concluded the nominee should have his choice of a committeeman.

Joe Bernal of San Antonio and Alicia Chacon of El Paso also resigned several months after both had accepted high federal appointment to regional jobs. DNC members are selected regularly at quadrennial June state party conventions. Vacancies between conventions are filled by majority vote of SDEC.

Short Snorts

Mrs. Rosalynn Carter, first lady of the U.S., addressed a seminar here on mental health.

Southwestern Bell Telephone spokesmen led off a parade of witnesses before the Public Utility Commission at a hearing on Bell's request for $220.3 million in rate increases.

Attorney General John Hill recommended the Texas Railroad Commission approve the proposed, Lo-Vaca Gathering Company rate controversy settlement plan with four changes designed to give consumers $200 million in financial benefits.

Republican gubernatorial nominee Bill Clements moved his campaign headquarters lock, stock and barrel from Dallas to Austin—into the old quarters formerly occupied by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

The State Board of Education scheduled a June 9 hearing on proposed policies to govern hearings on student suspensions and placement of handicapped pupils.

As errors continued to be discovered, State Democratic Executive Committee reported the margin by which the May 6 horse race wagering referendum failed shrank to 27,123 votes, out of more than 1.4 million cast.

The state's highway program is still cramped for funds, Highway and Public Transportation Commissioner Charles Simons said in a recent speech at Athens.

A Texas Education Agency audit team went to Southside Independent School District in San Antonio after Rep. Frank Madla complained that teachers who are absent are being reported present there and receiving state funds for work not done.

Attorney General John Hill said the U.S. Department of Justice has refused to support a controversial coal transportation rate order issued by Interstate Commerce Commission allowing Burlington Northern Railroad to hike its charges for moving coal to Houston for electricity generation.

Texas oil and gas well production for February was off field runs of a year earlier by 5.88 percent.

Zaire Settles for Mobutu Because No One's Available

EDITOR'S NOTE: Autocratic, flamboyant and pro-Western, President Mobutu Sese Seko has held Zaire together for 13 years. But after the latest war in Shaba Province, the question is: How much longer? Here is a report by an Associated Press correspondent who covered the recent fight for Kolwezi.

By SERGE SCHEMAMANN
Associated Press Writer
KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) - In the embassies and offices of Kinshasa, the stories are legion of corruption, cruelty and instability in the government of President Mobutu Sese Seko. But the refrain is always the same: "There's just no one else here who could take this place." That also is the dilemma facing Western leaders as again they fly to the rescue of the former Belgian army sergeant-major who alone has succeeded in imposing a semblance of order on a nation chronically torn by violence, intrigue, tribalism, conspiracy and foreign interference.

Mobutu has kept the Communists out of his country and has allowed Belgium - and to a lesser degree France, the United States and Japan - to mine Zaire's copper, cobalt, zinc and other minerals. In the process, however, the 47-year-old president has trampled heavily, seized virtually all power and amassed a personal fortune.

With last month's invasion of Shaba Province by rebels crossing from Zambia, with the closure of Kolwezi's vital copper mines and with reports of new rebellions elsewhere in this Central African nation, the question for the West is how long, and at what expense, can it continue to maintain Mobutu.

"There's a limit to our options," said one senior Western diplomat in this capital city. "We're in a period of soul-searching here."

Without a Western-backed central government, Zaire could revert to the chaotic, brutal wars that marked its first decade of independence. And with the report Soviet and Cuban support for the 4,000 Lunda tribesmen who invaded Shaba and briefly occupied Kolwezi until driven out by French troops, it is probable the country would fall into the Soviet orbit.

The loss of Mobutu could spell serious economic dislocation for Western nations, especially Belgium, the country's former colonial ruler. Belgium has investments of about $6 billion in Zaire managed by about 30,000 Belgian nationals.

The invasion of Shaba made clear that only outside armies can keep Mobutu in power. His own troops in Kolwezi melted before the invaders and he since has jailed for life the commanding general for cowardice.

Western experts note that the 50,000-man Zairian army is among the best-equipped in Africa, but say its problem is the same corruption, lack of discipline and divisiveness that plague the rest of Zaire.

Mobutu came to power in 1965, five years after the country gained independence from Belgium.

'Record' Needs Prices, Not Dots

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Congressional Record is lettered with black dots which tell us that the marked passage was inserted rather than actually spoken during floor debate. What the Record really needs is price tags.

That way, taxpayers would know the cost when a member of Congress inserts material of dubious importance to the survival of the Republic.

For example, it was a wonderful 25th birthday party they had the other day for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and Rep. John Brademas wanted to make certain his colleagues didn't miss a word of the ceremonies.

So the Inga Democrat put a transcript of the proceedings in the Congressional Record, filling nearly three pages at a cost of $322 a page.

Thanks to Brademas, readers of the record could savor HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr.'s introductions of some of his predecessors.

There was, according to the transcript, "Applause," when Califano introduced Arthur Flemming, HEW secretary during the Eisenhower administration.

More applause greeted former secretaries Abraham Ribicoff, Anthony Celebrezze, John Gardner, Wilbur Cohen and David Matthews.

And, of course, the crowd went wild when Califano introduced a couple of current cabinet secretaries and several members of the House and Senate including Brademas.

On and on it went, introductions and inside jokes, followed by "laughter."

Just about one page, or $322, was blown on the introductory remarks. Then were some speeches by distinguished guests. Brademas' remarks appear to be about $25 to $30 in length. Finally, Califano rambled on about $300 or more.

The Byzantine navy owed many of its victories to so-called "Greek fire," a flammable compound. Its exact composition is still uncertain.

Little Must Return

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court Monday cleared the way for New York authorities to return Joan Little to North Carolina.

Apparently rejecting arguments that Miss Little's life would be endangered in North Carolina's custody, the nation's highest court turned down a request that her extradition be postponed until her lawyers could file a formal appeal.

Miss Little now faces return to a North Carolina prison to finish serving a term on a breaking-and-entering conviction and possible additional time on escape charges.

Miss Little, who is black, became the focal point of civil rights and women's rights activists in 1975 when she stood trial on charges of murdering a Beaufort County, N.C., jail guard.

She said the guard, Clarence Allgood, attempted to sexually assault her and that she stabbed him with an icepick in self-defense.

She was acquitted after a two-month trial that attracted international attention but was later imprisoned on an unrelated breaking-and-entering conviction.

Last Oct. 15, Miss Little escaped from the North Carolina Correction Center for Women near Raleigh.

She was arrested in Brooklyn, N.Y., last Dec. 6.

In asking the Supreme Court to block her extradition, Miss Little's lawyers argued that "there is a plan or conspiracy on the part of various officials of the state of North Carolina to murder her should she be returned."

North Carolina officials have denied that there is any such conspiracy.

14. CARD OF THANKS

THANK YOU,
I would like to thank this time to thank the many people of Herford for their time and donations that made it possible for Yolanda Cantu and I to travel to Connecticut. Though we didn't make the Pro-team, both of learned many new things, and its an experience neither will forget. I appreciate your support and the chance to go and travel, meeting new people and learning so much, not only about the game of softball but also this game we call life.

Thank you

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — My problem is with my stockings. They tend to bunch up or crease at the ankles and sometimes they bag at the knees, too. I wear size 9 1/2 shoes, a size 8 shoe, weigh 125 pounds and am 5 feet 5 inches tall. — HELEN O.

DEAR HELEN O. — Do you wash your hose after each wearing? I also wonder if you are buying the correct size. I wear size 9 1/2 hose but only 6 1/2 shoes. Ask at the hosiery counter of your favorite store because that might well be causing the trouble. I am sure some of the readers will have other suggestions for you. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I never felt my son's wallet was safe when he was wearing jeans. Now I have sewn Velcro to the inside top of the pocket he always puts his wallet in. Each time he gets a new pair, this addition is made before they are worn. — FRIEDA

DEAR POLLY — and Simone who has trouble with mice — We had the same problem and were told that the mice came up the pipes that enter our mobile home. I think the solution given us would work as well in a house as a mobile home. Put steel wool all around every pipe so any opening is filled and in a short time you should find you have no more mice. Steel wool can be bought in bulk at most hardware stores. — PENNIE

DEAR POLLY — Because of illness we could not make our usual weekend trips to our home in the mountains and the mice really moved in. We first used a commercial poison and the number decreased considerably — we found dead mice in many unexpected places, even in my bed. I am one of those people who cannot stand mice and felt we had to eliminate every single one of them so we followed a neighbor's advice and put moth balls every place we saw a trace of them. They evidently do not like the odor of moth balls as we have not seen a sign of a mouse for quite a time. — RUBY

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for those who wear dentures. When brushing your dentures always have water in the wash basin so if they should slip out of your hands falling into the water will help prevent their being cracked or chipped. — MRS. A.F.

DEAR POLLY — People shopping in department stores have a habit of picking up too much or changing their minds and then depositing the extra things just any place in the store. Department stores should have a sign on a cart that reads "If you have picked up too much or changed your mind please deposit here — thank you. — DOROTHY

Pickers Union Case Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday left untouched a ruling that unions said could deal a severe blow to labor's efforts to organize the represent agricultural workers.

The justices refused to review a decision reached by the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last December in a case involving East Coast apple pickers.

At issue was whether government officials may exclude as unavailable for temporary work U.S. residents who seek from more benefits from agricultural employers than the minimum level guaranteed by the government.

Recruitment for apple pickers by East Coast growers occurs from April to July each year. In 1976 and 1977, as many as 5,000 Jamaicans were hired under a federal program allowing for importation of foreign workers if U.S. workers are "unavailable."

At the same time, from 2,000 to 4,000 Puerto Rican farm workers were ready to help pick the apples — but under Puerto Rican law the island's secretary of labor is barred from releasing Puerto Rican residents for itinerant work for less benefits than a prescribed "wage benefit package."

That package averages out to about five cents an hour more per worker than the minimum required by the federal government. It includes provisions for three hot meals a day, an employer performance bond and non-occupational group health insurance for the workers.

Because the Puerto Rican workers were not willing to work for the compensation specified under certain federal regulations, the Labor Department in 1976 excluded them from the "available" domestic work force when fixing a quota of foreign workers to be temporarily admitted.

A group of Puerto Rican farm workers sued the government in late 1976, and in 1977 sought an injunction barring the Labor Department from excluding the workers. A federal trial judge issued the injunction. The 1st Circuit Court overturned it.

If workers demanding more than the federal minimum level of benefits were included in the "available" work force under federal regulations, the inclusion "would be used to require employers to meet whatever demands might be made by domestic workers," the appeals court ruled.

In seeking Supreme Court review, lawyers for the Puerto Rican workers argued: "This decision permits all agricultural employers to substitute temporary foreign workers for U.S. workers at wage rates and conditions lower than those sought by U.S. workers."

They said the loss in pay for U.S. workers in 1977 was some $5 million.

The Supreme Court apparently contended that the Labor Department's procedures are unconstitutional and illegal.

In a friend-of-the-court brief siding with the Puerto Rican workers, the United Farm Workers union said the government's program and recent court decisions "have paved the way for increased importation of temporary labor. If this court fails to restore the protective barriers against non-immigrant labor breached but not destroyed by the court of appeals, not only will organization and improvement in the conditions of the agricultural workforce be drowned in its infancy, but clear congressional purpose will have been effectively avoided."

Ulcer medicine

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read in your column about Tagamet being available in the United States. My son is 24 years old and has had a duodenal ulcer for at least four years. I suppose because he is a worrier (inherited from me). He is an accountant and just finished getting his masters degree. Is his ulcer the same as a peptic ulcer?

I would appreciate it if you would send me some information about this new treatment.

DEAR READER — Tagamet, also known as cimetidine, is being used extensively in the treatment of peptic ulcer. By the way duodenal ulcers are one form of peptic ulcer. A peptic ulcer can occur in either the duodenum, which is the first part of the intestine just outside the stomach, or inside the stomach itself. Most ulcers, even if they are called stomach ulcers, are really duodenal ulcers.

Tagamet has a different action from antacids. Basically it inhibits the stomach's ability to form excess amounts of acid rather than neutralizing the overproduction of acids. It was used extensively in England before it was approved in this country and received good reviews there.

I'm certain that your son's doctor knows all about it since Tagamet has been the subject of a heavy promotional campaign both in the lay and medical press. In fact I have seldom seen a medicine given so much promotion and publicity. Perhaps because of this it received unusually rapid approval from the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). Ordinarily the FDA is rather cautious about approving new medicines until they have been completely evaluated by scientists in the United States.

While it appears that the drug has a very good place in medicine and probably has few side effects, there have been a few warnings. One of these is a suggestion by a Baltimore physician that Tagamet might affect the bone marrow and its ability to produce blood cells. This was discounted by the pharmaceutical firm marketing Tagamet.

However, the doctor's suggestion as published in Lancet Medical Journal raises some questions about how thoroughly the adverse effects of Tagamet have been studied. An earlier question about Tagamet concerned its role in the cause of tumors in rats. However, this data was reviewed by the FDA before they approved the drug for public use. It has also been reported in Lancet that Tagamet was ineffective in stopping bleeding, a complication of peptic ulcers.

I am a bit concerned about the way many medicines produced by drug companies are studied before marketing. Often the scientists and laboratories involved are not totally without bias as often they are investigators one way or another for the drug company involved.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-5, Ulcers: Duodenal, Stomach, which will give you the basic information about ulcers. Others who are interested in this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Tagamet or other medicines are not a substitute for proper living which is essential to the management of all peptic ulcer cases. That includes removal of stress and the elimination of ulcerogenic habits such as the use of coffee, alcohol and smoking cigarettes.

Burn Victim Dies

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Joyce Taylor, 24, died Monday in a Galveston hospital of burns received during a series of explosions at a waterfront oil refinery at Texas City.

She was the seventh victim of the blasts that rocked the facilities at the Texas City Refining Inc. plant in the predawn hours of May 30.

Two workers and a security guard were killed when two 55,000 gallon gasoline tanks erupted and fire spread rapidly to other storage facilities nearby.

Three others died later.

Saigon Seen as More Provincial Than Before

NEW YORK (AP) - The bright lights and life-style of once-wicked Saigon which flickered for three years despite the communist takeover in 1975 have been turned off.

The first Americans to visit the former South Vietnamese capital since a major crackdown on capitalists in March discovered last week that a more austere, provincial city has emerged that is more in keeping with the ideology of the communist authorities who won the war. Gone are the prostitutes who hung around the photo kiosks on the street of Flowers trying to pick up visiting Russians and Eastern Europeans. Gone too are the sidewalk blackmarkets that dispensed Japanese radios, electric razors and assorted rusted U.S. PX supplies often hawked by families trying to survive economically under the new regime.

"The good life is no more. The story in the south now is hard work," said Dr. Robert Browne, an economist who is president of the Black Economic Research Center and a member of a Church World Services delegation that witnessed the arrival in Vietnam of 10,000 tons of wheat donated by Americans.

"Many people in the cities don't like that hard work requirement," said Brown. "They know that if they are not producing adequately they will have to go to the country to grow food. That's why so many continue to leave Vietnam and try to come to the United States."

The Hanoi government waited three years to crack down hard on the remaining vestiges of capitalism in South Vietnam.

"Finally, they had to deal with the economic situation," said Paul McCleary, executive director of Church World Services, and a delegation member.

"The intent of the economic reform was to bring the capitalistic system under control, to end the double standard, to bring the economy under the central-planning process," he said.

The crackdown started March 23 and foreigners were kept out of what is now known as Ho Chi Minh City until the arrival of the Americans last week.

However, the repercussions had already been assumed. An estimated 100,000 Chinese reportedly have left Vietnam in the past two months and the Chinese government has protested vigorously about what it asserts is the economic persecution of Chinese living in Vietnam.

The American visitors discovered the Chinese section of Ho Chi Minh City, Cholon, drastically changed. The 200-year-old center that bristled with vigorous commercial life seemed to have closed down.

"The big Chinese businesses, and the large shops had been shuttered closed. Only a few restaurants were left open, and some vendors sold soup on the streets," said McCleary.

As in the rest of town, streets once wreathed in the blue haze of car and motorcycle exhaust fumes had become sedate thoroughfares for bicycle riders adopting the transportation method always common to Hanoi in the north.

Local authorities told the Americans that in one warehouse they found a hoard of 10,000 brand new Japanese motorscooters. Owners were reimbursed for goods confiscated in the crackdown, officials said, but the money was placed in savings accounts and invested in state projects.

The end of capitalism was apparent in the center of the city, with all the stores on once-busy Tu Do Street closed. The street itself is now called Dong Hoi Street.

For the unemployed, the future is in the new economic zones in the countryside.

"Food is the crucial thing," said Browne, who met his Vietnamese wife's relatives from Cambodia in a border refugee camp. His brother-in-law told him each person receives seven kilos about 15 pounds of rice a month. "It's not much but you won't starve on that diet," Browne said.

The Americans were told that the northern part of the county now feeds the south while awaiting increased production from the new economic zones.

While the Americans noted that as the bustle of old Saigon had declined, the economy of Hanoi had picked up, with more goods in the stores and obviously increased productivity.

The delegation visited one new economic zone run for the state by Catholics from Ho Chi Minh City. They said they also met farmers and other who identified themselves as former Saigon army officers who had been released from the re-education camps.

The Americans said they were told many of the camps had been closed and that all but about four percent of the original several hundred thousand persons sent to them have been released.

NBC Wins Neilson Battle

NEW YORK (AP) - NBC claimed only three of the week's 10 most-watched programs, but fared well in the ratings from then on and won the networks' weekly battle for the prime time television viewer.

NBC's best for the week ending May 28 was a new episode of "Police Story," No. 5 in the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s ratings. A consistent NBC hit, "Little House on the Prairie," was No. 9 for the week, and a third NBC show, "Class of '65," tied for tenth.

Three of the four mostwatch-ed shows were on ABC. A new installment of "Laverne and Shirley" was ranked No. 1 in a week marked by at least two-dozen reruns. A rerun of another ABC comedy, "Three's Company," was second.

CBS scored with "The Dain Curse," a three-part production of the Dashiell Hammett novel. The first episode Monday evening was No. 3 in the week's ratings, Part III was tenth and Part II was 13th. But it wasn't enough to pull CBS out of third place in the network standings for the week.

NBC's relatively strong start contributed to a rating for the week of 15.1. ABC was at 14.6 and CBS at 14.4. The networks say that means in an average prime time minute, 15.1 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned in to NBC.

The rating for "Laverne and Shirley" was 24.3. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 24.3 percent saw at least part of the show.

Four ABC shows were ranked at the bottom of the ratings - "Sugar Time" and "Sister Terri," both tied with NBC's "C.P.O. Sharkey" for No. 52, and "Vanishing Wilderness," No. 57. CBS' telecast of the pro basketball playoff game Thursday night with 55th, and NBC's "Comedy Time" 56th.

Here are the week's Top 10 shows: "Laverne and Shirley," a 24.3 rating representing 17.7 million homes, and "Three's Company," 23.4 or 17.1 million, both ABC; "The Dain Curse,"

Part I, 22.6 or 16.5 million, CBS; "Happy Days," 22.5 or 16.4 million, ABC; "Police Story," 20.8 or 15.2 million, NBC; "M-A-S-H," 20.4 or 14.9 million, CBS; "Carter Country," 18.7 or 13.6 million, and "Bing Crosby - Life and Legend," 18.6 or 13.5 million, both ABC; "Little House on the Prairie," 18.3 or 13.3 million, NBC, and "The Dain Curse," Part III, CBS, and "Class of '65," NBC, both 18.2 or 13.2 million.

The next 10 shows: Movie, "Rooster Cogburn," NBC; "The Dain Curse," Part II, CBS; "Charlie's Angeles," ABC; "Alice," CBS; "Country Night of the Stars," NBC; "Eight is Enough," ABC; Movie, "Kate Bliss and the Ticker Tape Kid," ABC, and "Quincy, M.E.," NBC, tie; and "Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island," both ABC, tie.

Petrarch, the first modern lyric poet, was born in Arezzo, Italy, July 20, 1304.

Marijuana Makes Dentists' Job Tougher, Researchers Say

CHICAGO (AP) - Marijuana and dental treatment don't mix, say two dental researchers who warn that marijuana users may suffer serious side-effects because of reactions to drugs used in dental treatment.

For that reason, they advise habitual marijuana smokers to abstain from use of the substance for a period before and after treatment.

The researchers review marijuana in relation to stress in dental treatment in the June issue of the Journal of the American Dental Association. They are Drs. Leonard G. Horowitz of the Eastman Dental Center in Rochester, N.Y., and Robert R. Nersasian of Tufts University school of dental medicine in Boston.

They point out that about half of college-age Americans used marijuana in 1972, with 8 percent smoking it daily. And they say it is projected that 66 percent of young adults will use it by 1980.

For this reason, they advise dentists, more young dental patients will be seeking elective or emergency dental treatment while under the influence of marijuana.

Marijuana, they say, "is a potent, pharmacologically active agent that could affect and complicate a dental procedure," and it needs further study as it relates to dental treatment.

They say it interferes with normal cardiovascular mechanisms and those responses involving the involuntary nervous system.

They caution that cross-reactions between the active chemical breakdown products of marijuana and drugs used in pain killers and as stimulants in dental treatment.

Patients who have used marijuana may develop irregular heartbeats and may experience drops in blood pressure to the point where they faint, Horowitz and Nersasian say.

The chemically active ingredients in marijuana alone are capable of inducing a number of abnormal responses involving the heart, lungs and blood vessels, as well as other physiologically dangerous changes.

They cite a study that concluded medicines commonly used in dental treatment containing atropine or epinephrine in patients who use marijuana could intensify and prolong abnormally rapid heartbeats "for a dangerously long period of time."
