ONE SILENT HIKER VISITS CISCO ON TREK

Attired in sembrero and hiking gaiters and burdened with haversacks which bulge with relics and mementoes of his long trips afoot, John Kennedy Bradford, globe-trotter in fact as well as name is today adding more miles to his 35,000 he claims to have walked. Known as the world's champion of mute hiker, a distinction which Ripley in his famous "Be a Mute Hiker" feature testifies, this one silent hiker is on his 13th transcontinental tour en route from Los Angeles to New York via Indianapolis where he expects to witness the automobile race.

He was made deaf by a paralytic stroke at the age of three. From 1910 to 1913 he attended the Indiana school for the deaf and after completing his courses there set out to see the world for himself, selling story cards of his travels to defray expenses.

He expects to reach New York in 1931 and meet Mr. Ripley there. He is now in Cisco a few years ago on his last trek.

PRICE MOVES OPPOSITE TO 1929 DEBACLE

By R. E. EDMONDSON in the Wall Street Journal.

Price movements on the stock exchange during the past week were in some respects diametrically opposite to those which characterized the culminating stages of the bull market in the mid-summer of 1929.

Renewed selling of the rails has largely been based on dividend uncertainties created by the depressed earnings conditions in the transportation industry.

Benefits from the large movement of traffic are expected to be seen in the March earnings results, which will begin to appear in the next few days.

Burlington's preliminary earnings figures for last month indicate that the drop in net operating income from March, 1930, will be about 25 per cent, compared with a decline of 45 per cent reported for February.

Although steel operations showed a further decline during the past week, there was some feeling in the trade that the upward trend of January and February might reassert itself in coming weeks.

Contrasts between the light and heavy branches of the steel industry continue to create uncertainty as to the outlook.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS MERGED

Poetry Unbefitting Science Says Gov't.

FORT WORTH, April 13. — D. S. Landis, whose ultimate ambition in life would be to become poet laureate of Texas, says he would rather hold that honor "than be governor."

Landis has published many of his poems in leading magazines of the country and in a book which was released during the Spanish-American war. Publication of his work was curtailed by the department of the interior, which ruled that poetry concerning birds and flowers and rippling brooks was not befitting the dignity of a government man of science.

PRAYER—Awaken the church, O God, to its healing, teaching, and redeeming mission.

TIME TO WAKE UP.

The annual convention of the Broadway of America Highway association will be held at Memphis, Tenn., April 20 and 21. The most important matter with which this convention will deal will be the permanent settlement of the route to be followed by this transcontinental thoroughfare from New York City to San Diego, California.

So far little interest in this matter has been manifest here. Only two or three citizens have taken cognizance of the convention and its importance to the extent of urging that the chamber of commerce and the people in general take action to insure representation at the convention.

It is high time we were waking up and going about our city's business with a determination to realize upon the advantages which are offered us.

PROTECTION OF PLANES AND THEIR FLIERS.

There is another law on the statute books. It was finally enacted when the house passed a bill by Senator George Purl making it a felony offense to shoot with a rifle and do damage to an airplane in flight "or to disturb beacon landing lights or otherwise tamper with the air field equipment in a way to cause hazards to life."

A MILLION A YEAR TO BE SAVED.

Representative Johnston of Dimmit county saw the successful enactment by both houses of his bill simplifying the method of pleadings in the supreme court and the several courts of civil appeals. It is said it will save lawyers and litigants $1,000,000 annually.

TEXAS FARMERS GETTING THEIR SEED MONEY.

Director J. Murphy of the farmers federal seed loan office, Fort Worth, reports applications from Texas farmers for seed and family maintenance loans for amounts totaling over $1,000,000. Uncle Sam is furnishing the cash as an agent but the taxpayers will foot the bill in the long run.

"Praising university officials, the legislative committee, unanimous in their report, recommended supervision of university affairs be left to the board of regents and the president, Dr. W. B. Bizzell, 'free from interference.'"

IN THE POLITICAL ARENA

FUTURE SCHOOL PROGRAMS. It is entirely within the facts to say that, among all the enterprises of the people, no other outranks that of education either in its size or in its potential results.

Massachusetts Commissioner of Education, in the United States Daily. He continues in part: "We may, with great pride, note the achievements of the past. It is possible even to foresee, at least to some extent, what the schools of the future will be. It is clear that those schools will place increasing emphasis upon the individual child and his needs. Fixed and definite courses of study making exactly the same requirements of every child are already being discarded in favor of more flexible programs that make allowance for the infinite varieties of taste, talent and capacity which exist among children.

"The schools of the future, profiting by the lessons of the past, will place less stress upon preparation and more upon growth and development. The concern of education will increasingly be to bring to bear upon the child these influences and agencies which will help him to attain the highest physical, mental and moral stature which it is possible for him to reach.

"The old-fashioned school, whose prizes are so often hung, deserved many of the good things that were said of it. Its most enthusiastic admirers, however, would be compelled to admit that its instruction in matters of immediate concern was often far more theoretical than it was practical.

"Take for example, the matter of health. All will agree that an education which develops the mind at the expense of the body may be of doubtful value to contributing to a life of happiness and usefulness. It should be, therefore, a source of satisfaction that the modern school is paying so much attention to the development of play and games in which all can take part and in bringing children to understand how to care for those bodies which are the temples of mind and soul.

"Among all the contributions to be made through education, there is none more important than that of sound moral character. School, everywhere, both public and private, are accepting a major challenge of the present day which is that of bringing youth into the most intricate social and industrial life that the world has ever known armed with these powerful weapons which alone will be sufficient, namely sincerity, straightforwardness, thoughtfulness, honor recognition of the right of others, and zeal for justice.

"Every well-wisher of America must rejoice that the schools of our nation are bending their efforts so vigorously to programs of character education. Let it not be a purely academic fashion. Every recitation, every exercise and demonstration, every game on the playground and recreation field contributes each its opportunity for the development of these characteristics of which the world will always stand in so great need.

"In greater degree than in the past, our schools of the future will help young men and women to find the vocations to which they are adapted and will help to train them for their life work. The industrial life of our age is so complex and intricate that youth stands perplexed in the face of the great question as to what work he is best fitted to do and how to get into that work after he knows what he wants to do.

"This means, of course, that opportunities for technical and professional education must be greatly increased." — Paris News.

RAZORBACKS DEPEND UPON SOPHOMORES

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., April 13.—When the University of Arkansas track squad swings into action this season, new and untried sophomore candidates will bear the brunt of attack in every event.

Only five letter men and two reserves from last year's squad are back this spring, forcing Coach Fred C. Thompson to look to his sophomore candidates for at least 10 prospective tracksters.

W. C. Whitfield, Lonoke, looms as the most prospective candidate among the newcomers this season. Thompson stated the sophomore will make an excellent partner for Kyle in the dashes and is easily the outstanding broad jumper in school.

Bill Coleman, Nashville, is considered by Thompson to be the best high jump prospect Arkansas has had in several seasons. The lanky Coleman has been clearing the bar consistently around the six-foot mark.

The pole vault event at the Porter school this season will be manned by veterans, as both Capt. Jack Dale and Sub-Capt. Ivan Jackson are veterans in that event. Dale won first place in nearly every meet in the pole vault last year, while Jackson was usually a close second.

Caldwell, veteran hurdler; Holmes, a reserve, and Karr, sophomore, are waging a merry fight for the hurdle races. Caldwell is practically assured a regular berth, while Holmes has the inside track over Karr for the second starting place.

Milan Creighton, captain of both the track and football teams last year, will share the weight events with two new men this year. Judson Erwin, McGehee, and Erwin Karr, Fayetteville, were crack performers on the yearling team last year and should see equal duty this season.

Glen Innis, letter man, in all probability will be forced to run both the mile and two-mile races this season, as no logical running mate has reported for those events. "Red" Adams, letter man, dropped out of school last semester, leaving

War Veterans Lose Comrades

CLEBURNE, April 13.—Death continued today what the Civil war began 70 years ago.

Only nine names remain of the roster of the Pat Cleburne camp of United Confederate Veterans, which six years ago numbered over 60. Those of the nine who are able to continue attending the sessions of the camp say they will meet until the last man. None of the veterans are under 85 years of age.

The Pat Cleburne camp boasts of the only grandson of a Confederate veteran, who is captain of a United Confederate Veteran camp. He is C. J. Lockhart, bearing an honorary rank.

Members of the camp are: J. G. Barker, J. H. Hill, G. D. Pace, Dr. J. D. Osborn, A. D. Hadley, H. B. Coleman and A. T. Harris, all of Cleburne; A. Pruitt of Keene and J. L. Dunlap of Meridian.

Old Fiddlers Were Masters of Music

EL PASO, April 13.—Old-time fiddlers get the heartfelt expressions of compositions into their playing sometimes better than master violinists. Samuel Martinez, El Paso violinist, believes.

"The masters get more of the technique into their playing," Martinez said. "But the old time fiddler plays with his soul, expressing the thought on which the composition is based."

Martinez has just returned from giving concerts in Mexico City and plans soon to start on a tour giving concerts in southwestern cities.

TO EDIT YEARBOOK. COLLEGE STATION, April 13.—A. O. Saenger, junior liberal arts student from Beaumont, was elected editor of the 1932 Longhorn yearbook of the A and M college of Texas, by the junior class of the college, which will sponsor the book in its senior year.

GUARD IS QUINT CAP. LUBBOCK, April 13.—Herschel Tadlock, Amarillo, will direct his basketball teammates from the guard position in 1932. He has been elected captain of next season's Texas Tech. quintet.

WILL HONOR TEXAS HEROES ON APRIL 21

HOUSTON, April 13.—Thousands of Texans will flock to the San Jacinto battlefield April 21 to pay tribute to the memory of General Sam Houston and the Texas heroes who nearly a century ago won the independence of Texas.

An unusually interesting feature of this year's celebration will be the presentation of a replica of the only flag carried by the Texans in the battle. This emblem of distinctive design was made by the women of Newport, Kentucky, and presented to Captain Sidney Sherman and his company of volunteers, organized in that town to give aid to Texas. On the flag in blazing letters is the inscription: "Liberty or Death."

The original repose in the state library at Austin but is in too fragile a condition to be removed.

In the past, the auspices of the Sons of the Republic of Texas, Governor Ross Sterling and United States Senator Tom Connally will take part on the program. Governor Sterling will dedicate the trees recently planted on the battleground highway in honor of the heroes who fought and died on the field of San Jacinto. Senator Connally will make the principal address. Wreaths will be placed on the graves of the soldier dead.

A paved highway runs from Houston to the battlefield and the highway will be lined by thousands of patriotic Texans who will make the annual pilgrimage to one of the nation's greatest shrines.

TEXAS THANKS U. S. FOR SOIL CONSERVATION

The legislature has just adopted a concurrent resolution expressing the appreciation of the state for the interest the United States department of agriculture has taken in soil conservation in Texas.

This action of the legislature might also have recited the fact that Texas was responsible for inauguration of the first independent and systematic studies of soil waste by the United States government. The management of the Texas experiment station, and of the Brazos river district, presented the importance of soil conservation to Congressman J. P. Buchanan of the Tenth Texas district, and he secured the first appropriation made by congress for regular seasonal investigations and the establishment of stations in the different states for the development of methods by which the wasting fertility of our best agricultural soils may be minimized.

As a result of this appropriation by congress for soil preservation Texas secured two regular stations in connection with stations of Texas experiment service, and cooperative studies in a third. The work is well distributed, one station being at Nacogdoches in east Texas, one at Temple in central Texas, and the cooperative studies at Spur in west Texas.

In addition to this regular work the department of agriculture year, upon the application of Brazos river conservation and Reclamation district, conducted a rather extended preliminary survey in the whole of the area embraced in the Brazos river watershed, and has recently furnished the Brazos district with an interesting statement of these soil conditions, indicating their effect upon soil waste, and the consequent loss of fertility from the filling of channels with the washing of soil.

Efforts to minimize the loss of fertility through erosion and to increase agricultural productivity, now universally recognized as the greatest conservation problem of the country, and it is interesting and gratifying to know that Texas belongs the credit for the movement that means so much to the protection of our productive agricultural lands.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma.

B. H. Broiles, editor of the Texas News, says: "That a broom, a paint brush, a fresh stock of quality goods and a stick of advertising type will do more in any man's territory, extending trade territory and developing new business than a dozen buy-at-home campaigns."

We have slackened our American initiative. Instead of going after new business and new friends, we have sought to rest while curbing our competitors. We have tariffs, embargoes, boycotts—expressions of weakness—and we also have buy-at-home campaigns primarily to get customers NOT to trade at some other place.

Clean stores, clean stocks, sold by clean people will attract. One paint-up campaign is worth a dozen trade-at-home campaigns. Businesses which advertise consistently, intelligently and honestly profit most.

We need to forget the negative methods of business—tariff, embargo, boycott, trade-at-home, and renew our positive methods of

MAD MARRIAGE by Laura Lou Brookman

Continued from page 3. seen in the newspaper and wondered if Marcia were really so beautiful. Most important of all—how did Jim feel about Marcia? How did she feel about him?

There were no answers to any of these questions. Gypsy kept her speculations to herself. Abbie Manley telephoned one morning and told Gypsy she had tickets for the hospital benefit garden party at the Willises the next afternoon. "It's going to be lovely," Abbie predicted. "Madge Wellington's on the committee and she's told me all about it. Can you be ready about 3:30 if I stop for you?"

Gypsy was delighted with the invitation. The garden fete was sponsored by Forest City's most conservative social leaders. The proceeds were to supply linen for the new Union Memorial hospital. The Willis home was a show place and Gypsy was anxious to see the famous rose gardens.

She put on a new frock for the affair—a white crepe with touches of tomato red embroidery and a white kid belt. She wore white shoes and a white straw hat with a brim that left in front. Abbie praised the costume.

When they arrived already a large crowd of men and women had gathered about the stands where the girls in bright frocks were selling flowers. Others were having cool refreshments in the shade of enormous beach umbrellas. "Look," Abbie Manley exclaimed. "There's Madge's booth where they're selling those lovely Italian flower baskets. I must have one! Let's go over before they're gone."

Gypsy had been watching a small boy trying to operate a mechanical toy donkey. She turned. As she did so the profile of a young woman not 10 feet away caught her attention. Gypsy knew her instantly. (To Be Continued)
